SAV EARTH RODE THROUGH COMET TAIL AUGUST 8

Naval Observer Still Hunting
for Unknown Celestial Body Observed at Both Lick and Heidelberg

HEIDELBERG, (AP)—Announcement is made at the Koenigsstuhl observatory that the earth passed through the tail of a comet on the night of August 8. At sunset on August 7, a bright object was observed near the sun by W. W. Campbell, director of Lick observatory, which is located near San Jose, Cal. It was described as brighter than Venus, and was located three degrees east and one degree south of the sun. Reports from the observatory indicated that experts there believed it might be the nucleus of a bright comet.

WATZING IN RELAYS.
WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—Since the night of August 7, a special detachment of observers, directed by Commander F. B. Lillie of the naval observatory here, has been searching the sunset and sunrise skies without success for traces of the new celestial body noted at Lick observatory, California. Commander Lillie said the Heidelberg observation could be taken as additional evidence of the existence of a comet, but that scientific proof was far from complete in the matter. The naval observatory's telescope, which is being continued, has been hampered by bad atmospheric conditions, haze and cloud.

Observer Campbell, at Lick telegraphed immediately the discovery made there, and the method adopted in Washington has been to center the eyes of a half dozen trained men, equipped with a variety of glasses, on the suspected sky area prior to and following the sun's day and night movement across the horizon line. This, if successful, will result in picking up the object at dawn or sunset, in accordance with its location, as between the sun and the earth, or beyond the sun from the earth.

The Money Changers

From the novel by Upton Sinclair. A forceful photo-drama of New York life—at the peak of society and the pit of the underworld.

MONEY Bought Her Gowns and Diamonds MONEY Bought Her Soul

"Where a drug on the market is turned into gold,
Where the fumes of the poppy turn flesh into mould."

And what she got, was but a mite, for what she gave.

Then came the awakening. She found the gold that lured her to be but tinsel, and the man "like all men."

Her dreams were broken bubbles.

Do men, who change the souls of weak men and women into money, pay the price like their victims?

See this powerful play mingling pathos and climax with laughter and action.

A drama that will wring the heart of every woman and jar the mind of every man.

GALLANT ACTION SAVES INFANTRY

Cavalry Troop Protects Column of Spanish Infantry from Arab Tribesmen

MADRID, (AP)—Gallant action by cavalry under Colonel Primo-Rivera, in protecting the retreat of a column of 400 men in Morocco, is described in La Libertad.

The column was pressed by the rebel tribesmen. Twice the cavalry charged and scattered the assailants, killing many of them, and enabling the column to retreat. The battle field was covered with the dead and dying of both sides.

The Spanish troops then entered a narrow pass, where other rebels awaited them on the heights. They expected the order to retreat, but instead came the order to charge a third time. Colonel Primo-Rivera, by word and deed, encouraged his men, and even ordered a fourth charge. The brave survivors spurred their horses against the enemy but their animals were so fatigued that they reached the rebel ranks at a walk. Here both men and horses were exterminated.

GILBERTA SUOUS

The council at its sessions early this week decided the sending of reinforcements was not necessary for the time being.

In turning over the entire question to the league, the supreme council has requested the league's council "to consider the matter as of the utmost urgency, and to make its report at the earliest time possible."

Drop War Crimes Cases

Just before Mr. Lloyd George left the council, Solicitor General Peel and Commander Talbot, the British delegate to the league, were discussed of war crimes which were tried by the German court at Leipzig, appeared before the council and presented a report, advising the council to drop their inquiry into the matter.

The report, which had been communicated to Mr. Lloyd George last night, stated that it was considered that the case had been done at Leipzig.

The council requested the allied representatives to make reports to their governments what attitude they judged the allied countries should adopt toward the German case.

Depression Is Marked.

During the present week Mrs. Starr's sister, Mrs. J. B. Chin, who with her husband, spent some time visiting at the Starr home, left for her own home in South. During the visit she depended on Mrs. Starr and her affairs. She said she has been particularly depressed and gloomy since her sister left. During a conversation with Mrs. Starr, she said she was following this depression. Mrs. Starr is said to have announced she was "too tired to live."

