UNIONS DEFEAT PLAN FOR VOTE IN CASE OF WAR

Denver Convention of American Federation of Labor Turns Down Proposal Calling for Constitutional Amendment

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—The convention of the American Federation of Labor today voted down a proposal calling for an amendment to the constitution of the United States taking the power of declaring war from congress and placing it in the hands of the people through referendum vote.

The declaration which went to a roll call after a stormy referendum, provided that "all those voting in favor of the declaration of war, be compelled to take up the active proceedings of the same, before those who voted against the declaration of the war."

The official roll list showed that 21,745 votes were cast against the war referendum, and 14,350 for it.

The United Mine Workers and the International Association of Machinists with a total of 6994 votes cast their "no" for the war referendum, as did the railway clerks. The carpenters' union, the second largest in the federation, with the majority of the building trades organizations opposed the proposal.

The railway clerks split their votes, 1438 for the referendum and 512 against. The printers also divided, 336 for the proposal and 175 against. Organizations approving the referendum also included Blacksmiths, federal employes, postal clerks, laundry workers, lithographers, rural letter carriers, meat cutlers and butcher workmen and scores of state federation and local branches.

Bank of England Cuts ITS RATE OF DISCOUNT

LONDON, (AP)—The Bank of England sprang a surprise upon the market today by reducing its rate of discount one-half of one per cent to six per cent just as the banks were making up their half yearly accounts. This will approximate a great deal of what was expected at the rates of interest, and it was expected that during the day the deposit rates would be lowered.

It was thought that the Bank of England would abstain from any reduction in the rate pending the settlement of the labor troubles, and it is believed the chief reason for the decision to lower the rate was the necessity that the treasury be able to borrow money cheaply.

The recent reduction of the federal bank rate in the United States and cheaper money conditions in America were also giving influence to the lower minimum rate.

EUROPEANS ARE AN OPTIMISTIC LOT FOR GEORGES

Vanguard of Sports from Overseas Think Frenchman Has Even Chance

NEW YORK. (AP)—Georges Carpentier has more than an even chance of carrying away the heavyweight boxing title in the opinion of the vanguard of European sporting writers who arrived yesterday aboard the new French liner Paris, on her maiden trip from Havre.

"I have seen both men in action," he said. "I base my opinion on personal observation. For the first time in his career Dempsey will be called upon to fight a brain. Carpentier's cunning coupled with his strength and precision in hitting, will win."

The Yankees went 10 innings in Washington without a run. And all they complain that there is too much hitting and scoring.

team, has accepted an offer to take a tryout with the Chicago White Sox.

Balpi Perkins of the Athletics set the season's home run mark by poling three homers in as many consecutive contests, one each on May 29, 30, 31.

The Cleveland club, having taken Art Wilson from Columbus, sent young Luke Sewell to the Association club to replace him. Speaker thinks the younger Sewell will come through as a catcher—some day.

Bobby Jones of the Tigers went on a hitting spree that had endured for 11 consecutive contests, when Stanley Coveleski called the brakes May 30. During his hitting period, he clouted 17 safe ones in 37 tries for a mark of 45.9.

Eleven two-base hits in a game made by Detroit and Cleveland on the afternoon of May 30, is said to be a record for the American league.

John Tobin, who is playing such splendid ball for the St. Louis Browns, made a record of scoring 30 runs in 17 consecutive games, which he was stopped by Bob Shawkey in the game of New York on June 3. Tobin never saw first base in this game and Shaw key fanned him twice.

According to word from the east it is almost a cinch that Johnny Wilson, Kansas City, Mo.—Joe Willard, for-

The battle is proposed for Brooklyn and will be staged on Ebbets field, where the National league champions of last year play ball.

DENVER, Colo., (AP)—The convention of the American Federation of Labor today called upon congress to enact legislation to control the meat packing industry of the country. The legislation demanded provided for early acquisition by the railroads of the principal and necessary stockyards and all refrigerating cars and special equipment cars used for transportation of meat and meat products and perishable food products; and a system of compulsory registration of all packers engaged in the meat packing industry; of stockyard owners and market agencies and dealers engaged in the business of buying and selling in commerce livestock at a stockyard.

