NON-PARTISANS' FUNDS MISSING

Members of State Executive Committee Charged with Squandering $50,000

FARGO, N. D., (AP)—Charges that three members of the state executive committee of the Non-Partisan league had squandered fifty thousand dollars of the league's recent election campaign fund were made in a special edition of the Fargo Courier News, a Non-Partisan league daily newspaper here today.

The newspaper's statement suggested that a delegate convention of the league be called at Bismarck July 20 to elect three members to take the place of those accused of misusing the campaign fund.

The special edition carrying the charges against the executive committee members was not allowed to gain extensive circulation. Applied of the intention of the editor of the Courier News to sue the editor, the committee members appeared at the office of the publication at 4:15 this morning and demanded possession. CONFERENCE SURROUNDED BY AIR-TIGHT SECURITY

The conference was surrounded with the greatest secrecy, but was understood to have concerned itself primarily with conditions for the possible suspension of hostilities in Ireland—considered the most important step in the progress of peace deliberations.

Those concerned in the discussions yesterday at Dublin were reticent as to the matters considered. Officials generally appear loath to talk on the Irish question, but there is a certain degree of optimism that the Irish situation may be on its way to solution.

Plunkett Joins Conference

Sir Horace Plunkett later joined the conference. This gave rise to still further hopes of favorable results from the conference in view of Sir Horace's previous position as secretary for home affairs, and A. J. Balfour, lord president of the council.

DUBLIN, (AP)—The negotiations under way for peace in Ireland have not yet brought about an armistice and the situation in Irish cities is believed, however, that General Bunsbury, brought from Mr. De Valera and his associates definite proposals and that the reply to those will have a great bearing on Friday's conference in Dublin.

JAPANESE SEES NO WAR HINT IN UNITED STATES

Secretary of Japanese Embassy at Washington Reassures Countrymen with Respect to International Relationships

TOXIO, (AP)—"It is regrettable that the real character and policy of the new American president should be misunderstood by some of the Japanese people," said Kikaku Kaku, secretary of the Japanese embassy in Washington, who has just returned on furlough, when interviewed by the Asahi representative. Mr. Kaku continued:

"The president has often had occasion to express his conviction that an Anglo-American-Japanese entente should be made the basis of world peace. There is every reason to believe that the American president and his staff are all in favor of the maintenance of friendly relations between America and Japan."

"The policy of armament limitation produced a favorable impression on American minds in general although the plan was defeated in the Japanese lower house."

"On my way back, I was often asked by American friends when the American-Japanese war was going to break out and some young American women in the country desired to know if I meant that they were determined to offer their services as hospital nurses upon the outbreak of American-Japanese hostilities."

Americans Prepared.

"I was rather surprised that so many American-Japanese armed conflicts. My impression is that the Americans are prepared to fight if challenged, but other wise they will be the last to take up arms against the Japanese. The diplomatic relations of the two countries are therefore in any means as seriously strained or going to be strained as to justify any anticipation of an American-Japanese war. If the situation should be anything but quite smooth, that is only because of the propaganda of some Chinese and Bolsheviks."

Mr. Kaku is quoted as saying that what had struck him particularly during his three years' service in the United States was the deep impression which Japan's military had made on American minds. The general impression among Americans is that the military party is predominant in Japan and that the Japanese government is under the influence of the military party. This hears witness to the extensive injury which the existence of the military party in Japan is doing to the country's economy.

Rotarian's Impressions.

But Mr. Kaku emphasized that Mr. Ozaki's disarmament speeches had produced a greater effect than expected and that Americans generally interpreted these speeches to indicate a decline in the influence of the Japanese military party.

Mexican Takes Steps to Oppose Unaffiliated Operation of Operations in Petroleum Districts

MEXICO CITY, (AP)—Oil companies which have closed down operations in the states of Tamaulipas and Vera Cruz, without sufficient justification, are ordered to pay indemnification to employes thrown out of work in a decree issued by President Obregon Monday night.

It is understood that all laborers would receive three months pay. Reports from the Tampico district indicate there has been a marked cessation of work during the past week, especially among American concessionaires. General Arnulfo Gomez, commander of federal troops in that region, reported Monday that more than ten thousand workmen had been dismissed within the last few days by foreign oil companies. No reason for their action has been announced by the companies, but it is understood to be an act of reprisal against the recent decree increasing the export taxes on petroleum.

Reports from the Vera Cruz fields indicate British companies and Vera Cruz, without sufficient justification, are ordered to pay indemnification to employes thrown out of work in a decree issued by President Obregon Monday night.