She paced back and forth while she talked, and this and other dependant announcements, and was evidently in a state of high nervous excitement. Mrs. Starr, to whom the statements were made, announced:

Speaking of the dead woman, Mrs. Starr says:

"We have been warm friends for the last ten years. Since the death of her son, she has been dependent upon that, and during the last few months, all our friends have commented upon the manner in which she seemed to be getting control of her self. She was suddenly more cheerful and happy, and was able to dismiss the tragedy from her foremost place in her thoughts. About three weeks ago she planned to spend a vacation in Boise with friends, but at the last moment she changed her plans, saying, 'I cannot go there and be compelled to recount the whole story again and again. They will not let me forget. I like to be with you, Mrs. Starr, because you take my mind off other things.'"

The son, Gale, whose tragic death more than two years since is believed to have been the mother's undoing, was persistently as to create an aberration leading to suicide, was a twin of the surviving son, Dale. The latter is employed at Shango grange. The bereaved husband was employed yesterday with a threatening crew south of the city. The husband recently completed residence on Eighth avenue north, and the family lived.

Gale Starr's death, reported from a letter sustained when he slipped on ice the edge of the Snake river canyon between Shiloh and Puller Falls. He fell a distance of nearly 100 feet for the precipice to the river's edge. With James Woods, a companion, Gale had been searching the vicinity for a rift led by Phillip King the night previous.

New York Stocks NEW YORK, (AP)—Further weakness in industrial shares at the opening of today's stock market intensified the prevailing dejection in speculative circles. Bethlehem Steel, General Electric, Royal Dutch, American Writing Paper preferred, Sears-Roebuck and Colgate and Southern Bell, Union Pacific, Reading, Northern Pacific, Mountain Petroleum, Standard Oil, United States Alcohol were lifted 1/2 to 3/4 and Western Union 1 1/2 points. SHOTGUN BUTT motive for the shooting would strengthen the case materially.

Paul Leads East.

To aid in this phase of the case, an inquiry into the former relations of Kennedy, Burck, Mrs. Ochenbach and possibly other persons at Evanston, Ill., and points in the Midwest, was authorized today. Investigators were ret to work at Evanston and elsewhere for the purpose of delving into the history of those implicated in the case in the belief that a better understanding of their past careers would help in developing the motive for the shooting.

Strain Is Telling.

Mrs. Ochenbach was reported weak and nervous today and was under the constant care of a tall attendant. Burck maintained his attitude of jocularly, but his face was deeply graven with lines that were not there when he was taken custody less than a week ago.

It was learned today at the district attorney's office that when the case came to trial, the death penalty would be sought against Burck. No latitude in the attitude of the district attorney toward the penalty to be sought for Mrs. Ochenbach was given.

In California the jury in a first degree murder case may recommend the death penalty or may recommend the imprisonment.

Figures That Stagger.

It is probable the human population of this earth, itself only a "winning team" in sidereal darkness, rises to upward of two billions, and is certainly not less than 1,650,000,000. But how many creatures of all kinds have probably attained upon this relatively minute speck to common life? Noah took a pair of every living species aboard his ark, how vast an army did he have with him on his great flotilla, and how large must have been that mighty bark?

Language of Jaws in China.

In some parts of China jaws are placed on the roof of houses as matrimonial advertisements. A jar turned upside down means that the daughter of the house is too young to marry. A jar laid with its mouth to the street indicates that the maiden is of age. When the girl is married the jar is removed.

Let the Wedding Bells Ring Out

TWIN FALLS PEOPLE ARE STIRRED BY BOARD'S TALK OF INCREASES

Equalization Commission Proposes High Boost in Valuation of Agricultural Land of County for Assessment Purposes—Businessmen and Farmers Propose Official Protests

Telephone statements coming from the state capital, where the state board of equalization is in session, indicate a disposition on part of the board to raise agricultural land assessments approximately 35 per cent for this section.

Report to this effect was sent here late yesterday by County Assessor S. Chas. Stewart, who, though not mentioning definite figures, stated that the disposition of the equalization board is to make a material advance in farm land assessments covering the coming tax year. Mr. Stewart is attending the board meeting and is closely questioned by members of the board with respect to land values and conditions in the Twin Falls district throughout the greater portion of yesterday.