The convention called upon congress to immediately reclassify the civil service jobs and to provide a definite measure with the skill, training and responsibility involved in the work performed with just relation to the increased cost of living.

British Foreign Minister, in a Speech Before the Dominion Ministers, Stresses Conversations with Briand

LONDON, (Canadian Press)—The imperial conference did not hold a formal session today, having adjourned after Lord Curzon's speech yesterday until Friday. The foreign secretary, the Japanese alliance early next week.

Lord Curzon's speech was a comprehensive but highly confidential report on the British foreign policy conference agreed that the address should not be published. Lord Curzon took the conference completely into his confidence and invited the delegates to interrogate him.

Meets Premier's Approval.

So far as could be ascertained the statement was regarded as satisfactory by the members of the dominions. But it is pointed out that a more explanation of British foreign policy to the dominions is far from meaning that they have a voice or influence in the direction or execution of that policy. One solution for this situation suggested is dominion ministers resident in London, but few believe that a resident minister would be in position to exercise such influence or guidance over the foreign minister, fostered in his action by experts and others intimately familiar with old world affairs. The problem will come up when that part of the agenda is reached calling for the creation of means giving effect to the new status of the dominions.

ARTESIAN WATER EXPERT IS GUEST OF TWIN FALLS

Head of the Geological Survey Ground Water Department Investigating Resources

Oliver McIntzer, chief of the ground water division, United States geological survey, who is here on a special mission in Idaho with a view to defining the artesian basins of the state and determining the extent of their availability for land reclamation, is today in Twin Falls, having completed with E. B. Darlington, chief engineer for the Twin Falls North Side Canal company, a survey of the Goose creek and Salmon river districts.

Mr. McIntzer entered upon his investigations in Idaho in response to a request made by managers and operators of Idaho irrigation projects following a presentation of the subject at their meeting in Nampa last winter by Dean Thompson of the University of Idaho school of mines.

Mr. McIntzer is regarded as a foremost authority on this field of work. Last year he located artesian basins in the Sandwich islands with the result that irrigation water was made available for material extension of the sugar producing districts of the islands.

INDIANA WOMAN CLAIMS ROOSEVELTS ARE LIABLE

Files Suit Against Estate of Former President to Collect on Endorsed Note

HILLSDALE, Indiana, (AP)—Mrs. Emma Richardson Burkett has filed a claim for $69,000 against the estate of the late Theodore Roosevelt to collect a note which she says the former president endorsed, today told the story of the mysterious financial transaction. Mrs. Burkett claims she met Roosevelt and a man introduced as Charles J. Shuman, who she believed, was a former "High Rider," in a Chicago office building during the republican national convention of 1912, and there loaned the money to Shuman on his note, backed by the former president's signature. Mrs. Burkett scouted suggestions that she had been duped by clever finance men posing as the ex-president. Mrs. Burkett told her story after learning that the executors of the Roosevelt estate had branded the signature on the alleged note a forgery and had refused to pay her claim. An uncle, Henry Richardson, a minor who spent most of his life in Montana (Montana and Nebraska, died in February, 1912, while on the way to Alaska, and left the money in her care, the interest to be paid to his daughter, Mrs. Kennedy, of St. Paul. She consulted a friend, a justice of the peace, now dead, in Danville, Illinois, about an investment, and in June, 1912, was called to Chicago, where she was introduced to Shuman and the man she believes was Colonel Roosevelt. According to Mrs. Burkett, Shuman paid interest on the loan at the rate of 7 per cent until 1917, when he went to France. She has not since heard from him.

A NECESSARY STEP: The proposed program for intensive advertising of Idaho's resources and opportunities, when carried into execution, will add an impelling motive to the good and sufficient reasons already existing for improvement of Twin Falls' automobile tourists' park.

