Manchester, in Heart of Britain's Industrial Center, is Scene of Wildest Enthusiasm in Honor of Visitor

THOUSANDS GATHER TO EXTEND HEARTY WELCOME

Visits Former Home of Mother as Charlie and Attends the Church—Entire Trip Amounts to Triumphant March

By ROBERT J. BENDER. MANCHESTER, Dec. 30.—President Wilson today gave warning that America would join no coalition or alliance except a league of nations. Addressing 1000 workmen in the Trades Hall he declared that the league of nations must be a great covenant by which all nations unite "for the maintenance and triumph of right." The statement was greeted by wild applause.

Having just been made an honorary citizen the president opened his speech by addressing his audience as "fellow citizens of Manchester."

Willard declared that the spirit of sympathy between the people of America and Great Britain was no mere sentiment, but a principle. "Men give more than is demanded from Empire," he said. "The desire to serve comes from friendship." While surging from the Mansion House to the hall, the president was surrounded by a throng of admirers. He saw the famous "Mystery Ship," which, as the party passed by on the liner Majestic, threw off the disguise as a freighter and revealed itself as a heavily armed warship.

The president was suffering from a slight cold and both he and Mrs. Wilson were clad in furs. All cheer for President. Free Trade Hall was packed with workmen who cheered as the president was presented the greatest honor in the power of the city. The president's reply was a splendid and thoughtful one. President Wilson the lord mayor said the president's action in peace and war "commanded the rapturous gratitude of the world."

"History alone can comprehend the stupendous story of America," he said. The crowd showed what it thought of the president by singing "For He's" (Continued on page eight)

ANCIENT HISTORY IN BERGER TRIAL

Excerpts from Speeches of King Richard and King John Read Into Record

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Federalism was called to the aid of socialism in the Berger trial here today. Excerpts from speeches of King Richard and King John to show they were against war when it was in the hands of the five socialist leaders.

When Rev. Irwin S. John Tucker, one of the defendants, offered to quote certain of the King's words to the government, Judge Lusk interrupted. "That's too remote," he ruled. "You'd do us more good the gentleman."

Tucker also offered to quote from writings of President Wilson and ex-President Taft. Judge Lusk had the approval of the American Federation of Labor in substituting that was the 1917 General Congress. Tucker asserted that the resolution was "good sense."

Asked as to the authority of "Why We Should Fight," he said he had written them and had read excerpts from articles written by David Starr Jordan, former University president; the Rev. W. D. Howells; Dr. Chas. D. Walcott; Dr. Francis S. Collins; and the Rev. Dr. Bayly, president of the United States Social Conference.

Scheidemann Now Foreign Secretary of New Government

Rhakenp in Berlin Political Circles Not as Serious as First Supposed

May Abandon Capital City

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 30.—As the result of riots and general disorder in Berlin, it is declared the government is considering abandoning the city to the Spartacists and establishing headquarters elsewhere, reports from Berlin declared today.

Government Now Conservative

LONDON, Dec. 30.—All independent socialists have retired from the German government, which now consists entirely of majority socialists, according to a dispatch received from Berlin today.

This is direct contradiction to previous dispatches, which declared the Scheidemann coalition ministry had been overthrown and that a new cabinet would be formed by Karl Liebknecht and George Leibeaur, extreme radicals. The majority socialists of which Philip Scheidemann is leader, are comparatively conservative and supported the old government throughout the war.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—America is as unprepared today to take care of the returning soldiers as she was a year ago to expedite their departure to France," Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the military committee today declared on the floor of the senate.

"God only knows how many lives have been sacrificed because of our unpreparedness," he said. "Now that the war has been won and our soldiers are coming back armless, legless and eyeless, America is as unprepared to take care of them as she was a year ago."

Soldiers Hear Speech A score of soldiers, some with overseas service stripes on their arms, sat in the galleries and listened to every word as Chamberlain reviewed what he charged were grave mistakes of the past with a warning that they be not repeated in the future.

"Now that the bill has been lifted, we have learned that every charge made by the military affairs committee is true," he said. Chamberlain referring to the investigation of a year ago that followed his famous speech that stirred the country. He then read into the record, General Foxworth's statement to Secretary of War Baker, published in the standard press, tending to show that the lack of equipment and (Continued on page eight)

Clemenceau Declares Wilson and He Gave No Objection to England Continuing to Exercise Naval Control in Europe

PARIS, Dec. 30.—"I would be lying if I said I agreed with President Wilson on all points," Premier Clemenceau declared in addressing the chamber of deputies today.

"President Wilson's ideas are not the same as those of a man whose country has been devastated for four years and who in justice must be restored."

"The Tiger" declared that President Wilson congratulated him on his statement to Premier Lloyd George that he would have no objection to the British fleet rendering the same service in the future that it did in this war.

Clemenceau expressed confidence that the new agreement between the allied leaders are vitally important, as they will have to begin over again if no agreement is reached.

Was Voice of Confidence

At the conclusion of his speech, the speaker turned a role of confidence in his government, 808 to 82.

"I remain faithful to the countries which have defended France with their arms and navies," Clemenceau said. "France has a right to visitations for the wrongs she has suffered. I would not direct my eyes to other visitations at this time, however, as it is possible some of them may have to be sacrificed. The peace preliminaries will be submitted to the chamber for confirmation."

BITTER FIGHTING IN STREETS OF POSEN

Machine Gun Battle Continues All Day Long Following the Speech of Paderewski to Poles—British Side with Him

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Machine gun fighting raged all Friday afternoon in Posen after Ignace Jan Paderewski, the famous pianist and Polish leader, had defied the Germans and caused allied and American flags to be hoisted, according to dispatches from Warsaw, received here today. Paderewski was welcomed to Posen with speeches by prominent citizens and with patriotic demonstrations. He spoke, asserting Poland had recovered her independence and was again mistress of her own ports. Thereupon the German soldier started to depart.

