RUMANIANS AT BUDAPEST WILL DELAY ACTION

Chief of Italian Mission Prevents Occupation of Hungarian Capital Arguing Depressing Effect on New Cabinet

CHANGE FROM SOVIET TO SOCIAL DEMOCRACY PLAN

American Officials Advise That Troops Entering City Start Plundering in Suburbs; Military Rule Prevails

BUDAPEST, (AP)—Thirty thousand Rumanian troops including infantry, cavalry and artillery entered the city today with a blare of trumpets. The Rumanian forces led by General Marghescu, passed through Andrássy and other streets.

BUDAPEST, (AP)—One regiment of Rumanian cavalry is quartered at Kabanja, a suburb three miles from the city and overlooking it. Only Rumanian officers are actually inside the city proper. General Buncescu, the Rumanian commander and staff are guests of Lieutenant Colonel Romanelli, chief of the Italian mission here. The latter has prevented the occupation of Budapest districts by representing to the Rumanians that such action would have a depressing political effect for the new cabinet. The Rumanians sent a message last night that they would occupy the city or burn it but later entered into a parley with Joseph Haulbrich, Hungarian minister of war, and agreed to postpone action. The city is quiet.

BUDAPEST IS OBJECTIVE OF OPPOSING ARMIES

BERLIN, (AP)—Troops of the Szeged government of Hungary Monday advanced to within 25 miles of Budapest and expected to reach that city Monday night and Jugo-Slav forces are also advancing upon Budapest according to a Vienna dispatch. It is stated that the Rumanians have captured many communist leaders at the Hungarian capital.

The Hungarian people's republic is the official title of the new government at Budapest, it was announced at Vienna yesterday by members of the Hungarian government after a conference with allied representatives. Those representatives agreed upon at the conference was given to the correspondents by Dr. Peter Agoston, the new Hungarian minister of foreign affairs. He announced the Budapest government would change from the soviet system to social democracy. The new government, he said, guaranteed the rights of a new constitution would be created, a constitutional legislature elected, industries already socialized will remain in public service until the legislature meets and laws are enacted. The constitution will be in force until changed by the new legislature.

Complete amnesty for all political offenders punished under soviet rule has been granted, it was announced. One of the things to be determined by the legislature will be the degree of socialization to be adopted.

Food is reported to be scarce in Vienna and only part of the stores open.

AMERICAN REPORT SOME PLUNDERING IN SUBURBS

PARIS, (AP)—Telegrams from American officials at Budapest, saying that Rumanian troops upon entering Budapest yesterday started plundering in the suburbs. Fifteen or twenty civilians were killed by the Rumanians during the day, it is added. The American reports said the Rumanians were demanding in hostages, and threatened to kill five hostages for each Rumanian soldier injured in Budapest.

Some members of the new Hungarian ministry, the telegrams state, have been

AUSTRIAN REPLY WILL BE READY

Counter Proposals to the Peace Terms to Be Handed Over in Time Limit

PARIS, (AP)—Dr. Karl Renner, the Austrian chancellor and head of Austria's peace delegation, informed German Secretary Dittus of the peace conference today that Austria's counter proposals to the peace terms would be handed over tomorrow, within the prescribed time for their presentation.

The supreme inter-allied council decided Monday that the heads of the allied military missions in Germany should attend a conference to be held in Berlin between German and Polish representatives to consider matters relating to the transfer of territory ceded to Poland by the German peace treaty.

The council also heard a Swedish delegation, introduced by the Swedish minister, on the disposition of the Aland islands.

Daddies of the Packer Bill

Congressman Sydney Anderson, Minnesota, and Senator W. S. Kenyon, Iowa, joint "fathers" of the packer bill, approved by the Federal Trade Commission, and which is regarded as the fruit of the commission's meat and livestock investigations. The bill provides for the government licensing of packing plants, excepting farmers' co-operative plants and those doing business under $500,000 a year. Failure to obey the provisions of the license would result in the government taking over the offending packing plant. Under the provisions of the bill the packers must give up control of the refrigeration cars, retire from ownership of fruit, vegetable and fish canneries, from the grocery business, and from active control of the stockyards. They would be limited solely to butchering and preparing meat and its by-products. The secretary of agriculture is designated as the administrative officer under the license plan.

SHOPMEN UNION HEADS ATTEMPT TO GET VOTE ON STRIKE FOR DEMANDS

Chicago District Council, with 300,000 Men Out, Defies Order of Grand Lodge Officers for Ballot; Will Refrain from Work Until Claim for Higher Wages is Granted, Secretary Says; Senate Passes Whole Matter Up to Committee.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Demands of the railroad wage question in the senate. He said criticism should not be made of the railroad employees until all the facts were determined, adding that requests of railroad executives for increased rates had not brought forth particular protest.

The senate interstate commerce committee, Senator Cummins said, "have careful consideration to the president's recommendations and I don't pretend to say that it will do but I do say that it is unfair to congress for the railroad administration to issue a statement to the country that the situation cannot be dealt with by railroad administration until additional legislation is enacted."

Questions Hines' Courage
Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, suggested that to avoid a rate increase, dividends to railroads and their stockholders might well be reduced. Senator Pomerehne, democrat, Ohio, declared it looks to him as if "there is a desire to pass the responsibility," and added:

"If I were the director general I would have the courage to say whether there ought to be increased wages or I would resign."

Senator Cummins said the situation should be dealt with at once. Senator Kellogg, republican, Minnesota, declared Mr. Hines "hasn't the courage" to meet the situation.

Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, attacked former Representative Keating, Colorado, for accepting appointment from the railroad brotherhoods as their legislative agent to press their railroad

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—Parcel post shipments of food, principally hams, bacon and lard, to individuals in Germany and Austria from friends and relatives here which have been increasing steadily since mail service between the United States and those countries was restored, filled three mail cars leaving here today for the east.

LONDON, (AP)—The government has decided to revert to its pre-war policy of non-interference in industrial disputes, says the Daily Mail today, leaving employers and workers to adjust their own difficulties and limiting government action to safeguard life and property and maintaining essential public services.

GOERLENZ, (AP)—From within the ancient walls built by the Romans around the village of Andernach, General Pershing had his last glimpse of the Rhine late Saturday just before leaving the American area in Germany for the battle fields where the general and his party are to spend ten days. This is to be General Pershing's final trip over the battlefield before starting for the United States to make his report to Secretary of War Baker.

INCREASED PRODUCTION TO REDUCE COSTS, ADMINISTRATION SOLUTION

LABOR DEMANDS RETIREMENT OF PRIVATE CAPITAL

Proposes Tri-Partite Control of Railroad Properties by Public, Operating Management and the Employees

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Organized labor was heard the nation today with a demand that private capital be retired from railroad operation and that there be substituted a tri-partite control of the railroad properties by the public, the operating management and the employees.

The demand of organized labor, presented in a statement signed by the curriers, firemen, conductors and the American Federation of Labor was recognized today in Washington as the most far-reaching proposal yet placed before the nation during its reconstruction period. Official refusal to predict its outcome. Tomorrow it will be formally laid before the house interstate commerce committee by Warren S. Stone, chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, and Glen E. Williams, general counsel for the General Railway Employees of America. The proposal in the words of its authors, "marks the step by which organized labor passes from the demands for wage increases to demands that the system of profits in industry be overhauled."

TRAFFIC LEAGUE COUNSEL PRESENTS HIS SUGGESTIONS

WASHINGTON, (AP)—William A. Wimshurst, attorney at law, counsel for the Southern Traffic League, told the house interstate commerce committee today it should sit tight and proceed with investigation of the railroad problem just as organized labor had not demanded tri-partite control of the roads.

Unless you are working on a plan which includes the return of the road to private management which I may say to you will be of no value whatever, Mr. Wimshurst said before taking up his general statement. "If you are going to adopt government ownership, or if

CHURCH EDIFICE TO COST $75,000

St. Edward's Catholic Parish Calls for Bids on the New Structure.

A church building to cost approximately $75,000 is to be constructed by St. Edward's Catholic parish to be completed early in the coming spring. Plans and specifications have been made by E. H. Gates, architect, and construction proposals have been invited. The first work on the site was done by the architect at 8 o'clock p. m. Tuesday, September 2.

The parish church is to stand on Sixth avenue east, at the corner Second street. The new church is an architectural and structural design to the universally adopted plan of Catholic church edifices, being principally of brick and Roman in architecture.

Massive Structure
Foundation walls for the building will be 36x120 feet and at the east end of the edifice will rise two spires, one at each side of the front. The principal materials to be used in the construction will be brick and terra cotta, the latter to be employed chiefly in the facings.

The facade design, although of moderate dimensions will bear churchly ornamentation in reference to ecclesiastical legends, subjects and Christian figures. Three massive double doors, the entrance at the front, the side being reached by seven stone steps passing almost the entire length of the front. In the back there will be two large rooms, one for the choir and vestments, the other for the priests, as study rooms, and for the sacred vessels of the church. The interior of the church will be a series of long aisles for such Catholic places of worship.

