DOESN'T MAKE HIT AT WASHINGTON

BY CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, June 28.—Von Kuehlmann's latest peace offensive is regarded officially here like its predecessors—unacceptable and insincere. State department and other authorities gave it scant thought or discussion. They did make it clear, though, that the United States will not listen for a moment to such appeal, which apparently has the plauder of Russia as its foundation.

PREPARE FOR 20,000 GUESTS ON THE FOURTH

COMMITTEES IN CHARGE ARRANGING EVENTS OF FULL DAY OF SPLENDID ENTERTAINMENT

Committees in charge of arrangements for the Fourth of July observance in Twin Falls for the benefit of the Red Cross organization of the county are planning the entertainment of 20,000 people on that occasion.

Distinctive features in the program for the day, which include a gigantic and gorgeous parade, public speaking, band concerts, and games and sports, are the Red Cross auction, the Red Cross circus and the processions, the proceeds from which are to go to the Red Cross.

Four Big Shows
Four big shows, in addition to a number of smaller attractions for which admission will be free and the free attractions, have been provided for. These big shows include the vaudeville under management of Mrs. C. Marriana of Twin Falls, the wild animal show under direction of Mrs. George Easton, the circus and the variety show, and the police court, conducted by Buck Freeman, and a show to be put on by the Elmer Red Cross under the direction of Mrs. Wilfred McKay-Olsen.

Thrill Stamps, which will be given as awards to the winners of athletic games and sports as well as to the winners of prizes for the best decorated floats in the parade, will be accepted as legal tender at any of the circus attractions.

The circus is to be staged in the south half of the city park. Shoshone street, between the park and the court house square, is to be lined on either side with the booths of the concessionaires. The Red Cross auction is to be held at the north of the park on Sixth avenue and the program of games and sports is to take place at the south of the park on Fourth avenue. Headquarters for the day will be opened in the basement of the Methodist church.

Dance on Pavement
In the forenoon the central business district of the city will be roped off, until after the parade, and in the afternoon the roped off area will be cordoned to the vicinity of the park, extending north from Third avenue. In the evening, the Shoshone street pavement in the roped off area will be waxed to permit of dancing to the music of the Twin Falls band.

Band's Service Flag
The band on the occasion will furnish music throughout the day, taking part in the parade and later spending the afternoon on the circus grounds. The band will include in its personnel 28 musicians. This is likely to be the largest number of musicians that can be brought together in Twin Falls. The band under the close of the war. Manager W. R. Priole states. On this occasion, also, the band will display for the first time its service flag containing 18 stars, representative of its membership in the military service.

Wants Many Floats
C. E. Munson, chairman of the parade committee, is desirous that every business house in the county, as well as individuals, shall take part in the pageant, being represented by floats if possible. He promises a number of unique and attractive features. He has had the Twin Falls auction have been coming in gratifying volume. This feature is under the general management of H. B. Lee of Twin Falls, who will act as chief auctioneer, the services of a half dozen auctioneers being enlisted for the event. Mrs. John E. Winkler, in charge of securing donations for the auction among the women in the rural districts.

Solving Food Problem
Special emphasis is being laid in the plans for the occasion, upon provision for the comfort of the guests of the day, and prospective concessionaires are being advised that booths for the sale of food stuffs are assured of a full measure of patronage. Several organizations already have signified their willingness of selling refreshment food: The Rock Creek Red Cross auxiliary has arranged to conduct a booth for the sale of cooked foods. The local Rebekah lodge, and the women of the Christian church are arranging to serve meals, and others are likely to follow suit. Under the direction of Mrs. Kennedy Peckard, in charge of the Red Cross shop, the contributions of food made by the members of the Federation of Rural Women's clubs will be served cafeteria style in the "British hall" tentation being that the proceeds shall be used to reimburse the Twin Falls county chapter for its expense in the furnishing of the shop.

PULLMAN SLAYER BREAKS DOWN

Breaks in Tears When Denied Permission to Place Rose on Wife's Grave

SHELBYVILLE, Mo., June 26.—Shelbyville today was selected for the trial of John F. Jackson, "Pullman slayer," on the charge of wife murder. Mrs. Jackson's body was thrown from a Burlington train in this county. The calm with which Jackson has viewed developments of the case since, according to an alleged confession to Kansas City police, he tossed the half-nude body of the wife from a Pullman compartment near Shelbyville, deserted him today. He threw himself on his knees in tears when the turnkey refused him permission to place a rose on the grave of his murdered wife.

