THE DRAGON'S SPAWN

Readers of modern European history have not overlooked the coincidence in the historical facts that in the palace of Versailles in January, 1871, what was until very recently the German empire came into being when William I, king of Prussia, surrounded by the German princes, was proclaimed German emperor; and that in Versailles in January, 1919, there is assembling a peace conference at which will be seated the representatives of practically the whole civilized world whose principle purpose is to bring about the dissolution of the German empire and the policies for which it stood.

It has required rather less than forty-eight years to bring about the dissolution of the German empire, a dissolution that was an inevitable consequence upon the dawning recognition of the sinister significance of the foundations, the career and the aims of the empire, and certain from the first although this dissolution has planned almost the whole world in blood and suffering.

The seeds of the great world war just closing and of all its cost, were sown when the German empire was brought into being under the jealous ministrations of that great statesman and great rascal, Bismark, and the father of the late kaiser.

The writers of the textbooks used in our schools at least until very recently have been duped by the German propagandists who began their poisonous occupation long before the outbreak of the war; the teaching of the German language in our schools, for which there can be no adequate excuse either of practicability or erudition, standing out as a conspicuous example of their machinations.

Our textbook writers thus, hoodwinked have even perpetuated the German lie that France forced upon Prussia the war of 1870 in consequence of which the southern German states rallied to the support of Prussia and the North German Federation, as Bismark had planned that they should, and the proclamation of the German empire took place in occupied France.

With all their subtle adroitness, however, the propagandists of the Hunns have not concealed wholly, even in the pages of our school histories, the trail of the serpent, the spawn of the dragon's tooth.

Here is an illuminating statement from the pages of Robinson's History of Western Europe bearing upon the building of the German military machine in which the important parts played by Bismark and the sire of the late kaiser are cloaked in the garment of commendable policy of expediency.

"The war of independence against Napoleon in 1813 had led to the summoning of the nation to arms, and a law was passed in Prussia making military service a universal obligation of every healthy man-at-arms. The first thing that William I did was to increase the annual levy from forty to sixty thousand men, and to see that all the soldiers returned in active service for three years. They then passed into the reserve, according to the existing law, where for two years more they remained ready to take up arms at any time, should it be necessary.

"William wished to increase the term of service in the reserve to four years. In this way the state would claim seven of the years of early manhood and have an effective army of four hundred thousand, which would permit it to dispense with the services of those who were approaching middle life. The lower-house of the Prussian parliament refused, however, to make the necessary appropriations for increasing the strength of the army.

"The king proceeded, nevertheless, with his plan, and in 1862, called to his side one of the most extraordinary statesmen of modern times, Bismark. The new minister conceived a scheme for laying Austria low and exalting Prussia, which he succeeded in carrying through with startling precision. He could not, however, reveal it to the lower chamber; he would, indeed, scarcely hint its nature to the king himself. In defiance of the lower house and of the newspapers, he carried on the strengthening of the army without formal appropriations, on the theory that the constitution had not provided for a deadlock between the upper and lower house, and that consequently the king might exercise, in such a case, his former absolute power.

"For a time it seemed as if Prussia was returning to a pure despotism, for there was assuredly no more fundamental provision of the constitution than the right of the people to control the granting of the taxes. Yet Bismark was eventually fully authorized by public opinion, and it was generally agreed that the end had amply justified the means."

GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Highest levels of the season were reached by grain futures on Tuesday today on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Disappointing receipts and a Hoover statement on food shipments to Europe caused strength. Provisions were steady to higher. January corn, up 1/4 at the opening, 14 1/2, was 2 cents higher. February corn, up 1/4 at 140, the opening, gained 3 cents. March corn, up 5/8 at the opening, 13 1/2, was 1/4 higher. May corn, up 1 1/4 at the opening, 13 1/2, was up 1 1/4. July corn, opening 1/4 at 137 3/8, gained 1 7/8.

CHICAGO CLOSING GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Corn, January, down 1/4; February, down 3/8; March, down 1/4; May, down 5/8. Oats, January, down 5/8; February, down 5/8; March, down 3/8; May, down 1/4.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Hog receipts, 43,200; market, slow and steady. Cattle—Receipts, 25,000. Sheep—Receipts, 20,000.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Prices were fractionally higher at the opening of the stock market today. Mexican Petroleum opened at 188; up 1; Marine preferred, 11 1/4, off 1/4; Tobacco Products, 75 7/8; up 1/4. American Smelting, 76 5/8, up 1/4; U. S. Steel, 94 1/2, off 3/8; Corn products, 49 1/2, up 1/4; Anaconda, 44 1/2, up 1/4; Distillers, 33 5/8, up 1/4.

Substitute for Coffee.

The Japanese have a substitute for coffee, said to be almost equal in every respect to natural Brazilian coffee. As a result of chemical analysis by experts it is said that the goods are more wholesome than the natural bean, while retaining all its flavor and quality.