Indeed, he and his Polish backers hoisted flags. Colonel Wade, the British authority in the city, supported Paderewski. The Germans started hostilities and continuous rioting resulted.

Paderewski was received in Posen with great enthusiasm. He was hailed by newspapers as "The representative of Polish interests with President Wilson." His wife declared him to be the bearer of most vital information from America to Polish leaders.

The famous musician, it is reported, is preparing to accept the presidency of the Polish republic, to include Danzig, East Prussia, Silesia, Pomerania and Warsaw.

Leaders are reported to have concurred and will send troops to Danzig to assist in putting Paderewski in authority there.

German Flyer Who Downed Quentin Roosevelt Pays High Tribute to Intrepid American Aviator

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—If a league of nations is not created, the United States must build the largest navy in the world to enforce the Monroe Doctrine, and freedom of the seas, and to protect herself, Secretary Daniels told the house naval committee today.

While making an agreement to reduce armaments should curtail America's program, he declared.

"If a league is created it must have a world police force, largely naval, to enforce its decisions," he asserted.

Daniels said in the future policy he felt the request for ten dreadnaughts, six cruisers, ten scout cruisers, and 100 small craft on top of the present fleet must be a world police force, conservatively and about half that which is recommended today.

Lesson of the War "A revelation to the year to year building plans would be a retrograde step," said Daniels.

"The war has taught two things—first that ambitions may endanger the peace of the world; second that there must be a world police power, strong enough to enforce decisions of a concert of powers."

At the conclusion of Daniels' formal statement, Representative Wilson of Texas offered a resolution to put the committee on record for Daniels' recommendations. Chairman Padgett ignored the resolution, declaring it premature.

telling the committee it was the intention to push the construction of big ships rather than smaller craft.

Declares Germany Cannot Allow Enemy Flags to be Hoisted in Prussia—Fighting Lasts for Hours

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 30.—(6p. layed)—Bloody street fighting has taken place in Posen between Germans and Poles, dispatches reaching here today asserted.

German officers fired on an allied motorcade bearing the American flag. The Poles were ordered to disperse the Germans who resisted. Fighting lasted for hours. Thirty-eight women and one hundred men were killed. The Germans were cleared with some resistance.

British authorities protested to the German commander-in-chief who declared he had no control over the soldiers regarding the incident to the American flag. He said the Germans could not allow enemy flags to be hoisted in Prussia.

FOOD SCARCEN IN OCCUPIED PARTS OF FATHERLAND

No Serious Shortage Yet But Indications Are That Before a Great While Natives Will Begin to Feel Pinch

By WEBB MILLER WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Dec. 28.—(Delayed.)—The general situation in Germany as regards supplies of all kinds is such that it is not immediately serious, reports of American intelligence officers showed today.

After a two weeks investigation throughout the entire area occupied by the American forces, there officers reported that the food situation is not dangerous at the present time. They believe that within a short time working people in the towns will begin to feel a real pinch. Stocks now on hand, it is asserted, are sufficient to last until February 1 or 15, in the towns, while the farmers have been so busy that they will be forced to lay their stocks until they have enough to last through the winter. Inasmuch as a greater part of the region is agricultural, conditions as a whole are fairly good. Many persons in the Moselle valley, winegrowers, will be forced to lay their stocks. In the towns war rationing is still being enforced. There is a serious shortage of butter, eggs and milk. These are practically non-existent in the towns. The weather conditions are able to obtain them by backdoor dealing.

No Meat Available

The official food allowance during the last week in December for each person was four pounds, eight ounces of bread, twelve ounces of flour, seven pounds of potatoes, ten ounces of canned vegetables, one egg, two ounces of butter, eight ounces of sugar, twelve ounces of cornmeal.

There was no meat to be had. Heavy workers were permitted to have an additional pound of potatoes.

The cost of this, the intelligence report shows, averages about ten marks daily, while in the cities it is much higher.

German officials claim the potato crop on which is placed the greatest dependence for food is a partial failure and declare the situation may become serious late in February unless stocks not now accumulated which their appearance. Due to unsettled financial conditions dealers are not replenishing their stocks, and their shelves are growing bare.

Pay Not Enough

Pay for workers is not keeping up with the advanced cost of living. It averages about five to seven marks a week. Figures collected on labor conditions show a basis for complaints. Business men of Muenchen estimated that eight marks a day constitutes a fair living wage, but the workers are not getting more than five marks, while the women workers are paid much less.

The chief of the Coblenz bankers association estimates that business prior to the signing of the armistice was about 60 per cent of its normal volume. The cost now has fallen about 40 to 50 per cent. Interviews with other bankers bear out this statement. Shortage of supplies are not looked forward to so long as political conditions are unsettled.

MINIDOKA LAD DROWNS IN DAM ABOVE DAM

Skating Party Ends Fatally When William Allen Falls into the Deep Water

RUPERT.—The icy waters of the treacherous Snake river, just above the Minidoka Dam, claimed another victim Sunday afternoon, December 28, when William Allen, fifteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Allen of Minidoka, ran into an air hole, while skating and fell into water sixty feet deep, where he remained until rescued.

Young Allen, with several companions, were skating on the river, just above the dam, which was but partly frozen. While skating backward the young lad ran into an open space and drowned before assistance could reach him. The body of the boy could be plainly seen under the ice, but it was nearly two hours before it could be recovered by men employed at the Dam on account of the thin ice. When the body was recovered it was found that life was extinct.

