JAPAN WILL AWAIT REDUCTION OF U. S.

Program to be Presented to Assembly is to Proceed With Plan in Three Stages

Geneva, Dec. 11.—World disarmament must be a slow and gradual process, the League of Nations committee which has been deliberating on the question more than three weeks, decided today. Outlines of leading members are that neither the political situation nor public opinion is yet ready for full realization of that object.

The committee even beginning reduction of armaments is not considered possible by the committee.

Proceeding in Three Stages

The committee has decided to proceed in three stages. The first stage is to reduce the number of troops in the field. The second stage is to reduce the number of troops in the field. The third stage is to reduce the number of troops in the field.

CRITICISM OF NEW POLICY GENERAL THROUGH IRELAND

HELFEST, Dec. 11.—Criticism of the government's new policy toward Ireland was general in newspapers today.

With regard to the government's expressed willingness to meet Sinn Féin members of parliament not guilty of serious crimes, the Irish press notes that the two Sinn Féin members have died in jail, that at least a dozen are in prison and that perhaps a score more are "on the run" and it adds:

When the partition of Ireland is signed by the king before Christmas whatever may befall.

The unionist press looks with suspicion upon the proposed Sinn Féin party.

Comments sound however, in the Premier's promise to Ronald McKenna to proceed with the present Irish home rule bill.

BANKERS WILL HELP FOREIGN TRADE OF U. S.

Financing Corporation is Launched to Aid Industries

ORGANIZATION WILL BE COMPLETE SOON

First Subscription Pledge is $500,000 Made by the Association of Manufacturers

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The Foreign Trade Financing corporation, with plans for a capital of $100,000,000 and a potential capacity of carrying $1,000,000,000 of business on its books, was launched today for the announced purpose of stabilizing American foreign trade.

Bankers Are Sponsors

More than 200 bankers were sponsors for the organization, which, it was announced probably would be ready to begin work shortly after January 1.

While the corporation was launched today, its organization will not be completed for another ten days when a special committee of nine, appointed today by the organizing committee of thirty, will meet in New York to select officers, choose a board of directors, and outline the first executive steps to be taken. In the meantime, the committee will be taking suggestions as to the steps to be taken to begin work.

The committee of nine will be headed by John McHugh, of New York, chairman of the committee, and will include representatives of the American Bankers' association.

McHugh for Chairman

Mr. McHugh, it was announced, probably would be chosen chairman of the board of directors. He was offered the presidency of the corporation by the committee of 30 today, according to several members, but declined.

Hope that the corporation would not be limited to representatives of capital as expressed by Richard Hawes of St. Louis, retiring president of the American Bankers' association, in a address.

"Many labor unions have large surplus funds which could be made to bring good financial returns through this corporation," he said, "and we strongly urge them to join us."

The first subscription was made by the Illinois Manufacturers association which pledged $500,000 with the announcement it would be double that amount if necessary. The corporation will be organized under the Edge act which provides establishment of corporations which may receive foreign securities, and issue debentures against the amount not to exceed, ten times the capital, thus giving the $100,000,000 to finance $1,000,000,000 in foreign trade.

PADEREWSKI WILL SOON RETURN TO AMERICA HE SAYS

Fatigued From Years of Hard Work for Poland, He Now Seeks Rest in United States.

By MILTON BRONNEN.

GENEVA.—Ignace J. Paderewski will return to America for an indefinite stay, soon after New Year, he told me in an interview.

"Tell my American friends—and I flatter myself to think I have many—that if everything goes well I shall be back in your country within about seven weeks," he said.

"I am going to take a much needed rest. Then your people can see for themselves I am not a sick man, but merely fatigued by incessant political labors of the last six years."

"I have a small estate in California, and I find myself longing to visit the state and enjoy its wonderful climate."

Paderewski asked me to "please correct the impression that I am a martyr to neuritis."

Paderewski said that it was true he would play the piano no more, but not because of neuritis in his hands as reported.

"I have voluntarily ended my artistic career," he said, "to serve my country politically and help bring the 19-year dream of free Poland to fulfillment."

"The false report about neuritis was immediately followed by an avalanche of letters from famous doctors offering to cure me with a score of messages of sympathy from friends, many being Americans. Recently some of your countrymen here in Europe expressed to me sorrow that my poor hands were suffering."

"I convinced them to the contrary by giving them a real American hand-shake."

He chatted easily and with humor, especially when he told of the plight of his American friends in a dry country who had informed him clubs were now like morgues.

"I want to ask America not to be impatient if Poland has not done everything expected of her," Paderewski said. "Remember my country is surrounded by dangers. Many frontiers are still in doubt and the Poles have been compelled to fight 25 months after other peoples began to enjoy peace."

"Your powerful and fortunate America started weak and poor and took a long time to draft the constitution and move forward. Poland in a given time hopes to do likewise."

"Remember, my country, torn asunder many years ago by powerful states, cannot be put together in a year or even several years. Difficult economic, educational, industrial and human questions must be solved."

"Patriotic Poles dream with me of a free Poland—the eastern outpost of Western civilization—which will in the years to come form a great democratic nation. Poland, when allowed to work in peace, will be one of the greatest states of Europe."

"We also have mineral resources, and if we get Upper Silesia we will be independent industrially, as we will then have the coal necessary to build up industries."

"I hope to be able to give place to younger men, but I am thankful to have been permitted the opportunity to serve my country to the best of my abilities."

"Nowhere was I able to raise my voice and plead Poland's cause more effectively than in America. For that I shall be forever grateful."

COURT OF SHOPPERS GIVES SPEEDY JUSTICE

CHICAGO.—A group of Chicago merchants have taken the law into their own hands.

They have their own court and their own judge. Also a jury, is the plaintiff insists. And trials are held, without colleagues, bailiffs, jurors or district attorneys. There isn't even a copy of Blackstone in the courtroom.

It's the Shopper's court. Presiding over the court is "Judge" Walter C. Foster. He was appointed to the "bench" by the Retail Building Merchants' association.

This skyscraper contains 120 distinct retail shops. Up on the eighth floor the Shopper's Court was established as a new and novel method of administering justice to shopkeepers who are not entirely satisfied with purchases or treatment in any one of the shops in the building.

"It is not a complaint department," explained "Judge" Foster, "we want to get away from the old-fashioned crowded counter entangled in a mass of red tape. Every customer gets a hurried, though fair, trial."

"I may add that I am perhaps the only 'jurist' in the world who is thoroughly biased. The bias is this: We want the customers pleased; and we want the merchants pleased—so that there is a co-operative spirit among the competitive retailers."

"The system is working splendidly. In a complicated case, we let a board of directors sit in as the jury—if the customer-plaintiff desires. And everyone who has been before the board or the court has left with a smile."

Miss Rosalie Sanders and Miss Ruth Olson were among the first plaintiffs to appear before the "Court of Smiles."

LEADS FIGHT OF WOMEN FOR SEAT IN PARLIAMENT

Victorious Rhoda Heads Campaign for Places in House of Lords

By LORRY A. JACOBS.

