BOAR OF BATTLE QUIETING DOWN WITH FRANCO-BRITISH LINES HOLDING FIRM; ONLY SLIGHT HEADWAY AFTER CAPTURE HILL

WHOLE REGIMENT DIES AT POST
The French regiment, ordered to defend Mont Kemmel "to the death" obeyed the command to the letter.
Entirely surrounded by Germans the post held out for more than eight hours, slaughtering whole companies of the enemy as they swarmed up the steep slopes in the face of the French machine gun fire.
A veritable flood of Gray-clad troops finally swept over the summit, uttering the defenders as "one's heel does an axe's nest."
"Like the old guard at Waterloo, this French regiment 'died—it did not surrender.'"

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FLANDERS, April 27—There is a comparative calm on the Flanders front, following a tempestuous three days. But the fighting may start again at any moment.

Field Marshal Hindenburg has brought General Bieger up from the Verdun to help around Kemmel. Under him are five divisions (40,000 men). General von Ebenham, with another five divisions, is his left. Together, these 10 divisions hammered away yesterday, making only slight headway after the capture of Kemmel.
Bieger tried to advance toward Ypres, a strike the Ypres-Comines canal yesterday but the British countered brilliantly, retaking lost ground and establishing strong posts.

"Hilman" Exhausted
Von Ebenham's "Hilman" hurled out of Drancourt four times, were unable to push on after occupying the place in a fifth charge. Likewise, they were too exhausted after taking Kemmel to succeed in turning Mount Scherpenberg.
Throughout the Ypres front the German guns thunder ceaselessly. Local shelling keeps up elsewhere. The weather continues threatening. The ground is usually dry.

SWEEP AGAINST YPRES CHECKED FOR PRESENT

Enemy Cuts Through Barrier of Hills and Enters Lowlands but Now Held at Point Southwest of Voormezelle—Flanders Line Ablaze With Fighting.

Hindenburg's sweep to Ypres from the south has been checked, temporarily at least, by the wall of human bodies interposed by the British and French.
The whole northern portion of the Flanders battle front, from the 15th vibrator to the Ypres-Comines canal, is ablaze with desperate fighting. But the enemy advance, after a prolonged struggle that carried them through the barrier of hills down onto the lowlands, has been held at a point, southwest of Voormezelle.
This village is less than two miles south of Ypres, on the western edge of the two highways from Ypres to Wytschaete. It is half a mile west of the Ypres-Comines canal. In place, the Franco-British forces not only continue to block the thrust toward Amiens, but are improving their positions by counter attacks. Haig said that more than 900 German prisoners were taken in the region of Hangard-on-Sarterre and Villers-Brotonneux yesterday afternoon and evening.

The British navy has been active again, this time in the Adriatic. The admiralty reported that two British destroyers engaged five Austrian craft Monday night and forced them to flee for shelter to Durazzo, a naval base in Albania, where the Adriatic and Ionian seas converge. The pursuit was later joined by two French and five British destroyers.
The following day British air forces raided Durazzo in an attempt to destroy the seaplane base there.

DISTRIBUTION OF SPOILS OF WAR CAUSE TROUBLE

GERMANY, BULGARIA AND TURKEY IN THREE CORNERED ROW ON WHO SHALL GET SALONKI

(By Robert J. Bender, United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, April 27.—Thunder of giant guns on the west front is drawing a Tonicus quarrel of growing seriousness around Germany's backing down.

Bulgaria, Austria-Hungary and the German Empire, each with its own hungry and over-pressured stomachs—also rapidly making a situation in the Balkans alarming to Germany's ill-concealed imperialistic ambitions. Official diplomatic dispatches to Italian Ambassadors Colson and through French and British channels disclose that Bulgaria and Turkey are fighting over expected spoils, which German papers now warn must go to neither—but on the contrary, must be taken by Germany.

Bulgaria Wants Salonki
Bulgaria demands the conquest of Salonki for herself, according to Italian cables. Turkey objects, fearing addition to Bulgaria's strength. Even greater opposition comes from Austria and Germany, who need Salonki in their plans for a Berlin-to-Bagdad route to Asia.

That British successes in Palestine and Mesopotamia have not deterred the Kaiser from this dream is evidenced by German papers, which have begun a propaganda campaign, declaring that "the central empires cannot give Salonki to Bulgaria. This must be a free port, and a German naval base for the German Mediterranean fleet."
The suggestion of a Mediterranean fleet indicates that Germany would maintain such an objection to assist in the protection of her Asiatic designs.

Turkey is Disoriented
Turkey, it appears, is increasingly disoriented by her German alliance, according to the Rome advices, and would be willing to concede much to the British if she was guaranteed against French aggression on the west. It is believed to realize that Ottoman sovereignty will be respected to no greater extent than was that of Belgium in event of a German victory.

AIRPLANES WILL BE DECISIVE IN FUTURE FIGHTING

IF ALLIES CANNOT BREAK GERMAN LINES THEY CAN LEAP THEM, DE CLARE FRENCH

PARIS, April 27.—"If the allies can not break the German lines they can leap them, and victory will come to the allies through the air," General Vermaux declared today.
In reviewing the possibility of two practically evenly-balanced armies being able to break the other's lines by force of arms, General Vermaux declared that airplanes must come through the air.
"Modern armies must place their hopes in their airmen," he stated.

