

GERMANS STAND WITH WILSON AS TO TERMS

Philip Schiedeman, a Member of Cabinet, Declares Socialist Government Fully Equal to Task Ahead of It

BY FRANK J. TAYLOR.
REHLIN, Dec. 26.—(Delayed)—We are all heartily in accord with President Wilson's declaration that the German cabinet, member of the German cabinet, in an interview with the United Press today.

This statement summed up his analysis of the German attitude toward the peace settlement. Schiedeman said that a socialist government would be established, a responsible constitutional government to deal with the allies and the United States. All disorders in Germany will disappear shortly, he promised. The Spartacist movement, he asserted, is rapidly dying.

"Now that the date for a constitutional assembly has been fixed and the political situation is stabilized, we must concentrate all our efforts upon working points and establishing our working positions," Schiedeman said.

All stand with Wilson
We are all heartily in accord with President Wilson. I was one of the first to place myself unreservedly on record in support of his program. I hope to see fulfilled in reality the ideas of justice and fair relations between all peoples."

Schiedeman said he was not worried about the disorders among the radicals and the Spartacist attacks.
"It is safe," he declared, "to regard the assaults against public order, which we intend to strenuously suppress, as demonstrations of disorderly radicals who are in an insignificant minority. The great majority with whom the workers' councils councils justified their important resolutions in naming our party the majority party. The socialists have approved our authority to govern until the constituent assembly establishes a permanent government. For the privileged class press has ceased talking. Thus, the constitutional government, when established, will be socialist. It will be stable because the majority socialists oppose dangerous economic, social and political experiments."

Situation Clearing
"There is no doubt that the political situation is clearing. Important voices demand a fusion of the minority and majority socialists which will be possible only after the Spartacists are put out of the minority. But the revolution does not depend upon it. Until the constituent assembly acts, the revolution rests on the broad shoulders of the majority socialist party."

WANTS CONFERENCE TO CONSIDER THE IRISH

Senator Phelan of California Would Like Action Permitting Self-Determination

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Senator Phelan of California introduced a resolution requesting the American delegation to the peace conference to do all in their power to obtain self-determination of government for Ireland.

A similar resolution has been introduced in the house and a number of hearings have been held on the question of Irish home rule.

Phelan bases Ireland's claim on President Wilson's statement regarding the self-determination of government for small nations.

NEED NOT CASH STAMPS

Director, Franklin Corcoran, Errors in Regards to War Savings Certificates

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—To clear away a mistaken idea reported from California that War Savings Certificates must be cashed before January 1, Lewis B. Frankling, director of the war loan organization, Thursday issued this statement:

"War Savings Stamps and Thrift Stamps are as good as gold, whether your certificate or thrift card is completely filled or not. The idea that unfilled certificates must be cashed before January 1 is absolutely baseless. The government will continue to see Thrift Stamps as you can fill out these cards and exchange them for the 1919 issue of War Savings Stamps."

The defendants demurred against the indictments and the lower court certified the case to the supreme court.

Roosevelt's Views Just Suit Townsend

Colonel's Editorial on Subject of Return of Troops is Read Into Senate Record

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Colonel Roosevelt's editorial protesting against the use of American troops, other than the regular army, in France for police duty, was placed in the record today by Senator Townsend, Michigan.

"I submit this article because it reflects my own sentiments and I believe those of the American people, said Townsend.

"I have no objection to the article going into the record," said Senator Thomas, of Colorado, "but I am not prepared to say I agree with the sentiments of the American people. Roosevelt was in a hurry to get the boys over to France and now he is in a hurry to get them back home before the treaty of peace is signed."

Fight Like Beasts for Rice Portions

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—"All our forces is so busy with relief work, we have done all we can to relieve the situation. Hundreds of workers are employed by us on the streets, in buildings and in other ways. Two buildings are being put up on the college grounds."