Assessor on Job.

The county assessor made his telephone report to W. W. Parish, chairman of the board of county commissioners, who immediately communicated to business men of this community. While no definite action has thus far been taken it is expected that the chamber of commerce will be asked to give the matter consideration this afternoon with a view to gathering land values data for presentation to the board of equalization early next week. Shad L. Hedin has this matter in hand.

Immediately following Assessor Stewart's announcement last evening telephone conversation was held with Governor Davis, a member of the commission on equalization, and some of the valuation facts governing farm lands in the Twin Falls district were communicated to him. No conclusion was reached during this long distance conference, but the governor was provided with some information that, it is expected, can be employed to advantage in argument against the proposed raising of land values in this county for assessment purposes.

According to figures lately compiled by the county recorder agricultural lands in this district have a total valuation of $15,241,500. This value is found by the county recorder on a basis ordered by the state board of equalization last year, when the board increased the valuations 25 per cent. The total assessed valuation of all property in the county is $24,315,000. This is a reduction of $848,546.50 from last year, when the value was set at $25,163,546.50.

Move Not in Favor.

Business men and farm owners alike have expressed sentiments unfavorable to an increase in assessment rates on agricultural lands, declaring that actual market values in this county have declined and the past year more than in any other county in the state, figuring the drop from the peak of prices when the demand was at its height. In view of this drop the farmers declared that the assessment fixed by the county assessor on last year's basis is not unreasonably low and declare, further, that conditions in this county do not justify any increase over the figures of the assessor.

It is expected that at least two men, representing mercantile as well as farm interests will be named on the committee to go to Boise for a conference with the governor and other members of the equalization board next week.

But It Is Not So.

Joe Thunkins says life would be perfectly pleasant if it was as easy for human nature to forget responsibilities as it is to forget obligations.

SOVIET OBJECTS

to see that if the holding of Americans in prison is an obstacle to the feeding of a million Russian children. It is best that Harriet Hoover's stipulation in this respect be granted. Maxim Litvinoff, soviet special envoy, told American newspaper correspondents here last night.

Will Help Find Americans.

In addition to those held in prison in Russia, declared the soviet envoy, every facility to leave would be given by the soviet government to any Americans in the country, even to the extent of advertising for them in the newspapers.

"Mr. Hoover has stipulated that all Americans in Russia should be released," the soviet representative continued. "They have been kept in prison for certain reasons and some of them have been accused of grave offenses against the government. One Khamatiano even had been condemned to death."

Was Condemned to Death.

The newspaper Noye Put, the official soviet organ of Riga, has said that Khamatiano (one of the prisoners who came out of Russia this week) had been condemned in connection with a plot to organize a military mutiny against the soviet government in 1918. "Still," said M. Litvinoff, "the soviet government was sufficiently practical to see that if this was an obstacle to feeding one million children, then the conditions should be fulfilled. I realize that this condition is of some importance to America, but certainly if it were only a question of Russian internal affairs, our attitude would be quite different."

One's Duty to Preserve Health.

Health is not a personal matter, but the responsibility for keeping well is in large part personal. The man who is determined to keep well for the sake of his own welfare must not put the burden of responsibility upon public health agencies. He must attend to himself, guided and helped by such agencies as are available. There is nothing selfish in keeping oneself physically fit. It is a form of altruism.

HEAVY RAIN AND HAILSTORM VISIT LOCAL DISTRICT

One of Harshest Downpours of the Season Comes to Twin Falls and Vicinity

A rainstorm of goodly proportions visited this immediate section shortly after noon today. Unofficial statements indicate precipitation of at least half inch.

The storm, in great intensity, lasted about a half hour, at the end of which time some Twin Falls Main street intersections were flooded. The greatest amount of water collected at the Ferris hotel building corner, where the sidewalk was flooded for some time. At the intersection of Shoshone and Seventh street north and east the flood backed up until the entire arch, between curbs was a lake, the tide of which overflowed the parking.

