

FORMIDABLE PROGRAMS FACE LEGISLATURES IN FORTHCOMING SESSIONS

Tax Reform, Dry Law Enforcement, Election Redistricting, Soldier Bonus, Public Improvements, Industrial and Suffrage Legislation, State Aid for Farmers, Anti-Radicalism and Retrenchment Measures Among Major Problems Presented

NEW YORK, (AP)—Legislatures of 45 states and territories, most of which open their sessions today or later this month, face before them formidable programs of tax reform, dry law enforcement, election redistricting in accordance with the 1920 census, soldier bonus, public improvements, industrial and suffrage legislation, state aid for farmers, boxing and financial reform, and retrenchment by consolidation or abolition of state departments, anti-radicalism, automobile regulation, reorganization of state militia, and for public utility regulation or repeal of primary laws, commission or "manager" plans for cities and counties and pro and anti-labor enactments.

California Leads in Reorganization. California with its assembly of 19700 members state-wide irrigation project, leads the states in the matter of proposed public improvements and will ask the legislature to authorize a mill and a cent and a half tax on the value of the state's water for the purpose of building a bond issue for which the people voted a bond issue at the recent election. The state's water project will require the expenditure of $400,000,000 for building good roads, for which the people voted a bond issue at the recent election.

Establishment of a state constitutional convention is a bill legalizing boxing, in addition to a proposal to repeal the state primary law, held unconstitutional by the state supreme court, will be taken up by the legislature of California some time after that body meets for its opening session next Wednesday. The fight against primary laws is to be taken up by the legislature of California, New York, North Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont and Wyoming.

Blue Laws Issue in Vermont. Vermont "liberals" plan an attack on the blue laws of the state inasmuch as they are not in the constitution. An effort will be made, it is said, to modify the present statutes, as to permit amusements, particularly baseball, on Sunday, where sports are not prohibited. The Vermont legislature is also expected to discuss anti-blue laws. California, meanwhile, will again the measures or denials of Sunday closing bill.

Reorganization of the state judicial system and a constitutional amendment proposing to amend the constitution to allow the native or fully naturalized, to be allowed the right of suffrage in Texas, will be before the law-making body at Austin, Tex., before Jan. 10. Another Texas bill would order the state to provide for the election of judges from among the judges within the state. Kansas representatives will have bills before them providing state aid for highway construction and financial assistance to the farmers in purchasing homes.

Capital Punishment, as a result of legal discussion over the Cole-Granger case, will confront the Nebraska legislature and West Virginia will act on proposals to abolish private detective agencies. The last named state has also introduced a bill providing for marriage in order to make non-support an extraditable offense. California legislators once again will be called upon to consider the problem of a woman who was designated to place a wife on an equality with her husband, and which was defeated last fall.

Many states will be confronted with the problem of how to pay soldiers' bonuses voted at the last election. South Dakota is pledged to obtain $80,000,000; Minnesota legislators will vote on the question of a bonus for 40,000 ex-servicemen; Delaware law-makers will take a similar vote; Connecticut must raise $20,000,000; and in addition to a bonus, may exempt veterans' property from taxation up to $500 value; Iowa alone has no legislative session beginning January 10 also will consider a soldier's bonus bill.

Other public questions, as given below, will be considered by the legislatures of the following states:
Arkansas—Abolition of several state commissions, proposed by Governor McRae, is expected to precede the bill. State Board of Health will ask a one-mill tax to maintain trained personnel in every county. Educational program, including farm extension, will be advocated.

California—Drastic prohibition enforcement act, passed in 1919 and defeated by referendum at last election, will be reintroduced. A bill for prohibition of intoxication in either has the support of labor. School laws affecting Japanese may be revised.

teachers by school boards before dismissal, are to be discussed by the legislature which convenes on January 10. Ohio—Dry forces, with an overwhelming majority in the legislature, support enforcement amendments to the Cragg prohibition act, which does not provide machinery for carrying out its provisions. Ohio legislature will consider temporary suspension of the one per cent tax law.

Pennsylvania—State constitution, in force nearly 50 years, may be amended or revised. Compulsion to report on the bills to raise standard of public schools and to "liberalize" Sunday laws will confront the legislature.

Tax Problem Dominant. South Dakota—Improvement of the state capital, soldier bonuses and state university and other institutional needs require $107,687,882 appropriation, the raising of which is biggest problem. Legislature also must determine where proposed state capital building, at Mitchell, Mordike or some other place.

Texas—Road building, reorganization of state departments, school health sanitation and conservation of natural resources are legislative subjects which, in addition to taxation reform, will be considered at the session opening on January 11.

Tennessee—Extension of the Dorchest law to the entire state, a state Sabbath observance law, and application of a poll tax to women are subjects. The state police law, by which the governor can put out the militia without red tape procedure and which was in issue in the recent campaign, is expected to remain.

