

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH TO BE NEXT MOVE

ADVOCATES HAPPY WHEN PRESIDENT SAYS LOOK TO WAR PROFITS, IN COMES AND LUXURIES

(By United Press) WASHINGTON, May 28.—(Wall) conscriptionists in congress today welcomed President Wilson to their ranks. The president's suggestion that the government would "naturally" look to war profits, income tax luxuries to furnish the new taxes was hailed as evidence the president's conviction to their way of thinking.

At the same time opposition developed in the president's own party to the forty-sixth financial policy to be laid down. Representative Kitchin, house Democratic leader and chairman of the ways and means committee, who will draft the bill, is holding it up today. Kitchin wants a larger proportion raised by taxation.

Ratio of 40-60 in Controversy "There should be no attempt to fix an exact rate," said Kitchin. "But a larger percentage than forty should come from taxes. We must get those big profits while they are here to be had."

President Wilson has twice expressed himself to congressional leaders as strongly favoring this exact proportion, once in a memorandum to the senate finance committee and again in response to an inquiry from Senator Simmons as to whether he would accept some other ratio. It was his insistence on this exact proportion which caused Republican senators to break away last Saturday and speak what seemed to be an agreement to postpone the bill until a special session in November. Republicans said they could not bind themselves to any other definite plan, because they couldn't tell what war profits are going to be in 1918. Neither would they agree to pass the bill by the end of January, which the president also insisted.

Agree on War Profits But upon the principle that war profits, incomes and luxuries must bear the brunt, congress seemed practically unanimous today. The only difference is as to how to which those things would be taxed.

Senator Johnson, California, leader in last session's wealth conscription fight, said: "The middle suggested for a new revenue bill are altogether gratifying to those of us who constituted a useful minority last year in endeavoring to make war profits bear their due burden of the expenses of war."

Conscriptionists Happy Now "When, in the last session, we attempted to raise the ceiling on the income tax, we were met by angry epithets, the least of which were 'anarchist' and 'pro-German.' Apparently those loud-voiced in denunciation of this method for raising revenue were now cheerfully and enthusiastically demanding this method. What a pity one year's excessive war profits were permitted to escape without bearing their just burden."

Representative Kitchin said today hearings would begin within ten days. He expects to report the bill to the house in August.

SAYS COUNTY TO BE WHEATLESS IN SIX WEEKS

COUNTY FOOD ADMINISTRATOR PREDICTS EXHAUSTION OF AVAILABLE SUPPLY OF FLOUR Those persons who through some of us are pledging themselves in the present food emergency to abstain from wheat harvest from the use of wheat flour are simply anticipating a situation that will become general and enforced through exhaustion of the supply, according to statement of County Food Administrator C. E. Munson, who said Monday evening before a meeting of grocers, bakers and restaurant proprietors gathered in the Palace cafe here, that on or before July 15 next and until the next harvest, there would be no wheat flour to be had, not only in the Twin Falls district but anywhere in the northwestern division, comprising the states of Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

Predicts Further Limitation This year grocers and bakers are limited in their purchase of wheat flour to 70 per cent of the amount bought last year, and next year, Mr. Munson predicted, they will be limited to 50 per cent of their purchases this year. The wheat flour substitutes situation is constantly improving, he stated, and bakers are experiencing little difficulty now in securing all the substitutes required.

Flour Supply Falling The meeting assembled to discuss distribution of the available supply of wheat flour. It developed in the course of the discussion that some of the local grocers are already without flour and have exhausted the quota which they are permitted under the food control regulations to purchase. Reference was made to the fact that only one of the three local bakeries has some any more flour on hand, the other two having exhausted their quotas.

Bakers Center of Interest The situation with regard to the grocers came in for little consideration, and interest centered on the predicament of the bakers. It was proposed that

STRATEGY OF GERMANS MATTER OF CONJECTURE

GERMANS IMPROVE DEFENSIVE POSITION BUT GAINS DO NOT THREATEN ALLIED ARMIES—MILITARY AUTHORITIES STILL THINK VON HINDENBURG ATTEMPTING TO MISLEAD FOCH

(By J. W. T. MASON. (United Press War Export) NEW YORK, May 28.—By crossing the Aisne river along the southern bank to the front, the Germans have improved their defensive positions against a possible allied offensive in that area, but they have made no gain which threatens serious consequences to the allied armies.

There are no great stretches of territory in the sector now under Von Hindenburg's attack which can be relinquished with perfect safety by General Foch in exchange for heavy German casualties. The allies can better afford to lose the ground than Von Hindenburg can afford to lose the men. It was in this same region that General Neville lost his post as commander-in-chief of the French armies in the spring of 1917 because of the failure of his offensive. Neville at that time made a greater advance than Von Hindenburg has succeeded in doing, but the French government did not consider the heavy casualties were worth the ground gained.

Exchange Land for Casualties. If, therefore, on Hindenburg wishes to copy the cost in slaughtered German manpower for a recovery of the territory he left to the French last year, General Foch will undoubtedly be content. Two opposed schools of strategy are represented in the encounter. The French removed their commander-in-chief for doing what Von Hindenburg expects to do, to search for success. The crossing of the Aisne near Berry-au-Bac puts the Germans on the south bank of the stream at a point where the least damage can be done to the allies' positions in the rear.

