TAKE THOUSANDS OF HUN PRISONERS

Moreuil, Antoine, Aubercourt and Harbonnieres Fall Into the Hands of Allies

LONDON, August 8 (6 p. m.)—British troops have reached Harbonnieres (an advance of about five miles and a half) it was learned this afternoon.

Several thousand prisoners are reported to have been taken. Harbonnieres is seven miles east of Villers-Brettenneux and two miles north and slightly west of the important railway and highway center of Rosieres.

Rosieres is the junction point of the great east and west railway lines which divide the two crown prince armies, and the first north and south railway connecting the Albert and Montdidier regions.

The British thus have made their greatest penetration at the most vital point in the whole new battle front.

ENEMY HURLED BACK UPON THE AVRE

PARIS, August 8 (4:05 p. m.)—The Franco-British advance on the wing this afternoonming this afternoon. The Germans were completely surprised, some divisions being caught while being relieved.

The enemy has been hurled back upon the Avre. Important units of British troops are assuming a considerable role in the operation. The first apparent result of the new offensive is the wiping out of the menace to Amiens.

BRITISH TAKE IMPORTANT VILLAGES

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, August 8.—As this is cabled, all first objectives are believed to have been taken. The Franco-British troops are still blasting their way forward with machine guns and cannons.

A bombardment of but three minutes preceded the British attack. The French attack, by agreement, was made a few minutes later, the artillery smothering the territory south of the Amiens-Roye road beforehand.

The attack was begun in fine weather, but rain is now threatening.

Hohenzollerns Keep No Contracts When Convenient to Break

San Agreements Work One Way Only, Declares Senator Borah in Address

CHICAGO, August 8.—"The Hohenzollerns never kept a contract which they found it expedient to break," declared Senator Borah, speaking here before the annual Dental association. "When the Germans have turned their faces to the fatherland and do to talk peace we will enlist men and keep on fighting until the Hohenzollerns and shreds have been deposited as a real peace," Borah said. "What kind of a peace league would it be with a Hohenzollern in it?"

TOWNS IN PATH OF NEW DRIVE

Albert and Montdidier are about 25 miles apart in an air line. The battle front between the two cities is considerably more, owing to the westward salient toward Amiens.

Moreuil, the most important city between Amiens and Montdidier, is situated on the right bank of the Avre, ten miles southeast of Amiens.

Copry is on the south bank of the Somme canal, six miles directly south of Albert. Marcelcave is five miles southwest of Clerly. Demuin is on the south bank of the Luce, four miles north and slightly east of Moreuil. Aubercourt is on the north bank of the Luce, two miles east of Demuin. The Amiens-Roye highway crosses the original battle front on the Luce river, about a mile and a half west of Demuin.

Harbonnieres is between the Avre and the Somme, four miles south of Albert.

The Franco-British offensive in Picardy which started at dawn today on a front of 25 miles between Albert and Montdidier, already has resulted in a maximum advance of at least five miles, according to battle front dispatches received this afternoon.

Several villages have been captured, including Antoine.

WITHDRAWAL TO AISNE IMMINENT

By WEBB MILLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, August 8 (10:0 p. m.)—By increasing the pressure at vital points, Franco-American troops are gradually loosening the German grip on the Vesle river line.

Military authorities are of the opinion it is only a matter of a few days until the enemy will be forced to abandon the Vesle and retire to the Aisne unless they throw in overwhelming numbers of reserves. This contingency is regarded as impossible as their present positions are unfavorable.

Grave of Lieutenant Roosevelt Is Found

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, August 8.—American airmen have found the grave of Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, who was brought down in an aerial battle back of the German lines before the counter offensive started. The grave was marked with a wooden cross. It was located at the edge of Chamany wood (about four miles east of Fere-en-Tardenois).

The grave was found by Lieutenant Westworth, of the aerial squadron of which young Roosevelt was a member. The bodies airmen had marked the grave with a cross on which was printed in English: "Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, buried by Germans July 14, 1918."

Constant search for the grave had been in progress for several days. It will be marked carefully and will be appropriately honored by American airmen.

