HUNS IN NEW TRAP FACE BIG DEFEAT

HUN FORCES BACKED INTO NEW POCKET

Initiative in Hands of Foch's Forces --- Hindenburg Must Play Allies' Game---Pocket North of Vesle Dangerous

RIVER AISNE FLOODED; CROSSING DIFFICULT

Simultaneous Advance North from Soissons and Rheims Places Enemy in Same Position as Before

By J. W. T. MASON (United Press War Expert)
NEW YORK, August 5.—Another deadly pocket is being formed by General Foch, around the German positions on the Vesle. The Germans are being forced northward from Soissons toward the Chemin des Dames, and from Rheims toward Berry-au-Bac, while the Germans on the Vesle, between Soissons and Rheims, are gradually being left in the hollow.

Flanks Forge Ahead
General Foch's present purpose is to move his east and west flanks northward faster than his center. By this maneuver, a condition similar to that which existed when the Germans were on the Marne will again threaten Von Hindenburg. The longer Von Hindenburg clings to the Vesle, the more time will be given to General Foch to move his flanks northward, thus deepening the new Vesle salient.

Foch Forces Run Hand
Von Hindenburg can overcome this strategy only by withdrawing from the Vesle or by throwing an immense number of reserves into defensive positions north of Soissons and Rheims. If he thus uses up his reserves for defensive fighting, Von Hindenburg will be playing General Foch's game. Every German reserve unit thrown into the present fighting weakens the force with which the Kaiser must defend German territory against America's forthcoming offensive.

Disaster Impending
The possible danger to the Germans in the present trap is greater than is expected at the Marne. If General Foch can move his flanks northward for a sufficient distance before Von Hindenburg starts to retreat from the Vesle, the allies will begin to close in behind the Aisne river, five to ten miles north of the Vesle, and in general parallel to it. When the Germans then commence to retire, a disastrous flight across the Aisne under fire of the allies' artillery might well be the best they can expect. The Aisne is now the high flood. That means serious difficulties in getting heavy artillery across. A day's delay may thus turn out to be fatal to Von Hindenburg.

TURNOUT TONIGHT MAY CELEBRATE ALLIED VICTORY

The Twin Falls band will turn out at 8 o'clock this evening in an escort to H. E. Cutting, one of its members who is leaving to report for duty as a member of a naval band at Bremerton navy yard, Washington. The occasion is likely one to be turned into a general celebration in Twin Falls of the greatest victory scored by the Americans and their allies since the famous victory of the Marne by the French forces under General Joffre in 1914.

Huge Cargo Carrier Added to War Fleet

President and Mrs. Wilson Attend Launching at Hog Island

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 5.—The freighter Quiltscock, the first vessel to be launched to Hog Island, left the way at 12:35 o'clock this afternoon.

President and Mrs. Wilson witnessed the launching. Mrs. Wilson christened the ship, while 100,000 persons cheered.

A deafening cheer went up as the huge hull started to move six minutes after the presidential party had arrived from Washington. A single blast from a nearby whistle, a shout from a voice on the ship—was the signal that started the 7,500-ton cargo carrier down the ways on the planks into the water.

A second later the water-covered hull crashed against the ship's bow and a foaming spray of champagne leaped into the air. "I christen thee 'Quiltscock,'" said Mrs. Wilson, as the hull glided away.

NEW MAN POWER BILL APPEARS

Fixes Draft Limits from 18 to 45---September Fifth Registration Day --- Congress Promises Speedy Action

WASHINGTON, August 5.—September 5 next will be registration day for more than 13,000,000 Americans between 18 and 45, if Congress passes the urgent piece of Provoost Marshall General Crowder. Leaders are getting plans under way for speedy passage of the new man power bill. Crowder's warning that registration should not be delayed beyond September 15, if the calls for October, November and December are to be met out of class one called house and senate leaders, to consider re-opening both houses next Monday to begin work on the bill.

Take Up Bill at Once
Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the senate military committee announced that his committee would begin work on the bill at once. He added that in all probability it could be reported out to the senate after a few days deliberation.