West Virginia—Biennial session which convenes January 10 will pass laws to make use of $200,000,000 road building bond issue voted at last election. New Hampshire—Effort will be made to legalize Sunday sports, but not conducted for profit and that do not tend "to the disturbance of others." Reimbursement to the people of income and inheritance tax refund rejected November 2, urged to provide new needed revenue.

Woman Act in Nevada. Nevada—Increased salaries for rural school teachers and tax relief for mining and agriculture are important proposals. Standardization of motor license fees to provide funds for a great road building project will be discussed. Women to take more active part in state administration.

Court Recommends 10 Years Term for Convicted Assassin of Woman

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—Edward (Knockout) Kruvosky, pugilist, who was the assassin of a group of young women here, was given an indeterminate sentence Friday of from one to 10 years in San Quentin prison. The judge recommended that Kruvosky serve the full term.

The sentence was pronounced following the denial of a motion for a new trial. Kruvosky was found guilty by a jury in 11 minutes on Thursday, Dec. 23, after a sensational trial. His trial closely followed that of Edmund (Burr) Murphy, pugilist and leader of the gang, who is now serving a life sentence in San Quentin.

Miss Jean Montgomery, the complaining witness, testified that Kruvosky in company with other gangsters, assaulted and threatened her companion, Miss Jean Stanley, from a cafe to a house in the Mission district in the early morning of Thanksgiving day and that most of the men in the party attacked her. Miss Stanley also testified in corroboration of Miss Montgomery.

Two of the suspected gangsters now in custody, remain to be tried, Thomas Brady and Allen McDonnell; Elmer Murphy, Kruvosky and James Carey, having been successfully tried and convicted. Carey will come up for sentence Monday when Brady's trial is scheduled to start.

LEGION IDEALS GAIN APPROVAL OF LABOR CHIEF

Correspondence Between Galbraith and Gompers Reveals Two Executives in Accord on Principles of Organizations

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., (AP)—Correspondence between W. Galbraith, national commander of the American Legion, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has been made public at the national headquarters of the legion. The letters, which continue an exchange begun last November, show that the two executives are in accord on the principle that an organization, as such, can scarcely be held responsible for the actions of its members. Galbraith may not agree with either the letter or the spirit of the body's official pronouncements. Each of the correspondents, however, is of the opinion that it might meet and talk over the problems confronting them.

The first letter was written by Mr. Galbraith November 2 in response to one which Mr. Gompers had sent to Franklin D. Oiler, former commander of the legion, last August. The labor leader, in his letter, stated that "members of the American Legion were improperly participating in certain political activities." Mr. Galbraith wrote that a reply had been delayed because he needed time to familiarize himself with the situation. He added:

"As a result of an investigation the officials of the American Legion in Kansas reported that the American Legion did not participate in such incidents reported to you. If any members of the American Legion did take part in any of these reported incidents, it was entirely upon their own responsibility, without sanction from any official of the American Legion and in violation of our expressed policy."

"As you know, the American Legion is an association of former soldiers, sailors and marines associated for the following purposes:

- "To uphold and defend the constitution of the United States of America to maintain law and order; to foster and encourage a love for our country; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to incite a sense of international brotherhood and respect for state and nation; to combat the influence of both the classes and the masses; to make right the matter of might; to stand for the good and the right; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our common life by devotion to mutual helpfulness."

"The position of the American Legion, in political affairs, is neutral. It is not partisan. It is on record in favor of policies and are not interested in political differences as they arise in the different sections of the country."

"In a great national organization it is necessary that the individual members relate to themselves the greatest freedom in matters of political affiliation, religion, etc., and that they decide upon their own conduct under these lines strictly in accordance with their own conscience."

"Two successive conventions of the American Legion have unanimously upheld and reiterated this policy. The people of the United States have the right to decide for themselves any political question which may come before them. The American Legion does not believe in the abridgment of that right in any respect. The American Legion believes in law and order, and is steadfastly opposed to the use of force or violence in furtherance of any doctrine; and will oppose such methods through the legally constituted authorities wherever they may appear."

"No one knows more truly than do you that the aims and attitude of a great national association may often be misjudged by the irresponsible conduct or statements of individual members. I venture to say that many groups of members, and that it sometimes unfortunately occurs that the newspaper reports of such incidents are not strictly accurate in their reports of the facts and circumstances as they occurred. Incidents of this nature cannot commit a national organization to policies or positions in conflict with the policies and positions of such an association at its conventions or as set forth in its constitution."

Replying a week later, Mr. Gompers wrote:

"It is indeed gratifying to know that you have taken the same stand as your predecessor, Franklin D. Oiler, in this matter. It is in earnest as was he in concerning the good name of the American Legion. I would ask you if there is anything in the following declaration by the A. F. of L. convention in 1910 to which the American Legion can object:

"Organized labor contends for the improvement of the standard of life to uplift intelligence and foster education, to instill character and manhood and any independent spirit among our people; for doing so, recognize and the interdependence of the modern life of man and his fellowman. It claims that the normal working day, the children from the factory and the workshop and place them in the school, the home and playground. In a word, to understand the worker, recognizing the right of labor, to educate their members, to make their homes more cheerful in every way, to contribute to the betterment of the world, to the betterment of the rights of citizens and to bear the duties and responsibilities and perform the obligations they owe to our country and our fellowmen. Labor contends that in every effort to achieve its aims, it will not use any commendable but should receive the sympathetic support of every right thinking progressive citizen."