Members of the Hansen bridge commission composed of the commissioners of Twin Falls county and of the Hilldale highway district, met here Wednesday evening and approved the bonds of the Hilldale Bridge company of Kansas City, to whom the contract for construction of the rimrock-timber suspension bridge across Snake river canyon north of Hansen was let this spring. A. B. Rice and C. C. Dudley of the Hilldale district and all of the commissioners of this county were in attendance at this meeting.

It is reported that some of the material for the bridge is already on the ground and that some preliminary work has been done.

BRITISH WAR OFFICE REPORTS PROGRESS

LONDON, August 8.—British and French troops under command of Field Marshal Haig attacked on a wide front east and southeast of Amiens at dawn this morning, the British war office reported.

PARIS STATEMENT SAYS "ATTACK DEVELOPING"

PARIS, August 8.—(Noon)—French and British troops opened a drive in Picardy southeast of Amiens, at five o'clock this morning, the French war office announced.

"The attack is developing under favorable conditions."

ALLIES ADVANCE ON VESLE FRONT

Franco-Americans Push North From Rheims---Whole Front Active

The allies began a double drive on the Fiondry and Aisne-Vesle fronts today.

While French and American troops renewed their attacks on a big scale against the crown prince armies, driving toward the heights between the Vesle and Aisne, British and French suddenly smashed against the tip of the huge Picardy salient southeast of Amiens.

Progress was reported in both drives. Staff dispatches from the Aisne-Vesle front announced that American and French troops had crossed the Soissons-Ehelsms highway north of Ehelsms and were pushing in toward the dominating heights which form the German defense line south of the Aisne. Counter attacks were broken up by allied artillery fire.

Bush Bridge Materials
The attack apparently centers on the front between the Aisne and Fiondry, where progress was reported in last night's Paris communique, but is spreading, as the dispatches said, that more bridging material was being rushed up and new crossings established.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, August 8, 7:15 a. m.—American and French troops, crossing the Soissons-Rheims highway are driving on the heights between the Vesle and the Aisne.

Desperate counter attacks broke down under fierce allied artillery fire. The allies are holding all the positions they have gained and are steadily pushing forward. Heavy fighting is going on along a wide front north of Vesle. Bridging material is being rushed up and new crossings are being established. The weather has cleared, which is regarded as favorable to the allies.

GOVERNMENT MAY TAKE OVER PACKING PLANTS

BRIG. GEN. C. G. TREAT

A recent military shake-up has sent Brig. Gen. Charles G. Treat to the Western Department, replacing General Murray.

Trade Commission Recommends Drastic Action--Proposes to Break Up Beef Trust

HOW THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION WOULD "SMASH THE PACKERS' TRUST"

- 1—Have the government acquire, through the railroad administration, all rolling stock used for the transportation of meat animals, making such ownership a government monopoly.
- 2—Have the government acquire through the railroad administration the principal and necessary stock yards of the country to be treated as freight depots to be operated under such conditions as will insure open, competitive markets, with uniform scale of charges for all services performed and the acquisition or establishment of such additional yards from time to time as the future developments of livestock production in the United States may require. This is to include customary adjuncts of stock yards.
- 3—Have the government acquire through the railroad administration all privately owned refrigerator cars and all necessary equipment for their proper operation and that such ownership be declared a government monopoly.
- 4—Have the federal government acquire such of the branch houses' cold storage plants and warehouses as are necessary to provide facilities for the competitive marketing and storage of food products in the principal centers of distribution and consumption. The same to be operated by the government as public markets and storage plants, under such conditions that will afford an outlet for the products of the branch houses on equal terms. Supplementing the marketing and storage facilities thus acquired the federal government will establish, through the railroad administration at the terminals of all principal points of distribution and consumption, central wholesale markets and storage plants with facilities open to all upon payment of just and fair charges.

By ROBERT J. BENDIR (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, August 8.—Moving to the power of the so-called "packers' trust" the federal trade commission has recommended to President Wilson that the railroad administration be given a monopoly in the transportation and distribution of meat.

