Railroads, Food and Industrial Welfare Are Under Advice—Committees to Report on Bills

Investigations to Begin on Vital Points—Republicans Do Not Seem Anxious to Start the Session

BY J. C. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Turning into the "home stretch" of the present session, congress will try to do some reconstructions before March 4.

But those who really want reconstruction measures put under way without delay, are afraid that this session will end in an accomplished fact. Congress has no reconstruction program. It has not mapped out one of its own and no other governmental leader has given it except in a general way.

Serious Matter

Democrats would like to pass all the necessary reconstruction legislation before March 4, but their leaders frankly acknowledge they don't know what is necessary and what is not.

Republicans want no reconstruction done until after they come into power March 4. Delay, now, they say, makes an extra session imperative.

The effort toward reconstruction which is about to be made is to center on three subjects. The first is the railroads.

Topics for Consideration

Director General McAdoo is to appear Friday before the senate interstate commerce committee when it opens its hearings to determine what congress ought to do about the roads. McAdoo is to be followed by other federal officials, then by railroad men and representatives of the public.

The next subject is industrial welfare.

There is a growing belief in congress that the government must take cognizance of the change that has come through the war in the relative positions of capital and labor.

Committee Reports

The senate education and labor committee within a few days will begin hearings on the Kearyon resolution.

The third subject is food. The house is about to begin investigation of the packing house industry in connection with the food problem.

WOUNDED MEN RESCUED FROM GROUNDING SHIP

Transport Brings Soldier Passengers Ashore from the Ill-Starred Hospital Boat Northern Pacific

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., Jan. 2.—With a calmer sea making the work of rescue less hazardous, 600 wounded men from the stranded transport Northern Pacific were landed safely this afternoon by means of a trolley boat.

Some of the 2,545 troops aboard the ill-starred ship were transferred to relief vessels standing by.

The trolley boat, fastened by pulley wheels to double cables extending from the bow of the hospital ship, was made frequent trips, bringing twelve to fifteen men to safety each time. This life-saving device was rigged this morning by Captain Joseph Tuttle of the coast guard, who rowed through a dangerous surf to the stricken steamer, carrying the Pacific's life raft, and brought back four soldiers who volunteered to help him climb back through the breakers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—A broocher buoy was rigged this morning for the emergency of the ill-starred hospital ship Northern Pacific to the transport Malloy.

The sea subsided sufficiently to permit the starting of this operation, according to reports from the transport Malloy.

HIS ADDITION TO GOLD COSTS OFFICERS RANK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Second lieutenant Blake B. McGinnis, air service, played gold during spare hours without permission.

A court-martial sentenced him to dismissal from the service, but President Wilson commuted the sentence to a reprimand, restriction to the limits of the post for six months and a forfeiture of $300 pay.

Similar commutation was made in the case of First Lieut. Wm. Walton, sentenced to dismissal for curing a private at Camp Zachary Taylor.

In the case of Second Lieut. Elliott Briggs, charged with wearing civilian clothing in the Panama Canal zone, without permission, a dismissal sentence was commuted to reprimand, and restriction to post for three months and forfeiture of $150 pay.

ROAD TO PEACE IS NOT STREWN WITH FLOWERS

Clemenceau Wants Safety of France First and League of Nations Next—Public Discusses Conference Freely

CURRENT OPINIONS CLASH WITH OFFICIAL VERSION

People in the Street Have Very Undecided Ideas of the Country's Needs—Blow First Hot and Then Cold

By WILLIAM PHILIP SHIMMS

PARIS, Jan. 2.—On the eve of the formal conference, the peace capital of the world is being swept by a battle between pessimism and optimism.

Warned by Premier Clemenceau that the road to peace probably will not be strewn with roses, together with his admission that he is not opposed to continuation of armed alliances on land and sea, the opposition element in France is freely criticizing the premier's policy as dangerous and predicting that long debates will feature the deliberations.

People Debating

Despite the fact that the outcome of the present differences seems doubtful, the frank public discussion of debatable issues at this time is believed by high personages in both London and Paris to assure a complete understanding and make the formal conferences much brighter than was anticipated.

The man in the street is blowing hot and cold. The public is noticeably keener for the conference to get under way. In the meantime, two currents of opinion are clashing. The humanist, which reflects, says, any:

Premier Clemenceau and Foreign Minister Pichon have formulated their conception of peace. It is a new tradition of President Wilson's. Let us unfold ourselves. The allies' ideas lack unity now. Then where will the conference bring us?

Have Same Goal

Government circles, however, maintain that Clemenceau and Wilson have the same goal, and merely express themselves differently.

"The peace of the world will not endure unless France is made secure," declared the Temps.

This is the keynote of Clemenceau's program.