Several Favor Allies. Immediately to the south of Berry-au-Bac are ranges of hills that form a trap for the gathering of troops of death by the Anglo-French forces. At no place could it have suited General Foch better than the German make headway in exchange for the maximum number of casualties.

The fact that Von Hindenburg is attacking in great force does not yet signify with full certainty that he has thrown the full weight of the great army for offensive into the Aisne drive. It may be his crafty purpose to try to entice General Foch into moving the flower of the allies' reserves into the Aisne sector, and then suddenly shift the attack to the Amiens or Hazebrouck-Ypres sectors.

Won't Fool Foch. General Foch, however, proved by his cool judgment during Von Hindenburg's recent type offensive that he is not to be fooled in making up his reserves. It probably will require far greater pressure than Von Hindenburg has yet shown along the Aisne for the allies' reserves to be called into action. His strategy, if any more likely than Foch to be outgeneraled by the last.

(By WILLIAM PHILIP KIMMS (United Press Staff Correspondent) WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, MAY 28.—(12:55 P. M.)—BRITISH AND FRENCH TROOPS ARE COUNTING ATTACKING SOUTH-WEST OF YPRES. THE FIGHTING WAS STILL UNDER WAY AT THE TIME OF WRITING. AT THAT TIME THEY HAD ALREADY RETAKEN PRACTICALLY ALL OF THE GROUND WHICH THE ENEMY WON YESTERDAY.

THERE IS EVERY INDICATION THAT THE ENEMY IS PUTTING EVERYTHING HE HAS INTO THE THIRD AND PREPARING THE ULTIMATE PHASE OF HIS OFFENSIVE.

DRAFT CALL FOLLOWS NEW REGISTRATION

(By United Press) WASHINGTON, May 29.—The protest against general office intends to make a mischievous draft call directly after the twenty-one year-old men register on June 5.

America's war machine is now reaching its peak and it is contemplated by the end of this year the supply of class one men will have been nearly exhausted, either as necessary war work, or in the military establishments. Already men have been called from business two and three, men who are skilled in trades or callings that fit into the army's work.

WASHERMEN MAY BE ALLIED TROOPS AND ARE BEING TRAINED IN ACTION, CALLS REPORT BY THE BRITISH MILITARY ATTACHE IN TODAY'S DISPATCH.

THE GERMANS WERE STILL PROGRESSING THEIR OFFENSIVE TODAY ON BOTH THE AISNE AND FLEANDERS FRONTS. AFTER FORCING THEIR WAY ACROSS THE AISNE AT VARIOUS POINTS ON THE FOUR MILE SECTOR BETWEEN VALLY AND BERRY-AU-BAC LAST NIGHT, THE ENEMY WAS ATTACKING VARIOUS POINTS ALONG THE AISNE FRONT THIS MORNING. THE FRENCH WAR OFFICE DECLARED THE BRITISH AND FRENCH WERE GREATLY OUTNUMBERED ON THIS FRONT, BUT REPORTED THE ARRIVAL OF RESERVE BEHIND THE AISNE FRONT.

ON THE FLEANDERS FRONT, THE FIGHTING TODAY WAS CENTERING AROUND DICKENBACH LAKE, WHERE THE FRENCH RECAPTURED THE GERMAN TROOPS.

RAID REPORTS GERMAN TROOPS HAVE CROSSED THE AISNE RIVER AT LONDON. THE GERMAN ARMY CROSSED THE AISNE RIVER LAST YESTERDAY, FIELD MARSHAL HALL REPORTED TODAY.

"THE ENEMY EXERCISED CONTINUOUS PRESSURE AGAINST THE BRITISH ON THE AISNE FRONT THROUGHOUT YESTERDAY. SEVERAL FIGHTING IS STILL CONTINUING. "ON THE RIGHT THE TWENTY-FIFTH DIVISION, MAINTAINING CONTACT WITH THE FRENCH, HELD ITS BATTLE POSITIONS ALL DAY. ON THE CENTER AND LEFT, THE EIGHTH, FIFTH AND SEVENTH DIVISIONS, IN A DETERMINED RESISTANCE, MAINTAINED THEIR SECOND LINE UNTIL LATE HOUR."

"THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE FRONT NOW EXTENDS IN A PRACTICALLY CONTINUOUS LINE FROM DIEMIDE TO BERRY-AU-BAC, APPROXIMATELY 25 MILES. THE FLEANDERS FRONT, FROM DIEMIDE TO LA BASSEE, IS ABOUT 65 MILES, THE PICARDY FRONT, FROM ARRAS TO COUCY-CHEZOUX IS ABOUT 170 MILES. BETWEEN LA BASSEE AND ARRAS, WHERE ARTILLERY AND RAIDING OPERATIONS HAVE PRACTICALLY CONSOLIDATED THE TWO FRONTS, IS 25 MILES. THE NEW AISNE FRONT FROM SOISSONS TO RHEIMS, IS ABOUT FORTY MILES. BETWEEN SOISSONS AND COUCY-CHEZOUX IS A SHORT GAP OF ABOUT TEN MILES."