I. W. W. DEFENDS LOYALTY

Court Denies Permission to Introduce Books on Industrial Evils

CHICAGO, June 25.—"Practical sociology" marked the opening of the defense in the I. W. W. sedition trial here today. Denied permission to introduce sociological reports to show the I. W. W. was rightfully organized to fight against evil conditions," Attorney George H. Vandover placed J. P. Thompson, Raymond, Wash., on the stand. Thompson, champion swimmer, longshoreman, lecturer and organizer, began qualifying as an expert investigator of labor troubles by relating his life story. Later he was to be questioned on the plan of the I. W. W. to unseat the "master classes." Vandover's opening address claimed loyalty for the organization. I. W. W. members in uniform and others who worked in munitions plants, he said, would be brought in to show they worked loyally and with a minimum of labor trouble after war was declared.

GERMANS TRY TO CONCEAL THEIR ASSETS

ALIEN PROPERTY CUSTODIAN ISSUES WARNING OFFICIALS LOOK FOR CASES OF EVASION

(By United-Press)

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Germans or Americans attempting to conceal alien property will suffer the full consequences of their act.

Alien Property Custodian A. Mitchell Palmer issued this notice officially following discovery of a German plot whereby millions of dollars of enemy assets were concealed by transferring them to American corporations.

Already $5,500,000 worth of such property has been recovered.

Three New York concerns, Dierckhoff, Officer and Company, notables, 550 Broadway; Rafflor, Erlbloh and Company, Corning, same address, and the American Storage company, Havana, it is alleged, transferred their holdings to a corporation and wrote it was not to evade the alien property law, but according to Palmer, this later proved to be a plain case of evasion.

The hunt for other similar cases is proceeding. Some American citizens are under the shadow of suspicion.

ARMY CALLS FOR MORE KNIT ARTICLES

Twin Falls County Chapter Quota for Next Two Months 2,825 Socks and 400 Sweaters

The Twin Falls County Red Cross chapter has just received word from Seattle headquarters that in July and August we are asked to knit 825 pairs of socks and 400 sweaters. The directions for these are printed below. Every knitter in the county is asked to come to the chapter and help fill the quota which the chapter feels is a big one, but advises that we must not forget that this is a big war.

The yarn will be received in a few days and due notice will be given in the papers. It is necessary that the directions given below be followed, as there will be no time to make over the articles that do not come up to the full requirements. Especial care should be taken that the heel of the socks have no ridges. In taking up heel stitches be sure to take up the lock stitch, otherwise a bad ridge is the result.

There will be knitting instructors at the Red Cross rooms every afternoon from 1:30 to 5 o'clock.

All yarn that is not being knitted into either sweaters or socks, should be finished as soon as possible so as to complete the quota which is to be shipped not later than July 16th.

It is suggested that every knitter cut and keep the following directions:

Directions for Sweater

Cast on 80 stitches. Knit 2 1/2" for 4 inches. Knit across the right side plain, turn, puri-across on the wrong side, turn, repeat till you have 16 inches. On the wrong side knit 4 stitches, puri 88, knit 6, on the right side knit across plain, repeat till you have 24 inches. On the wrong side knit 6 stitches, puri 10, knit 36, puri 10, knit 6. Knit right side plain, repeat till you have 4 ribs (making about one inch). Knit 28 inches. Bind off 24 stitches for the neck. Knit 28 inches shoulder, knit 6 stitches, puri 10, knit 6, turn, on right side knit plain. Repeat until you have 9 ribs. Knit second shoulder same as first. Cast on 24 stitches. Repeat the same as front for 21 inches. Knit 7, puri 4 inches, new together, leaving 9 inches for armhole.

Sweaters must be 25 inches long, from 15 to 18 inches wide.

Socks

The needles of such size that plain knitting, fifty inches around when laid double upon a flat surface and measured with a ruler, will measure about 4 1/2 inches (or 9 inches around).

Set up 60 stitches, 20 on each of three needles. Knit two and puri two for 4 1/2 inches. Knit 20, 40 1/2 inches. HEEL: Put 30 stitches on one needle, for the heel, leaving the other stitches on two needles. On the heel needle knit back and forth, knitting from the right side and purling on the wrong side, slipping off the first stitch on each row onto the other needle without knitting it. When there are 14 loops on each side, not counting the one on the needle, on the puri side, puri 21 stitches, together the next two 21 stitches. Turn the work around, leaving one remaining stitch on the needle. Slip off the stitch laid made; knit twelve stitches, and knit together the hand and ninth stitches from the left hand. Turn as before, leaving seven stitches on the needle. Slip the first stitch, puri twelve stitches, puri together the seventh and eighth stitches from the left hand and knit. Turn and knit in this manner, decreasing each time by one the number of stitches on the end of the needles, until there are fourteen stitches only.

