PARADE BRINGS OUT LOYALTY OF CHILDREN

MARCH OF 2500 PUPILS OF TWIN FALLS SCHOOLS IS CROWNING EVENT OF LIBERTY DAY

Twenty-five hundred pupils of the Twin Falls schools, bearing flags and posters proclaiming the amounts of their investments in war stamps and bonds, marched in a parade through the principal streets at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

From tiny tots in the primary grades to the members of the graduating class of the high school, every pupil of the school, forming the most impressive feature of Twin Falls' observance of Liberty Day today.

The parade was headed by the high school band and was formed under direction of Michael Thomas, president of the senior class, at the head of the day, who carried the march flag and friends of the pupils stood in thousands as the procession passed.

HUNS SURROUND FRENCH ON TOP OF MONT KEMMEL

LONG DRIVE LOOKED FOR BY OFFICIAL

M. DE BILLE, FRENCH DEPUTY HIGH COMMISSIONER IN AMERICA, DISCUSSES WAR OUTLOOK WITH FRANKNESS, SAYS ALLIES UNNUMBERED

WASHINGTON, April 26.—"America must expect a long and bitter struggle on the west front. It may be months before a decision in the bloody fighting there is realized."

"Today the allies are outnumbered by their foe. The situation is serious. The duty of the American government, the laboring man and the people at home is to make haste now. A successful outcome is assured."

Having fallen in their original intention of separating the French and British lines, the Germans, they say, are now preparing for a long, continual drive home that will not cease before the end is in sight.

HINDENBURG IS FORCED TO GO ON TO BITTER END

TO HALT GERMAN EFFORT WOULD BE TO CONFESS FAILURE OF WHOLE HUN OFFENSIVE

(By J. W. T. Mason, United Press War Correspondent)

NEW YORK, April 26.—Von Hindenburg's renewed pressure on the front between Ypres and Haselbeek, after the recent heavy German casualty, is still another indication of the growing realization in Germany that the present situation in the west is not exerting the expected influence on the end of the war.

By securing a foothold on Mont Kemmel, the Germans have added difficulties to the British defense of the salient, but have not placed in any peril the British force occupying that point. The British line continues intact.

Yoch's Strategy: Hindenburg has not yet reached his Moscow, but the basis of the strategy that overthrew Napoleon in Russia is now being used by General Foch.

WANT NEWS FROM AMERICAN SOURCES

HOUSE MILITARY COMMITTEE ASKS WAR COUNCIL TO REQUEST WAR REPORT DAILY

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The nation's insistent demand for official news of its fighting men, straight from American sources, without camouflage, was voiced today by house military committee members to the war council.

By securing a foothold on Mont Kemmel, the Germans have added difficulties to the British defense of the salient, but have not placed in any peril the British force occupying that point.

SIX THOUSAND HUN PRISONERS CAPTURED

LONDON, April 26.—The British were again in possession of Villers-Bretonneux today. The village was recaptured by Australian and English troops in a surprise attack last night, which netted 6000 prisoners, Field Marshal Haig reported.

The British lines at that point have been carried forward to practically the same position they held before the present German thrust.

Fighting was still under way around Villers-Bretonneux when Haig filed his report.

In Flanders, allied troops were compelled to withdraw a short distance under heavy enemy attacks between Bailleul and Wytschaete. Heavy fighting is continuing in the neighborhood of Dransnet, Kemmel and Verstrat.

Heavy Infantry Action: Infantry action around Hangard-est and along the Aves died yesterday, the French war office reported last night.

There was heavy manual artillery fighting in this region, however. Following a violent bombardment, the Germans attacked heavily near Oegnelieve (seven miles northeast of Seicheprey). They gained slight footing in advanced positions but were later ejected.

German Day statement announced the capture of Hangard-est and progress northwest of Castel (toward Hallies). Franco-American troops hold a line between Hallies and Hangard-est.

Huns on Mont Kemmel: German forces have obtained a footing on Mont Kemmel, one of the most important heights in Flanders, following an all-day battle on a ten-mile front, Field Marshal Haig reported today.

A successful minor operation west of Merville resulted in the capture of fifty enemy prisoners and three machine guns.

OFFICIAL REPORT REACHES LONDON

LONDON, APRIL 26.—THE GERMANS HAVE ADVANCED 2000 YARDS ON A 1500 YARD FRONT IN THE KEMMEL SALIENT, CAPTURING THE "VERY IMPORTANT GROUP OF KEMMEL HILL." MAYOR GENERAL RADCLIFFE, DIRECTOR OF MILITARY OPERATIONS, ANNOUNCED THIS AFTERNOON. "IT IS POSSIBLE TO HOLD THEM OFF WITH THE REMAINDER OF MONT KEMMEL," RADCLIFFE DECLARED. "BUT IT WILL BE INCONVENIENT, AND WE HOPE TO GET HIM OFF."

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SOMES United Press Staff Correspondent

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, APRIL 26.—FRENCH TROOPS ARE ENTIRELY SURROUNDED ON MONT-KEMMEL. THEY ARE STILL FIGHTING.

AFTER EIGHT HOURS FIGHTING YESTERDAY GERMAN STORM TROOPS FINALLY WEDGED THEIR WAY BETWEEN THE FRENCH AND BRITISH FRANKS, AND CROSSED THE KEMMEL-YPRES ROAD, WHERE THE TERRIFIC ALLIED LINE HELD THEM UP FOR TWO HOURS; THEN THEY TURNED SOUTHWARD AND POUNDED DOWN THE VALLEY TO THE WEST OF KEMMEL HILL, SURROUNDING THE FRENCH WHO ARE STILL FIGHTING ATOP OF THE HEIGHT.