"HUNS CROSSED THE AISNE. The Germans, according to both British and French statements today, have crossed the Aisne between Vally and Berry-au-Bac. This represents an advance of more than four miles from the line as it stood when the offensive was resumed early yesterday morning. It would also seem to confirm the German claim last night that the Chemin-de-Dames had been captured. This advance is about 50 miles at an average distance of three miles to the north. It was believed yesterday that American troops were involved in this fighting, as it was known they were carrying in the Chemin-de-Dames sector, but Henry Wood, cabling from the front, reported that these Americans had been replaced by British troops.

In Flanders, what slight progress they did make was wiped out by French counter attacks, it was reported, and the enemy succeeded in reaching Font-Aux, fourteen miles east of Soissons on the south bank of the Aisne, the French war office announced in the report today. This represents an advance of slightly more than four miles.

About ten miles to the eastward, in the vicinity of Berry-au-Bac, British troops were forced back to their second line positions. Field Marshal Hall's night report revealed. FERRISH'S REPORT INDICATES AMERICANS ARE COMING IN FOR SHARE OF GERMAN ACTIVITY

(By United Press) WASHINGTON, May 28.—American troops have occupied a German trench sector, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy and taking some prisoners, General Pershing called the war department today in his official communique.

(By United Press) WASHINGTON, May 28.—American troops are in the thick of things on the western front. This was shown today by General Pershing's report declaring the enemy was completely expelled after entering the American lines in Picardy and that United States forces entered the German lines through sniper attacks.

The same statement said that the enemy's strong hostile raiding party was repulsed with "losses in killed and wounded."

Intense gas attacks occurred in the active against Americans. While these occurrences are not in the region of the German drive, new

SIGN WENT TOO IN LAST TRANSACTION

Indignant Customer Went Back and Got What He Paid For

A well known merchant in one of the smaller towns of this county is out of wheat flour. For several days his stock included on treated sack of flour. This he displayed in his show window in the center of a variety of official substitutes. This one sack of flour was sold several times along with the required amount of substitutes, but instead of delivering the flour the merchant refunded the money for the flour and delivered the substitutes.

At a length one customer was encountered who was not amenable to this transaction. The customer communicated by telephone with County Food Administrator C. E. Munson. The flour certainly is yours, said Mr. Munson, but the sign, Mr. Munson advised. Armed with this advice the customer returned to the merchant's store and, summarily removed the flour from the "sign."

"Where you're taking my sign," the merchant remonstrated. "It may be your sign," the customer retorted, "but it is my flour." And he loaded it on his wagon and departed with it.

WEST FRONT

The German offensive was progressing today on both the Aisne and Flanders fronts. In the former sector the fighting was still furious along the entire forty-mile line between Soissons and Rheims, while in the north the battle had advanced down to a comparatively local affair east of Dickenbach lake, about four miles southwest of Ypres.

"The German offensive front now extends in a practically continuous line from Diemide to Berry-au-Bac, approximately 25 miles. The Flanders front, from Diemide to LaBassee, is about 65 miles, the Picardy front, from Arras to Coucy-Cheaux is about 170 miles. Between LaBassee and Arras, where artillery and raiding operations have practically consolidated the two fronts, is 25 miles. The new Aisne front from Soissons to Rheims, is about forty miles. Between Soissons and Coucy-Cheaux is a short gap of about ten miles."

OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE

There would be no need for any sort of prompting to save wheat, sugar and other foods required by the men who are fighting for the cause of humanity in Europe if there were general and genuine appreciation of the fact that there is in France at the present time no more than ten days supply of food.

The United States, although gradually attaining that mark, has not yet reached the point where it is supplying the minimum of food requirements abroad. If there were to be an interruption to the shipments of food from this country, over a period of one week, starvation would be imminent, not only for the civil and military population of the allied nations, but for five hundred thousand Americans who stand in France to resist the advance of the huns.

Complaint is frequently sounded that Twin Falls, although about three hundred of her sons are enlisted, is not thoroughly aroused to the fact that there is a war in progress. By their loyal adherence to the requirements of the food conservation program, they can most convincingly refute this charge.

The individual who voluntarily agrees to abstain altogether from the use of wheat until after the next harvest, as is urged by the Food Administration wherever possible, is serving the Nation and the cause of Humanity as truly and effectively as is the man who wears the khaki.

BULL ASSOCIATIONS

(By F. R. Cunniff, Field Dairyman.) The greatest factor in improving the dairy industry in this section is the formation of Bull Associations. This, at first thought, may seem exaggerated, but careful study and observation has brought the truth home to those who have given the matter careful thought.

As is generally conceded, the bull is half the sire and therefore his selection, care and management vitally important. The day is past when reports can afford to breed our cows, regardless of how good or poor, to a scrub bull of unknown and uncertain breeding just in order to get our cows to come out a good deal less milk for the future dairying than say force we have, and a poor one likewise impairs the future of the industry. Other advantages of an association are that it stimulates improvement in other dairy lines, and progressive effort, develops community spirit, and last but not least, it makes for greater financial gain—a necessary factor in the development of this locality into the best dairy country in the world.

It is often stated, by those who have undertaken improvement by better breeding, that the production of a herd has been doubled in four or five years. This is worth while and is good business. The great advantage of an association over individually owned bulls, especially for the small breeder, is that by co-operation a better bull can be kept at much less trouble and expense than by obtaining the greatest advancement at the least cost. Whenever you are interested in getting greater returns from your dairy cows, and in addition do a great service to your country and the world, get your neighbors interested in the formation of a Bull association, and ask for the assistance of the field dairyman or the extension division through your county agent; all possible help will be given to you. This is up to you. Are you interested?