GOTAM INVADERS BY ENDEAVORERS

Ideals of Christian Citizenship Draw Nearly 15,000 Delegates to New York

NEW YORK, (AP)—Ideals of Christian citizenship drew to New York today 15,000 delegates from nearly all parts of the civilized world to attend the sixth world's Christian Endeavor convention which opens tonight and continues through July 11. The last international convention was held in Chicago in 1915.

The delegates embracing the religious faiths of more than 100 denominations, represent 80,000 societies with a membership of four million. Every state in the United States and every province in Canada was represented.

A spectacular feature of the convention will be a parade on Fifth avenue on Saturday in which many thousands will sing hymns and march as they march. A series of floats will depict important epochs in religious history. After the parade, a mass meeting will be held in Central park and William Jennings Bryan will deliver the principal address.

More than 200 speakers of prominence in the religious world will address the delegates and opening sessions in Seventy-first Regiment armory. The Rev. Francis E. Clark, founder and president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, will preside at the opening exercises tonight. A choir of 1000 voices, led by Homer Roddehaver, will render a musical program and addresses will be made by representatives of the city and delegates from other lands.

DEMOCRAT GIVES FORCED PRAISE TO BUDGET LAW

Florida Senator Charges Republicans with Making False Claims of Economy

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The republican majority in congress and the administration were charged today by Senator Fletcher, democrat, Florida, with making false claims of economy. The Florida senator declared in the senate that a few hundred nominally paid employes of the government had been discharged and owing salaries in Seventy-first Regiment armory. The Rev. Francis E. Clark, founder and president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, will preside at the opening exercises tonight. A choir of 1000 voices, led by Homer Roddehaver, will render a musical program and addresses will be made by representatives of the city and delegates from other lands.

Senator Fletcher criticized the legislative policy of what he termed "the unwieldy republican majority" and said three months of the extra session of congress had produced little constructive legislation. Referring to the budget bill as one of the few worthwhile pieces of legislation, he said that "perhaps there is sufficient halfheartedness in it to bring results."

Former Convicts to Undertake Recovery of Stolen Jewelry

"Jimmy the Trusty" and Pat Grove Volunteer Services in Returning Property

NEW YORK, (AP)—Two ex-convicts have undertaken to establish their theory that there is honor among thieves by attempting the recovery of $5000 worth of jewelry stolen from the state room of Colonel William H. Donaldson, wealthy New York publisher, on a New York, New Haven and Hartford railway on the night of June 23. They will seek to prove their point.

"Jimmy the Trusty," a reformed confidence man with a wide acquaintance among criminals, today made public a statement calling on the criminal or criminals to return the jewels and promised them that they need be in no fear of arrest. He pointed out that Colonel Donaldson has often assisted in the rehabilitation of ex-convicts. The other ex-convict is Pat Grove, a former kidnapper, who will work in the same endeavor.

"Block release from prison," the former's statement said, "it has been my ambition to convince the public that crime is due to lack of useful training and environment and that off on a man or woman who has committed a crime in a moment of impulse will willingly retrace the ill-gotten plunder if it could be done without fear of arrest."

Smaller Sentries to be Stationed at Intersections

Replicas of Washington Monuments to be Removed as Inanimate Street Cops

"Silent sentinels" constructed after the general principal, plan and order of the Washington monument, are to be displaced as mute traffic cops on business intersection arteries.

This is the decision of the city administration which has ordered the purchase of a modified form of inanimate sentry. For the present ten only of these sentries will be installed, and they will be placed at the principal intersections along Main avenue and along Shoshone street.

The sentries will be of a "low down" style, but will cover considerable space on the pavements. They will be of cast-iron construction, 18 inches in diameter and rising not more than five inches above the pavement. They are to be fastened in place by a long bolt screwed in the pavement. The animating principle of the scheme is to remove danger of serious accident in case of collision with the sentry, the new device providing nothing more than a severe shock to the machine and rider in case such a collision occurs.

Wets Adopt Policy of Class Consciousness

VLADIVOSTOK GENEROUS ON CONCESSIONS AWARD

Maritime Province of Siberia Courts Advent of Foreign Development Agencies Despite Protest

VLADIVOSTOK, (AP)—A step toward opening up the maritime province is seen in granting timber concessions by the local government and a concession "favor" is particularly noticeable among Japanese capitalists who are trying to oust one another, according to the Vladivostok Daily News.

