NO FOOTHOLD FOR GERMAN EMPEROR IN THE ORIENT

JAPAN IS FOR AMERICA AND THE ALLIES AND AGAINST KULTUR AND ALL THAT IT IMPLIES

NEW YORK, April 20.—Declaring that Germany should never again be allowed to secure a foothold in the Orient and the Pacific, Count K. Yoshii, in an interview with the United Press today stated that Japan would under no circumstances consent to the restoration of Kiao Chiao after the war.

"Japan has no ulterior motives; she desires nothing for herself and has no territorial ambitions," Count Yoshii said.

"As to Russia, we will take no action that is not approved by the allies. No troops will be sent into Siberia unless the allies ask it or unless the safety of Japan makes it imperative."

Outlines Russian Position "Our position in regard to Russia is this: You see your neighbor's house burning. You desire to help him. You offer assistance. He distrusts you and refuses your aid. You do nothing. His house continues to burn and yours is menaced."

Aside from a few sailors landed at Vladivostok for the protection of allied property, Japan has no troops in Siberia, Yoshii declared.

Settle After the War "That is a question to be settled after the war," he said.

"Japan has no ambitions—if she had, they would have manifested themselves long since," Count Yoshii stated.

TIDE OF VICTORY TURNS AGAINST GERMAN ARMIES

SLOW DOWN IS NOTED FOR FIRST TIME

LULL ON BOTH FLANDERS AND RIGIDITY FRONTS—NO INFANTRY ACTION BUT ARTILLERY STILL ACTIVE—QUIETEST PERIOD SINCE APRIL 9

(By United Press.) LONDON, April 20.—For the first time since the German drive began in Flanders, April 9, there is a lull on both the Flanders and Picardy fronts.

Field Marshal Haig said the British positions north of Messines were heavily shelled yesterday morning, but no attack followed.

The French war office reported the German artillery active in the region of Castel and Givency and along the right bank of the Meuse, between Veslun and St. Mihiel.

PRESENT LULL IS MERELY TEMPORARY WASHINGTON, April 20.—Comparative quiet on the western battle line was reported here today as merely a temporary lull before another great storm.

Both sides are undergoing readjustments, and the battle has been a see-sawing one at this time, it was stated.

In this period of transition, reinforcements are being brought up to the British and the Germans to reform some of their shattered battalions or to relieve them entirely.

British Will Hold Lines "The British are holding firmly, and will continue to check the boche, if it felt."

Hallen said on the right wing will further relieve seasoned troops from that region for fighting further north and it is likely that Foch has plans for use of the reserve at an opportune moment.

FRENCH WAR OFFICE TELLS OF REPULSE PARIS, April 20.—A German mail to the war office announced today. Artillery fighting is in progress between Lasengy and Noyon.

HUNS ARE THROWN BACK BY ADVANCING BRITISH

Many Points Captured in Last Forty-eight Hours Are Re-taken by Haig's Men with Heavy Enemy Losses—German Attacks Fail All Along Flanders Line.

(By United Press.) LONDON, April 20.—The British successfully counter attacked at Festubert and Givency, on the southern edge of the Flanders battlefield last night, throwing the Germans back from positions they gained in the British line two days ago.

"By a successful counter attack last night we threw the enemy from points in our advanced defenses around Givency and Festubert, which he had gained Thursday at the cost of heavy losses," Haig said.

"South of the Scarpe (in the Arras region) we conducted a successful minor enterprise yesterday, taking a few prisoners, nine machine guns and a trench mortar. Early last night an enemy counter attack was repulsed."

HEAVY GUNS BANG AWAY INCESSANTLY

GERMAN GENERALS VON ARMIN AND VON QUAST SACRIFICE WHOLE DIVISIONS IN EFFORTS TO PUSH GAINS—SLAUGHTER CONTINUES

(By William Philip Simms, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, APRIL 20.—(Night)—The French and British are fighting shoulder to shoulder on the Lys battlefield. Von Armin and Von Quast have sacrificed further fresh divisions at the foot of Mont Kemmel, while on the plains south of Mont-Rouge—Mont-Notre and Mont de Cais, Von Eberhardt and Von Stettin apparently have struck a stone wall.