A LITTLE HORSE SENSE NOW AND THEN, IS RELISHED BY MOST ANY MAN
Health Commissioner of New York City Tells Why He Kept Theatres Open During Recent Epidemic
Following is the letter sent by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner of New York City, to the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry:
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH
City of New York
130 Court Street
New York
December 17, 1918.
National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, Times Building, City.
Gentlemen:
I am pleased to comply with your request to furnish you with my observations regarding the relation of the theatres, and the motion picture theatre in particular, to the recent epidemic of influenza in New York City. As you know I was steadfastly of the opinion that in a city like New York it would be folly to expect to obtain relief through the closing of the moving picture theatres, when the crowded transportation lines and other densely packed places of assembly were permitted to operate. There never was any doubt in my mind regarding the status of the well ventilated theatre, but I did have serious objection to allowing the insular, bolt-in-the-wall theatre to continue. Every place of the latter sort which our inspectors found was closed immediately and was not allowed to reopen until the necessary alterations and improvements in the operation were made.
The moving picture theatres were of great assistance to the Department of Health in furthering the work of the public health education during the epidemic. Managers of the various theatres gave brief talks before the opening of each performance, advising their patrons of the requirements of the Board of Health regarding sneezing, coughing, and expectorating. In every motion picture theatre in the city, messages were flashed on the screen with appeals from the Board of Health for the cooperation of the public in stamping out the epidemic. Managers limited their audience to the number of persons that could be seated and prohibited smoking for the period of the epidemic.
MY PRINCIPAL PURPOSE IN KEEPING OPEN THE THEATRES IN NEW YORK CITY WAS TO PRESERVE THE MORALE OF PATRONS AND EMPLOYEES AND THEREBY TO PREVENT THE EPIDEMIC FROM BEING A CONDITION OF MIND WHICH WOULD PREDISPOSE IT TO PHYSICAL ILLS.
PROPERLY OPERATED THEATRES WERE VALUABLE FACTORS IN MAINTAINING THE MORALE OF THE CITY, AND NEW YORK CITY WAS PROBABLY FREE FROM A HYPERBOLIC SENSE OF CALAMITY DURING OUR EPIDEMIC AND I AM FIRMLY CONVINCED THAT IT WOULD HAVE BEEN VERY UNWISE TO HAVE CLOSED THEM.
Very truly yours,
(Signed) R. S. COPELAND, Commissioner.

TRAINING LITTLE CHILDREN

Simple Devices for Keeping Children Happily Occupied and Mentally Active—They Also Help to Make Mother's Tasks Easier.

By Mrs. Katharine Church Solomon.
Very often the mother would seem to have little time or strength to spend other than in attention to the children's actual physical care and requirements, and yet by a little wise thinking and arranging she can start many plays and occupations which will not only give the children pleasure and teach them how to do things but result in a quieter, easier and more joyous task for herself.

The Home Atmosphere
One of the most helpful factors in the harmonious development of mother-child life is a right attitude of mind. It is, of course, most desirable that it be one of contentment and peace; but too often mothers, in addition to the work of housekeeping and the bearing and rearing of children, are obliged to contend with problems of sickness and family disagreements.
The Yard
A yard can be made an ideal playground at a moderate expense. Playing its small apparatus more than anything else to children of three and four years. It will engage and keep them occupied for hours at a time. Therefore, the first thing to put in the yard is a sand box. This can be done by nailing four boards together, and partly embedding them in the ground. Babies should not be allowed to play by themselves in the sand until they are old enough to know that they should not put it in their mouths. And none of the children should be permitted to throw sand, because of the danger to the eyes.

Facing Changed Conditions.
"I'm looking for employment, sir. I'll be frank with you. I've just been released from prison. 'Ahoni! One of the model prisoners.' 'Yes, sir.' 'Well, I'm willing to give you a chance, but every man we employ is expected to hustle for you. This job will be set down to hard work and long hours after the life of elegant leisure you have doubtless enjoyed in prison. I'll make a place for you.'
Harsh Egyptian Custom.
The law of the Egyptians in respect to debtors and creditors was to the effect that if you could not pay back borrowed money without paying to the creditor the dead body of his father, or nearest ancestor, which every man kept embalmed in his house. It was thought infamous and impious not to redeem so precious a pledge, and he who died without having discharged his duty was deprived of the customary honors of burial.

