The crisis in the premier's condition was expected to be reached Sunday when it will be determined whether it will be necessary for him to remain quiet for a few days longer.

BERGER MAKES HIS STATEMENT TO THE PUBLIC

Congressmen—Elect Who is Convicted of Espionage Says Socialism Must Be Recognized

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Victor Berger, who was sentenced to twenty years in the Leavenworth prison for espionage on a charge of violation of the espionage act, today gave newspaper men the following statement:

Berger's Statement.—The sentence proves that the United States of America takes the place of Old Russia, and the Czars as the bulwark of reactionary and tyrannical aristocracies of the world.

It will take the people thirty years hard fighting to win back the civil liberties which we have lost in the last year and a half, unless labor and socialism take the sheet out and shut the ruling classes that conditions at the first half of the eighteenth century cannot be re-established in the first half of the twentieth century, even with the help of Bolshevism, Gregory and the secret service.

Socialism is World Hope.—The hope of the world is in the international socialism. If international socialism does not prevent it, we have established autocracy or industrial anarchy or both.

CAMP AT BREST INSPECTED BY AUTHORITIES

Conditions at the Port of Embarkation Have Been Made the Subject of a Thorough Investigation

OFFICIAL FIGURES SHOW THE RUMORS ARE FALSE

New Arrivals at the Garrison are Given Complete New Outfits and the Best of Food and Care

BY LOWELL MELLETT
BREST, Feb. 21.—The mothers of America, who are waiting for their boys to come home, may rest assured that Brest is not a "pest hole" despite reports to the contrary. This assertion is based on official figures showing the sick and dead here to be lower than in any other camp in France, and on the results of a personal investigation by the correspondent.

Chief Port of Arrival
Brest was selected as the chief port for the arrival of American troops in France primarily because it is the closest to the United States and the danger of submarine attacks is lessened in consequence. Its strategic and geographical advantages outweigh its climatic drawbacks. The rain seems to fall more frequently in Brest. The soft ground is unusually a morass of mud. But when rain and mud are mentioned the worst is told.

Many Conventions
A train load of soldiers, arriving at Camp Pontonnieres from the city and Red Cross nurses waiting on the platform to serve them with hot chocolate before they hike to their billets if it is in the rain. If it is a clear night the soldiers are given a big supper at a kitchen capable of feeding 70,000. When they arrive at the camp proper they are billeted either in tents or barracks. These tents are floored, have stoves and are equipped with bunk beds securely fastened in the side walls. They hold six men, each receiving six square feet of regulation provide. When given their choice many newcomers prefer the tents to the barracks.

The name is true of a part of the present garrison. It is no question of their warmth. The correspondent visited several on one of the coldest nights Brest has experienced this winter.

Average Conditions
This describes the condition the average trainload of soldiers find, but occasionally the failure of transports to arrive on time results in crowding, causes emergency utilization of un-floored tents. In such cases the permanent troops turn out and collect the duckboards from store houses, with which temporary floors are made. Before the big dark kitchen was completed, the kitchen crews also used to turn out and get up meals for the newcomers no matter what the weather.

Get New Outfits
The tented areas are well drained, regardless of the rain. The newcomers are made to dry their clothes. The next morning they are given a breakfast of braised beef, cornmeal mush, bread and jam or syrup and coffee. They are given a bath which is designed to remove all vermin and leave all their clothes behind, receiving a complete new outfit. Then they move to new quarters, either in tents or barracks.

The Daily Menu
Dinner consists of roast beef, mashed potatoes, brown gravy, salad (usually made of cold beans, onions, tomatoes and pickles), sweet corn, coffee and ice and of course bread. For supper they have Turkish stew, baked beans, creamed potatoes, bread pudding, bread and coffee. This is one of the typical menu for men and officers alike. The menus vary among the kitchens and from day to day. The result is there is keen competition for the "best" given out by the kitchen judges to be serving the "best" a week's leave every month. Sometimes, as a consequence, the men get hot cakes and doughnuts for breakfast, pie for dinner, etc.