The body was taken to the home of the parents in Minidoka and funeral services held there Christmas day. Interment being in the Rupert cemetery. Besides his parents the young boy leaves one sister, Gladys, and three brothers, Edward, Harry and John, all younger. The father is conductor on the O. & L. freight running between Minidoka and Twin Falls.

APPLES DROP FALLS OFF

There was a heavy falling off in the apple crop in Idaho this season, the crop being 330,000 boxes this year, compared with 573,000 boxes in 1917, or 42 per cent of normal, against 90 per cent in 1918.

TO REINSTATE ABANDONED AREA

State Board Considers Addition of 8,000 to 10,000 Acres to Twin Falls West End

BOISE.—Reinstatement of from 8,000 to 10,000 acres of the abandoned West End Twin Falls project was asked by the state land board Friday by representatives of the construction company, and the matter is to be considered by the land board at a meeting on Saturday morning, says the Idaho Statesman.

Under the original project 48,000 acres was to be watered. Some construction work was started, but because of water conditions the plan to water the entire project was abandoned, and the project relinquished to the government. Reports of a former state engineer were to the effect that about one-fifth of the project could be watered, and it is this possibility that the board is considering.

Claims have been made that 18 inches of water is available for about 10,000 acres, but it is believed the land board will consider this insufficient, and that if a contract is entered into more water will be demanded with a corresponding smaller acreage if necessary.

P. Dunn, counsel for settlers on the Twin Falls Outlook project, protested Friday against the cancellation by the board of a number of entries not included in the area to which the project was cut because of limited water supply. This matter will probably be considered at the session this morning.

To Be Friends Again

THE NEW DRESS

By JULIA A. ROBINSON.

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Mamma, I've got to have a new dress to wear to the lawn party next week," announced Maude, looking up from the story she was reading, and must have been white one. I saw country at J. J.'s yesterday—geometric crepe, with the levellest lace! I wish you'd buy it for me."

"Her mother hesitated. "Don't you think you could get along with your last year's dress, dear?"

"Oh, mamma!" exclaimed Maude. "I've worn that everywhere I've been this summer. I'm tired of it; besides, it's all worn at the sleeves. I couldn't wear that, and you wouldn't have me, either."

"But everything costs so much now," (sighed her mother. "Couldn't you manage some way?"

"I don't know how I could get along without a dress really, mamma," returned Maude. "You'd just as well as the other girls," wouldn't you? Mamma's going to have a new one, and I'm sure Helen Bates will. You don't want me to look shabby?"

"If you must have it, my new dress cost," asked Mrs. Pope, wrinkling. "Forty dollars—but it's a beauty! It's really worth it."

The mother sighed. That seemed such a great price to pay for one dress, when everything was so dear. To Jean, however, was needed to help the soldier but still, she did not like to disappoint Maude.

Just then Mr. Pope came in, puffing from the heat, but smiling and good-natured. He was generally in good humor.

"Dad!" exclaimed Maude, "mamma's been objecting to my having a new dress for the lawn party. My old one is quite shabby. You'd want me to have a new one, wouldn't you, dad?"

"Well, I guess you can raise the money, child, but don't choke me," he laughed. "If she's right, well, let her have it if she wants it," he added, turning to his wife.

"Oh, you darling!" cried Maude, hugging him. "I'm so happy! I'm glad right over to tell Helen Bates about it. She'll have something beautiful to wear. I know; but I guess mine'll be just as pretty as hers. You'll be proud of me in my new dress, dad."

Maude, all smiles, ran over to tell the good news to her friend. She found Helen sitting on a piece of dotted muslin. "What are you doing, Helen?" she asked.

"I'm making myself a new dress for the lawn party," beamed Helen, holding it up to view. "See! It's nearly done. I made it all myself; and it cost just $37.50. Isn't a dear?"

Maude looked at the dress, amazed. It was a pretty dress, but so plain, not a particle of lace, just its ruffles. It was not like the dresses Helen usually wore. "It's very pretty," she said.

The felt almost ashamed to tell Helen what her dress was going to cost. If Helen, one of the richest girls in town, could wear a $40 coat for $37.50, why should she pay $40 for one that cost more than a hundred dollars? "It's really pretty," repeated Maude.

"I thought you'd have something really fine, as you always do. Papa's going to buy me one. It's swell!" she enthused, remembering that she had done it. "You usually have something so much more elaborate than this."

"Yes," smiled Helen, "but I'm beginning to think I've been quite foolish to spend so much on dress, especially now, when everything is so dear for the war. We've been talking it over, mamma and I. We both wanted to give all we could to the Red Cross, and I decided if I bought the muslin and made the dress myself, I should have almost the entire cost of the dress to give away—and look just as well, too. You see, they need so much for the soldiers 'over there,' mamma and I are saving all we can to help."

"This was a new idea to Maude, and she began to think.

BRIEF CEREMONY IS PLANNED FOR INAUGURATION

State Officials Elect to Be Inducted Into Office Monday Week—Governor-elect Davis Returns from East

(Special to The News)

BOISE, Dec. 30.—The new state administration will be inducted into office next Monday. The ceremony will be informal and brief.

Governor-elect Davis has returned from the east where he attended the conference of governors. There is no secret made of the fact that it was not a profitable session because cabinet officers from Washington monopolized practically all the time and the governors were given little opportunity to discuss state matters.

Mr. Davis has been at work on his message, which, it is promised, will depart from the stereotyped lines of promise and visionary promises. Mr. Davis has some ideas of his own and may be judged from conversations with him that they are to be strictly business-like. Not only talking economy, he will suggest ways to bring it about, but not to an extent to impair a growing public service.

In his message, as your correspondent expects, is to give the people a hundred cents' worth of service for every dollar spent and not to retard the state's development by a pennyworth policy.

Official Family

Mr. Davis has been in consultation with other officers-elect on appointments to the cabinet. It is believed that he has been able to secure the best men available, should be in the official family to serve the state.