Nearly 55 divisions (600,000 men) have been used in Flanders by the enemy since April 9, and apparently many more will be used if the fourth and German armies are in battle on each further. Some of these divisions are too badly battered to go on. Others are physically exhausted. The remainder are tired but are being used on a desperate attempt to enlarge the Arras bulge.

Most Strike Elements Hindenburg must strike elsewhere, using many of his remaining precious reserves, if he is unable to advance further in Flanders.

German high caliber guns are being changed and shells ranging the battlefield and the bombardment is being increased as heavier artillery is dragged up.

In the Arcaudian hill country north of Bailleul, windmill and thatched cottages are shaking under the concussion. The country folk are gradually deserting their little farms, carrying their belongings. Some linger—not fully comprehending their handiwork of German shells. She carried a large dog in her arms, a gangling bib about the neck, like a child. The dog probably was the only living thing who had led to love.

Pathetic Note Introduced. It makes a lump rise in one's throat to see these poor old people torn and wailing. I saw a bent old lady trudging along a path across the battlefield toward a village, where groups of brick dust and smoke and terrible explosions marked the landing of German shells. She carried a large dog in her arms, a gangling bib about the neck, like a child. The dog probably was the only living thing who had led to love. Nearby were five little girls, laughingly chasing a dog, shouting, shouting, while their parents were closing their coats about their heads. Those who stayed the latest were forced to leave everything. The soldiers are milking abandoned cows on the battlefield three a day. No gunners' mess is without cream for his coffee.

ITALIAN TROOPS TO ASSIST AMERICANS

REGIMENTS NOW ARRIVING AND FORMING ON RIGHT WING OF UNITED ARMY

BY J. W. T. MASON, United Press War Expert NEW YORK, April 20.—Italian troops transferred to France apparently are not being sent to the Pterry and Flanders fronts in any considerable numbers, but seem to be destined to take up positions to protect the southern flank of the American armies along the Alsace-Lorraine border.

This, presumably, is the meaning of Premier Orlando's announcement that Italian regiments are now forming the right wing of the united army in France. The right wing of the French front is in Alsace, where the battle line templates in the neutral territory of Switzerland.

Force Is Small Yet

It is not probable that a force of Italians has been moved into France sufficiently large to take over all the trenches in southern Alsace; nor is it at all likely that under any circumstances would France abandon to any body the honor of garrisoning the principal points in the recovered area of the lost province.

But the present purpose of the distribution of the Italians suggests it is in an attempt to associate them with the defense of a part of the American line, having the Vosges mountains in support. From the standpoint of the Italian line of communications, this is an admirable arrangement. The position presumably to be taken up by the Italians are nearest their own territory and can be supplied with a celerity not possible in any other part of the front.

CARRANZA FORCES TO ABATE REVOLUTION

MEXICAN GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL TAKES STEPS TO PUT DOWN OBSTREPEROUS LEADER

A detachment of the revolutionists was reported marching against Matamoros.

Types are to be made daily. First-class mail only will be carried in the beginning, and this is only a beginning. ## FLAG EPISODE ENDS IN NEAR HANGING

MAN WHO TAKES DOWN OLD GLO. BY IS ENOUGH HANDLED BY HOME GUARDS

COLLINSVILLE, Okla., April 20.—Fearing vengeance from the mob who last night attempted hanging Henry Rheimer for alleged pro-German remarks, federal authorities early today spirited him away from the jail here. It is believed he was taken to district headquarters at Muskogee. Henry Rheimer was to appear before the state council of defense today to answer for alleged pro-Germanism that he might have been a taste of hanging. Suspected by an electric light cord in the house guard armory Rheimer was rescued by Chief of Police Charles Miller just before suffocation. The mob had taken Rheimer from jail where he had been held for removing an American flag from his home after the council of defense ordered it displayed.