Foot: Take up stitches through the loops on the left side of the heel. There should be fourteen. Knit across the two needles which were left for the instep. Take up fourteen stitches

WASHINGTON CITY SIDELIGHTS

Girl War Workers Are Not Afraid of the Dark

THAT prewar girl who was "afraid to go home in the dark" is very much among the missing. Girls, especially war workers in Washington, think nothing about going about alone late at night. There's so much to do that girls cannot be bothered with escorts. They found that the hubbub around the dark corner hasn't materialized.

Especially in this line of the group that is working under the direction of Miss Stella Oshourne at the District campaign headquarters of the Red Cross.

There are girls from several powers in the metropolitan area who have been doing clerical work for the Red Cross every night since early in April except the night after the parade when they all were pegged out with marching. They are preparing for the big drive that is to take place soon for the purpose of obtaining funds for the Red Cross.

Their services have been devoted gratis to the cause and should the hours they have put in be counted in the final reckoning up of the fund it would be found to be quite an item.

They have a complete organization. A girl was chosen by the chief clerk in each government department to be a member of the clerical committee. Under each of these girls is a corps of six assistants. These in turn have reserves.

As the headquarters would not hold all the workers some of them work at night at the library of congress under the direction of Mrs. Woods. Others are at the international commerce commission at night, and still others are burning the midnight oil for Uncle Sam in the post office.

On the other side of the heel, knit half the fourteen stitches which were left from the heel. Now arrange your stitches so that you have on each heel fourteen stitches left from the heel, fourteen from loops taken up and two taken from the instep needle, twenty-three in all. There will be 26 on the instep needle. Let us call the heel needle on which we first took up the loops the first heel needle and the other the second. Knit once all the way around and almost to the end of the first heel needle. There knit together the third and fourth stitches from the left hand end. Knit two, knit across instep needle. Knit two stitches on second heel needle, knit together third and four stitches by slipping and binding or by plain narrowing. In order to slip and bind take off one stitch as if to knit it but without doing so, knit the next one, with the left hand needle draw and unknit both over the knitted one. Where over the fabric seems to lap toward the left it looks better to slip and bind plain than to knit it in to every case. Knit all the way around plain and as far as the place where first narrowing was. Narrow the third and fourth together as before and the same on the other heel. Continue in this way, narrowing every other round until there are seventeen stitches on each heel needle, sixty all the way around. Knit plain until the foot measured from the back of the heel is 9 1/2 inches long.

Toe: Slip two stitches from each heel needle onto the instep needle. There are now fifteen stitches on each heel needle and thirty on the instep needle. On the instep needle, knit two, slip and bind or narrow the third and fourth together, knit 22, narrow third and fourth, from the left hand end, knit two. Next needle, knit two, slip and bind or narrow third and fourth. Knit eleven stitches. Third needle, knit eleven stitches, narrow third and fourth from end. Do this two. Knit one round. Narrow every other round until there are five stitches on each heel needle and ten on the instep. Knit around once plain and slip all the heel stitches onto one needle.

Kneecap too: Break off thread, leaving a foot. Thread on a needle alternately knit or purling needle. Bind near either hand end right hand end. Pass both adjacent stitches from opposite direction, the first from the right side and from the wrong side or inside of the sock toward the right side. Pull the sock and thread through but leaving the stitches on the knitting needle. Now knit the sock until it must pass through each stitch twice except the last one on each side. Put your hand into the instep of the sock. With the heel-needle when all the stitches have been taken in the stitch, slip the stitch off, and begin beginning at the beginning, tighten each stitch one by one until it

THRESHERMEN ARE GOING TO SCHOOL

FIRST SESSION OPENS AT KIMBERLY—GOES NEXT KIMBERLY AND BUHL

The first of three threshermen's schools to be held in Twin Falls county under the auspices of the county grain threshing committee, organized under the direction of the national food administration, and of the county farm bureau, is in session this afternoon at Kimberly. Subsequent sessions will be held at Kimberly on Thursday and at Buhl on Friday. The session each day begins at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A demonstrator sent here from New York by the food administration, is conducting the school.

As a result of the instruction in the most efficient and economical methods of threshing given at these schools, it is anticipated that a saving of at least one per cent of the wheat crop of this county will be effected this year. The saving will amount to 14,500 bushels of wheat, worth $30,000, or an amount sufficient to make 9,000 sacks of flour, which is more than is required to supply the demands of the consumers of this county for one year.

SUGAR ADMINISTRATOR GIVEN ENTIRE CONTROL

Sugar Corporation to Be Formed by Government to Be Similar to Wheat Organization

WASHINGTON, June 26.—O. A. Zabriskie has been named federal sugar administrator with entire control over the problem of sugar distribution.