The Frankische Tagepost declares the wild rumors that the Kaiser and Von Hindenburg have been assassinated and that Von Hindenburg was killed in a duel with the crown prince as betraying the most dangerous nervousness.

Extreme Flank of Soissons-Rheims Sector Pushed North Rapidly---Center Held Back to Form New Pocket

HUNS ENDEAVOR TO HOLD VESLE LINE

By LOWELL MELLETT (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, August 5, 4:30 p. m.—German resistance is stiffening all along the Vesle. French patrols which crossed at several points bearing machine guns and large supplies of grenades reported there are indications that the enemy still has large forces on the river.

The Germans are employing artillery freely to harass the allied troops. Muizon (5 miles west of Rheims) was hotly disputed, but the Germans were pushed back and the French threw small forces across the river there.

Violent fighting occurred at Vauterfa and station, near Rheims, but the Germans were unable to re-capture them. North of the Vesle, La Grange farm has been mined and blown up by the Germans. French artillery heavily shelled a large concentration of Boche troops in the region of St. Thierry, three miles northwest of Rheims.

ESTABLISH BRIDGEHEADS ACROSS VESLE

By JOHN B. GANDY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, August 5.—10:00 a. m.—Allied troops have re-established two strong bridgeheads across the Vesle at Bazoches, three miles west of Fismes, and at Jochncy, six miles east of Fismes.

The German losses in the Fismes region have been as severe as at any point in the retreat, it is reported. Reported in the material captured by the allies are 1,500,000 shells of 77 millimeter calibre.

Since July 15, Von Hindenburg has engaged 87 divisions (1,944,000 men), including 47 divisions (564,000 men) in the Marne pocket.

The Germans, it was indicated by official and staff dispatches today, may make stronger resistance along the Vesle line than had been expected. Although the allies have established bridgeheads at Fismes, Bazoches and Jochncy, and are moving inward from the flanks north of that line, the French war office reported that elsewhere strong resistance has been encountered above the river. At the same time, dispatches from staff correspondents stated Boche artillery has open the most violent fire in the last two days.

ALLIES DRIVE TOWARD VAILLY

The most important geographical objective now immediately before the allies is the town of Vailly, on the north bank of the Aisne, nine miles east and north of Soissons. It is about two miles east of the junction of the Vesle and Aisne, and four miles north of the Vesle. It is the center of a highway system and is on the railway which follows the Aisne from Soissons to Neufchatel.

TWO-MILE GAIN ON PICARDY FRONT

The German retirement north of Montdidier, on the Picardy front, reported in last night's Paris communique, was made on a front of more than eleven miles, between Castel and Mesnil-St. Georges. It reached a maximum depth of about two miles. It included the greater part of the American sector, as Mesnil-St. Georges is a mile and a half west of Montdidier and six miles south of Cantigny.

AMBASSADOR FRANCIS LEAVES FOR ARCHANGEL

Representatives of American Government and Allied Nations Safe

WASHINGTON, August 5.—Fresh news from Ambassador Francis dated July 30, said he had left Archangel for Moscow on the twenty-eighth. Accompanying him were the chiefs of the British, Italian, Japanese, Chinese, Serbian and Brazilian missions. Nothing was said as to his plans after reaching Murman but it is likely he will remain there under American and allied protection.

Allied Planes Bomb Marines at Bruges

THE HAGUE, August 5.—Bombs from allied planes recently fell in the midst of a group of 400 German marines at Bruges, killing many of them. It has been learned here.

German artillery has opened up on the American lines and roads more vigorously than for the past two days and there is machine gun activity from about the region of Fismes—now in the hands of the Americans—indicating the enemy may possibly plan temporary resistance there. American patrols are across the Vesle. After the Americans took Fismes, other United States troops moved northward in the Marne/En-Dole region.

