

Kaiser Heads List of Those Found Guilty

Commission Which is Investigating the Responsibility of the War Will Present Its Report Soon

SHALL DEAL OUT FAIR AND IMPARTIAL JUSTICE

Evidence Found By the Committee Made Them Think Burning in Oil a Very Fitting Punishment

BY LOWELL MELLETT

PARIS, March 3.—The greatest grand jury indictment the world has ever seen will soon be returned.

Kaiser Leads List

If the present purpose of the commission remains unchanged, the name of Wilhelm Hohenzollern will lead all the rest.

Punish Governors

The highest ranking officials deemed certain of being punished, are the former military governors of various cities and districts who had arbitrary authority over the lives of enemy citizens.

Plans Permanent Committee

A permanent prosecuting committee is also planned. In just what manner war-crimes will be served and executed has not been determined.

Impartial Justice

"We have some knowledge of the atrocities that had been committed, but the definite evidence placed before us made our blood run cold."

BALE, March 3.—The German national assembly, with the exception of the independent socialists, passed a resolution protesting against disposition of the German colonies by the league of nations as incompatible with President Wilson's fifth point, according to a dispatch from Weimar today.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The national security league vetoed the corrupt practices act in not reporting contributions the special house committee declared in its report submitted today. It criticized the league severely.

UPHOLDS LEGALITY OF IMPRISONMENT OF VIOLATORS

Supreme Court Declares Constitutional of Enlistment Section of Espionage Act

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of the enlistment section of espionage act, making it a crime to obstruct or attempt to obstruct enlistments.

One of the cases acted on was that of Kate Richards O'Hare, whose application for a review of her sentence to five years in the Jefferson City, Mo., penitentiary was refused.

The second case brought a direct ruling, the court affirming decisions of the lower court which convicted Charles Sheek and Elizabeth Beer, two members of the socialist party of Philadelphia.

CONFERENCE FOR WAGE SETTLEMENT TO BE HELD SOON

Pacific Coast Workers Want Assurance of Full Representation at this Gathering

SEATTLE, Wash., March 3.—Seattle, Tacoma and Aberdeen shipyard workers are anxious to see the conference held in Seattle tomorrow.

This line of action was decided upon at a meeting of Tacoma, Seattle and Aberdeen strike officials in Tacoma yesterday afternoon, with the reservation that Pacific coast shipyard workers be assured first of proper representation at the shipyard wage conference to be held in Washington, D. C., March 17.

WOULD SEPARATE ROADS FROM COAL PROPERTIES

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Congress should divorce coal and railroad companies, Senator Cummings recommended today in the report of the senate coal investigating committee.

The report declares that more than seventy-five per cent of the anthracite coal supply is owned or controlled by the railroads. This enables them to regulate the supply to suit themselves and not for the convenience of the public, the report declares.

Northwest Wire Workers Vote a General Strike

Portland Council of Commercial Telegraphers are Waiting Orders from President

PORTLAND, March 3.—The Portland Council of the Commercial Telegraphers Union of America has voted to strike as soon as orders are received from the International president.

The council met Sunday and so decided. Resolutions which were adopted declare that Postmaster General Burleson has failed to keep his promise and that the United States Telephone and Telegraph administration has shown continued hostility toward organized labor.

The principle grievances cited by the council are the alleged failure to reinstate discharged members and full wage agreement.

Similar strike votes were taken Sunday in many other cities of the country.

POLICE RAID-MEETING OF RADICAL VOTERS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 3.—Police, apparently interrupted a convention hall to decide the spring meeting place of the Industrial Workers of the World, when R. Vanstrom of Camp Dodge, here yesterday.

A printed list calling for the place and time of the general conference of the order was found today among literature confiscated.

It is stated that Kansas City and Sioux City, Iowa, were the two cities favored.

Trio Attempted Bribery With an Army Lieutenant

Three Men Who Tried to Purchase Army Blankets Now Face Grave Charge

DES MOINES, Ia., March 3.—Three men charged with attempting to bribe Lieutenant E. R. Vanstrom of Camp Dodge to raise their bid in purchase of army blankets, entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned before Federal Commissioner Piper this afternoon.

The trio consisted of one of Norfolk, Virginia, a Greek of Minneapolis, and Arthur Koener, said to be an Austrian.

They were held for a preliminary hearing. Bonds were fixed at $4,000 each and Rhoads was the only one who furnished bond.

According to testimony by Vanstrom, the three wanted to purchase $38,000 worth of blankets to be held at Camp Dodge. They offered him, he and federal agents say, five per cent of the sale price if he boosted their bid above the highest one received in the sale.

Illinois Senator Declares League Means Calamity

All the Aggregate Misfortunes of Entire Catalogue Will Be Result to the World

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Pandora's box of evil is empty upon the American people, the aggregated calamities of the world, was a description of the league of nations constitution given the senate today by Senator Sherman, Illinois.

Sherman condemned President Wilson as either a usurper or a dictator. Senator McCumber, North Dakota, took republican opposition to the league sharply to task in a speech following Sherman.

"Some might be misled into believing the republicans of the United States are in any league of the league people to prevent war," said McCumber. "I think a great many republicans are not of this view. They want a league very severely because they do not want the sort of ever again to see the atrocities that the Hun committed in the past four years."

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The supreme court today upheld lower courts which sustained fishing rights of the Yakima Indians on the Columbia river as granted in the treaty of 1855.

BOMB PLOTTER GIVEN FREEDOM

Man Connected With Mooney Bomb Affair is Released from All Charges

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.—Edward D. Nolan, who was indicted on murder charges in the Mooney case, was freed from all charges today when Superior Judge Dunne dismissed the remaining indictments against him.

Captain of Detectives Matheson told the court there was no evidence to convict Nolan. Nolan was held in jail nine months, but has never been tried.

Mooney is serving a life sentence in San Quentin prison.

The court today reduced Mrs. Rena Mooney's bail from $15,000 to $2,000. She is charged with murder.

All three men given the preparation for a bomb explosion in which many persons were killed and wounded.

LAST DAY IN CONGRESS WILL SEE FAILURE OF IMPORTANT MEASURES

Final Legislative Session of Sixty-fifth Expected to Pass Railroad and Miscellaneous Relief Measures, But Agriculture, Army and Navy and District of Columbia Appropriations Have Little Chance

RECORD OF MONEY SPENT IS UNIQUE IN THE ANNALS OF UNITED STATES

By L. C. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, March 3.—This is the last legislative day of the sixty-fifth congress. Both houses will remain in practically continuous session from today until noon tomorrow.

PRIMARY LAW IS SIGNED BY THE GOVERNOR

Another Measure Is Introduced Slightly Modifying the Bill Just Returned By the State Executive

(Special to The News)

BOISE, Ida., March 3.—The house passed a bill requiring public utilities to file complete inventories of physical properties and a measure making a small change in the law of the courts.

Governor Davis signed the new primary law this morning. Despite widely circulated reports that it would not receive his approval, in a communication to the senate the chief executive merely announced that he had signed the measure which had previously passed both house and senate by a strictly party vote.

Following the receipt of the governor's communication and before it was read, Senators Nash, Nelson and Faraday, the latter a democrat and the two former republicans, introduced a bill slightly modifying the measure signed by the governor.

In the new bill which carries an emergency clause provision is made for holding the election in the county on the first Tuesday in August. It also modifies the provision in the original bill which made it necessary for candidates to have an affidavit of their party qualification.

The bill also provides that an affidavit signed by five bona fide members of the candidates party will suffice.

Boxing Measure Passes

With only Senator Turner of Minnesota county voting against it the senate measure which places the management of wrestling and boxing contests in the hands of a state athletic commission passed the upper body this morning.

Shortly before noon the rules were suspended and the bill which amends the constitution of the state by adding four non-partisan senators against it and the regular democrats for it.

What They Provide

Senate bill No. 189 by state affairs committee provides that money raised from state appropriations of the north west live stock association, Idaho state fair and Idaho state seed growers association, shall be kept by treasurers of these organizations.

Senate bill by Yeaman proposes a two mill levy for library purposes by cities and villages.

Senate Bill No. 190 by state affairs committee provides co-operation between state and board of directors of the northwest live stock association in holding show at Lewiston to conform with consolidation measure.

FIREMEN ARE INJURED WHILE FIGHTING BLAZE

Two Residences and an Apartment House Go Up in Flames in Spite of Workers' Efforts

SANTA MONICA, Calif., March 3.—Fire Chief George Hubbard of Venice and Santa Monica fire department, were seriously injured and six other Venice and Santa Monica firemen severely burned when fire destroyed an apartment house and two residences on Ocean and Park hill district of Santa Monica early today.