Catholic Glass-Letter
While at present no detailed plans have been made for cathedral glass windows, these will be installed later, together, probably, with memorials to departed communicants of St. Edward's parish, in perpetuation of their memory. The first windows will be of plain stained glass, these to be replaced as time proceeds by the more permanent windows.

According to authorities of the parish St. Edward's is to be a denominational school, or academy, to be operated in connection with the general church service. Plans for the building, however, are merely tentative, but are expected to involve the expenditure of at least $50,000 at some future date.

Wheat from Farms and Production of Flour Show Gains

NEW YORK, (AP)—An increase of 2,500,000 bushels in the country's wheat receipts from farms for the month ending July 25 as compared with the same month in 1918 was noted in a bulletin issued today by the United States grain corporation. In the same period, the increase in flour production was nearly 1,000,000 barrels. The export figures are 107,530,000 bushels of wheat as against 105,432,000 for 1918 and 6,258,000 barrels of flour as compared with 5,319,000.

METAL WORKERS TO FOLLOW SUIT

Will Take Example from Railmen and Make Demands on Congress and Wilson

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—The metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor will make demands on congress and the president this month that measures be taken to reduce the high cost of living, James O'Connell, chairman of this department, said. Membership of the metal crafts exceeds 500,000, O'Connell said.

Reduction of living costs, O'Connell said, is the only means of avoiding further strike disturbances throughout the nation. The demands will be brought forward, he said, by the executive committee of the metal trades department, which meets in Washington August 15.

"We have been granted wage increases that have gained us nothing and gotten us nowhere," said O'Connell. "The metal crafts of the country quickly absorb all increases and leaves us where we started. We are going to put it up to the government to find this way out."

THUNDER MOUNTAIN FIRE DECLARED EXTINGUISHED

Blaze Raging Since Late in June Destroying Much Timber, Under Control

BOISE, (AP)—The Yellow Pine forest fire in the Thunder mountain region of the public domain which, with its offshoots is estimated to have destroyed 50,000 acres of timber and its offshoots are under control, according to word received by forest officials here Monday afternoon. The fire started in the latter part of June, and was the largest of the present season on the public domain in Idaho.

Authentic word from the Nez Perce National Forest Office reports that the fire in that reserve are serious. Eleven large blazes are under way on the reserve.

Only 100 men are available for fighting a 12,000 acre fire near Elk City, and a 50,000 acre fire is advancing from the Selway national forest into the Nez Perce. Another fire north of Elk City is threatening to get out of control.

CONFERENCE RECOGNIZES RUSSIAN'S PART IN WAR

To Share in Indemnity Paid by Germany in Event Stable Government is Formed, Witness Says

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Norman Davis, financial adviser to the American peace delegation, said the senate foreign relations committee today that he regarded it as likely that Russia would participate in the indemnity to be paid by Germany in the event that it organized a stable government.

"Russia made a tremendous contribution toward winning the war," Mr. Davis said, "and it was the general feeling that the hour should not be closed completely to her in the event a stable government was organized."

Mr. Davis testified that the real reason why the peace conference set no definite reparations total for Germany to pay were "largely political."

PRESIDENT SAYS STRIKE THREATS ADD DIFFICULTY

Wilson Gives Whole Time to the High Cost of Living Question — Meets Palmer and Grain Corporation Head

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The high cost of living was not discussed at today's cabinet meeting, members said as they left the White House. "Not a word was said on the subject," said one member.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Administration officials feel that one way to decrease the cost of living is to increase production and President Wilson is understood to feel that strikes now or threats of strikes will interfere materially with any solution of the problem sought by government agencies.

Quits Treaty Confab
Conferences with republican and democratic senators on the league of nations have definitely been abandoned by the president until the problems of the high cost of living are solved, Secretary Tumulty announced. The president, Tumulty said, "is going to give his whole time to the question of high cost of living."

Whether the president will go before congress to recommend steps designed to relieve the situation in which the country now finds itself will depend, Mr. Tumulty said, on the nature of the report to be made by Mr. Palmer.

Cabinet in Conference
Members of the president's cabinet went into conference early today with Mr. Palmer to receive the report of the special committee appointed last week to tabulate the various suggestions thus far received. The conference was expected to continue until just before the regular Tuesday cabinet meeting at the White House.

A Attorney General's preliminary report concerning possible action to be taken by government agencies in the effort to reduce living costs was to be submitted at the cabinet meeting and the president then planned to discuss with Julius H. Barnes, president of the United States grain corporation, a proposal to restore wheat to a free market, with the government making good the difference between the market price and the $2.25 guarantee to the farmer.

Congress Resumes Discussion
Meantime congress devoted further attention to the general subject of living costs, with the senate agricultural committee voting to begin hearings August 18 on bills by Senators Kenyon of Iowa and Kendrick of Wyoming, proposing federal regulation of the flour market.

Senator Johnson, democrat, South Dakota, told the committee drastic action must be taken to meet the present situation.

"If we don't we will have a revolution," he said. "It is in the air."

Senator Gronna, republican, North Dakota, said inadequate production was partly to blame for conditions, adding that if everyone began working fourteen hours a day instead of eight conditions would improve.

Senator Hiram Tyng, democrat, Georgia, declared labor was demanding double wages for working half time and that

URGES MEXICANS TO NAB BANDITS

Secretary Lansing Calls for the Prompt Apprehension and Punishment of Robbers

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Secretary Lansing has instructed the American consul in Mexico City to urge the Mexican government to take prompt action looking to the apprehension and punishment of the bandits who robbed George N. McDonald, American citizen, near his residence six miles south of Tampico on July 12. Details of the robbery were not made public.

An official dispatch to the state department from Aguascalientes, Mexico, confirmed Mexico City press reports that Lawrence E. Shipley of Nevada had been released by bandits who captured him last month. Shipley is now at Aguascalientes.

JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER DENIES INTENT TO HOLD CHINA'S TERRITORY

TOKIO, (AP)—(via London)—Viscount Uchida, the Japanese foreign minister, in a statement issued today, declares that Japan does not intend to claim any rights affecting the territorial sovereignty of China in Shantung. He promises that the Japanese troops will be withdrawn immediately after an agreement is concluded with China.

Japan, moreover, the foreign minister's statement adds, is considering the establishment at Tientsin of a general foreign settlement instead of a purely Japanese settlement.

BASEBALL WAR ON OVER MAY'S

Yankee Owners Refuse to Participate in Meeting Called by Johnson

NEW YORK, (AP)—The case of Carl Mays, pitcher, whose suspension by President Johnson after May's had been traded by the Boston club to the New York Yankees which bids fair to result in one of the bitterest wars of organized baseball, will not be settled by the American league club owners.

President Johnson, who came to New York to preside at a meeting of the league called for today, announced that a special meeting would be held. The owners of the Yankees, Colonel Jacob Ruppert and Lieut. Col. T. L. Hunter, told Johnson that they would not attend such a meeting and that night in which he said that it was his belief that President Johnson was interested in the Cleveland club, adding that "all this exchange is rumored there can be no health in our league."

Harry Sparrow, business manager of the club, said that legal machinery had been put in motion to protect the club's right.

The preliminary move is expected to be in the form of an application for an injunction against Johnson to prevent him from interfering with the New York club's property rights to pitcher Mays.

China's Water Transportation.

On the rivers, streams or canals of China transportation and postal facilities depend on the sampans. Women, as well as men, operate them all day and the proberile foot rowers their dink much easier. Only Real Riches.

There is no wealth but life; life, including all its powers of love, joy and admiration. The country is the richest which nourishes the greatest number of noble and happy human beings; that man is richest who, having perfected the functions of his own life to the utmost, has also the widest helpful influence, both personal and of ideas, on his fellow-men, over the lives of others.—Ruskin.

Milton and Italy.

How delightful was Italy to Milton! His Allegro and Penseroso show that he could fully appreciate both its mirth and its majesty. He returns not the less to live out a career of tireless service in his own country; where his brave heart and philosophic mind were of more avail to his time than even his sacred song to ours.—Julia Ward Howe.

Submarine Coal Mines.

There are many submarine coal deposits off the British Isles, but so far they are not much worked. The tunnels of the mines at Whitehaven extend some four miles from shore under the Irish sea, however, and there also is some submarine coal mining at Holyhead near the Irish coast and at Monkwearmouth in Durham.

Long Indian Name.

The longest geographical Indian name is probably that of Lake Chagoganagomahungogochunungogamang. This lake is in Massachusetts and its name has recently been changed to Lake Webster. The word is of Algonquian origin and is said to mean "How the south wind made a large water where many blackbirds chatter."

Gathering Life's Gold.

The gold of life does not lie hidden in mines; it sparkles in thy smile and along the common path of every day. He only who gathers it bit by bit from daily duties and pleasures and opportunities and friendships will find himself the possessor of the real treasure at last.

Expensive and Unnecessary.