On the eve of the auction for timber concessions, instructions were received by the Vladivostok authorities from the Chita Far Eastern government forbidding timber concessions being granted by anyone except Chita. The Vladivostok council of directors, however, immediately sent a protest to Chita against the instructions, and at the same time, authorized Mr. Antonoff, the local prime minister to confer with Chita in order to have these instructions annulled.

On April 12 applications were received for timber concessions in the maritime province on long lease terms. The auction took place under laws of June 21, 1910, which stipulate maximum 24 years lease. There were seven tenders handed in, but as the first three did not conform with the stipulations, only four were considered of which two were bids for the same concessions. Three leases were granted to Americans, according to the newspaper.

PROPOSED SHIP LINE TO ALASKAN RAIL TERMINAL

Senator Cummins Embodies Suggestions for Co-ordination of Federal Activities in Bill

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Establishment of a government shipping line between the United States and Alaska, to connect with government railroad in that territory, and co-ordination of all federal activities relating to Alaska are proposed in a bill introduced Tuesday by Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa and referred to the senate committee.

The measure was drawn, it was said, after consultation with the Alaskan delegation and several business men of Alaska. Under the bill the shipping board would be required to transfer to the secretary of interior ships of sufficient number and tonnage to run between the United States and Alaskan ports for operation in conjunction with the Alaskan railroad. The bill also would confer upon the president general authority to co-ordinate by transfer, consolidation or distribution all government agencies having to do with Alaskan affairs.

LINDSEY TALKS ON PARENTHOOD OF GOVERNMENT

Responsibility of State for the Health and Morals of Child Next Step after Public Education, Says Famous Judge

DES MOINES, Iowa, (AP)—From a different angle, but a no less important one, than that of natural parents, is the "Parenthood of the State" to the child, Judge Ben B. Lindsey said last night in an address before the National Education association here. "This was first expressed in the struggle for acknowledgment by the state that it was its duty to educate the child," Judge Lindsey added. "No one should question the state's responsibility. Since that acknowledgment the state is becoming more and more the over-parent of the child."

"The next phase of this struggle concerns the responsibility of the state for the health and morals of the child. Since health and morals are so nearly related, they may be considered almost as one. "The parenthood of the state" includes the duty to see that the child is well born. By strictest kind of marriage laws the state must forbid, as far as possible, the bringing of children into the world under conditions no longer be the victim of conditions over which it has no control but for which society and the state itself is to blame. When the state is imperilled, it calls the child of eighteen to defend it with its life. When the child is imperilled, it has a right to call on its over-parent, the state, to protect it with its wealth.

"The time will come when it will be regarded as a crime against childhood if the state permits that child to suffer from under-nourishment, disease, or poverty or ignorance. Since it is the accepted duty of the state to educate the child, it is far more its duty to feed the child.

"The time to save many a boy has it in the nine months before and the nine months after his birth. We must have maternity laws. We must have laws to see that the child does not suffer for the lack of proper performance if the parents are unable to perform that function, and if they are able to perform it, to see to it that it is performed.

"If this is 'paternalism' then all of your free school system is paternalism, and if free schools are paternalism, then give us more of it. We have the common experience in every state of five children of a wealthy family for whom the state has paid over $25,000 for their free education, and the five children of a poor widow who need to be fed even more than they need to be educated and for whom the expense of education is wasted because of this neglected condition.

"It is not the purpose of the 'Parenthood of the State' to usurp the function of the home or to permit the natural parent to shrink, but rather to see that the home performs its function in a safe, carefree, and to see that no child suffers because of poverty where the home is helpless. The state must preserve the home for the child."

Ruth's high drive mingled with the clouds and was descending just on the edge of the right field stands when the fan jumped up and diverted the ball into the field. Ruth was out of the game but Einar Conally sent him back to second under the ground rules.

Ruth has 31 homers to his credit with New York yet to play three games before reaching the half way mark of the season. At this rate the Yankee slugger would hit at least 60 home runs or ten more than last year.

Georges Carpentier thinks he will be ready to "fight" again in about six weeks.

The Frenchman may think he fought last Saturday, but few others take that impression.

Manager Desamps says he and Georges will remain in this country some time now and will take on a few futile contracts before returning to sunny France.

Carpentier's manager wants to match his man with Tommy Gibbons, who, he thinks, would make a good match for Georges.