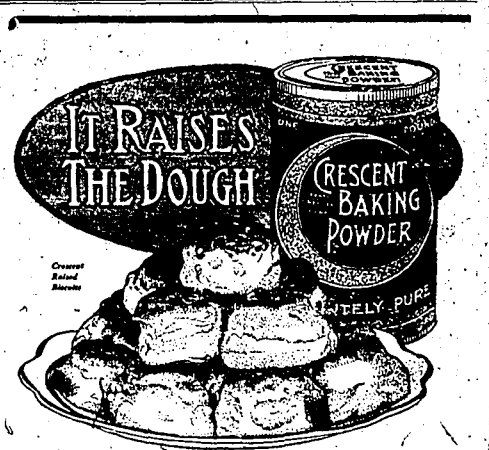

Disappearing Lake.
In the canton of Valais, in Switzerland, at the foot of the great Aletsch glacier, lies a small body of water, Lake Mervall, which at irregular intervals, every three or four years, completely and suddenly disappears. The phenomenon always occurs during the last days of August.

Miles of Wire on a Big Gun.
No fewer than 117 miles of steel wire are wound on a 12-inch gun that weighs 13 1/2 tons. In appearance this wire, which is of the same quality as piano wire, resembles tape; it is one-quarter of an inch wide and one-tenth of an inch thick. It is tested to a breaking strength of 310 tons.

Confucius.
Confucius was not a religious teacher. He taught ethics and was a great philosopher. His doctrines dealt with man's relations to man, and not with man's relations or responsibility to God. The true followers of Confucius can properly be said to have no religion, but most Confucianists have religious notions borrowed either from the Buddhist or Taoist religions, or from both.

NO COMES TO EX-PRESIDENT UNEXPECTEDLY

Clot of Blood on Heart Proves Fatal, Bringing Remarkable Career of Eminent American to Close

Before the funeral at Christ church there will be a service at the house. The family wants no flowers to be sent by outsiders; and desires that the services both at the home and in the church be private.

Colonel's Last Work

The place where Colonel Roosevelt will be buried was picked out by him five years ago. It is not far from Saginaw Hill. On Sunday, the colonel dictated two editorials. This was his last work.

Physician Called Twice

Dr. Fuller saw Colonel Roosevelt last at 11 o'clock Sunday evening. He made a call at 8 o'clock during which Roosevelt appeared so well that he refused to discuss his illness. At 11 o'clock the doctor was summoned. Roosevelt told him he was suffering considerably from indigestion, having trouble with his breath, and that he "had a feeling that his heart would stop beating." Dr. Fuller examined his lungs and heart and found nothing wrong with them. Before the physician left, Roosevelt felt much better and was in his old spirits again.

After her return at midnight, Mrs. Roosevelt entered the bedroom about 2 a. m. She found her husband sleeping. However, she felt very nervous, so called Amos, the colored attendant, and asked him to remain by the bed during the night. Amos said he belonged to Roosevelt's household, which was normal, until about 4:15 a. m., when it suddenly became irregular, then quietly stopped. This was accompanied by the slight convulsions of the features, which passed immediately. Amos then witnessed Colonel Roosevelt's death.

Last Hours Cheerful

When the nurse, Evelyn Thoms of the Polytechnic hospital, New York, opened the bedroom, Roosevelt was lying on his left side, arms folded loosely across his chest, eyes closed as if still asleep.

John Gerard was the last barber to have the colonel. He was called to the house Sunday morning. Roosevelt asked him to be sure and return Monday. Gerard today said the former president was in jovial spirits, laughing and joking during the shaving, in spite of the rheumatism which had pained his right hand for so long.

Family Selects Hymns

The exact hour of the funeral services at the house is 12:45 p. m. Wednesday. It was announced this afternoon that services at the church will be held at 2 p. m. No reservations for any organizations will be made. The church is small, with seats only for 400 persons.

Rev. George E. Talmadge, who will conduct the services, is a nephew of Dr. Dewitt Talmadge, well known Brooklyn preacher. He said this afternoon the ceremony will be simply the Episcopal burial ritual. The hymns had not been selected by the members of the family, he said. There will be no sermon.

Colonel Roosevelt spent Sunday evening, Wednesday, with Mrs. Roosevelt and chatting with Dr. Fuller, who left him apparently much improved and in excellent spirits. He dictated a number of letters. Despite his recent return from the hospital, where he was confined for weeks by a stack of studies with various complications, he had much of his old vigor. When Dr. Fuller left him, Roosevelt was laughing and called "Good Night" most cheerfully.

Take Shock Bravely

At midnight he retired. Mrs. Roosevelt sat with him for a while, then as he fell asleep, she went to her own room. At 4:15 a. m. the man servant became alarmed and called the nurse.

There was nothing that could be done. Roosevelt was dead.

Planned Trip to Europe

The colonel was planning a trip to Europe to visit Quentin's grave. This trip was to be made as soon as he had sufficiently recovered his health. The death of Quentin was a severe shock to Roosevelt and is believed to have hastened his end.

Archie Roosevelt, another son, was wounded by shrapnel on the Toul front and was decorated with the French war cross as he lay on the operating table. This cross was Colonel Roosevelt's most prized possession.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., was gassed during the fighting at Cantigny.