NEW YORK.—Rev. Harry L. Bowby, national secretary of the Lord's by Alliance, who is directing a nationwide movement for "Sabbath Sunday," outlined for me today his idea of "an ideal Sabbath."

If his plan was put into effect there would be but two things to do no Sunday: go to church and stay home.

He would taboo—

Movies, Baseball, Tennis, Newspapers, Ballroom Vendors, Stores, Traveling, Theaters, Bootblacks, Beaches, Concerts, Delicatessens, Resorts, Auto riding, except to church.

"I would call an ideal Sabbath," says Rev. Bowby, "a day on which all observe. Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy—a day on which people refrain from doing all those things that are so plainly in violation of the spirit of the day, whether of a commercial or uncommercial character.

His Commercialism. "Our object is to drive out what has become a continental Sunday and to defend and preserve the American Christian Sabbath."

"We are fully satisfied that the American Sabbath includes works of mercy and necessity, but that many are construing the Sabbath on such liberal terms as to change its name and devalue it into a holiday and a business day."

"By far the greater evil, as we see it, comes through great and well financed commercial corporations such as the motion picture industry and professional baseball leagues."

"Need Puritan Spirit."

"Puritans and Pilgrims observed the Sabbath more strictly than it has been observed at any time in the initial States within the last 50 years and the need of the hour is to put more of the Puritan spirit into our American Sunday."

In Rev. Bowby's office hangs a sign like this: "The lot of the reformer is hard," says Rev. Bowby. "In order to make others observe the Sabbath we must have pain and everyone's trying to keep us from getting it."

Among the reformers who are members of the International Reform Bureau, fighting for a "Sabbath Sunday" are:

Wayne S. Wheeler, cable editor of the Anti-Slavery League, who will speak at the International Reform Bureau conference in Washington the week of December 8-10, when the pending Sunday "blue law" bill for the District of Columbia will be considered and probably urged upon other states.

ARGENTINE COUP NIPPED IN BUD IS LEAGUE NO

Assembly Shows Strength in Crisis and Greater Solidarity to Result, Says Correspondent.

By H. N. RICHLEY.

GENEVA, Switzerland.—The withdrawal of the Argentine delegates from the League of Nations assembly, when first announced, created a tremendous sensation.

Some of the weakest spirits among the officers and delegates feared at first that the league structure was not yet strong enough to withstand the shock of such an attack and that the very life of the league itself was threatened.

Fortunately Sunday intervened the giving of the Argentine ultimatum and the necessity for action upon it by the assembly. This gave all of the delegates plenty of time to closely analyze the Argentine position and the motives back of it.

Reasons Unfathomable.

It was so obvious that the reasons given by the Argentine delegates for withdrawing were absolutely untenable and that it was a deliberate attempt to embarrass the assembly and weaken the league that by the time the assembly meeting was called to order Monday morning, there was practically a unanimous determination by the delegates of all the other nations, that the attempt should not succeed.

When the Argentine ultimatum was read to the assembly not a voice was raised to defend her action. Lord Curzon spoke briefly, regretting that the Argentine delegates had taken such a step, but adding that no one nation could presume to control the action of the league.

His speech was unanimously approved and the assembly proceeded with its regular order of business, the Argentine withdrawal being a closed incident.

League Strengthened.

Instead of the assembly and the league being weakened by the Argentine attack, they have been strengthened. They have demonstrated the powers of assistance to influence which wish to destroy the league, that many doubted they possessed.

The net result of the Argentine fiasco is that 50 nations, instead of 44, are now functioning in the assembly and that there is greater solidarity than before Argentina attempted her ridiculous coup.

The Argentine delegates will not be asked to return to the assembly. They either must ask to come back or pack their trunks and go home. They will probably do the latter and it will then be up to the Argentine government to decide whether or not it is to give the two year's notice of withdrawal from the league, which is provided in the covenant.

See German Influence.

There seems to be very little doubt that the action of the Argentine delegates was the result of German influence. The point they emphasized was that the assembly had refused to discuss the admission of all nations to the league at this season. Germany was not mentioned particularly, but Germany was meant.

Germany would like to get into the league before she has made good her treaty obligations and Argentina, which was Germany's good friend during the war, seems still to be playing that role.

Puiggyrdon, foreign secretary of Argentina and leader of that delegation here, directed the Argentine scheme. Ever since the first day of the assembly he has been very active on the floor and in committees, posing as one of the liberal leaders of the assembly. Now it develops that his whole purpose was to create a favorable impression which would bring to his aid other liberal leaders, when he got ready to force the discussion of Germany's admission to the league.

Liberals Show Success.

That he miserably failed and that his purpose is clearly exposed is evidence of the good sense and sincerity of the real liberal leadership of the assembly. Incidentally it is said that Puiggyrdon is candidate for president of Argentina and that his play here is designed to strengthen him with the Germanophile party at home.

The Lodge interview published in European newspapers, citing the Argentine withdrawal as proof that other nations are now finding league weaknesses that America found two years ago is as far as possible from fact.

It is true that the fact that the covenant should be amended at the next session of the assembly in several particulars is generally accepted. But it is equally true that Argentina's action was based on no such worthy motive.

It would be a great mistake for the American people to be misled as to the character of this assembly's actions by comments made by American senators hostile to the league, who base their remarks upon inadequate or garbled information.

THINKS FREDDY'S DANGEROUS.

AMSTERDAM, Holland.—The ex-crown prince of Germany is still dangerous. Oh, yes! Although the Dutch government permits him to remain in Holland, it won't let him live in the ex-hisler's pretty palace at Doorn. He has to live on Wilgen Island because his hosts don't think it wise to give too much liberty.

MAN LIFTS TAXI.

PARIS.—While a helpless crowd surveyed the scene Boulevard Haussmann, the strongest man in France, lifted a taxicab single-handed and released a newswoman "planted" beneath it when it overturned. The crowd didn't know that the hero was the famous Hausmann.

LIKES "NOCTURNE." NOT HOOTCH.

PORTLAND.—Sam Ford went to a friend's house for dinner. "It's about a little nocturne, before dinner," said the friend. "All right, as long as there's no moushine in it," replied Sam.

STURN OFFERS.

CHICAGO.—Dick Harley and Pete Stinchcomb both turned down offers to play professional football. "I don't approve of the professional pastime at all."

HELP THE HAND.

COLUMBUS.—Will the good folks of Columbus finance the trip of the Ohio state band to Pasadena? It would cost about $20,000. "Anyone is welcome to contribute," says "Tabby" Ex, singer, bandmaster.

UNSELFISH WORKMEN.

An experiment in generosity which will be worth watching is to be made in Cincinnati this winter. The 500 employees of the Nash Clothing Manufacturing company, a firm operated upon the "Golden Rule" basis, decided at a meeting held recently to turn their jobs over for a month, either January or February, to the unemployed of other clothing factories.

There have been many attempts on the part of employers to distribute employment as best they could so as to avoid turning any of their own employees off entirely, but this is quite a different matter. It is the voluntary decision of an entire working force to abandon their jobs for a time so that others, less fortunate, may have them. There is no telling how the experiment will work out, but the example is inspiring.