If this match is finally made our bet will go down on the St. Paul lead last

TEACHERS SEEK GUIDANCE IN PREFERENCES OF TOTS

Use of Practical Toys is Feature of Revolution in Kindergarten Methods

DES MOINES, Ia., (AP)—Toy stoves, tables and chairs large enough for practical use; big blocks with which to build blocks large enough to play in—these mark the best kindergarten equipment of the present, Ella Victoria Dobbs of the University of Missouri, said here today at the National Education Association convention. A revolution in kindergarten methods has taken place, she indicated. The day of the tiny imitation of the real thing has passed.

"Instead of imposing upon the children our ideas of what we think they should like to do, we have gone about with them to find out what they really do under natural, happy conditions," said the Missouri professor. "We are bringing back into the school our transference of ideas not alone to the kindergarten, but, what is much more significant, into the primary schools as well."

"In comparing old and new the writer is impressed with the big use of things. Instead of tiny imitations for each individual child full-sized and real things are provided for co-operative work."

"The dolls have clothes that button and unbutton just like real folks and the dolls become real members of the social group demanding much thoughtful care. From time to time there are live rabbits and other pets which need food and care. Real tools—hammers and saws, together with scraps of wood and plaster of paris are temptations for the child to venture into the realm of mechanics."

"Another striking feature is the supply of low shelves and cupboards where books, toys, and other material as well as individual belongings are conveniently kept. As a result the children early develop a sense of individual responsibility for the care of materials."

"Under the old plan the teacher carried all the responsibility for all and the children were 'to do as they were told.' The relative value of these two attitudes toward life in a government of, by and for the people is self-evident."

LONDON DIVORCE COURTS RUSHED IN WAKE OF WAR

Work at High Pressure to Clear Off Unprecedented Accumulation of Pending Suits

LONDON, (AP)—Since Easter the divorce courts here have been working at high pressure to clear off an unprecedented accumulation of arrears which, added to, a steady stream of new cases, threatened at one time to overwhelm the physical capacity of the bench.

It needed the assistance of a number of retired judges to make headway against the avalanche of suits, with the result that they have been disposed of at the average rate of two scores or more per day.

The first chancellor, Lord Bickenhead, himself lent assistance by acting as an ordinary judge in the courts. Reviewing the position, he said: "The war has left a degree of unrest which has spread into almost every sphere of modern life, and the influence of which is likely to be felt for an indefinite period in domestic relationships."

"Nineteen out of 20 of the cases in arrears" Lord Bickenhead added "had their causes in the war or consequences of the war. The date when he joined the army was clearly a very important landmark of petitioner after petitioner from which dated the familiar and painfully slow work of weakness on the part of the wife."

It is Lord Bickenhead's opinion that matrimonial suits may not return at least for a generation, to the pre-war level.

The anomaly of the present situation has revived controversies on the inadequacy of English divorce laws. Mrs. Sexton-Tideman, secretary of the Divorce Law Reform union, estimates that the number of wrecked marriages in the United Kingdom is higher in proportion to the population than in the United States.

ONLY SEVEN DEEP MINES IN KANSAS FIELDS WORKING

PITTSBURGH, Kan., (AP)—Only seven deep mines, operated by the larger coal companies, are in operation in the Kansas coal fields today. The miners are protesting against the conviction of Alexander Howat, president, and August Dorcy, vice president, of the Kansas miners' union at Columbus last week.

In mining circles it was believed that the miners might not return to work until after Friday, when Howat and Dorcy will be sentenced at Columbus unless a new trial is granted.

FORMER DEY LAW AGENT IS SENTENCED FOR CONSPIRACY

NEWARK, N. J., (AP)—Charles J. Preuter, former federal prohibition agent who pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the Volstead act, was sentenced on Tuesday by Federal Judge Lynch to serve one year and a day in the penitentiary at Atlanta. Preuter, it was testified, ordered two men freed who had been arrested by municipal authorities and then disposed of their truck load of whiskey with two confederates. The two men were sentenced to seven months in the county penitentiary and fined five thousand dollars each.

HOLE IN GROUND CENTER OF BOSTON DISAPPOINT

City and Elevated Railway Company Kings in World War Over Underground Passage Rights

BOSTON, Mass., (AP)—Property rights in a hole in the ground under Winter street in the center of Boston's retail shopping district are in dispute between the city and the Boston Elevated Railway company. The hole is an underground passage the existence of which the dispute has made known for the first time to thousands of persons who travel daily through the tunnels, subways and subterranean in the city. It was built some years ago and runs the whole length of Winter street lying between the roof of the Cambridge-South Boston tunnel and the street surface. It has never been used.