Gives Airman Credit
"The victory, which Germany would always lay just beyond her grasp, has been snatched away by the French, British, Italian and American airman."
"With our air squadrons we have shattered traditions of former wars which have broken the military formulae of yesterday—when strategy was based in recent battles."
"If we cannot break through the enemy lines—we can leap them, as we have in recent battles."

OFFENSIVE NOT NOW EXPECTED

ALLIES' FULL STRENGTH DEVOTED TO HOLDING GERMANS FOR PRESENT

(By Carl D. Great, United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, April 27.—The German drive menace against the channel is forcing the allies to use great efforts to check the foe. This menace was serious first to stop the German in progress that will be expected for some time and it is certain there will be no major allied counter offensive for the present.
"American and foreign army men here today agreed on these points, following Tusten capture of the tactically important Mont Kemmel. The foreigners particularly warned that the outcome of the present offensive will not be determinant, but that the struggle will go on for months until the allied strength is greater than the German's."
"It is a military axiom that the last fresh man wins the battle."
Foch's strategy—thoroughly approved by American officials—is to wear down the German as much as possible.

TWO BRITISH DESTROYERS WIN BATTLE

FIVE AUSTRIAN SHIPS OF SAME CLASS DEFEATED AND CHASED INTO DURAZZO—AIRPLANE FORCES RAID BASE WITH EXCELLENT RESULTS

(By United Press)
LONDON, April 27.—Two British destroyers defeated five Austrian destroyers in the Adriatic, the British admiralty announced today.
"Two of our destroyers in the Adriatic engaged five Austrians," the report said. "The enemy fled to Durazzo for shelter."
"British air forces raided the seaplane base at Durazzo Tuesday, and apparently were successful."
"Five more British and two French destroyers joined in the pursuit toward Durazzo, which continued until after midnight on Monday. Our casualties were seven killed and sixteen wounded."

MUST YIELD OR ELSE ABANDON HER NEUTRALITY

SITUATION BECOMING INCREASINGLY GRAVE IN HOLLAND BETWEEN DEVIL AND DEEP SEA

ONE DEMAND IS GRANTED

LONDON, April 27.—Special dispatches from Dutch sources today declared that Holland has yielded to one of Germany's demands—that of the use of the railway across the province of Limburg—but has stipulated that it shall not be used for military traffic.

(By Ed Likens, United Press Staff Cor.)

LONDON, April 27.—Diplomatic information from Holland emphasizes the extreme gravity of the German-Holland situation.

Germany has made demands which mean the abandonment of Holland's neutrality, if the yields.
Between the devil and the deep sea, Holland fears to forsake her neutrality. The questions here are: Will she yield? And, will Germany do if she does not yield?

The aggressive tone of the German press indicates Germany will not recede from the course by which she seems to be deliberately picking a quarrel with and that the Netherlands and Germany shows Germany's end, saying:
Must Join Eventually
"This is Holland's chance for redress and to balance her concessions to the outside. Sooner or later, both Holland and Switzerland must enter one or the other camp. May they understand the signs of the times and choose that side which will have the deciding votes at the peace conference, by right of conquest and victory."

Diplomatic officials here say that Germany sent four demands to Holland and that the Netherlands and more drastic has been delivered.

Press Councils Confidence
THE HAGUE, April 27.—The premier and foreign minister held a long conference with political leaders last night before going into secret session. The commander-in-chief has ordered leave of absence stopped in the army and navy.

The people do not disguise their anxiety, but the press counsels confidence.

WOULD CHANGE WHOLE PLAN OF THE ALLIES

(By J. W. T. Mason, United Press Staff Expert)
NEW YORK, April 27.—The entire offensive plan of the allies may be changed overnight to the overwhelming disadvantage of Germany, if the militant diplomat in Berlin compels Holland to enter the war to defend her sovereignty rights.

With the Netherlands as an associate in the war, the allies would be confronted with the possibility of conducting a direct invasion of Germany from LONDON, APRIL 27.—THE ENEMY IS HELD EVERYWHERE" FIELD MARSHAL HAIG ANNOUNCED TODAY.

"ON THE WHOLE FRONT NORTH OF THE LYS, THE FIGHTING YESTERDAY WAS OF THE SEVEREST CHARACTER. REPEATED ENEMY ATTEMPTS TO DEVELOP THEIR ADVANCEMENT OF THE PREVIOUS DAY FAILED."
"FOLLOWING MANY HOURS OF BATTLE, THE ENEMY'S ADVANCE WAS BLOCKED, WITH HEAVY CASUALTIES TO THEM."

From Loivre to Lecluyte, the enemy assaults against the French positions were pressed with extreme violence. After three attacks were beaten off with great loss, the Germans succeeded in carrying Loivre village.

French Betake Village
In the evening the allies counter-attacked and drove the enemy out of the village, which is now held by the French. At other points in the evening the enemy was repulsed.