It is understood frequent consultation between state officers and the general public will be held—a sort of cabinet program to produce team work. It is also stated that a departmental budget system is to be installed as a "check against unnecessary expenses and in order to have a ready record of accountability.

JEWISH CLAIMS WILL BE DEFERRED

JEWISH CONFERENCE LONDON, Dec. 18.—(By mail.)—Zislin claims their right to organize an autonomous Jewish government in the Holy Land will be presented at the world peace conference...

Leaders in Great Britain are believed to have received official sanction for presentation of the claims. This is indicated by plans to open a Zionist bureau in Paris from which news of the attitude of the peace delegates will be dispatched to leaders of the movement in all countries.

Most of the allied governments at some time during the war, it is recalled here, issued declarations in some form or other sanctioning the proposal for establishment of a Jewish national home in the Holy Land.

British Zionists hope the conference will set up an autonomous government under the trusteeship of England. They would have the local government directed by the Jewish administrative council.

Zionists of all countries were to discuss plans at a council here in December. It is hoped Justice Louis Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court will attend.

Department of Interior Gives Legislation of Other Countries for Soldier Benefit

The department of the interior has prepared a brief, but comprehensive summary of soldier-settlement legislation of other English-speaking countries as a help to the people of this nation...

One important feature of these laws is the provision for co-operation between the Federal and State authorities in Canada and Australia, and generally speaking, between the central government and the local authorities.

Co-operation it is thought should be the outstanding feature of our legislation. If the movement is to be national in the fullest sense, every state should provide opportunities for its own and should contribute to the adoption and share in the direction of the program.

BROOD WHEAT OF SCHOOL

RURET.—During the second week the schools in Rupert have shown a marked increase in attendance.

The total enrollment before the adverse weather was 949, says the Kinfolks County Patriot. Monday there were 492 children in school. This makes the attendance about 60 per cent throughout the whole school.

The conditions regarding health are very encouraging. No symptoms of influenza have been discovered among school-children. The general health of the children remains good.

BRITISH FORCE LANDS AT RIGA

Several Persons Are Killed and Wounded in Outbreak Following Debarkation

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 30.—British forces have landed at Riga according to advices received here today.

"Several persons were killed and wounded. Bolshevik agitators goaded the crowds assembled outside the building, where British were conferring with government heads, until a cry of 'Away with the English,' was set up. The crowd was dispersed."

DEATH AWAITS KIMBERLY MAN AT END OF JOURNEY

Frank Phelps, Enroute to Seattle, Contracts Old Which Emalls Family—Leaves Family

Enroute three weeks ago from his former home in Kimberly to Seattle, where it was hoped the lower altitude would benefit his health, Frank Phelps, aged 46 years, contracted a severe cold which complicated a case of chronic Bright's disease and resulted in his death there on December 25.

Phelps was at one time engaged in the transfer business in Twin Falls, Idaho for the last two or three years and resided at Kimberly. He leaves behind his widow, three little daughters, Alma, aged 16; Gwendolyn, aged 10, and Zelva, aged 8.

USES GUN TO END LIFE AT FRIEND'S HOME

Joseph W. Taylor, Well Known Stockman of Rogerson, Shoots Self, According to a Jury, After Passing Joke

"I couldn't talk better than you do," would keep still," said Joseph W. Taylor of Rogerson, aged 38 years, prominent stockman associated for several years past with the Orwyb Sheep & Land company, to his friend William R. Leitch at about 6 o'clock Saturday evening at Leitch's home, six miles southeast of Castleton, and then taking a .38 caliber revolver from his pocket, he placed the barrel of the gun in his mouth and pulled the trigger. Death resulted instantly.

Jury Gives Verdict
A coroner's jury convened at the Leitch home Saturday night by coronator C. J. Oraby, found as its verdict that Taylor had come to his death from a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Dependency over his ill health for several months past is believed by his friends to have been the cause for Taylor's act. His financial affairs are said to be in good shape and his family life is said to have been most happy.

Elks in Charge of Funeral
The remains have been brought to the Grosman & DeWitt undertaking establishment in Twin Falls, from which place funeral services, under the auspices of the Elks' lodge, will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon next.

Two Witnesses of Act
Taylor was seen to take four feet away from his friend Leitch, with whom he had spent the day looking after his sheep, when he fired the fatal shot. Miss Louise Larson, housekeeper for Leitch, was in the room. Taylor, after being telephoned to by his wife, returned and seemed well pleased over her report on the progress on building of their new home there. He had expressed himself as thoroughly satisfied with the work done by his employees at Castleton in preparation for the lambing season, and seemed to be in a happy frame of mind.

Toad's Good Service.
The toad is useful because of its diet. No less than 83 specimens of insects, mostly injurious, have been proved to enter into its dietary. George W. Hunter says: "A toad has been observed to snap up 128 flies in half an hour. Thus at a low estimate it could easily destroy 1,000 insects during a day and do an immense service to the garden during the summer months. It has been estimated that a single toad may, on account of the enormous which it kills, be worth $10.88 each season that it lives."

THOSE FAVORING OCCUPATION ARE PLANNING COUP

Germans Who Want the Allied Troops to Assume Charge in Berlin Propose to Force Action by General Arrests

By FRANK J. TAYLOR
BERLIN, Dec. 28.—The German group which favors allied occupation of Berlin as a political coup, plans to force this move by arresting all American and British newspapermen in the city, Police Prefect Eichhorn warned today.

Eichhorn said the politicians in this group believed arrest of the correspondents would draw allied troops into the capital immediately, thus changing the entire complexion of the political situation and probably resulting in the overthrow of the radicals.