Attention has recently been called to it through a petition of the railway company for a plan to rent the space to abutting stores for storage use. The company contends that inasmuch as it holds a lease of the Cambridge-South Boston tunnel, it has a property right in the dark void above. City officials insist that the passage is not a part of the tunnel and that if any income is to be had from it the city is entitled to it.

The passage or gallery as the railway company describes it could long belong because the Boston Rapid Transit commission which had charge of the construction of the underground system built this section of tunnel not by boring

The fellow who fails to look ahead, soon finds himself behind. In business, as in personal matters, there should be well-thought-out plans always in mind, with a definite goal clearly in view.

On way to get a false impression on a problem is to get so close to the situation that you cannot see its true proportions. Often, a friend can point out new angles to your problems. Bird Sanctuaries in Canada. Bird sanctuaries are being created in suitable places throughout Canada to protect the breeding grounds of water-fowl and other important bird localities. The protection of water-fowl in the great plains is most important. The water-fowl need the protection because of the increase in agriculture and the drainage of many of their former nesting areas.

MODERN CARAVAN EQUIPPED WITH A COLLAPSIBLE HOUSE FOR JOURNEY TOWARD WEST

"Knockdown" House Will Be Carried by Each of the Many Families Coming from Brooklyn to Twin Falls County This Summer—Trade Journal Tells Interesting Story of Scheme

An innovation expected to become a historic event will be part of the equipment of the auto caravan scheduled to start from Brooklyn, N. Y., on July 15, for the Twin Falls country, according to reports arising from the extreme east of this country.

The novelty is in form of a house which is to be a part of the equipment of each family composing the caravan. The house is a collapsible affair and will be mounted on a trailer attached to each touring car and is to be occupied whenever camp is pitched. It takes the place of a canvas tent and is said to be more readily set up.

Of this innovation and the trip of the caravan toward the setting sun, the Monthly Review, a financial record put out by E. P. Hutton & Co., New York and San Francisco, makes the following comment:

"An innovation in transportation which will become a historic event is the modern caravan which will leave Brooklyn, N. Y., about July 15, for homes in the vicinity of Twin Falls, Idaho, under the supervision of William D. Scott of Brooklyn, who will have the hearty co-operation of the American Automobile association and an allied automobile club. The caravan will be composed of 125 families, approximately 650 persons who are leaving a crowded city to take up residence in the Twin Falls, Idaho, which has just been added to the state of Idaho, and thus become tillers of the soil and producers of foodstuffs, each of the members will receive 40 acres of land, which has been fully irrigated under the supervision of the state of Idaho.

Each head of a family will own an automobile, equipped with a collapsible house which can be set up on a trailer, and their progress on the trip of 2500 miles across the country will be watched with interest by all of the states comprising the West. The States Reclamation association, and by automobilists and prospective home-seekers in general throughout the country.

The touring bureau of the American Automobile association will take charge of the laying out of the route over which the caravan will travel, and an effort will be made to have the U. S. army participate in the movement, as it is thought that the war department will welcome the invitation to participate in order to encourage similar movements which are in line with the policy of the interior department in dealing with colonization and reclamation projects under its control.

"Each a modern motor movement over our roads at this time should be of great value in crystallizing sentiment for the Townsend national road bill, now pending in congress, and afford an excellent opportunity to study the roads, make suggestions and as a Westinghouse, consider the modern caravan as a huge vehicle for an exhaustive test and experiment in overland travel."

KATE O'HARE'S HUSBAND WANTS DEFINITE REPLY

In Telegram to Governor's Secretary Spouse Says He Had Faith in Idaho

F. P. O'Hare of Girard, Kan., husband of the late Richard O'Hare who was Friday taken from the world at Montello, Nev., by a party of unknown lifted men to prevent her public appearance here, has called upon Governor Brown, and asked for a unequivocal reply that is contained in press accounts." To Mrs. O'Hare's appeal for protection sent from Montello.

O'Hare's demand is contained in a telegram which was received Tuesday by Frank Brown, secretary to Governor Davis. The telegram is as follows:

"I have such faith in the spirit of fair play and law abidings of the people of your state that I willingly entrusted the safety of my wife and daughter, unprotected and alone, to the people of Twin Falls and Pocatello. Please transmit the facts to the governor and say that I certainly expect a more definite and unequivocal reply to Mrs. O'Hare's appeal than is contained in press dispatches dated at Boise, July 2."

This telegram was forwarded by Mr. Brown's secretary, Miss G. Jones, who receives word from the governor today. Mr. Brown said he would answer O'Hare's telegram. He said Tuesday.