As a rule the scarcity of jobs and the whisper of hard times, breeds selfishness. To see it breed constructive unselfishness in such a unexpected manner is to have faith in humanity renewed.

COMMISSION TO
NEW AGREEMENT

Task of Drawing Up New Baseball Document Deputed to Landis, Pepper and Toole.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The Major and Minor League committees drawing up a new national baseball agreement tonight delegated to Judge Landis, high commissioner of baseball, George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia and John Conway Toole, of New York, the task of deciding the form of the document. The trio met to night and discussed provisions of the two tentative agreements presented today and will submit their report to the joint committee tomorrow.

"Later Judge Landis announced definitely that the American league meeting would be held in Chicago next Friday and that the joint ratification meeting would probably be held there Saturday or if delayed either in Chicago or New York after New Year's."

The general conference of the committees which lasted all day was amended by representatives of the major league clubs except St. Louis and Chicago of the American league. Absence of President Ban Johnson of the American league occasioned some surprise, until Judge Landis said the sickness regarding the proposed joint meeting of the two major leagues and the absence of President Johnson were due to him. He explained that in his opinion it would be impossible to get the coach with the preliminary discussion and the new agreement before next week and for that reason he notified President Johnson and Meider that the joint session would be held in Chicago Saturday. Before leaving Chicago, Judge Landis Mr. Johnson declared anything the judge decided on would suit him.

When Judge Landis arrived, he learned there was much dissatisfaction over the change of meeting from New York to Chicago. After the judge was informed that the business of drafting the new agreement could be disposed of by Monday, he was prevailed upon to call the joint session in New York and it was agreed to hold the meetings here Thursday if possible.

When the joint committee met to take up the new agreement, tentative drafts were submitted by President Heydler of the National league and John Conway Toole, attorney of the National league. "The principal difference was that Heydler's draft included the administrative details while that produced by Mr. Toole omitted them entirely, which he suggested might be incorporated in a separate agreement. Mr. Toole pointed out possible complications involving minor leagues under the plan presented by Heydler. There was a usually unanimous agreement relative to the draft presented by Mr. Toole which provided for either of the final forms of agreement; one to be between the two larger leagues with provisions for admitting the minor leagues as an association, as a party of the agreement, and the other, a three party agreement, the parties being the National league, American league and the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues. The plan suggested by Mr. Toole provides for a commission composed of Judge Landis and immediate predecessors of the National and American leagues as advisory members. A representative of the national association also would be a member in a similar capacity. If the Minor League association also would be a member in a similar capacity, if the minor league association elects to come in.

TRUTH EQUAL TO FICTION CLAIMS SPORTING WRITER

Cities' Remarkable Instances Recorded in Story Form and Then Enacted in Real Life.

By LOREY A. JACOBS.

NEW YORK.—Not all really heroic deeds and acts of great magnitude end when the armistice was signed. Not by any means. And it has remained for the football season to produce a play that should stamp Stanley Keck, giant tackle of the Princeton team, not only as one of the greatest players of many years, but as possessing real courage and sportsmanship of the kind that the poets sing about in war time. When Princeton, against the Tigers they are, twice crossed Harvard's line in their annual battle and all but defeated the mighty Crimson warriors, one man was practically responsible for both touchdowns, although he made neither.

And therein lies the story for Keck had a chance to make both and thereby win himself great glory. But there was also a chance that he might miss, and so, his brain working like lightning, he figured that he had best sidetrack personal glory and make the score more sure. He did right, and thereby gave the laurels to two other men. His act passed unnoticed for the most part, but there were those who saw the game who will never forget them.

But the strangest part of all is that published a month or so before the Harvard-Princeton game was a "touchdown" story. It was called "Touchdown No. 60," by J. G. B. Morse, and was presented in "The Open Road," the Magazine for Young Men, a Boston publication. And in this story was the description of a play that was like Keck's in almost every detail. It read the two accounts—one of the truth and the other fiction—and judge for yourself Keck's greatness.

FICTION.

"Harvard had but one chance. The quarter decided to play safe and try for a field goal, and amid a hush, he stepped back for the ball and it flew back. But the pass was poor and the platoon went far to one side; the drop kicker lunged for it, slipped and fell as it went past him into the open field.

His Chance.

"Like a flash Bill March was through the Harvard line and past their secondary defense. He reached the man in the backfield just as the latter was getting up to recover the ball. A pace to the rear he saw Henry Deane, one of his teammates, also straining every nerve to reach it. Together the three raced for the bounding, bustling oval.

"In a few minutes that followed it seemed to Bill March that he was living hours. He thought that he could reach the ball first and once the ball was in his hands he was sure to outstrip all pursuers. A touchdown and victory—and above all the chance to vindicate himself. It was his great, his golden opportunity.

"He could probably do it, but there was a chance, he might be brought down from behind. It was unlikely, impossible, almost; but if he didn't get clear with the ball it meant defeat for Yale, whereas, if he blocked his opponent, Henry Deane, would have a clear field for a touchdown.

"All those things went through his head as he neared the bounding ball and like a flash he made his decision. pausing a second to let his opponent almost draw level he threw himself in his path and the two rolled over and over a third one ran past them, picked up the ball and was off down the field to a touchdown."

TRUTH.

Keck's remarkable play came in the third period. The period was nearing the limit when Harvard decided to kick. George Owen went back, prepared to get off a long spiral.

Keck crashed through the line when the ball was snapped. He smashed his way toward Owen, who was in the act of getting off one of his long kicks. The punt was blocked. The ball rolled toward the goal line.

His Sacrifice. Owen did not hesitate. Neither did Keck. They started in pursuit of the ball. It was neck and neck! But Owen's speed was finally asserting itself. It looked as though the Newton boy would be the first to reach the ball.

Keck realized this fact to be true. His speed might not compare to the fleetness of the Harvard back. Keck immediately gave up all hope of recovering the ball, although he had as good a chance for doing so as did Owen. But decided that Owen would not recover it either.

Owen was ready to pounce upon the ball. Just as he was preparing himself to spring, Keck bit him from behind and the Harvard man rolled across the goal line with Keck after him.

Then LeGendre, the Princeton end, who was closely following Keck and Owen, pounced on the ball and recovered it on Harvard's eight-yard line. And a minute or so later the ball was over the line for a Princeton touchdown, the second of the game. And so it was that Stanley Keck passed up his claim to plaudits in order that he might be sure of his team's greater glory.

SOME PROGRESS.

BOSTON.—By electing Mack Aldrich captain of the Yale eleven, the school has broken a precedent of long standing. All former leaders of Ell elevens were from the big prep school. Aldrich is from a high school in Fall River.

SHORT FIGHT—YES!

TOPEKA, Kas.—Jesse Willard believes he has all the physical attributes to give Deacy an even-steven fight as long as it lasts. Jesse is figuring on getting in condition to step in full speed for four or five rounds and set build up for a 15-round mill.