Recommends Legislation

The report of the commission, made public by President Wilson today, urges that the far-reaching packer influence on American business can be annulled by transferring from the packers to the railroad administration, the following:

All stock yards in the country; all so-called branch houses, storage houses and warehouses of the packers, used in the distribution of meats; all stock cars and refrigerator cars now used by the packers and all icing plants located along the railroads throughout the country.

Smash Trust

This would leave the packers the lone business of slaughtering and skinning. Through control of the transportation, storage and distributing facilities the railroad administration would break the alleged monopolies the packers' "trust" grants its members now in all phases of the business. Incidentally the control of refrigerator cars constitutes a side swipe at the Cattle Smear.

The Federal Trade Commission in its report to the president made at his written request last year, leaves it up to congress to pass the necessary legislation which will enable the railroad administration to take over the packers' facilities.

Calls It "Simple" Remedy

The commission charges in its report that the five great packing concerns of the country—Swift, Armour, Morris, Cudahy and Wilson—"have attained such a dominant position that they control at will the market in which they sell their products and hold the fortunes of their competitors in their hands."

To break this power the commission holds that it regarded as a simple and non-partisan remedy. It feels that since cattle cars are a necessary part of the equipment of a railroad, such cars should be under federal ownership and operation and available to all alike.

Stock Yard Outlet Depots

It holds that a stock yard is nothing more than a depot for cattle, the same as passenger or freight depot for people and therefore should be a part of the railroad facilities subject to the use of all alike.

Regarding the ownership by the five great packing interests of refrigerator cars "furnish one of the most powerful means for control, manipulation and restraint," the commission recommends that these cars be taken over by the railroad administration. Branch houses, old storage houses and warehouses are now provided by freight except meat and perishables—therefore the packers' warehouses should logically come under railroad operation, the commission says.

Reorganize Industry

Having acquired these facilities, the railroad administration could then establish at the terminals of all principal points of distribution and consumption; central wholesale markets and storage plants with facilities open to all.

general remedies. "Strike so deeply at the root of the tree of monopoly that they constitute an adequate and simple solution" of "the problem."

In answer to the president's inquiry the commission says its investigation of that packers shows, unquestionably, that there exists "monopolies, cartels, combinations, conspiracies, and restraint of trade out of harmony with the law and public interest."

While its findings disclose an "infamous fabric" of such combinations and conspiracies, according to the commission, the legislative and administrative remedies it believes can be easily arrived at through the railroad administration.

Book World Control

In a vigorous attack upon the "beef trust" the commission says not only is the business of gathering, preparing and selling meat products in their control, but an almost countless number of by products, industries are similarly dominated; and not content with reaching out for mastery as to commodities which constitute meat and its by-products, they have invaded allied industries and even unrelated ones.

"The combination," the commission's report continued, "has not stopped at the most minute integration but has gone on into a state of conglomeration so that numerous heterogeneous enterprises are brought under their control."

Grows By Monopoly

"We have found that it is not so much the means of production and preparation or the sheer momentum of great wealth, but the advantage which is obtained through a monopolistic control of the market places and means of transportation and distribution."

"If these five great concerns owned no packing plants and killed no cattle and still retained control of the instruments of transportation, the marketing and of storage, their position would not be less strong than it is."

"The producer of livestock is at the mercy of the five companies because they control the market and the marketing facilities and to some extent the rolling stock which transports the produce to the markets."

"The competitors of those five concerns are at their mercy because of the control of the marketing places, storage facilities, and refrigerator cars for distribution."

"The consumer of meat products is at the mercy of these five because both producer and competitor are helpless to bring relief."

"Out of the mass of information in our hands, one fact stands out with all possible emphasis. The small dominant group of American meat packers is now maintaining in their activities, with respect to American livestock, a Blaine which now attaches to them, for their practices abroad as well as at home inevitably will attach to our country if the practices continue."

Report of Nation as to what the commission says will increase and not diminish.

"This urgently argues for a solution which will increase and not diminish."

"This urgently argues for a solution which will increase and not diminish."

