

BRITISH INCLINE TO CURTAILMENT OF NAVAL POWER

Comment on Proposed Agreement on Part of Three Big Nations Reveals Anxiety Over American Program

ENCOURAGEMENT FOUND IN BORAH'S UTTERANCE

LONDON, (AP)—Calls for United States, Great Britain and Japan to curtail naval expense by mutual agreement were featured by a number of London newspapers this morning. In following this course the journals give expression to the anxiety which has prevailed here since the receipt of reports of the new American naval program, an anxiety which may be traced to the assumption that if the United States builds a big navy, Great Britain must do likewise. The Morning Post laments that American politicians have chosen a moment when the war-time fellowship of the American and British navies and the "elaborate courtesy of American seamen" have united the naval services of the two nations, "to declare, in effect, that the British navy is a potential menace to America."

The Post contends that "the conclusion of a working arrangement between the United States and Great Britain would be more to establish and maintain the peace of the world than any other plan conceivable," and urges that "the recent utterances of Senator Borah and other Americans encourage the belief that such an arrangement is possible."

Another plea for an agreement between the United States, Japan and Great Britain is voiced by the Daily News, which urged that the interval between the present moment and the inauguration of President-elect Harding should be utilized by the statesmen of the three countries to educate the public.

Express maintains that an agreement between the three powers would "assure prosperity as well as peace."

PORTLAND BOND HOUSE IS CLOSED FOR AUDIT

PORTLAND, Ore., (AP)—The bond house of Morris Bros. Inc. was closed today with a sign on the door reading: "Closed on account of audit," Fred S. Morris.

Closing orders were issued by Morris when he said he discovered the company's affairs were left in a tangled condition by John L. Etheridge, who resigned as president last week and left Portland. The Clearing House association had demanded proof of the company's ability to deliver bonds for which investors had paid and for which interim bonds had been issued.

A warrant charging larceny by the balance was issued for Etheridge's arrest in the district court. G. E. Anderson, who swore to the warrant also claimed Etheridge failed to redeem an unsecured interim certificate.

The automobile driver who drove Etheridge out of Portland Thursday night admitted, the district attorney said, he had seen Etheridge leave Tacoma on an eastbound Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train and that a statement he made earlier that he had seen Etheridge cross the international boundary was false.

SEATTLE, Wash., (AP) The Seattle branch office of Morris Bros. Inc., remained closed today. T. D. Henderson, vice president and Seattle manager, announced he had received instructions from Fred S. Morris of Portland, to close the branch pending the audit of the books of the institution's main office.

SHEDS LIGHT ON INDIAN POLITICS

Boycott of British Institutions Finds Expression in the Elections

BOMBAY, (AP)—(India Information Bureau)—The non-cooperation movement, or boycott of British institutions, which is headed by Gandhi and other native leaders, has taken a position in opposition to the election of members of city government and other legislative bodies under the new Government of India act. In consequence most of the candidates from these offices were from the moderate faction composed of the minority who voted against the boycott resolution which passed the Special Indian National congress in its session last September.

Just prior to the election, Gandhi published an "open letter to Gandhi Englishman," in which he asserted that the only way to suppress the rising ebullience of national feeling was for the British government to meet in conference the recognized leaders of the people duly elected by them and representing all shades of opinion so as to devise means of granting "Swaraj" (national independence) "in accordance with the wishes of the people of India."

Gandhi warned the Hindu leaders who hesitated to support his boycott movement that the people were advancing at a rate too fast for those leaders to keep pace. "It is a psychological moment for the country and we may not have an opportunity like the present one for a century," he said.

Mohammed Ali, who is considered the right-hand man of Gandhi, declared in a speech to students in Allahabad and Benares: "If we had weapons and the courage to use them, we should have struck a blow at the outset. When we are fit to strike a blow we shall give due warning to the government. If the non-cooperation policy in education fails, the next movement will be for non-cooperation in the postal and telegraph services and afterward in the police force and in the army."