South of Kemmel village and in the neighborhood of Voormezelle, after a prolonged and fierce struggle, the positions remained ours.
In the ridge and wood southwest of Voormezelle the enemy again heavily attacked but was completely repulsed. We took hundreds of prisoners.

Local fighting on the Lys front and in the neighborhood of Gyver yesterday afternoon won us forty prisoners.

South of the Somme, in the afternoon and evening, we obtained advantages in the Hangard-on-Sarterre and Villers Brotonneux section. Our prisoners here totaled more than 900.

Along the Hangard-Brotonneux line, we advanced our positions at certain points.
"Hostile attacks with tanks were broken up and failed to develop."

No Change on Front

PARIS, April 27.—The French war office announced today that there is "no change on the French front." A bombardment continued on this front throughout the night. A German attack on the railway west of Thuening (two miles west of Hangard, near Thallies, where American troops are fighting with the French) failed.
There was severe artillery fighting on the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front).

CHAPTER I.

I am a German soldier. Naturally at the time when the war started we did not know that there would be such a war as is being waged today.

Daily we soldiers were told that France and Belgium wanted to attack us and that the latter was doing everything possible for our protection. Already on July 20 we were ordered to the teeth and prepared to march away. During these preparations we showed all that was had to come, 18 men of my company deserted.

The government published, during this time, bulletins almost hourly to prepare the people for the war, a subterfuge that succeeded perfectly. Consequently two days before we were declared for war, but they were certain that it was only to be between Germany and France.

Of the intervention of Belgium, Russia, England and Italy, the country had as little thought as it did of any participation of the United States. All thought only of the promise to Paris, which, to the disappointment of the people, and which we did not know of, the autocrat, has been longer drawn out than had been wished for.

In these days of uncertainty the soldiers, contrary to the cruel treatment which they had experienced before, were treated liberally with great quantities of supplies, delicacies and beer, so that most of the soldiers were so drunk continuously that they were unable to realize the seriousness of the situation.

And yet the majority of the soldiers could not be subdued over the war. They cheered and were enthusiastic because they knew it was the end. On July 20, 1914, we were ordered to march away from the declaration of war, left after being brought to war strength, for our garrison at Malines-anthems.

Where the enemy toward which we had to point our bayonets was we had the slightest idea. All we did know was that we had to be transported somewhere to protect the border.

There were stirring times as we started out. Tens of thousands of people thronged rivers at us and all wanted to shake hands. All were soldiers—cried! Many embraced their wives or young brides. The bands played farewell songs and people laughed and cried all at the same time. Strangers embraced and kissed each other: "A veritable witch's holiday" of emotion was loosened and engulfed the populace like a storm. No one, not even the strongest, could resist its powers. Yet "good" was said, "fare you well" was said, "How desperately many women cling to their men! Many had to be forcibly released."

But this was at last done and then we were placed in cattle cars. Night came and we had no lights. The train went slowly toward the Rhine. It went smoothly enough. Our company had had days of great excitement, welcomed the rest that the journey afforded. Most of the soldiers slept with their knapsacks as pillows. Others looked dreamily into the future. Still others wretchedly pulled pieces of their bread-crusts and only a very few killed time by discussion and comment on their possible destination.

"Where are we going?" "Yes, where! No one knew. Then an officer came, the train stopped. We were in Duron. What were we there for? We did not know. The officers only shrugged their shoulders at our questions.

After a brief pause we went ahead. On the morning of August 20 we reached a farmyard near Duron. Our company was billeted in a barn. No one knew what we had to do. Ignorant of the purpose of our being sent so near the Belgian border we hid down on our beds of straw. Something had to happen soon to rescue us from this uncertainty.

How few suspected that would be the last night for many of us on German soil. An alarm took us from our beds at 9 a. m. The officers gathered and the captain demonstrated the war situation. As to the direction of the march he himself was ignorant.

Shortly half an hour later 60 big trucks drove up and stopped on the road before our quarters. The drivers also were ignorant and waited for orders. Discussion of our destination started abroad. The orders which had been keeping their cars open and we would enter Belgium. Some drivers contradicted them, no one knew for certain.

But the order to march did not come and in the evening we went back to our straw. But the rest was short. At 11 a. m. we were again aroused and honored by a speech from our captain. He said we were at war with Belgium. He told us to show ourselves brave, observe the iron laws of honor to Germany. Then he said:

"We only make war against the armed force, the Belgian army. Life and property of civilians are protected under international law. Yet you soldiers must not forget to keep your lives for the fatherland or sell them to the enemy."

We were lying flat on the ground and firing in the direction ordered for all we were worth, even though we had not seen our enemies. That was apparently not interesting enough to some of our soldiers. They wanted to know how the people were looking whom they had to shoot at. They got up to a kneeling position. Two men of my company had to pay for it, were shot with their lives almost instantly.

The first victim of our party went down without a sound. The second threw his arms high in the air and fell on his back. Both were dead instantly.

It is impossible for me to describe the feeling that overcame me in the first real volley as we advanced and came directly within the range of the fire. I no longer felt any fear, only an impulse to get into action as quickly as possible. Yet at the sight of the first corpse a terrible fear seized me. For minutes I was completely stunned, lost all self-control and was absolutely unable to do anything but cry.