"The workers work for their rice on Friday. Saturday, they are just like savage wild beasts. They all know that they will get their portion of rice—but they strike and push and struggle, and hold out their poor, bloody fingers, as though they would grab and seize their rice like some kind of prey. Thousands and thousands of miles, donkeys, horses and camels have starved to death—been used to the very last atom of their strength. They have then been turned out to fall and die."

German Memorial in China Removed

PEKING—Although wisely refraining from taking any part in the celebration Chinese citizens watched with enthusiastic interest the recent raising by French and Italian soldiers of the three-arched memorial gateway constructed by order of the German government as a permanent record of the murder of Baron von Kottler, German minister to China during the Boxer period. The erection of this monument was the end of that campaign wherein the Kaiser made his famous exhortation to his soldiers to behave as huns, to pillage, burn and slay without mercy, in order to secure vengeance for the murder of the German minister by a mob just before the siege of the Legation in Peking began.

Where Cops May Look for Bill

Here's where the cops will go for Bill—if the allies decide the outlook is not going to get off with a mere abridgment. It is the estate prepared for just such an emergency. It is a great deal less pretentious than the imperial palace at Potsdam and Berlin, but a welcome refuge in this great storm. It is known as Middleman Castle, at Batsweg, Holland, near the town of Utrecht, and is the spot where Mr. Hohenzollern died.

Don't Take a Chance Is Official Advice

Effect of Prohibition Ruling on Discharged Men in Uniform Is a Hard Nut to Crack

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Army lawyers are trying to decide whether intoxicating liquor may be sold to men in uniform who wear stripes indicating that they have been discharged from the army.

The office of Provost Marshal General Crowder has received a large number of queries from draft boards and others on this subject. The question that legal lights in the office of the judge advocate general of the army are trying to settle, is whether congress had in mind protection of the uniform or the protection of the man in passing the act prohibiting the sale of liquor to soldiers and sailors.

In the meanwhile official advice to liquor dealers is: "Don't take a chance."

WAR RESULTS JUSTIFY COST

President Declares Time Will Come When Sacrifices Will be Found Worth While

DOVER, England, Dec. 27.—The war was worth while, because it gave the world security against unjust aggression and established an understanding between great nations for maintenance of just and right, President Wilson said upon his arrival here, enroute for London.

Responding to an address by the mayor shortly after setting foot on English soil, the president also said he was grateful to watch his mind be won by others who proposed to do their best in the great settlement.

"We have gone through many serious times together, and therefore, can regard each other in a new light, as comrades and associates, because nothing brings men together like common understanding and purpose," said Wilson.

Sacrifices Worth While
"I think that despite all the terrible sufferings and sacrifices of the war, we will some day, in looking backward, realize that they were worth while, not only because of the security they gave the world against unjust aggression, but also because of the understanding established between great nations which ought to act together in permanent maintenance of justice and right."

"It is with an emotion of peculiar gratification that I find myself here, afforded an opportunity of watching my mind with the minds of those proposing to do their best in the great settlement of the struggle."

Sergeant Theodore E. Bowen of Twin Falls Says Americans Made Most Noise While French Did Most Kissing

"France is still wet and that of course, added to the gaiety of the celebration," Says Sergeant Theodore E. Bowen, a member of the Twin Falls unit with the One-Hundred Forty-sixth artillery regiment in a letter under date of December 4, to his uncle, O. L. Bowen of Twin Falls. Speaking further in reference to the celebration of his signing of the armistice in Compiègne, France, where he is attending an officers school as a candidate for an officer's commission, Sergeant Bowen says, "Everyone got out onto the street 'Vived La France,' 'Vived Le Americain,' kissed each other, took another drink and started all over. Old French soldiers on crutches threw their crutches in the air and danced around on one leg. Americans were making the most noise, but the French were doing the best kissing."

Twin Falls is Lucky The Fifty-sixth artillery brigade of which the Twin Falls unit is a part, which is one of the units of the forest has been made a part of the Third army designated for the occupation of German territory. Sergeant Bowen gives the following account in which this brigade took part: "Chauteau Thierry, Sainte Michel, northwest of Verdun, in the Meuse and in the Argonne forest. 'We lost the best of our men in the last place,' he says. 'Twice French have been pretty lucky,' 'in having its men mostly in regimental headquarters, so there were ones that I know of killed all along, although one or two were wounded.'"