NONPARTISANS WILLING BUT DEAL HUNG UP

Journal Says 'Tis and Times Says 'Tisn't, But Consolidation Under Single Banner Still Among Possibilities

Question as to whether consolidation of the Nonpartisan Journal, the weekly newspaper organ of the Nonpartisan League in Twin Falls county, published at Elletts with the Twin Falls Times as they were to be consummated, or whether the bottom had dropped out of plans that were laid to this end is one that has developed to proportions where it occupies now a commanding interest generally.

On the other hand, the Times on the front page of its issue of December 27 under the caption, "No consolidation," said: "There had been no consolidation of the Twin Falls Daily Times with the Filer Journal although with the Filer Journal all things with the newspaper might be taken over and been published and is still being considered, in the event that an agreement as to the price can be reached, provided that other conditions prove agreeable. ... There is nothing certain in respect to the matter being said, this, that the Times will continue the same policy adhered to during 1917 and 1918, that is, it will remain an independent Democratic newspaper. ... This statement is caused by the statement in the Filer Journal yesterday, signed by John A. Moore, its editor, containing certain erroneous statements with reference to the future policy of the Times."

In the statement referred to, under the caption, "The Editor Says Aids," Manro says, "I am leaving the Nonpartisan Journal and the local newspaper fight for life. ... The past few weeks a report has been circulated by the enemies of the league that the Nonpartisan Journal is 'going broke' since the league was defeated. I want to say that this is not true no matter how long it has been repeated. ... The stock of this company is really worth more than par value. ... The Nonpartisan Journal has filled its office creditably, though victory was not accomplished at the polls by the league this year, and the stockholders are well satisfied with the work it has done."

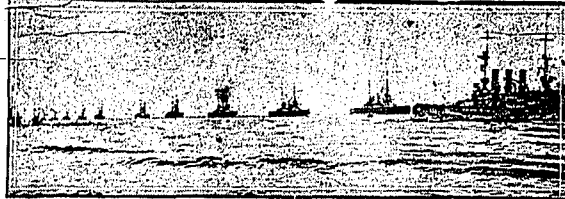

Journal Stockholders Willing "A proposition was made to the stockholders of the company that the Nonpartisan Journal consolidate with the Twin Falls Times, and that the new corporation publishing the Daily Times newspaper be named the Independent Newspaper, which would serve the best interests of the majority of the citizens of the county and territory it served such as the independent daily that will be established by the farmers at Nampa. The stockholders of the company have been unanimous in accepting the offer of consolidating with the daily, because they think the daily would be more instrumental in a political campaign. Any contrary statements concerning the consolidation which will take place within a few weeks which you may hear are false."

The understanding of the Journal stockholders when they voted on the proposed consolidation at a meeting held on December 17, as given by Secretary Elmer Anderson in a letter to the stockholders, was that "The proposed consolidated corporation would print the Daily Times as an independent daily. In other words, the policy of the paper will be directed by the majority of the board of directors, the majority of whom will be in sympathy with the Nonpartisan League movement."

According to the Journal in its issue of December 19, "more than three-fourths of the stock of the Filer Journal Publishing Company had voted in favor of the consolidation," which "had been signed by the majority stockholders of the Times company."

THIS GREAT FLEET TO END CAREER ON OCEAN BED.

Agreeing that it would be a virtual impossibility to so divide the German fleet tonnage amongst victorious allied nations that absolute satisfaction of all would be assured, it has been agreed that this great fleet of surrendered German warships be sunk. This will be done to insure the safety of the sea to the world. Here is the Hun fleet steaming out of Koll Harbor to surrender to the allied fleets in the North Sea.

Foreign Minister Outlines Nation's Views in Chamber of Deputies

PARIS, Dec. 28.—Stephan Pichon, foreign minister, told the Chamber of Deputies yesterday that the French government has accepted the principle of the league of nations and will work toward its realization. "We demand no annexations," Pichon declared. "Disregard of the boundaries of Alsace-Lorraine does not involve the question of annexations." Pichon said that the government will make no effort to force the Russian people to adopt any particular form of government but that the Allies will protect Ukraine and Caucasus from the Bolshevik and later, if necessary, will aid Russia to fight "anarchy."

Salmon Tract Matter Is Spread on Minutes

BOISE.—A memorandum from Clay Tallman, commissioner of the United States general land office regarding a conference between himself and Governor Alexander, at which Governor-elect D. W. Davis was present, was spread upon the minutes of the state land board at a meeting Tuesday to show the procedure preceding granting of patents for 20,000 acres of land in the Twin Falls Salmon river project.

HOLDS TITLE TO CREATED WATER SUPPLY IS GOOD

Supreme Court Reverses Judgment in Case Where Men Who Cleared Course Were Denied Benefit

The supreme court of Idaho has decided that the benefit from an increased or "created" water supply belongs to the persons who have made possible such increase. This decision was handed down in the case of Agnes B. Reed and others against Frank Worthington and others, tried in 1914 in the district court at Blackfoot before Judge James G. Gwin. The higher tribunal maintains the contention of Worthington and remands the case to the lower court for modification of the judgment to satisfy the defendants to the use without interference of the water supply which they created.

How Supply Was Created

The decision of the supreme court in the case of Worthington and the other parties defendant in this case, right to use the increased flow of Blurb creek in the vicinity of Blackfoot, which they claim resulted from their clearing the upper water course of brush, logs and other impediment. They introduced evidence to show that as a result of this clearing of the water course the average annual flow of the stream was increased 100 inches, and that the flow had not been greater than that since 1858.