BIG LEAGUE LEADERS STAGING BITTER TILT

Reds and Giants Engage in a Desperate Struggle for Top Place Honors

NEW YORK, (AP)—Cincinnati defeated New York from the National league leadership last Friday and by winning the series two games to one had a lead of 1-2 games over its rivals Sunday. In the American league Chicago faltered, losing four games out of 1, but retained its lead. The St. Louis Browns advanced to engage in a close four-cornered fight for second place with Cleveland, Detroit and New York. The Indians had second place themselves after Sunday's victory.

Efforts to strengthen their forces were made last week by three leading National teams and the New York Americans. The Giants acquired from the Boston Nationals pitcher Arthur Nehf, Cincinnati obtained from Rochester Internationals Outfielder Ben Zito who has been battling well. Chicago bolstered up its defense and offense by getting infielder Herzog from the Boston Nationals. The New York Yankees, however, have been unable to win pitcher Mays, obtained from the Boston American. Mays was indefinitely suspended by President Johnson for his refusal to pay a fine levied by his former club before his transfer.

IS A WONDER IN THE WATER

Mrs. Frances Schroth Said to Be Best All Around Swimmer in the Country

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—For her versatility as a swimmer, many followers of the sport have no other to Mrs. Frances Schroth. Schroth, the name among women that has been accorded among men to Norman Ross that of being the best all round performer of her sex.

In a recent meet held here Mrs. Schroth won every event in which she entered. Her versatility may be judged from the fact that she included 200 and 500 yard swims and the 50 and 100 yard back stroke events. She holds records in the free style short distance and also is a winner of the Golden Gate, considered one of the most exacting and difficult of the coast waters to negotiate. In this contest she was opposed by the best long distance women swimmers on the coast.

Brief Sport Bits

Jimmy Caveney, shortstop for the Seals, is in a peak of trouble which may result in a long penitentiary term for him.

Caveney, who once was an infielder in the Union association, met a Japanese on the old Barbary coast of San Francisco and a quarrel ensued. The Japanese was struck and has since died. Several of the "Prize" players were arrested and are out on bonds, but Caveney is held for manslaughter.

Are the Boston Red Sox to come up and heat out the other leaders of the American league? Looks like it.

By defeating the White Sox yesterday Boston captured the series with the leaders of the league.

Sports writers of this town, after due and timely consideration of all the baseball plans and facts, have decided not to christen the team until there is a team to christen.

Sam Sadleir asks: "Did anybody ever see these here wash shops to stick a pin in every corner of a billed shirt and stuff it in a young woman's button in the collar band so's to add to the 'high cost of laundry'?"

But then Sam's no inquisitive.

The burning question with fans in Salt Lake is "When will Emmett Mulvey get another base hit?"

Mulvey and "Phat" Thompson are in the sunny littlest class.

Whatever the home baseball promoters are going to do must be done quickly. If they decide to go the limit getting a real team they must start at once. If they decide they have gone the limit then the fans will give the game no further support this year.

A few sharp in California says you can tell a good one by the color of its legs.

Sam Sadleir asks in this regard: "Right that this here expert's a' b'pols should stop."

Manager Hugh Beach of the Pirates is carrying two high-class first basemen, Vic Soier and "Molly" Mollwitz. First he uses one, then the other, and his fans far rejected all offers for trade or sale of either.

It is natural, of course, for Muggsy to be as glib as a butterfly in the developed. It is also quite natural for him to give Eddie credit, because Ames was a New Yorker.

Red Sox players threaten to strike if Carl Mays, recalcitrant pitcher, is traded to any club having pennant chances. The players do not consider the actions of the twirler entitled him to share in a world's series melon.

EDDIE M'GOORTY TO MEET BECKETT

Oshkosh Battler Scheduled to Fight British Champion in London September 2

LONDON, (AP)—A twenty round fight between Joe Beckett, the English heavyweight champion, and Eddie McGoorty of Oshkosh, Wis., has been arranged for September 2 in this city. Among the team members of the American expeditionary forces who arrived here for the competition is Sergeant Stanley Smith of Cleveland, winner of the rifle championship at Le Mans, France. Another champion here is Corporal A. R. Peyton of Pasadena, California.

PROFESSIONALS ALWAYS NERVOUS

Champion Swimmer Tells of Stage Fright Before Start of Every Race

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—Years of competition fail to eliminate the attacks of "nerves," which champion swimmers experience just prior to some important match race, according to Mrs. Frances Conella Schroth, rated one of the best of American swimmers. Mrs. Schroth recently commented on the fact that she never has been able to eliminate the nervous strain she suffers just before the start of every race.

"Once I hit the water, the nervousness deserts me entirely," she explained. "I have been competing for four years but I have not been successful in getting over that awful feeling I undergo when lining up for a start. At first I thought that with constant competition I would be cured of 'nerves' but in all races I am tense and eager before the firing of every starting gun."

Mrs. Clare Galligan Finney, Olga Durfee, Duke Kahanamoku and in fact all the prominent swimmers I have met tell me they suffer from the same complaint. I guess it is all a part of the game although I can truthfully say that in the one phase of it I do not enjoy."

COAST LEAGUE IS CLOSE RACE

Uncertainty of Baseball Demonstrated when Los Angeles Loses Big Lead

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—The uncertainty of baseball again has been demonstrated with the tumbling down in the percentage column of the Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast league. A little more than a month ago many of the followers of the game were wagging their heads and intimating that the Angels were so far ahead in the race that practically all interest in the dish for the pennant was gone and the fact that remained was to concentrate on the struggle for second place.

During the interval the impossible has occurred and the Los Angeles team, being desperately with Vernon for the honors, with the rest of the first division teams only a matter of a few games behind which the reverses of a single series on the part of the leaders will eliminate. What appeared to be a runaway race now has developed into one of the closest struggles ever witnessed on the Pacific Coast and at the present time, any one of the four first division clubs is accounted in the reckoning.

CLEVELAND, (AP)—All of the favorites won in the grand circuit races yesterday. The North Randall purse of $2,100 for 2:05 trotters was won by the heavily favored Royal Mac. The heat time was 2:05 1-2.

Natalie the Great, which has never lost a heat, easily won the $2,000 stakes for 2 year old trotters. Time 2:13.

The 2:06 pace resulted in the hottest contested event of the day, four heats being necessary. Sannard took the second round in 2:02 1-2, the fastest mile of the day. Roy Gratton won the first and fourth heats and the race, with the third heat going to O. U. C.

Tommy Todd, the veteran half mile grilling, captured the 2:10 trot. Time 2:17 3-4.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS HAUNT PREMIER'S HOME

Two Laborers with Revolvers and Knife Arrested at Clermont Residence

PARIS, (AP)—Two laborers, one of whom had two revolvers and the other a large knife, were arrested today near the residence of Premier Clemenceau by detectives who said their manner excited suspicion. As they were being taken to the police station a detective said, the men offered money for their release. When they were questioned, they gave their names as Ernest Yallen and Alexander Bonnard. They said they had an engagement with friends and relatives at a cafe in the street where M. Clemenceau resides.

The possession of weapons, they explained by saying that some one whose name they did not know, commissioned them to sell the weapons for him. The men were held for trial on charges of carrying concealed weapons and attempted bribery.

Yallen, the police stated, is believed to be a deserter.

Old Style Dentistry Going Out— A Better Style Coming In

By DR. PARKER Founder and Executive Head of the E. R. Parker System

OLD-STYLE dentistry was too slow—it wasted time and the patient paid for the waste.

You had to wait your turn, and you had to make appointment after appointment to get dental work done.

The trouble was the lack of system and the limitations of one dentist working by himself.

The E. R. Parker System in Dentistry cuts out all delays and gets the work done at once.

Fewer appointments are required, and often dental work can be completed in one visit that required several visits under the old style.

This is because the Parker System requires a staff of specialists, and specialists not only work better, but faster.

If you will visit the office in this city where the Parker System is used, a specialist will look at your teeth, tell you without charge what ought to be done with them, and tell you in advance the price for doing the work if you decide to have it done.

This will show how much less dental prices are under the Parker System than under the old methods now going out of style.

DENVER PUSHES OPEN GATES OF SOUTH AMERICA

Colorado Exporters Profit by Sympathetic Deference to Business Customs Prevalent Below the Equator

DENVER, (AP)—Denver exporters are rapidly pushing open the gates of commercial South America by giving greater attention to the needs of Latin American countries. The more sympathetic deference to business customs prevalent below the equator, by more careful packing and by refraining from hawking the South American merchants to pay their bills.

Lessons derived from the experiences of Denver manufacturers may be a benefit to those of any section of the country. Business circulars are being issued in Spanish and correspondents familiar with that language are being employed so as to approach the customer in his own language.

Shipment Fit Transportation.

Realizing that much of their merchandise must be transported by mules over the Andean passes, the Denver men are limiting the weight of packages of machinery to about 250 pounds and are packing them in cases composed of heavy planks reinforced with steel bands.

Attention of credit is being arranged through the assistance of certain New York banks.