Twenty-five thousand dollars damage was done.

Guests in the apartment house escaped in their night clothes.

PRISONERS STAGE STRIKE

LEAVENWORTH, Kans., March 3.—A "strike" lasting four hours was staged this morning among the three thousand prisoners in the United States disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth. It was learned here.

FIREMEN ARE TRYING SCHEME OF CONSTITUTIONAL ACTION RATHER THAN STRIKES IN LABOR

LONDON, March 3.—The attempt to settle British labor troubles by constitutional action rather than strikes began today. The newly created coal industry court there and in the last two calendar days of the session, Monday and Tuesday, really are but one executive day. Jones cannot get a vote except by unanimous consent. The action could not agree, they said.

Failure of the legislation for enforcement.

NEW METHOD IS BEING STARTED

British are Trying Scheme of Constitutional Action Rather Than Strikes in Labor

Pending reports of these two commissions there appears to be little likelihood of any big strikes.

COUNCIL TAKES UP TERMS WITH GERMAN PEOPLE

Preliminaries of the Treaty to Be Imposed on the Conquered Countries are Being Considered Today

BY FRED S. FERGUSON
PARIS, March 2.—The supreme war council today takes up terms of the preliminary peace to be imposed on Germany. At the same time it discusses conditions under which the economic blockade of that country will be partially raised.

Conditions under which the blockade is to be modified were it was understood to be ready to put into effect immediately after the return to Paris of President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George and President Orlando. The separate peace terms probably will be completed by the first of next Monday, after which details of the treaties with Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey will be discussed.

May Destroy War Material

Marshal Foch's report, submitted on Saturday, was said to include destruction of all German war material, with the exception of arms for a few divisions, which will be left for police duties. The allies will exercise supervision over all German munitions factories.

The naval conditions were said to include surrender to the allies of practically all that remains of the German navy. The units to be turned over will be the battleships Olgarten, Thuringen, Catapult, Hilgoland, Posen, Watten, Rhinland, Kassau, the light cruisers Pillau, Grudenz, Regensburg, Stralsund, Strauburg, Augstburg, Kilburg and Stuttgart, 42 modern destroyers and fifty modern torpedo boats.

Break Up Warships

Warships under construction will be broken up. All German submarines, submarine docks and the famous Kiel torpedo dock must also be destroyed within two weeks after the treaty is signed. Similar work in the process of construction must be broken up within three months after peace is concluded, though the material may be used for peaceful purposes.

The German naval craft already in construction will be broken up. The U-boats of Holland will be destroyed. All battle defenses will be raised, though the allies will be open to vessels of all nations.

Limit Wireless Systems

Merchant cruisers and auxiliaries, which can easily be converted into merchant men, will be treated as such. The cables will be retained and German wireless will be limited to commercial uses.

When peace is concluded with Austria her fleet of 12 battleships, 10 cruisers, 19 destroyers, 51 torpedo boats, 24 submarines and 12 Danube monitors will be handed over. The Turkish and Bulgarian navies will likewise be seized.

In an interview with correspondents yesterday, Foreign Minister Pichon said that no official information had been received regarding the reported resignation of Chancellor Scheidemann. If it proved to be true, he said, it would materially affect the possibility of concluding a peace with Germany. He said the national assembly would be a representative of the German people, making it the government with which the allies will have to deal.

WILSON SIGNS THE WAR CONTRACT BILL

Measure Validating Informal Agreements Is Now a Law By Official Signature

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The president today signed the bill validating informal war contracts amounting to about two and a half billion dollars. The delay on war contracts was in receiving their payments on these contracts has been given as one cause for business stagnation.

Passing of this bill will be announced at the conference of governors and mayors, as an indication the government wishes to relieve immediately the business situation.

The president also signed the rivers and harbors bill carrying about $33,000,000.

Three other minor bills were also signed.

AGED FATHER OF NOTED ARTIST DIES OF SHOCK

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 2.—Unable to bear the shock of the death of his son, Richard Van Loon, aged 71, died here yesterday a few moments after a telegram brought him word that Charles E. Van Loon, famous writer, had died in Philadelphia.

Armored Cars Now Fight Against John Barleycorn

Stop! Paused! Read!—This is not "another war picture" from France, Belgium or even Germany. It's a picture of a fighting car from the very heart of America and is used daily because of its armored protection. It is a car used by combating the "whisky runners" between Toledo, O., and Detroit, Mich., since the latter city went "dry" when the state was one of the first to equip the equipment of the Michigan state constabulary used at Monroe, Mich., on the line between Michigan and Ohio. Colonel Roy C. Vandorhook is in charge of the work enforcing the law, pitched battle with the smugglers being a big part of the daily happenings.

WILSON CONFERS WITH GOVERNORS ON LABOR PROBLEM OF COUNTRY

President Meets State Executives and City Mayors in an Attempt to Arrive at Some Solution of Employment Questions of the Entire Nation

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Wilson today addressing the opening conference of governors and mayors in the east room of the White House, declared that the business of government in readjusting industry in the United States is "to take council for the average man."

"The whole matter," he said, "runs down into the plane of the workers," and he said the decision must be worked out to benefit those who contribute their energy and minds to making industry successful.

Expresses Confidence

Appearing suddenly before the assembled state and city executives at 10 o'clock, he was scheduled to speak, the president expressed his complete confidence that through the co-operation of state and city executives a solution of the labor problem would be found for readjusting industry to a proper basis.

"We are more fortunate in respect to this great problem than the other nations of the world," he said, "and we can approach the subject with complete assurance."

Worker is Basic Element

His conference with foreign statesmen and contact with European people, he said, had convinced him that all nations are "at last learning" that the worker is the basic element to be considered in all business.

The president regretted he would be unable to deliberate with the conferees because "nothing deliberate is permitted since my return."

Urges Decision

The president urged "a decision which will serve the purpose of all."

He said, had convinced him that all nations are "at last learning" that the worker is the basic element to be considered in all business.

The president regretted he would be unable to deliberate with the conferees because "nothing deliberate is permitted since my return."

Selects Jury for Trial of Slayer of Girl's Suitor

Man Who Is Charged with Murder of His Daughter's Sweet-Heart Faces Court

CHICAGO, March 2.—The four jurors needed to fill the box at the trial of J. Norman Cook, alleged slayer of William E. Gray, were expected to be selected from forty talleman summoned to appear today.

Once the jury is selected, attorneys expected the trial to move rapidly. The including pretty 17-year-old Norma Gray, daughter of the accused man, will have finished their testimony by Wednesday.

The girl, on whose testimony the fate of Cook is believed to depend, will testify Wednesday, it was predicted. There was no hint today whether she would support her father or would seek revenge for the slaying of Gray, whose friendship for her was at the root of the quarrel between the two men.

NONPARTISAN LEAGUE MAY BE REORGANIZED

Gossip at State Capital Says Democrats Plan to Oust Leaders in Revenge

BOISE—A reorganization of the nonpartisan league in Idaho is imminent. It is expected it will be staged with a flourish of propaganda and promises before the legislature adjourns in order to properly impress those members who are affiliated with the league or with the democratic party as well as any republicans who may have indicated the virus of bolshevism in their veins.

This is not a voluntary realignment, as understood, so far as the present leaders of the nonpartisan league are concerned, for under the plans as agreed on at a recent meeting of the prominent league leaders of the more conservative stamp and of active democratic politicians those leaders are to be kicked out, notably McKaig and Scholtz.

No. More Townleyism

It is planned to remove the new organization from all Townley and other North Dakota influence and to be laying plans for a brisk resistance.

Democrats in Move

In this new movement certain democrats are taking a leading part. Some of them were notoriously active in their attacks on the nonpartisan league in the last campaign which imparts added significance to the situation.

Break Fight Promised

The Townley leaders of the league in Idaho, such as McKaig and Scholtz are understood to have agreed and to be laying plans for a brisk resistance.

Bourbons May Get Even

As the nonpartisan league leaders in Idaho stole the democratic party, so far as nominations were concerned, in the 1918 primary, it is widespread that the democrats in the new movement have their appetite whetted to a keen edge by the prospect of turning the tables and appropriating the league.

Used First Sewing Machine

The first woman in America to use a sewing machine died at Winsted, Conn., at the age of eighty-six.

She was Miss Elizabeth Kilbourn, who in the fifties was a teacher in a private school at New Hartford. When Elias Howe was experimenting with his invention, he asked her to help him, and so to her fell the honor of being the first to use the new machine.