TO HONOR IOWA MAN IN ENGLISH TOWN

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Dec. 30.—Plans are being made to bestow the freedom of the borough on Col. A. W. Swain, American consul here since 1903. "Restoration of its freedom is one of the highest honors an English city may accord. Few Americans have received the honor. Both Colonel and Mrs. Swain, who was Miss Pauline Given of Des Moines, Iowa, are popular with Southampton residents. They have engaged in many civic movements. Col. Swain, formerly at Montevideo, Uruguay, was born in Womelsdorf, Pa., in 1845. He served in the civil war and afterwards was well known as an Iowa newspaper publisher.

Idaho's Record in Matter of Liberty Bonds, Red Cross and Stamp Purchases Reaches Magnificent Total

(Special to The News) BOISE, Dec. 30.—An interesting compilation showing Idaho's contribution to the war has been made by the Capital News. It shows that approximately $37,000,000 has been put up by Idaho people for bonds, W. R. S. and red cross stamps, while the man power, including and sent to the war, including registrants ready to respond but not called, total 128,480. There were 13,000 volunteers for active service in France and shipbuilding and 11,848 drafted. The registrants not called numbered 307,855. On the money side Idaho bond purchases amounted to $4,650,000; W. R. S. $4,500,000; Red Cross $700,000; United Welfare drive $500,000; contributions to organizations later taken care of by the United Welfare drive $1,247,978. Enormous Production During the war Idaho mined 120,000 car loads of grain, wheat, animal, hay, beans, potatoes and packing house and dairy products. The state also produced during that time 1,410,000 pounds of lead, 32,000,000 pounds of zinc, 20,000,000 pounds of copper, $4,000,000 of gold bullion and 500,000 ounces of silver. Along lines of conservation Idaho saved over 1,000,000 pounds of wheat flour, approximately 12,000,000 pounds of sugar, and 1,200,000 pounds of meat.

Looking Ahead. A baby boy arrived one morning Hunter, three years old, had been given two bills goats for his last birthday. That morning his father said: "Now Hunter, you don't need two goats suppose you give your little brother 'em. What do you say?" Hunter didn't say anything for a minute, then he said: "Father, I've been thinking it over, and I've decided maybe I'd better save that goat for my own little boy."

Presidential Succession. The law of the presidential succession, passed in 1900, expressly states that in case of the death of both president and vice president the succession shall go to the members of the cabinet, beginning with the secretary of state, but only "such as are eligible to the office of president under the Constitution." The secretary of state was foreign born, therefore, the succession would pass over him and go to the secretary of the treasury.

Printing in China. The Chinese follow the primitive way of printing from engraved wooden blocks. The matter to be printed is first written by means of ink, upon paper which is pasted face downward upon a block of a pear or plum tree. After the paper becomes dry it is rubbed until an inverted impression of the characters is left. Then the blank spaces are cut away and the block is turned over to the printer, who works with a hand. He takes care to ink the characters equally and to avoid leaving the impression.

"President Maker." Thurlow Weed, an old-time political leader of New York, was called "the president maker." He was prominent in procuring the nomination of General W. H. Harrison in 1840, of General Taylor in 1848 and of General Scott in 1852, though the last named was not elected. In 1850 he supported Lincoln, though he had favored the nomination of William H. Seward of New York. He never held any public office.

When a Nut Lent. The peanut isn't a nut at all, but a member of the pea, bean and clover family. It is a legume and gathers strength from roots. Not Really Gardias. A large proportion of the so-called gardenias taken along the Atlantic coast of this country and Canada are not true gardenias but are the young of the herring and menhaden. They are prepared in about the same way as true European gardenias, however, and it would puzzle some of the most experienced epicures to distinguish the spurious from the genuine.

Closest Timber. What is described as the oldest timber in the world which has been used by man is found in an ancient temple of Egypt. This timber is used in connection with stone work, which is known to be more than 4,000 years old. This wood—and the only wood employed in the construction of the temple—is in the form of ties which hold the end of one stone to another. The ties appear to be tamarisk, of which the ark was constructed.

HER TRIUMPH IN PRESIDENT CAKE

A six-year ambition to bake a Thanksgiving cake for the president of the United States has been realized. The cake was baked by Miss Beulah Davis of Albus, Ala., and eaten by President Wilson on the great memorial Turkey Day in 1917.

Miss Beulah Davis, a student in Washington who lived next to Dr. Grayson, the president's physician, happened to see the president what would be the best good deal. Here is how she made the cake.

NORWEGIAN MOTIF FOR WINTER FROCK

It might be because this frock is the newest in winter creations that the designers went close to Norway for the embryoid motif to relieve the severe lines. Then, to be just at the shibons and frills which will be with us in the summer and spring is given in that elaborate satin grid, which in itself embodies as much cloth as the average evening gown.

Examination of Record of Sailings, Unloadings and Arrivals Indicates Extent of Europe's Commercial Lead

By JAMES I. MILLER

Buenos Aires, Dec. 28.—British and French businessmen are leaving American industry at the post. Scarcity of sailings, unloadings and departures in the newspapers is also sufficient to convince any one that the Europeans, enabled to get a flying start by the fact they are given plenty of ships, are gaining an enormous advantage.

It is reported here that at least a score of ships loading for South America are idling in United States harbors. The fact there are practically no sailings from America is unaccountable to Americans here, who are weary of reading about speeches by American officials regarding the great trade future with South America. Month after month has passed and there have been no ships and no anything except more words.

Meanwhile, Americans are taking a back seat, from which they are watching their competitors grabbing all the trade, now rapidly approaching a pre-war basis.

Mail Service Better

The mails from Europe are much more frequent than those from the United States. Arrival of mail is almost an occasion for celebration for celebration by members of the colony who are disgusted at what they term the sluggish and indifference of the home government toward them.

Virulent German Propaganda

Two newspapers are especially notorious in poisoning the minds of this people against the United States. One is the "New York Times" and the other is the "New York Herald Tribune." While the United States has no organ through which to answer these attacks, Great Britain, France and Italy have. But they are not altruistic and it is a case of each man for himself.