FOREIGN TONGUE MEETS DISFAVOR

Brazilian Officials Object to the Proposal for Teaching Italian Language

BIO DE JANEIRO, (AP)—Some Brazilian government officials oppose the Italian government's proposal that the Italian language be taught in Brazilian schools in districts largely occupied by immigrants from Italy. This plan was contained in the labor and emigration agreement which the Italian government recently offered to Brazil. The Brazilian director general of commercial and consular affairs has presented a report on the subject to his government objecting to this proposal.

The agreement planned to regulate the future settlement of Italians in Brazil, where they already form an important part of the population, particularly in the coffee producing state of Sao Paulo. The Italians requested also that arbitral tribunals be set up to decide controversies between workers and their employers.

Objection is made by Brazilians on the ground that the obligatory teaching of Italian would increase the difficulty of assimilating the immigrants to the national life of the country, giving rise to the same complaints formulated against the teaching of German in the large German settlements in Santa Catharina state. This state had become so Germanized that, after Brazil entered the war, teaching of Portuguese and other national subjects was made obligatory in all schools throughout the union.

JINX HANGS ON SOX FIRST BASE FOR 21 SEASONS

Initial Corner of the White Sox Has Proved a Hoodoo Job Long Time

BY I. E. SANDOBN

Except for two men, the position of first base on the White Sox team has been a jinx job in the twenty-one years since Charles A. Comiskey invaded Chicago with his St. Paul club in the winter of 1900.

The two exceptions are Frank Isbell and John (Shano) Collins, and these exceptions may owe their immunity from the hoodoo stuff to the fact that they played many other positions besides first base. There may have been other minor exceptions in the cases of youngsters who have tried and failed to make good on the initial corner of the south side diamond, but the jinx seems to have pursued all the others who have not quitted the right to be considered regulars on that job.

Isbell Plays Every Position

Isbell was the original first baseman of the White Sox. He came to Chicago with Comiskey, and although several others, whose names never elicited themselves into the memories of south side fans, displaced him from the bag temporarily he kept on reverting to that position after season, until Jiggs Donahue claimed the berth in 1904.

Isbell switched to various other positions, both infield and out— in fact, in one season he occupied every position on the team. In the last game of that year, because it was discovered from the records that Isbell had done everything except catch, he went behind the bat with two out in the last half inning and the final batsman fouled out.

Possibly for his versatility Isbell escaped the hoodoo, for he graduated from the Sox into minor leaguedom, and is now the prosperous owner of the Wichita Western league club.

Fans Mourn Jiggs Donahue

The man who got nearest to being a regular first baseman for the Sox during Isbell's reign was the original Cozy,

Dolan, who died before his years of usefulness of the diamond had passed.

Sox fans all recall the unfortunate end of Jiggs Donahue, who fell a victim in his prime to a sickness which cut short his career and ended in his death. Donahue shared with Isbell and George Hebe the honors of the world's series of 1906, the only baseball derby that has been played between teams representing one city. His playing at first base contributed as much to the victory of the White Sox as did the four two base hits by Isbell or the three buggers by George Hebe with the bag.

Chick Gandil succeeded Donahue for a brief spell before he was sent back to the minors for more seasoning, only to return years later to the south side team after he had played with the Washington and Cleveland teams of the American league.

Gandil and Chase Now Out.

Gandil could not hit a curved ball when he first came to Chicago from the Pacific coast, but after being canned to Montreal he learned to cope with the low benders which drove him out of the big leagues. He was a world's champion in 1917 and might have been in 1919 but for the gamblers. He was one of the eight Sox players implicated in that scandal and did not come back. An unsuccessful attempt to manage an outlay team in the northwest finished Gandil's diamond career.

Following Gandil came several who tried their hands at first basing without much success until Hal Chase was obtained and started in the position until he jumped to the Federal league in midseason. Once more John Collins finished the year on first.

Batted from Outlays

Chase was one of the first major league players to be implicated with gamblers, while he was with the Cincinnati club in 1918, but escaped punishment until the following year, when he was with the Giants and tangled up others with him, including Helen Zimmerman. Chase recently was barred from playing with an independent team on the coast.