I pressed my face and hands close to the ground. I wanted to clutch my gun and shoot blindly. Presently I calmed down. I suddenly became contented with myself and conditions about me and when soon afterward the command was sounded along the whole line, "Spring out!" "Forward march!" I charged as did everyone else like one possessed. The order to advance was repeated. Like wet bags we plumped to the ground. Firing had begun anew.

Our firing now became more lively momentarily and increased to a fearful loudness. If we had occasion to say anything to our comrades, we had to do so loudly in their ears that it hurt our throats.

Under the effect of our fire the enemy grew restless, the fire weakened and his line wavered. As only 500 meters separated us from them we could observe exactly what was taking place. We saw about half the enemy retire in the following manner: Every other man quit the line, leaving his alternate in his place. Those remaining held on until the rest had to give in. We used this moment to inflict the most severe losses on the retreating enemy. As far as we could scan the horizon to the right and left we saw the Germans advancing in several places. Also for our detachments the order came to advance as the enemy retreated.

The task of bringing to the heels of the retreating enemy so tactlessly, that no time was allowed to make a new stand till for us. We followed the Belgians, scarcely stopping to breathe on the way, in order to prevent their fortifying themselves in a village situated just ahead. We knew that a bloody house-to-house fight lay before us, yet the Belgians never attempted to establish themselves, but managed to escape with astonishing celerity.

At the moment we recalled several ferocious. Our company was now pretty well scattered and fought with whatever unit was nearby. The village I joined had to remain in the body to search for ammunition in several places. From this village we saw that the Belgians had gained on all sides. Field artillery, machine gun detachments and other equipment arrived and we were all astonished at their coming so quickly.

But there was no time to spend in speculation. With fixed bayonets we went from house to house, door to door, and while the soldiers were negligent because we found no resources we did not come out quite empty-handed. We made the inhabitants deliver all guns and munitions and so forth in their possession. The mayor, accompanying the soldiers, explained to every citizen that all found will arms after the search would be punished according to the rules of war and German rules of war in Belgium.

The bicycles lying in the road indicated that the bicycle division was in the front at this point for the attack. The enemy was we did not know as we raced toward the firing line. Everybody crouched down as low as possible while jumping to the right and left. Before and behind us the bullets were flying continuously, yet we reached the firing line without losses. We were greeted joyfully by our hard-pressed comrades. The bicycle regiment had not suffered any losses except for a few slightly wounded men who were still able to take part in the fight.

EXPERIENCE IS A GOOD TEACHER, BUT OFTEN THE BILL IS LARGE.

It is said that experience is the best possible teacher but that the pupil learning in that school for himself pays dearly for tuition. It is evident that what is meant by the expression in the caption, is that each of us should profit by the experience of those others who have preceded us. If you will only thing a moment you will recognize the absolute impossibility of each man acquiring all knowledge from the ground up. This is as true of the automobile as in any branch of knowledge. The intending purchaser should profit by the experience of those who have bought and used cars before him.

The Franklin Company, makers of America's greatest car, urges on the intending purchaser the duty of profiting by the experience of others. Ask of those who know in regard to the performances of various motor cars. If you will do this we have no fear of the result—you will buy a Franklin.

WHAT DO YOU WANT IN A CAR? The great essentials in the minds of most people accustomed to the use of Motor Cars, are many in number. The principal one is that you shall have value received—a dollar of value for a like expenditure.

How can this be measured? Let us see. First by dependability. You must be able to feel certain that the car will do all that should reasonably be expected—

It must take you anywhere over any kinds of roads that any car can negotiate. This the Franklin can and will do. It must be a comfortable vehicle—one in which it is a pleasure to ride. It must be easy and safe to operate—in this particular the Franklin exceeds in value all other cars.

It must be economical—the Franklin will give from 20 to 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline—from 700 to 900 miles on a gallon of oil—from 10,000 to 15,000 miles on a set of tires. It must have continuing value—the reader is advised to consult the second hand car advertising and see how infrequently a used Franklin is offered, and when such a car is in the market, for how high a figure it is held relatively.

WHERE DREFOOT LIES

There can be no adequate apology, although the result will bring with it sufficient penalty, if the Hun is permitted to win the war through failure to realize the gravity of the present crisis.

If the war is lost by America and its allies, it will be the fault of the men, women and young people of the United States to whom the war has not, as yet, become a really serious question.

The consciousness that is alive does not require the spur of organized drives and campaigns to enlist it in the forces at the battlefield or in those equally essential forces of those who produce the food and finances that spell the winning of the war, but until the last shot in defense of the rights of humanity and the tenets of democracy is fired, there cannot be a cessation of operations that will bring about universal awakening to complete recognition of the supreme danger.

ANOTHER STRIKE?

According to current press dispatches, plans are complete and instructions issued for a general lockout, in the event the telegraph companies fail to accede to the demands of employers.

A strike of telegraphers at this time would constitute a blow at government industry of nationwide scope. It would paralyze the nerve centers of a people.

Such a strike will probably not be called until every effort is exhausted to patch up existing difficulties. Should this point not be kept clear in the minds of strikers and public it is going to lead with those on the other side of the controversy unless they too use every last ounce of energy in an effort to effect a settlement of the difficulty.