Undoubtedly he will insist at the peace conference upon strong frontiers and powerful alliances, both on land and on sea, sufficient to repel any sudden aggression. Providing the league of nations would permit this, it is expected he will favor it. If the league would fall short of his ideas in this regard, doubtless he will oppose it. It is understood he, like other peace delegates, will be willing to be shown Clemenceau, it is certain, will fight for complete safety of France, in one form or another. And he, even his opponents admit is rightly named "The Tiger."

ENGLAND'S KING MAY VISIT HERE

King George and Queen Mary May Accept Wilson's Invitation

LONDON, Jan. 2.—A visit to the United States by King George and Queen Mary in response to President Wilson's invitation is not likely, it was learned from a reliable source today.

Such a visit, it was explained, would mean an impossible long absence, since it would also be necessary for them to visit the colonies.

The Prince of Wales will visit the United States when he makes a tour of the British dominions, it is considered certain, however. His visit probably will be made next spring.

Early Return of Rail Systems to Owners Rumored

Report Circulates in Capital on the Eve of McAdoo's Explanation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—That the national railroads would be turned back to their control on January 15 was the unconfirmed report in railroad administration circles today. Rumors persisted that present plans provide for a presidential proclamation in March releasing the roads at the mid-year.

Coincidentally these rumors came after the Walker D. Hines, assistant director general, would assume control of the roads as director general. Director General McAdoo will retire formally Saturday night, it was stated officially.

Hines has agreed to take the place, as he is not said, on condition that his duties be limited to winding up affairs of the roads.

McAdoo will go before the senate interstate commerce committee tomorrow to tell of his plan for a five-year period of government control.

ARGUES WOMEN GAVE TO RESCUE OF DEPARTMENT

Senator Weeks Charges Inefficiency—Declares Red Cross Not Allowed to Give Information at Hand

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Parents and relatives of American soldiers killed or wounded in France, would have been told by longer suspense and anxiety about their loved ones, English Waives come to the rescue and helped get casualties lists to the country, Senator Weeks, Massachusetts, told the senate today.

Since the Waives, an organization of women, took hold of the American consulates in the United States, giving names to this country, has been greatly expedited Weeks said, in an attack on alleged war department delay in handling such information.

An average of 22 days was required to get the report of an American soldier's death ready for getting to this country, Weeks declared. In the case of wounded, this time was reduced, he said, but the average time required for transmitting all reports of casualties aggregated 18-14 days before the names were called to the United States.

This is practically double the time required in the case of wounded under their service, Weeks said.

Hinders Red Cross

Weeks charged the war department with failing to cooperate with the Red Cross either here or abroad. Quoting from testimony of W. E. Castle, of the Red Cross, he said that the Red Cross had been discharged from bankruptcy by Judge F. C. Amlund, of the United States district court.

The order frees Towle from obligation of reporting, except a $20,000 against which he balanced assets of less than $15,000.

YELLOW SOCIALIST IS NO BROTHER TO RED RADICAL

Berger Declared He and His Associates Did Not Approve of the Kaiser

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Victor Berger, congressman-elect, from Milwaukee, was to resume testimony in his own defense today at the Socialist trial here.

Berger, defendant with four other Socialist leaders, denied charges of pro-Kaiserism when he went on the witness stand Tuesday. He declared he was a "yellow" Socialist as opposed to the "Reds" or radicals.

The red flag, he said, is a symbol of international brotherhood and in no way interferes with the stars and stripes.

POLISH ARMY WITHIN 50 MILES OF BERLIN

Meets With Slight Resistance in Occupation of Important Railway Stations of Baulthen, Guesen and Bromberg—Germans Hastily Re-Arming Demobilized Troops

40,000 MEN SWEEP HUNS ASIDE AND CAPTURE FRANKFORT-ON-THE-ODER

GENEVA, Jan. 2.—A Polish army of thirty to forty thousand men, striking toward Berlin, has captured Frankfort-On-The-Oder, only fifty miles from the German capital. The Polish agency in Lausanne was notified by telegraph from Poznan today. The Germans, the report said, are hastily re-arming their demobilized troops in an effort to stem the Polish invasion.

The Polish force consisted of infantry, cavalry and artillery. All well armed, the report said. Cavalry moving rapidly ahead of the main body was reported to have entered Poznan and Frankfort-On-The-Oder. The important railway stations at Baulthen, Guesen and Bromberg, it was said, were occupied with but slight resistance.

POLES FIGHTING FOR SEPARATION FROM GERMANY

Advances on Berlin Is Civil War for Purpose of Securing Consent to Unite With Russian and Austrian Poles

By J. W. T. MASON

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The advance of a Polish army on Berlin is an act of civil war. It is an effort by the population of Prussian Poland to wrest from the German government consent to separate from Germany and unite with Russian and Austrian Poland in a single, great commonwealth.