From various districts reports indicate nothing worse than good showers, except at Kimberly and Hansen. At the former place the storm seems to have amounted to a cloudburst of some magnitude, followed by heavy hail. At Hansen, too, there was some hail. Some wheat is reported knocked down around Kimberly, but reports of serious damage have not been received. The storm did not extend to Hollister.

OUTDOOR SPORTS

To a greater degree this year than perhaps ever before, Twin Falls people have taken full advantage of the opportunities for summer recreation offered by the various beauty spots in the shape of camping and cabin sites in the Wood River country, the Stanley Basin, Lost River and the Salmon and its tributary streams. While there has always been more or less of a summer exodus from the Twin Falls country to these places, where formerly parties making the trip could be counted in tens, now hundreds lead up good, camp material, fishing rods and bedding, and bidding good-bye to the dust and heat of the home pasture, seek solace along the shady streams among the pine clad hills.

These places constitute one of the advantages of this section to which access is free and expense almost nil. And there is no better vacation in the world than that obtainable in this way. Not even the great national parks offer more in the way of scenic beauty or natural advantages for tourists and campers. For those who prefer it, comfortable, well conducted mountain hotels are to be found within easy stages and from these bases fishing and other outdoor sports may be enjoyed to the heart's content.

Possibly the time will come when the novelty of such summers shall have worn off, when the public appetite for the outdoors shall have grown less keen and the lure of the big hotel in some large city make good its claim for patronage, but ever and always the eternal charm of the hills and streams will remain and as long as human nature shall continue unchanged there will be found those eager to avail themselves of each summer's welcome.

There is little indication of any falling off in the popularity of outdoor life in these parts yet, rather is it apparent that more and still more people are coming to the view that vacation should split change and that in no manner can a greater change in environment be obtained than through a few days of camping.

And there are no better camping grounds anywhere than are to be found within a day's journey of Twin Falls.

A SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

The suggestion that Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, be bought by the government as a country home for the president will be popularly approved, we believe. Several times in the recent past movements have been begun for acquiring this historic estate and making of it a national shrine. But nothing came of them, chiefly because the owner was in position to decline to sell unless he could impose conditions which seemed to him appropriate.

Now, however, he wants to sell the cost of upkeep having grown beyond his means. He has spent upon it in restoring the house and bringing back to the estate most of the acreage that originally belonged to Jefferson, about $1,000,000. He will let it all go for half a million if the purchaser be the government, or others "who are deemed able and worthy to become owners of such a shrine." If the estate is to be preserved now but the government should acquire it. But whether or not it should be taken as a rural white house may be debatable.

The country ought to provide a retreat for the president—a place in which he could find temporary relief from the endless round of demands upon him in Washington. Could be find that at historic Monticello? Should the government acquire the estate it must necessarily become a show place, doubly attractive to the patriotic and the merely curious when the president was there. It would be impossible to afford him the privacy to which he is entitled at a national shrine. The people would claim their right to visit it, and they could not be denied.

While no more dignified use could be made of the historic place, we incline to the belief that if congress consents to its purchase Monticello should be maintained as a show place and shrine on account of its past associations. As a summer home for the president, in which privacy and rest could be had, a smaller place would be more practical.

THE THREE INVENTORS

Like the four reformers in Robert Louis Stevenson's fable who sat beside the brainless bull to discuss plans for reforming the world, so three American inventors sat recently on a bank of a mountain brook in West Virginia and talked of many things. The inventors had somewhat the advantage of the reformers in the fable, in that the latter had nothing to eat while they talked, while the inventors had a goodly supply of sandwiches, fried bacon, and perhaps the contents of a thermos bottle or two. Under such conditions talking is delightful.

In both cases the three gatherings were alike. In each case the flow of reason ran abruptly into a hole in the ground; at least the discussion did not end in any illuminating conclusion. In the fable, after suggesting that various things ought to be abolished, among them the Bible and work and finally the human race, the four reformers went home to leave the world unimproved. In similar manner our three great wizards, respectively of automobiles and electricity and rubber tires, ran-head on into an obstacle in their talk of reform.