Seasonable Dishes.

When ideas seem to be scarce as to food combinations and one does not know what to do try some of these: Corn California Style. Mix a can of corn with a chopped green pepper and a half cupful of thick white sauce, well seasoned with salt. Turn into a buttered casserole and cover with strips of bacon. Bake in the oven until the bacon is brown.

Cornbread.

Take one pint of white cornmeal, one pint of buttermilk or sour milk, four eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix with a quart of water. Add one cup of yellow cornmeal may be used as well, and the food content is equally good in yellow and white.

Mexican Rice.

Put one-half cup of rice into a hot frying pan with a tablespoonful of olive oil. Cook until the rice is brown, then add four sliced tomatoes chopped or equal quantity of canned ones with two teaspoonfuls of chili pepper pulp. Pour in a cupful of vegetable water or tomato juice and simmer until the rice is soft.

Spaghetti, Meat and Apple Casserole.

Cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with well-cooked spaghetti; over this put a layer of sausage meat well seasoned, then a thick layer of chopped apple slightly sweetened. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake until the apple and sausage are cooked. A bit of onion added improves the seasoning.

Beef With Vegetables.

A piece of meat from the corner eye if cooked slowly with a tablespoonful of vinegar in the water used to baste it while roasting will result in a tender piece of meat. Take a few pounds, brown in a little fat, then add the vinegar and water with a clove of garlic, a clove of tea, a small chopped onion and salt and pepper to season. Potatoes parboiled may be added long enough to cook well before serving time. Baste the potatoes with the gravy in the pan so that they will be brown.

GRANDSTAND IS STILL POPULAR AT THE FRONT

MANY OF WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS MEN HAVE WATCHED WAR FROM SOBERPENBERG HILLS

(By William G. Shepherd, United Press Staff Correspondent)

DALLAS, Texas, April 20.—Well, at least the German flyers' taken the grandstand seats in the plans of Flanders where the great bloody game is now under way.

The grandstand seats are in Scherpenberg; they are the steps on a Dutch windmill which tops the hill. Thousands of the most eminent men in the allied world have stood on this hill and sat on these steps watching the battles of Ypres and other great contests in the Flanders plain.

The king of England and the prince of Wales, the president of France and the king of Italy, Secretary Baker, General Pershing and every notable man who has ever gone to the front in this war has stood on this hill and seen the forty miles of battle front from Ostend to Lens which is visible from this vantage.

Two Sons in War

At the top of the hill and near the windmill is a little white house in which the farmer milks his cow every day. The old man told me one day while I was on the hill viewing the second battle of Ypres that his two sons had gone to the war. All the great men of the earth have come to their humble doorway, yet the farmer and his wife always went on about her house work, unmoved by the presence of greatness and her husband spent his time in the rough board seat high up the hill, grinding his grain as if his part of the work was to do his own particular job particularly well.

Watch German Progress

On a certain day General French, during the second battle of Ypres, climbed the hill to see what his miles of big guns were doing to the German line and to try to glimpse through the smoke of the giant battle the lines which were blinding, and breaking under the first German gas attack. The old miller came out from his house, wiping his mouth with the back of his hand, after his midday meal and followed the well worn path from his house to the mill without even looking toward the group of great military leaders twenty feet distant who were watching the making of history in the plains below them.

Bring His Face

He pulled a rope which released the wings of the great wheel and, with a great creaking, they began slowly to whirl in the smoke-laden wind. Then he climbed up the half dozen rough steps on which so many of the great of the earth have seen and heard, and ascended to the mill room. Within a few moments he heard the grinding of the mill. He was doing his part in the great war.

Bill on the Job

The old miller was the personification of sturdiness. Belgium. "Sims" dispatch of Thursday telling of a white-headed couple looking from the window of a little white house as he stood on a hill watching the fight from Mont Kemmel marked his standard. The old miller and his wife were still in place, and his wife had gone; yet, it seems, after all these years of war, even though Mount Kemmel, where the German shells are falling is only a mile distant.