Denver exporters find that it is best not to introduce innovations with painful suddenness.

Demand Is Growing.

There is scarcely a South American country with which some Denver manufacturer has not established commercial relations. The ancient mines of the west are reached by way of the west coast of South America and are the best customers for the class of machinery which Denver has to offer.

One local exporter of mining machinery reports that he has received more inquiries from Latin America in the past six months than ever before during a corresponding period.

ARMY PUT UP REAL "SALVATION" DRINK

Soldiers Laud Relief Efforts of Lascias During Stressful Period of the War

CAMP LEWIS, Wash.—Of the many testimonials of the great good given by the Salvation Army that are being brought back by the men from overseas is a clipping from the Stars and Stripes of Paris that one of the A. E. F. men who was wounded in the Somme salient has had framed for preservation. The clipping reads:

When the wiping out of the Somme salient became a mere incident in the growing list of German victories this might have been there will probably be no item better remembered by men who were wounded while on that little job than the item of lemonade.

One division in particular will thank the Salvation Army with pocketbooks wide open for the carload of juicy yellow Italian fruit that happened to be near enough to Soissons and to Chateau Thierry wounded available in the thick of things.

The Salvation Army had been looking forward to hot weather, drive or no drive, and they were getting ready to substitute real lemonade, with rinds and everything, for old reliable chocolate or the doubtful punch. The water supply was none too good, and when a man is hot he wants something to drink as soon as he can get to it.

So when the doughboys and the artillery and the signal company began sending representatives back to visit the dressing stations, the Salvation Army came to the fore with those Italian lemons, lemons and sugar and a barrel of clean, cold water, which they brought up on a Ford delivery truck. Every Yank who got within range of that lemonade threw away his cigarette and made a dive for his tin cup.

The doctors say that a good many who couldn't walk and who couldn't make a dive for their share are going to live and go back to the states because they got a drink that killed their fever when they needed it most. Lemonade is a life-saver to wounded fevered men, and this particular lot turned some good tricks for the Germans.

Written at the bottom of the clipping by the soldier who is saving it is the inscription:

"And I'm one of 'em that was saved by that dose of lemonade."

UNITED STATES CANNOT RELIEVE COAL PROBLEM

Hoover Declines Permanent Direction of European Commission

PARIS, (AP)—Shipping and fuel representatives of France, Belgium and Italy conferred with Herbert Hoover, head of the international relief organization here Monday and decided to urge the supreme council of the peace conference to appoint a European coal commission to coordinate the distribution of European coal in an effort to avert what threatens to be a disaster. Mr. Hoover has said that Europe's coal production was 35 percent below normal and that the United States could not offer relief because of the shortage of shipping.

Mr. Hoover declined to accept the permanent direction of the proposed European coal commission stating he believed the problem to be strictly European and that the situation cannot be relieved materially by the slight help which the United States can give.

BRING FEED IN, IS SUGGESTION

Western Livestock Men Favor Hay Imports Rather Than Sending Cattle East

OGDEN, Utah.—Western livestock men have expressed their firm belief that the government policy regarding the present drought situation ought to be favorable to the importation of necessary feed to the intermountain states, rather than the exportation of cattle to eastern states for feeding. This has been shown very clearly in Ogden during the past week and has caused attention to be directed to this phase of the feeding plans by the United States forest service in District No. 4.

Under the plan proposed by the western livestock men, low rates for shipment of feed to the intermountain country would be provided. The proposal that low rates be provided for shipment of stock from and back to the ranges is not considered the proper plan, as it is pointed out that much of the stock would be sold in the east, depriving the herds and the flocks on the western ranges.

Firm prices on hogs have continued at the Ogden market during the past week, with sales even going above the $21 mark on a number of occasions and ranging around that figure. Livestock men say there is absolutely no indication of a lower trend and they would not be surprised at even further gains. Excellent reports are being received by Ogden companies in regard to wool sales in the eastern markets and, with among prices maintained for sheep and lambs, the wool growers of the west have every reason to hold their flocks in the intermountain country and not ship them east for feeding.

Demand of Allies Gives Ex-Emperor Chance to Pose

BERLIN, (AP)—The Vorwaerts declares that the entente, by denouncing the surrender of the former German emperor, is affording the monarchists an opportunity for noble poses, which is calculated to win sympathy for Count Hohenzollern and his followers. "A bit of prudence might have told the entente that much in advance," the paper adds. The Pan-German Deutsche Zeitung says: "The German people, who on June 28th, 1913, a day of dishonor, in cowardly traitorous flight surrendered its imperial master, will again remove the blot from its escutcheon."

ARGENTINE AND GREAT BRITAIN NEAR TO BREAK

South American Country's Hostile Attitude Towards English Capital Said to Be Real Cause of Crisis

BUENOS AIRES, (AP)—Diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Argentina as a result of the purchase by Argentina of the German steamship Bahia Blanca are delicate, according to the New York Times, which says:

"Regarding rumors which from the beginning have been founded on more than supposition, we have received very evident and according to which the return to London of Sir Reginald Tower, British minister to Argentina and the departure of Francisco Alvarez de Toledo, Argentina minister to England, from London, are not disconnected. On the contrary it appears the retirement of both ministers is traceable to the purchase by Argentina of the steamship Bahia Blanca from the Germans, which purchase the British government refused to recognize."

Sees Deeper Cause.

Another newspaper, Las Noticias, says:

"The occasion for the present situation is the refusal of the British government to recognize the purchase of Bahia Blanca but the real cause underlying the crisis is the Argentine government's hostile attitude toward British capital invested in Argentina."

When the great war broke out the Bahia Blanca, a ship owned by the Hamburg American Steamship company was interned in the harbor of Buenos Aires to prevent her capture by allied warships. In June, 1913, it was announced at Buenos Aires that the ship had been leased by Argentina. Later it was learned the ship had been bought by the Argentine government. The ship, however, never went to sea because the allies and the United States refused to recognize the transfer of her flag.

THE HUNGARIAN SITUATION

Advisers from various sources on the Hungarian situation indicate chaotic conditions prevail in the capital. It is apparent, however, that the allied powers are bending all efforts to adjust matters as speedily as possible, recognizing the dangers existing in the given play.

The advance toward Budapest of troops of the Szegedin government, reported today, indicates the intention of the anti-Bolshevik elements—mainly bourgeois and peasant—to have a hand in the setting up of the permanent new government for Hungary. Rumanian interest is mainly to make sure that the Hungarians are rendered militarily impotent.

The reported advance of the Jugo-Slavs toward Budapest is a new element in the situation. One explanation might be that the Jugo-Slav authorities consider their territorial claims would be better safeguarded were their lines established nearer the Hungarian capital.

Some advisers have reported the temporary cabinet formed under Jules Peidl, already out, to be supplanted by a new ministry with communistic representation eliminated and with all elements of the population represented. There have been some indications that the Szegedin and Budapest leaders might be willing to co-operate in the formation of such a ministry.

"THE NEXT WAR"

"The next war" in which the United States engages will be fought by youthful graduates of a compulsory military training system and by recruits secured through the operation of the selective service act in force during the great war, according to the plans of the war department embodied in a bill transmitted to congress today by Secretary Baker.

The knowledge of just who will be called upon to fight "the next war" ought to, and no doubt will stimulate interest in the causes that may bring about that conflict, and it becomes apparent, in view of the very general application of the proposed manner of raising another army, that situations and events that may lead to war will be more carefully studied in the future than they have been in the past.

It is not unlikely that a much more finished type of propaganda will have to be employed to drag the nation into war in the future than would have been required previous to this time. A casual review of the prospects for the next war shows that, if the senate ratifies one of the treaties negotiated recently by the president, and barring unforeseen mitigating developments, renewal of depredations against France committed by Germany whenever she feels herself strong enough to take the field with prospect of success, will immediately call forth the armed strength of the United States—and perhaps that is as it should be.

It is further apparent that the acceptance by the United States of all the provisions of the Versailles treaty will place this country in a situation where an act of aggression against any affiliated nation may result in a recommendation that the United States put troops in the field—a request which cannot be denied without unprecedented sacrifice of national honor.

It is quite evident that America's growing importance as a world power involves her bearing a heavier share of responsibility in world affairs than she has borne in the past, and that among these responsibilities is an increased exposure to war risk.

This fact can remain unrevealed only to those who adopt the defensive tactics of the ostrich.

The important question is as to the causes which may involve us in war—whether we shall be bound to a defense of persons or of principle; whether violation of the territorial and political integrity of another nation or the violation of a well established rule of international law shall be the cause belli.

As matters stand now the idea that the interests of persons are paramount seems to have a little the better of the argument, but in the time of test it is not unlikely that a perversion of principle to which we might and should subscribe would make a more effective rallying cry than would a wrong committed against another power in which we could have only a cultivated interest.

RUMANS AT BUDAPEST WILL DELAY ACTION

Arrested by the Rumanians, who have mounted machine guns in various parts of the city and demolished the local police. The city is absolutely under military control.