Seven Men Who Are the "Eyes Of the World" at the Front.

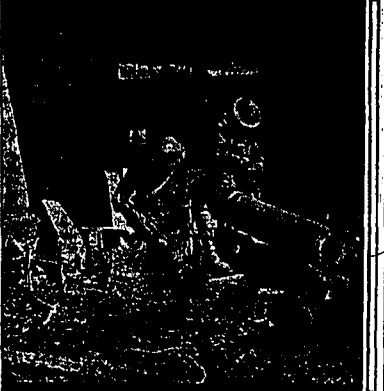

(Littly Digest.) Seven men are the "eyes of the world" on the great Western battlefield. The accounts of the heroic struggle that are presented to those at home with their breakfast coffee are condensed newspaper "digests" of the wide front and the multitude of events as seen through seven pairs of eyes—the eyes of reporters who are covering the greatest assignment ever handed out by a managing editor.

The group of seven correspondents have a chateau near General Haig's main headquarters, but as operations move along the wide front they move, too, and are billeted in the neighborhood of some army headquarters where a consular office has set up. We spent an evening with them in early November in rooms which they had been using in common for conferences and writing for three months, while the Allied offensive had been on in the neighborhood of Ypres. From the back window you could look out on a sky-lit lit up by artillery fire, like flashes of heat-lightning. The walls were hung with large-scale military maps. Before the fireplace was a broad table littered with English and Continental newspapers and magazines. At one side a rough bulletin-board was divided by headings into spaces for the day's bulletins—German wireless press news, extracts from German wireless, Austrian wireless press news, Italian wireless press news, Russian wireless press news, and British wireless. On another board were the latest evening communiqués, and morning and evening news reports having to do with the immediate front.

The correspondents, in khaki, with green bands around their sleeves bearing a white "G," were leaving over a hill at night. The Associated Press, the Associated Press was represented by the Irish revolution, to Egypt, and to India, and last spring was assigned to the headquarters of the British front—Vigors and responsible, Blimey, and Mackenzie are typical of the best of the new generation of correspondents coming up through this war.

The representative of Reuters is Herbert Russell, widely known as a naval expert who was sent originally to Gallipoli, was invalided home, and later came to the western front. Another of "the seven" who is well known in America as a war correspondent is Philip Gibbs, whose dispatches appear in the New York Times. Mr. Gibbs is the representative of the London Daily Chronicle and other English newspapers.

"Too Old"

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

"You see the big entrance to the factory. Beyond a great broad stairway leading to the office. After that the draughting room. Then building after building, pattern lots, machine room, building floors. Well, after stairs, kept going till I mounted higher and higher, and became superintendent, then—follow me a bit, and I'll show you the other side of the picture—and no end so on.

Thus Gabriel Purcell, sturdy old disciplinarian of fifty. He did not look it, he did not feel it. His voice was clear as a clarion note, his eye was set for the low and near. Just a wee stoop of the shoulders threw the stalwart figure out of direct plumb line, and the silvering hair was touched with the first frost of time and winter.

He carried a magnificent gold-headed cane under his arm, disdaining its use as a support and only taking it with him for company because it was the checked-off staff, something that he had in the factory, who loved him and his just, helpful way as if he had been an own father to them. Gabriel Purcell led his companion, an old-time friend, making a great stoop walk into the plant, and then swung his cane to where a long steep chute ran from the upper floor of the shop specially adapted to the barrel run of the customer, was pouring the scraps, refuse, waste of the factory.

"The dump-head—see it, Farleigh?" questioned the old man bitterly. "That's me—in at the front, thrown on the low and near, and spewed on the dump head."

At that same hour Thomas Wynne, head of the great Wynne company, sat facing his attorney in his private office.

"The fact is, Wynne, isn't it that Purcell is overpaid?" enquired the latter.

"Don't use the word 'jauntily,' Randall," retorted the founder. "He doesn't cover it. You don't know how it jars on me to face the merest impatience of insubordinate regarding Purcell. My hair has my right hand since I started in here with a little treasury by Harry and of a shop, and has helped build the business up to its present up-to-date proportions. You know how fifteen years ago my wife inherited a large estate and supplied one hundred and fifty thousand dollars capital to expand the enterprise. Well, recently a younger brother of hers, whom you may call a mechanical theorist and ultra-system man, got the idea of modernizing the coal company in here and double up profits in a year."

"But what interest has he in the business?" asked the founder. "I'm not except through the courtesy of my wife and some relatives who are also stockholders. Of course I can't get any share. Her estate owns considerable of the company stock. She had a little more. I can't afford to quibble with her. I had to supercede Purcell. My brother-in-law is now in charge of the mechanical department. Younger man, stricter work, but it's a higher profit, his sin. We shall see how it works out."

"Mr. Wynne agreed," muttered the lawyer cryptically. "The fact is, Randall," resumed the manufacturer. "I'm approaching a delicate subject. You know that Purcell has a son who is the pride of his soul and the apple of his eye, Arnold Purcell."