The purpose of the campaign is to divert to Idaho the great wave of westward bound travelers which is certain to set in with the opening of the Portland exposition. A large percentage of those travelers will come in motor cars. Many of them will not apply for accommodations to hotels and lodging houses even if such accommodations were provided in sufficient.

When they come to Twin Falls they will expect reasonable accommodations for camping, and they should receive them. A neglected and run-down camp site would have a worse effect than would the provision of none at all, and intention to this detail would be certain to go far toward negating whatever of benefit might be expected to accrue to Twin Falls by reason of the publicity campaign.

It is an encouraging manifestation that more and more in this community people are coming to fuller realization of the desirability of providing the best Scouria's camp site compatible with reason and good business judgment.

Decision of the city administration to employ a park custodian to keep up the camp site is a step in the right direction which is certain to meet with general approval, as will also the promised activities of the chamber of commerce in this field when carried into execution.

DISAPPEARING BATTLE SOARS: Nature blushes for the deeds of men; the good green earth forgives but does not forget. An English writer lately returned from a tour of that part of France occupied during the war by the British forces writes: "Four-fifths of the vast provinces churned and mutilated by war between Amiens and Arras are under cultivation. Odd stretches of fighting ground in Flanders, the labyrinthous world of Vimy ridge, the wider tracts outside Arras and Scarpe, may still be found just as the last great struggle left them; but it would take a greater man than Hamlet to trace across the ground the entire Hindenburg line, the elaborate emplacements of which have been broken up for the maintenance of roads."

Let the work of healing the wounded battle grounds be hastened. It is one of the fortunate provisions of the treaty that insofar as possible restoration is to be made. When peaceful homes and flourishing fields replace the devastated areas of France and Belgium the world will more easily forget its period of frenzy; the coming generation will have less to prompt the nurture of its hatreds.

But the earth will treasure its bitter memories. On nearly the same ground in the stuporous period of peace following the Franco-Prussian war, scholars excavated the sites of Caesar's camps and battlefields at Gaul. More than 1800 years had elapsed, but Caesar's trenches and the famous "Miles" designed as man-traps were still easily recognizable by the displaced strata of soils and the mixture of dark humus with the excavated chalk beds. And in those hidden pits were the bones of men, their broken swords and spears and battered armor.

Renald, the poppies of Flanders field will be the records of the world's supreme outbreak of madness. Let the grass and flowers grow quickly and conceal them, for just now the world has need of soothing forgetfulness. But let them remain also forever to be studied by archaeologists and historians and to be meditated upon by philosophers in the hope that the wisdom of mankind may avail to prevent the recurrence of such a catastrophe.

THE SCOUTS ON THE JOB

Great disasters must be especially hard on professional agencies because of the numerous incidents that always occur to illustrate the "bright, unshining" side of human nature. The emergency invariably brings forth the heroes to grapple with it. We instinctively look for striking instances of courage and self-sacrifice, and we are not disappointed. Our faith in our kind is renewed and strengthened. The heroism of the wireless operator and the telephone girl is now traditional. The Boy Scouts are also beginning to make a name for themselves in connection with emergencies.

Word comes from Pueblo, Col., that its citizens are proposing to present some sort of testimonial to the Scouts for the services rendered during the recent disastrous flood. From the very beginning the boys were on the job. Mobilized hastily, they ran about giving timely warnings. They were tireless in administering relief. They hoped to bring members of scattered families together. They salvaged goods and guarded property from the inevitable marauders. It is a Boy Scout rule with no exceptions that a personal reward must never be accepted for helpful services given. They endeavor to "do one good deed daily." But in an emergency such as that at Pueblo they perform countless acts of the kind without thought of recompense.

The value of discipline is forcibly illustrated in the Boy Scout organization. The Scout's physical and mental powers are trained to co-ordinate so that the emergency calls forth his highest efficiency. Good citizens should give generous support to Boy Scout organizations. They are assets not only to the members, but to the community.

"Happy days are these, with all the young leading to the picnic resorts. If some men took to bootlegging to get their names in the paper they are succeeding."