Brigadier General Harry H. Bandholtz, former chief of the Philippine constabulary, has been appointed American representative on the allied military commission which will go to Budapest to arrange the terms of an armistice.

Most of the newspapers here, commenting today on the Hungarian situation, expressed the belief that it would be unwise not to take every advantage of the present circumstances to establish a stable government in Hungary.

The Executive endorsed the suggestion that peace in central Europe depends on thorough disarmament of the Hungarian troops and suggested that the victorious Rumanian army should undertake this disarmament.

If the Rumanians were to return to diplomacy, the Echo de Paris said, all elements of Magyar resistance, apparent or concealed under the cloak of Bolshevism, would be caused quickly.

SPOKANE, Wash., (P)—Continuing a 20-year search for a rich gold mine, C. E. Roff recently left this city for the upper reaches of Salmon river in north Idaho. For two decades ever since he received from the deathbed of one of the discoverers of the mine, directions for its location, Roff has been spending the greater part of his summers in the wilds of the Salmon river country, in a search, thus far vain, for the treasure.

Guard Secret With Care.

For many years James Hughes and a partner, whose name is unknown, left this city each spring by devious trails. Each fall they returned with a goodly quantity of gold dust and nuggets. So carefully did they guard the secret of the source of their wealth that it never was discovered.

In the late nineties Hughes became so weakened from the afflictions incident to his advanced age that he was unable to make the annual pilgrimage and forced to do things that he did not like to do.

Mr. Wimbish said he realized that organized labor was patriotic during the war.

"But I know," he added, "that you are infinitely better prepared to consider these railroad problems than is organized labor. It is just as well to look the situation squarely in the face. The only way to handle it is calmly, uninfluenced by threats, and with the single thought of determining what is best for the whole country—not for one class."

Representative Sims, democrat, Tennessee, wanted to know what Mr. Wimbish thought of so-called demands by capital in framing a general railroad bill, referring to the request for a 6 per cent return on investments.

"This committee or this congress should not surrender to capital any more than it should surrender to labor," he replied. "Just sit tight and find out what is best for all the people."

Too Serious for Experiment.

Mr. Wimbish in his brief said he had not deemed it appropriate to submit any plan "to be added to the multitude now before you."

"The situation," he added, "is entirely too serious for suggesting new theories and untried experiments."

It was assumed, he told the committee, that government ownership and opinion was not an immediate subject of consideration and that it was understood the roads soon would be returned.

"The practical question," he said, "concerns the character and extent of legislation necessary to safeguard and promote the well-being of the public and of the carriers under private ownership and control."

bill, Senator Smoot said Mr. Keating was drawing a salary as a member of the government commission squalling salaries of government employees and should give his service to the government.

"We will pay no attention to orders issued by the grand lodge," said Secretary Saunders. "And we will not return to work until our demand for increased wages have been granted. Furthermore we will refuse to negotiate for a settlement through the grand lodge. If the government wants to talk business with us it will have to come to us direct, as we will not be bound by any agreement made by the grand lodge of officials."

Officials declared that the effect of the shopmen's strike is being felt by every railway in the west and south. They say that all the roads in the districts affected are greatly crippled and are refusing to accept perishable freight.

Reports received at union headquarters were to the effect that many locomotive engineers had refused to take out trains because of the bad condition of the rolling stock. They predict that in a few more days traffic on many of the roads will be tied up.

Secretary Saunders said that the strike is spreading daily. At noon estimated that nearly 300,000 shopmen were out.

'DRY BELT' ON U.S. BORDERS MEXICAN PLAN

Hope of Thirsty Americans to Find Oasis in Southern Republic is Likely to Meet with Disappointment

MEXICO CITY, (AP)—Thirsty residents of the United States who hope to find an oasis in Mexico may be disappointed. A cabinet member who has influence will be felt in the drafting of regulations was recently quoted in "The Economist" as saying that it may be necessary for the Mexican government to establish a "dry" zone at least ten kilometers deep along the entire length of the international boundary.

Designs on Bootleggers. Intimation was also given that the government is prepared to move immediately against persons who are reported to be helping liquor smugglers, and to Mexican territory on their base of operations.

A question which is said to be giving much concern is whether the United States government shall be allowed to transport their plants, together with their stock of goods, to Mexico. No official action has been taken on that phase of the question.

Calles Revises Laws. Prohibition as a nation wide measure commencing to attract attention. General P. Elias Calles, governor of the state of Sonora, recently revised several "dry" laws and announced they would be enforced. These regulations provide severe punishment for persons convicted of the illegal sale of liquor. The legislature of the state of Campeche has discussed "dry" measures for some time but it is improbable drastic action will be taken. Inasmuch as Governor Juanquin Muel has asked that instead of a "bone dry" law there be enacted measures regulating the manufacture and sale of intoxicants.

FORD'S ABILITY TO READ FIGURES IN LIBEL TRIAL

Journalistic Interpreter of Motor Maker is Called as a Witness

MOBILE, ALA., (AP)—Judge Tucker by his decision of testimony and reputation of counsel in Henry Ford's libel suit against the Chicago Tribune, brought testimony in the case to an end today. The jury should have the case today. W. J. Cameron, a writer who takes Henry Ford's ideas and expands them in Ford's own name, in Mr. Ford's magazine, has a "libel" suit against the Chicago Tribune. Mr. Ford's attorney, Stevenson, for the Tribune objected and Mr. Alfred Lucking testified.

"Mr. Stevenson charged that Mr. Ford could not read or write and I purpose to show—

"There is not a word in the record on that except the words of Mr. Ford himself," interrupted Mr. Stevenson.

"I object to calling a hired man to rebut Mr. Ford's own testimony," witness was permitted to testify.

"How do you know he can read and write?" asked Mr. Lucking.

"I have seen him write and I have heard his read," replied the witness. There was no cross examination.

WITNESSES DECLARE GOOD PLANES WERE DESTROYED

Photographs of American Aircraft Awaiting Seizure in France Submitted to Committee

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Six photographs of parts of airplanes piled up at Colombey-les-Belles, France, were today to be turned over to a committee by Gutzen Borglum, a sculptor of Stamford, Conn., who said he paid $500 for them and that his commissioning continued him that good parts had been destroyed.

"They were among the only battle planes the United States had," declared Borglum, whose invention of aircraft production during the war for President Wilson resulted in something of a sensation.

"Three other witnesses—Paul L. Luckwood of Stamford, a former lieutenant in the army; John C. McKague, of Brookline, and Alfred T. Roran of Scranton, Pa.—identified the photographs and testified they believed good planes were buried in France.

THE HOME GUARD

By ELLEN L. KENNEDY.

The early spring dusk was falling as Hugh Standish dropped through the icy slush and mud toward home. He had a hard day and he was tired, his shoulders sagged a trifle and his limp was more perceptible than usual. But more depressing than any mere physical weariness was the dull heaviness that oppressed his spirits. He had felt it ever since his soldier brother's return from France.

As he turned in at the gate of the little cottage the bright light from the living room windows streamed out across the path and he stopped in the shade of the syringa bush to look in at the familiar, comfortable old room. Several people were sitting there. He could see Aunt Caroline, dignified and elegant in her best black silk; Uncle Charles, portly and smiling; Cousin Gertrude in her stylish prettiness, twelve-year-old Tom, in his boyish face looking serious and intent; over in the corner, a young man in a white and white apron over her afternoon gown. And every pair of eyes was bent in admiration upon the tall, soldierly figure that stood by the piano, his lieutenant brother, irreproachable on every detail, from the tip of his smoothly brushed hair to the shining tips of his tan shoes. As he bent forward to arrange the music the light flashed on the medal that adorned his breast. Hugh could see the face of the girl who sat at the piano, but the light glinted softly on the brown curls of her hair.

"Hero-worshiping," muttered the solitary figure by the syringa bush.

With an exclamation of impatience Hugh moved on; but still that stirring voice pursued him. Quietly he let himself in at the side door and tip-toed softly into the dimly lit kitchen. He had no desire to attract the attention of the jolly group in the living room.

"He can trail around in the moonlight with the nightingales," ran his thought; "it seems to be up to me to keep the home fires burning." Out in the washroom he filled his arms with soap and water, once more enveloped, but paused at the sound of voices in the room.

"Now, Molly, child, you ran right back and help entertain all these people," his mother's voice.

"But I would so much rather help her with the eggs in the griddle," the listener loved.

"Let me tell you one thing, Molly," the elder woman's tone was low and impressive. "The heroes of this war did not all get over to France. Some of the bravest of them never even saw a training camp or wore the khaki. Oh, but the patches what they did do, I know he was a good soldier, and I am proud of him. It was always easy for Dick to do spectacular things. But if he could have been accepted Hugh would have made just as good a soldier. He had the courage to see things that would have kept me cheering and faithful with only one old woman for a witness."