Ammunition Factory Partially Destroyed

British Raids on Oeblienz Most Destructive Ever Made

GENEVA, August 5.—British air raids on Stuttgart and Coblenz last Thursday were the most destructive ever made, a Basle dispatch said today. Large portions of the railway stations were destroyed, traffic interrupted. In Coblenz an ammunition factory was partially destroyed.

DIVISION TICKET IS SENSATION OF CLOSING HOURS

West End Files Nominations of Candidates for All Legislative Offices; Subject to Republican Primaries

INTRA-PARTY CONTESTS LIMITED IN NUMBER

G. O. P. Schedules Full List of Potential Nominations--Non-partisan League Sticks to Democratic Field

The session of the closing hour Saturday for the filing of nominations subject to the primary election, is the office of the county clerk, is the filing of legislative candidates on the Republican ticket by persons of the west end of the county who are committed to the policy of county division.

Divisionists' Obstacles

The division ticket is compared by the following: For senator, E. R. Sherman, former county commissioner from the third district, nominated by E. O. Eastman, For representative Ernest Malmgren, nominated by R. W. Allred; John A. Brown, nominated by J. C. Oates; J. Hugh Sherry, attorney, nominated by T. R. Green. The acceptances of Sherry and Brown only have been filed.

The closing hour found but few contests in either ticket apart from legislative positions. The only intra-party contests with these exceptions are in the case of Democratic candidates for commissioner from the third district, where W. F. Brewer of Hansen, and Hans Peter Larsen of Rock Creek, are the opposing candidates; and in the case of Republican candidates for coroner, where P. A. Dicks of Bliss and P. J. Grossman of Twin Falls are the opposing candidates.

League Claims Allegiance

The Non-Partisan league persisted in its policy of nominating its candidates on the Democratic ticket, thus, aside from legislative offices, bringing about a contest on the Democratic ticket for the office of sheriff, the two nominations filed being those of Joe R. Fitzsimmons of Kimberly, and George McNew of Twin Falls, who was endorsed by the league but who declares that he accepts the nomination only at the hands of the Democratic party.

Four Without Opposition

In the case of four candidates there will be no opposition either at the primaries or at the general election. These candidates are—the following Republicans and the present incumbents of the offices to which they seek re-election: Probate Judge O. P. Duvall, Prosecuting Attorney P. L. Stephens, Superintendent of Public Instruction Britton Wolf; and James A. Dyche, Democratic candidate for re-election as county surveyor.

Hackman Declines and Accepts

The possibility of opposition in the general election to the candidacy of Prosecuting Attorney Stephens existed.

CHIEF GIMPER TELLS OF LIFE OF THE FLYER

Lieutenant Eddie Rickenbacker, an American Ace and Former Auto Speed King, Tells How Title Is Won

(Copyright 1918 by the United Press) WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE. "So you want some gimper (gimp)?" said Lieutenant Eddie Rickenbacker, all-American ace and former speed king in the auto racing world, today.

"We'll call a bunch of the gimpers in and there will soon be plenty of gimper talk. But you'll have to translate it, or the people back home will never understand this aviation dialect we have developed over here."

Rickenbacker, who downed his five Germans in less than two months and became the second all-American trail-blazer in a talk, straggling along with a fine sense of humor and a winning smile. In his scowling title call him "head gimper," just because he is naturally a leader and the life of the unit, the ace is known as the "gimper squadron" and was the first group of American trained air fighters to take the field—or the air rather—from the German airman.

Gimpers Always Stick

"A gimper is a bird, who would stick by you through anything," explained Rickenbacker. "If you were up in the air and ran into a dozen gimpers and were getting the worst of it perhaps, and the fellow with you stick with you and gawks to the limit until the fliers were back into the Hummer, you'd know he was a gimper."

"If he didn't have motor trouble, and his gun didn't jam or he didn't accept any one of a dozen good excuses for coming off home and leaving you to do the same if you could get away, he'd be a gimper all right. A gimper is a scout who does everything just a little bit better than he has to."