WOULD PACIFY WORKERS WITH MANY PROMISES

The German Government Attempts to Conciliate the Revolutionists By Means of a Compromise

By FRANK J. TAYLOR
BERLIN, March 2.—(Delayed).—The German government today partially recognized the soviets.

In a frantic effort to prevent the general strikes from becoming a nation-wide revolution, the cabinet issued a proclamation admitting social and economic control of industries by the soviets' councils, but promising stringent punishment for further disorders.

The workers, dissatisfied with their "half-way measure," were insisting on full political recognition, threatening striking within a week that will be of power to overthrow the government.

A general strike in Berlin appeared imminent today. The bourgeoisie councils threatened retaliation strikes. Patriots here have been doubled.

FATE OF GERMANY HANGS IN BALANCE

This Week Is Expected to See the Final Results of Revolution Take Shape

COPENHAGEN, March 3.—Life or death of the present German government is expected to be determined this week on the question of political recognition of the soviets, according to dispatches received from Berlin today.

The Spartacists were said to be gaining ground, even among the majority of the soviets. Great demonstrations were planned for Berlin and a general strike may be proclaimed. Colonel Reinhardt, military commander, declared the strike would be suppressed by all possible means.

The Vorwarts has demanded that the cabinet resign unless the national assembly grants the workers' "justified demands." The government has issued a proclamation stating it will not support the demands for nationalization of all industries.

POLITICAL LEAGUE WANTS PRISONERS RELEASED

Meeting Adopts Resolutions Favoring Freedom of Such Men as Debs

DETROIT, Mich., March 2.—Resolutions for the release of Debs, Mooney, Raymond and other "political and industrial" prisoners were adopted at a meeting under the auspices of the political amnesty league here last night.

The chief speakers were George F. Vanderveer, Seattle; counsel in many I. W. W. cases, and Seymour Steiman, Chicago attorney.

Both pleaded for the organization of a national democracy by the workers as a substitute for the political democracy "denied them." Many secret service men were sprinkled through the audience of four thousand.

Courtesy and Appreciation

To make courtesy popular it must be shown that it pays, pays in dollars and cents as well as in happiness, an exchange says. Appreciation makes for greater effort and creates one of the most valuable assets and builds up a spirit of team work. Much good always results when people think more about their obligations and less about rights. There are many discouraged hearts everywhere that would be helped wonderfully by a word of appreciation.

MAY SAFEGUARD SPORTS FAVORED BY SERVICE MEN

Idaho Legislature Considers Draft of Bill to Provide for Regulation of Boxing and Wrestling Matches

(Special to The News.) HOISE, March 3.—With hundreds of returned officers and soldiers as well as sailors, who have become ardent lovers of boxing and wrestling during the service, the legislature has enacted a law which will safeguard the exhibition of these sports, an ideal legislative act governing them is now before the Idaho legislature.

Embodiment of the best features found in different state laws and based on the Game Melody draft, the suggested measure will, if passed, in the belief of army and navy officers as well as Y. M. C. A. athletic directors, produce an era of physical development among the young and pleasure for others not paralleled before in this state. Elimination of the professional promoter from the state, the appointment of a commission of three by the governor to have complete charge of licensing and directing the sports and the power to revoke the licenses of clubs and referees among the best features of the measure.

Senator Johnson and Paraday are the sponsors for the bill which seems to have the support of every legislator. It is far in advance of the return of the soldier contingent who ask that their favorite sports may be put under regulation with the result of raising their standards.

Clubs Only Promoters. Briefly the provisions of the bill are as follows: The governor appoints a commission of three to serve without pay; no individual is allowed to promote a match, it must be done by a club incorporated under the laws which pays a license fee of $100 and 10 per cent of the gross receipts to each match to the state; an umpire and two judges serving without pay are appointed by the commission; in each match and they report whether the match has been carried out under the rules of the commission; a bond of $5000 is required from each club and a permit for the match must be secured; any match may be stopped at any time should the commission's representatives consider that it had reached a brutal stage; any match held by the commission must be athletic union, the Y. M. C. A., or the Knights of Columbus is exempt from the tax; no matches are to be held on Sunday and no betting is allowed; each contestant must be examined by a physician and no one under 18 years of age can participate in a program as a principal while no one under 10 years of age will be allowed to become a member of the club and the barring of contestants from participation under the terms of the act; the number of rounds is limited and the weight of gloves in boxing matches.

Demon Rum Is An Exile in Mexico

LOS ANGELES, Cal. March 3.—With nationwide prohibition ratified in the United States, Mexico, as the last big stronghold of Demon Rum in North America, looms as a haven for the thirsty.

But in Mexico the situation is being viewed with mixed feelings. Lower California's government, according to some official sources, welcomes national prohibition in the United States, not as a source of future prosperity but as a step towards reduction of drinking in California, which has some 100,000 more square miles of territory in Mexico bordering a large contingent of Mexican people rising in the north.

Mexicali, opposite Calexico, California, is well stocked with liquor. Trailloads of wet goods recently have passed over the border and were unloaded at Mexicali. These stocks, their owners say, will dampen American thirst for many a month.

Tia Juana—for years Lower California's sporting metropolis—is reported as awaiting nothing but the relaxation of passport regulations before staging a grand reopening.

Nogales, Sonora, opposite Nogales, Ariz., has taxed the prosperity growing from American prohibition. Arizona went dry some three years ago. The town has boomed and reports are there is plenty of liquid left for future boom.

But passport regulations and future legislation by both the United States and Mexico enter the situation. At present there is no valid reason to apply for a passport. In fact, good reasons for going to Mexico are the eyes of Uncle Sam, are rather limited. The restrictions against importation will not permit a bottle to be brought back in the overcoat pocket. A skinful is the limit.

As for the attitude of Mexico, a high official at Mexicali credited with speaking the thoughts of Gov. Eutaban Canino of Lower California, endorses prohibition in the United States for its effect on stopping the spread of alcoholism among native Mexicans.

HOW IT HUNG UP

A cloud had hung over Lloyd Kenyon's going. The kind sir, their lips when his drafting and futile claims to exemption were mentioned; the unkind Danburyites whispered "snicker" when the fearful neighbor went his way to the training camp, Janie Cushman, being of the kind of a company of the unkindly, denounced the group hotly for their attitude for no reason but her own sense of justice. And it was quite by the accidental irony of fate that stockings bearing her card were sent to him.

Janie would never have known about the card if it were not for the letter from Lloyd which thanked her for them; a letter with longing for Danbury news glaring between the lines of gratitude. "That ends right here," said Janie to the letter sheet burning on the embers of her open fire. "If that stoop shoulder, blue-handled chap were I'm going to take back he's got another guess coming."

But the longing between the lines did haunt her. Janie too was lonely, for she seemed to herself the only person in all Danbury without kin of blood or love away at the fight. In the winter she had been teased and kidded, but all the socks and sweaters were for no one in particular.

And so Janie Cushman compromised with her determination by sending Lloyd a store-prepared box of food, and answered his thanks with a stiff, polite note, and a card which was worded so that was born a more kindly letter and a parcel of local papers. And by that time she was launched on the sea of kindness with her hands clasped over the personal possession of a friend in active service.

Then there came the letter when she talked of Janie held the peace about Lloyd; when picture post cards from the boys were passed in company she had a happy thought remembering those in her desk at home; when knitting was talked of she bent lower over the khaki sweater she was fashioning. Then there came the letter when the word came that no more mail was to be sent to Lloyd at the camp where he had been training. His regiment was to move very soon. It was easy enough to guess that move was the first step toward the front.

"And the sweater was going to be ready," she thought, "right at the right time," she thought, "right at the right time."

At first she thought to put the sweater by for later finishing. But in Janie there was the spirit of fighting in the last ditch. The stuff that heroes are made of was in her heart, and she determined the sweater should be ready when she should be sent for Lloyd to get it. But a tear did fall on the khaki yarn that Janie did not understand.

The night was warm for spring. Across the field back of the big Cushman house was a railroad embankment. A freight train rumbled slowly toward a station going south stopped, with its dark outline silhouetted against the blur of lightness from a distant city. Janie, watching idly from her dark window, saw the flagman's red lantern bobbing back along the track and a little group with black lights hovering by the terminal engine. A song from the men's throats floated across the field:

"Where do we go from here, boys?"

"Then she saw a tall shadow loom on the grass plot below her open window. "Hello!" she called, boldly.

"Janie!"

"Lloyd! I'm come down."