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO IN TWIN FALLS

On account of local conditions Twin Falls was unable to celebrate the national holiday last year. All the pent-up patriotism which has slumbered in the breasts of the pioneers will be given vent on the "Glorious Fourth," when the city gates will be opened and a rock foundation for celebrating the birth of our nation will be laid. It will be a rock foundation for celebrating the birth of our nation, and rich with patriotic sentiment and unalloyed enjoyment. A special feature will be the visitors from all points on the branch and special rates will be in effect.

A Man for the Ages

A Story of the Builders of Democracy By Irving Bacheller

CHAPTER XII

Which Continues the Romance of Abe and Ann Until the Former Leaves New Salem to Begin His Work in the Legislature. Also Describes the Colonizing of Peter Lukins.

The next day after his return, Abe received a letter from Ann. She had come over to the store on the arrival of the stage and taken her letter and run home with it. That Saturday's stage brought the new suit of clothes from Springfield.

"It was a letter from Ann. She had come over to the store on the arrival of the stage and taken her letter and run home with it. That Saturday's stage brought the new suit of clothes from Springfield.

"I hope your letter brought good news," said Abe.

"It was very short," Ann answered. "I took a fever in Ohio and was sick three or four weeks and then he went home. In two months he never wrote a word to me. And this one was only a little bit of a letter with love in it. I don't believe he cares for me now or perhaps he is married. I don't know. I can't go to cry about it any more. I can't. I've no more tears to shed. I've given him up."

"Then I reckon the time has come for me to tell you what is on my heart," said Abe. "I love you very much. I have loved you for years. I would have told you long ago but I could not make myself believe that I was good enough for you. I love you so much that if you can only be happy with John McNamara I will pay to God that he may turn out to be a good and faithful man and come back and keep his promise."

"Oh, Abe," she whispered. "I had made up my mind that men were all bad but my father. I was wrong. I did not think of you."

"Men are mostly good," said Abe. "I'm very easy to misunderstand them. I'm sure you are. It's quite true that John McNamara is better than you think him. I want you to be fair to John. If you conclude that you can not be happy with him give me a chance. I would do my best to bring back to you the best of old days. Sometimes I think that ain't going to give something worth while. Sometimes I think that I can see my way far ahead and it looks very pleasant, and you, Ann, are always walking beside me. Don't you think I will pay to God I wish you could give me some hope to live on—just a little straw of hope."

"You are a wonderful man, Abe," said Ann, touched by his appeal. "My father says that you are going to be a great man."

"I can not hold out any such hope to you," Abe answered. "I'm rather ignorant and badly in debt, but I reckon that I can make a good living. Don't you think I can ask now? I am, you could care for me a little?"

"Yes; sometimes I think that I could love you, Abe," she answered. "I do not love you yet, but I may—some time. I really want to love you."

"Abe as they went on "Do you love him?" said Ann.

"I have not heard from her since June."

"I wish you would write to her and tell her that I am thinking of going west with her and that I would like to go to see her."

"I'll write to her tomorrow," said Ann.

They had a pleasant visit and while Ann was playing with the baby she seemed to have forgotten her troubles. They stayed to supper after which the whole family walked to the tavern with them. When Ann began to show weariness, Abe gently lifted her in his arms, and carried her.

"That evening Mrs. Peter Lukins called upon Abe at Sam Hill's store where he had alone, before the fire, sending word to another business on the end of a dry goods box at his elbow.

"I wanted to see you private," said Lukins, she began. "There's them that call him 'Boss Lukins,' but I reckon he ain't no bossier than the average run of men—not a bit more. If he was, I don't reckon his honor or to throw at him every time he's spoke to that away."

"What can I do about it?" Abe asked.

"He's been pulled at within some kind of a decent handle could be put on his name," said Mrs. Lukins, with her eye upon a knot hole in the counter. "Something with a good sound to it. You said that anything you could do for the New Salem folks you would do. Abe ain't I thought may be you could fix it."