Must Prove Himself

"We call this the gimper squadron because every man has to prove himself a gimper by his actions. When a chap arrives he's an egg. All good eggs soon become veterans and then they're promoted to goosher standing. Then when they have time to prove themselves gimpers and the gimpers just as long as they can make good. A man who isn't a gimper can't stay with the squadron—it's back to the woods for him."

Flying in Groups

"This pursuit and fighting part of aviation requires a type of a victor who will stick, especially the way we fly in groups. To do your best work you must have a mutual feeling of confidence in the gimper flying beside you that is unequalled anywhere else. If you have a gimper with you, you know he won't make a mistake in judgment or lose his nerve at the critical time. A gimper couldn't do that—If he lost his nerve just once, he'd never be a gimper again. We all know that and no gimper ever loses his nerve."

Knowing When to Fight

"I don't mean a gimper will always pick him a crowd of Huns, no matter their number. A good gimper knows when to fight and when not to fight. If he hasn't a chance he draws off five or ten until he gets his altitude and then drops on the Holes. A gimper doesn't need to be foolhardy. He watches his chances, but never gives up when another gimper is being strafed."

"When you're flying around up over Germany and being followed by a string of black puffins from the German arches and your throat exploding around you and then see some German planes off to one side of you, it is the easiest thing in the world to pretend you don't see them and keep straight ahead until you pass them. Usually the Germans are willing to do that, too, unless you attack them: But a gimper never lets himself fall to see them. He maneuvers around until he can gimper on them and let them have it, until they run home. Then he's satisfied he's a gimper."

NEW MAN POWER BILL

Baker to Appear

Deed said that Secretary Baker probably would be the first witness before the house committee, when it takes up the bill.

General Marsh, chief of staff, and Provost Marshal General Crowder will follow Baker.

While opposition will develop against the proposal as to lowering age 18 to 17, there is a general feeling that there will be far less fight than was generally believed.

Estimates 'Effective'

Under the enlarged age limit, Provost Marshal General Crowder estimated that 2,398,845 more men, available for fighting service will be obtained. These figures were contained in a report drawn up by Crowder and submitted to the senate today by Chamberlain.

These "effective" are divided as follows: Between 32 and 45, 602,216; men between 18 and 20, 1,777,629. Total registrations between 32 and 45, Crowder estimated about number 10, 028,973 and between 18 and 20, 3,171,671.

 EX-GUNNER AND CHIEF PETTY-OFFICER—U. S. NAVY
 MEMBER OF THE FOREIGN LEGION OF FRANCE
 CAPTAIN JOHN TURRET, FRENCH BATTLESHIP CASSARD
 WINNER OF THE CROIX DE GUERRE

When the officer told me to go back to the beach where our naval guns were, and that I was detested, I said: "Maybe you do not think I was glad. But there was rough work still ahead of me, because when I got behind the third line I saw a wide-open field that was light gray from the shell smoke hanging low, and I could see the flashes where the big ones were doing their work, and I had to go through that field."
 I fell time and again, sometimes when I thought a shell was near, and sometimes when I had no reason for it—only I was thirsty again, and was slithering all the time, and was weak I could not have choked a goldfish. It do not remember exactly anything about going through that field, and you might say the next thing I knew was when I was overtaken by a dispatch runner, and got to a tin tub at the side of a motorcycle and was taken to the guns.

I fell ready for a Rip Van Winkle nap then, but the officer to command would not let me. He said they were short of gunners—the terrible shelling had killed off dozens of them—and as he knew I could point a gun he had ordered them over the telephone to get me to the beach as fast as possible. He spotted the two warehouses I have spoken of for me and said it was up to us to put them out of commission. The gun was a 14-inch naval, and that looked good to me, so I lugged up a lot. The warehouses were about 10 or 15 miles away. I should judge, and about 30 or 40 yards apart. I felt very weak, as I have said, and shivered every once in a while, so I did not think I could do much gunning without whistling at. But they had the old 14-inch and made ready, and we got the range and all was set. The officer told me to let her ride. So I said to myself, "This is one for you, Murray, old boy. Let's go from here."