"How'd I get here? That's my train. The engine has a hot box and I can get back as soon as the flagman when he's called in. I know where we were. The engine has hot box in a good answer to my prayer because I wanted to thank you by word of mouth for all the things. The kindness they stand for has helped me to get hold of my courage."

Janie had brought out the sweater and she saw it tucked and hidden away back across the field. The red light of the flagman signaled from the rear and the train pulled slowly away. And for a long while Janie stood as he had left her, sad enough for the parting, but glad, too, that she had helped make manly the man she had learned to love.

RED CROSS GIFTS $400,000,000

War Council on Retirement Announces Cash and Supplies Contributed.

WORKERS WILL "CARRY ON."

Five Big Societies in World Wide Plan. H. P. Davison Heads International American Red Cross Commission. Dr. Livingston Farrand Permanent Leader of Peace Organization.

Washington.—(Special.)—Henry P. Davison as chairman issued the following statement on behalf of the War Council of the American Red Cross: "To the American People: "The War Council of the American Red Cross appointed by President Wilson on May 10, 1917, to carry on the work of the American Red Cross during the war, at their request and by vote of the Central Committee, ceased at midnight, February 28.

"Immediately the armistice was signed, the War Council had the honor to determine when the strictest war work of the organization would have been sufficiently matured to enable the direction of affairs to be resumed by the permanent staff. Henry P. Davison, being in Paris when the armistice was signed, summoned the chairman of the Central Committee, and thereby the permanent chief executive of the Red Cross, makes possible the consummation of this plan under the most favorable conditions.

Accounts Audited by War Department. "Detailed reports to Congress and a complete audit of its accounts by the War Department, are continuing the final record of Red Cross activities during the war. Although it has been the rule to make public all expenditures when authorized and to give detailed information relative to all work undertaken, the War Council in turning over its responsibilities to Dr. Farrand and his associates desire to give a brief resume of Red Cross war time activities to the American people, to whom the Red Cross belongs, and whose generous contributions have made possible all that has been accomplished.

During the past year, the American people have given in cash and supplies to the American Red Cross more than $400,000,000. No value can be placed upon the contributions of service which have been given without stint and ofentimes at great sacrifice by millions of our people.

"The effort of the American Red Cross in this war has constituted by far the largest voluntary gifts of money, of land and heart, ever contributed to the relief of a suffering man suffering. Through the Red Cross the heart and spirit of the whole American people have been mobilized to take care of our own, to relieve the misery incident to the war, and also to reveal to the world the supreme ideals of our national life.

"Everyone who has had any part in this war effort of the Red Cross is entitled to congratulate himself. No thanks from anyone could be equal in value to the self satisfaction everyone should feel for the part taken. Fully 1,000,000 American men and women, perhaps 9,000,000 school children additional.

"The chief effort of the Red Cross during the war has been to care for our men in service and to aid our women and navy wherever the Red Cross may be called on to assist. As to this phase of the work Surgeon General Ireland of the U. S. Army recently said: "The Red Cross has been an enterprise as vast as the war itself. Fully 1,000,000 American men and women, perhaps 9,000,000 school children additional.

"The Red Cross endeavor in France has naturally been upon an exceptionally large scale where service has been rendered to the American Army and to the French Army and the French people as well, the latter particularly during the trying period when the Allied World was waiting for the American Army to arise in force and power. Hospital emergency services for our army in France has greatly diminished, but the Red Cross is still being called upon for service upon a large scale in the great base hospitals, where thousands of American sick and wounded are still receiving attention. At these hospitals the Red Cross supplies bins and facilities for the amusement and recreation of the men as they become convalescent. Our Army of Occupation in Germany was followed with Medical units prepared to render the same emergency aid and supply service which was the primary business of the Red Cross during hostilities. The Army Canteen service along the lines of travel has actually increased since the armistice. "As for working among the French people, now that hostilities have ceased, the French themselves naturally prefer as far as possible to provide for their own. It has accordingly been determined that the guiding principle of Red Cross policy in France henceforth, shall be to have placidly regard to its every responsibility, but to direct its efforts primarily to assisting French relief societies. The liberated and devastated regions of France have been divided by the government into small districts, each officially assigned to a designated French relief organization.

"The American Red Cross work in France was initiated by a commission of eighteen men who landed on French shores June 13, 1917. Since then some 9,000 persons have been upon the rolls in France, of whom 7,000 were actively engaged in the work. An armistice was signed. An indication of the present scale of the work will be obtained from the fact that the services of 6,000 persons are still required.

"Our American Expeditionary Force having largely evacuated England, the activities of the Red Cross in that country there are naturally upon a diminishing scale. Active operations are still in progress in Archanget and Siberia.

"The work in Italy has been almost entirely on behalf of the civilian population of that country. In the critical hours of Italy's struggle the American people, through their Red Cross, sent a practical message of sympathy and relief, for which the government and people of Italy have never ceased to express their gratitude.

"The occasion for such concentration of effort in Italy, England, Belgium and even in France having naturally and normally diminished, it has been possible to divert supplies and personnel in large measure to the aid of those people in the Near East who have hitherto been inaccessible to such assistance, but whose sufferings have been upon an appalling scale. The needs of these peoples are so vast that government alone can meet them, but the American Red Cross is making an effort to relieve immediately the more acute distress.

"An extensive group of American workers has been dispatched to carry vitally needed supplies, and to work this winter in the various Balkan countries. In order to co-ordinate their activities, a Balkan commission has been established, with headquarters at Rome, Italy, from which point alone all the Balkan centers can be reached promptly.

"A commission has just reached Poland with doctors and nurses, medical supplies, and food for sick children and invalids. An American Red Cross Commission has also been appointed to aid in relieving the suffering of Russian prisoners still confined in German prison camps. "An important commission is still working in Palestine. Through the war special co-operation has been given to the Armenian and Syrian Relief Commission, which is the only agency able to carry relief in the interior of Turkish dominions.

"Red Cross Will Continue. "Red Cross effort is thus far flagging. It will continue to be so. But the movement represented by this work has hitherto assumed an intimate place in the kind which can be performed with peculiar effectiveness by the Red Cross. What its future tasks may be it is yet impossible to forecast. We know that so long as there is an American army in the field the Red Cross will have a special function to perform.

"Nothing could be of greater importance to the American Red Cross than the plans just set in motion by the five great Red Cross societies of the world to develop a program of extended activities in the interest of humanity. This exception involves not alone efforts to relieve human suffering, but to prevent it; not alone a movement by the people of an individual nation, but an attempt to arouse all people to a sense of their responsibility for the welfare of their fellow beings throughout the world. It is a program both ideal and practical. Ideal in that its supreme aim is nothing less than veritable "Peace on earth good-will to men," and practical in that it seeks to take means and measures which are actually available and make them effective in meeting without delay the crisis which is daily recurrent in the lives of all peoples.

"For accomplishing its mission in the years of peace which must lie ahead of us the Red Cross will require the ablest possible leadership, and must enjoy the continued support, sympathy and participation in its work of the whole American people. It is particularly fortunate that such a man as Dr. Livingston Farrand should have been selected as the permanent head of the organization. The unattained fashion in which all our people gave of themselves throughout the war is the best assurance that our Red Cross will continue to receive that co-operation which will make its work a source of pride and inspiration to every American.

Mr. Davison, as chairman of the International Commission of the American Red Cross, has undertaken to represent the American Red Cross in the preparation of the program for extended Red Cross activities, and will spend the next several months in Europe in consultation with other Red Cross societies for that purpose. THE WAR COUNCIL OF THE AMERICAN RED CROSS. Henry P. Davison, Chairman.

Ruse to Get Auto Ride. Willie's father does not own an auto, but a good friend of the family has a seven-passenger car. One Sunday afternoon the little one became restless and was wishing some one would come and take them for a ride. Finally he said: "Daddy, call up the Johnsons and ask them if they wouldn't like to take a walk with us—and daddy, tell them to be sure and bring their auto."

Starting the Clock. If a clock refuses to run after being wound owing to the need of cleaning, try this: Roll a bit of cloth, tie it well so it cannot unravel and saturate it with coal oil. Place the roll in the bottom of the clock, well out of the way of the pendulum. After the fumes of the oil have had time to do their work—say from ten to twelve hours—wind and start the clock, and if nothing is broken it will run.

POLITICS

There is food for serious thought in the statement in a brochure recently issued by E. Stanwood Menken that we can no longer have government by default of the governed.

Mr. Menken was connected with the Democratic League of Congress in 1906 and was identified with three national congresses of the National Security League. He declares that political parties have ceased to represent definite creeds or bodies of principles and that there exists today a condition of absolute flux as to the political purposes both of the Republican and Democratic parties.