French Fight On: Although the Germans have reached the crest of the hill, the remnant of the French garrison is still there. The French still hold the village.

In night fighting at Mont Des Cats (five miles west) the French raked the slopes with machine guns and held off against triple odds, preferring death to capture.

End Not Yet Certain: Today the German lines apparently run west of Kemmel, but the ultimate result is still in doubt.

Stimulus fighting surged about Villers-Bretonneux, the British, fighting like lions, retaking the town, atop ridge, much in the same fashion as the Germans got Kemmel—winning around the sides and still surrounded.

German Cost Heavy: As the French held out in Flanders the Germans held out in the town east of Kemmel.

In the Kemmel fighting the Anglo-French made a savage counter-attack but all failed, including Von Der Goltz's division, turning the German flank in the valley into a fighting line. The Germans paid dearly for their gains.

Stromboli is a volcanic island, the northeasternmost of the Lipari islands, located in the Mediterranean off the north coast of Sicily. The volcano is 3040 feet high. The island has a population of about 2500.

BOMB OUTRAGE MAY ASSUME NEW TURN

CALIFORNIA NEWSPAPER PRINTS SENSATIONAL STORY OF GERMAN ORIGIN OF PLOT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—The San Francisco Daily News prints the following story on what it declares is the most reliable information received by government authorities at Washington are investigating the following report: That a circumstantial confession has been made in San Francisco implicating official agents of the German government in the preparation of a bomb explosion:

That this confession named a man now in South America as the criminal who was engaged to throw the bomb and, Germans in high position as those who hired him to do it; that this man was hired to carry out other explosions in and about San Francisco for the Germans, including one at the More Island navy yard.

Was German Plan

That the preparation of the plot was wholly a German government plan to terrorize those Americans in favor of preparedness.

Every endeavor is being made to counsel for the present defendants in the bomb cases—Mooney, Billings, et al.—to see that the prosecution will form into a bomb trial in the near future.

Henry McGuffin, chief of the secret service department here, when asked regarding his knowledge of the confession, said:

"I am very glad certain German consular representatives had made a confession came to my attention about a month ago. Shortly afterward I received a message from Washington of which I am sure you have heard. It was that I sent them back my records for every day, showing that no such matter had come to my attention and that I had received no such confession from anyone. I also telegraphed that there was no foundation to such a report."

FARMERS! THIS IS YOUR WAR. BUY LIBERTY BONDS

Success of Teutonic Arms Spells Depopulation for American Producers

Let us think for a while how the war concerns the farmer.

We went to war with Germany partly because the rulers of that country refused to let us send our Europe our ships laden with grain and cotton. They sunk the ships and cruelly murdered our sailors. Now suppose we allowed them to stop all our shipments when they want to. None of your goods would be sold to foreign countries, with the result that you would get nothing like the prices you get today. This war is being fought partly that you may obtain fair prices for your goods.

What is going to happen if we lose this war? Prices of farm products will drop; the Germans will impose taxes upon you which will cripple you for the next twenty years. Worse than that, if the Germans get over here, they will treat you in just the same way as they have the farmers of France, Belgium, and Italy. In these sections farm houses have been shot to pieces, crops trampled and burned; even fruit trees chopped down, the cattle stolen, the men sent away to work for German masters, the women ill-treated in ways that cannot be talked of in print, their little children have had their hands chopped off in order that they may never fight or do any more useful work.

You may say "such things will not happen here." They said this in France, in Belgium and in Italy. Such things will happen here just as sure as you are alive, unless we smash the Germans to atoms, that they are unable to reach this country. The German foot and the German army will take just one week to get here if we are beaten. They have made up their minds that America shall pay.

Is there a farmer who will stand forward now and say, "This war does not concern me?"

Do you have money that you do not need at present. Loan it to the Government at good interest; when you want the money back again, you can borrow on your bond, or sell it. Uncle Sam will take care of your money, and you need it and pay your interest on it.

Go and buy a Liberty Bond tomorrow.

Don't be a slacker, and don't fool yourself with the idea that you are too far away from the war for it to hurt you. Remember 1914, when the Germans upset the world's shipping, and you took what you could get for your products.

Think of the twenty years starvation prices ahead of you, in case you are beaten.

This is your war, and if you won't get in it you deserve to lose your American citizenship.

Call in at the bank tomorrow, and talk it over.

Advertise in the Classified columns. Some good men want that job.

FILLING 'HER CLUB NIGHTS

How One Girl Succeeded in Banishing Loneliness Caused by Giving Up Old Custom

Barbara Carson felt bored as she sat toying with her book under the light of the table lamp after dinner. It was club night for the girls of her set, and she pictured them enjoying the excitement of the lights and the music as she had done every week through the winter.

She had had to admit, however, that the tone of the club-night dances had gradually grown lower as the winter wore on, and she had made up her mind to break away from this group of young people. She wanted to attach herself to persons who were more worth while.

In remaining away tonight she had taken the first step, but she had not realized how hard it was going to be. Just then her mother entered the room and noticed the troubled look in her eyes.

"What is the matter, dear?" she asked. "Has something made you unhappy?"