So I sent that one along and also handed off the warehouse went up in fire and smoke, I felt good then, and I held the wires on the other warehouse and let her go. But she was too high and I made a clean miss. Then I was mad, because I had sent that one for myself. So I put the cross wires on the warehouse again and, I said to myself, "This is not for anybody, just for luck; because I sure have had plenty of it today."
 Then the juice came through the wire and into the charge, and away she went, and up went the second warehouse. That made two direct hits of three, and I guess it hurt the Arabs some, but not the men in the gunnery. The officer asked me before I could duck and slumped me on the back and I keeled over. I was just all in.

"They brought me to with rum, and they said I was singing when I got down. When they tried to sting, to show me what song it was, I figured it was "Sweet Adeline" they meant. But I do not believe I came to, singing, because I never sang "Sweet Adeline" before, that I know of, or any other song when anybody was in range. But I heard it lots of times, so maybe I did sing it that.

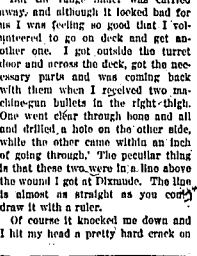

Then I went to sleep feeling lousy, the morning the detachment from the Cassard was withdrawn, and I saw some of the men who had been in the two trenches, but I was not near enough to speak to them. So I do not know how they got out. You never saw a happier bunch in your life than we were when we piled into the lifeboats and started for the Je Suis Blessé.

 An usual, where we got to Brest there was fresh work every night on the Cassard to get her out and supplies of all kinds were sent for our next visit to the Turks. The French gar- ries were always keen for the trip back to Brest—they were sure of landing up on tobacco and other things they needed.
 My twelfth trip to the Dardanelles was different from the others. The Cassard was doing patrol work at the time in the neighborhood of Capo Helles. Those of us who had served on the Pontulus before were thinking out stars for the snap we were having—just cruising around waiting for something to happen.
 We had never been there so long before something unexpected did happen, for we ran into two enemy cruisers—which I afterwards heard were the Sierst and Kaiserliche Marine—on the westward and one on the port. They had been looking for us for some time, but we had managed to sneak up so near us I do not know. They opened up on us at not much more than a thousand yards and gave us a hot time from the start, though with the aid of our gunners we should have done for us thoroughly.

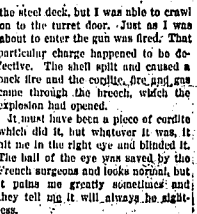

So I sent That One Along, and the Landed Direct, up in fire and smoke, I felt good then, and I held the wires on the other warehouse and let her go. But she was too high and I made a clean miss. Then I was mad, because I had sent that one for myself. So I put the cross wires on the warehouse again and, I said to myself, "This is not for anybody, just for luck; because I sure have had plenty of it today."
 Then the juice came through the wire and into the charge, and away she went, and up went the second warehouse. That made two direct hits of three, and I guess it hurt the Arabs some, but not the men in the gunnery. The officer asked me before I could duck and slumped me on the back and I keeled over. I was just all in.

We came right back at them and were getting in some pretty good shots. I was in the 14-inch gun turret, starboard bow—my old hangout—and we were hitting them hard. It took four shots every five minutes and scoring heavily.
 I do not know how long we had been fighting when part of our range finder was carried away. It was so hot, though, and we were so hard at it that such a little thing like that did not bother us. It is hot in any gun turret, but I have always noticed that it is hotter there in the Dardanelles than in any other place. The sweat would simply cke up on us, until our faces were just covered with a film of powdery stuff.
 But the range finder was carried away, and although it looked bad for us I was feeling so good that I volunteered to go on deck and get another one. I got outside the turret door and across the deck, got the necessary parts and was coming back with them when I received two machine-gun bullets in the right thigh. One went clear through bone and all across the hole on the other side, while the other came within an inch of going through. The peculiar thing is that these two were in a line above the wound I got at Dixmaude. The legs to almost as straight as you could draw it with a ruler.
 Of course it knocked me down and I hit my head a pretty hard crack on the meet deck, but I was able to crawl on to the turret door. Just as I was about to enter the gun was fired. That particular charge happened to be defective. The shell split and caused a back fire and the cooling fire, and came through the breach, which the explosion had opened.