DIFFERENT NOW.

ST. LOUIS.—When Miler Higgins was manager here he made quite a reputation as a "David Horum" trader. But since he went to New York he isn't doing so well. Rival clubs hesitate to give the big town teams anything.

FLIER TRAINS.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Johnny Welch the Missouri sprinter who has established his residence here, is training for indoor sprinting again. Scholz is a flier on the board track.

THORPE WONDERS.

AKRON.—Jim Thorpe doesn't know why he isn't still a big leaguer. "I batted over .300 when I was up there and I hit 'em all. You can't prove it by my why they turned me back," he says.

TITLE HOLDER DEFEATS JACKSON IN PLAY OFF

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Robert Canfax, title holder, today defeated Clarence Jackson of Kansas City in the playoff of the three cornered tie for the national three cushion billiard championship by a score of 75 to 68 in 100 innings and will meet John Layton of St. Louis Monday in the deciding game. Canfax's high run was seven and Jackson's five. Canfax was not in very good luck and played a safe game. The victory threw Jackson out of titular contention, as he lost to Layton yesterday and left him in third place.

DIXIE DEMANDS.

LOUISVILLE.—Memphis, Birmingham and Atlanta are advocating a 16-player limit and a salary arrangement of $5,000 a month for Southern league clubs.

GRIDIRON CLUB GIVE TAKE OFF ON ELECTION

Annual Dinner of Funsters in Occasion for Post Mortem of Presidential Election.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The 45th annual dinner of the Gridiron club was made the occasion tonight of a post mortem on the presidential election, the purpose being to permit politicians and some of the statesmen present to see themselves as others saw them.

One episode was a front porch meeting at Marion, Ohio, set to music, with such characters as Senator Harding, Harry M. Daugherty, former Senator W. A. Rorer, William Bryan and "Gush fund rumor" parading. Mr. Daugherty skated the front porch at Koko, the Lord High executioner, while there was a rumble when the "Gush fund rumor" invaded the Harding lawn. During the skit, Will H. Hays sang plaintively to the republican candidate a political parody on "Then You'll Remember Me." Only Mr. Hays' request was "So Please Remember Me."

In another episode a crystal gazer, reading the political future, saw President Harding sending the league of nations to the alien property custodian. The gazer also announced that the crystal revealed President Harding receiving "from Samuel Gompers the key to the back door of the White House and returning it with a note saying:

"May I not, my dear Mr. Gompers, say to you to keep this key as a souvenir. I have changed the lock."

The gazer revealed Harding was at work on a message to congress. He said he could not give the text, but assured an inquirer "the style will not cause any intelligent inattention."

The crystal seer also found former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, applying for the job of publicity director under Harding, but his services were declined.

Another estimation of the post mortem to the Zeldis of prophecy was a meeting of the "best minds" in America in conference with President-elect Harding. They included Colonel George Harvey, former President Taft, Senators Borah, Johnson, Knox, Lodge, La Follette and Reed, Major General Wood, Governor Lowden, Samuel Gompers, Herbert Hoover and Elhuu Choi. They appeared dressed as school boys and Colonel Harvey insisted on being the "master mind" because he was the author of the "conspiracy that elected Harding."

Chief among the interested witnesses to the post mortem, were Vice President Marshall, to whom the club presented a large silver gridiron as a token of its regard. A similar gridiron was sent to the White House, to President Wilson who was unable to attend.

Besides the vice president, the guests included Attorney General Palmer, Secretaries Daniels Meredith and Burleson, and Geddes, British ambassador and Jules J. Guersand, French ambassador.

Wheat closed 1 cent 4 1/2 cents above Friday with December $1.55 and March $1.50 to $1.55 1/2; corn unchanged to 1/2 cent lower; oats showed a gain of quarter cent to 5/8 cent, and rye and clover 10 cents lower to 25 cents higher.
Reports of a liberal export demand for wheat with some sales via the Gulf combined with an oversold condition due to a decline of 20 cents from the high point of Monday made an active and higher market. Houses with board connections were good buyers, Greece taking 400,000 bushels, there also was heavy buying by shorts.
Country offerings of corn showed signs of increasing considerably from Iowa and parts of Illinois.
Oats decreased strength from the upturn on other grains. Sales of 50,000 bushels of corn and 15,000 bushels of oats were made to the seaboard. Provisions were firmer but the advance there was selling of ribs cooled to a packer.

house, has been brought up a Roman Catholic. She would have to renounce the Roman Catholic church in order that the marriage take place.
Choice Limited.
Because none but a Protestant can become queen of England, because it is inconceivable that a prince of England should marry any member of the royal family of any country with which England was recently at war, and because no prince of England ever marries a member of any royal house which has been deposed by its former subjects, the prince, in a royal blood way, is very limited in his choice of a queen.

Denmark, Netherlands, Norway and Sweden are the only protestant reigning houses in Europe. Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, is heir to the throne, which makes her ineligible. There is no Norwegian princess. Sweden's king has no daughters, but he has a grand daughter, the Princess Ingrid, ten years old, and two unmarried nieces, 18 and 15 years old.
King Christian of Denmark has no daughters and his two sisters are too old for the Prince of Wales. He has, however, two nieces, the daughters of his brother, Harold, and his cousin, the Princess Margaret, now mentioned as the future queen.

But if Dan Cunt is to lead the way, nobody seems to know just who is on the prince's mind.
HAS FORTUNE COMING.
DES MOINES.—Wilbur Clark will fail here to $25,000 when he is 21. At present he hasn't even warm clothes for winter. Clark's guardian, George H. Botsford, here, is trying to gain permission to spend a little of the inheritance, now held by W. L. Clark, 22, to let Dan Cunt lead him where he may, and marry the girl he really loves.
Public sentiment in England seems to have turned about-face and no longer feels that the consort of a prince needs to be of royal blood. The London Times, in fact, editorially advised the Prince of Wales to "avoid entering into marriage with a foreign princess, to avoid a political marriage, and to marry for love."

AMERICAN EMBLEM.
If he follows the Times' advice it is possible the Prince of Wales might come to America for a wife. A marriage with an American girl would probably be looked upon with favor by British governmental circles though there is said to be a strong sentiment in England that the prince marry an English girl.
On the other hand, the visit of King Christian of Denmark, to England, has strengthened rumors that the beautiful Princess Margaret of Denmark, his cousin, is to be England's future queen.
Princess Margaret appears the only probability in the royal blood alternative.
But even in her case, there is a drawback. No English prince can marry a Roman Catholic without forfeiting his right of succession to the crown, and Princess Margaret, though belonging to a Protestant

DISMISS JURY IN RAMSEYER MURDER TRIAL

Tolsoner Unable to Reach Agreement—Continue Case Until Next Term of Court.

The jury in the case of the state versus Ramseyer was dismissed yesterday morning following a report by the foreman that it was impossible to reach a verdict. At the time the report was made the jury stood, eight to four, in favor of acquittal. It is said the jury was out from six o'clock Thursday evening until the time the report was made. The case will be continued during the next term of the district court.