"No," said Barbara, "not exactly that but I don't realize how lonely I feel—it was going to be to spend club night at home."

"Aren't you trying to take something out of your life without putting anything else in its place?" asked her mother. "The trouble is that you are overcoming evil with good. You are trying to overcome it with nothing. You are like the man of whom Christ spoke who had swept and garished his soul-house and then left it empty. The result was that the old devil came back and brought seven other worse devils with him. And, as Christ tells us, the last state of that man was worse than the first. The man merely had a soul to lose. When he made his mistake was in not getting in some good tenants to take the place of the ones he had turned out. The Italians have a proverb that says that the busy man is vexed with only one devil, the idle one with several. If you want to keep chaff out of the granary, fill it with grain."

The point of all this is that if you are trying to break a bad habit, you had better first get a good one in its place rather than sit at thinking how wretched you are. I would suggest that you start now to make an engagement for every club night during the rest of the season. Give your self something interesting to do that night; something positive to take your mind in another direction instead of leaving it to revolve on nothing."

"I hadn't thought of it in that way, mother," said Barbara. "I believe you're right. Only the other day Marjorie Sears said she wished, some of us girls could get together one evening a week to do some Red Cross work. I believe I'll call up now and see if I can come over and help me make some plans."

That night after Marjorie had gone Barbara said to her mother shyly, "I guess my little blue devil that comes looking for lodgings with me on club nights hereafter will find that I have no room to spare."—Youth's Companion.

Spotted Children

On a crowded interurban car the day after Christmas there was a just line pushing, complaining bunch in the aisle. There was just one woman in the bunch who was not complaining, and she was good to look at, being cheerful, pretty and perfectly clothed, from her russet shoes to the brown hat that touched her cold-brown hair. Her lovely brown suit was coming in contact with all sorts of shabby clothing, but she chuckled, and remarked to the strange woman next to her: "What spotted children we are! There we are in a warm, comfortable car, fairly flying over the road, and grumbling all the way. I can remember when a trip to Indianapolis meant, for me, a chair in a farm wagon, maybe my back over the hind wheel, and yet, even in snow weather, jolting and jouncing over fifteen miles of frozen road. I never whimpered. I was just glad all through for the chance to take the wonderful trip to the city."

A sleepless grin spread over a number of faces in her vicinity, proving that others could dig up similar memories.—Indianapolis Star.

Greeks in Turkish Territory

Professor Andrews, of the University of Athens, who is a specialist on the extent of Greek citizenship beyond the Greek frontiers—in Macedonia and the other Balkans, in Turkey, Syria and Asia Minor—pointed out the great predicament of the Greeks in the regions to be evacuated by the Turks if they are to leave Europe. The whole vilayet, or province, of Adrianople, extending from the Balkans down to Constantinople, he declared, is as a whole a Greek city, and with the Turks out it is practically all Greek. "Even Constantinople," he said, "is a Greek city—the rest of Greek cities—with a population of 350,000 Greeks. That gives an idea of the extent of Greek citizenship in all this section of the Balkans, and it will have to be considered on the basis of nationality and race, when the Turk leaves Europe."

Certain to Win

"How's your boy getting on at the training camp?"

"Wonderful!" replied Farmer Applecart. "I feel a sense of great security. An army that can make my boy get up early, work hard all day and go to bed early, can do most anything."—People's Home Journal.

NEED MORE BOOKS FOR MEN IN SERVICE

Library Association Calls for Volumes to Be Placed at Disposal of Soldiers and Sailors

Calling upon Twin Falls people for further contributions of books for men in the military and naval service, the collected list of the work by Boy Scouts, the librarian of the Twin Falls public library says:

"Five hundred thousand more books are wanted for the soldiers and sailors. You undoubtedly have on your library shelves books which are interesting and in good condition, but which you do not care to read.—Librarians have been established at our camps, and also in France by the American Library Association. Many books have been purchased, but many more are needed.

Volumes That Are Wanted

"Look over your library shelves this week for any readable books which you would like to be placed in these libraries for the use of the boys. Novels, tales of adventure, detective stories, and standard fiction; up-to-date books on all branches of engineering, the trades, business, the professions, and agriculture; recent text books on military subjects, mathematics, the sciences, and foreign languages; books of travel, history, biography, poetry, and the present war; dictionaries and encyclopedias, interesting books in foreign languages, are all needed in these camp libraries."

"Take any of these to the public library this week or telephone or send a postal to the public library or V. H.

Decker and the Boy Scouts will call for them.

Wastage Is Great

"At least half a million are needed at once and a constant stream of replacement must be maintained, for the waste will be very great. Hence the call for books, books, and more books."

ONLY SIGN LEFT (By United Press)

LONDON.—A janitor's laziness probably saved the lives of 200 at a South Coast town recently. The basement of a church was being used as a raid shelter. On the first night of a series of raids the shelter was jammed with people. But the next night the janitor failed to show up and the shelter seekers scurried elsewhere. During the raid a bomb crashed through the roof, completely demolishing the building. Only the sign advising that shelter was available remained intact.

Note the Wider Seats

In the New Series Marmon

The seats in the New Series Marmon are much wider, the sides unusually deep, allowing the passengers to sit well down in the body. Three passengers can ride in the rear seat without crowding.

The auxiliary seats in the tonneau are also large and comfortable. The whole arrangement allows sufficient leg room to insure the comfort of the rear seat passengers as well as those who occupy the auxiliary seats.