GARDENS SO EXCELLENT THAT PRIZES GO TO ALL

(By United Press)

MINGO HUNTER, Ohio, April 20.—The employees of a local company here are out to surpass the record they made last year in war gardening, according to the report on the work which G. E. Wisener, general superintendent of the company, has just received from the War Garden Commission in Washington. When it came to award some of the prizes the judges found it impossible to decide between some of the best vegetable plots, so excellent were many of them; and so they were compelled to place a number of them on an equal basis. The prizes were given on the basis of war value, variety of product, workmanship, quality and general appearance. The general average of all the gardens was over 50 per cent and only one was marked a failure. The first prize garden had a rating of 95; the second 90.

When it came to the third prize the judges found three gardens which were so good that, although they were inspected three times, they gave all three an equal award, with a rating of 88 per cent.

The gardens were not only an assistance to livelihood," said Mr. Wisener, "and a decided part of the average worker, but were also an inspiration and fascination, as well as a means of pleasure and healthy exercise and education. The plots were taken by men in all classes of employment, laborers, skilled workers, clerks and executives."

JUNIORS VOTE TO DANCE AT "PROM"

MANOUVRE OF FACULTY IS DISPENSING WITH AND AFFAIR GOES OUTSIDE SCHOOL.

Placed in a position to choose among three propositions relative to the giving of the annual senior class reception to the graduating class—a reception to be held outside the high school building, with dancing and without the supervision of the faculty, a reception in the high school building without dancing and with faculty supervision, or no reception at all—the Junior class this morning by a majority vote has elected to give a "prom" for the graduates on Friday evening next in the Parish hall.

Danced Last Year

Last year the Junior "prom" was the only high school event in which dancing had a part. Objections to dancing in the high school resulted in a ruling that no affair in which dancing should figure could be given in the high school building or elsewhere, under supervision of the faculty.

Invite Patrons

Although the Junior reception this year does not figure as an event of the commencement occasion under the supervision of the faculty, the principal, C. H. Downman, has been invited by the Juniors to attend in the capacity of a patron of the event. Others who have been invited to do "capacity" are Mrs. and Mr. J. H. VanTassel, parents of Burton VanTassel, president of the Junior class; and Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Thometz, parents of Michael Thometz, president of the Senior class.

Senior Colors Figure

The Parish hall will be decorated for the occasion in the colors of the Senior class—purple and white. Music will be furnished by an orchestra composed of Lowell Wall, W. B. Coburn and Nell Schettler. For the entertainment of the students who do not care to take

German Spoliation of Alsace-Lorraine Continues Unchecked

By HENRY WOOD (United Press Correspondent)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, March 11. (By Mail)—Germany's latest spoliation of Alsace-Lorraine consists of the carrying away from the latter of all the old antiquities and objects of art, on which the two provinces for centuries past have been unusually rich.

The objects of all these objects, many of priceless historic and artistic worth, across the borders of the two provinces and over the big German cities would appear to be the two provinces for centuries past have been unusually rich.

During the seventeenth century Alsace and Lorraine became very much a center for various lines of art and especially for the making of the various styles of furniture which have since won for themselves fixed places in the history and development of artistic furnishings. Because of Alsace and Lorraine were the center of various trades, crafts, and manufacturers that were engaged in the production of these historic styles of furniture, thousands of the best pieces remained in the two provinces, where they became heirlooms to the native families.

It is largely this class of art objects that the Germans are now searching out and carrying off to Berlin, Munich and other the German cities. The authorities are now forcing the liquidation and sale of all homes and other properties owned by French citizens and often of Alsacians guilty only of French sympathies, thousands of these old pieces of furniture are being thrown onto the market in a manner that enables the German antiquarians to buy them at nominal figures. In other instances, the antiquarians search out families that have been impoverished by the war and induce them to part for a little ready money with objects of the greatest artistic value.