The evidence introduced by counsel for the defense during the trial tended to show that Abel had attacked Ramseyer in Filer and that the defendant had been chased from one store to another, being in such terror as to be unable even to make any attempt to defend himself. Witnesses for the defense also testified that the defendant had been informed that Abel was possessed of the intention to kill a man with a shovel and that he had also been arrested on a charge of pilfering water, a year before the commission of the alleged crime.

Evidence was also introduced by counsel for the defense that on the occasion of the shooting Abel had a shovel in his hand, raised in an effort to strike Ramseyer. Witnesses testified that Abel haunted the defendant with lacking the nerve to shoot the gun, accompanying this declaration with a vilifying oath, and Ramseyer fired as Abel swung the shovel at his head.

According to testimony, Abel was pursuing Ramseyer, who fell back before his advance, and that only when he was seized by his son, after having been shot, did Abel discontinue the pursuit. It was also testified that Ellidrey, the son, while taking his father away from the scene of the trouble, bantered Ramseyer to dispose of his gun, declaring that "he would come out in the road, that he Ellidrey Abel, and whip him."

The fact was also brought out in the testimony that immediately after Abel had been wounded and was a hundred feet away from the scene, in the direction of the road, Abel went back and secured the shovel, waiting for a car immediately after to take his father to the doctor. Before

Abel had entered the car, Ramseyer had gotten into his machine, and that when they passed, Abel shouted at Ramseyer, "down you, I'll get you yet."

ESCAPADES OF CHESTER REAL MOVIE THRILLER

Regular "Deadwood Dick" Up-to-Date in Thrilling Capture, Escape and Recapture of Alleged Murderer.

By MABEL ABBOTT.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Here's a corker of a detective story, fellows. And it's true. It's still happening, and nobody knows how it's going to end, or whether the villain is really the villain, or anything; but's got a soldier-borne doctor hero, and a man-hunt with blood hounds and airplanes, and more thrills than a Bill Hart movie. It's like this, so far, though there may be a new chapter before you have finished reading:

Shot While Motoring.

Florence Barton, Kansas City, society girl, and Howard Winter, her fiancé, driving near Hillcrest Country club on the night of October 2, were shot by one of three men in another automobile. Winter was slightly wounded. Miss Barton died on the way to a hospital.

Private detectives and the city force were put on the job of finding the murderer. After a month's chase through Arizona and California, Chester, 27, blacksmith, was arrested in Great Falls, Mont., where he was arrested to rooming house by letters signed with the name of a woman whose love letters had been found among his belongings.

On the train, Chester was put in a stateroom. E. E. Beasley, police detective, sat in the room with him. Outside sat two detectives from a private agency. Beasley afterward said Chester's handcuffs had been removed to let him eat lunch and shave, and because he was treating him well to get him to answer questions.

Suddenly, as the train pulled out of Broken Bow, Neb., there was a crash of glass, a volley of shots, and Beasley dashed out of the stateroom, shouting: "My God! Dennis's jumped out of the window!"

The train was stopped, but of Chester, who was supposed to have dived through two heavy panes of plate glass, there was no trace save a hat with a bullet hole in it.

Real Man-Hunt.

Followed then a man-hunt that the whole middle west will always remember. It was freezing weather and Chester was: hatless and coatless.

Bloodhounds were put on the trail. "Blood hounds" came in all directions. Miss Barton's two brothers and Winter scoured the country in automobiles. John Hagan, superintendent of the detective agency, hovered over the region in an airplane.

Rewards totaling $10,700 had been offered. But the prairie seemed to have opened and swallowed Dennis Chester.

Almost exhausted, Barton, Hagan and a deputy sheriff named Hammond got a fresh tip, Nov. 12, that Chester was near Oconto, Neb. It was 3 o'clock in the morning, but out they went again. And just then arrived the hero, Dr. Martin Hanson, over six-foot tall, 34 years old, a first lieutenant in the Veterinary Corps during the war. He had been treating a sick horse all night, and he volunteered to help in the search.

Meet Him on Road.

About noon, Hanson and Hammond, driving together, met a man in khaki uniform.

"How far to Oconto?" asked Hanson, jumping out.

"Oh, five or six miles," replied the man.

Hanson's revolver was already against his stomach. "Hands up," he ordered, and they went up. It was Dennis Chester.

In the Broken Bow Jail, late that afternoon, Chester tore strips from his blanket, knotted them about his throat and had almost strangled himself before he was found. Early next morning, despite the guard watching him, he suddenly stood up on his cot and dived headlong to the cement floor.

Baffles Doctors.

Between attempts at suicide, he has lain limp, apparently helpless and absolutely speechless, staring at the ceiling or the light. Examinations by many doctors, including a neurologist and an X-ray expert, fail to show any injury from his attempts at suicide, or any reason why he could not speak or walk if he wishes. The doctors believe he is shamming.

He was carried to the train shackled on a stretcher. In Kansas City he is in a steel room in a hospital, under heavy guard. After a long period here of hopelessness, Chester made a third attempt at suicide. He tried to butt out his brains on the bars of his cell when the guard looked away.

Meanwhile, many things have been going on. It is whispered that money without limit will be available in the dark places of Kansas City's dens and dives, to help Chester.

Detective Flock.

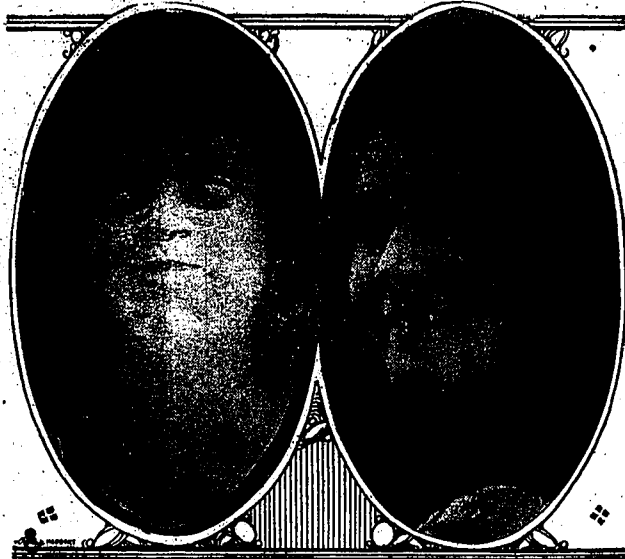

A police investigation of the escape has resulted in the dropping of Beasley from the city force, the revocation of the commissions of the private agency, and political semi-upheaval.

Hanson and Hammond have received the $2,500 reward offered by the Law Enforcement League for his recapture. The rest is contingent upon conviction.

COPS SAID "HOME JAMES."

PARIS—Ever hear of a "Jokily and Hyde" face? Mlle. Blanche Norel, a French actress, has one. When she smiles she's as pretty as a picture. But when she pushes her mouth out as if to show her eyes in—horror! Hence Paris is calling her the prettiest and ugliest woman in France. Many movie directors have asked her to act for them, but Mlle. Norel sticks to the legitimate stage.