The front seat also is spacious and comfortable. It gives the chauffeur much more driving room than the method followed in ordinary cars.

Yet this sought-for roominess has not been secured at the sacrifice of lowness. Marmon engineers have been able to retain this feature and add these important improvements.

To learn what extra comfort these extra wide and deep seats mean, come and see the Marmon, and ride in it.

COMPLETE BLOCK OF GERMANS IS LIKELY RESULT

SOME DISAPPOINTMENTS OVER FAILURE OF ALLIES TO TAKE OFFENSIVE—OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Washington, April 25.—Fighting Americans are in the storm-center south of the Somme.

Brigaded with the allies, they are taking a valiant part in the struggle that rages there, according to advices today. The direction of the allied armies with Americans has succeeded so far that now the United States has a considerable representation in the battle. This strength is being constantly increased.

The fact that our men are withstanding the heaviest blows in the fiercest struggle was hailed as welcome tidings here. With it came the thought that the American casualties will not be a water one in Germany.

Brigading Going On

The brigading process is still under way. As soon as possible the addition of American forces to the French and British has been heavier than at other times. It was officially stated, though the war department declined to indicate how much of a strength we have injected.

The Tenth command of the Somme is likely to go into the rear of Germany's other blows to date—advance for a time and then come to a complete block.

This was how military men sized up the progress of the war. It was felt that the offensive had netted a "meat" about Villers-Bretonneux, and had taken on that place.

The fact that the retirement elsewhere was small as far as reported, was taken as hopeful, though by no means conclusive that there would be some "give" in the allied structure.

Amiens An Objective

The new drive has the actual capture of Amiens as its main objective apparently. The first objective, Villers-Bretonneux, has been taken, but being that place the situation is such as to give the defenders an advantage; and unless the line elsewhere recedes too much, the Tenth will find his progress beyond Bretonneux anything but easy going.

American army men are disappointed that the resumption of the battle for the allies still on the defensive. But they rely on thoroughly. Gen. General Foch, that they believe he has some allied strategy in store which makes an allied stroke inadvisable at this moment.

Meanwhile, there is strong urging for the allies to press the aggressive on the line, so valiantly won, in the Oise and Zebruges raids. The results are considered worth the sacrifice; similar daring and initiative is used henceforth in a follow-up campaign.

STEEL LICENSE PLATES CAUSE AUTO ACCIDENTS

CLAIMS FOR COMPENSATION ARE BASED ON INJURIES SUSTAINED WHILE CRANKING CARS

Steel license plates carried on the front end of automobiles in Idaho this year, are responsible for accidents to motorists, according to Dr. Edward T. Hower, secretary of the state board of health. Several claims for compensation have been filed by drivers with the state industrial accident board.

Motorists are forced to carry plates on the front and the rear of their machines. They suspend the plate carried on the front from the rod between the lights. Some of the drivers have cut their wrists on the plates while cranking their cars.

Coalless Monday

By MARCIA MEREDITH

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Will you please get off the wire?" The voice, though young and feminine, was not entirely pleasant.

"I believe I took my receiver off first," came back good-naturedly. "I am trying to get the janitor. Are you the janitor's wife?"

"How ridiculous! Where is the elevator boy to answer the phone? I want the janitor."

A laugh came back through the telephone. "Everybody wants the janitor. The last I heard he had gone out to try his best coal. I don't say you're in the same boat that I am—frozen to death in your apartment. You know it won't do thy good to kick, but, like me, nothing else will keep you warm."

There was no answer. Freda Tilson's receiver slammed back on the hook that held it, and if she had been inclined to talk to herself in her little apartment she might have muttered something about an impertinent creature who dared to talk to a girl when she did not know her, and that she hadn't the most remote idea who it was. That would have been a fib, however, for she really did know that it was the young man who dealt in bachelor flats in the somewhat more spacious and luxurious apartment in front of her own, the greatest luxury and higher rent of his apartment being due to the fact that while he managed to draw a princely weekly check for $75 for writing "thrillers" for a popular weekly, he pruned a typewriter somewhere in the "downtown" district to the tune of sixty a month.

So her, having an apartment of her own, was a luxury that she could call home, was a luxury that she had earned by much economy in the way of amusement and pretty clothes. Her living there was put down to his New England accent for Victor Paige was more of a miser than a spend-thrift, and he would rather douse out on the simple fare that his visiting colored housekeeper made for him than to spend many dollars in siluring restaurants. Now it happened that the typewriter that Freda Tilson pounded was located in the very office whither Victor Paige occasionally strolled to deliver his manuscript, and perhaps chat with the editor. Perhaps she felt a secret attraction, because, though she had noticed the coincidence that he frequented her office and also abode under the same roof, he had sought no excuse to speak to her as they passed the halls going home each morning. It does seem strange that Victor never sought the excuse, for Freda would have been good to speak to. And there was nothing repelling in her round blue eyes. But then Victor was from New England.

As Freda prepared the task of dusting and straightening up her little apartment, clad to the chin in a sweater and wearing gloves on her hands as she worked, she listened impatiently for a ring at her doorbell that would mean that the letter she was waiting for had come. When all chance of the delivery was over she descended to the entrance to make sure that the boy in attendance there had not failed to deliver it to her.

Strange that Victor Paige should have gone forth at the same time. He waited while she made her complaint.