"Yes, that's the lawyer, and that was palpably apparent that the mention aroused pleasant sentiments. "A fine young man, an exceptional one, they say. Capable, ambitious, high grade. I have been by his room quite some experience as an advanced sanitary engineer."

"Very well, by some strange freak of destiny he and my daughter, Elaine, met at a social function in the city. Finally, they are in love with each other. I am an aristocrat. I sprang from nothing as did Gabriel Purcell. My wife, however, as you know, was the daughter of a social function, or rather those of wealth. She has lately told young Purcell that Elaine must never marry a man who has not as large a fortune as her own."

"And Arnold Purcell?" "Asks time to make good the conditions."

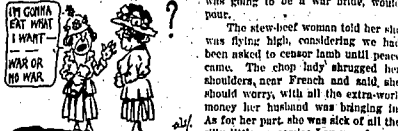

"Great for him! He'll make it," declared the lawyer with confidence. "The young man has not advised his father or others of his love affairs," said Wynne. "He and Elaine seem to have settled down to sensible, dignified patterns and mutual fidelity. He does not intrude himself upon her company. He is pursuing the even tenor of his way, and she is content. It is the father I worry about. I want you to go and see him, and here is the memorandum of what I want to do for him."

Mr. Randall departed with his instructions. He found Purcell at his home. The latter had been a widower for many years and lived in a comfortable, but small house at the edge of the town. It overlooked a deep pit nearly a quarter of a mile in extent, to which a spar of the railroad, some ten years ago, had been supplied quarry had been used here to supply alkali mixture for the big blast-

Illustrating the Difference Between Two Women

CHICAGO—She waited while the butcher trimmed her lamb chops. And while he was doing it she confided to a woman who had ordered stew beef, that she was giving a tea to meet Mrs. Blank, and that her Cousin Maude, who was engaged to a lieutenant and was going to be a war bride, would pour.

The stew-beef woman told her she was flying high, considering we had been asked to cancel lamb until peace came. The chop lady shrugged her shoulders, near French and said, she would worry, with all the extra-work money her husband was bringing in. As for her part, she was sick of all the silly little economies Lou was forever nagging over, and if he had her way they would break up and board, so she could have a decent meal without his everlasting din about helping to win the war. It was nothing in this world but an excuse for his meanness, and if she had known that was that sort of a man—and no end so on.

And when she had gone off the stew-beef woman felt called on to relieve her mind to an entirely strange customer next.

"Did you hear the way that woman was going on? She's got as good a husband as ever walked and a nice little home with a sleeping porch and glass storm doors and an electric range—all paid for and her name. Before she was married she clerked 'way up Seventh street, and had a hall-room across from mine. I was keeping company at the same time, and my Joe said from the first that poor Lou was facing trouble with his eyes shut and that she would never be contented, no matter what he done for her, and it's gospel truth."

All of which set the entirely strange customer thinking thoughts as she went away with her purchase—hamburger, fresh ground. If you were care to know. And as a sensible thought is always worth passing on, here it is as the customer got it from a most wonderful, ancient lady who said in that dusk we all know about, waiting for the dawn. "It was such a way-back dusk that the customer had never even heard tell of hamburger, fresh ground—which, naturally, couldn't be expected to equal those artfully trimmed lamb chops—and this ancient lady remarked with a forgiving smile, "Ah, well, my dear, you know you are not rich in the things one has; real wealth consists of the ability to be satisfied with little and be contented and the consciousness of having tried to do one's duty."

WASHINGTON CITY SIDELIGHTS

Washington Expert Tells All About "Jazz" Music

WASHINGTON—Meyer Davis of this city, who has been dubbed the "king" of the "jazz" is quoted by a Boston Post reporter who interviewed him as having said that jazz music, while having Wagner beaten a mile for harmony, cannot be written because it is never played the same way twice in succession.

"The jazz originated in a section of New Orleans known as Congo place, and has been transplanted to gilded hostilities, the homes of the rich and to all places where the canned-music machines give voice," said Davis.

"Will the jazz cease later?" questioned the newspaper man.

"Like the music they imported from the wave-washed shores of Honolulu," replied Davis. "It will quickly become a thing of the past. It is novelty, and that is all. A jazz player takes a piece of music and plays what isn't there. The good player can play any sort of a melody and jazz it up by putting all sorts of 'blue' in, with a generous sprinkling of rascally note-making power. Let me explain. You must have the slide trombone, with a bottle of oil handy. Then a drummer, with a complete assortment of kitchen utensils, and a cornetist, who must have finished execution and technique, as the raging of the melody depends on his play. He plays all the convolutions, arpeggios and variations. And then the pianist. That will do for a small bunch of jazzers."

"What effect does jazz music have on human beings?" asked the reporter.

"It will make a wooden man dance, and cause an octogenarian to feel like a boy of sixteen," he replied.

CHAPLIN'S NEW COMEDY WITH HIND TO PREVENT IMITATION.

Charles Chaplin makes his 1018 screen debut in the most ambitious effort of his career, entitled "A Dog's Life," which will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre, last time today.

"A Dog's Life" is Chaplin's first production under his million dollar contract with the First National Theatre Circuit. Close to eight weeks have been required to film the story, and while it is a trifle longer than the usual two-reel subject, forty thousand feet of celluloid were used in carrying out the idea. It is the star's original creation.