Character Values.

All life and action upon the snow have an added emphasis and significance. Every expression is understood. Summer has few finer pictures than this winter one of the farmer foddering his cattle from a stack upon the clean snow—the manure being sharply defined figures, the great green mounds of hay, the long files of patient cows, the advance just arriving and pressing eagerly for the choice morsels—and the bounty and provision it suggests.

A severe artist! No longer the canvas and the pigments, but the marble and the chisel. I see the hills, bulging with great drifts, lit themselves cold and white against the sky, the black lines of fences here and there obliterated by the depth of the snow. Presently a fox barks away up the next mountain, and I imagine I see him sitting there in his own upon the illuminated surface, and looking down in my direction.—John Burroughs.

Little Known of Shooting Stars.

Our knowledge of shooting stars extends into the oldest history of humanity, back into prehistoric times. Yet today no one knows exactly what a shooting star is, or from where it comes. An hypothesis proposed in 1870 and generally accepted today, is that meteorites are fragments broken from small planetary masses by volcanic explosions brought about by a sudden expansion of gases, steam and probably hydrogen. The broken bits, after their separation, are believed to arrange themselves in swarms which cross the orbit of the earth in accordance with the orbit of the earth in space. Then, undoubtedly come from within our solar system and are broken bits of a world body destroyed by volcanic events. Many meteorites have been found in Arizona.—Popular Science Monthly.

THE LAUGH COLUMN

Our Motto: "Fun in Every Page"

German war efforts officially announce that the English attempt to block up the harbor entrance failed to impede submarine operations. Now we are certain that England's attack succeeded.

Where is the o. f. party who used to throw ponies to the monkey?

Speaking of monkeys, we believe that the Darwinian theory of evolution still holds good in Germany.

PECULIAR HORRORS OF WAR (Women are now taking man's place in the act of catching criminals.—New Item.)

"What if I should come home from across the sea," says Finnegan, slash of Company V, "and, after fighting the Hun and the Turk, find women doing detective work to get?"

HOW TO GET RICH QUICK? Raise hogs.

General von Ludendorff says that the Germans "have confidence in the help of God." Yes, Lord, but is the confidence mutual?

The Twin Falls weather seems to be Russian the season. We had summer in winter and now it is autumn in spring.

HOW COLD AFFECTS SOUNDS

Numerous Examples Can Be Given, but Exact Reason Is Hard to Explain.

A close observer describes two phenomena of nature not easily explained. First, that natural sounds are very different in the colder than in the warmer months of the year; and, second, that waters have different tones during the colder and warmer months.

A number of examples occur to prove the first phenomenon. Who has not noticed the contrast in the noise of the wind in different seasons when it blows around the corner of the house—in summer what a soft, mellow tone it has and in winter what a harsh, rough whistling?

Then, again, let us stroll along the banks of a stream in May, June or July, and we will observe that the water will then make a gruff, babbling sound, while in November or winter it will, with not great volume, make a hoarse, gurgling noise.

Still again, if we ramble in the woods during late spring or the summer, we cannot but notice with what a softness and mildness the wind has been blowing through the tops of the trees; on the other hand, what a roaring it makes in cold weather.

Perhaps the trees being with or without foliage may cause some difference, but it will be observed in May, before the leaves are out to any extent, there is even then a marked difference between that time and December.

Often we have heard it along telegraph wires during the summer and winter, and have noted the contrast.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE BY MARY GAWAIN BONNER

MR. MEASLES' PUZZLE.

"Go away, go away," said Peter Goblin. "You mustn't come around here.—No, you mustn't. I won't have it, not for a moment will I have it."

"May we talk to you, then?" asked Mr. Measles, as he hurried off.

"Yes, I will come and talk to you, but you mustn't stay around here. Goblin don't get measles, but children do, and I 'How about Mrs. Hurry off, Hurry off."

"Wouldn't they like to have us?" asked Mr. Mumps. "Just think how we'd make their faces put up and look so fine and fat!"

"Yes," said Peter Goblin, crossly, "and make it hard for you to get right." No, no, no, you get it straight from Mrs. Leaky, but is the confidence mutual?

"How about me?" asked Mrs. Croup.

"You go away, too," said Peter Goblin. "I don't have just one little look at a nice little boy or a nice little girl!"

"I don't see why not," said Mr. Measles, crossly. "He had come back a little talking to Peter Goblin and he thought perhaps Peter had given in. Of course he had never known him to, but he might—once could never tell."

"I thought I'd tell you to start off," said Peter Goblin. "Now I won't put up with any more of this nonsense. Be off—all of you. Be off, right away!"

"You promised to talk to us," said Mr. Measles. "You will, won't you?"

"But we'd rather have a little chat with a child first," said Mr. Mumps. "Maybe you would like to," said Peter Goblin, "but you're not going to. And so, one, two, three—go! Everyone of you. I'll follow along."

"Now, what is the use," Mr. Mumps muttered, "of being able to make some fat fat when one isn't given the chance?"