"In the first place," she said, "it is perfectly ridiculous to go on the one day in the week when we have to be home, and when it would really seem that apartments and houses ought to have enough coal to make them comfortable, we should be made to suffer in this way. How I am ever going to write on my typewriter, with hands stiff from cold, is more than I can tell. It seems so extraordinary that my manuscript did not come by the mail this morning. My office is closed, and it is absolutely necessary for me to typewrite some revised manuscript that the editor was sending by special delivery. Are you quite sure nothing has come for me?"

The duty attendant nodded in the negative.

"And is there no hope of any help?" Again a negative nod.

"Well, then, the only thing for me to do is to call on the oil. Thank goodness, I bought a stove."

"Now it was Victor's fuming." Having heard Freda's plaint and the unsatisfactory replies, he did not mention the frigid atmosphere that prevailed in his apartment as well as in her.

"I say, Obadiah—beg pardon: I forgot your name was Hamblet—you haven't seen anything of a stray messenger boy with a typewriter, have you? Of course I mean the one you see, the one I usually dictate my copy is closed, and I was going to pound it out for myself today, so I sent for a typewriter. But I guess they had too many orders before mine. Well, it there's no hope for heat I'll have to burn oil."

And he returned to his room, calling the name of Dinah, who came every day at noon to keep house for him. Besides, because she had suggested to him that a stove had killed the temperature could be improved by burning oil stoves.

The fact that fate had some deep design in choosing to have Victor Paige and Freda Tilson take apartments in the same block, though it might have been suspected when a quarter of an hour later, another accidental meeting occurred. It was at the corner grocery. Freda came hurrying in with the base of an old stove, her self-consciousness at having to carry this awkward burden only making her cheeks plumper and her eyes rounder.

"Please, fill this with oil," she told the grocer's boy, and then blushed a little redder as she realized that Victor Paige was standing at her elbow. He took his hat off, and then, when Freda averted her look he awkwardly waved his hat in the air and stroked the cat with the brim of it to try to convince himself that he had meant to take it off anyway, and that he was not a bit embarrassed by Freda's hauteur.

"We ain't got no oil—all sold out" came from the grocer's boy, just as Victor Paige was inquiring of the grocer himself whether it happened that all stoves were a part of his equipment. In the grocery store back in his New England home town he recalled that such trifling articles were always sold. And as the grocer assured him that the only places to get such things were the household furnishing stores, and they were all closed because it was coalless Monday, he confided to him. He knew the grocer didn't care, and he didn't care whether he did care, but he spoke in a loud, clear voice. Could it have been that it was for Freda's benefit?

"You see, the woman that keeps house for me suggested that if I bought some oil I could manage to keep warm, even when the heat is not up in the apartment, and I was such an ass as to forget that one really needed something to burn it in. I have a gallon of oil, but what good does that do me?"

Freda did listen, and for just one moment she was tempted to tell her neighbor that between the two they might manage to get some sort of result. But she didn't tell him. She hurried home, walking faster and faster as she heard his footsteps behind her. He overtook her just as she reached the landing off which both their apartments opened, and would have pressed her, but she closed the door rather ceremoniously in his face. She knew she had been rude, but for some unaccountable reason she took satisfaction in her heartlessness.

A half hour later, when Victor Paige answered a slight ring at his doorbell, he was wearing a cap, a bathrobe, an overcoat, hockey stockings and galoshes. He found Freda Tilson on the landing. She was very sorry to disturb him, she told him, but she had received word from the editor in the office where she worked that, because he had been unable to dispatch some copy for her to do at home, he would like her to put the day's talking dictation on the typewriter from Mr. Paige. Wasn't it funny that Mr. Paige happened to be connected with the same office? Did he wish to come into her apartment, or should she come into his? There was small choice; both were arctic.

Ten minutes later Victor Paige, carrying an odoriferous gallon of kerosene, some ill-cut notes on stray bits of paper, and a dish of apples—Victor could not write without apples for refreshment—went into Freda's small apartment. When lunch time came Freda had forgotten her resentment, and Victor, truth to tell, was as much in love with her as he had ever been with any girl.

"If I had some eggs I'd make an omelet and ask you to lunch," she said, just a little timidly.

And although Victor knew that his Dinah was coming to make lunch in his apartment that day, he hurried to get some eggs that he was right in guessing she had left in his ice box. And so they lunched, and so they worked on through the afternoon.

"What's the use of railing the inevitable," he said as he handed him the last page of his manuscript from her typewriter. "We can't either of us get along without the other. We would both have been miserable today none."

"It does seem strange. Do you believe in fate?"

And apparently Victor did; for he was always sure it was fate that threw him and his wife together that coalless Monday.

High Cost of Patch.

There is economy in patches. You may have a frugal wife who persists in patching your trousers, but you always feel miserable and degraded in such garments. They make you feel like a thief, or like the 30 cents in counterfeit money. You are forever trying to hide them from view. . . . I have worn them myself and I know how uneasy a man feels in good society when he expects each gust of wind to fan his coat tails and expose his wife's needlework. Zen writes in Cartoons. A patch in the seam of your trousers, if it be accidentally exposed in public, will reduce your market value 50% percent. If you are not careful and enjoin a neckline in your stocks, and are not prepared to cover margins, you'd better accept a fool's advice and unload your holey belongings upon the ragman before your wife gets out her darning needle and patch bag.

Strenuous Reform.