Generous Amounts
The amount of food allowed to each man is unlimited. He can repeat the whole dinner if he desires. Feeling free to dine on an exact schedule, by which it is impossible for a man to spend more than thirty minutes going and coming between the barracks and kitchen, usually about twenty minutes. This would seem to dispose of the idea that the men stand for hours in the rain, waiting to eat.

While it is never necessary to encourage the men to move rapidly to get their food, one negro, serving a negroes' "mess" seems to think it is. The correspondent watched him leading out a man, pushing his little cart from side to side and crying "the longer I shake the less you get." The first time he did this the diners' eyes popped out as they watched him. The man poured off the ladle, whereupon the ladle would grin and dip up great ladlefuls in the waiting plates. Meantime another server would be grinning and leading the man back to the mess barracks. Altogether the kitchen area is a merry place.

Mess Wash Mess Kits
It has been seriously charged that the mess are compelled to wash their own mess kits. This is true. They have to do it in the field, often with cold water and no soap. But in Brest the washing consists of dipping the refuse in garbage cans, then dipping the aluminum plates, cups and spoons in big tanks of constantly boiling water, from which they emerge not only clean but sterilized and dry almost as soon as they strike the air.

TWO POINTS OF VIEW

It is hard to get away from the proposition that if the Senate of the United States has no right to discuss the matter of the League of Nations' constitution, the President is equally bound to refrain from such discussion.

It will be interesting to hear from the lips of the President himself just what the program amounts to, but there is room for question if any discussion of the proposition by the Senate would in any way affect the outcome.

There is no question but what room for discussion exists. To date, President Wilson's statements on the subject of his views on world peace are accepted as meaning many different things.

Senator Borah once enjoyed the distinction of possessing the most prolific pen in the records of John Main, St. Louis. He wrote, Testaments, Psalms, Hymns, Prayer Books, Outchisms, Proverbs, Books, new and old, in various branches of literature.

Approval of an issue of $1,250,000 worth of bonds for the carrying into execution this year of an extensive program of highway building and repair will be asked by the commissioners of the Twin Falls highway district at an election to be held probably on Tuesday, March 11.

This was the decision reached at the meeting of the commissioners Thursday. A telegram was dispatched to the Street, Curbway, Postway company, Denver, to whom a contract to prepare proceedings for the proposed bond issue had been let asking this company to prepare such proceedings if possible for an election to be held on that date.

The proposed program of road building, concerning which detailed statement is to be made shortly by the commissioners, contemplates the construction of some 14 miles of macadamized or bituminous road on the east and west side highways through the district, the building of some 100 miles of gravel or crushed rock surfaced road, besides a considerable distance of graded cart roads and the installation of several bridges.

Program to be Presented

Find It Out, Afterward. If a young man is really in love, he never says he can't afford to marry.

Optimistic Thought. It is honorable to be accused by those who deserve to be accused.

Optimistic Thought. Age is venerable in a man and would be in a woman if she ever became old.

Reason in Their Fall. Institutions may crumble and governments fall, but it is only that they may renew a better youth.—George Bancroft.

Head Down. An Indiana paper tells of a woman "with tears coming down her brow." Imagination can only picture a trapeze performer doing the weep with her other act.—Boston Transcript.

Left-Handed. It has been noticed that parrots usually seize objects with the left claw, and that the lion uses the right paw when striking its prey.

Happiness Follows Good Work. Do good work. Give your first thought and your best effort to the improvement of your work. Happiness, success and plenty must follow.

One Word Spells All. Just when a woman begins to be invited out a little by nice people her husband spells all by referring to the fondness as the washerwoman rights' out where everybody can hear.—Ohio State Journal.

To Prevent Rugs Slipping. There are many devices to prevent rugs from slipping on highly-polished floors. One of the best and also the cheapest is to cut pieces of rough sheeting paper the exact size of the rugs and lay it under them. They will not move then. Another way is to sew triangles of corrugated rubber sheeting to the corners of the rugs.

Rounds Robin. Originally a round robin was a petition or protest signed in such a way that no name headed the list; that is the signatures were usually placed in circular form. The device is French and the term a corruption of round (round) and ruban (a ribbon). It was first adopted by the officers of government as a means of making known their grievances.