"Potter's Field" The term, which is applied to a place where the countless and unknown are buried had its origin in Matthew 23, when the chief priests, scribes and Pharisees with them the three pieces of silver for which Judas betrayed the Master, the potter's field to bury strangers in. The name was clung to such spots ever since.

"Abe smiled and asked: 'Do you love a little?'"

"If it ain't plum'owacious I want he could be made a colonel!"

"I'll see what can be done, but if he gets that title he'll have to live up to it."

"I'll make him wear a cloak though you see," the good woman played as the left the store.

"That evening Abe wrote a plural commission as colonel for Peter Lukins, which was signed the due time by all his friends and neighbors and presented to Lukins by a committee of which Abe was chairman.

"Coleman Smoot—a man of some means who had a farm on the road to Springfield—was in the village that evening. Abe showed him the commission and asked him to sign it.

"I'll sign on one condition," said Smoot.

"What is that?" Abe asked.

"That you'll give me a commission. I want to be your friend."

"You are that guy, aren't you?" Abe asked.

"Yes, but I haven't earned my commission. You haven't given me no chance yet. What can I do to help you along?"

"Abe was much impressed by these kindly words.

"My friends do not often ask what they can do for me," said Abe. "I suppose they haven't thought of it. I'll think it over and let you know."

Three days later he walked out to Coleman Smoot's supper. As they sat together by the freestone Abe said:

"I've been thinking of your friendly question. It's dangerous to talk that way to a man like me. The fact is, I need two hundred dollars to pay pressing debts and give me something in my pocket when I go to Vandalia. If you can not lend it to me I shall think upon the loss of you."

"I can and will," said Smoot. "I've been watching you for a long time. A man who tries as hard as you do to get along deserves to be helped. I believe in you. I'll go up to Springfield and get the money and bring it to you within a week or so."

Abe Lincoln had many friends who would have done the like for him if they could, and he knew it.

"Every one has faith in you," said Smoot. "We expect much of you and we ought to be willing to do what we can to help the loss of you."

"Your faith will be my strength, if I have any," said Abe.

On his way home that night he thought of what Jack Kelso had said of democracy and friendship.

On the twenty-second of November a letter came to Ann from Bill Kelso, which announced that she was going to New Orleans for the winter with her husband. Six days later Abe took the stage for the capital, at Rutledge's door, where all the inhabitants of the village had assembled to bid him good-

By Ann Rutledge, with a flash of her old pluckiness, and when he had gotten into the stage, Abe's long arm was waving in the air as he looked back at his cheering friends while the stage rumbled down the road toward the great task of life upon which he was presently to begin in the little village of Vandalia.

FOLK TO FORGET RANGOR ON JULY FOUR THIS YEAR

Independence Day Will Be Observed by Great Big Picnic in Twin Falls

A bigger, better and entirely different Independence Day celebration than has ever been staged in southern Idaho is promised by the local fest. committee in charge, and in the program being outlined for the day's entertainments.

That the eagle will stream in Twin Falls on July 4 is a foregone conclusion, but there will be a new and less discordant note in the chord. The lion will be patriotic without rant or rancor over past unpleasantness, so the committee in charge say.

July 4 will be a day of picnicking and joyous demonstration, according to the program being outlined. There will be an address by Col. L. V. Patch, a veteran of the war, who will speak more of the things that happened across seas during the years when America was in the conflict, and of the harmonious co-operation among the forces fighting the battles of the war, rather than dwelling on the evils that led to the signing of the declaration of independence.

Program plans are proceeding without any deviation from the set scheme except as such deviation improves the scope of the celebration. John W. Graham, general committee chairman, says. The program and prize list is being shaped up and will be ready for publication in a few days, Mr. Graham announces.

One of the day's features is a free ball game to be played during the morning of July 4. The lion will be patriotic without rant or rancor over past unpleasantness, so the committee in charge say.

A special request has been sent to all business houses to fly the national colors on Independence day. The municipal department will carry out the usual decoration scheme on the streets.

THREE CULPRITS FINED ON MISDEMEANOR CHARGES

Two Americans and a Mexican Held into Police Court for Morning Session

Three culprits faced Police Magistrate Paul E. Taber this morning, two on charges of being intoxicated and the other with drunkenness and breaking the peace.