The policy that has governed all of the Chaplin productions for the past year has been to employ only the best of the world's cameramen. That is to say, no idea of the nature of the story, beyond the bare announcement of the title, was made public until a week prior to the definite release date.

HANSEN SPAN IS ONE OF LONGEST

BUILDER SAYS PROBABLY ONLY ONE OTHER IN WEST LONGER.

The rimlock-to-rimlock suspension bridge to span the Snake river canyon near Hansen, with a span of 603 feet, will be finished at the longest west of the Mississippi river, according to the statement of A. A. Troen, one of the proprietors of the Midland Bridge company, Kansas City, to which contract for the construction of this span was let Saturday by the Hansen Bridge commission.

The Midland company has just completed construction of a suspension bridge near Flagstaff, Arizona, with a total span of 650 feet, which is recorded as the longest west of the Mississippi, Mr. Troen said.

Much Material Required. One carload of steel cable and five carloads of structural steel besides immense quantities of concrete will be used in the construction of the Hansen span, Mr. Troen said. Under the terms of the contract it is to be completed by February 25, 1919. An engineer in the employment of the Midland company, who is at the present time supervising the construction of a large viaduct in Kansas, will have completed that work in time to take charge of the operations here on the Hansen bridge, under supervision of R. M. Murray, of Billings, Montana, steel bridge specialist, employed by the commission.

Divide Extra Cost.

The difference between the amount available, or $85,000 and the contract price of $92,800 for construction of the Hansen span is to be divided jointly by Twin Falls and Minidoka counties and the Hilldale highway district, according to arrangements agreed upon at the joint meeting held here Saturday when the contract was awarded. Twin Falls county's share of the difference, according to the agreement, is to be $20,000, while Minidoka county will receive $7,000 and the Hilldale district, $1,500. The Hilldale highway district was created out of Minidoka county, and comprises that portion of Minidoka county which will be connected directly with Twin Falls county by the bridge.

COOPERATING SILO FILLING.

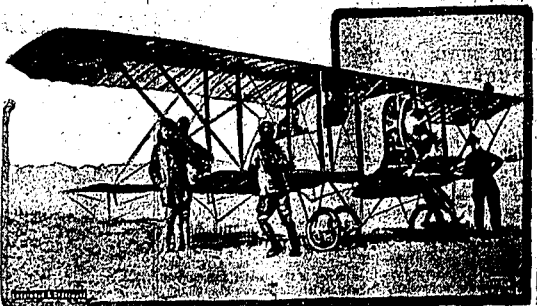

(By F. B. Cammack, Field Dairyman.) Because of the expense of filling the silo, it is most important that some means be devised whereby it will be reduced. It is even more important this year than ever before because of the scarcity of labor and the increased cost of machinery. The writer knows of instances where farmers cut their corn for fodder because of the increased cost of filling the silo, although this is not good farming economy. The food value of fodder is only about 60 per cent of what the silage from the same quantity would be worth.

A number of silos are not being used because of the cost of filling, and the best method of reducing the cost is by cooperation along the following plan: Call a meeting of those interested in any locality and form an organization, each member paying a proportion to the number of tons he plans on ensiling. In this way the expense is divided proportionately to the use obtained, and the cost of filling the silos will be decreased proportionately.

Not only is corn silage a cheap substitute for alfalfa hay, but cows will produce more milk (in many cases 25 per cent more) when fed on alfalfa silage than when fed on alfalfa alone, because of its effect on the digestion of the cow.

When there is sufficient interest in any locality the writer will be glad to assist the farmers in the Farm Bureau in the formation of such an organization. If you are interested, talk to your county agent about it.

SENATOR ATHERTON IN GUBERNATORIAL RACE

Twin Falls County Senator Will Go Before the Republican Primary For High Office.

Senator P. P. Atherton of Twin Falls county has formally entered the race for the Republican nomination for governor, subject to the regular primary election. Senator Atherton is a prosperous farmer of the Twin Falls section; he served in the last state senate and there championed several important measures in which the farmers of the state were especially interested. In announcing his candidacy Senator Atherton said: "The greatest problem before me at the present time is the complete mobilization and coordination of all our resources for the prosecution of the war to a quick and complete victory for freedom. It is a time when should be called to the service of the state to guide its course through this war. 'I have no policy to announce at this time except to say that if I were governor I should put the best that is in me into the work. The governor's office is largely my best instrument to best our questions and see that energy and economy prevailed in the departments and everybody given a square deal. In my judgment that is all any man can honestly promise at this time. Questions of what would be the best policy are of course bound to arise in the course of a gubernatorial term. As they should come up to me I should endeavor to decide them on merit with due regard to the opinions of men of known ability and integrity.'"

Senator Atherton was born in Fulton county, Illinois, and educated in the common schools. At 19 he secured a certificate and started to teach. He went to Guthrie, Oklahoma, in the great land rush in 1889, and developed a piece of land. He was for four years county commissioner in Logan county, Oklahoma. Senator Atherton (son of a Civil war veteran) is very patriotic and has reason to be. He has a son, Ralph, in the regimental band of the 140th field artillery, now "over there" with his son, George, Jr. in the aviation corps and is now at Miami, Florida, and will go to the front soon. —Montidan Times.

BEGIN ENLARGING OGDEN FEED MILLS

PURPOSE TO INCREASE OUTPUT INDICATES CONFIDENCE IN LIVESTOCK BUSINESS FUTURE.