Of the youngsters tried out Babe Borron came nearest to making good. Borron recently was suspended by the Pacific coast league following revelations regarding the scandal pertaining to the first circuit's pennant race in 1919.

Among those who tried for the Sox first base job and failed were Bob Brooks and Ted Jourdan, neither of whom inhabited the place long enough to become infected, so they had good prospects of minor league careers before them. With each failure John Collins gravitated back to the job and finally achieved much distinction there this past year.

DENIES DOUBLE CLOTHING COST TARIFF RESULT

National Wool Growers Association Secretary Points Out Relation of Raw to Finished Product and Prices

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, (AP)—J. R. Marshall, secretary of the National Wool Growers' association Monday issued a statement regarding the very misleading an article which appeared in the Forney emergency tariff bill would double the price of clothing.

Mr. Marshall said: "A very misleading statement by Congressman Madden of Illinois has been twice carried in newspapers. In the debate on the Forney emergency tariff bill, Congressman Madden stated that the proposed duty on wool would cause the price of clothes to double."

"Such a statement is both ridiculous and dangerous. If uncorrected it would constitute a serious misrepresentation of the work and objects of the ways and means committee and both houses of congress.

"The National Wool Growers' association has repeatedly pointed out that little connection exists between the market price of wool and the selling price of clothes. Three and one-quarter pounds of secured wool are required for an average sized man's suit made from the finest quality of Forney bill provides a duty of 45 cents per pound on secured wool. The duty on the wool entering into a suit would amount to $1.46 cents, which is very far from 100 per cent of the price of any suit as Mr. Madden refers to. Also, an import duty on material does not necessarily mean that the manufacturer receives an increased by the amount of that duty.

MEXICO CITY, (AP)—Petroleum, labor and banking questions will be the principal business to be laid before the special session of congress which has been called to meet January 5, next, by President Obregon.

The present session of congress will adjourn on December 31, after almost four months of continuous work. During this time no legislation of a conspicuous character has been enacted.

Today's Markets

New York Stock Market NEW YORK, (AP)—Shorts extended their commitments in the stock market today, basing their operations on adverse developments in trade and industry. Sales approximated $50,000 shares.

The stock market showed no very definite trend at the opening of today's session, but became unsettled within the first half hour. Crucible Steel and Atlantic Gulf, at declines of 1-4 and 2-12 points, respectively, were at low quotations of the year.

Grains and Provisions CHICAGO, (AP)—Wheat declined in value today as a result of selling on the part of houses with eastern connections. The fact that cotton had fallen to new low record prices for the crop looked of evidence of any export demand.

Grains and Provisions CHICAGO, (AP)—Wheat declined in value today as a result of selling on the part of houses with eastern connections. The fact that cotton had fallen to new low record prices for the crop looked of evidence of any export demand.

Corn weakened with wheat. After opening unchanged at 1-2c lower, it included May at 72 3/4 to 73 1/8c, the market underwent a slight further sag. Later the market hardened owing to scantiness of rural offerings.

NOT MUCH STANDPATTING HERE.

One of the terrible accusations made against Senator Harding as soon as his nomination was announced was that if elected he would be a "commonplace" president, a plodder in familiar paths, an exponent of the obvious, a faithful follower of routine, a worshiper of the fetish of precedent; in other words, a conservative of the conservatives and that dreadful thing, a "reactionary."

Well, Mr. Harding was elected by a majority so large that it is cruelty to demagogues to mention it, and even since November 2 he has been making those predictions of standpatism look foolish. He has knocked all traditions of the president-elect into a cocked hat. First, he took a trip to Panama to study conditions there, something no president-elect had ever done before. Then he made a farewell speech in the senate. Returning to his home, he invited leaders of the nation's thought to visit him and give counsel on the problems of government. He announced his support of the proposal for a new executive department to comprise all the "welfare" agencies of the government, and his intention to appoint a woman as its head. He requested the vice-president-elect to sit in the cabinet meetings of the next administration and give them the benefit of his counsel.