QUANTITIES OF MATERIAL LOST BY FLEEING HUNS

Hundreds of Machine Guns Fall Into Hands of Allies--Also Get Two Complete German Batteries

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, August 8.—Now that the battle of the Marne pocket has been definitely won, there is time to tell the part played by the army of General Bethelot, who visited America on a route from Siberia to take command.

Only two weeks before the battle opened Bethelot's army held the line from Rheims to Metz.

Unburied Dead Over Ground A visit to the battlefield today reveals to some extent the nature of the engagement which finally culminated in success.

One indication is the unburied enemy dead and the great quantity of captured materials, such as 300,000 shells in Bois de Arroy, two complete German batteries and hundreds of machine guns.

Berthelot had fewer. Nevertheless, on July 10, the second day of the German offensive, he received the order to counter attack.

He did so effectively, and the result they reported. The spirit with which Bethelot's army fought contributed greatly to slowing up the German advance across the Marne, farther to the west, which was their principal purpose.

Some points, like Hill 60, had orders to hold at any cost. They did. Others, instructed to hold off the Germans as long as possible, even exceeded their instructions.

Berthelot was unaware of the French counter attack plan until it was under way. When General Mangin's counter offensive started Berthelot was ordered to attack also, sending his reserves against the Ardre river, a vital German position.

General Mangin is commander of the allied forces which opened the counter offensive between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry. The third army corps consists of two regular army divisions, two national army divisions and two national guard divisions, totaling 165,000 men.

Their chief leaders, the leading camps and their commanders follow: Third division, regulars, Camp Greene, Major General Dickman.

Fifth division, regulars, assembled from army posts, Major General McMahon, seventy-eighth division, national army (thirteenth to go to France), consisting of troops from Delaware and part of New York, Camp Dix, Major General McLean.

Eighth division, national army, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia troops, Camp Leg, Major General Cronkite.

Twenty-seventh division, national guard, New York troops, Camp Walden, Major General O'Brien.

Thirtieth division, national guard, General George Bell, Jr.

STIFF WAR TAX PROPOSED ON PROFITTEERING

Secretary McAdoo Says 80 Per Cent Tax Would Cure Evil--Wires Kitchen, Chairman of House Committee

SAYS OTHER TAXES COULD BE LET ALONE

Treasury Official Says 'One-Fifth of War Gains Enough for Anybody--Real Patriots Work for $396 a Year

CHICAGO, August 8.—Secretary McAdoo favors a flat tax of 80 per cent on war profits to cure profiteering. His position was expressed in a telegram to Chairman Kitchen of the house ways and means committee, made public here today.

Let Excess Profit Tax Stand

"The adoption of an 80 per cent war profit tax would render unnecessary and, I believe, undesirable, any increase in the existing excess profits tax rate," said McAdoo's telegram.

"It is my strong conviction that the taxation of war profits is the only way to reach real war profiteering and that if it is at the same time a thoroughly justifiable measure upon economic grounds as well as a certain and indispensable producer of a large part of the required revenue."

One-Fifth Plenty

American producers should be content with one-fifth of their war profits, McAdoo said, especially since men safeguarding their liberty are working

BEST IN THE LONG RUN

Who Began Trench Warfare?

THE trench, which always encircled the Roman castra, or camp, was brought to France by Julius Caesar and used by him on the very battlefield where to-day the Allies and the Huns have 25,000 miles of trenches.

With rings of trenches, gradually drawn smaller, probably the first modern trench warfare, the Turks in 1677 took Candia.

Vauban, builder of Verdun, in 1673 employed the first parallel trenches, the system of the present war.

Defeat, not foresight, turned the Germans to trench warfare. But Goodrich never had to dig in.

Since twenty-two years ago Goodrich manufactured the first American pneumatic automobile tire, Goodrich has driven ahead to the big, graceful, masterful—

GOODRICH SERVICE VALUE TIRES

But whether Goodrich was revolutionizing tire manufacture by bringing forth the first American clincher tire—Or originating the one practical non-skid, the cross-bar, safety-tread, or tough black tread rubber—Goodrich built tires to one end—SERVICE VALUE—what they are worth to the motorist on his car and on the road in COMFORT of an easy riding car—ECONOMY in gasoline saved,—and LONG MILEAGE.