Mr. O'Hare will be notified that his wife and daughter are just as safe in Idaho as they would be in their own home. The attempt to leave the impression that they would not be safe and subject to personal violence is all nonsense. She will be given the same protection in Idaho as is accorded to any human being, whether a good citizen or one convicted of a felony.

Mr. Brown was informed Tuesday in a long distance telephone conversation with Chief Deputy Sheriff Ben J. Brown of Twin Falls county that Mrs. O'Hare had gone to Denver and that everything was quiet in Twin Falls. According to Mr. Brown, Deputy Sheriff Brown said.

"The people of Twin Falls refuse to become excited over the matter."

GERMANY GRABS WORLD MARKETS

Advice received by officials in Washington confirm what has already been suspected for many months—German manufacturers and exporters, aided by their government, are making marked progress toward capturing the markets of South America and sections of the Far East.

The low value to which the German mark fell after the war operated seriously against the Germans when it came to buying from other countries, but the result seems to have been beneficial in enabling German producers to place goods in many markets of the world at prices which cannot be met by manufacturers of other nations.

According to information received in Washington, German made goods are replacing American merchandise in the South American countries to an extent that has become a real menace to industries of the United States seeking markets in that part of the world.

Mrs. Cawkins was a lean, sorrow-stern-faced woman of some forty years with a face like bitter herbs; her husband a mild-mannered, shuffling man who encouraged Mr. Cartwright, had taken to riding through the upper counties as a preacher—a course of conduct of which his wife heartily disapproved.

Having recorded this remarkable incident in his diary, Samson wrote: "Many of these ignorant people, in the lonely, prairie cabins are like children. Cartwright leads them on like a blind man, and sometimes with the strong hand. If any of them deserve a spanking they get it. He and others like him have helped to keep the cabin people clean and going up hill instead of down. They have established schools and missions and scattered good books and comforted sorrow and kindled good desire in the hearts of the humble."

As they were leaving, Mr. Cawkins told them that the plague had broken out in the settlement on Honey creek, where the quarterly meeting was to be held, and that the people had been rapidly "dyin' off," Samson knew from this that the smallpox—a dreaded and terrible scourge of pioneer days—had, come again.

"Where is sorrow there in my proper place," Cartwright answered. "Those people need comfort and the help of God."

"I got a letter from a lady there," Cawkins went on. "As high as I can make out they need a minister to read 'em 'round 'bout writin' bothers 'em. You read it, brother."

you and I will pry the devil out of her with the crowbar of God's truth and mercy." Cartwright assented him as he and Samson took the road to the north. On their way to the Honey creek settlement the lion-hearted minister told of swimming through flooded rivers, getting lost on the plains and suffering for food and water, of being down to rest at night in wet clothes with no shelter but the woods, of hand-to-hand fights with rattle, who endeavored to sell drink or create a disturbance at his meetings. Such was the zeal for righteousness wove by many hands into the fabric of the West. A little before sundown they reached the settlement.

Samson asked a man in the road if he knew where they could find the nurse Elm Kelo. "Do ye mean that angel 'o' God in a white dress that takes keer 'o' the sick?" the man asked.

"She's over in you' house," the other answered, pointing with his pipe to a cabin some twenty rods beyond them. "Thar's two children sick thar an' the mammy dead an' buried in the ground."

"Is the plague getting worse?" Cartwright asked. "No, I reckon it's better. Nobody has come down since the day before yesterday. Thar's the doctor comin'. He kin tell ye."

A bearded man of middle size was approaching them in the saddle. "I am Peter Cartwright—the preacher sent of God to comfort the sick and bury the dead," said Samson's companion.

"We welcome you, but if you stop here you will have to stay until the epidemic is over."

"That I am prepared to do."

"Then I shall take you where you can find entertainment, such as it is."

"First, this man wishes to speak to Miss Kelo, the nurse," said Cartwright. "He is a friend of hers."

"You can see her but only at a distance," the doctor answered. "I must keep you at least twenty feet away from her. Come with me."

"They proceeded" in the stricken house. The doctor entered and presently Elm came out. Her eyes filled with tears and for a moment she could not speak.

"Early last summer I wrote a long letter to you," she answered. "It didn't reach me. One day in June the stage was robbed of its mail down in Powell county. Your letter was probably on that stage."

"Harry's death was the last blow. I came out here to get away from my troubles—perhaps to die. I didn't care."