This exploitation of the two provinces by German antiquity dealers is a practice that even the German press, notably the "Kleine Press" of Frankfurt have printed articles pointing out as the iniquitous practice. The "Hagen-auer Zeitung" also details the second in the following manner:

"The lovers of the art objects and antiquaries of Alsace and Lorraine are alarmed over the fate of all the beautiful and precious art treasures that are now actually leaving the country. From all parts of the German empire antiquarians are arriving and going away, and the spoils of art are being carried off to Berlin, Munich and elsewhere."

"The hour is propitious for such a venture. Numerous auction sales and foreclosures offer favorable occasions for the acquisition of objects of real value. Many small middle class families of the villages have needed money and without too much insistence have given up a bureau of the Louis Sixteenth style which has come down to them from a grandmother and which is finished in strips of brass engraved by hand. With the money which they receive they can procure other articles less inalienable."

"In the Seventeenth century the art objects were very flourishing in Alsace. The house furnishings which one encountered in the smallest, most forward villages were elegant and solid. The styles which bear the names of the kings of France, and which, in the villages, were of fine and delicate workmanship, acquired in the country which is the source of the antique."

It is this that the antiquarians are now after. As a consequence, whilst attending auction sales they find time also to seek out the little Alsacian homes and find little difficulties by paying the country people in actual currency in acquiring the old family clocks, of which the majority no longer run, and the chairs with their magnificent backs worn by age.

"The number of objects of this sort has increased immensely during the year that has just finished. The real buyers of them are to be found in the large cities. For the most part they are the 'new comers' who have come from one day to the other find themselves transported from the center to the top of German society and seek by all means to surround themselves with objects of ancient art."

How Big Should the Gasoline Tank Be?

With one filling—270 miles to go—how big should the gasoline tank of a car be?

Your answer to the question would undoubtedly be, "It depends on how much gasoline a car needs."

Exactly.

The Franklin car scientifically free from unnecessary weight, runs 270 miles (at least) on its gasoline tank capacity of 13 1/2 gallons, at the rate of 20 miles to the gallon.

The average heavy car (even the best of them) to run the same distance would require a cumbersome gasoline tank of 27 gallons, at the rate of 10 miles a gallon. (It may easily be less).

Why?

Simply because of the mechanical law—as old as the ages—that weight and the power to move it must be in proportion. And the more power is needed—the more gasoline consumed.

Wherever there is excessive weight, there is friction, wear and drag and it always shows up in the gasoline tank.

The heavy car is bound to burn up fuel dragging around its own excessive weight. The scientific lightweight Franklin with its perfectly balanced flexible construction, uses fuel to deliver power to the rear wheels in driving force.

These test-and-test times for a product of any kind. A motor car, merely to justify its existence, must prove that it is not wasteful of energy.

You've heard people all around you talking Franklin and high gasoline mileage; your common sense tells you that it can't be an accident—there must be facts back of it.

Drop in the Gooding Motor Company salesroom and get the facts. The Franklin story is short and simple, and there isn't a "if" or "but" in it. The increase in the use of the Franklin is a continuing triumph of a car that has been piling up economy records, for sixteen years.

The Franklin car of today has many features of vital interest to every motorist, no matter what car he may drive.

The Franklin is the greatest of all American cars.

IDahoANS ANXIOUS TO BE AT THE FRONT

Sergeant John W. Kendall Gives Insight Into Soldiers Lot in France. "We are all 'rairie' to get to the front; we may get tired of it, but it must be done," says John W. Kendall, recently promoted to the grade of sergeant in the medical corps of the American expeditionary forces, in a letter under date of March 11, received this week by his parents, Sheriff and Mrs. F. M. Kendall.

Get Thanksgiving Box

Following are quotations from Sergeant Kendall's letter: "I received the box you sent me for Thanksgiving day before yesterday—almost four months on the road. I was certainly glad to get it, as smokers are becoming mighty scarce. "I passed my examination for sergeant and received a promotion, and in charge of the hospital ward. It keeps me very busy, but I like it, fine. I have had to work hard for my promotion, as you have to pass a good examination for sergeant in the medical corps. "He told me to learn anything about the insurance I took out. When you write, let me know, as I want to have everything fixed. I will soon have my Liberty Bond paid for and they will send that to you. Dad can do all whatever he thinks best with it. I am leaving it up to him."