Because of the shortage of raw materials of economy are necessary, it was stated at the food administration. As a result, organization of sugar producing districts in the United States with a view to eliminating cross-handling of sugar and effecting a more saving in the cost now in effect is under way.

Will Buy and Sell Product

A sugar corporation, with sufficient capital, is being organized by the food administration to handle sugar the same as it now handles wheat. Details of the organization will be announced soon.

The government through its sugar corporation will buy sugar in Cuba, Java and other points and re-sell it in the United States at a fixed government price. It is not known whether the sugar corporation will buy the domestic crop.

Taft made the ruling at the hearing in the Detroit and Cleveland street car cases.

TURKEY FORGETS TO ANSWER

ALMOST A NEW SHOW

It happens biennially. Gentlemen gather at Boise from over the state, hold a confab on the situation and design a document along such lines as will, in their judgment, show the biggest results at the box office on the first Tuesday of the following November.

These two-ring circuses have been pretty stale affairs during the past few years, most of the delegates finding more excitement in viewing the street cars and talking in the picture shows. But this year there are some additional features to recommend it.

THE WAR TODAY

By J. W. T. MASON (United Press War Report)

Both platforms will probably begin with an end and with the war, frequent allusions thereto ensue. The literary heights to which the Democratic platform will ascend in treating of the war and the administration will be limited only by the abilities of the gentlemen in attendance to concoct verbal masterpieces.

Another feature to be introduced for the first time at the Idaho platform convention is the farmers' organization known as the Nonpartisan League. Some will recognize in it a sure-enough specimen of a rare animal, while others will pronounce it a nature-fake.

The Democrats will be speculating as to the characteristics of the critic, wondering whether the best strategy is to endeavor to tame it or kill it—two widely different objectives requiring widely different tactics. The prospects are that they will disagree as to the method of procedure.

Anyhow the Nonpartisan league has more in common with the Republicans. They are both "outs."

brunt of the Republican drive, as he is doubtless the most susceptible of the several Democratic state officials inasmuch as he is sidestepping another election, he probably isn't worrying much. His lead—which consists principally of a galaxy of petty political monogamies from which the illusion has faded, together with a couple of dozen or more unfulfilled promises which have not been forgotten (by the people) will have to be borne by those in his office with him who seek a reelection. This may not be justice—but it is politics.

Of the polite dispute between Messrs. Nugent and Hawley little should be said. This is a personal matter and one of long standing between Democrats. It is almost hallowed by age. The Republicans, on the other hand, are worried about Senator Bern's opposition to the suffrage amendment. They dislike to seemingly repudiate the Senator's stand, and they likewise dislike to lose the ladies' votes next November. The prospects are that there will be no good excuse for the ladies to vote against the G. O. P. in this state next November and Bern will probably have to square himself with the feminine portion of his constituency as best he can.

There are quite a few other matters that will be dusted off and hauled into the limelight to fill up the corners, speckles in the platform. Some of them will be enacted into law by the party that is successful, and some of them will be saved for two years hence. It is over this. The real interest centers about the matters aforementioned.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Von Hindenburg's plans for a new offensive in France may be deranged by the development of a major offensive by the Italians against the Austro-Hungarians.

If the present retirement of the Hapsburg armies becomes a disorderly rout, Von Hindenburg has already taken chances by not hurrying help to the Hapsburgs. The Austro-Hungarians are doubtless already blaming the Pivo disaster on Germany's reluctance to send troops into Italy.

A series of fast drives by General Foch, who will lead the offensive in the west, may make the adoption of forward tactics by the Italians impracticable. The Italian front is now under the supreme control of General Foch.

Fighting Under Two Flags

By J. W. PEGLER (United Press Staff Correspondent)

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first report to Gen. Pershing. He was taken immediately and given command of a battalion of the Eighteenth Infantry—the "Happy Hottels" regiment. Thus he stepped down from his British rank of lieutenant-colonel to that of major, but he soon regained his old grade, for he was the silver leaves of a lieutenant-colonel when a shell stopped him at last in Picardy.

"Rass" Was Fearless. Rasmussen was a big, handsome man; fearless and a sporting dare-devil in war and a plucky to fourishes any day where, any time. His American home was Portland, Ore., but he was Scandinavian by birth and his pronunciation of some words was just sufficient enough to prove it.

In the spring of 1916 he came up from Mexico, where he was fighting in the United States army, to join the Canadian American legion, then forming. He had been a major in Oregon's crazy force, but Rass was just the right-sized man to enlist as a "back" in the American legion and win his commission.