"Tommy, you mustn't play with that little Gruppins boy. His mamma's good meddling."

"That's all right, zay. I'm working on his mamma. If she don't improve in a day or two I lose my standing as the hardest little fiddle in my block."

HINDENBURG BREAD

Hindenburg bread is the name given by an eastern journal to pure white flour bread.

We rather like the name. Hindenburg bread is the bread which helped to make the patent medicine bottle a household god in America.

There are a good many people who while not actually extending aid and comfort to the enemy, are refusing it to America by declining to buy Liberty bonds.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

PEACOCK BOOK-RACKS.

"The whole household was asleep," said Daddy, "and everything was very still. Even the gold fishes in the bowl were sleeping and the snails were enjoying a good rest."

"Suddenly a little fairy came hopping and skipping into the library. 'Hello, peacocks,' she said. 'I've been meaning to come for some time, but I've been so busy. Goodness, but I've been a busy fairy!'"

"What have you been doing?" asked Daddy, "and why do you look so tired?" "Well, I've been busy, Daddy, but I've been so busy that I haven't had time to tell you."

"The little fairy put her wand down on the table beside the peacocks. And of course you must know just who the peacocks were, and why they were in the library."

"I can jump and fly so much easier than that way," said the fairy, "and she said, when she noticed the peacocks were looking at them."

"I've been doing lately. 'I've been going to a number of parties. The fairies have given a ball, the brownies and gnomes have given a slush party on a deliciously slushy day last week, and there has been a lot of work to attend to."

"I've been helping the Fairy Queen in her talks to the Bandman and the Dream King so children will have to go."

"I've been helping the Fairy Queen in her talks to the Bandman and the Dream King so children will have to go."

She Stuck Her Little Feet Out Before Her.

By dreams, and also so they'll hear that there are no bad gobins, but only nice, jolly gobins.

"I do believe the children in the bedrooms of this house are dreaming some of our special dreams tonight."

"The peacocks could not look at each other, as one was, at one end of the book-rack—and the other one at the other end."

"The fairy noticed this at once, and said, 'You might bring peacock at this end, and then when you pause, the other peacock will talk.'"

"So that settled the difficulty. 'The first peacock was this. We wanted to let you know what an honor had been paid to peacocks. We thought you might tell the fairies about us, but that would please us so much. We get rather tired staying so still, but we're happy because of our story.'"

"The second peacock began to speak, as the fairy hopped over nearer that end of the book-rack. 'We're so delighted because for years we've been considered very vain. We have been beautiful tails and we love to spread them out and strut about and show them off. We know our tails are lovely, and the colors of our feathers very wonderful.'"

"We wonder, then, that we want to show them to the whole world. We think they enjoy beautiful things; and so we show off our tails. But do they appreciate them? Not for a moment. They make the tails a bit harsh. They do think our tails are beautiful, but not a doubt of that, but instead of thanking us for giving them so many opportunities for seeing our tails, they look at you vain."

"We're vain, to be sure," said the first peacock, "but we like to give pleasure with our beauty. And so it's no wonder they choose us for lovely book-racks. But more than that—we make lovely decorations, but we hold up books so they must think we're vain, and it's something we've never been thought before!"

"Both the peacocks looked very happy, and the fairy promised to tell the other fairies about them, but she did not say herself for she didn't think it was any story of wisdom to simply hold up books."

ONLY SECURITY FOR A WIFE

Birth of Children Guaranteed Independence to the Woman Under the Code of Hammurabi.

In Babylon, under the code of Hammurabi, 2270 B. C., the birth of children furnished the only financial security for a wife. A man might separate from a wife at will and marry another but if he had borne his children he must "give back to that woman her dowry, the usufruct of the field garden and property, during the minority of her children and thereafter she was entitled to a share equal to that of a son of that lot who had been born to her children. She may marry the man of her choice."

Under the primitive laws of the Kaffirs of South Africa a similar provision is made, according to a writer. A considerable payment is made by the husband to the male relatives of the woman at the time of marriage. In legal theory this amount is the property of the woman and her children, the relatives receiving it as trustees for her benefit. Here, too, a man may divorce his wife at will and may demand back his dowry if there have been no children born of the marriage, but his claim upon it passes upon the birth of children. Obviously, the status of the wife is entirely subject to the will of the husband and where the woman has an enforceable claim against this property while it remains in the hands of her relatives, the birth of children furnishes the only security of security and independence for the wife.

PROBONIA MAN JUST HEARD ABOUT THE WAR

Seeking to help Uncle Sam in his efforts to fight the Kaiser, James Andrew Quigley, a deaf mute of Fredonia, Ariz., tried to enlist in the marine corps at Salt Lake, on March 21. Quigley was waiting at the station when the recruit arrived to begin the day's work. He first accented them with gesticulations, moving his lips as if to form words, but uttering no sound. When furnished with a lead pencil and paper, he scribbled that he had been deaf and dumb since birth, and that he had learned only a few days before that the United States was at war with Germany. He proceeded at once to Salt Lake, making his way by foot to Caliente, Nev., and coming the rest of the way by rail.

When informed that it was impossible to accept him for enlistment, the man broke down and sobbed. Recovering his composure, he told the recruiter that he would return home to plant a war garden to help feed those who are being sent overseas to help get the Kaiser.