COMMISSION SEEKS EARLY PAYMENT OF SUMS TO RAILROAD

Interstate Commerce Commission Would Have Government Pay Railroads Amount Due.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Immediate payment to the railroads of sums due them under the guaranty provisions of the Transportation Act, but withheld under the ruling by the comptroller of the treasury was declared by the Interstate Commerce commission in its annual report to be "vital in order that the carriers may properly serve the public." The commission recommended that congress amend the Railroad Act to permit the release and payment to the roads of the money thus tied up.

Many of the roads are greatly handicapped because of their inability to collect the guaranty, the commission said. "Although advances against the anticipated deficit were made in scores of instances, the report said, some of the roads made no application for aid prior to September 1, and as a result they are estopped from claiming even a portion of money 'justly due them' until the mechanical work of completing their audit for the entire guaranty period can be accomplished."

The commission said that in most cases it could now determine "amounts or parts of amounts due the carriers," but that its certifications of these sums to the treasury could not be honored by the treasury since the comptroller had ruled that such applications for advances must have been granted prior to September 1. The commission believed it should be authorized to make "reasonable estimates" to alleviate the difficulties confronting many carriers against meeting operating expenses, fixed charges, etc. The year's rail operations have developed the need of several other changes in laws, the commission said. It urges congress to amend the Interstate Commerce Act to provide for the punishment of any person "offering or giving to an employee of a carrier subject to the act any money or thing of value with intent to influence his action or decision with respect to car service and also to provide for the punishment of the guilty employee."

Appropriate legislation governing the transportation of explosives was asked as were changes in laws affecting the awarding of reparations for damages which, the commission said, should be a matter entirely for the adjudication of courts.

The menace of wood passenger coaches was set forth as another subject for legislative action, the commission arguing that the roads be compelled to use steel cars in all passenger train service and prohibited from using wood coaches between or in front of steel coaches.

Referring to the question of bribery of railroad employees, the commission said:

"As a result of the inadequacy of the car supply and of railroad transportation facilities generally during the past year, a practice has grown up among shippers of bribing operating employees of railroad companies in order to obtain transportation services. The demoralizing effects of this practice are far-reaching. Bribery of this character in many instances can not be directly and effectively reached under existing laws."

On the subject of equipment supply, the commission declared that while the shortage could be minimized by car conservation and increased efficiency, the only permanent solution was substantial additions to equipment. The latest general statistics of the commission showed that the railroads under the jurisdiction owned approximately 2,358,570 freight cars, while an additional 140,000 cars were owned privately. The freight cars were divided as follows: 1,662,530 box cars, 1,009,876 open top cars, 107,820 flat cars, 85,000 stock cars, 60,200 refrigerator cars and 45,000 cars of miscellaneous types.

In spite of the shortage of equipment enumerated by the commission, it showed that the volume of freight carried during the first seven months of 1920 exceeded by 17.1 per cent the freight traffic for the corresponding period of 1919. Freight traffic as a whole for the last seven months also was said by the commission to be in excess of that of the entire year of 1919.

While the traffic has increased, the commission's figures show, the net operating income has suffered a continuous decline since 1917. The commission attributed this to heavier maintenance costs in which war inflation figured. Incomplete statistics, however, made it impossible for the commission to offer accurate comparison between the years 1917 and 1920, and it made no attempt to estimate the figures for any portion of the year.

NEED FAR SIGHTED POLICY REGARDING INTERNAL AFFAIRS

Secretary Payne of the Interior Makes Annual Report: Alaskan Policy Is Mentioned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Need of a far-sighted government policy with respect to many of the country's internal affairs is emphasized in the annual report of Secretary Payne, made public at the interior department. Lack of a definite plan was said to affect particularly the administration of activities in Alaska, in dealing with the Indian tribes, in preservation of the national parks and forests and in handling the greater reconstruction problem of maintaining a high agricultural production.

While Mr. Payne criticized the uncertainty which he said surrounded many activities, he commended as a strong constructive step the action of congress in making possible the "super-power survey" of the region between Boston and Washington with a view to the development of a unified system of power generation and distribution. This investigation, made under the direction of the interior department, will be completed and the committee's report given to the public about next June, the secretary said, adding that he believed it would deserve public confidence.

On the subject of Alaska, the secretary said the present problem was transportation and development of a government owned steamship line in order to insure development of the territory's resources. Two things now serve the region, but Mr. Payne indicated their service was not adequate. He suggested their consolidation as a means of improving the service but this apparently was impossible.

The government railroad in Alaska, to be a total of 540 miles in length will be completed and in operation in 1922, Mr. Payne reported. He added that it tapped fields of untold mineral wealth and praised the work of the engineers in the progress made.

In connection with Secretary Payne's discussion of Alaskan transportation, Governor Higgs, the territorial executive, urged the establishment of a tonnage tax on all shipping to and in the territory and the building up with the fund thus raised of regular and reasonable service upon equitable rates and schedules. He advocated an government appropriations for the construction of a scheme of highways to serve as feeder wagon roads to the government owned rail lines.

The question of communication also is one in which little progress has been made and Governor Higgs informed Mr. Payne it was seriously handicapping development. Mail is slow, being shipped by freight or express and arriving frequently in badly damaged condition. The governor, however, believes this is offset in a measure by the army cable and naval radio service which he said was better used (disproportionately) with the mails.

The governor's report declares that taxing spirit is finding its way into Alaska from British Columbia in quantities and "bootlegging" seems to be causing a private stock of liquor are exhausted. The governor reported that "distillation processes were becoming well known" adding to the trouble which has been complicated, however, that provisions of the Volstead Act with respect to the use of whiskey for medicinal purposes be extended to Alaska, claiming that "many lives could have been saved had whiskey been available during the emergency of the pneumonia and influenza epidemics in the territory."

Of internal problems in the United States, Secretary Payne mentions as one of great importance the question of domestic reconstruction as related to farming. The secretary cited census figures showing that the rate of increase of population on farms was only one-fifth as great as that of the nation as a whole. He believed this fore-shadowed a dangerous condition in the future.

"The difficulty," he continued, "is that people do not like to live alone, but prefer to live in towns and villages and enjoy the conveniences and comforts of modern life which are beyond the reach of a scattered population living on large farms. Can this be remedied by the ownership and the formation of neighborhood associations? Small farms bringing the people nearer together and intensive cultivation of these farms may be the answer."

Secretary Payne advocated passage of the Roosevelt "rural home bill" which he said would give the interior department an opportunity to do much important work in farming development and to take steps to aid the restoration of farming population through increased land ownership where they work the land.

Along with the farm life question, the secretary took up the activities of the reclamation service of his department. The interest in opportunities on the land, he said, has greatly increased with the demobilization of the fighting forces. The department, although handicapped by lack of funds, has been assembling "a large amount of valuable information" which will be of use to the country in the future.