His proposal is that there shall be called platform conventions in advance of nominating conventions to adopt the party platform, and he outlines a scheme for such platform convention the practical simplicity of which, he says, will appeal to the man who can think in terms of organization and who understands the temper of the American mind.

The practicability of Mr. Menken's suggestion is perhaps open to debate, but the necessity of attainment of the end which he seeks admits of no question. Whether or not this end is reached through adoption of Mr. Menken's suggestion or through some other avenue is not a matter of so great importance as that American citizens shall be brought to a realization of their duties and privileges as citizens.

If there has been political corruption in the past and if political parties have become so far isolated as to stand, as Mr. Menken says, for nothing at all, the fault is to be found somewhat in those who have engineered political activities, but in much larger measure in the great body of the American people themselves because of their failure to appreciate and exercise their rights and duties of citizenship.

It is related of the late Theodore Roosevelt that when he announced his intention of entering politics he was opposed by members of his family who argued that politics was the business of the riff-raff of the nation. "If that be so," Roosevelt is reported to have replied, "then we must admit that we are governed by this sort of citizenry, and I propose to be one of the governing class."

No citizen ever contributed to the betterment of affairs of government by avoidance of politics. The example of Theodore Roosevelt as a dynamic purifying element in politics is too well known to require comment. It is one that might well be followed in greater or less degree by every American citizen, and is in fact, in the case of our form of government, the only course that can be justified in a citizen of the most exalted type.

TAE AND FEATHERS IN IDAHO

Were tar and feather parties ever a popular outdoor sport in Idaho? George Creel says they were during the latter months of the war, in an article on the status of the German American in America. Mr. Creel would explain the trouble to which the foreign born citizen was subjected by well meaning men and women bent upon his Americanization with a capital A. Mr. Creel succeeds only in convincing the average reader that the reason Mr. Creel feels as he does on the subject is because he wants to feel that way.

Some day America will be a better governed country, and a better place in which to live than it is today, but in which this comes about it will be in spite of George Creel and his kind rather than because of them.

Those who want an interesting hour or so will do well to get a copy of the current Everybody's and meditate with Mr. Creel on the evils of a too great loyalty. Mr. Creel makes it all very clear. He would treat all men as brothers except where one might be caught setting fire to an orphan asylum or robbing a church and he would be opposed to a conviction of one of these unless he himself witnessed the crime.

VICTORY STAMPS

"Philatelists will not be surprised to hear of any time that the United States Government is planning to issue a special series of postage stamps in commemoration of victory in the world war," writes Kent B. Stiles, stamp editor of Boys' Life, in the March issue of that magazine. "At the time this is written the Postmaster General had not made any public announcement that peace adhesives were forthcoming; but there were reports that preparations were under way for such a series, which would be perhaps the most notable stamps in the nation's history. It is conceivable that they might bear pictures depicting battle scenes at Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel and other places about which the American school boy of the future will study with pride. A portrait of General Pershing would not be shown, as it is not the custom of our government to honor thus a living man; but it would not astonish collectors if the likeness of another great figure should appear—that of Theodore Roosevelt, who has had so much to do with shaping the political course of the war."

A PRETTY BLUE-BIRD LEGEND

The Seminoles Indians have a pretty legend concerning the bluebird. L. E. Brownell writes in a communication contained in the department "On Nature's Trail," in Boys' Life for March. "They will tell you that one day the male bird flew so high that he rubbed his back against the sky and some of the blue rubbed off and stained his coat. Upon his return to earth his wife saw, admiring the new color of his coat that she determined to have one of the same color for herself. Accordingly, the next day she set off, but the morning proving to be overcast, the color that she was able to obtain was not nearly so brilliant as was that of her husband. So to this day she must go about clad in a coat much less gaily colored than his."

THE BETTER MAN

By MARY PARSONS, c.

Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Barbara, dear, I'm so mixed up. I don't know what in the world to do—please help me!"

"That's the trouble, now, child—is it Sam or Charley?"

"Neither—I mean both. I don't know which I'm in love with. I think Sam till Charley comes to see me, and then he is so good looking—just like a collar ad—and he looks at me so deeply—you know how I mean—that I think I'm all wrong again and it must be he. He's ever so much more popular with the girls, too. Now, Sam never says any of the nice little things Charley does, and he's ever so blunt sometimes, but somehow I don't know. I'm not sure, but I think Sam is the better man. You're older and wiser than I am, Barbara; tell me why you admire Sam more. I've always thought you did whenever I talk about them, but you've never said anything. Please tell me."

The older girl got up and walked over to the window. For a moment she did not say anything. Then she turned to the younger girl and said:

"Polly, child, I don't know anything in the world I know against Charley—it wouldn't be fair to say there was, for he may care for you even more than I think he does—but I'm going to tell you a little story, if you have time to listen."

"Of course, Baba," assured Polly, setting her attractive little person into a perfect nest of cushions.

"Once upon a time," began Barbara, "there was a girl—not a beautiful girl—just a bright, frank, cheerful girl, with a sense of humor and lots of friends. She liked men sincerely, but she was never very susceptible nor very foolish, and she had seen something of life."

"There was one man she had known for a long time, and she always admired and liked him tremendously."

"So they went out together, danced together and talked together, and he was very nice to her. She found that she could talk to him as she had never been able to talk to anyone before, and she found that she liked him more and more. He began to value his friendship, above all her other friends, and to depend on his help and advice in many little things. He liked to help her, and as the months passed they grew to be better and better friends, with a clearer understanding of each other than they had ever had before."

"Then, she went away for a long visit. And he almost made her believe that he would really miss her badly—and she was very glad."

"And she wrote to him naturally, as a girl would write to a very favorite uncle or a close friend who was older and wiser than she, long, fervent letters about all the daily happenings—and she dearly loved to write to him."

"He wrote to her twice; then there was a long lapse. Then, a third letter came which might have been written by a student of the most perfect mathematics and weather by the most astute topics. This was after she had impulsively written to him for help and sympathy over what seemed to her a very great trouble, and he had failed her—financially failed her. She wrote to him once more, but she never sent the letter. She could not trust her feelings upon him if he did not want it."

"And though she was bound to meet him and did not wish to obviously avoid him, she did not need to, for he showed no desire for any sort of a meeting and sitting down among the girls as he had probably always done. And she tried always to be fair to him and not to judge him—she liked to remember him rather as a friend who had died than one who had ceased to value her friendship—she simply could not understand that. That's all I know about Charley and it's two years ago—he's probably forgotten all about it long ago."

"That's all, Polly dear. It isn't much of a story, but I thought I'd tell it to you. Somehow, from my own standpoint, it doesn't seem to me as if a man who would hurt anyone so cruelly, so blindly and with such utter indifference, could measure up to quite the same standard as a man like Sam, who is fair and square in everything he does."

Polly sat still for a long time after Barbara stopped speaking.

"Thank you for telling me the story," she said at last.

A maid came to the door with a telegram. Polly glanced at the address, seized it and tore it open hastily. In a moment the paper dropped to the floor.

"It's from Sam," she gulped, "and he's going to the front, and he wants me to tell him before he goes—they won't let him off to come himself—oh, dear, it's terrible!"

"What are you going to write to him?"

TRAINING LITTLE CHILDREN

Learning to Play with Others, the Child's First Lesson in Social Training—This Is the Biggest Contribution of the Kindergarten—Ways of Providing for It Even in Small Families

By MRS. DORA LADD KEYES
I like to remember that Froebel said, "The nursery was my university." This statement gives every mother a bond of understanding and sympathy with Froebel and his ideals as they have been worked out in the kindergarten.

The best modern kindergartens center their programs largely around the natural home-activities of the child. Hence even though mothers may find it impossible to secure kindergarten privileges for their children, materials and opportunities are close at hand with which to provide, to some degree at least, for this need.

Last February a laddie who was just "half past three," with hands well scrubbed and nails manicured, cut off 38 valentine heart cookies for his mother. Before he had finished he learned to be neat, quick, firm of touch and economical in his spending. In addition he was unconsciously gaining a sense of participation and co-operation and the feeling of being a "real help" to mother.

Last autumn the same little laddie gathered a large pile of scarlet summer seeds, which we planted every spring around the play fence.

Children love to have a place that is their "very own." My husband and I feel that the $8 we invested in a fence for a play yard for our two boys were well spent. The play yard is 15 feet square and contains a little cherry tree, some grass and a large space from which the grass has long since disappeared. Here we put a big sand pile which, when wet, supplies dough for all sorts of delectable bakery products, and when dry afford opportunities for constructing bridges and mysterious tunnels.