"You don't want to make them fat and well," said Peter Goblin. "They had all wandered quite far away from the children and so Peter Goblin felt they were safe. He would get many of his goblin right to work to keep an eye on them, for goblins cannot get measles, mumps, chicken pox or croup."

"Yes, I make them fat," said Mr. Mumps. "I never bother about more than their cheeks. They grumble so after I've made them fat that I get disheartened."

"Good thing you do," said Peter Goblin. "You're certainly smart enough."

Mr. Mumps knew Peter was right, so didn't say another word. Mr. Measles spoke next.

"We wanted to have you talk to us," said Mr. Measles, "because we cannot understand you."

"Why not?" asked Peter Goblin. "I try to protect the children from getting measles, mumps, chicken pox and croup. Of course they have to help me by trying to keep as well and strong as they can so as to escape you. Whenever one of you gets past us, how badly we do feel. You often do, but we try our best to keep you out of here. We can't keep you out entirely but we can help."

"And then good, kind doctors drive you away?"

"We hate doctors," said Mr. Measles.

"Well," said Mr. Croup, "we wouldn't have them so much, because we give them a lot of trouble, and we love to give trouble."

"That's so, we do," said Master Chicken Pox.

"But," said Mr. Measles, "people say, 'Oh, don't catch the measles. And be careful not to catch the mumps. Don't get near anyone with chicken pox or you might catch it.'"

"Now, to catch a thing," continued Mr. Measles, "means to chase after it or try to get it in some way. If they don't like us why they talk about catching measles? They say 'Be careful not to catch Mr. Mumps.' It's very silly, for if they really don't like us, they should say, 'Don't let Mr. Mumps catch you.'"

"It's rather an absurd expression," admitted Peter Goblin, "but stay away from children and talk about it for a good long while. That's what you must all do!"

Cause of the Flood. "Edwin," said the Sunday school teacher, "can you tell me what caused the flood?" "Yes, ma'am," answered the little fellow, "it rained."

HAULING FRENCH SHELLS TO THE FRONT

Success Without Struggle.

Persons who have succeeded in any line have had to struggle for the triumph that came their way. The road to success is not rose strewn by any means. It is a hard, wearisome thoroughfare, almost impassable in places. Therefore, if we are so foolish as to conclude that half-hearted or careless endeavors will result in our work being classed as up to the standard, or success suddenly casting a golden halo around us, we are doomed to disappointment.

Daily Thought.

To supplant will with joy in a single heart is to avenge creation nearer to the divine plan.—Youth's Companion.

Make our Want Ads do your work.

Do Not Borrow Trouble.

I saw a delicate flower that grew up two feet high between the horse's path and the wheel track. An inch more to the right or left would have sealed its fate, or so it might; and yet it lived to flourish as high as if it had a thousand acres of untroubled space around it; it never knew the danger it incurred. It did not borrow trouble, nor invite an evil fate by apprehending it.—Thruout.

Palestine Vegetation.

Some of the vegetation of Palestine is plainly listed in the Scriptures. Thus: "Go forth into the mount, and fetch olive branches, and pine branches and myrtle branches." This found in Nehemiah 7:15.

Sweet Odors Always Prosper.

From the very earliest age man has loved sweet odors. In the Bible we read of the burning of incense on the altars and the very most perfumery (under which head we may include all delicate fumes or smells) comes from the Latin fumes, smoke or vapor. The early Egyptians knew the use of the eary, and adapted it to the separation of the odorous principle from fragrant plants, but the most ancient odors were drawn from natural gums, such as caspior, myrrh and cinnamon.

"Doctoring" Heliotrope.

The delicate heliotrope is scarce and unprofitable to the perfumer. He detects in its odor, however, the aroma of vanilla combined with the sharper scent of bitter almonds. Therefore, he adds to a tincture of vanilla a small quantity of the otto of bitter almonds and rose and orange flower-essence, and thus easily makes extract of heliotrope.

Coal in Caucasus Region.

While peasants were recently digging a well near the village of Traridzor, in the Reszen valley, in the Caucasus, coal was found 20 feet from the surface; the vein, however, was but 225 feet in thickness. Enough coal has already been found in this particular locality to supply the entire neighborhood, and in all probability there are other and greater deposits not yet located.

Much Unconscious Lying.

In these days there is more prevarication, or fibbing, or misrepresentation, or whatever you care to call it, because we have come to feel that we can stretch the truth and still be truthful. There is a lot of lying that is unconscious lying.

Too Inquisitive.

An Illinois judge has decided that a man can talk in his sleep without making himself subject to divorce proceedings. Yes, but what did he say?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

MADE BIG MISTAKE

Of Course They Had Plenty of Money Now, But—

Farmer Had Forgotten That Time Was Robbing Him and His Wife of Youth While He Was Piling Up the Dollars.

The farmer sat in the circle of light shed by the lamp on the reading table. His brow was wrinkled as he ran over the figures in his hand-book...

At length the man placed his spectacles in their case, put his clasped hands above one knee, studied slowly and said: "The last payment on the Dawkins farm has been paid, Jinny, and I've got a right smart balance left in the bank. That last bunch of sheeps I sold brought more money than I thought they would."