Frank Taylor and W. H. Smith, both claiming to be residents of Polk, were arrested last evening by Policemen Shipman and Patton, and were arraigned this morning for drunkenness. Fines $10 were levied and paid.

In the case of the third defendant, Francisco Martinis, a fine of $25 was assessed, but could not be paid. Martinis was accused of "standing up" the Cottage Inn, on the southside. When he was arrested a Colt's automatic pistol was found in his hip pocket. The weapon was confiscated.

OWSLEY BRIDGE OPENING DRAWS MASSIVE CROWD

Hagerman Packed for Ceremonial Program Connected with Crossing Completion

Approximately 8,000 persons attended the Owsley bridge opening celebration at the bridge site and at Hagerman yesterday. Both north and south sides were well represented all day long, Twin Falls sending a particularly large representation. The celebration was a success from start to finish, the day's program being carried through without deviation of moment.

Estimates place the number of outside automobiles in Hagerman yesterday at between 170 and 200. Over 300 machines were counted on the road after the ceremonies of the morning at the bridge.

The details of the day, from the bridge dedication address by Governor Davis, to the final end of the program were thoroughly enjoyed, except for one marring incident, an unavoidable accident at the race track when three men were injured by a bolting race horse. Outside of this untoward event the day's program was carried out in a thoroughly enjoyable manner.

Two Good Ball Games

Two baseball games were played during the afternoon, Duhl, defeating the Hagerman team 3 to 2 in the initial encounter, and Gooding winning from Wendell 5 to 3 in the afternoon. Both games were well played and aroused intense enthusiasm and excitement.

The festivities opened at 10 yesterday morning, with formal ceremonies at Owsley, when the crossing was officially tendered to the state officials, for acceptance in the name of the state, and were carried on to midnight. Every event was free, even to moving picture shows, performances being given for juveniles in the afternoon and for everybody at night. There was plenty of dancing during afternoon and evening, track excitement when the horses were galloping from the paddock for matches on the oval. The races were well run and were of a spirited nature throughout.

THREE INJURED WHEN HORSE LEAVES TRACK

Festivities at Hagerman Marred by Unfortunate Accident During the Races

were officially denied at noon by Clean Journey, secretary who had charge of the Hagerman celebration.

"We had a regrettable accident during one of the running races at about 4 o'clock yesterday, and three persons were injured, but there was no fatality, and no injuries of a particularly serious nature. All the patients are on the way to recovery; in fact, two were up and around today," said Mr. Journey to the News representative.

The accident referred to resulted from the bolting by a fractious horse along toward the end of the race. The animal became unmanageable and dashed into the crowd near the finish, knocking down five persons, and falling itself on three. There are a 17-year-old boy named Weaver, son of D. C. Weaver, a Duhl district farmer, Charles Palmer, of Bliss and J. E. Condit of Hagerman. The latter two were knocked out for a short time, but recovered rapidly. Young Weaver was cut considerably about the upper portion of the body, the face and arms and was unconscious for some time. He recovered and was taken home, where, according to reports from Duhl, he is today resting well, and will suffer no permanent evil results from the accident.

Kate Richards O'Leary will lecture on "Gimes and Gimmals" Friday night, July 1st, 1921. Place to be announced later. H. H. Froehlich, Sponsor, adv.

DISEASE IN CATTLE OF DISTRICT AT LOW EBB

Federal Veterinarian Tells of Excellent Condition Among the Herds

In the state of Idaho there are 60 accredited cattle herds. Of this number Twin Falls county has 10. The report is made officially by W. A. Sullivan, veterinarian of the federal department of animal husbandry, with headquarters at Boise.

Dr. Sullivan reached Twin Falls yesterday on a regular visit of inspection in connection with his general work in the state. He will supervise the loading of the "contract" cattle found in dairy and stock herds in this district. The cattle will be shipped to Boise for final disposal. They have been found to be affected with tuberculosis.