(Special to The News.) OGDEN—Construction work on the new addition for the Hansen Livestock & Feeding company was started this week, and the plant will be enlarged so as to increase the output to about 500 tons per day. It is the hope of the company to turn out sufficient lumber, the new livestock balanced ration, to not only supply the Hansen feed business but also for commercial purposes. Expenditures of $100,000 is being made on this addition. Two new mills are to be installed, making a total capacity of 800 tons of livestock feed each day. The present hay storage warehouses of the plant hold 700 tons. The new addition will have a capacity of 5,000 tons.

The development of the Hansen plant and purpose toward enlargement of the business, formed the notable feature of the livestock industry in Ogden during the past week, showing that men believe in the future of the industry that there will be a decided increase along all lines during the latter part of this year and next season.

Shipments from California Commission shippers to the Union Stock Yards of Ogden reported shipments to the yards from California, Nevada, Idaho, Montana and Utah points during the week. The largest sale was one of 380 fat cattle to Robert Johnson of Denver. A number of loads of hops were purchased by the Ogden Packing & Provision company.

Anticipating the further increase of the livestock business, the Union Stock Yards company is now considering plans for further enlargement which will probably be made this fall so as to handle all shipments coming into the city. Part of this increase, commission men say, will come because of the government campaign for greater meat production.

an average distance of about three miles north of the river. This would represent an advance of one to two miles on a front of about twenty miles.

The attack in Flanders, which was made along the six-mile front from Loere to Voormezele, resulted in a slight penetration of the French positions near Diekenbusch lake, in the center, but the line was later restored by counter attacks. The fighting was still under way there when this report was filed.

The French war office reported violent cannonading in the Verdun sector, near St. Mihiel and on the Lorraine front.

American troops are holding positions of the line on these three fronts.

FRENCH STRATEGEM

ADVERTISE RETIREMENT

(By United Press) PARIS, May 28.—"The Germans, aided by the arrival of new forces, have crossed the Aisne between Yalloy and Berry-As-Bac," the French war office announced today.

"The French and British are facing very superior forces but are drawing back progressively. The battle is going on furiously between La Vaule and the Aisne plateau sector, behind which new forces have arrived."

"Active shelling is going on in the Champagne and Woerwe regions and along the right bank of the Meuse. "A heavy German raid on French positions near Chambray failed."

BOTH SIDES LOSE HEAVILY

(By United Press)

LONDON, May 28.—Although the British losses are considerably, the latest reports from the front today indicated that the enemy's casualties are extremely severe, as a result of some of the fiercest fighting since March 21.

The reports are giving the gravity of the situation in view of the crossing of the Aisne, military circles are calmly confident that the enemy will be unable to accomplish his obvious purpose of weakening the other fronts, where the main attack undoubtedly will be projected.

GERMAN NEWSPAPERS HAIL

ADVANCE AS GREAT VICTORY

(By United Press) AMSTERDAM, May 28.—German newspapers are enthusiastic about the crown prince's progress in the Chemin-Dames region, pointing out that this demonstrates the German offensive power is not broken.

"The advance is hailed as a Hohenzollern dynasty victory, in which the future Kaiser is striking the final blow toward victory."

HAYS COUNTY

the one bakery which was in position to buy more flour should bake its apportionment into bread; that one of the competitors which is importing bread from Portland should continue that policy until all of the flour available here were used; and that thereafter, no more wheat flour should be used by local bakers until August 1.

"This suggestion seemed to meet with the general approval of the meeting, it was to be in position either to supply our customers with all the bread they need, or else with none at all," was the statement made by an officer.

Some to suggestion

W. Seamus Smith, a proprietor of the Royal bakery, which is the one Twin Falls bakery entitled to buy more flour, stated that he believed it possible for his firm to supply the local demand for bread for six weeks. In view of the existing circumstances, he said, the Royal bakery management had decided to give the bread among its customers giving the approximately 70 per cent of the amount consumed under normal conditions. If it were considered desirable to produce at full capacity until the wheat flour supply were exhausted, he said, his firm would be willing to act accordingly.

Went Appropriation Bank Changed

Criticism at this meeting was directed against the food control regulation apportioning the wheat flour supply among individual bakers, rather than among districts, so that each district would have a common supply. A committee composed of G. W. Hart, M. O. Stephens and E. M. Meyer was appointed to prepare resolutions to present to the council of bakers at its meeting this evening, requesting its close in securing amendment to the regulations in this particular.

sector. The French held the enemy with practically no difficulty in yesterday's attack. On the remainder of the front heavy shelling was under way in the Champagne and Woerwe regions and in the Verdun sector. Minor raids were conducted at different points.

AMERICAN FRONT

The three German attacks delivered against the American positions north-west of Montdidier yesterday morning, were repulsed with heavy losses, Fred S. Ferguson cabled from the Picardy front. "In a counter attack the Americans penetrated German lines and held the captured positions until they were ordered to withdraw. There was fierce hand-to-hand fighting in all these attacks, the Americans proving better masters of the bayonet, despite the fact that the boches were armed with gas."