The government had spent to June 30 a total of $125,000,000 on reclamation projects, the secretary reported, and approximately 2,150,000 acres of land were made available through the reclamation efforts of the government. The secretary declared that the government should come forward with a comprehensive scheme of reclamation development to meet the "earnest desire of thousands of landless men and women who have become part of the movement 'forward to the farm.'"

Discussing the Indian question, Mr. Payne urged that citizenship be extended to all Indians and said their children should, where possible, be educated with the white children and encouraged in every way to become a part and parcel of our own national citizenship.

The policy of issuing fee patents to the Indians for their lands was strenuously opposed by the secretary who declared that to continue "thus placing them in a position to sell in my judgment, fraught with the gravest dangers and will inevitably pauperize thousands." Mr. Payne believes that until the Indians are educated and have become accustomed through long experience to dealing with the white people, they should not be permitted to deal with them on "open farms."

During the last fiscal year, the general land office showed an entry of 16,424,491 acres of Indian and other public land, an increase of approximately 4,500,000 acres over the previous year. More than 11,800,000 acres were patented in the year, an increase of 1,000,000 acres over 1919.

Discussing the national park system, Mr. Payne said that a number of projects involving the use of national park lands as storage places had been proposed, but that he has opposed them on the ground that it meant the establishment of a precedent which would eventually lead to the commercialization of the national parks.

"The principle is not recognized," he said, "and commercialization is allowed to creep in. It will be only a question of time until our wild west will be only a memory and the big game will be extinct and these places and objects, now so wonderful, will be seriously and permanently injured."

"The conflict between the demands of commerce and the preservation of these wonder places involves constant vigilance. In my view their preservation is of first importance. It should be a settled policy of the country, regardless of any question of utility that when in the wisdom of congress national parks or monuments are definitely set apart they must be preserved in their integrity, forever free from any form of commercialism."

Work of the bureau of mines during the year included the extension of assistance at 27 mine accidents, 17 at coal mines and 10 at metal mines. The bureau also trained 10,177 miners in first aid and mine rescue work in the twelve months as compared with 7,781 in the previous year. The bureau continued its investigation of ventilation in metal mines of the west with a view to eliminating dangers from rock dust and humidity.

NEED FAR SIGHTED POLICY REGARDING INTERNAL AFFAIRS

Secretary Payne of the Interior Makes
Annual Report: Alaskan Policy
Is Mentioned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Need of a far-sighted government policy with respect to many of the country's internal affairs is emphasized in the annual report of Secretary Payne, made public in the interior department. Lack of a definite aim was said to affect particularly the administration of activities in Alaska, in dealing with the Indian tribes, in preservation of the national parks and forests and again in handling the greater reconstruction problem of maintaining a high agricultural production.

While Mr. Payne criticized the uncertainty which he said surrounded many activities, he commended as a strong constructive step the action of congress in making possible the "super-power survey" of the region between Boston and Washington with a view to the development of a unified system of power generation and distribution. This investigation, made under the direction of the interior department, will be completed and the committee's report given to the public about next June, the secretary said, adding that he believed it would serve public confidence.

On the subject of Alaska, the secretary said that the internal problems were transportation and advocated the operation of a government-owned steamship line in order to insure development of the territory's resources. Two lines now serve the region, but Mr. Payne indicated their service was not satisfactory. He suggested their consolidation as a means of improving the service but this apparently was impossible.

The government railroad in Alaska to be a total of 640 miles in length will be completed and in operation in 1922, Mr. Payne reported. He noted that it tapped fields of untold mineral wealth and praised the work of the engineers in the progress made.

In connection with Secretary Payne's discussion of Alaskan transportation, Governor Riggs, the territorial executive, urged the establishment of a tollage tax on all shipping to and in the territory and the building up with the fund thus raised of "regular and reasonable service upon suitable cargo and schedules." He advocated also government appropriations for the construction of a scheme of highways to serve as feeder wagon roads to the government owned rail lines.

The question of communication also is one in which little progress has been made and Governor Riggs informed Mr. Payne it was seriously handicapping development. Mail is slow, being shipped as freight of express and arriving frequently in badly damaged condition. The governor, however, believes this is offset in a measure by the army cable and naval radio service which he said was being used disproportionately with the mails.

The governor's report declares that collecting liquor is finding its way into Alaska from British Columbia in large quantities and "bootlegging" seems to be costing the private stocks of liquor are exhausted. The governor reported that "distillation process" were becoming well known, adding to the menace which he said existed. He urged, however, not violation of the Volstead Act with respect to the use of whiskey for medicinal purposes be extended to Alaska, claiming that "many lives could have been saved had whiskey been available during the emergency of the pneumonia and influenza epidemics in the territory."

Of internal problems in the United States, Secretary Payne mentions as one of great importance the question of domestic reconstruction as a vital factor. The secretary cited census figures showing that the rate of increase of population on farms was only one-fifth as great as that of the nation as a whole. He believed this fore-shadowed a dangerous condition in the future.

"The difficulty," he continued, "is that people do not like to live alone, but prefer to live in towns and villages and enjoy the conveniences and comforts of modern life which have beyond the reach of a scattered population living on large farms. Can this be remedied by the ownership and the formation of neighborhood associations? Small farms bringing the people nearer together and thus cultivation of these farms may be the answer."

Secretary Payne advocated passage of the "Amos 'n' Mabel' bill" which he said would give the interior department an opportunity to do much for part work in farming development and to take steps to aid the restoration of farming population through increased land ownership by those who work the land.

Along with the farm life question, the secretary took up the activities of the reclamation service of his department. The interest in opportunities on the land, he said, has greatly increased with the demobilization of the fighting forces. The department, although handicapped by lack of funds, has been assembling "a large amount of valuable information" which will be of use to the country in the future.

The government had spent to June 30 a total of $125,000,000 on reclamation projects, the secretary reported, and approximately 2,150,000 acres of land were made available through the reclamation efforts of the government.

The secretary declared that the government should come forward with comprehensive scheme of reclamation development to meet the "earnest desire of thousands of landless men and women who have become a part of the movement toward to the farm."

Discussing the Indian question, Mr. Payne urged that citizenship be extended to all Indians and said their children should, where possible, be educated with the white children and "encouraged in every way to become a part and parcel of our own national citizenship."

The policy of issuing fee patents to the Indians for their lands was strenuously opposed by the secretary who declared that to continue "thus placing them in a position to sell is, in my judgment, fraught with the gravest dangers and will inevitably pauperize thousands." Mr. Payne believes that until the Indians are educated and have become accustomed through long experience to dealing with the white people they should not be permitted to deal with them on "even terms."

During the last fiscal year, the general land office allowed entry of 16,424,431 acres of Indian and other public land, an increase of approximately 4,500,000 acres over the previous year. More than 11,500,000 acres were patented in the year, an increase of 1,000,000 acres over 1919.

Discussing the national park system, Mr. Payne said that a number of projects involving the use of national park lands as storage places had been proposed, but that he had opposed them on the ground that it met the establishment of a precedent which would eventually lead to the commercialization of the national parks.

"If this principle is not recognized," he said, "and commercialization is allowed to creep in, it will be only a question of time until our wild west will be only a memory and the big game will be extinct and these places and objects, now so wonderful, will be seriously and permanently injured."