The legion had troubles galore. There were no uniforms and no pay. The men were so cold that they had to dig their gloves out to draw the pay through the cold weather and "go over the hill" when it looked as though the Ninety-seventh battalion was about to sail. One day Rass was a private, and a week later he wore his major's cover. He found himself outranking his former commanding officer.

Both fought under two flags, the Stars and Stripes twice, and the Union Jack of Griffith's native England. Shortly after we came into the war, Griffith got his transfer and topped the first train—for he had proceeded back to France in the meantime—practicable. The Italian front is now under the supreme control of General Foch. The Italians themselves have made no preparations for a major offensive of their own this summer. They have been waiting until General Foch gives the word for a concerted offensive by all the allied armies, in which the principal part will be played by the Americans.

Will Protect Channel Ports. To insure success to a great thrust against the Austro-Hungarians, General Foch might have to detach important units from his forces in France. If this were done, schemes of weakness in the Channel ports or Champagne might be followed by important consequences.

The Italian front is not the main source of the war. It is doubtful, therefore, whether General Foch would be warranted in weakening his defenses of Paris and the Channel ports by moving large bodies of troops into Italy for offensive purposes.

THIS DATE IN THE GREAT WAR

A YEAR AGO—The Canadian made progress southwest of Lens. TWO YEARS AGO—The Russians completed the conquest of Bukovina. The Italians made advances in the Poena region. German positions were heavily bombarded on the British and Belgian fronts. THREE YEARS AGO—The Russians assumed the offensive on the Danister river. A German submarine was sunk by an explosion near the island of Borkum.

"THE CLASSICS"

By CORA EVANS GANBORN

"Why, this war is a mere incident to this glorious country," declared Mr. Burgess, "and I am sure of the idea of any other hoping to beat it. The boldest speaker voiced an echo, laughing that went clear through the listening guest, a traveling salesman, so hearty and spontaneous was the applause."

ARTFUL DODGERS

"One thing sure, I'll never be killed by an automobile running away with me." "No, but one might run away against you."

HIS ANSWER

"Did you suggest to him that he had never asked me to sing?" "Yes." "And what did he say?" "He said that if he asked you to sing, it would be just his luck to have you do it."

MATTER OF DISPLAY

Soubrette—Maud is looking for an engagement where she can display her abilities. Constance—Yes, she can't expect to depend on her figure much longer.

REASON FOR IT

Duher—What did the bride's father give for a wedding present? Best Man—A check for $5,000. Duher—Why, that old bankrupt hasn't a dollar. Best Man—That's why he gave a check.

Advertisement for Jones' medicine, featuring a large illustration of a man and text describing the benefits of the medicine for various ailments.

JONES sometimes wakes up feeling cross and in consequence the family know it without his telling them in so many words.

Mrs. Jones attributes it to biliousness and if it doesn't wear off during the day she gives him a dose of liver medicine at night. The next morning he feels better and she gives him coffee for breakfast,—and the next morning,—and the next morning. And in a few days Jones has another spell.

Dear Mrs. Jones means all right, but she doesn't seem to realize that if she didn't give Jones his morning coffee she wouldn't have to give him the liver medicine and Jones would feel all right without both.

Housewives everywhere have found out that Instant Postum takes the place of breakfast coffee perfectly. And that's only one of the reasons why Instant Postum has wholly supplanted the use of coffee on thousands upon thousands of American breakfast tables.

OIL PROSPECT IS DECLARED GOOD

LOCAL ORGANIZERS OF DEVELOPMENT COMPANY DISCUSS RESULTS OF TRIP

The state of Wyoming is destined to be one of the greatest, if not the greatest oil producing region in the world, is a statement made by George D. Aiken, secretary of the Twin Falls Oil and Development company, upon his return Monday evening with C. D. Thomas and A. J. Harvey, general manager and vice president respectively of the company, after a twelve days tour, through the oil fields of that state.

The company owns claims in the State Creek and Kirby Creek fields, the former being one of the newest fields and the latter one in the vicinity of Thermopsis. Prospects for successful development of both claims are declared excellent by Mr. Aiken. Drilling was begun Monday on the property in the State Creek field, and similar operations will be inaugurated before July 20 on the company's holdings in the Kirby Creek field.

The development of the Thermopsis field is little short of miraculous, according to Mr. Aiken. When General Manager C. D. Thomas visited the field on May 2 there were only two tents to be seen. Today Mr. Aiken states, there are more than forty shacks, each occupied by someone who has filed and is developing an oil claim. A pipe line has been built from some of the producing wells in this district to the railroad, where a tank of 37,000 barrel capacity has been installed to receive the oil, while a second tank, dotted with smaller tanks of about 250 barrels capacity each.