"Yes," the woman answered without taking her eyes from the book, "yes, I remember very well. It was just 15 years ago that you took that last trip, John."

"I don't know, I don't know. You see, John, when we planned that trip it was little bit over thirty. I hadn't got into the rut like I am now. Honest, I've stayed out here in the country year after year by myself until I'm sensitive. When I go to town I look up 'act like I was from the country. Maybe I don't look that way, but I feel that way on the inside and I might just as well look that way. If the trip had come sooner it'd been all right, but it's too late now."

"But, Jinny, you know how happy I've been since that John. I've heard that same old story of people for more land for years now. You've done it all for the best, but it has been for the worst. We've got money to spend and we've gotten plumb by the end of the line when we get no more out of it. I believe in putting something by for a rainy day all right, but I don't believe in it when you kill youth on pleasure. I'm sorry as I can be, John, but I don't want the trip—Farm and Family."

American Sardines—Our imports of sardines from France and other European countries have been almost entirely cut off by war, but the California sardine industry is developing so rapidly that N. B. Scoble, fish and game commissioner of that state, estimates an output of 2,000,000 cases of California sardines in another year...

Common Sense Plus—The class in Commercial English was studying the parcel post system. The subject being discussed was the size of admissible matter under this plan, to be sent in any zone. The correct rule for this is to measure the parcel from end to end with an 8-inch tape measure, and then use the rest of the measure to stretch around the circumference of the parcel. If any surplus inches of tape come around, that parcel is of correct size.

Use of Brass in Ordnance Equipment—Included in the equipment furnished each infantryman by the ordnance bureau of the war department are 62.7 ounces of brass. This is exclusive of the uniform equipment provided by the quartermaster company. Used in the harness are 1.2 ounces of brass; in the bayonet scabbard, 0.5 ounce; in the canteen cover, 0.2 ounce; cartridge (100), 47.4 ounces; cartridge belt, 10 ounce gun sling, 1 ounce; and thumb case, 1.2 ounce. Ordnance pouch for first-aid packet, 0.5 ounce. Equipment from the ordnance bureau for 100,000 infantrymen contains almost 180 tons of brass.

FIGHTING IN EUROPE

SELF-PRESERVATION as well as patriotism demands that our farmers shall plentifully feed our fighters.

When Germany proclaimed the seas closed to American merchant vessels and entered upon her program of wholesale ocean tonnage destruction, she was aiming a blow directly at the American farmer.

For lack of proper marketing and shipping facilities Australia today has three crops unsold and millions of tons of grain spoiled or destroyed either by weather or rodents.

Literary Critic. Little six-year-old Allan, scion of a bookish family, had mastered reading so efficiently that his first glimpses of the world were gazing hay in his memory. One afternoon he confided to his mother: "Mama was showing me her new book today, and it's the queerest thing you ever saw! Why, it just says: 'Is it a cat? It is a cat. Can the cat run?' and a lot of stuff like that! 'Course I was too little to say so, but it didn't seem to me the style was a bit queer." -Hochester Post Express.

REACH AGREEMENT IN LAND LEASE CASE

SHEEP AND CATTLE INTERESTS INVOLVED UNDER ONE TRIAL PROPOSITION

At a conference here Thursday representatives of sheep and cattle interests involved in the leases made by the reclamation service to certain cattle men covering lands between Snake river and the Sawtooth range known as the Minidoka extension grazing permits, a tentative agreement was reached whereby, instead of there being several roads following half section lines across the leased lands to permit of the passage of sheep as contemplated in the terms of the leases, there will be provided one wider avenue across the leased lands for the passage of sheep between ranges on either side of the leased area.

Agreement Reached to Hearings.

The agreement is reached consequent upon hearings in the matter held with representatives of the reclamation service at Denver and later at Jerome. It will be put into effect provided it meets the approval of federal authorities.

Interests Represented.

The conference here was held in the office of James B. Rathbone, attorney for the cattle interests, which were represented by W. W. Custer and G. M. Brown of Shoshone; Thomas Schoedde of Arley, and A. J. Henry of Eden. The sheep interests were represented by their attorney, Elad L. Higgins, and by S. P. Newman, J. W. Newman, and Young, William Royce and Clyde Bacon.

Confessions of a German Deserter

The Pillaging and Ravaging of Belgium

is told in detail by one who participated—a Prussian officer whose conscience revolted at the atrocities, causing him to desert.

The author—a young German—was an engineer with Von Kluck's army when it crossed the Belgian frontier on the mad rush to reach Paris. He participated in the entire campaign until the battle of Mons, in which he was wounded and sent to a hospital from which he escaped over the Dutch frontier, finally reaching America. He is in the United States now, registered as an alien enemy, and has written his experiences for our readers.

Big Events in Small Territory. Perhaps it is because the maps from which children used to learn Bible geography were on a large scale that most of us have failed to realize how narrow were the limits within which they took place all those great things that fill the books of Samuel and Kings. Just in the same way the classical scholar who visits Greece is surprised that so small a territory should be so many striking incidents and for the careers of so many famous men.

BERLIN SAYS FORCES NEAR YPRES TODAY

FRENCH OFFICIAL STATEMENT CLAIMS VILERS-BRETONNEUX GROUND RETAKEN

(By United Press.)
LONDON, April 27.—The Germans claim to be within two miles of Ypres.