You undoubtedly will find that members of the American Legion, out of a few, are like the members of the American Federation of Labor, who are the real purpose for which an organization is formed. New organizations are created which it is difficult to restrain their members from doing things which are a menace not only to them but to all the people."

I have been helped in a way in ascertaining the members of trade unions with real aims and objects of the American Legion. Of several occasions reported that have been held in meetings of labor organizations have been held on the table or at the desk. The information they have received is that they do not know the work of the American Legion. Many of your members do not understand the trade union movement and the American Federation of Labor, outlined at the 1910 convention, it would also be an influence causing individuals to cease interfering in any way with the trade union."

"Permit me to congratulate you in your election as national commander of the American Legion. I hope that you will be able to bring the problems facing both organizations personally and dignifying the problems faced by both organizations."

My reply of Mr. Galbraith, dated November 27, said that it was "with a real sense of pride in the foundation of the American Legion, and its aims and as renewed proof thereof that I read again the American Federation of Labor's declaration of 1910."

"If there anything in that declaration to which the American Legion can object, you ask. Certainly not. The Legion subscribes to every word of the constitution of our organization. But, as you and I both must be aware, it is one thing for a great organization like the American Legion or the American Federation of Labor to aspire to lofty aims and in conventional assembly they are to be accomplished, and it is another thing for such organizations to go out and in the daily acts and deliberations of the individual members and such have their own share to such declarations."

"In this respect the problems of the respective organizations are somewhat similar to be the same. We have before us constantly the task of living up to our professed declarations in letter and spirit. I venture to say that we are all of organized labor."

"I shall look forward with pleasure to the time when we may meet and personally discuss some of the phases of our common problem."

Champion Meenest Man.
A peculiar case which recently came before a London magistrate was that of a woman who applied for a separation from her husband, whom she denounced as the champion meanest man of all England. She complained that her husband during the sugar famine kept the supply in a separate bowl, in which he imprisoned a fly. If the fly was still there when he returned home so body had tampered with his hoard; if it was not, a lump or two had been taken.

"When the frost is on the pumpkin, you can depend upon it being in close proximity to your cooling system," says George W. Sweet, national service manager for the Studebaker corporation, South Bend, Ind. "This notorious Jack Frost, sworn enemy of the radiator, is no respecter of persons. He will attack the cooling system of any car given the slightest opportunity—and if not on his toes on the subject, he is forgetful at about this time of the year, you had better watch out."

It is a well known fact that anti-freezing solutions are not only necessary for the protection of the radiator, but also for the protection of the engine. The radiator is the heart of the cooling system, and it is essential that it be kept free of ice and snow.

There are three substances in general for making anti-freeze solutions, glycerine, alcohol and ethylene glycol. Glycerine is the most expensive, but it is also the most effective. Alcohol is the most common, but it is also the most dangerous. Ethylene glycol is the most expensive, but it is also the most effective.

A summary of the opinions of various automobile makers as to the value of various anti-freeze solutions shows a decided preference for alcohol and glycerine. Neutral alcohol does not mix with water, but it is also the most dangerous. Glycerine is the most expensive, but it is also the most effective.

"If 10 per cent of alcohol is used, the following solution will be found adequate for all ordinary temperatures: Alcohol by volume 1 part; water by volume 3 parts; approx. specific gravity, 1.03; will freeze at 10 degrees above zero."

Alcohol by volume, 1 part; water by volume, 2 parts; approx. specific gravity, 1.05; will freeze at 20 degrees below zero. Glycerine by volume, 1 part; water by volume, 1 part; approx. specific gravity, 1.26; will freeze at 20 degrees below zero.

"Neutral glycerine does not set on metal but does not on rubber connections. If used the loose connections should be frequently inspected to prevent disintegration and consequent leaks. It can be prepared as follows: Glycerine by vol., 1 part; water by volume, 3 parts; specific gravity, 1.26; will freeze at 10 degrees above zero."

Glycerine by vol., 1 part; water by volume, 2 parts; specific gravity, 1.39; will freeze at zero. Glycerine by vol., 1 part; water by volume, 3 parts; specific gravity, 1.33; will freeze at 20 degrees below zero. Glycerine by vol., 1 part; water by volume, 4 parts; specific gravity, 1.25; will freeze at 20 degrees below zero.

Sunday School a Woman's Idea. The credit of organizing the first Sunday school in the United States is claimed for a woman—Miss Sarah Oult, who died at her home in Patuxent, N. J., in 1872, at the age of ninety years. Miss Oult's original idea was to teach the mill boys to read and write, and from this the school gradually grew into a means of religious instruction.