"Harry is not dead," said Samson. Her right hand touched her forehead; her lips fell apart; her eyes took a look of tragic earnestness.

"Not dead!" she whispered. "He is alive and well."

Elm staggered toward him and fell to her knees and lay crumpled upon the ground, in the dusky twilight, shivering and choked with sobs, and with tears streaming from her eyes but she was almost as silent as the shadow of the coming light. She looked like one searching in the dust for something very precious. The strong heart of Samson was touched by the sorrowful look of her so that he could not speak.

"I am every able to say in a low, trembling voice: "In every letter he tells of his love for you. That article in the paper was a cruel mistake."

"After a little silence Elm rose from the ground. She stood, for a moment, wiping her eyes. Her form straightened and was presently erect. Her soul resented the injustice she had suffered. There was a wonderful and touching dignity in her voice and manner when she asked: "Why didn't he write to me?"

"He must have written to you," Sady, calmly, thoughtfully, she spoke as she stood looking off at the fading glow in the west.

"It is terrible how things can work together to break the heart, and will by a woman. Write to Harry and tell him that he must not come to me again. I have promised to marry an other man."

"I hope it isn't Davis," said Samson. "It is Davis." "I don't like him. I don't think he's honest."

"But he has been wonderfully kind to us. Without his help we couldn't have lived. We couldn't even have given my father a decent burial."

"And he won't come. That man knows how to keep out of danger. I don't believe you'll marry him."

"Because I intend to be a father to you and pay all your debts," said Samson.

The doctor called from the door of the cabin. Elm said: "God bless you and Harry" as she, turned away to take up her task again.

That night both of them began, as they say, to put two and two together. While he rode on in the growing dusk the keen intellect of Samson saw a convincing sequence of circumstances—the theft of the mail sack, the false account of Harry's death, the failure of his letters to reach their destination, and the fact that Elm had accepted money from Davis in lieu of need. A strong suspicion of foul play grew upon him and he began to consider what he could do in the matter.

Having forded a creek he caught the glow of a light in the darkness, a little way up the road. It was the lighted window of a cabin, before with the saddle blanket beneath him and his coat for a cover. A wind from the north began to yell and whistle through the cracks in the barn and over its roof, bringing cold weather. Samson's feet and legs had become cold in the crossing, as that he found it difficult to keep warm. He crept to the side of his horse, which had laid down, and found a degree of comfort in the heat of the animal. But it was a bad night, at best. "He had many a long, hard night, but this is the worst of them," Samson thought.

"A MAN FOR THE AGES"

There's many a bad night in the history of the pioneers, its shadows falling on lonely, ill-marked roads, cut by rivers, creeks and marshes and straggling through numerous miles of wild country. Samson was up and off at daylight in a bitter wind and six inches of snow. It was a kind of work he would not have undertaken upon any call less commanding than that of friendship. His reacher Chicago at noon, having had nothing to eat that day. There was no such eager, noisy crowd in the streets as he had seen before. But the fever of speculation had passed. But there were many people on the main thoroughfare, among whom were European who had arrived during the autumn before. They were changing but the marks of the "Yoke" were still upon them. In Chicago were the vital of the West and they were very much alive in spite of the panic. Samson thought some, and clothes and a bath had arrived at the City hotel. Then he went to the office of Mr. Lionel Davis. There to his surprise he met his old acquaintance, Eli Fredenberg, who greeted him with great warmth and told of his sojourn in Chicago. A well-dressed young man came out of an inner office. "I'd like to see Mr. Davis," said Samson. "Tell him I've got some money that belongs to him and that I'm ready to deliver it."

The young man disappeared through the door of the private office and soon returned and conducted Samson into the presence of Mr. Davis. The two men recognized each other. "Well, sir, what is it about?" the young man asked. "The daughter of my old friend, Jack Kelso, owes you some money and I want to pay it," said Samson. "Oh, that is a matter between Miss Kelso and me," Mr. Davis spoke politely and with a smile. "Not exactly—since I know about it," Samson answered. "I refuse to discuss her affairs with you," Davis declared. "I suppose you mistrust me," said Samson. "Well, I've offered to pay you and I'm going to make it. I think that they don't have to worry any more about the money you loaned them."

She has read him right. Her soul had looked into his soul and it keeps her away from him."