Hun and American Morale

CHAINED DEFEAT by Albert N. Depew

EX-GUNNER AND CHIEF PETTY OFFICER U.S. NAVY MEMBER OF THE FOREIGN LEGION OF FRANCE CAPTAIN GUN TURRET, FRENCH BATTLESHIP CASSARD WINNER OF THE CROIX DE GUERRE

As the Pacific ruled, because we could not do anything unless we were all together, and there was no mutiny. They said we were heroes, the rest of us, but I still think we could have made a dash for it and recovered.

We were not allowed to open the portholes while we were in the water, under penalty of death, and there in the dark, in that stinking air, it is no wonder many of us went crazy. Among us was a fellow named Harrington, about six feet tall and weighing 250 pounds. He seemed to be all right mentally, but some of us thought afterwards he was crazy.

The next day we were sitting in the fiddley getting warm when the door opened and there was Badewitz. He yelled "Heraus!" and began firing at us with a revolver, so we beat it back onto the cook. Pretty soon the door opened again. But it was only a German sentry. He threw down a note.

I was written in English like "Pick out eight men for cooks."

None of us was much better than a Best. Just when a man had begun to lose his mind. He became just like the rest of us, because none of us was much better than a best. We could not take turns sleeping and standing watch against the crazy man, because when we talked about it, we agreed that none of us could tell whether or not the sentries would go crazy white on watch and have the rest of us at their mercy.

The days passed like that, with nothing to do but suffer, and starve, and freeze. It got colder and colder, and all we could wrap ourselves in was the wool. We began to speculate on where we were. It was not till later than an old skipper in a launch told us that we had rounded the northern coast of Iceland.

Five of the men were buried at sea that day. More men were going mad every minute, and it was a terrible place; pitch dark, gray, loose mud underfoot, and lusty air to breathe.

might happen, when the door opened suddenly and Badewitz grabbed me, and asked me in English if I was a quartermaster. I said yes, and he pulled me by the collar of my coat and did not know what was going to happen, but he took an oilskin from the wall and told me to put it on.

There were two sailors there also, and they put life belts on, and then I was more puzzled than ever, and scared, too, because I thought maybe they were going to throw me overboard, though what that had to do with being a quartermaster I could not see.

But they drilled me up onto the bridge and told me to take the wheel. What their idea was I do not know. Possibly they wanted a noncombatant at the wheel in case they were overwhelmed by a hostile vessel. We were going full speed at the time, but as soon as I took the wheel she cut down to half speed, and stayed that way for half an hour. Then up to full speed again.

Frosty soon there was a tramp steamer on the starboard bow, and almost before I saw it, there were two more sentries on each side of me, peering over their revolvers and warning me to keep on the course. They had civilian clothes on. Then we went through the Skager Rack and Cattegat, which are narrow straits of water between the Baltic and we were only a mile from shore with vessels all about us. It would have been an easy thing for me to signal what our ship was and who we were about, but they had six sentries on my deck all the time to keep me from it. I never wanted to do anything worse to my life than jump overboard or signal. But I would have been about twenty hours if more than started to do, either, so I just stayed with the wheel.

We were nearing one of the Danish islands in the Baltic when we sighted a tug. The tug began to smoke and blow but stern. The sailors got very excited and ran around in crazy style, and Badewitz began shouting more orders than they could get away with. The sentries left me and ran with the rest of the Fleeties to the boat deck and started to lower one of the lifeboats. But Badewitz was right on their heels and kicked the whole bunch around in great shape, roaring like a bull all the time.

I left the wheel and ran to the end of the bridge, to jump overboard. But the minute I let go of the wheel the vessel fell out of the course, and they noticed it, and Badewitz sent five of them up on the bridge and three others to the side with their revolvers to shoot me if I should reach the water. I think if I had had any rope to lash the wheel with I could have got away and they would not have known it.