As a final conclusion to speculations on whether war could be abolished and how it might be done and who would oppose it, Mr. Edison said: "The motives of men are unchangeable." To which Mr. Ford is said to have replied: "Humph, you said it." From which it might be assumed that the maker of motor cars agreed with the previous speaker. And since Mr. Firestone ventured no contradictory remark, it is reasonable to suppose that all three of these citizens were in agreement on this proposition.

And indeed they may well be; for on this fact there is universal agreement among intelligent men the world over. We should have an easy time of it if peace and happiness and social progress depended only on making motor cars and rubber tires and phonographs. We could then go ahead and manufacture such things in increasing quantities to the end of the world. And if men wanted no more than these material things they would be happy beyond description. For we can make them now faster than they can be used up.

But men and women want some things that are not material. They want security against oppression of all kinds, political and economic; they want release from the fear of re-occurring periods of unemployment; they want the assurance of being able to bring up their children to a higher standard of living than the world held out for the parents; they want education the better to understand their duties and enjoy their privileges.

Perhaps if we gave as much attention to the understanding and satisfying of these wants as we do to the making of more material things, human motives might seem less unchangeable to us.

NOW FOR RATES

It is comforting to hear that no sooner are wage reductions for railroad workers announced than cuts in freight rates and passenger fares are taken-up by the interstate commerce commission.

The public has approved the reductions only for the reason that it hopes for relief from excessive fares and tariffs in proportion to the amount of savings accorded the roads. But popular feeling would be turned in a moment the other way if the idea got abroad that the transportation companies meant to pocket these vast sums.

Nor would it be good business for them to attempt any such hold play, for the prosperity of the railroads lies more in volume of freight to be moved than in maintenance of high rates, and volume of shipments is closely linked with what the people will regard as reasonable charges.

Hairdressers in convention have decreed that it will not be inhuman for women to reveal their ears. With so much femininity uncovered, we guess we can stand another shock.

We do not know where the long cigarette holder originated, but we are willing to wager that it was some country where wearing of whiskers is a habit with smokers.

Showing how the destiny of drama is shaping itself to higher artistic ideals, a Broadway production is entitled "Getting Gestic the Garter."

More Truth Than Poetry

A PERPLEXED HERO

By S. E. KISER

When I was training for the scrap,
Expecting soon to start across,
I seemed to be a lucky chap,
And much in favor with the boss.
"When you come back," he used to say,
"Don't hesitate to let me know."
You'll have your own job right away—
It seems a long, long time ago.

His wife made avowals for me then,
And fired me up with stolen kisses,
She handed me a fountain pen
And sent me dainties by the box.
"Be sure," she used to say, "to let Me know whatever you may need,
And write us often—don't forget—
For I'll be worried much, indeed!"

Their daughter was most gracious too,
My going made her very sad,
She said, one night, "I think I'd do
Most anything to make you glad."
She kissed me, though I hadn't tried
To coax her to go quite that far,
And when we said goodbye she cried—
What lucky devils heroes are!

The boss, who piled up millions while
I worked and wallowed over there,
He turned me down—I got no smile
Or gracious greeting anywhere.
His wife and daughter proud and stiff,
Don't recognize me any more;
Confound them all—I wonder if
It was the uniform I wore!

DR. BERRY SAYS HE DID NOT EXCLUDE UNITARIANS

Says No Offense Meant, but Unitarian Mission Is Not Christian Mission

TOKIO, (AP)—Dr. D. A. Berry, a prominent Methodist missionary in Japan, in response to a number of letters of protest has made a statement that he had divided the missions into two classes, those which believed in the deity of Christ and those that did not. He said that classification did not imply anything against the Unitarian character of Dr. Clay Macaulay, the founder of the Unitarian mission in Japan, nor his successor, but it implied the judgment of the federation of missions that the Unitarian mission was not a Christian mission in the full sense of the term.

GOVERNMENT OPENS 200 FARMS FOR SERVICE MEN

North Platte and Shoshone Projects will be Reserved for the War Veterans

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—About 200 farms on government reclaimed lands will be opened to entry by former service men next month. Until 60 days after the opening the interior department announced today, none but veterans will be permitted to make filings but others will be accepted later for any remains unfilled by soldiers at that time.