But Mrs. Kelso could believe no evil of her benefactor, nor would she promise to cease depending on his bounty. Samson was a little disheartened by the visit. He went to see John Wentworth, the editor of the Democrat, of whose name length Mr. Lincoln had humorously spoken in his presence. The young New Englander was seven feet tall. He welcomed the broad-shouldered man from Sangamon county and began at once to question him about Honest Abe and "Steve" Douglass and G. H. Browning and R. D. Baker and all the able men of the middle counties. At the first opportunity Samson came to the business of his call—the "mild-mannered" regarding Harry's death which had appeared in the Democrat. Mr. Wentworth went to the proofroom and found the manuscript of the article. Samson told of the evil it had wrought and conveyed his suspicions to the editor. "Davis is rather unscrupulous," said Wentworth. "We know a lot about him in this office."

Samson looked at the article and presently said: "Here is a note that he gave to a friend of mine. It looks to me as if the note and the article were written by the same hand." Mr. Wentworth compared the two and said: "You are right. The same person wrote them. But it was not Davis." When Samson left the office of the Democrat he had accomplished little save the confirmation of his suspicions. There was nothing he could do about it. He went to see Eli Fredenberg. "What has Davis done to you?" Samson asked, recalling where he had met Eli that morning. "Eli explained that he had borrowed money from Davis to tide him over the hard times and was paying 12 per cent for it in Chicago. "Did morning I get dot letter from his secretary," he said as he passed a letter to Samson. It was a demand for payment in the handwriting of the Brimstone note and had some effect on this little history. It conveyed definite knowledge of the authorship of a malicious falsehood. It aroused the anger and sympathy of Samson Traylor. In the conditions then prevailing Eli was unable to get the money. He was in danger of losing his business. Samson spent the day investigating the affairs of the merchant. His banker and others spoke well of him. He was credited to be a man of character and credit embarrassed by the unexpected scarcity of good money. So it came about that, before he left the news City, Samson bought a fourth interest in the business of Eli Fredenberg, who lots he, owned were then worth less than when he had bought them, but his faith in the future of Chicago had not wavered. He wrote a long letter to Elm...

HUMIDITY KEEPS COMPLAINING CALLERS AWAY FROM MUNICIPAL CONCLAVE WHICH IS ABRIDGED

City Administrators Hold Shortened Session of Weekly Meeting—Audit and Allowance of Bills and Claims the Principal Business at Hand—License Fees Definitely Fixed—Hal Blue Resigns

The city administrators last night reviewed bills and claims against the municipality, discussed a few matters of greater or lesser importance, rolled down the docket and went home.

It was a short session, rendered a bit spiritless under the influence of the over-heated night and the lack of complaining visitors, but the business before the board was attended to and a little unfinished matter left over for further consideration.

Plumber Matter Fixed. The council, which was a member short, that member being Craig Bracken, who is out of the city vacationing, disposed of one item of municipal import and interest, that item being the question of plumbers' license charge. This subject was brought up for consideration last week by a roster of master plumbers who presented for consideration a rather anomalous situation having respect to the plumbers' license. In the year, 1916, it was pointed out, the council made a fee of $25 per annum. Some of the plumbers, however, had secured this arrangement, a later council objected and by ordinance fixed the license fee at $25 per annum. Some of the plumbers, however, had secured this arrangement, a later council objected and by ordinance fixed the license fee at $25 per annum.

Waterworks Department. General fund and street sprinkling bills, totaling approximately $7215, were submitted, audited and finally allowed.

Hal Blue, retiring superintendent of schools, tendered his resignation as a member of the city library board. The resignation was duly accepted and orders issued to induce a suitable expression of appreciation for services rendered by Mr. Blue as the board's secretary. Several names were suggested for Mr. Blue's successor, but no appointment made.

DISCOLORED WATER IS NOT CAUSE FOR ALARM

Plant Officials Explain Why the Sediment is Likely to Appear in Supply

If water passing through residence supply pipes in the next 48 or 60 hours shows a degree of discoloration unusual to the supply of this city, consumers are not to be alarmed. It is nothing.

Mr. Filgringer explains that the time lags arrived upon it becomes necessary, for the continuance of a steady and ample water flow to clean out the plant water settling basin. This cleaning is to be started at once and will take some time to complete. There are two settling tanks at filtration plant and the cleaning out process will be taken up one at a time. This will mean a slight judding of the water entering the mains, but ample precaution is to be taken by the authorities to destroy all disease germs in the water.

To prevent this necessary and the city chemist, E. R. Dooley, announces that a rather heavier supply of liquid chlorin than usual will be used in the water passing the filtration plant. Following is a copy of a notice to all water users having relation to the water concern and plans for preserving the health of the community.