"Don't you suppose I have seen, too?" Molly replied. "Don't you think I know that Hugh has worn his old overcoat all winter because 'the price of a new one went to the Liberty loan? And the patches what they did do, I know he was a good soldier, and I am proud of him. It was always easy for Dick to do spectacular things. But if he could have been accepted Hugh would have made just as good a soldier. He had the courage to see things that would have kept me cheering and faithful with only one old woman for a witness."

The eldest daughter thrilled at the trembling earnestness of the girl's voice; and now, as they slightly changed their position, he saw his mother take the girl by the shoulders and look keenly into her flushed face. "Child," she said, "I have thought Hugh's largeness was his only infirmity. Now I believe, he is hopelessly blind."

The color flamed higher in the girl's cheeks.

"You must not be the one to open his eyes," she replied.

"He must see for himself, or I must remain a splinter schoolman the rest of my days."

Hugh dropped his armful of wood with a crash and then deliberately began picking it up again.

"Who is that?" shouted a sudden voice, and in the doorway appeared his mother, with Molly's bright face peering over her shoulder.

"Only the home guard, mother. Don't be frightened."

And all through the evening that followed those same eyes beamed behind the dark glasses with a grinning satisfaction, for Hugh, generally so quiet, was the life of the little party. His rich baritone joined with Dick's tenor, Molly's contralto and Cousin Gertrude's soprano. In all the popular was songs. He discussed the league of nations with a gusto that made that made that worthy man's broad face beam with approval. He was quietly deferential to Aunt Caroline and teased Cousin Gertrude. To Molly he said but little until Uncle Charles, consulting his watch, declared that "the women folk must hustle if they intended to get that last car to town. Then, finding Dick helping Molly into her wraps, he coolly took them from him, saying:

"You take Gertrude to the car—the home guard will look after Molly."

"Come, Molly," he said, and obediently Molly went. Hugh had long known she would come whenever that voice should summon her.

Grains and Provisions (U. S. bureau of markets)—Chicago, (U. S. bureau of markets)—Wheat—Burying orders which were awaiting a fresh breeze in the price of corn lifted the market today. After quieting down for a few days had been quite active. Corn—The market at the outset was based on general rains, lower quotations on bags, and expected further development of the crop. On the other hand, buyers contended that bearish possibilities regarding corn had already been discounted for the present. Opening prices, which ranged from 1-4 to 2-1-4 lower, with September $1.77 to 1.78 1-4 and December $1.47 to 1.48. They were followed by a rise to well above yesterday's finish for both the principal months.

HER VOICE

By MILDRED WHITE.

As the morning sunshine came slanting across the roof, John Darrow lay back on his couch and listened to the cheerful song of a bird which came floating through his window. If it were possible to fall in love with a voice, John loved this merry-hearted singer. Through his weeks of invalidism, it was not only his song, but his merry chatter which, had cheered him.

"He had grown to listen for the little 'Good morning,' which this same sympathetic contralto threw back to him in the room across the roof and also her evening salutation. He wondered if it might be a husband who had slipped out to greet him as he went away each morning to return again at night. But because he preferred to think otherwise, John dismissed the husband idea and satisfied himself that a sister, or a girl friend perhaps, was the recipient of the greetings—he had never heard a man's voice in this same apartment across the roof.

Consequence was a tiresome thing; reading or writing an exertion unbearable. The lonely young man amused himself with pleasant fancies concerning the owner of the happy voice. He knew that it must be she who placed bowls of panicles and wild roses upon the sill—she would be just that kind of girl; it was strange how thought of her obsessed him. The foolish captive of an invalid, he told himself, even as he endeavored to shut out the thought. An unknown man may not present himself at the door of an apartment with the simple request to see his mistress, neither would John Darrow be able to call upon some mutual friend to arrange an introduction.

It was a stranger in the city and had been overtaken by illness before he had found opportunity to become acquainted.

"It's a long, long way to Tipperary," hummed the voice. "It is," sighed John. "It's a long way to go."

When he was strong enough to sit in a chair by the window he was rewarded by a view of a blue-clad little figure tripping along the apartment house steps. John was excited.

"That was the girl," he decided at once, "whose merry voice so charmed him."

Twilight was falling across the roof one evening as he sat hopefully gazing through the window which faced that one opposite. Suddenly the air was filled with a voice, which he recognized immediately by the demand: "Come over here please. Please come over."

"John waited no longer. Had the plea not been prefaced by that desperate scream he might have hesitated. As it was, he forgot his own weakness and slipped across the roof. The opposite window being open he slipped through it to a wide living room floor.

"I am here," John cried. "Where are you? How can I help you?"

"Evolutionarily he glanced about for creeping dangers. There was no indication of fire or trouble. The room appeared to be peacefully homelike with its clock ticking on the mantel.

"Come here," begged the muffled voice. "Here!" John followed breathlessly into an adjoining apartment. This room, vacant and dimly lit, was the presence of a big green parrot fastened by its foot to a trellis perch.

"Come here," the parrot repeated, immediately imitating its former scream.

As John sank weakly into a chair a ripple of silver laughter came from the big green parrot, changed to a softly hummed—"It's a long, long way to Tipperary."

Especially John Darrow sat staring at the feathered thing before him. It was impossible, he told himself disgustedly, that this ridiculous episode could be the end of his dream. Impossible that the clever mimicking tones of a bird could awaken in his man's heart real emotion. Then in relief came the logical solution. It was the bird's mistress who had aroused his interest and the parrot had become an echo of her voice.

As John still sat, a white-haired elderly woman entered the room, pausing astonished before his intrusion. When John had grimly explained the situation the elderly woman smiled.

"I have seen your face at the opposite window," she said, "and have heard the servant girl say she has wished to help you." She laughed. Being a lone old spinster with no one but a parrot for company all day, I have plenty of time on my hands. In compensation for the fright Miss Polly has given you, I hope she will feel free to call upon me for reading matter or any service that I may bestow."

"I thank you," John answered dully. Escort by the gracious old lady he made his way to an ascending elevator. From its doors issued the girl of his dream, whom he had watched from his window.

"Good evening, auntie," he called in soft contralto greeting, while John's depressed heart arose in quick response.

"Come here," came the voice of Polly, "please come here."

"That bird," the girl laughingly exclaimed, "she grows positively uncanny."

"Perhaps Mr. Darrow will be kind enough to return with us and tell you his recent amusing experience," auntie suggested. And, obviously, John followed the two down the hall.

BLAME PLOTTERS FOR EXPLOSION

Officers Seeking Perpetrators of Attack on Lawler Home

LOS ANGELES, Cal. (AP)—Officers seeking the perpetrators of the bomb explosion Sunday which practically destroyed the residence here of Oscar Lawler, formerly assistant United States attorney general, have abandoned the theory, it was announced today, that the explosion and resultant fire were caused by any person holding merely a petty grudge against the attorney. They presented the conviction that the crime was part of a terrorist plot with national ramifications.

Victims' Condition Serious. Lawler and Mrs. Lawler were severely burned and otherwise injured in escaping from their blazing home. Their condition is still serious, but attending physicians were hopeful today of their ultimate recovery. Oscar, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawler, who was sleeping in another part of the house with a nurse girl, was rescued by neighbors a few minutes after the explosion. Two other children were away from home.

No Arrests Made. In connection with the announcement that the explosion undoubtedly was part of a terrorist plot, county authorities called attention to the prominent part played by Mr. Lawler a few years ago in the prosecution of defendants in the Indianapolis dynamiting cases. They let it be known that officers had been sent to a town in the Imperial valley, California, in search of evidence. No arrests have yet been made.

COUNT CUTS CASUALTIES OF ARSENAL ACCIDENT

BARITAN, N. J. (AP)—Lieutenant Jefford, adjutant of the Baritan arsenal, said today that he did not believe "more than seven" were killed in the explosion of a magazine filled with low grade explosives here yesterday. "Several" bodies already have been recovered, he said. The search for victims continued among debris all last night.

SAYS WILSON IS HOLDING UP INFORMATION

Chairman Lodge of Foreign Relations Committee Makes Charges in Sharp Argument Ended by Gavel Fall

WASHINGTON, (AP)—In his denials on economic sections of the Versailles treaty, the senate foreign relations committee got into a sharp argument today with the league of nations, during which Chairman Lodge declared repeated attempts to secure information from the league from President Wilson had been unavailing.

"The president," said Senator Lodge, "has never offered to come before this committee. He only sent a telephone message saying he would be glad to have the committee come to the White House. We have called for papers, report and paper and he has not sent one."

Senator Paul, republican, New Mexico, said the committee did not see the president at the White House on his first return from France, but had failed to secure from him any important information. Democratic members of the committee, however, said the argument became so sharp that the chairman had to rap for order.

MURDER CHARGE HANGS ON CHEMISTS' FINDINGS

Discovery of Poison in Body of Dead Woman Will Result in Prosecution of Her Husband

RATON, N. M., (AP)—Whether or not Dr. O. E. Troy, a veterinary surgeon of this place, will be prosecuted after a charge of murder growing out of the death of his wife at the Troy ranch near here May 21, depends upon the findings of two chemical experts, Drs. Whitman and Lewis of Boulder, Colo. Who will make a chemical examination of the vital organs of the woman taken from the body when the autopsy was performed here last Saturday. The autopsy revealed no marks or indications of violence such as claimed by the state. The vital organs will be examined for traces of poison, the defense having set up the claim that the woman died from self-administered poisoning.