The play yard is the place for tea parties in the "hungry" middle of the afternoon." It has not only supplied the needs of our own children, but is quite the social center of the neighborhood—too much so, one might sometimes think!

Songs, stories, hand work and nature study are important lines of kindergarten activity which a mother can pursue at home with the help of a few good books and her own resourcefulness. The child deprived of kindergarten is not so likely to suffer for want of these activities as for the lack of the social training which, to me, is the biggest contribution of the kindergarten. The child needs to play with other children. "Here," says Jean Paul, "the first social fetters are woven of flowers." And therein lies the unique value of the little play yard. Children learn there to give and take, to adjust themselves to each other and co-operate. They also develop the initiative that makes for leadership.

Please pass this article on to a friend and thus help Uncle Sam reach all the mothers of the country.

JURY FAILS TO REACH VERDICT IN SIMS TRIAL

Members of Pannel Deliberate for Twenty Hours Without Agreement and are Discharged By Judge Babcock

Unable to agree upon a verdict after 20 hours deliberation, the jury in district court here in the trial of Harold M. Sims, newspaper man and former state representative charged with the commission of a statutory offense, was discharged at 12 o'clock noon Sunday by District Judge W. A. Babcock.

Prosecuting Attorney F. L. Stephan stated this morning that a new trial in the case would be held at the next term of court in May, as the prosecuting witness, Miss Ruth E. Jester and her father, H. T. Jester, decided to press the action.

The final vote of the jury is said to have indicated an equal division of opinion in respect to the guilt or innocence of the defendant.

The trial, which occupied the entire closing week of the district court term here, attracted wide interest and was attended daily by a crowd of spectators, filling the court room to capacity. The testimony of more than thirty witnesses was presented with great precision, some of the witnesses being recalled to testify for the defendant.

The conduct of the trial both by Prosecuting Attorney Frank L. Stephan for the state and by Captain E. M. Swezey for the defendant, has been widely commented upon as being one of the cleanest in the annals of trials of cases of this nature.

WOULD ORGANIZE SOVIET COUNCIL

Various Brands of "Reds" Say They Intend to Form Working Organization Soon

CHICAGO, March 3.—I. W. W. members together with various brands of "reds" intend to form a council of Soviets here May 1, if their plans are not interfered with, federal officers said today.

Philip J. Barry, head of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, said his office had known the plans for several weeks and had gathered plans and hundreds of addresses of invitations to a meeting here.

The forming of the soviet council as planned was believed to be an effort to duplicate those which followed the overthrow of the Russian government. Officials declared that small self-styled councils already exist, to which every element of discontent has aligned itself.

It was stated that Russians closely connected with the first activities of the Bolsheviks have been allied with the starting of the soviet plans here.

BOXING BILL IS DELAYED BY BILLERS OF LAW MAKERS

Theatres

"THE TRAIL OF THE LONESOME PINE"

The greatest of the season's productions, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," comes to the Loring Theatre, Friday, March 7.

The dramatization of this widely read novel, which in thousands of New York and Chicago, is from the pen of John Fox, Jr., the author of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," is by Eugene Walter, clever dramatist, who has written such successful plays as "Paid in Full" and "The Eastest Way."

The production has a beautiful scenic mounting and it met with capacity greetings in long runs in Boston, New York and Chicago. From all accounts the play is as delightful as the book for the beauty of the book has been redoubled on the stage.

The strong New York company portrays the stirring scenes of the book in a delightful manner.

With Hosts and Hostesses

The Salmon Social club met with Mrs. J. W. Owens February 28. Fourteen members and three visitors were present. All were pleased to have Mrs. J. P. Mikesell among us again. After the business meeting, a dainty luncheon was served by the hostess, which was enjoyed by all. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Dean Miller, Marche 6. Each member is requested to bring scissors and thimble and the day will be spent in sewing for Mrs. Miller, who has been sick for the past three months.

TWIN FALLS BASKETBALL SQUAD IS TWICE DEFEATED

Loses on Trip to Teams of Shoshone and Gooding—Return Games Planned

The Twin Falls high school basketball team was defeated in games played Friday at Shoshone and on Saturday at Gooding.

The game at Shoshone was fast and closely contested, the final score being 25-20.

Gooding high school's squad piled up a score of 53-25 against the Twin Falls team.

Arrangements are being made for a return game with Gooding to be played here in the near future.

Twin Falls' line-up in the two games of last week was as follows: Center, Glasgow; forwards, Newmann and Parsons; guards, Krenkel and Reed; substitute, Carter.

NINE SCHOOLS SCHEDULED FOR DRESSMAKERS

Miss Georgia Belle Elwell of University Extension Department to Spend Month of March in Twin Falls County

In addition to conducting nine schools in dressmaking, each of three days duration, Miss Georgia Belle Elwell of the state university extension department, who is to spend four weeks beginning today in this county to instruct the auspices of the county farm bureau, will conduct demonstrations on two afternoons, one at Filer and one at Bickel.

Dressmakers' schools will be conducted by Miss Elwell at Maroon, Filer, Hansen, Kimberly, Twin Falls, Buhl, Poplar Hill, Curly and in the Filer high school.

Some Are Disappointed.
Mrs. C. H. Brown, home demonstration agent, who has had arrangements for the schools in charge, states that at least 25 applicants for Miss Elwell's services in other communities could not be fulfilled, and that in view of the evident demand for these courses of instruction Miss Elwell had consented to be here for four weeks instead of for three weeks as at first contemplated.

Schedule of Schools.
The first of the schools is to open at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Maroon and to continue there between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock p. m. for three days under the direction of Mrs. D. C. Bierer.

Following is the schedule for the ensuing schools:
Filer—In charge of Mrs. J. M. Marckel, Thursday, March 6, 7, 10 o'clock p. m., Friday and Saturday, March 7 and 8, 2 to 5 p. m.

Hansen—In charge of Mrs. Stuart Brown, Monday, Tuesday, March 10 and 11, from 10 to 4 p. m., Wednesday, March 12, 9:30 to 12:30 p. m.

Kimberly—In charge of Mrs. W. M. VanHouten, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, March 12, 13 and 14, from 2 to 5 p. m.

Twin Falls—In charge of Mrs. J. W. Rawlings, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 13, 14 and 15, from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Buhl—In charge of Mrs. J. G. Mason, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 17, 18 and 19, from 2 to 5 p. m.

Poplar Hill—In charge of Mrs. A. J. Daum, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 20, 21 and 22, from 2 to 5 p. m.

Curly—In charge of Mrs. W. F. Alworth, Tuesday, March 25, an all-day session, Wednesday, March 26, from 2 to 5 p. m.

Filer High School—In charge of Mrs. J. M. Marckel and Miss Kepphardt, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 27, 28 and 29, from 7 to 10 p. m.

Two Demonstrations Listed.
The demonstration at the Filer Methodist Episcopal church on Wednesday, March 5, from 2 to 4 p. m., in charge of Mrs. J. M. Marckel, is a demonstration in the renovation of old clothing and is under the auspices of the Filer Women's club.

On Friday, March 14, from 2 to 5 p. m., at Bickel, at a demonstration in charge of Mrs. George A. Bender, Miss Elwell will give instruction in cleaning, cutting and making children's garments.

Car Nearly 3 Years Old Sells Beyond Original Price
"The resale price is the unsurpassable argument in the status of a car in the public mind," said John A. Butler, president of the Butler Motor Car company, Kansas City automobile dealer. "In that connection, you will find an interesting illustration which shows typically how easy it is to move a certain make of car after two or three years' service."
In February, 1915, we showed our original demonstrator, No. 101, to three thousand people at our opening. The car was then sold, and in December of the same year was resold to the United States Food company.
"In January this company bought a new car, and we again took possession of No. 101 in trade. For some months we used this car to demonstrate the remarkable durability of the finish. We cleaned up the car, repainted the wheels, put on new fenders and actually very few people knew it was a used car until we called their attention to the fact."
"Finally in August, 1918, this car was sold for $850, just $25 more than its original price in 1915. If any other car had had a more interesting resale history, I'll stake my judgment that it's another Dodge brothers' car."

In the Embryo.
Gertrude strutted about like a peacock with her aunt's hat and veil on. Billy, her cousin, poked fun at her.
"Oh, take off the veil, they're only for ladies," he said. Gertrude let no time in saying: "Well, I'm the beginning of a lady, ain't I?"

Be Wise.
"Oho used to assure that wise men profit more by fools than fools by wise men," wrote Plutarch; for wise men avoid the faults of fools, but fools will not imitate the good example of wise men."