Case May Be Typical

For this purpose, Prussian Poland can call for help from the Polish districts of Austria and Russia, and still conduct its warfare against the Germans as a civil strife. The advantage of doing so is very great. While the German people might rally to repel foreign invader and their sell, there is a strong possibility that they would show no enthusiasm in fighting a Polish army, which is seeking no more than freedom for the Poles.

Germany's Defense Weak

The possibility of an army of 40,000 Poles proceeding toward Berlin is not as ridiculous as appears on its face. The disorganization of the German military machine has left the defense of the empire in a poor condition, while the demands of the allies for delivery of war materials under the armistice terms has seriously depleted Germany's stock of weapons. But, more influential on the immediate course of events than either of these facts is the loss of fighting morale Germany has suffered.

The most abhorred word in Germany now is war. The people, therefore, may decline to permit the government to engage in any operations against the Poles which would mean extensive bloodshed.

GERMAN PRINCE LOSES HIS JOB

Relative of Kaiser Is Dispossessed of His Rank and Home

BY WEBB MILLER

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS IN GERMANY, Dec. 30.—(By Courier.)—Prince Karl of Hohenzollern, a distant relative of the Kaiser, lost his job as a lieutenant-general in the German army. So, he came to rest of his quiet and solitude of his family castle at Amdorff.

But he found neither quiet nor solitude—the castle had been taken by the American and was being used as the hotel De Dougherty. Prince, however, accepted the situation in a philosophical mood. He even agreed to be interviewed by an American newspaper man.

The utmost disapproval of the bearing of open cities and of submarine warfare was expressed by Prince Karl. Germany, he said, could never have started submarine warfare unless she was sure it was going to succeed. He intended to know something of America's sentiments regarding the Lusitania.

The prince deplored the fact that German propaganda was not coming on a larger scale. He particularly greeted it was subversive in the United States.

He said that German diplomats frequently engaged in national propaganda sort of baited that he had disapproved the Germans by saying they were whipped.

In conclusion, Prince Karl high tribute to the American. They weren't very strong as far as he was concerned, but he said they had fought.

HISTORY'S LESSON

There is no possibility for argument over the proposition that the league of nations or of any other arrangement that may be devised for the preservation of peace, can be only as effective as is the penalty provided for violation of its terms.

The pages of history are replete with the records of humanity's struggle toward the attainment of a situation where war will be impossible. A study of these records shows, if nothing more, that the adequate penalty to be imposed upon the person or nation guilty of precipitating armed conflict has not yet been devised.

This argument, however, has not been in the past and is not now, sufficient to discourage continued efforts toward the consummation of humanity and does now desire most earnestly.

And no effective arrangement to this end can be evolved without study of the similar efforts that have preceded the present one, and the causes for their failure.

No student of history is ignorant of a most noble effort put forth with all the then prevalent influence of the Church behind it in the eleventh century to stop warfare.

The disastrous nature of perpetual feudal warfare and the necessity for some degree of peace and order had already become apparent at that time.

Commerce and enlightenment were increasing in the older towns and preparing the way for the development of new ones. These engaged in peaceful pursuits could not but find the prevailing disorder intolerable.

The Church was untiring, as it was fitting that it should be, in its efforts to secure peace and nothing redounds more to the honor of the bishops than the "Treaty of God."

The Treaty of God was a plan of agreement widely urged by the clergy in the early part of the eleventh century, and later introduced officially into some countries and provinces for the purpose of diminishing the constant violence and warfare. In its earliest form it was a proposal to refrain from the use of arms altogether, but as later modified and as introduced as a law into Normandy in 1042, it provided only that there should be no private warfare or other fighting or disorder from sunset of each Wednesday until sunrise of the next Wednesday.

The church councils and the bishops required the feudal lords to take an oath to observe the weekly truce, and, by means of the dreaded penalty of excommunication, met with some success.

With the opening of the Crusades in 1096 the popes undertook to effect a general pacification by diverting the prevailing warlike instinct against the Turks.

At about the same time, the king, in France and England at least, was becoming a power that made for order in the modern sense of the word. He endeavored to prevent the customary custom to arms to settle every sort of difficulty between rival vassals. By suppressing the military force that he had at his command he compelled the submission of cases of dispute to his tribunals.

But even St. Louis, who died in 1270, by his noblest efforts to do good, was unable to succeed in accomplishing his end.

The verdict of the historians is that the better of conditions was due chiefly to general progress and to the development of commerce and industry, which made the baron's aristocracy less and more intolerable.

There had to be a halt in the progress of general progress and to the development of commerce and industry, which made the baron's aristocracy less and more intolerable.

There had to be a halt in the progress of general progress and to the development of commerce and industry, which made the baron's aristocracy less and more intolerable.