FAILS TO CONVINC COURT OF INNOCENCE

Disregarding question raised by attorneys for the defendant as to the facts in fact for the statement that a each of seventeen stripes of eye witness had been discovered on the farm near Huhl occupied by D. Dazell, and the argument that the looser might have been located on the property of a neighbor, although it was uncovered within a few feet of Dazell's house, the court Judge P. D. Duvall, as the result of a preliminary examination Tuesday, held Dazell to answer in the district court to the charge of illegal possession of liquor, filed against him Monday when he was brought to Twin Falls in custody of Deputy Sheriff J. F. Baymiller of Huhl. Bond in the sum of $5000 was required. Attorneys for Dazell at the hearing were E. V. Lott and John Kohanek. Testimony was given by Deputy Sheriff Baymiller and Chief of Police Jones of Huhl, who witnessed the catch and made the arrest. Prosecuting Attorney Frank L. Stephan conducted the examination for the state.

THEATRE

CHARLES RAY IN "THE FAMILY SKELETON"

The humorous account of the struggle of a young millionaire against the Demon Ruin, and his care by a lovely chorus girl and a loyal old valet, makes up the basis of Charles Ray's latest Paramount picture, now showing at the Idaho theatre. Every other means having failed to effect a cure, pretty Poppy Drayton, the chorus girl sweetheart, consults the boy's old family physician and plots with him to startle the young millionaire into forgetfulness of his imaginary trouble. They hire an ex-prize fighter who is to pretend to abduct Poppy under the boy's very nose. The results were even better than the two conspirators hoped for and the amusing finale of the episode makes "The Family Skeleton" the best of any of Charles Ray's pictures so far—not even excepting "The Clockpiper," "The Hired Man" and "This Mother's Boy." Billy Elmer, the beloved detective of the screen, in this picture takes the part of an ex-prize fighter, while pretty Sylvia Bremer plays the leading feminine role.

REX BEACH'S "HEART OF THE SUNSET" HERE

The most absorbing and thrilling Rex Beach story ever screened, "Heart of the Sunset," in a melodramatic romance of the great American Southwest in the not far gone days when Uncle Sam, angered almost beyond patience, stepped into Vera Cruz, with a mighty fleet of dreadnoughts to back him up, took upging Mexico by the back of the neck and shook it until his teeth chattered. "Heart of the Sunset," called Rex Beach's most powerful story, is not a tale of warfare. Rather it is a fascinating romance of the hard-bitten, western, with that skill for which the author is famous, around the lives and love of two creatures widely separated by station and environment—Alaire Austin, beautifully wretched wife, in the midst of a wealthy and dissolute young ranch owner, and Dave Caw, Texas ranger and two-gun man. The picture has been produced with the skill and care always given to the Rex Beach productions. It is packed with thrilling action and incident. The drama, the courage and the spirit of America are in this picture.

OF THE BRITISH COAST GUARD

Then ten down, screwed a monocle, his eye and viewed me from top to toe. I could see that only good-looking kept him from laughing at the pathetic situation. I could see he wanted to laugh in the worst way. "Go ahead and laugh!" I said. "You can't offend me the way I feel this blessed day!" and he needed no second invitation. Incidentally it gave me a chance to laugh at him, for I was about as stout as he was. After he had laughed himself about sick he got up and slapped me on the back and invited me to tell him my story.

"Lieutenant," he said when I had concluded, "you can have anything you want. I think your experience outlives you to me."

"Well, consul," I replied, "I would like a Baltic slave, a halibut and some civilized clothes—about as many as a man ever needed them. I suppose, but before that I would like to get a cable off to America to my mother telling her that I am safe and on my way to England."

The consul gave me the necessary information and I had the satisfaction of knowing before I left the office that the cable, with its good tidings, was on its way to America.

Then he sent for one of the naval men who had been interned there since the beginning of the war and who was able to speak Dutch and told him to take good care of me.

After I had been bathed and shaved and had a haircut I bought some new clothes and had something to eat, and I felt like a new man.

As I walked through the streets of Rotterdam breathing the air of freedom again and realizing that there was no longer any danger of being captured and taken back to prison, it was a wonderful sensation. I don't believe there will ever be a country that will appear in my eyes still another credulous friend insisting: "It was all very amusing and gratifying to me and I must confess I felt quite cocky as I walked into the war department to report."

For the next five days I was kept very busy answering questions put to me by the military authorities regarding what I had observed on my visit to Holland and behind the lines. What I reported was taken down by a stenographer and made part of the official records, but I did not give them my story in narrative form. The information I was able to give was naturally of interest to various branches of the service, and experts in every line of government work took it in turn to question me. One morning I was asked questions of a military nature—German methods behind the front line trenches, tactics, morale of troops and similar matters. Then the aviation experts would take a whiff at me and disagree with me at just the points I was most confident about.