The Triumphal March of Bevo

A NEW CREATION OF SCIENCE AND NATURE

WHEN we announced Bevo recently, our hopes were high. We knew that we had the most unusual soft drink that had ever been offered: A beverage combining the nutritive extracts of wholesome cereals, the zest of Sazeroo, a flavor all its own and absolute purity. We knew this because, true to our own ideals, we had experimented for years before we were satisfied to say, "We offer you Bevo—it is a different soft drink—it is good and it is good for you."

High as were our hopes for its reception, we have realized them far and beyond our expectations. Bevo today is an established popular success. Everywhere the same question is asked—"Have you tried Bevo?"

Now, one final word. We promise you that, in accord with the known principles of Anheuser-Busch and all its products, Bevo not only will forever maintain its present high standard of quality, but as time goes on our great endeavor shall be to make this soft drink even more perfect in every detail of its goodness.

You will find Bevo in inns, restaurants, groceries, department and drug stores, picnic grounds, baseball parks, soda fountains, dining cars and other places where refreshing beverages are sold.

Guard against substitutes. Have the bottle opened in front of you, first seeing that the seal is unbroken and that the crown top bears the Fox.

DEATH HALTS JOURNEY OF CAPT. JOHN CARMICHAEL, STAGE DRIVER AND STEAMER CAPTAIN

Captain John Carmichael, 85, retired "muster of steam" for the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company and stage driver and pioneer of the west, died at 5:30 o'clock this morning at the county hospital here, where he has been given refuge intermittently since the institution was established. His death occurred just 17 hours after his return here yesterday.

Traveling on Passes
A railroad pass in his possession showed evidently that he was enroute from Seattle to Denver, where his brother resided, and that realization of the approach of death led him to turn back to Twin Falls. The remains are at the Greenman & DeWitt undertaking establishment, pending funeral arrangements that will be made when word is received from his brothers. Another brother resides in Idaho.

Clippings Tell Life Story
Fragments of Captain John Carmichael's life history are revealed in newspaper clippings which he guarded jealously. During pioneer days in the Intermountain West, he drove the stage between Kelton, and Boise and between Alden and Kelton.

He was one of the oldest of the old-time residents of Arizona, being a resident of Prescott, having charge of stage transportation in the Shoshone and Apache mountains. Later he had charge of the ambulance service in and out of Fort Whipple, Arizona, serving under General Crook and other officers, often escaping capture by the Indians by his boldness.

During the San Francisco expedition, when 82 years of age, Captain John Carmichael took the steamer Bonacker on three trips from the northwest to the exposition city.
Favorite in Transportation Circles
Captain John, as he was familiarly known, was a favorite in railroad and steamship circles. He knew many of the now high officials when they were boys and often worked their way to their positions, and they regard his possessions as personal letters from C. C. Galvin, president of the Union Pacific system, together with passes over almost all of the railroad lines of this west.

FARM WORK GOES ON DESPITE COLD PERIOD

Government Meteorologist at Boise Reports on Weather and Crop Conditions

In a weekly summary of weather and crop conditions in Idaho for the week ending April 23, Clinton E. Nordquist, meteorologist at the Boise station for the department of agriculture weather bureau, says:

Cold days and frosty nights retarded the growth of all vegetation. Farm work, however, made good headway and is generally a little ahead of the season.

Winter wheat, rye, early sown barleys, and spring wheat made slow growth but continue in excellent condition. Seeding of oats and spring wheat is now in full swing, except in the later districts. A considerably increased acreage of spring wheat is being put in.

Meadows, pastures, and ranges made slow advancement, the weather being too cold for good growth. Irrigation of meadows and farms has begun in some localities. There is ample food on the early range and cattle, which were put out on range in much better condition this year than last year, are doing nicely. Some meadows were turned under for gooding to grazing; this will some extent decrease the output of hay.

Heavy frosts at night checked fruit development but resulted in no serious injury. Cherries and peaches are now in full bloom; prunes are coming into blossom, with prospects for a good crop; apple buds are showing color. Dormant spraying is almost completed.

In the Kootenai valley early plant potatoes are in a considerably advanced stage, have not yet been planted generally over the state. The average this year will be smaller than that planted last year. A few small garden trees have been set out here and there, but most gardeners are awaiting more favorable weather. Drilling of beet seed is now well under way in the sugar beet districts.

Those Toothsome Apple Pie
The origin of the toothsome variety of pastry known technically and practically as apple pie has long been shrouded in mystery. That it has had a long, if not eventful history, is evidenced by the distinct recollection of men now approaching the period of the grey and yellow leaf of the apple pie "mother used to make" and which formed such a prominent place in the dinner pail menu at the midday recess of the old-fashioned district school.

MEANING OF SHIP TONNAGE

Several Different Uses of Term, Applied as Occasion Demands, Are Cited by National Authority.

The different uses of tonnage terms when applied to ships are the result of confusion to the lay mind. Why ships cannot be really compared according to tonnage is explained by Capt. G. A. McAllister, engineer in chief, United States coast guard, in an article in Popular Science Monthly. For example, he states, steamship companies, in order to impress relative safety of their craft, will advertise the sailing of a certain steamer of 20,000 tons, meaning, of course, gross tons. The company's agent, in entering it at the custom house, will take precaution to certify that she is only 7,500 tons, when paying tonnage taxes. He then is referring to her net tonnage, and in fact that standard is used only when paying dues or taxes.