I Was Able to Crawl on to the Turret Door.
 It must have been a piece of cordite which did it, but whatever it was, it hit me in the right eye and blinded it. The ball of the eye was saved by the French surgeons and looks normal, but it pains me greatly sometimes, and they tell me it will always be slight-ly sore.
 I was unconscious immediately from the blow and lost the quantity of gas which I must have swallowed. This gas did me a great deal of damage and gives me dizzy spells often to this day. I do not know what happened during the rest of the engagement, as I did not regain consciousness until three days later at sea. But I heard in the hospital that the French super-destroyer Jeanne d'Arc and the light cruiser Normandy were in it as well as ourselves, though not at the time I was wounded, and that we had all been pretty well battered. The Cassard lost 80 men in the engagement and had 45 wounded. Some of our turrets were twisted into all manner of shapes and part of her bow was carried away. One of our lieutenants was killed in the engagement. (To be continued)

Another Fine Eighty
 at $150.00 an acre, and we believe it to be as good a buy as the last one. Located one mile from gravel road, now building in the Castelford country. This eighty was aced down several years ago, and is in a high state of cultivation. The land slopes to the NORTH AND EAST and is easily irrigated direct from the lateral with no division boxes. Has three room plastered house, hot buildings, cistern, etc. We believe at $150.00 an acre, but this eighty will pay splendid returns on the investment. Very good terms can be arranged. Owner has practically paid for this place in three years, but must retire on account of health.

HAS SUGGESTION TO SAVE GRAIN

Government Threshing Division Representative Confer with Harvesters.

The use by farmers of tight banded wagons for the conveyance of grain in headless piles to thrashing will result in an average saving of one bushel of wheat to each acre, according to Delano Bechtel, representative of the food administration grain threshing division, who has been here for several days conferring in company with County Agent Donald McLean and T. H. Irwin, chairman of the county threshing committee, with owners of threshing machines in this county.

"Conservation and economy are the watchwords of the food administration, and it is the business of the threshing division to lend such assistance as it can to the securing of these factors in the harvesting of grain," Mr. Bechtel said Saturday. "I find here a disposition among the threshers to cooperate to the best of their ability with the food administration in this regard, and I am sure that farmers and threshers of this district will work together to the end that hundreds of bushels of grain that would otherwise be wasted, will be saved for the feeding of this nation and her allies."

Soft wheat in irrigated districts is particularly susceptible to waste through shattering before it is threshed, Mr. Bechtel advised, and for this reason, he recommends the use of tight banded wagons.

Mr. Bechtel, who is connected with the Indiana office of the threshing division, came to Idaho from the wheat

The American guns were necessarily less active.

American casualties during the past fortnight have been amazingly slight considering the depth of our advance. I saw an advanced dressing station empty, the doctors idle and ambulances lined up with drivers waiting. Everything bears out the statement of officers and men that "there has not been a battle for two days--just a march."

Boch Machine Gun Nests

Over the ground of the recent bitter fighting a striking note was that all the German dead lay in valleys, woods and towns, while the American dead were on the ridges. This is due to the Boche system of establishing machine gun nests. When in villages or woods, the enemy machine guns are carefully placed in hollows 300 yards from the top of a rise or plateau. The advancing Americans have no hint of resistance, until they reach the crest of the elevation. The boches are then able to open a surprise fire and the doughboys have to rush the nests.

Leave Trail of Vandals

The entire country from the Marne to the Vesle is a vast scene of wreckage. Scarcely a mirror, even, remains unbroken, the Boche having smashed them with flamethrowers. Every town and village is wrecked. Not a house is left. All about may be seen typical German signs, from those directing traffic to ones remaining streets. One of the latter bears the name "Kaiserstrasse." There are numerous narrow gauge railways built by the Boches, with small steel freight cars standing on the tracks and mow rails for further construction.