"The conflict between the demands of commerce and the preservation of these wonder places involves constant vigilance. In my view their preservation is of first importance. It should be a settled policy of the country, regardless of any question of utility that when in the wisdom of congress national parks or monuments are definitely set apart they must be preserved in their integrity, forever free from any form of commercialization."

Work of the bureau of mines during the year included the extension of assistance at 27 mine accidents, 17 at coal mines and 10 at metal mines. The bureau also trained 15,177 miners in first aid and mine rescue work in the twelve months as compared with 9,781 in the previous year. The bureau continued its investigations of ventilation in metal mines of the west with a view to eliminating dangers from rock dust and humidity.

FREIGHT CHARGES OF CORPORATION COME UNDER FIRE

Claim Steel Companies Make Consumers Pay for Freight They Don't Pay Themselves.

By GEORGE B. WATERS.

WASHINGTON.—Has the United States Steel corporation a right to charge up to customers freight that it doesn't have to pay?

The company admits it charges up to its customers, which is in due time passed on to the general public, millions of dollars as freight that it does not pay. It claims this is a trade custom, handed down for a half century.

On the other hand, steel fabricators (the manufacturers of steel products) west of Chicago, in Minnesota and particularly in Duluth, and throughout the south in the Birmingham, Alabama vicinity, claim that the charging of freight that is never paid is nothing less than robbery, and that if the custom is long established, so much more the reason for smashing it.

When it comes to...

Here's what the United States Steel corporation does. It has a plant at Chicago. When it sells a ton of steel in Chicago, it charges what the steel would bring in Pittsburgh. Then it adds more than $5 a ton for freight from Pittsburgh to Chicago. But, as a matter of fact, the steel is not shipped from Pittsburgh. It costs about the same to produce steel in Chicago that it does in Pittsburgh.

Fabricators in Chicago and west—the men who buy plate and bar steel and manufacture it into plows and lawnmowers and stoves and hammers and saws—declare this practice adds to the prices they have to charge their customers. They also charge they cannot compete with fabricators in the Pittsburgh district because they have to pay freight twice, whereas Pittsburgh fabricators can ship into this territory by paying freight only once. Hence they allege the practice is restraint of trade, in violation of the anti-trust act.

More steel is produced at Duluth, Minn., than at Pittsburgh, and the United States Steel corporation adds about $10 freight (it does not pay) to each ton of steel it sells there. During the panic of 1907 the United States Steel corporation bought (under special dispensation from President Roosevelt) the big steel interests at Steel Base bureau. Letters and affi-

Birmingham, Ala. Although it is cheaper to produce steel at Birmingham than at Pittsburgh, it charges the Pittsburgh price for steel sold at Birmingham and then adds freight from Pittsburgh to the Birmingham destination, about $10 a ton.

The charges are filed by the Western Association of Rolled Steel Consumers, Superior Commercial club of Duluth, Southern Association of Steel Fabricators and the Birmingham (Roosevelt) the big steel interests at Steel Base bureau. Letters and affidavits are sent in from fabricators all over the United States.

In a previous hearing the Federal Trade Commission ruled that there was no action it could take, that the steel corporation had a right to charge for its goods what it pleased. But the fabricators, pressed by higher freight rates, have renewed their fight for relief and the hearing has been opened. At the previous hearing, Judge Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation board, told the commission the Pittsburgh hauling plan stabilized prices, and that if it were abolished "it would bring disaster to certain communities" and disturbed business conditions. It operates like a "protective tariff."

John S. Miller, representing the Western Association of Rolled Steel Consumers, who wants Chicago freight hauled, said the steel corporation was collecting $30,000,000 a year freight from the Chicago district alone. Birmingham and Duluth also want freight hauled.

Judge Gary says if the Federal Trade Commission decides against the steel corporation there will be the biggest lawsuit in the courts the world has ever known. The steel powers won't give up this bounty until the highest court in the country so orders.

AUTO INTERESTS SEEK FEDERAL ROAD SYSTEM

WASHINGTON.—Automobile interests of the country are concentrated on efforts here to bring about the passage by congress of the Townsend bill for a system of federal-built and federal-maintained highways, through out the country. The measure is expected to come up for consideration during the present session of congress, which opened Dec. 6.

This bill, which is authored by Senator Charles E. Townsend of Michigan was drawn up during the war when the military importance of a federal highway system was recognized. With the termination of the war, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and other automobile organizations have continued the attempt to obtain passage of this legislation, arguing that such roads will be of great benefit to the country from an economic standpoint besides maintaining their military value.

If the Townsend bill becomes law, every state will have two trunk line roads built and maintained by the state and connecting up with the highways of adjoining states to form a complete federal system.

The result would be a checkerboard system of highways over the country, the economic importance of which to farmers and industries is obvious. With this as the main system, the states would build their trunk line roads to feed the national highways, the counties would connect their lines to the state highways and the whole highway system would be complete even to the townhall roads.

PUT GOLDEN RULE TO WORK IN THIS CLOTHING FACTORY

Employees of Clothing Factory Will Give Their Place, to Address for Month: Owner, was Preacher.

CINCINNATI.—The Golden Rule is at work every day here in the clothing factory of Arthur Nash, once a preacher.

When he went into business, he made up his mind to practice what he had preached. So he put the Golden Rule into his factory, and by it means all his relations with his men. He never has a strike. He invites his workers to examine the company's books to make sure they are getting a square deal. He divides profits with them.

Rule Is Catching.

The Golden Rule is catching. The other day Nash's 500 employees held a meeting. They had heard that many clothing workers were out of jobs. The Nash factory is still running well.

So it was proposed and unanimously carried that every man in the plant should pledge himself to give up his job for one month to any needy fellow craftsman who may apply.

"It's just treating the other fellow the way you'd like to be treated," replied Ray Carson, chief designer. "We have seen the Golden Rule in practice here and we've caught the spirit of it."

Remember With Men.
"You see, in this factory man isn't just a hand. The boss goes around the factory and consults with us. Every man feels he amounts to something. It is a part of the firm, in fact."

"He's the kind of a boss you work with, instead of for."

"When workmen elsewhere were striking for higher wages, the boss called the men of this shop together."

"He said conditions at that time made it impossible for him to increase wages, but he would make good as soon as conditions got better. Would they stick with him?"

"Sure, they all stuck. They had that much faith in him."

"And he more than made good all he promised. As soon as he could afford it he started a plan of dividing his profits with us. After the firm had paid stated dividends on its preferred stock and put away so much for reserve, net profits are divided between the employees and the common stockholders.

Amounts to $4 a Week.
"This division gives each of us about $4 a week. And, besides, every one here is paid as good as union wages, and some do better than that."

"Business isn't as good as it was, and so it may be necessary to reduce prices to get the business."

"And so the men this other day voted a reduction in the wages of every man getting over $5 a day, if that becomes necessary."

The next division of profits will take place just before Christmas. The employees are to get $42,000.