These are but a few samples of the president-elect's "reactionaryism" of which his hostile critics are so fearful. The fact is, of course, that it is many years since we have had so "forward-looking" a president-elect as Mr. Harding, to use a favorite expression of President Wilson's. Mr. Wilson has frequently looked forward so far that he has failed to watch his step and has stumbled. Mr. Harding seems to have a firmer footing on the ground of common sense. But the folk who were calling him a reactionary and a standpatter have become suddenly silent.

UNBROTH A POOR ALTERNATIVE

The necessity for suppressing the facts no longer prevailing we are now told something of the great damage done by the German air raids on London and other English centers of population. The London Times has drawn some comparisons between what was told in the government communiques of the result of raids and what actually happened. It is shown that in numerous instances where the government statements averred that slight damage was inflicted the actual devastation mounted into millions of dollars. The visits of the German airmen wrought far greater havoc than the public was permitted to learn through official admissions. It is also stated that through fear begotten by the raids there was a large exodus from London to remote parts of the island, many of whom have never returned to their former places of residence. The disparity shown to exist between the facts and the communiques raises the question whether suppression of the truth by means of a depreciation of the damage actually accomplished the purpose intended. The primary design of minimizing the destruction wrought was to conceal from the Germans the extent of the frustration of their effort. Yet many British must have known that the whole truth was not being told, and this might easily lead to doubt of the verity of any announcement the government might make on the subject.

action. There are instances in which it is wise to preserve absolute silence, but in many cases less roll harm would be done by telling the truth than by shaping an untruth into an apparent truth. If it is known what it is necessary to do it may be possible to accomplish it, but one who struggles in the dark wastes his effort. Much of the conservatism is designed to keep in the dark the very people on whom reliance is placed for action. Too much publicity may be undesirable, but lying about conditions need not be the alternative.

UNABLE TO PAY TAXES

The mysteries of finance are made more inscrutable to the average mind by the inability of individuals and corporations to pay the fourth-quarter installment of income and profits taxes for the calendar year 1919. A fair assumption it should be that if one had received income or profits last year that might be taxed by Uncle Sam to the amount of $1,000, say, the money should be in the taxable's pocket or bank.

In most cases we believe that the present inability to pay is traceable to the necessity of using the tax money in going businesses. It simply could not be spared earlier in the year and business conditions as they exist make it impossible to procure the necessary cash. The condition seems to support the argument that the present system of taxation is detrimental to business.

U. S. ASKS FOR FREE SERVICE

Proposes Gratuitous Use of the Wireless-Station Sold to France

PARIS, (AP)—In turning over informally the new Lafayette wireless station to the French government a few days ago, the American government has proposed that the station receive and send official messages, both French and American, gratuitously for an indefinite time.

These would include, first, messages from the departments of the American government, particularly war, navy, state and commerce, to their representatives and bureaus in France; second, official messages from the American government to the French government; third, dispatches to the United States government wireless stations from its representatives in France.

In return the United States promises that the Annapolis station will perform the same service for the French government, free of charge. This large amount of business is now being done by the private cable and commercial wireless companies. This suggested innovation, which originated with the navy department, is being seriously considered by the French government, although it is believed it would carry by far the larger load, and although it had planned to leave the station entirely free during peacetime to handle only commercial business. The wireless stations of the French government are used by the ministry of posts and telegraphs during peacetime and by the ministry of war during time of war.

The Lafayette station, which is 20 miles from Bordeaux, is now actually being operated by the French ministry of posts, and sent to North and South America most of the press reports of the meeting of the league of nations assembly at Geneva.

The station was started during the war by the American navy department and at the armistice the French government arranged with the navy to finish it, agreeing to pay the entire cost of construction. It can reach any point on the globe.

NORTH DAKOTA EDITOR DISCUSSES REAL MEANING OF CO-OPERATION

Fargo Forum Contrasts Policy of Self-Reliance with Federalism in Seeking Solution for Farm Market Problems; Points Out Essentials to Success in Movement for Self-Aid

Before any plan of co-operative marketing can be effective it must answer two supreme tests. It must first be strong enough, and widespread enough, and binding enough to assure unified control of the greater part of the wheat crop of the United States.