The Berlin war office, in its daily official statement yesterday, declared that "the large crater of St. Eloi and the place itself were captured." St. Eloi is just two miles directly south of Ypres, on the road from Wytchachte.

In storming Mont Kemmel and the village of Kemmel, the enemy also claimed to have progressed to Komel brook, but a short northwest Allied prisoners taken Thursday were said to total 650.

No Let-Up
Field Marshal Haig, in his night report, said that fighting is continuing on the whole front north of the Lys river, from the neighborhood of Dantrou to the Ypres-Comines canal, a distance of about seven miles. He admitted the capture of Dantrou, Kemmel and Mont Kemmel. Nine divisions (108,000 men) were used by the enemy in Thursday's attack, he said.

All German attacks in the region of Leidyke and Bretonneux were held, but the British line was forced back in the direction of Loos, a mile and a quarter west of Kemmel, and on both sides of the Ypres-Comines canal.

German Heavy Bomb
In Picardy, French and British forces hurled the German back at some points in the neighborhood of Heugard, south of the Ypres-Comines canal.

The French war office reported the recapture of most of the ground recently lost between Vilers-Bretonneux and a point south of the Lys river—a front of probably five miles.

North of Heugard ward, seven successive German assaults were completely repulsed. The town itself twice changed hands.

British Reports
Regarding the fighting south of the Somme, Berlin said that enemy attacks south of Vilers-Bretonneux "failed with heavy losses."

The prisoners taken around Heugard were said to total 240.

German troops were claimed to have penetrated French positions at Bagneville, six miles east of Bulcheprey.

MUST YIELD OR ABANDON

the Dutch border, toward Bremen and Hamburg. If the Dutch army could hold the Germans along the frontier until the arrival of heavy allied reinforcements, Germany's military situation might soon become precarious.

Hindenburg might well be forced to abort his troops in France to provide the necessary troops for the defense of German territory.

Use American Troops
Should a situation such as this arise, it is highly probable that America would supply a large part of the troops for operations along the Dutch frontier. The ferrying of these troops across the North sea to Holland would present difficulties because of the length of the journey, which would mean a vast expenditure of money.

No Break Yet
WASHINGTON, April 27.—That Germany has not accepted a truce on Holland on the question of free transportation of supplies through that country was the declaration of Dutch legation officials here today.

Possibility of a break over the negotiations now going on between the two countries was regarded slight. Contrary to the statement of the Dutch premier this week, legation officials here declared negotiations "have not yet assumed serious proportions."

BLAME PASTOR FOR PRO-GERMAN TALK

CITIZENS OF LOWDEN, IA. WILL TAKE LAW INTO OWN HANDS UNLESS GOVERNMENT ACTS

LOWDEN, Iowa, April 27.—This town is seething with excitement again today, as a result of alleged activities of certain suspected pro-German residents. Patriotic citizens openly declared today that unless the government uses its power to stop pro-Germans talk here, loyal citizens will take the law into their own hands.

Last night a crowd of young men painted the business house of Mayor W. A. Hoeltje yellow. This action was taken, the young men declare, because Mayor Hoeltje declined to preside at a patriotic meeting in honor of the young men called to the colors.

Mayor Was Sick
The mayor declined to attend the meeting, saying he was sick. It was charged, however, that he was able to be at his place of business the day of the meeting and on the following day.

Officers of the German Savings bank are also under fire. None of the officers attended the patriotic meeting, it is charged.

The pastor of a local church is accused of being responsible for much of the feeling here. He continues to preach in the German tongue, it is said. The minister is now under indictment for previous disloyalty.

FRAUD CHARGED IN MOONEY BOMB CASE

DISTRICT ATTORNEY AND POLICE OF SAN FRANCISCO OBJECT TO LATEST MOVE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—Charges of "wilful fraud" and "wilful non-fossance and malfeasance" were made against the district attorney and police of San Francisco in a motion filed in Superior Judge Griffin's court today by attorneys for Thomas J. Mooney.

The motion asks that the sentence of death against Mooney, the judgment against him and the order denying a grant for a new trial be set aside. The motion also asks for an order directing trial of Mooney on one of the murder charges growing out of the preparedness parade, commencing July 22, 1916.

Mooney appeared before Judge Griffin today for arraignment. The sentencing became legally necessary after the supreme court denied the motion for a new trial.

The motion was made before Judge Griffin, who personally recommended to the supreme court that Mooney be given a new trial after the disclosure of questionable testimony which had been used when he was convicted.

DENIES RUMORS OF CHURCHMAN'S RELAPSE

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 27.—Archbishop Ireland is at work daily in his study, his secretary, Rev. Thomas E. Welch, stated today, in denying rumors that the prelate had suffered a relapse. His condition is no more serious than it has been for months.

"Booner" is the correct comparative of the adverb soon, as soon, sooner, soonest. The word occurs in the Bible and in Shakespeare. In the early settlement of the territories it was used as a slang term to designate persons who tried to pre-empt land before it was legally open to entry. That was an improper use of a correct word.