BUREAU OF NATURALIZATION USES MOTION PICTURES WITH SUCCESS

Unique Scheme for Education of Aliens Is Enlarged by Addition of Second Series of Historical and Industrial Films

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—So well has the plan of the bureau of naturalization for educational motion pictures for aliens been received that it has been greatly enlarged. Instead of a single series of historical and industrial films the bureau will present two series.

The first series will be introductory, showing the development of the nation and of its industries from the early days down to the present period of after-war readjustment.

When the aliens have been given a general idea of the greatness of the country they have acquired as their own they will have a second series of pictures showing them exactly the opportunities provided them in particular trades.

For instance, there will be a film showing how a naturalized citizen took the farm, how he built it up, how he made for himself a good living, built a house and raised his family in comfort under the protection of the government.

Another picture will show the new-comer may go into, say, the shoe business. The pieces of machinery used and the parts of a shoe will be shown on the screen, with the name of each object in English and in the native tongue of the foreigner. Thus he can learn the name and the use of every article he will have to handle when he comes to the shoe order. To impress them on his mind, the teacher will repeat the names and then have the class repeat them, until every man will know the lesson by heart.

Planned for 2,000 Classes This extended plan is the result of a conference between Raymond F. Crist, deputy commissioner of naturalization; David K. Niles, cinema expert of the information and education service, U. S. department of labor, and motion picture producers.

The films will be shown to nearly 2,000 classes for aliens in all parts of the country. The pupils will adjourn to the local motion picture houses to see the pictures, with their teachers attending to explain everything.

By a little more than three months since its establishment—the investigation and inspection service of the department of labor has investigated and reported on 185 cases. This is an unusual record, according to the average of accomplishment in this difficult line of work. The factories and workshops to which attention was given were distributed over all parts of the United States; special agents of the service being sent to cities east, west, north and south.

Because of the confidential character of its work, which is to carry on investigations directed by other services, the conditions of the department of labor, definite information about special agents seldom can be given out. During the war much use of this special branch of the department was made by the war industries board, which referred to a little more than three months since its establishment—the investigation and inspection service of the department of labor has investigated and reported on 185 cases. This is an unusual record, according to the average of accomplishment in this difficult line of work. TWIN FALLS HIGH-CLASS OUTFITTERS

UNLOADING SALE

Throw Their $40,000 Stock of High-Class Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Hats, Shoes, on the Market to Be Sacrificed to the Public SALE BEGINS AT 9 O'CLOCK, FRIDAY, JANUARY 3

OUR EXPLANATION

Men and women are market wise to the merchandise situation and will not overlook the importance of this sale. The very fact that it embraces our entire matchless stock, with nothing left out or reserved, is sufficient to stamp this as the New Year's most fortunate and foremost economy. Woolens are scarcer—not on the market for civilian use at all—and cotton mixtures are climbing higher in price—almost hourly, one might well say. And the end is far from in sight.

Most of our clothing is 100 per cent pure wool, contracted for many months before the great advance. So regardless of what your financial standing may be, in justice to yourself, your appearance, and your most economical desire, you cannot afford to miss your share of these unusual sacrifices. Every article in this Mammoth Stock of High Art Merchandise you'll find carrying its plain, figured, marked, truth-telling price tag, attached and properly listed with its saving easy to be seen. This success has been noticed in clear, meth- ods, helpful to those who are interested in those who purchase. (Signed) J. A. SINCLAIR.

This was the first word brought directly from the vessel since the coast guards boarded her yesterday.

There was no panic or excitement when the transport struck, he said.

The Orpheum Theater
Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson and a notable cast in PASSING OF THE THIRD FLOOR BACK

A most extraordinary production, from Jerome K. Jerome's great play. There is more genuine human interest in this story than is usually presented. A six part play that dramatically tells us nine stories, "The Cheating Landlady," "The Impertinent Slave," "The Sporting Set," "The Cad," "The Snob," "Whom Who Sacrifices Love for Money," "The Bullying Major and His Showish Wife," "The Scholar," and "The Artist Who Sacrifices Ideals for Love."

No man or woman can see the unfolding of the plot, and the changes wrought in the lives of the various characters by the mysterious stranger, without deriving genuine entertainment and personal good. A remarkable story, splendidly directed, excellently acted. If you see it you will say it ranks among the best theatricals ever shown.

Coming Tomorrow MAE MARSH in a splendid feature entitled "HIDDEN FIRES" a dramatic romance wherein a beautiful girl out-wits grim fate.

Hungary's Capital
in State of Siege

By FRANK J. DELAY
BUDAPEST, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Hungary is in a state of siege, following the order which was issued by the government.

Several persons were killed or wounded in street fighting between the demonstrators and government guards.

The strike is a protest against the government's policy of maintaining the barracks and government buildings.

The disorder continues, and the latest reports showed wholesale plundering under way.