ENGLAND WILL SIT TIGHT FOR WORLD LEAGUE

Great Britain Not Only Willing But Determined That Definite Organization Plan Shall Come Out of Conference

By LOWELL MELLETT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Great Britain not only is willing, but is determined that the peace congress shall organize a permanent league of nations before its adjournment.

Lord Robert Cecil, foremost British authority on this subject, made this clear in an interview with the United Press today.

Cecil said he had never entertained any notion of the peace delegates simply giving the league of nations their blessing and leaving the details to be worked out in the future. On the contrary he wants no opening left for possible failure of the league to materialize.

Investigation in government circles reveals that Cecil is speaking the British government's mind as well as his own.

"How now we know the horror of war," he said, "a year from now the old glamour may return. We must guard against this possibility."

Offer Basic Principles

He gave the following positions as the necessary foundations of the league:

First.—A permanent secretariat. Second.—A fixed number of members. Third.—Periodical meetings. These meetings must include working members, men really entitled to speak for the peoples of their countries, such as premiers and foreign ministers, or their equivalents. Meetings must be held at least once a year.

Fourth.—It is essential that no war shall be possible until it has been discussed either at the periodical meeting or at a meeting especially called for the purpose.

"Those things are the vital things," Cecil said. "Of course, as I recently outlined, the league must have no contentious as well as contentious features. It must have broader purposes than those preventing war. It must have administrative powers as well as the authority to settle disputes."

Hard to Get Official View

It is impossible yet to get the closely guarded British official view of freedom of the seas.

Other important principles of the peace settlement are freely discussed, however. In regard to conscription, a high government official suggested to the United Press that the fact Germany's millions of trained men are still available, renders conscription in other European countries more difficult than at first appeared.

"The official designated to prepare the government's case on disarmament pointed out that it is necessary to revise a system to prevent fabrication of submarine and airplane parts in factories manufacturing peace time products.

Depends on Germany's Word
"It all involves the necessity for accepting Germany's word," he said. "Whether it can be trusted, makes the good or bad of the problem will be. Otherwise the difficulties of preventing trickery are almost insuperable."
Indemnities are also a serious issue. It is known that President Wilson adheres to his demand to keep to the armistice agreement. Since the recent elections this has been heard here in regard to compelling Germany to pay the whole cost of the war.

CHINA AS A REPUBLIC

By Dr. C. T. Wang, Vice-President of the Republic of China

It seems desirable that the American people understand clearly the position taken by the representatives of the so-called Southern Republic in China. It is of course well understood by those conversant with the situation that the terms "North" and "South" are never used strictly as geographical terms, but rather as terms describing different political views regarding the wisdom and practicality of the form of government, one party being represented more strongly in the North and the other party more strongly represented in the South.

There can be no other representative of the Southern view than Dr. Wang, who was the author of an American-trained, able, top representative Chinese of the better class, he has been intimately familiar with the situation as an actual participant in the varied changes affecting the Chinese Republic during the last few years. He is a man whose ability, training and absolute personal integrity have won the confidence of all, even of the leaders of the party whose views differ most widely from those of Dr. Wang.

The outstanding feature in China since 1911 is her perpetual fight for a Republican form of government. In view of what is happening today in Russia, Germany, Austria-Hungary and other European countries, it is a miracle that the foundation of a Republic should have started so early in China. For a long time western nations simply refused to believe that an Asiatic Republic was possible. Yet events have developed which proved not only its possibility, but its reality.