WITNESSES SAY ALLEGED LIBEL NOT INACCURATE

W. S. Hyde Introduces Testimony in Support of Claim to Prove Charges on Which A. V. Mounce Sues

In accordance with the promise of his formal answer to prove the accuracy of the statements attributed to him by American Vespucius Mounce in a suit for recovery of $30,000 for alleged slander and libel, Winfield Scott Hyde in district court here Thursday afternoon introduced the testimony of 15 witnesses from among the citizens of Buhl of which city both principals in the action are residents.

Petition is Brought Up. That Mounce headed a list of signers to a petition addressed to the president and to congress asking that American troops be sent to France was a statement made in the testimony of L. C. Washburn, justice of the peace at Buhl, to whom the petition was brought by former Deputy Sheriff J. F. Baymiller and by whom it was referred to the Buhl auxiliary county county council of defense.

Reports Mounce's Gift. According to the testimony of Dr. A. P. McClusky of Buhl, chairman of the first and second Y. M. C. A. war fund campaigns in that district Mounce contributed only $20 to the second campaign where other citizens of financing similar to his subscribed from $10 to $50.

Other witnesses testified that Mounce had stated to them that he was not interested in the war against Germany or in the work of the Red Cross, although he claimed to be the heaviest contributor to the Red Cross in Buhl.

A number of the witnesses were called to testify as to the reputation of Mounce for truth and veracity and in respect to his reputation in support of lack of support of the war.

Bases of Charge. The action against Hyde is based on oral statements he is alleged to have made in February, 1917, in a representative of a Tacoma building and loan concern to the effect that Mounce was pro-German, and upon written statements alleged to have been made by him to officials of this concern to the effect that Mounce did not contribute in respect to his contributions to the Y. M. C. A. and other war funds, and that he was known in Buhl as the "accidental Kaiser." Hyde denies the truth of the oral statement attributed to him on account of which damages in the sum of $20,000 is asked, but admits making the written statements the necessity of which he is endeavoring to prove by means of the testimony of witnesses.

Non-Suit Overruled. Before any testimony on behalf of Hyde was introduced, Judge Babcock refused a motion for a non-suit argued for by Judge E. A. Walters, who with Shad L. Hodgins represents Hyde, and argued against Turner K. Hackman, who with E. M. Wolfe, appears for Mounce.

It Can't Be Done. A French professor avers that the greatest wealth of ideas comes to the human brain between two and five o'clock in the morning. Has the learned professor ever been able to hit on one that came anywys near fooling his wife during the wee small hours? Neither have we.—Grit.

The Sunflower. In olden times the man for the sunflower was solecise the sun-follower. The ancient sunflower, or sun-follower, was the marigold; the plants of the present day are of American origin. It sometimes attains a height of 20 feet and was introduced into Europe in the middle of the sixteenth century.

Took Time to Prepare Work. The more one reads the greater the more one must appreciate the fact that Victor Hugo's immortal description of the battle of Waterloo was not written until 1801, or 46 years after it happened, and time had been given for the heat to settle. It was 17 years after the battle that Victor Hugo wrote "Bury the Dead Duke with an Empire's Lamentation."

A Man and the World. The world owes you nothing, unless by your own achievements you have made it your debtor. The man who imagines that the world owes him a living has taken the first step toward knavery; the second step is taken when he tries to collect the debt which is not due him. The greater his success in this, the greater the debt he is, if he takes out of the world more than he has put into it.—Lyman Abbott.

Look for the Large Chance. The opportunity that is bigger than you are cannot help you, no matter how close it comes. To be worth anything, a chance must fit. Instead of simply waiting for your opportunity, grow up to it. Big people do not need to put up with small openings, and little people find it impossible to fill big ones. If you are growing all the time, and fitting yourself for the larger chances, you need not worry for fear they will fall to present themselves.

My dear Elizabeth:

No wonder you write asking why I have so suddenly changed my idea—I who used really to dread having my portrait made, I who used to be the very last of my class to have my sitting for our college year book.

But it is just as I wrote you before; having portraits made at The Bisbee Studio is different. The studio itself has all the restfulness of a pretty home; it is decorated and finished in a lovely scheme of ocre and tan with a dressing-room of white tiles and daffodil yellow walls. But there is more than the harmony of color and furnishings; there is the feeling of ease, the freedom of home.