They would also take a whiff at the information I was able to give me about the food conditions in Germany, Luxembourg and Belgium and as I had lived pretty close to the ground for the best part of seventy-two days I was able to give them some fairly accurate reports as to actual agricultural conditions, many of the things I told them probably having more confidence in them than they had to me.

There were many things I had observed which I have not referred to in these pages because their value to us might be diminished if the Germans knew we were aware of them, but they were all reported to the authorities and it was very gratifying to me to hear that the experts considered some of them of the greatest value.

One of the most amusing incidents of my return occurred when I called at my bankers in London to get my personal effects.

The practice in the Royal Flying Corps when a pilot is reported missing is to have two of his comrades assigned to do nothing but the job of checking them over, destroy anything that it might not be to his interest to preserve, and send the whole business to his banker or his home, as the case may be, by a very letter he read through, but their contents are never afterwards discussed or revealed in any way. If the pilot is finally reported dead, his effects are forwarded to his next of kin, but while he is officially only "missing" or "is known to be a prisoner of war, they are kept either at the squadron headquarters or sent to his banker.

In my case as soon as it was learned that I had fallen from the sky, it was assumed that I had been killed and my claim, Paul Raney, and another officer detailed to check over my effects. The list they made and to which they affixed their signatures, so I have previously mentioned, is now in my possession and is one of the most treasured souvenirs of my adventure.

My trunk was sent to Cox & Co. in due course, and now that I was in London I thought I would go and claim it.

When I arrived at the bank I applied to the proper window for my mail and trunk.

"Who are you?" I was asked rather sharply.

"Well, I guess no one has any greater right to Pat O'Brien's effects than I have," I replied, "and I would be obliged to you if you would look them up for me."

"That may be all right, my friend," replied the clerk, "but according to our records Lieutenant O'Brien is a prisoner of war in Germany, and we can't very well turn over his effects to anyone else unless either you present proof that he is dead, or that he has his lawful representative, or else deliver to us a properly authenticated order from him to give them to you."

"He was very positive about it all, but quite polite and kind," I thought.

"Well," I said, "I can't very well present proofs to you that Pat O'Brien is dead, but I will do the best I can to prove to you that he is alive, and if you haven't quite forgotten his signature I guess I can write you out an order that will answer all your requirements and enable you to give me Pat O'Brien's belongings without running any risk of being charged with forgery."

I scribbled my signature on a scrap of paper and handed it to him.

He looked at me carefully through the latticed window, then jumped down from the high chair and came outside to meet me by the hand.

"Good heavens, lieutenant!" he exclaimed, as he pumped my hand up and down, "how did you ever get away?" and I had to sit right down and tell him and half a dozen other people the back of all my experiences.

I had been in England about five days when I received a "telegram" which, at first, occasioned me almost as much concern as the unexpected sight of a German airplane helmet had caused me in Belgium. It read as follows:

"Lieut. P. A. O'Brien, Royal Flying Corps, Regent's Palace, Hotel, London 1."

"The King is very glad to hear of your escape from Germany. If you are to be in London on Friday next, December 7th, His Majesty will receive you at Buckingham Palace at 10:30 a. m. Please acknowledge."

BLOWING BUBBLES

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

"Zounds!" shouted out Deane Waring, and leaped from the window and locked down and across to where a little wreath of soap and water before him, a clay pipe in his mouth. As Waring sat delving over a scientific problem of his work table, something had floated in through the open window, struck his face, exploded, sending a cloud of vapor into his nostrils and a stinging shower into his eyes, and startling him so that he did not realize that it was a soap bubble bludgen.

"The young scamp!" he shouted down, and then was reassured. He now discovered that the youthful bubble blower was innocent of intent. Again, a sudden comprehension of his own situation forced a smile he could not get away from.

"Actually getting cranky with my delving into invention? Why, that little child is doing exactly what I'm doing—blowing bubbles. Only he has the fun of it and I the work and no results. That blowing bubbles! That's what I've been wasting time over for months. Hello!"

At the echo of a waiting outbreak Waring leaned again from the window. The little led stood sobbing and in vain endeavoring over the broken pipe at his feet. Evidently Waring's nervousness had frightened him into dropping his precious bubble blower.

"Too bad! I'm a brute!" Waring condemned himself. "But I'll mend it," and he straightway put on the coat and hat and proceeded to the nearest hardware store. There he purchased half a dozen clay pipes and gained the fence surrounding the next door lot. A pipe was open, he passed through it, his chin was not in sight, but he heard his own boy cry a mass of profane words. Advancing, he discovered this to comprise one end of a sort of arbor. On a bench inside sat a young lady. In her lap was the youthful bubble blower.