Americans Not Worried

"Every one of the boys are feeling fine, and are very comfortable. We get fine food and good beds and warm clothes. I think it's going to be a hard old struggle, and Uncle Sam can't turn the trick. It's going to cost a lot of lives, and, but a fellow can't give more than his life, if it is necessary. I am not worrying, nor are any other American soldiers. "Writing to get the front. We may get tired of it, but it must be done. "I am sure the fellows in the army over here are very grateful for what the people at home are doing for them in the way of making them comfortable. "Half of us are doing the 'tough' in America, where they are saving for us."

Moets General Perathing

"Had the honor of having General Pershing and Secretary of War Baker inspect my wards the other day. I can say that General Pershing is the finest looking soldier I ever have seen. He is full of life and has a great deal to say, making them how they fall, etc. I don't envy him the burden he has on his shoulders. "Wouldn't I like to see Twin Falls again for a few days. Don't suppose I'll be able to get back here, but I'll talk with Jack Thore this afternoon. He certainly has a fine band."

Near Large City

"I wish I could write and tell you all about France and the people, but Uncle says no. I can say we are in a beautiful place, and not far from a city. There is more business in a day in America than they do in France in a week. "Do you remember, Dad—just four years ago yesterday you signed my enlistment papers when I joined old Company B. Time sure does fly. "I will close for this time. Write me real often and tell me the news. Your son, SERGEANT JOHN W. KENDALL, Medical Dept. 146th Field Artillery, American Expeditionary Forces."

ROAD OFFICIAL IS ASKED TO RESIGN

W. W. Allen, Chairman of Heyburn-Paul District, Is Cited by Council.

At the instigation of a number of the citizens of Heyburn, W. W. Allen, chairman of the Heyburn-Highway district, and well-known to the public as a member of the Minidoka County Council of Defense in this city Wednesday evening, says the Minidoka County Patriot. It was alleged that Allen refused to buy bonds when applied for by the Little Boulder committee and asserted that the war was making too many millionaires to suit him, as well as uttering other-inflammatory and caustic remarks. Allen admitted before the council of defense that he had not subscribed for bonds at the first or second Liberty Bond sale, but stated that he had contributed to the Red Cross and Armenian fund, maintaining that he was loyal to his country and that his remarks were misunderstood. It was brought out in the hearing that Allen did consent to buy a bond after the committee had approached him, but not until he was informed by citizens that his resignation as a member of the Highway was to be requested. Allen refused to resign until the committee when asked to do so by the Council of Defense after his hearing, and the matter is to be taken up directly with Governor Alexander asking for Allen's resignation.

HIGH NAVAL AUTHORITY

No man in the American navy today is better known or held in higher regard by the naval powers of the world than David Watson Taylor, chief of the bureau of construction and repair. Rear Admiral Taylor is probably the world's greatest expert in the construction and design of battleships. Admittedly he knows more about hull design than any other man and is the acknowledged master of the science of ship propulsion.

The bureau of construction and repair is charged with the responsibility for the structural strength and stability of all ships built in the navy. This means that the present great war construction program of the navy, the greatest in the history of any navy in the world, is being carried out under the personal supervision of Admiral Taylor, including the additional building of a large number of destroyers with which to fight the German fleet.

It was Admiral Taylor who originated the high forecastle destroyer construction. In 1905 he first proposed the center-line disposition of turrets, although this feature was not adopted in American battleships until many years later. Now it is the universal practice of all navies of the world. He has had the principal share in the design of practically all vessels of the navy since 1900.