Hard on America

A leading article in one of these newspapers is headed "France Under Fire." It declared that the Americans are policing the railways, power plants, banks and custom houses, insulating that the United States is bridling France under its heel, industrially and economically. France is forced to submit to the cause of its great moral and material obligations to the "invaders." The article quotes the proverb that "Enemies are not always the most dangerous."

Paid for Listening

For 128 years a sermon has been preached in London (Eng.) parish church on the text, "Human life is a bubble." Richard Johnson, who died in 1796, left the masters and wardens of the Stationers' company trustees of his estate, and out of the interest the vicar of Eton was to receive one guinea for preaching this sermon, and two wardens of the company a guinea each for listening to it.

Perceptive Rhinoceros

The rhinoceros would be just as formidable as the buffalo were his sight was good. But he has to go a little way because of dependence on the sense of smell. Once within a few yards of his object, where his weak eyes can distinguish it—then look out! His charge is something terrible, and the only safe place is a tree. When African natives are asked what animal they most fear, nearly all of them do not hesitate to say the rhinoceros.

FARMING FOR WIFE

By EMMA LIBBEY.

(Copyright, 1914, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

He was a clean-cut, bright-eyed young man, but his usually cheerful countenance was marred by a scowl that told of worry, as he read the last few lines in a letter he had just received, written in a distinctly feminine hand.

"I had tried to have Dad invite you down here to the farm, and have told him that you wanted his consent to marry me. He was furious at once, and says that Dad had never given a man from the city with his consent, but that my husband must be a farmer. Dad is a dear old soul, but is very decided on this one point, as he has seen so many of the farms around here ruined on account of the boys going to the city. Oh, Harry, dear, if you had only taken a course in agriculture while at college, I think all would have been right, as Dad is not a back number, but believes firmly in scientific farming, and has for years been hoping that some energetic young man would settle in the locality, and show what modern methods can do on a farm. He realizes that he is too old to undertake making any decided changes on this place. You have overcome other objections so easily, I still hope you may in some way be able to meet father, and if you will but convince him how strong our love is for each other I think he might give his consent. Good night, dear, and pleasant dreams."

Here was indeed a problem for Harry Duke to solve. Left by his father with ample means, he had doubled them in five years by his ability, which was a greater inheritance than money. This new problem, however, brought forth the same energy that characterized all his undertakings.

A few weeks later Mr. Reed, the father of Elsie, came home with the announcement that the Jones farm, which adjacent to his, had been purchased by an enterprising young man who proposed to make a model farm of it. He said that he had been told the new owner had made a careful study of the agricultural question, and was going to work the farm according to the latest scientific discoveries. As Mr. Reed was thinking he might have noticed a smile creep over his daughter's face, but he was too much interested in the story of his new neighbor to think of anything else. He was very pleasantly at the thought of such a farm next to his own, nearly kept secret that he at once went over to call on his new neighbor.

He found him in the field dressed in a rough suit of clothes and supervising the work of several men who were engaged in repairing the walls and fences. He gave the old farmer a cordial reception and explained that he proposed to do very little that summer except to get the place in condition, but that the next year he planned to have a skilful superintendent to attend to the cultivation of the farm in the best possible manner.

"That night Mr. Reed was laid in his bed by the flu," he told her. "I think that the flu was the thing that kind you find in this city, and who know little except to strangle their neighbors."

"As the weeks went by he checked many times to see the new farmer and Elsie waiting upon the place together. As he came upon them upon them day it was apparent that his daughter's waist was encircled by an arm that belonged to his new neighbor. Seeing a quizzical smile on the old man's face, the young man said to Mr. Reed, "I love your daughter very much, and I really know you will give me your consent. I hope you will give me your consent to marry her, and I will give you my future happiness as my stake, and I'll take a 'Geopline' chance."

The old man's face was a study as he replied: "Well, that is too bad. I thought you were one of those college educated, scientific farmers. But I see you're just a boy, and I hope you will make her happy. With a wife who can take care of her own affairs, the older man's shoulders sagged and said: "Dad, I am going to live with you on this farm, under your advice, as a model farm, and we will show the farmers around here what really up-to-date methods will do."

Founded Out Living

Many a bright good morning has changed the business outlook of a firm. Many a grocery store has failed because of a change in the market. It is not the change in the market that is the trouble, it is what is back of the trouble. Just as long as persons are thrown closely together they must consider one another.

After all it comes right back to the golden rule—do unto others as you would have them do unto you. And a really good working rule it is to go by, and a pretty safe one, too.

Advice to Girls

If a girl can't marry her ideal, the best thing to do is to marry some one else. This is the record.

President Gives Peace Message

"Jolly Good Fellow." The "workmen" then gave Mrs. Wilson a special cheer.

MANCHESTER, Dec. 30.—President Wilson carried his peace message into the heart of England's industrial center today, when he expressed several thousand workmen in Free Trade Hall. He was received with the wildest enthusiasm.

The president had run the gamut from the royalty of London to the homely plenty of Carlisle and the humming activity of Manchester. The quality of his welcome was unchanging in any of these widely divergent atmospheres.

Partnership Not Politics

"The United States always has felt it must separate itself from European politics," Wilson told the workmen. "It is not interested in European politics now, but is interested in a partnership of right."

Wilson will join a combination of power, which is not a combination of all of us. We are not interested in the peace of Europe, but in the peace of the world.

What Is Common Interest?

"The theme now before us is what is the common interest?" Horatio's partnership of interest has governed the world. This has been broken down. With interests come jealousies. There is only one thing that can bind people; that is a common devotion to the right. There must be no balance of power. The great voice of humanity is abroad in the world. If any nation resists the completion of this concordance he will deeply regret it. We are obeying no parties but the mandates of humanity."