"Don't cry, Ted," she was saying soothingly. "I'll get you a new pipe next time I go down town."

"The man broke my balloon and he made me drop the pipe!"

"Which was wicked and wrong," spoke Ted, and he was confronted by the twain in the arbor. "Forgive me, miss, for my intrusion, but as soon as I realized the damage I had done, I hastened to repair it. Here, little fellow, I've brought you half a dozen nice brand new pipes."

Ted fairly beamed at the prices all his own. The young lady smiled indulgently. She murmured something about her sister's child, his eccentric decision to send up the rainbow-tinted globe.

"You are a deersing little worker," commended Waring, as he stood at the spot where the basin of water was. He was glad to begin. It was a fair game scene and he felt sure of a big pay day. "There's a patent bubble blower I have in mind, Ted," spoke Waring. "May I bring it to him?"

"You have been too kind and thoughtful already," said Miss Blanche Tyndall.

The trifling event marked a change in the life of Deane Waring. For nearly a year he had squandered time and money striving to work out an idea which had promised great results. He had failed. He had blown many bubbles of hope, endeavor and promise, only to reach a block in his experiments.

Waring began to devote more attention to his inventions in a great iron and steel plant where he was employed, and almost completely ignoring his inventive speculations. Perhaps the fact that the delivery of the 100 pipes to Miss Tyndall, led to this result. His visits did not seem unacceptable to the charming girl, who was interested in him as much because he was a drommer as that he was on the whole a handsome and most estimable young man.

Waring dropped in upon these new friends of his one evening to find Ted propped up in a chair with a pipe of smoke in his throat. It was hard for the little fellow to be cooped in this house, and Blanche was amusing him by cutting out paper houses, animals, and the like.

"Make me one of these curlicues like you cut last winter, amine," said Ted, "and I'll get mother to let me try it on the kitchen stove pipe to-morrow."

Blanche amiably began the task and Waring minutely watched her nimble fingers transform a circle of paper into a long spiral. Then as Ted received it and swayed it up and down Waring uttered a sharp, quick exclamation.

"He hit it—I mean, you have!" he cried. "What's the thing? Please excuse me, Miss Tyndall, but your curlicue here has given me a hint. I will utilize it in my workshop while the inspiration is on," and he left the house glow with the theme.

He told Miss Tyndall next day of the valuable suggestion her casual paper curlicue had been.

"Spiral pipe," he explained, "colossal seams—it means a fortune to me."

Blanche did not very clearly understand until the model of the invention Waring had worked on so long was shown to her. Waring had, indeed, "hit it."

"The man made me so far as money is concerned," he told her later. "I'll be the happiest in the world if you'll let me tell you how much I love you."

And her beautiful eyes bade him be happy.

RECORD MADE IN BUILDING THE WARD

This view shows the U. S. destroyer Ward, under construction at the Mare Island yard near California, 24 hours after the keel was laid. As much structural work as possible was prepared in advance; bulkheads, sections of the deck, deckhouses and bridge structure were riveted up ready for assembling in place on the ways. The Ward was launched 174 days from the date of laying of her keel. This is a new world's shipbuilding record.

BAKER WANTS NO CHANGE

His chief objection to changing the age through the amendment to the army bill is that it is not based on a thoroughly worked-out plan.

Need of Change Recognized The senate recognizes the necessity for changing ages, although a few members are clinging to the idea that as ten millions of more have been registered...

If the draft age question can be disposed of today, the $12,000,000,000 army bill will pass.

The change in plans for extending the draft age will not endanger deferred classes unless some grave contingency arises making it necessary to call for many more than is now anticipated and call this year.

Extensor of the draft next session and a probable registration of 21-year-olds in December or January will insure a new class one year older...

Recommendations to Follow Baker told the committee that this plan will be drawn by the department if it is decided that a change is which would be presented to congress early late in the present session or early next session.

Announcement of Baker's wishes is to be made to the senate when the discussion of the army bill is resumed today.

Baker expressed the view of 'President Wilson, it was learned, although he did not state that it was Wilson's idea.

of the woods. This incident does not indicate the general nature of the fighting, which was most desperate. It lasted until midnight, when the Americans aided by German prisoners had dug in to maintain their gains and an American unit in the open as the night had already worn away far north as the point of the woods, completely straightening the line.

Fights to Finish The Germans, with the exception of one captain, who knew before we did that we had him surrounded, fought until they were driven from their strongholds by hand grenades or bayonets. They reserved their rifle and machine gun fire until the Americans closed in.

German losses in dead and wounded were heavy, with our losses not disproportionately the success obtained.