Smoldering Unrest Burns Into Flame When Radicals Clash with Miners

BELLAIR, O., (AP)—Unrest which has been smoldering for some time among the foreign miners of Belmont county, burst into flame today at the Fort Pitt coal mine, south of here, when 700 radical workmen clashed with 100 other miners who refused to join them in a strike for large wage increases. As a result a score of deaths, several armed with riot guns are guarding the mine this afternoon and federal authorities are investigating the trouble.

The action of the strikers, it was said, is in defiance of the United Mine Workers.

Her eyes flickered, and then she looked up at him with a sad gravity, tears coming just at the moment. "You reason because I have a feeling that it's never going to be."

"Why?" "It's just a feeling." "You haven't any reason or—"

"It's just a feeling." "And, if that's all," George said, reassured, and laughing confidently, "I guess I won't be very much troubled."

But at once he became serious again, adopting the tone of argument. "Don't you care enough about me to hurry me?"

She looked down again, pathetically troubled. "Yes."

"Well, then, why in the world won't you drop the 'almost'?"

Her distress increased. "Everything is—everything—"

"What about everything?" "Everything is so—so unsettled."

And at that he uttered an exclamation of surprise. "If you aren't the queerest girl! What is 'unsettled'?"

"Well, for one thing," she said, able to smile at his vehemence, "you haven't settled on anything to do. At least if you have you've never spoken of it."

As she spoke she gave him the quickest possible side glance of hopeful scrutiny; then, looked away, not happily. Surprise and displeasure were intentionally visible upon the countenance of her companion; and he permitted a significant period of silence to elapse before making any response.

"Lucy," he said finally, with cold dignity, "haven't you perfectly well understood that I don't mean to go into business, or adopt a profession?"

"I wasn't quite sure," she said gently. "I really didn't know—quite."

"Don't you love me?" "You—I do."

"Then what does it matter what you think about any doing something or not doing anything? He has his way, and I have mine. Why, look at your father's best friend, my Uncle George Amberson—he's never done anything in his life, and—"

"Oh, yes, he has," she interrupted. "He was in politics."

"Well, I'm glad he's out," George said. "Politics is a dirty business for a gentleman, and Uncle George would tell you that himself. Lucy, let's not talk any more about it. Let me tell mother when I get home that we're engaged. Won't you, dear?"

She shook her head. "No," she said, and gave him a sudden little look of renewed gravity. "Let's let it stay 'almost.'"

"Because your father—"

"Oh, because it's better?" "George's voice shook. 'Isn't it your father?'"

"It's his ideals I'm thinking of—"

George dropped her hand abruptly and nuzzled her eyes. "I know what you mean," he said. "I dare say I don't care for your father's ideals any more than he does for mine!"

He tightened the reins. Pendennis quickened to the test, and when George jumped out of the runabout before Lucy's gate, and assisted her to descend, the silence in which they parted was the same that had begun when Pendennis began to trot.

CHAPTER XIII.

George went driving the next afternoon alone and, encountering Lucy and her father on the road in one of Morgan's cars, lifted his hat, but no wise relaxed his formal countenance as they passed.

Eugene waved a cordial hand and quickly turned to the steering wheel; but Lucy only nodded gravely and smiled no more than George did. Nor did she accompany Eugene to the Major's for dinner the following Sunday evening, though both were bidden to attend that feast, which was held quite late in the afternoon and gayety in the absence of George Amberson.

Eugene explained to his host that Lucy had gone away to visit a school friend.

The information, delivered in the library, just before old Sam's appearance to announce dinner, set Miss Munroe in a flutter. "Why, George?" she said, turning to her nephew. "How does it happen you didn't tell us?"

And with both hands opening, as if to express her innocence of some conspiracy, she exclaimed to the others: "He's never said one word to me about Lucy's planning to go away!"

"Probably afraid to," the Major suggested. "Didn't know but he might break down and cry if he tried to speak of it?" He clapped his grandson on the shoulder, inquiring jealously: "That it, George?"

"Unless my old friends take warning in time, or abolish smoke and get a new kind of city government."

"Well, well," the Major laughed. "You have enough faith in miracles, Eugene—granting that trolleys and bicycles and automobiles are miracles. So you think they're to change the face of the land, do you?"

"They're already doing it, Major; and it can't be stopped. Automobiles are a useless nuisance," he said.

There fell a moment's silence. Isabel gazed incredulously at George, color slowly brightening upon her cheeks and temples, while Fanny watched him with a quick eagerness, her eyes alert and bright.

But Eugene seemed merely quizzical, as if not taking this brusqueness to himself. The Major was seriously puzzled.

"What did you say, George?" he asked, though George had spoken but too distinctly.

"I said all automobiles were a nuisance," George answered, repeating not only the words but the tone in which he had uttered them. And he added: "They'll never amount to anything but a nuisance. They had no business to be invented."

The Major frowned. "Of course you forget that Mr. Morgan makes them, and also did his share in inventing them. If you weren't so thoughtless, he might think you rather offensive."

"The Major was seriously puzzled. "George coolly: 'I don't think I could survive it.'"

Again there was a silence, while the Major stared at his grandson, aghast. But Eugene began to laugh cheerfully.

"I'm not sure he's wrong about automobiles," he said. "With all their speed, they are going to be superseded in civilization—that is, in spiritual civilization. But automobiles have come, and they bring a greater change in our life than most of us suspect. They are going to alter war, and they are going to alter peace."

Isabel turned wondering, hurt eyes upon him.

George said, "What did you mean?"

"Just what I said," he returned, lighting one of the Major's cigars. "Isabel's hand, pale and slender, upon the tablecloth, touched one of the silver candlesticks almost; the fingers were seen to tremble. "Oh, he was hurt," she murmured.

"I don't see why he should be," George said. "Why didn't you say anything about him? What made you think he was hurt?"

"I know him!" was all of her reply, half-whispered.

The Major stared hard at George from under his white eyebrows. "You didn't mean him," you say, George? I suppose if you had a clemency man as a guest here you'd expect him not to be offended, and to understand that your remarks were neither personal nor unfeeling if you said the church was a nuisance and ought never to have been invented. We seem to have a new kind of young people these days. It's a new kind of courtesy, a prettier one, certainly, for a young fellow to go deliberately out of his way to try and make an enemy of his father by attacking his business! By Jove! That's a new way to win a woman!"

George flushed angrily and seemed about to offer a retort, but held his peace. It was Isabel who responded to the Major. "Oh, no," she said. "Eugene would never be anybody's enemy—he couldn't—and last of all George's. I'm afraid he was hurt, but"

I don't fear his not having understood that George spoke without thinking of what he was saying—I mean, without realizing its bearing on Eugene."

"Well, well," said his grandfather, rising. "It wasn't a very successful little dinner."

Thereupon he offered his arm to his daughter, who took it fondly, and they left the room, Isabel assisting him that all his little dinners were pleasant, and that this one was no exception.

George did not move, and Fanny, following the other two, came round the table and paused close beside his chair; but George remained poised in great imperturbability, clear between teeth, eyes upon ceiling, and paid no attention to her. Fanny waited until the sound of Isabel's and the Major's voices became inaudible in the hall. Then she said quickly, and in a low voice no eager that it was unnecessary.

"George, you're just doing the right thing!"

She hurried out, scurrying after the others with a faint rustling of her black skirts, leaving George mystified but not incensed.

George, however, was neither so comfortable nor so imperturbable as he appeared. He felt some gratification; he had done a little to put the man in his place—that man whose influence upon his daughter was precisely the same thing as a contemptuous criticism of George Amberson. Moreover, and George Amberson, Minister, "Ideals of life." Lucy's going away without a word was intended, he supposed, as a bit of punishment. Well, he wasn't the sort of man that people were allowed to punish; he could demonstrate that to them—since they had no objection to his punishing himself.

Just came to George's door that night and, when she had kissed him good-night, she remained in the open doorway with her hand upon his shoulder and her eyes thoughtfully lowered, so that her wish to say something more than good-night was evident. But how obvious was her perplexity about the manner of saying it; and George, divining her thought, amiably made an opening for her.

"Well, old lady," he said, indulgent. "You needn't look so worried. I won't be tactless with Morgan again. After this I'll just keep out of his way."

"Dear," she said, "I wish you'd tell me something: Why don't you like Eugene?"

"Oh, I like him well enough," George returned, with a short laugh, as he sat down and began to unlace his shoes. "I like him well enough in his place. 'No, dear,' she said hurriedly. 'I've had a feeling from the very first that you didn't really like him—that you really never liked him. I can't understand it, dear; I don't see what can be the matter.'"