White has been in social and religious and educational work for many years and comes to us with the results of her unusual experience and ability in her special line of work. She has recently accomplished a magnificent piece of work in Boise in the organization of a league for mothers, helping them to get the special training so essential in bringing up their children right. And there is a message for the young as well, inasmuch as she will present the question of amusements as one phase of her address. Mrs. T. Anderson, pastor.

LETS CONTRACTS FOR IMPROVEMENT OF WATERWORKS

COUNCIL FINISHES LONG SESSION AND MAKES ARRANGEMENTS ON ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS

At about 11 o'clock last night the city council came to the end of its session begun at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon and awarded contracts for furnishing material and labor and constructing improvements to the municipal waterworks outlined in plans of Burns & McDonnell, engineers of Kansas City, and provided for with a municipal bonds issue in the sum of $375,000 carried last January and subsequently sold to Sidney Spitzer & Company of Toledo, at par plus a premium of $-795, the interest rate being six per cent.

"The contracts that have been let for the waterworks improvement are very favorable to the city, in the opinion of city officials," Mayor T. F. Erickson said this morning. "The aggregate of the bids accepted is well within the limit of the fund available for the purpose. Under the terms of the contract entered into, work will begin within three weeks and will be completed within six to eight months."

General Construction Contract The general construction contract for furnishing labor, equipment and material for the construction of concrete settling basins, filter basins, clear water reservoirs and quick filter basins, at a cost of $600,000 gallon per day mechanical water filter plant was awarded to the Heuser & Packard company, Salt Lake, whose bid was figured for purposes of comparison was $72,300. There were five bidders in this contest.

Harkins Get Pipe Laying Contract for trenching and hauling and laying cast iron pipe and wood pipe mains for supply line and distribution system was let to William Harkins of Twin Falls, the estimated total of whose bid, $42,500.15, was nearly $5,000 lower than that of the lowest bidder.

Install Largest Plant The council decided to install at once all of the units of a 6,000,000 gallons daily capacity mechanical water filtration plant and awarded the contract to the Pittsburgh Filter company, Pittsburgh, whose bid is $195,000 for purposes of comparison, was $47,700, and only $21 lower than that of the California Javel Filter company, the only other bidder. The bidders were asked to submit alternative proposals on plans of 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 gallons capacity.

Miscellaneous Awards Contract for the furnishing of iron pipe was awarded to the American Cast Iron Pipe company of Chicago, for $54,385.13. The Redwood Manufacturing company was given the contract for furnishing containers to hold wine, the bid being $57,979.95. Contract for hydrants and valves went to the Renesacer Valve company, Troy, New York, for $11,074.95.

Six Claims Thoroughly Thursday afternoon the council received 24 bids on the several phases of the water works improvement for the purpose of awarding contracts to seven sections. Until late Thursday night the council, with Clinton B. Burns, senior member of the supervising engineer, were compiling figures from the submitted proposals to arrive at a basis of comparison. All Friday afternoon and evening the council and city officials heard the statements of participating bidders for contracts for furnishing material relative to this matter, their materials and advantages of their bids.

Profits Out to Minimum An indication of the terms of advantage to the city on which the contracts are let is the statement of an unofficial bidder to furnish cast iron pipe:

DEFER FUNERAL UNTIL ARRIVAL OF RELATIVES

Sister of Late Mrs. John Finkle and Beloved Husband's Mother Coming From St. Louis

According to word received yesterday, Mrs. John Finkle, mother of John Finkle, and Mrs. Michael Scully, a sister of the late Mrs. Finkle, will reach Twin Falls Sunday. Time of the funeral has not yet been decided upon.

Mrs. Scully is an older sister of the deceased, the two growing up together. Mrs. Scully being the only mother the little girl knew. Mrs. Scully's husband, Michael Scully, is superintendent of the National Biscuit company of St. Louis and Mrs. Scully's maiden name was Agnes Wood. She was born in St. Louis, February 14, 1880. She was an active member of St. Edwards Catholic church, where the funeral services will be held.

A pathetic feature of Mrs. Finkle's untimely death is to be found in the fact that six little children, ranging in age from four to fifteen years, are left motherless. These are Bernice, aged 15; Arthur, Florence, Raymond, Robert and Harold, aged 4 years.