I was noticing, for a moment when I entered the posing-room, the brass screen around the fire-place. "Wait just there, if you please," Mr. Bisbee said, and I waited. Just why I did not know until I saw my proofs and there was one—oh, one that I like so well—with the fire-place as the background and I with one hand on the screen quite ready to take it to its place. Surely, wasn't it only "clearing up" the living-room at home after you girls had been in to help me pop corn on a snowy afternoon? That is what it will suggest to Mother, when she sees this picture, I am sure. Certainly it is not like the ordinary studio portrait; I have noticed, however, that most Bisbee portraits are distinctive.

Only, once, while the numbers of plates were exposed, did I remember my old dislike of having portraits made. And just at that moment Mr. Bisbee handed me an envelope. "Open it, if you will," he said. I pulled out a folded sheet and found these words that are so full of meaning to me since I have been in Idaho:

"Out where the handclasp's a little stronger, out where a smile dwells a little longer, That's where the West begins; Out where the sun is a little brighter, Where the snows that fall are a trifle whiter, Where the bonds of home are a wee bit tighter, That's where the West begins."

These associations these lines are the West.

expression, I have ever worn a kink in my hair, I believe it was his letter I had been reading.

I'm wondering if you will not be out soon digging the trenches for your early hedge of sweet peas; it's about your usual date for it, I believe.

AMERICAN TARIFF TELLS OF HIS VISIT TO MALTA

Joe Bobier Says Yankees are Regarded with High Favor Among People of Foreign Nations He Has Seen

R. E. Bobier has received under date of January 16, a letter written by his brother, Joe Bobier, who is a member of the crew of an American destroyer bound from Gibraltar to Salonia, Greece, or Venice. The letter is written from Brindisi, Italy. It includes a description of points of interest in the island of Malta which he had recently visited.

"We landed at Valetta, Malta, an English island just south of Sicily, on January 13, and learned that on the day before when we were wondering why there were no other ships in sight, we were passing over the worst mine field in Europe and that ships knowing of the mine field do not travel over it."

"The island of Malta is a very interesting and picturesque place to visit. I certainly enjoyed the experience although I had only a few hours to see it and not much money. I have received only $17 since October 28, but I had a good pay day then and it lasted quite well."

"Malta is quite an historical place and is covered with high walls and deep trenches and old castles and ruins dating from ancient times as far back as before Christ. It has been an English possession since 1801. The Maltese are a lot like the Italians in stature and appearance. The women wear a kind of shawl over their heads and shoulders to partly hide their faces, but not so much as the Arabs."

"Bones as Ornaments." "We visited one church which was one of the most interesting objects to me. It was decorated with the bones of human beings. There must have been bones from at least 2000 people. Another church called St. John's co-cathedral has a chapel containing statues dedicated to the 27 Grand Masters of Malta. Some of the old and all kinds of antiquities are displayed there. The altar is elaborately decorated with silver railing and tilework work. It is made of beautiful variegated marble."

"In the Catacombs." "The catacombs were interesting and gruesome sights. They were in the form of a long tunnel and were filled with the bones of the dead."

SPRING DUDDS APPEAR SANS FUR TRIMMINGS

The reign of fur seems broken at last. Hursing is no longer in vogue. The fashion of heavy fur trimmings has been abandoned. Proved up and improved lands $75 to $125 per acre; easy terms. Good water right; good irrigation construction. Maintenance fifty cents per acre per annum. Grow big crops of wheat, oats, barley, flax, alfalfa, potatoes. Good general diversified farming country. All kinds of stock do well. Altitude 5000 to 4000 feet. No sage brush, good drainage. A good concern—80,000 acres—under water. Six banks, sixteen elevators on the project. Increase in Cost of Water Rights. On April 1, 1916, the price of water rights for the Carey and deeded lands on the Valier project will be increased to $60 per acre share. Why not make your plans to visit the Valier country now? Let's Talk It Over. We have employed Arthur E. Anderson of Filer, Idaho, as our local representative, who will be glad to talk the matter over with you and tell you about the opportunities in the Valier country.