Three ways were open to China when the memorable revolution of 1911 was assured of success. First, the retention of the Manchu dynasty under a constitutional form of government; second, the formation of a new dynasty with some Chinese on the throne; and third, the establishment of a Republic. The leaders of the revolution should deliberately choose the third way, since the result of any hasty conclusion. The first way was impossible to entertain. It would be equally distasteful and ridiculous to maintain the Manchu dynasty in China when as to uphold the houses of Romanov, Hapsburg and Hohenzollern in Europe today.

The second way was favored by a large number of our own people of the conservative type, and I believe by almost all the European representatives in Peking who proved to be more conservative than our own countrymen. They are all understood, however, that it was distinctly against the tendency of the modern world and the instinct of the Chinese people—a people that have for centuries enjoyed democracy in their local village government. The failure of President Yuan Shih-kai to seize the throne and stand for himself a new dynasty speaks more for himself than any theoretic or academic theory.

There is therefore only one way open to China—namely, to establish a Republic. Where did China get her conception of a republican government? It is not from this great land of freedom, whose fathers, in founding the United States of America, declared that all men were created equal. It is not from this wonderful commonwealth, one of whose most distinguished sons made a profound utterance on a memorable occasion that government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth!

The fight in China is still on. The powers of autocracy and militarism have been strongly entrenched, but the forces of liberty are growing daily stronger. Like the Allies in the present terrible war that triumphantly concluded, time is on the side of the forces of freedom. Were China free to work out her own destiny, her fight for liberty would have been crowned with greater success. But besides the forces of reaction and conservatism among her own people, she has had to encounter the support given to the reactionaries by the Western powers.

Mr. B. L. Putnam Wells, who is an authority on the present situation, in his recently published book entitled "The Fight for the Republic in China," gave the same expression of regret and disappointment. In summing up his narrative of this fight, he said in his concluding chapter:

"Even great leaders (of his book) will have no difficulty in realizing how many lives have been lost and how greatly the country has been crippled both owing to the blind foreign support given to Yuan Shih-kai during four long and weary years (1916-1918) and to the stupid inclination to exploit ideas, when a little intelligence and a little generosity and sympathy would have guided the nation along very different paths."

Now truly Mr. Wells has reflected the sentiment of the progressive elements of the country! Only I would even go a step further and say that some of those foreign nations gave the support not at all blindly but I am constrained to affirm with eyes wide open.

Was America a party to this support by means of which to a large extent the progress of the Chinese Republic has been arrested? No, but the answer needs to be qualified. It is true America did withdraw from the coalition loan that is to say, the most can bankers were told by the United States government not to participate in the so-called Reorganization loan which was made to Yuan Shih-kai in 1913 by Germany, Russia, France, Great Britain and Italy. But America failed to carry some of the other powers with her. Had Great Britain and France taken the same attitude as America did and had Yuan Shih-kai been forced to the point that he could not hope to get any financial support from the powers which he worked in harmony with the Republican elements of the country, the

Inaction of Congress in Matter of Railroads Leads to Expensive Operation and the Weakening of Morale

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Postponement of congressional action on the rail problem may cost the nation millions of dollars the coming winter, railroad administration officials declared today.

Failure by congress to determine the future of the roads, it was held, threatens to denationalize the transportation systems when they face "probably the worst period of their history."

Director General McArdoo was said to have warned regional directors, federal managers and others serving under them they must combat a "weakening of morale among railroad employees." Even former officials of the corporate systems who now are holding jobs under the railroad administration are said not to know "just where they stand" because of congressional inaction.

Why Worried?

The spirit which officials said is growing among the employees may be expressed in these words:

"If the government doesn't care what becomes of the railroads, or how they are operated, why should we?"

The belief that traffic trouble is impending was held until recently only by officials who viewed the railroad question from a financial angle. This operating officials now admit the problem of keeping his roads "on top" of the demand for transportation is getting serious.

Expensive Period Coming

Approaching winter with its storms and resulting bad tracks will bring heavy losses to industry unless the roads are able to handle all business operations say.

Data gathered by operating officials shows that the volume of traffic this winter probably will be the largest in history. Although more equipment is available this year than last, terminal as well as main line capacity has not advanced, according to the records.