"TARZAN OF THE APES"

Return engagement extraordinary of the jungle story which appears in film form at the Orpheum Wednesday.
"Tarzan of the Apes," which excites considerable interest among the readers of popular-fiction magazines several years ago, being the story of a primitive man—or, rather, of a man brought up among apes and endowed with many of their abilities—it presents not a few difficulties to the movie-maker. All of these have been overcome in the film and apes swing realistically from branch to branch in the jungle the white lions and leopards seek their prey on the ground below.
Intertwined with the jungle story is a domestic narrative. A majority of the scenes were photographed in Brazil and several hundred natives appear before the camera. The picture as a whole, in addition to being interesting, also has a touch of educational value. An actor named Edna Lincoln meets the difficult requirements of the hero satisfactorily.
Within the frontiers of a desolate, God-forsaken jungle on the dark, silent coast of Africa this giant white man, reared by an ape mother, roams and kills.
He slays the lion and tiger with his bare hands; the jaguar flees at his terrible cry; the massive elephants fear him.
The dreadful gorilla and stealthy panther are but babes in his hands. All the terrible beasts of the jungle skulk away at his approach.
Then comes the beautiful white girl and Tarzan of the Apes takes her to his breast and covers her face with kisses.
See this astounding picture.

Miraculous Virtue.
 Gaze thou in the face of thy brother. In those eyes where plays the lambent fire of kindness, or in those where rages the hot conflagration of anger, feel how thy own so quiet soul is straightway involuntarily kindled with the like, and by blaze and reverberate on each other, till it is all one bluish-red, confluent flame of embracing love, or of deadly, scorching hatred; and then thy own unconscious virtue goes out of map into man—Carlyle.

Germans Saved By Warm Winter

By FRANK J. TAYLOR.

BERLIN, Feb. 1 (By Mail).—The warmest winter in years has done much to relieve the suffering Germans and in other parts of the former central empire. It is looked upon as an act of providence.

There has been almost no freezing weather in Germany this winter. The dread of sickness from cold which the nation had is gradually passing. It is estimated that thousands would have died for want of heat if the usual winter had set in. It is due to the lack of coal and clothes. In Austria the situation was particularly bad, since the hotels were almost barely enough coal for cooking. Trains were cut down to a minimum, barely enough to care for traffic.

In both these countries no coal at all is allowed to the public, since the war public utilities need the entire supply. People keep from freezing only by the grace of the warm winter.

Neutral countries are affected too. In Switzerland there are no trains on Sundays, and on week days only a bare minimum are operated. Practically no coal is burned by the civilian population, which can get only enough wood for cooking.

To save coal Vienna and Budapest have decreed that all cafes and restaurants must be closed by 9 o'clock. This saves light too, since these are forbidden for people to do but go to bed. Berlin and other German cities are better supplied, due to proximity of German mines, but even here the shortage would be disastrous, were it not for warm weather.

PLAN TOKIO '19' LINES

TOKIO, Feb. 1 (By Mail).—Plans have been submitted by several of the leading financiers of Japan to build four elevated electric railway lines to relieve the present deplorable congestion of street level traffic. The application for permit to build provides for a capital of $12,000,000. It is estimated that the lines would cost $800,000,000. One elevated line now is nearing completion.

MEASURES ARE DOOMED AT LATE SESSION

Senate Republicans Show Their Determination to Stop All Appropriations Except Deficiency Bill

BY L. G. MARTIN
 WASHINGTON, March 3.—Supply bills totaling more than $2,000,000,000 have been introduced in the house and senate, were on the final lap of the session.

Senate republicans affirmed their determination to stop all appropriations bills except the deficiency bill carrying $750,000,000.

Many Still Remain

If this program is adhered to, the end of congress tomorrow at noon will find the following measures still to be acted on:

- Army bill $1,117,000,000.
- Navy bill $625,000,000.
- Agricultural $37,000,000.
- Indian $15,430,000.
- District of Columbia $13,083,000.
- Sundry civil bill $850,000,000.

The money appropriated by these bills must be provided for by June 30, or the departments will not have anything to work with.

No Progress Made

Although the railroad deficiency bill was ostensibly before the senate, the opening hours showed no progress on it. Speeches on the league of nations and the Ford Newberry elections content delayed the senate from real business.

Efforts of suffragists to get their amendment on the calendar were blocked again by Senator Weeks, Massachusetts.

Senator Meyers, Montana, tried in vain to get up Secretary Lane's bill providing reclamation work so that soldiers might have farm homes.

This was the signal for an attack by Gronna, North Dakota, who said the bill was not for the benefit of the soldiers but of those who want to reclaim the dismal swamps and country.

"Everything is for the soldiers these days," said Gronna. "Under that plea many attempts are on foot to get money. They will help soldiers. It will make paupers of them by sticking them on useless land with a few thousand dollars and a government mortgage around their necks."

GOVERNORS VOTE ON DEPORTATION

State Executives Strongly Favor Sending Out All Aliens Who are Undesirable

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Unanimous approval of the deportation of undesirable aliens was given by the following associations:

The action was taken in reply to a telegram from the central labor union of New York, protesting against the deportation of aliens because of their union affiliations and strike activities.

Secretary of Labor Wilson denied the department was deporting aliens for these reasons.

Takes Previous Stand

Secretary Wilson reiterated his previous stand that aliens advocating the overthrow of the government are lawless enemies and assured the governors and mayors that the government intends to deport everyone of them.

"Use of force to overthrow a democracy cannot be the form of government may be changed by the will of the majority is nothing less than treason," the secretary said.

"If they may come and advocate socialism and other radicalism, but they must not strive to overthrow the government."

PRESIDENT SENDS MORE NOMINATIONS TO SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 3.—President Wilson today sent to the senate the following nominations:

Benjamin Spear, to be register of the land office at Waterville, Wash.

To be receiver of public money: Sidney S. Dege, Waterville, Wash.; Wm. E. Pugh, Spokane, Wash.; and Claude E. Busk, Yakima, Wash.

Wheat Guarantee May Fail

There was a possibility that the $1,000,000,000 wheat guarantee bill may not get through as the senate early on Sunday sent the bill back to conference. Vigorous efforts were being made, however, to push it through.

The house today planned to take up conference reports on the Indian and diplomatic appropriation bills. Following this, the Lane soldiers' homestead bill is to come up, followed by the civil service retirement bill, Irish independence resolution, and other bills. The conference on enemy aliens and investigation of cotton exchanges, the house appeared likely today to end the session with a practically clean legislative slate.

MAYFLOWERS

By EDITH M. RICE

"It's just a perfect day to go mayflowering," exclaimed Joyce.

"Do you mind if I see it? I can find any in Mrs. Burn's pasture?"

"But Joyce, that is a very long way from here," answered her aunt, "and besides, it is a very lonely walk as no one lives out that way."

"Why, Auntie," laughed the girl, "you know nothing will happen to me around here, everybody knows everybody else. I'll be all right."

"Well, dear," sighed Aunt Mary, "all right, you may go, but be sure to be back by five o'clock."

With a laughing remark, and a wave of her hand, Joyce Lynd was off, walking briskly to the country road. It was a very jolly girl and exceedingly popular in the small town. Since her parents died, ten years before, she had lived with her aunt, Miss Mary Lynd, on the old homestead.

After walking for about two miles along the dusty road, Joyce turned into a small pasture. She had to cross several stone walls and barbed-wire fences before she came to the pasture where the mayflowers grew.

Joyce got safely over most of all the fences, but when she came to the one which separated her from the road, she hesitated.

"Oh, dear," she exclaimed, "I don't know how I am to get over this one. It's so high and has all that barbed wire on top!"

She climbed over the wire safely and jumped down on the other side, but when she tried to stoop down to get the mayflowers she had dropped, she found that she could not get up. Her weight had caught on the barbed wire in such a way that no matter how she twisted and turned she could not loosen it, nor could she reach it with her hands.

"Oh, why can't someone hurry and come along!" scolded Joyce, stamping her foot. "I just hate this old town, with nobody in it! What's that? I do believe it's an auto! Goodness! I hope so!"

Yes, there it was again—a distinct "ching, ching" in the distance. It was coming up the road towards her. But as it came in sight, Joyce saw, to her dismay, that it was coming at a very rapid rate.

"Why never be able to stop it, at the speed it's coming," she murmured, "but I'll take a chance. Hey! there! Hello! Stop a minute please!"

With a grinding of brakes, the high-powered car stopped and a young man turned towards Joyce and taking off his cap, asked, anxiously:

"What's the matter? Have you hurt yourself?"