Moffitt of Kimberly; John Arthur Taylor, Jr., Buhl; Marcus Edward Hughes, Buhl; Clarence Errol Price, Buhl. Frank Elmer Bobber of Twin Falls and Leslie T. Brabb of Buhl, inducted out of order by request, also will accompany this contingent.

Jacoby has been designated as the leader of the party. He was for two years a member of a National Guard company at Nampa, and had one year of military training in high school.

Others of the county's quota who will leave from other points are Ernest A. Hamer of Burley, and William Emil Boyer of Portland, both leaving from Portland, also Earl Louis Needham of Twin Falls, leaving from Sheldahl, Minn.

Jay L. Downing, for four years past superintendent of Kimberly schools, is one of the registrants of other districts leaving with the Twin Falls contingent. He is a registrant in Hartsville, Michigan. The others are Charles Varco of Moffitt, Gooding, Idaho; Earl Peck, West Moreland, Kansas; John Fred Stockham, Lincoln Center, Kansas; Edward Walter Strunk, Boreo, Utah; Vance Pulphur of Malheur, Minnesota, also is expected to join the party Sunday.

Exempted As Yeomen.

From among the 75 registrants ordered to report for this draft call, the local board has granted temporary exemption to the following on the grounds that they are engaged actively in farming: Lorenzo A. Barber, Buhl; Albert G. Carter, Buhl; John Taylor, Twin Falls; David Berger Graves, Twin Falls.

IN THROCK OF FIGHTING

actively against the Americans was demonstrated.

The question of how the allies are prepared to meet the present drive outweighed other considerations today. One of the best posted American officers stated it as his belief that the allies are not in a much better position, as regards fighting men, than when the Germans opened their great offensive in March. Enough American troops have reached France in the last few weeks to constitute a formidable reserve force. First, according to best authority here, American will not be used in large numbers in the fighting unless the crisis becomes much more acute.

Perishing Reports

The communique follows: "In Picardy, before daylight this morning, the enemy after a violent raid with high explosives, attacked our positions in three detachments. In two places they penetrated small portions of our lines. Shortly afterward our troops counter attacked, expelling the Germans at all points and occupied part of the German trenches. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy and some prisoners were taken. Our casualties were light. In one case an American was taken prisoner but was rescued by counter attack and all of his captors were killed. Our troops displayed a fine offensive spirit at all times and have achieved a notable success."

Artillery Fire Violent

"During the early hours of the morning in the Woerwe a hostile force supported by violent artillery fire attempted a raid upon our lines. This force, which was composed of three officers and about one hundred men, were equipped with light machine guns, blew up our wire and attempted to capture portions of our trenches. They were completely repulsed by our infantry and our artillery, leaving one officer and four men dead in our trenches and one wounded prisoner in our hands. Fifteen or twenty dead were observed near our wire and ten stretchers were seen being carried around Ham, Neils and Noyon."

Over Million Men Engaged

The allies calculate that more than 100 German divisions (1,200,000 men) of fresh or comparatively fresh troops are at the Kaiser's call. By the usual rotation system they can be brought into the offensive.

The fact that the German offensive was resumed at three widely separated places is regarded as significant. Thus along the Aisne and into the hills southwest of Ypres made some progress in places, but the attack in the region of Montdidier was stopped without much difficulty.

Crown Prince in Command

The Kaiser in putting the crown prince in command of the operations along the Aisne, probably hopes for something big to develop that will restore his heir's prestige at home. Whether the attack in this region is a feint or the real thing, the Kaiser cannot keep his hand hidden much longer.

"OF ALL THE YOUNG LEADING-MEN NONE IS SO EASY ON THE OPTIC NERVES AS RAY"

THIS IS WHAT THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE OPINION says of Charles Ray, who is to be seen at the Idaho theatre two more evenings in "The Hired Man," a mighty entertaining picture. "The Tribune critic also says: "His film, easy, sane, acting is a help to the feelings."

The story, which has a New England atmosphere throughout and is peopled with typical "down East" characters, has to do with the struggle of Harry Hollins, a young farm hand, to procure an education. Doris Lee, who plays his sweetheart, is one of the most attractive girls of the screen.

Derivation of "Alcohol"

Alcohol is of Arabic origin, being derived from the particle "al" and the word "kohl," which is a name given to an impalpable powder used in the East for painting the eyebrows. For many centuries the word was used to designate any fine powder. Both Paracelsus and Libavius used it in that respect in their writings.

PEASANT UPRISING REPORTED IN UKRAINE

Drive Off Germans With Artillery and Machine Guns—Burn Crops

(By United Press) MOSCOW, May 28.—The peasants are reported in an uprising throughout the Ukraine. They are burning crops, forests and machinery. Conditions are particularly bad in the Poltava district. German artillery shelled towns in the districts of Duren-Kremtshug, Eprieta and Mirgorod. The inhabitants of the latter region, however, defeated the Germans by employing artillery and machine guns.

Other clashes have occurred in Karles and Delatolnaha.

Sweet Odors Always Popular.

From the very earliest ages man has loved sweet odors. In the Bible we read of the burning of incense on the altars and the very word perfume (under which head we may include all delicate fumes or smells) comes from the Latin fumus, smoke or vapor. The early Egyptians knew the use of the still, and adapted it to the extraction of the odorous principle from fragrant plants, but the most ancient odors were drawn from natural gums, such as camphor, myrrh and cinnamon.