When the five sailors reached the bridge one of them jumped for the roof and gave our stern five long blasts in answer to the tug. The tug was about to launch a torpedo, and we whistled "Out in time. One of our men was looking from the fiddley, and he saw the Hun making for the lifeboat, so he got two or three others and they all yelled together, "Don't let them get away!" thinking that they would get the boat over and leave the ship, and trying to yell loud enough to be heard by the tug. Badewitz took this man and two or three others, whether they were the ones who yelled or not, and beat them up and put them in irons. I thought there was going to be a mutiny aboard, but it did not come off, and I am not sure what the Huns were so excited about. (To be continued)

OUT OF ORDINARY PEOPLE! COMMANDS FIGHTING MARINES

Brig. Gen. James G. Harbord, temporarily in command of the marines that are teaching the Germans in France something about American fighting, is well known as a real soldier, a fighter who entered the army as a private and fought his way up through the ranks to the high position he now holds.

General Harbord was placed in command of the marines by General Pershing until a general officer of marines is appointed to supreme command of the soldiers of the sea to succeed Brig. Gen. Charles A. Doyen, formerly physically disqualified for service at the front.

General Harbord, an commander of the marines at the "front of the front," is right in his element, officers on duty say. Born in Illinois, he was graduated from the Kansas State Agricultural college and then gave up his career as farmer to shoulder a gun in the infantry and rose rapidly, later in the cavalry.

"SHOCK TROOPS" AT HOME

"Shock troops" are busy in American wheat fields as well as on the western front. When the German war lords command an advance at any cost, troops are sent forward to buy yards of ground with thousands of lives, but the American agricultural "shock troops" advance in a different manner. They are town men who have volunteered to help the farmers cut and shock their wheat, and thus are doing their part in making the battle line firm.

In harvest season in some sections of the country almost every able-bodied man who is not in the military service should be on the farm. The additional food that one helper may save is an important item to ourselves or our allies. The occasion has not yet arisen in Twin Falls county for business and professional men, except where they volunteered to help the farmers cut and shock their wheat, and thus are doing their part in making the battle line firm.

The response that is to be looked for in a demand for more help in Twin Falls harvest fields is of the sort displayed in a North Dakota county where all the towns are organized for this purpose. When labor is needed all business places close early and the town men go in automobiles to every quarter of the county. When they come to fields cut but not shocked, they get out and shock, and then proceed to other fields needing them. They do not talk about pay or who is doing the work. "If the farmer wants to donate the money which he would spend for labor to the Red Cross that is his business," says a letter from South Dakota, "and I think that is where most of the money will go."

During the last week Germans have brought into Poland pictures, furniture and books known to belong to the king's collections. CITIZENS AGAIN BID FAREWELL TO REGISTRANTS

Eighty Men March to Depot to Enter Service, to Strains of "Keep the Home Fires Burning"

Led by the Twin Falls band playing "Keep the Home Fires Burning," 80 registrants, 75 of whom were from Twin Falls county, marched Wednesday evening from the point of assembly at the intersection of Main avenue and Shoshone street to the railway station where they entrained to enter the military service at Camp Fremont, California. Behind the band, marched members of the Grand Army of the Republic bearing their post flag. The men leaving to don the khaki came in double file behind the veterans. The crowd of relatives and friends of the men leaving on this occasion was one of the largest ever assembled here on a similar occasion.

Women Lead Singing
 At the station, to the accompaniment of hand music, eight women lead singing of patriotic airs. The singing was an innovation, and either because the purpose was not understood or because the crowd was in no mood to sing, the chorus was not great in volume.

The G. A. R. post flag was used again on this occasion as a receptacle for the collection of money contributed to a "sandwich" fund for the use of the men enroute. The money collected was turned over uncounted to the men, but it is estimated that in excess of $200 was contributed.

The women who led the singing which is to be a feature of far-well demonstrations for men entering the service, in the future, were Miss Helene Allman, Miss L. C. Hanger, Mrs. Harry, Mrs. E. A. Landon, Mrs. C. A. and Mrs. Mrs. E. T. Taylor, Miss Grace Bryant and Miss Minnie Sanderson. Immediately prior to their departure a chicken dinner was served to the men in the basement of the Presbyterian church by the women of the Twin Falls Red Cross branch.