John Finkle has been a resident of Twin Falls for about eight years, during which time he has been steadily engaged in business. He is the head of the Anchor Hay, Grain & Feed company and is well known to business men in the city. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to him in his loss.

SEES PROSPECT FOR TOO MANY SPODS

BOYLE'S COMMISSION MANAGED AND COUNTY AGENT AT VARIANCE IN VIEWS ON SUBJECT

Warning against the possibility of a duplication this year in the Twin Falls district of last season's overproduction of potatoes is sounded by R. H. Boyle, manager of the Boise Commission company's office in Twin Falls.

Growers Alert Plans As a result of conclusions formed by growers based upon the farm survey showing that 29 per cent. of last year's acreage is likely to be planted to potatoes this year and the further fact that many growers are planting fields filled with potatoes that will serve as seed but are practically valueless on the market, Mr. Boyle says that the prospects for a profitable planting of potatoes in the Twin Falls district have been given a decided impetus during the past four weeks. His investigation leads him to the conclusion that between 80 and 90 per cent. of last year's potato acreage will be replanted to that crop this year, and that the potato acreage in this district will be above normal.

Disappointment in Prospect

Such a situation, if it develops, he points out, is bound to result in disappointment to the growers. Some growers, he says, are not in position to take a chance on the potato market, and even if there should be a shortage of the potato crop this year, he asserts, the grower is not assured of receiving a high price for his potatoes for the reason that the crop will be controlled by the food administration.

The only crops for which the grower is assured of returns are wheat, beans, and peas. Mr. Boyle says, advising growers to undertake rather to produce one or more of these crops than to gamble with potatoes.

Considers Estimate High

County Agent Donald McLean, under whose supervision the farm survey in this county was made, is of the opinion that Mr. Boyle's estimate of the probable potato acreage in this county is too high. The survey showed that last year's potato fields covered an aggregate acreage of approximately 6,000 acres, and the indicated plantings of potatoes for this year were about 1200 acres, or about 20 per cent. of last year's acreage. Since the completion of the survey, Mr. McLean says, it is probable that the plans of growers in this district provide for larger plantings of potatoes than is indicated in the survey, but he is of the opinion, they are not, but he is of the opinion, they are not, but he is of the opinion, they are not, but he is of the opinion, they are not.

America Buying Feathers From China, Proving to Be As Good Customer as Huns

Although the export of feathers (duck, fowl, etc.) from China as a whole has decreased somewhat during the past few years owing to the elimination of the German buyers, says a Shanghai newspaper, the export of feathers from China to America has shown a great increase since the outbreak of the war. America having stepped in to take almost the identical quantity that Germany had previously taken.

About a million dollars' worth of feathers are exported from Chinese ports yearly, America last year taking about one-third of this quantity, whereas two years previously the American purchases were inconsequential. The cautious figures show that Hongkong (opposite to Hongkong) is the principal port of export for feathers from China, but as the feathers from British possession of Hongkong, a few miles distant, there is no mention of them what the ultimate destination was of the very considerable quantity of more than $300,000 worth exported from the City of the Nine Dragons (which is, what the Chinese name means).

What Itself produces over $100,000 worth of feathers for export, while the Yangtze port of Wuhu furnishes no far short of $200,000 worth. The buyer of feathers in China must use extreme care or he will find what has been said most extensively as duck feathers will contain feathers from chickens or other fowls whose feathers are of an inferior quality.

Cost of Locomotives. According to a calculation made by an official of the Southern Pacific, the increase in the cost of a Mallet locomotive over what it was two years ago would be a 200-acre farm at $25 an acre, built a 25000 residence on it, provided for $2,000 worth of implements and farm machinery, 25 dairy cows at $75 each, 700 for teams and wagons, a $150 automobile, and still leave $100 for incidental expenses. This represents the increase in the cost of only one locomotive.—San Francisco Argonaut.