Kermit Roosevelt fought with both British and American armies. Colonel Roosevelt was looking for ward to a reunion of the whole family when all his boys returned from the war.

Health Was Failing

Colonel Roosevelt was 60 years old, having been born in New York, October 27, 1858. He was the twenty-sixth president of the United States, having succeeded to the presidency on the death of William McKinley, who was shot and killed at Buffalo, New York. His health had not been very good for some time. In fact, he had left Roosevelt hospital only a short time ago.

Formed Brilliant Chapter

The life of the former president is one of the most brilliant chapters in American history. Loved and admired in some quarters, he succeeded, however, in acquiring the enmity of many prominent men and his later life was filled with strife on one hand and preparation for even more strenuous, more public life on the other.

It was popularly believed, in fact, that Roosevelt would make an effort to become president again at the next national election, although no expression of any kind on the subject had come from him.

First Preparedness Advocate

Roosevelt's war record was full of patriotic movements. His opposition to the democratic administration in its conduct of the war also was marked. At the outbreak of hostilities, he wanted to raise a regiment of soldiers and head it in an expedition to France.

quilt of the people was behind the demonstration.

Honors Mrs. Wilson

As the party started for the palace the police and secret service men were unable to keep back the throngs who nearly swept the president and his wife from their carriages. Mrs. Wilson's carriage was flooded with flowers, which she tossed back to the people as souvenirs. Many fought to touch Mrs. Wilson's hands or kiss her garments. Arriving at the palace, President and Mrs. Wilson were repeatedly called to the balcony by the insistent clamor of the crowd. It was estimated that fifty thousands persons were massed in the streets below.

In response to demands the president said he was unable to make a formal speech.

"But I wish to say, 'God bless you all,' and 'Viva Italy,' he said. Then a band struck up the Italian national anthem and the president sent the crowd wild by leading the music. Pleasants had been posted all over Milan, bearing greetings to the president and stating that Italy's only peace aim is the restoration of her natural borders. These sentiments were backed up by the mayor in his address of welcome.

Made Honorary Citizen

President Wilson speaking today on the occasion of his acceptance of an honorary citizenship of Milan, said:

"M. Mayor: May I not say to you as the representative of this great city that it is impossible for me to put into words the impressions I have received today! The overwhelming welcome, the spontaneous welcome, which so evidently came from the heart, has been profoundly moving to me, sir, and I have not failed to see the significance of that welcome. You have yourself referred to it.

Must Serve People

"I am as keenly aware, I believe, sir, as anybody can be, that the social structure rests upon the great working classes of the world; that those working classes in all the several countries of the world have, by their consciousness of a community of spirit, done perhaps more than any other influence has to establish world opinion, which is the basis of the nation, not of the continent, but is the opinion, one might say, of mankind. And I am aware, sir, that those of us now charged with the very great and serious responsibility of concluding peace must think, act and consider in the presence of this opinion; that we are not the masters of the fortunes of any nation, but are the servants of mankind; that it is not our privilege to follow special interests, but it is our manifest duty to study only the general interest.

He was a pioneer in the plea for military preparedness in the United States and fought hard for a large army and a powerful navy long before this country entered the war.

Life of Adventure

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's life was one long adventure. He met danger in public life, in the wilds of the western United States, the jungles of Africa and the unexplored regions of South America.

He was frequently attacked by public men in this country and on one occasion he spoke in the Guild Hall, London, bearing the British for their treatment of the Egyptians. The British foreign minister heard the speech. He criticized the American "commercial spir-

Scientific Trips Historical

Colonel Roosevelt was one of the few presidents of the United States to leave the country after his term of office. His trips to Africa and South America were historical. Both were made in the interests of science.

On his trip to Africa, leaving the United States March 23, 1909, he covered 29,433 miles, spending practically eleven months in the African jungles. He visited the capital of nearly every country on the two eastern continents, hobnobbed with rulers and diplomats. Degrees were conferred on him by the countries, Egypt, Lopele, Sorbona, Berlin, Christiania, Cambridge and Oxford. He was received in audience by the kings of Egiandia, Italy, Belgium, Norway and England, emperors of Austria and Germany, Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, the crown prince of Denmark and Sweden and the president of France.

THE UNBELIEVER

A Picturization of the Finest Story Ever Written by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews

It palpitates with vigorous action, tender emotion and clean, wholesome sentiment. A 7-part production that shows from some angle with every man, woman or child who sees it. It tells of how a young aristocrat, by service in the marines, overcomes his race hatred, his class prejudice and his disbelief in God. During its showing in Denver, Colo., it was so well liked that the leading minister used "The Unbeliever" as the subject of his sermon. This was the Rev. Boyle of the Central Presbyterian Church. A fotoplay worthy of your patronage and appreciation.