"No, but I'm caught on this barbed wire and I've been waiting and waiting for someone to come, but no one did, and I'm so tired and I know Aunt Mary will be worrying to death about me."

It took but a minute for him to set her free, and as she sank wearily down to the ground and began to gather up the mayflowers she had dropped, she said:

"Thank you very much for coming along and helping me. I was afraid you'd go right by and not see me. You were driving awfully fast."

"I'm getting my drive fast, especially on these country roads," he answered, "but I certainly should not have seen you if you had not called to me."

As she rose, ready to start, he said:

"Do you live far from here? Can't I take you home in the machine? I am visiting my aunt, Mrs. Grant, here in Greenboro, for a few days. My name is Robert Gordon."

"And mine is Joyce Lynd," answered Joyce, smiling at the young man. "Mrs. Mary Lynd, about two miles from here. I know Mrs. Grant, isn't she just lovely?"

"Oh, yes, she's nice," he replied, carelessly. "But get into the machine and I'll take you home."

They chatted for a few minutes. Joyce exclaimed, "Miss Lynd, anxiously. 'Have you hurt yourself, dear?'"

"No, Auntie," laughed Joyce, "but I got caught on some barbed wire and—Mr. Gordon—came along in his machine and rescued me, so here I am. Oh, and Auntie! I got a lot of flowers, only I had to give some to Robert. Come, let's see them. They are in helping me and bringing me home."

"I am glad you are all right, Joyce," replied her aunt. Then turning to Bob: "And I thank you very much, Mr. Gordon, for rescuing my niece. I was very anxious about her and was just going out to look for her, myself, when you drove into the yard."

"Oh, I was very glad I could be of service, Miss Lynd," answered Bob, laughing. "so please don't thank me. Besides, it was a very pleasing incident to myself, at least, and (holding up a large bunch of mayflowers) see the following weeks were lively ones for both Joyce and Bob, and they could often be seen driving round the town in the machine.

The next year, when Joyce was Mrs. Robert Gordon and she started on a field service, she was the main strengthening factor in the trading in grain futures on the Chicago board of trade today. Bad weather expected throughout the year, she held her own, and from the country side, was also believed to cause

LETTER FOR HULDAH

By MRS. L. S. CHARLTON.
 (Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Miss Huldah stood in the front door with a square envelope in her hand.

Usually she broke the seals in her brisk fashion, but today she gazed at the envelope rather dolefully. Huldah, her pretty niece, was her "hon" now, and "Miss Huldah Merriam" might mean either one or the other.

Curiosity, however, led Miss Huldah to open the letter and glance at the signature. Then a strange thing happened. She dropped the letter to her feet and picked up the envelope. The name signed was that of the man who had once been in love with her than all else in the world, her girlhood friend, Robert Eustis.

Yet it was not the handwriting she had once so well known. Possibly there was some mistake. Mechanically she picked up the letter, and began to read. It was for her niece after all, this frank, boyish tale, which read thus:

"Dear Huldah: We are going to be in Riverton for a few days. Will put up at the hotel. I suppose you are still with your aunt. I'm awfully glad that I may have another chance to see you before we leave for California. Will your aunt let me run in some evening, just as I used to do when you were home? Please write as soon as possible.

"Ever your friend,

"ROBERT EUSTIS."

Seems like a good, straightforward letter. Aunt Huldah murmured. Huldah won't be home till tomorrow night—but there! It would be all right for me to tell him of my mistake, and invite him anyway. I wonder, and a wistful look came into Aunt Huldah's face—who wondered if he knew about the other Robert. Sighing a little, she wrote a note inviting Huldah's friend for the next evening.

Next morning, she tried to forget the past, and resolutely put her thoughts upon the present—Huldah's return, and the coming of the expected guest.

Early in the afternoon she was arranging a great bunch of roses in the living room, when the door bell rang loudly. "Mm! too early for either of my young folks," thought Aunt Huldah, as she answered it.

The figure at the door was no longer young, with its broad shoulders and well-set head, crowned, with curling gray hair. Miss Huldah gave the glance at the clear, searching blue eyes; then gasped: "Robert!" "Yes," said the man at the door, "you invited me, and I came."

Yes, here he was after long years, with pleading in his voice, as he answered her questioning words: the invitation was intended for another man with "I know, Huldah—I know it was my boy, and I had no right to it. And I won't cross your threshold till you say I may."

Miss Huldah softened. "Come in," she said gently, "and I will explain; also I was thinking about you—and the other Robert."

"The other Robert," she said, smiling himself by the vine-wreathed window. "Shall I begin where you left off, Huldah?" "Please," she said, bravely, and the man at her side began his story.

"I left you with my heart full of anger, Huldah. I know now that it was in the wrong, and I'm sorry. Please. Then I went West and tried to forget you by digging away at a steadily growing law practice. One day, looking over an Eastern paper, I saw the notice of the marriage of Edward Thompson and Huldah Merriam."

"Edward Thompson?" she gasped. "I thought of no one but you then," was the reply. "Later on I met a lovely little California girl, whose love for me heated the old world a little. Robert was born, and both our hearts were bound up in him. Two years later I slipped away from you, and since then I have lived solely for my boy. Otherwise, my life seems an empty one. That is all, Huldah—or at least it was until today, when I saw the notice of your marriage."

And she saw the dear old name in the old handwriting, and she knew. How could you forgive me, Huldah, and let me begin all over again?"

Miss Huldah's eyes were misty, and her voice trembled, but she laid her hand on the judge's with a womanly, comforting touch. "We were both too hasty," she said, "you were hot-tempered, and I was so sure of myself. There have been lonely all these years. It was a terrible mistake, we can't bring back the old lost days, but—'We may see many glad ones in the future,'" said the judge softly. And after her whispered "yes" no more words were needed. The man's hand, in thought of her niece, and the invited guest. "I must see about dinner," she laughed. "Will you stay, Robert, seeing that your son, whom I invited here today, will no doubt accompany you home?" "Poor Bob," chuckled the judge, "what has he done that I should think that precious letter?"

What he did say was made known later in the evening, when the two young people devoted themselves to teasing their elders.

"In this instance, judge," he told his father, "even if I had not seen the notice of your action in opening my letter of great benefit to all concerned. But it wouldn't be wise to lay it down as a precedent. What do you think, Huldah the second?" "I agree with you," she replied. "But so far as my case is concerned, I think you think it will greatly simplify matters when Aunt Huldah changes her name."

PROMOTER LOOKS FOR GOOD STAGE

Manager of Fighter is Out Selecting Suitable Place for the Big Match.

NEW YORK, March 3.—With the expected arrival here today of promoter Tex Rickard, who has been in the south-west for the last few weeks, interest in the proposed championship bout between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey increased materially.

Speculation was rife as to where Rickard plans to stage the contest, scheduled for the first of July.

Many well informed eastern boxing enthusiasts professed to believe that the big fellows will be seen in action for the championship crown not so very far from New York. One goes so far as to assert that there is a strong possibility that the bout will be held in or near New York City. Others pick New Jersey and have based a statement made by Rickard in Texas, in which the promoter was quoted as saying that the contest will be held in the east. He added that the number of rounds will be five.

Thinker Place Decided

New York fight fans who have been following the promoter's movements closely, are wedded to the belief that Rickard has practically decided upon the place of meeting. They expect him to divulge the secret upon his arrival here.

Those of the fight followers who assert that the big bout will come to New York, base their belief upon the possible action of the New York state legislature in connection with boxing legislation now under consideration. Senator Gibbs expects to submit his boxing bill within the next few days and a preliminary hearing is scheduled before the publicity committee at Albany on March 11. Senator Gibbs and others interested in the subject have asked news writers and expounders of boxing to hold their position on the above mentioned date. The chief objection to the New Jersey proposal, boxing enthusiasts assert, is the short course. Eight rounds is entirely too short a championship contest, they maintain, and many are hopeful that twelve round contests will be legalized in New York so that the big fellows may have an opportunity of appearing before the public in a more dignified and under consideration, but it remains for Rickard to go on record for a definite statement.

PEACE DELAY BECOMES DANGEROUS TO ALLIES

Associated Powers Must Make Haste or Have No Stable Government to Deal With

LONDON, March 3.—Delay in effecting a preliminary peace with Germany may mean the allies will have no stable government to deal with in the coming year, Winston Churchill, secretary of war, declared in the house of commons this afternoon.

"Germany's starving and dangerously near collapse," he said. "Social and national life in that country is under the pressure of hunger. Now is the moment to settle the peace terms. Delay will mean the risk of having nobody with whom to deal."