Warns Against Boose
 Following the 4 o'clock roll call at the effect of the night march the men leaving were assembled in the district court rooms to listen to a talk given by them by J. W. Hardin of Kimberly, who has been since July 4, a Y. M. C. A. secretary at Camp Lewis, and who is at present on leave of absence to oversee the harvesting of his crops. Mr. Hardin spoke of the use of the men in the service of the Y. M. C. A. and warned those leaving against indulging in alcoholic drinks.

Early Sailing Indicated
 Statement of Mr. Hardin, based on information in a letter from his son, Herbert Hardin, who is a member of the quartermaster corps at Camp Fremont, is that the men who left here Wednesday evening are likely to spend a few weeks in training in this country. The training is likely to begin at an embarkation point on the Atlantic coast, to be continued upon their arrival in France, Mr. Hardin said.

Farmers in Majority
 Out of the 73 registrants from Twin Falls county who left Wednesday for Camp Fremont there were 67 farmers, two laborers, and one each of the following: printer, traction engineer, surveyor, teamster. The unusual proportion of farmers is accounted for as a result of the recent rilling of the district.

protest marshal general requiring that deferred induction should not be on account of agricultural claims; owner leaving town and must sell the party which left here Wednesday evening was under command of the route of David Berger Graves of Twin Falls. Theatres

SPLENDID SETTINGS BY "OLD WIVES FOR NEW"
 Gorgeous sets, embracing scenes in a New York city, mountain views, and beautiful interiors of a fashionable home are features of "Old Wives for New," the superb photoplay, which is to be the attraction at Idaho Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Cecil B. De Mille directed this picture with great skill and careful attention to detail. The novel from which John Marpherson constructed the scenario was written by David Graham Phillips. The story is one which searches into the souls of men and women and shows the inner workings of mind and conscience. A man's efforts to remain true to his wife who has lost her pride in personal appearance; his later attempt to defend from the tongue of scandal a really noble woman who loves him; the attitude of his children toward father and mother when divorce is sought—these vital problems offer a splendid lot of material to which Mr. De Mille has done full justice.

FIND GERMANS IN CHAINS AT THEIR PLACES

Huns Are Terrified at Approach of American Troops; Says Chapman McDermott, Writing from Front

CRACK ENEMY DIVISIONS SHATTERED BY YANKEES

Letters Taken from Prisoners Tell of Hardships Endured, and Express Dismay and Fear at Meeting U. S.

"Our men have found the Germans chained to machine guns for fear they would leave their posts when under attack," says Chapman McDermott of Twin Falls, a member of the Ninth United States infantry regiment at the front in France, writing under date of June 29 to his brother-in-law, R. M. Snodgrass of this city.

The men of the Ninth United States infantry troops upon the arrival of the Kaiser's men in the characteristic style of an American fighting man in McDermott's letter which is in part as follows:

"Just a note to let you and Dad know I am O. K. I have been very lucky so far and only hope my luck will hold out. Have had some very close calls, but luck was with me."

Bound on Hens
"We have now landed the Kaiser's troops some hard beatings up at this front and we have been up against his crack divisions. Our boys just knocked the living hell out of the crown prince's crack division.

When the squaddies are afraid of the American soldiers because we have taken prisoners with letters written to their homes telling of the hardships they are enduring and how they can never tell what an American will do, and that they are too few for the most. The most of them are disgraced and would stop fighting tomorrow if they could. Why, our men have even found the Germans chained to their machine guns for fear they would leave their posts when under attack."

Gas In Breasting
"But the dirty crows sure send over gas and that is sure hell if anything is. Even if you do not get gassed and get your mask on in plenty of time and keep it out of your eyes and lungs, the mask gas will burn your body and nearly kill you one way or another."

"Our division ought to go behind the lines for a rest and a chance to clean up for one gas and dirty up here. We chased the Germans out of this small town we are now in. So I guess we will add German lice to our collection. They are some miserable things to have to put up with."

Speaking of his brother, "Bossy," McDermott says his company, which was wounded, inflicted by a poison shell, Private McDermott says in this letter, "I sure miss dear old Boss, and get very homesick now and then he died. I sure was a shame he had to go." The letter concludes with a postscript stating that he had received a letter from his second brother, Thornton McDermott, and that his brother is well. "I am glad."