"Nothing's the matter," George said. "The declaration naturally failed to carry great weight, and Isabel went on in her troubled voice: 'It seems so queer, especially when you feel as you do about his daughter.'"

At this, George stopped unlacing his shoes abruptly, and said: "How do you feel about his daughter?" he demanded.

"Well, it's seemed as if—as if—"

Isabel began timidly. "It did seem—at least, you haven't looked at any other girl ever since she came here, and—certainly you've seemed very much interested in her. Certainly you've been very good friends."

"Well, what of that?" "It's only that I'm like your grandfather: I can't see how you could be so much interested in a girl and—and not feel very pleasantly toward her father."

Only That Difference. As I was going shopping I met a charming little fellow, who spoke to me quite a good deal about my profession. I inquired his name. "Oh, he answered with easy assurance. 'It's just the same as my daddy's, only it's got 'Dr.' on the end of it.'—Chicago Tribune.

Woman's Brainiest Age. A woman's brain reaches its greatest weight about the age of twenty-five, while in the case of a man, this does not occur until ten years later. This explains the assertion that a woman at the age of twenty-one is in a better position to give a mature judgment than a man at the same age.

PLANS ARE MATURING FOR BIG SHEEP SALE

Importations from England Will Be Among Rams and Ewes Offered August 21-22

Plans are maturing nicely for the second annual ram sale, to be held at the Twin Falls county fair grounds at Filer August 21 and 22, according to statements made by officials of the Southern Idaho Wool Growers' association.

D. F. Detweiler entered 100 head, the produce from his $1000 ram that has no superior and few equals in quality in America. Colonel Dwight Lincoln of Marysville, O., has entered some of his well known flock. Also Chandler P. Raup of Springfield, O., has made a consignment. Besides such other noted breeders as A. J. Knollin, Pontolillo; H. L. Finch of Soda Springs; Wool Live Stock company, Spencer, Idaho; Hobbs & Gillett, Caldwell; J. W. Edwards of Kimberly; Brown Bros. from the Overbrook farm, Jerome, Idaho, and many other smaller breeders with fully as good quality but less numbers and the well known, has also contributed.

Robert Blatrock of the Walnut Hill farm at Donnell, Ky., writing from Bishopstoke, England, under date of July 4, says he has purchased a shipment of 25 Hampshire sheep for immediate shipment to Quebec. At least a carload of these will be sent to Twin Falls for the Filer sale.

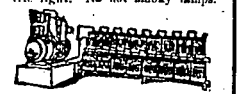

Mr. Ford in his letter, says English breeders of prize stock are in no way inclined to sell their stuff, and are asking fully twice as much for prize stock as they asked a year ago. He says he wanted to purchase 400 top animals, but was compelled to content himself with 245. Most of these, both rams and ewes, were prize winners at the Royal Show in England. Three of the carload sent here not disposed of at the coming sale will be sent to Mr. Blatrock's breeding ranch a mile and a half north of Filer.

The County Fair association is building another barn, and also has just finished a nice sales pavilion with seating capacity for one thousand people, that will add greatly to the convenience for both the public and contributors.

Twin Falls county is fast coming to the front and is known as a county breeding the best pure bred stock sheep, horses and cattle in the northwest. A few more years of effort should establish this fact and buyers will seek the blood line and production from this county.

Nest in Communities.

The weaver birds of South Africa join forces. Scores of pairs nest together under a huge umbrella-shaped structure which they build by their combined labor. Some of these amazing co-operative nests contain a good cartload of grass.

Education Always Helps.

The success of the unlettered man is often argued to show that men do not need education. In special cases the truth may seem to be conclusive, but did you ever stop to inquire what the fellow might have become had he education added to his natural talents?
He has succeeded in spite of a handicap and not because of it.

Surely Drafty.

There are all sorts of different ways of bringing a thing home to people. Take the case, for instance, of a member of the Essex district council in England, recently, who wanted to enable his constituents to realize the shameful disparity of a certain cottage near by. It was so drafty, he said, that tunes could be played on a mouth organ moved up and down along cracks in the walls.

to sweet voices saying that they know they ought not to disturb us at our work.—Ohio State Journal.

Truth About Cat's Eyes.

A cat can see better in the dusk than can a human being because the cat's eyes are sensitive to ultra-violet rays. The pupils are capable of great expansion than those of any other of almost any other animal, thus admitting more light. The cat uses its whiskers for feelers in the dark. Its sea-footedness is a great help to it.
It gets along better in the dark than humans do. The belief that it can see by night with the same degree of clearness as by day is, however erroneous.

Fish Eat Other Fish.

When a codfish eats it takes an oyster in its mouth, cracks the shell, dis-gests the meat and ejects the shell.
Crabs crack the shells of their smaller neighbors and suck out the meat. This accounts for the mounds of shells which are found beneath the waves.
And, as further illustrating the constant destruction going on in the ocean's depth, it is said that if a ship sank at sea it will be eaten by the fish with the exception of its metal portions.

Deaf and Dumb Language.

The Encyclopedia Britannica says:
"We have conversed by sign with deaf people from all parts of the British Isles, from France, from Norway and Sweden, Poland, Finland, Italy, Russia, Turkey, the United States and found that they are indeed a worldwide means of communication.
Deaf people in America converse with Indians with ease, thereby showing how natural the generality of even deaf people are."

The Amazon.

The Amazon discharges the largest amount of water of any river in the world, and the St. Lawrence next.
Other interesting facts about these rivers are that the length of the Amazon is 3,500 miles and its width varies from a few hundred feet at different points to more than 100 miles at its mouth. The St. Lawrence is 2,200 miles in length, is tributary to several miles wide at places to ninety miles at its mouth.

A Comparison.

don, the open square called Lincoln's Inn fields, is said to be the same size

COST OF MILK GETS A BOOST

Dairymen Raise Price of Lactal Fluid from 13 to 15 Cents Quart

Giving the general trend of living costs another substantial boost, the price of milk distributed by the Twin Falls dairymen has been raised during the past few days. Milk that formerly was delivered at the home of the consumer at 13 cents a quart, is now being sold at 15 cents a quart. This increase is in line with the general trend of living costs, and is being met by the dairymen.

HER DISCIPLINE

By JACK LAWTON.

Stanton, riding village-ward for his day's supplies, saw the automobile coming toward him at a clipping pace down the country road. He had just time to discern a girl's white-clad figure as she stepped from the machine when he was upon him, pushing with a grating jar his own little car into the ditch.

When Stanton arose, who he supposed unhurt, the girl, who he supposed unharmed, proceeded, bent again to the wheel and disappeared amid a cloud of dust. He had been too confused to note either the color or make of the flying auto and his fleeting view of the girl's face, shaded by her low-brimmed hat, was too indistinct to remember. But of what use?

East Swelters; Twin Falls Has Cooler Weather

While folks in the east are sweltering in record heat Twin Falls is enjoying the mildest of weather.

Yesterday's high temperature was 88 in the shade, with 45 for low during the 24 hours ending at sunset.

Although the barometer is still disturbed and all atmospheric conditions have pointed to rain in the past few days not even a sprinkle has come to moisten a parched and thirsty soil. Clouds obscured the sky a considerable portion of yesterday, but all disappeared toward night, and this morning's sun arose on a cloudless horizon.

According to official reports some storms have visited the higher reaches of the Snake river, but all told they have not helped the flow of that stream.

Price of Green Corn is Down 10 Cents a Dozen—Market Getting Heavy Stocks

With increasing production and additional stocks reaching the public market the price per dozen for "roasting ears" has in the past day dropped 10 cents. The delectable goods have, up to now, been selling at 30 cents for a dozen ears, regardless of condition and size. The new goods are especially accepted and full ready for the pot.

Stocks of new vegetables are reaching the market these days, many being speaking the rapid approach of the autumn season. Pickling onions and cucumbers for pickling are reaching the market in fair volume. Green peppers, too, are showing in considerable abundance, while there is a fair supply of kohlrabi, a vegetable infrequently of cabbage and turnip, the result of a Hawaiian experiment. There is plenty of new corn coming in, while apples threaten to glut the market if they continue in the quantity displayed in the past few days. The supply of apricots and peaches continues good, while in the past day or so some early plums have come in. The stands are offering excellent potatoes for sale.

In recent days the market place has remained in operation all day, instead of the half-day sessions, this resulting in the elimination of the rush period during the morning hours.

GRAIN AND PROVISION TRADE DROPS WITH SLASH OF WHEAT IN PROSPECT

CHICAGO, (UP)—Demoralization seized the grain and provision trade, this afternoon, and forced down corn 8 1/2c a bushel in some cases and pork $2.50 a barrel. Extreme breaks were to $1.39 for May delivery of corn and $4.45 for September delivery of pork.

The reason for the collapse of values was the possibility that the price of wheat to consumers might be slashed at once by the government, as a radical measure against the high cost of living. The excitement attending developments in corn market, prices fell half cent between trades. The descent did not cease until corn had reached a level 25 cents a bushel below the high point of the market a week ago.