From early morning the streets were thronged in anticipation of the president's appearance. He and his family were met by a large crowd of well-wishers at the railway station yesterday and spent the night as the guests of the lord mayor. He rose early and started for the hall at 9:30. Accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, the lord mayor, the latter's wife and the town clerk, he went to the canal where they boarded the White Star liner Majestic, on which they rode to the docks.

Citizens of Manchester

Leaving the canal, the party proceeded to the town hall, where Wilson was made an honorary citizen of Manchester. From there he went to Free Trade Hall and delivered his second peace message to the citizens of Manchester. He was given a great ovation as he rode through the streets.

The president appeared to enjoy the freedom from the semi-restraint of the royal atmosphere in London. His adaptability was never more apparent than today.

President Wilson's visit to his mother's former home in Carlisle brought him into contact with the inner spirit of the British people.

Congregation in Tears

Picture a church in a small town with its ordinary congregation, mostly old people; picture the front pews occupied by the president, his wife, the king's secretary and other dignitaries, who joined in singing the usual hymn and knelt on the wooden floor in prayer, and finally picture the president in response to the pastor's appeal, paying tribute to his mother and grandfather, with many of the congregation in tears.

From this humble scene, after a visit to the cathedral, the president returned to the king's train with his magnificent white enamel-woodwork and precious fittings, such as a regal and a crown.

Thousands Pay Tribute

Apparently the rope and line of the train's passing were known to all the country people as the train was lined at every station with men, women and children who waved and cheered. Upon his arrival in Manchester, the young man received his arm around the older man's shoulders and said: "Dad, I am going to live with you on this farm, under your advice, as a model farm, and we will show the farmers around here what really up-to-date methods will do."

Both Agreed to Efficacy of the British Fleet

"I will try to convince you, and perhaps you will convince me."

Fleet a Great Factor

President Lloyd George said to me one day, "Do you admit that without the British fleet you could not have convinced Chamberlain?" I replied: "Yes, Lloyd George estimated: 'You under these circumstances, would you be disposed to do anything to prevent us from rendering the same service?' I replied: 'No.'"

He recounted to President Wilson this conversation. He congratulated me on my loyalty to Great Britain, saying that each of the allied nations might gain the same viewpoint on this question.

"This was the beginning of the conversations which must be regarded as vital because if no agreement is reached everything must be begun all over."

Must Help Each Other

"I am sure that great nations like Great Britain, the United States, Italy and France should try to help one another when one is attacked. The war has taught us this spirit and in this spirit we will go to the peace conference. Nothing must separate after the war the four great nations which the war united. I am sure to make the greatest strides to preserve this union."

"I am sure to see soldiers and their child of the great victory which was won. We aim to have all mankind enjoy the great fruits of this victory."

Invalued for Last Time

"France must never be invaded again. Guarantees are necessary to prevent this. President Wilson's ideas are not the same as those of a man whose country has been devastated for four years and must, in justice, be restored. But he is an honorable man of great intelligence and noble spirit."

"It is the desire of all, especially the soldiers, to introduce new elements into the building of nations. I do have the feeling, but to impose a new spirit on other nations we must begin by having it at home."

Getting Rid of It

Mary Elizabeth had been sitting by her mother for a full hour trying with all her might to make a dress for her dollie. Suddenly she heaved a sigh and when her mother asked her why she did so she replied, "Oh, I can't just let the fire get out."

SAYS COUNTRY IS UNABLE TO CARE FOR SOLDIERS

Dependent on Allies

Nothing further from Chamberlain's report, Chamberlain showed how in the battle of the Marne, the American army was dependent on the French and British for artillery and aircraft.

Chamberlain quoted from Charles B. Hughes' report on his recent investigation concerning misleading statements given the public regarding the shipment of American-built airplanes to France.

Much Inefficiency

Chamberlain declared there was much inefficiency, injustice and loss of manpower resulting from failure to provide training, planes for young American aviators. He told how they were sent to France to be trained and got no training, those who went first had their morale destroyed, Chamberlain declared, because they met with no training and later on the same aviators were sent to France in this country and sent abroad.

He cited the case of two lieutenants who he appealed to him after their commissions had been revoked when they asked for transfers to some branch of the service where they could get into active service.

"I got nowhere because of the red tape. I took up the matter personally with General Haugh, said Chamberlain. "He reinstated the two boys and transferred them to the tank corps. But thousands of others did not get the same redress that they did."

Parting Soldier's Farewell

"General Pershing, in the future of things, could you know there were men in the American forces abroad who were not getting the training they went over for. I would not say a word in criticism of the handling of this thing of the war was magnificent. It has seldom, if ever, been equalled and never surpassed. But I call attention to this situation to show the inefficiency which existed."

"Unless something is done to correct conditions now, these men, when they come back, will make the same kind of a mess of it as they did in France."

"We are pursuing the same military tactics in preparing to care for the wounded men coming back from France

We did in preparing them to fight, he added.

"This may be denied, but the statement is true."

Wealth of Africa

The wealth of the resources of Africa is thought equal to any two of the other continents of the world. For instance, she has 800,000 square miles of coal fields, 95,000,000 acres of fertile farm lands, iron ore equal to five times the output of North America, 60 percent of the world's diamonds, $10,000,000 worth of rubber each year, and uncounted millions in ivory, zinc and other copper and gold.

CAMPAINED FOR PREMIER HUBBY

"We did more for the women of England, looking toward equal rights, than could have many years of struggling alone the old lines as used prior to 1914. Mrs. Lloyd George, wife of the premier, campaigned for Wales for the return of her husband to Parliament while the premier himself, in a London address, went on record as favoring equal rights for women in everything."