What Impressed Him.
At the age of four Thomas was taken to interview the messenger. When the party stopped before the "lions" McDermott and his company, which was the animal was called a lion. For a few moments Thomas was bewildered at the abundance of fowing hair the lion possessed, and then suddenly exclaimed: "Some mustache, better man!"

How Floating Dust Causes Fire.
Spontaneous combustion is caused, so the chemists tell us, by floating particles of coal dust or other inflammable material jostling and clashing against one another until the friction they set up raises the temperature of the ignition point. If this explanation is correct, it would appear as if such fires could be prevented by perfect ventilation. Such, however, is not the case, for ventilation may actually help to bring about fire by spontaneous combustion. Air facilitates oxidation, really fanning the warm dust into a blaze. Keep air damp and moist to avoid fire.—Popular Science Monthly.

Powerful Arabian Perfume.
The Arabs around Aden love powerful perfumes, and are highly skilled in their preparation. Their favorite is called "oodi". It is made from a wood called "ood" and is so powerful that when burned in incense pots the smoke will impregnate the garments of those present to such an extent that the perfume will remain upon them for days, even after they have been laundered.

GIVE SUGGESTIONS ON HARVESTING GRAIN CROPS

County Committee Makes Appeal to Loyal Farmers and Threshermen

The food administration grain threshing division, through the county's threshing committee, is asking every loyal farmer and thrasherman of Twin Falls county to observe the following suggestions to the end that the immense grain crop of this county this year may be harvested most efficiently and economically, preventing needless waste of food required for the proper prosecution of the war:

- 1.—Not to thresh until grain is hardened, dry and ripe. It will be stored at the elevator and will mold in storage, causing big loss to the farmer and the county.
- 2.—To have a tight wagon box, with a coat nailed around the outside so that wheat which shatters from the bundles may be saved. This is especially important.
- 3.—To use a large canvas under the machine, and if possible hire a man especially for keeping the bundles, etc., cleaned up, for which the farmer should pay. This man will save enough to more than pay his wages, and the government will get the wheat.
- 4.—Check up the work of the machine by the government official blank test as follows:
Have spot deposit straw on wagon sheet during the test weighing device trips five times, counting 50 bushels. If over one pint is winnowed from the straw on the canvas, bad work is indicated and the machine should be adjusted or repaired.

Italian Woman Sends Basket of Flowers to American Camp to Express Her Gratitude

F. M. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Michigan, who has been for a few days on duty here from Chicago, in possession of a letter from his girl with the American ambulance service in Italy, from which the following is quoted:

"Some Italian lady wrote this letter to thank you for the flowers I sent you. I want you to read it. It is so good and full of love. It is a basket of flowers came with it and the basket was about three by five feet, so you can imagine it was some bunch of flowers."

"Illustrous Signor Colonel Persons. There are tears of emotion which have no words, and therefore, I am sending you flowers that they may speak in my stead, to the generous American soldier."

"Until the world has sentiment for a lease, it cannot be called Italy; and now the sons of the United States have come impelled only by one cause—that of the heart, to defend humanity, impartial and true to peace, to try the tears of many mothers in anguish and sorrow. Be they blessed with all my motherly soul and for all the mothers of Europe and will they respond for the all the sterility of existence. And to you, Sir, the devout gratitude of an Italian woman and may you be pleased to accept kindly my poor flowers."

Spread Gospel of Hope.
Men differ widely in their active capacity for hope. De Quincy said of Goldsmith: "He had a constitutional aversion of heart, an elastic hilarity, and a sense of humor, to try the things." Other men are like Horatio Jones, who sadly confessed: "I am born without much of the quality of hopefulness." The Goldsmiths must be the Burns-Joneses along—New York Herald.

LONDON, August 8 (S. P. M.)—The situation on the west front is now considered more favorable for an allied victory than at any time since the beginning of the war. The period of anxiety has definitely passed. The allies soon will have a great superiority in men and material to further assist in retaining the initiative.