And secondly, it must be able to finance the farmers if it is necessary to hold the wheat to get the fixed price. Any attempt to induce farmers by mere propaganda to hold their wheat is merely "spitting against the wind." Then stock speculators enter a pool to raise the price of any certain stock.

Exactly the same situation presents itself in any attempt to induce farmers, merely by propaganda, to hold their wheat for a high price. The individual farmer is under no obligation to do it. He has not even pledged his word to hold for a fixed price. He will sell whenever he thinks it is wise to sell, or if he gets nervous or if he is being pressed for his debts.

Co-operative marketing of grain if it is to be effective in getting the farmer a fair price for his product, must be based on an absolute pool of at least 60 per cent and preferably 75 or 80 per cent of all the grain grown in the United States.

It cannot be confined to one or two states. It must be national and the farmers must bind themselves by contract to deliver all the wheat they grow to the central organization, to be sold at a price to be fixed by the organization, and at such time as the organization sees fit.

That, in a general way, is what the Forum means when it refers to co-operative marketing as the solution of the farmers' problems. No half-hearted system will solve it. No system of state ownership of flour mills will solve it. The farmers can be induced through the association during any period the wheat was held.

From the farmers' misfortune will ever solve the farmers' problems for them. It is an economic problem that must be solved in an economic way. When such a plan is brought forward, by reputable, responsible men, who have sufficient ability and character to give the movement the proper standing, the Forum believes that every fair-minded businessman in North Dakota will get behind it. We don't presume to speak for either the bankers or merchants of North Dakota but we do know that they have the interests of the farmers at heart, and that they are willing to "play" the game with the farmers any time they feel that "the game" will benefit all of the people of the state.

The Forum believes that such a plan would assure fair prices for farm products and a fair profit for the farmer with any average crop. That is what the merchants and the bankers and every business man want. No merchant can sell goods to his neighbor when they are bankrupt. No banker can get either interest or principal from men who are bankrupt. The Forum can't sell subscriptions to men who are bankrupt. The doctor can't collect fees from men who are bankrupt. The marketing problem is the place where they make horses. I saw a man nailin' on the feet."—Chicago News.

boat, and we should be and will be willing to co-operate in any plan that will take us all to port. But when some of the occupants of the boat propose to toss the rest of us overboard there is going to be a battle and it won't end until one faction or the other holds the boat alone. That latter plan is the one on which we have been working for four years, here in North Dakota. The Forum would like to see both factions quit the quarrel for the possession of the boat, and all get their backs into the oar, steering for a safe harbor.—Fargo (North Dakota) Forum.

Buying the Seen and the Unseen--- It is easy to judge the size and quality of a visible commodity. There are certain recognized standards that have been universally accepted to which purchased articles may be compared. With invisible commodities, such as a publication's circulation, the matter is not so simple. It was only recently that a definite measurement has been obtained. The A. B. SEES DECREASE IN CRIME WAVE

Surety Companies Ascribe Betterment to Employment of Forehandness

NEW YORK, (AP)—Holds in the financial district of this city which last year were of mostly frequency, are reported by surety companies to be decreasing. This is partly because brokers have hired ex-police-men and firemen to convey runners and messengers carrying valuable securities such as soldier-land transports were protected by destroyers in war days. Also it is attributed to unrelenting prosecution of dishonest employees and messengers by surety concerns which bore heavy losses during the orgy of robberies and embezzlements.

In assigning these reasons for the fewer holdups, William A. Griffin, vice president of the National Surety company, said his concerns and similar ones had spent several hundred thousand dollars in fortifying out and prosecuting messengers and two follow holdups as they go from banker to broker carrying bonds, stocks and other securities.

Financial or commercial concerns which are using this method of guarding their property while in transit through the streets declare that it is a vast improvement over the employment of messengers of unreliable youths about whom they know nothing. Some of these young men have proved to be in conspiracy with gangs of hold-up men and have notified them of the opportunity to stage a robbery that would yield a big haul.