Displacement tonnage is almost exclusively applied to warships, as they do not carry cargoes. Strange to say, the tonnage of a battleship is an applied meaning of the term "ton." It is absolutely impossible to give rules for the relation of these terms, as the conditions vary too greatly. Generally speaking, the gross tonnage of a ship is from 10 to 20 per cent greater than the net tonnage.

A steamer that is a 10,000-ton battleship sank a 10,000-ton merchant ship does not mean that the ships were of equal size. The merchant ship would be much larger, owing to the different meaning of the term "ton" as applied to a battleship and a merchant ship. It is absolutely impossible to give rules for the relation of these terms, as the conditions vary too greatly. Generally speaking, the gross tonnage of a ship is from 10 to 20 per cent greater than the net tonnage.

HIS BOSS LAUGHED AT HIM

Navies Draftsman Relates How He Got His First Toothed After His Work Had Been Ridiculed.

I never shall forget the first place of independent design with which I was intrusted—a railing and gate to divide the private from the public office in some business concern, observe a writer in the Century Magazine. I suppose I worked on it for about two solid days, assailed and receiving assistance by the men at the neighboring tables. When finally the head draftsman came around to look at my effort I was a very proud person, but when, after looking at the drawings for a minute or two, he started to make some criticism and, unable to control himself, began to laugh so hard that everybody else came around to see what he was laughing at. I was about as disappointed as anybody ever was in the world. The head draftsman was not only a great artist, but a big man. He did not take the job away from me, as he should have done; he told me where it was wrong and why it was wrong, apologized for laughing at it, and gave me in those few minutes the first solid to comprehension of architectural design. It was then that I began to learn.

An Isolated Island.

The last and most isolated of the Polynesian Easter Islands, it lies 2,000 miles westward of the coast of Chile, its nearest neighbor being Pitcairn island, 1,400 miles further west. It is small, only 49 square miles in area, and volcanic, the surface being formed of lava of comparatively recent eruption. Hence the strange lack of vegetation so common at variance with a tropical climate. Grass grows on it, however, and it is for that reason largely given up to the raising of sheep and cattle.

Easter Island was discovered nearly two hundred years ago by the Dutch Admiral Roggeveen, who cast anchor there on an Easter Sunday, whence it derived its name. He found it more largely populated than it is now. But he and his crew must have seen and marveled at its bold rock-culpture, its terraces and walls, its picture writings. Many of these, indeed, vivid the work of lava of comparatively recent eruption. Hence the strange lack of vegetation so common at variance with a tropical climate. Grass grows on it, however, and it is for that reason largely given up to the raising of sheep and cattle.

When a Child "Falls"

When a child falls in school, most it always be the fault of the child? May it not be the fault of his parents? Or of the school which he attends? Investigations have shown that there is a host of children whose mental sluggishness is due to physical causes. Dr. M. F. E. Greenman writes in The Mutilator. Even conservative estimates place the percentage of children suffering from some physical ailment at 75; this means about 18,000,000 children of school age in this country. Almost all of these ailments are removable, even preventable. They range from decayed and maladjusted teeth with their manifold bad effects upon the efficiency and the temper of the growing child to such serious defects as nervous disorders, tuberculosis, blindness, etc.

Large Feet and Bad Cough

Muggins was the possessor of very large feet and a very bad cough. He owned a boot shop and the retails as assistant turned the shop upside down to find something to fit his "out size." Muggins had just tried on the fourth pair when he started coughing.

"It's a nasty cough you've got," said the assistant.

"Yes," replied Muggins. "Doctor says I've one foot in the grave now."

"I shouldn't worry," said the assistant. "You'll never get the other in; it's too big."

Wetproof Steel Lined Shot Shells

A NOTED Pacific Coast sportsman who has hunted everything from snipe to black bear, said recently: "The water-proofing feature now offered sportsmen in Remington UMC 'Arrow' and 'Nitro Club' Wetproof Shotshells, is the most important improvement made in the shotshell field in over a decade. The men who perfected the Wetproof system certainly know shotgun shooting and its requirements from field, duck blind and traps, as well as from the scientific angle."

Here is something that every man who lives in a wet climate or does his shooting in the stormy seasons ought to know about.

These are the first completely wetproof shotshells—a new and exclusive feature of the Remington UMC "Arrow" and "Nitro Club" Shotshells.

This is a process that took three years to perfect.

It involved a deeper study of wetproofing materials than has ever been conducted outside of the Remington UMC laboratories.

It means special paper for the shells; a special formula for the wetproofing; new equipment invented to apply the wet-proofing compound. Virtually a new type of shell—adding to the shooting qualities of "Arrow" and "Nitro Club" the hitherto unknown quality of perfect resistance to wet.

It produces a shell that can be soaked in water for hours without swelling, and without softening the crimp—a shell that is as bone dry inside after soaking as before—a shell that works perfectly through the gun in all climates, and can be depended upon for sure fire, speed, pattern and penetration, wet days as well as dry.

A shell that you ought to know.

First U. S. Soldiers Killed. The first three American soldiers killed in action in France since the arrival of the United States expeditionary force were Corporal James B. Gresham of Evansville, Ind.; Private Thomas F. Baright of Pittsburgh, and Private Merle D. Hale of Okla., Ia. In the official report of their funeral service, sent by General Pershing December 28, Corporal Gresham heads the list, therefore history will record that this Indian corporal was the first soldier to lose his life in action in the war with Germany. The persons named were killed in a night raid on the trenches and the French paid military honors at their funeral service.