The farms are located on the North Platte irrigation project, Wyoming, and will be opened for entry September 9, 1921. The Shoshone project, Idaho, 57 in number, will be opened one week later.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING STRENGTHENED BY MOVE

To strengthen its service in the field of co-operative marketing, the bureau of the United States department of agriculture has undertaken a reorganization in this branch of its work. Mr. Lloyd S. Tenney, assistant to the chief of the bureau, has been designated to take charge of the co-operative marketing activities of the bureau and to arrange with the several commodity divisions for any employment of commodity specialists who are qualified in co-operative marketing.

This work is so intimately connected with the marketing work in general of the several commodity divisions that it seemed desirable to re-coordinate the two lines of work more closely. A study of the economics of co-operative marketing is planned and a thorough analysis will be made of the extent of existing co-operative organizations, including the size of the business, its organization, machinery, sales, bookkeeping, etc. Farmers dealing information and advice in the organization and conduct of co-operative associations will be aided by service and extension men experienced in co-operative marketing.

Hungary Government Receives Peace Offer

The note adds that if Hungary adheres to the principles expressed in the resolution, negotiations for peace can be commenced immediately.

Canada's Wheat Crop Exceeds Last Year's

OTTAWA, (AP)—Canada's wheat crop this year will exceed last year's by more than 25,000,000 bushels, but most other crops show a decrease. Estimates published today by the dominion bureau of statistics give the 1921 wheat yield as 288,493,000 bushels against 263,189,500 bushels last year, based on conditions of July 21.

Cause of Appendicitis

When the bowels are constipated, the lower bowels or large intestine become packed with refuse matter, that is made up largely of germs. These germs enter the vermiform appendix and set up inflammation, which is commonly known as appendicitis. Take Chamberlain's Tablets when needed and keep your bowels regular and you have little to fear from appendicitis—adv.

RAIL COMPANY IS ASKED FOR LOWER RATES

Chamber of Commerce Sends Request for Emergency Tariff Covering Wheat

That there exist a dire need for an emergency rate governing the wheat shipments from this district, and, in fact, throughout the entire section served by the O. S. L. Railroad company to which the attention of officials of the O. S. L. is called in resolutions adopted today by the bureau of agriculture, connected with the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. They are addressed to the railroad company.

Farmers Face Loss

These resolutions urge upon the railroad the necessity of reducing present rates on wheat shipments materially in order that the producer will be able to forward his crop to eastern markets without sustaining a loss on the grain. The bureau members call attention to a condition of rates fixed by war circumstances, while the market price of wheat has declined to a pre-war level. It is further shown in the resolutions that on a basis of present tariffs on wheat growers operating 5,000 acres of land in 1920, the loss would be a loss in excess of $2 per bushel.

The resolutions, which are similar to a note addressed to the railroad company by the Gooding Chamber of Commerce recently, are signed by J. A. Koester, chairman of the bureau, and A. B. Wilson, president of the chamber of commerce.

"In behalf of the producers of the Twin Falls tract we make the following request of your company:

"Because the present rates on wheat from southern Idaho are still on a war basis during which time wheat sold on the local market at an average price of $2 per bushel.

Comparisons Are Made

"And the present local price on wheat ranges from 90 to 75 cents per bushel which does not allow the shipment of any wheat except at a loss to the producer which will incur a loss of $2 per bushel on crops on one-third of the land in crops on the Twin Falls tract this year;

"And because a request from your company to the interstate commerce commission for a revision downward of the existing rates is the quickest means of securing the reduction.

"Be it resolved, That your company request of the commission permission to establish an emergency freight rate on wheat from this community which will approach as nearly as possible the present freight rate level of cost.

"We respectfully urge your immediate attention to this matter since wheat should shortly begin to move to market or the further loss will result to producers."

HIGHER COUNTIES OF STATE REPORT SOME FROST DURING PAST WEEK; HARVEST WELL ON

Drouth Continued Unbroken in Southern Section, but as a General Rule Weather Conditions Were Satisfactory — Ample Water for Irrigation Still Available and Hum of Thresher is Heard Everywhere

Another fine summer week. Temperatures were generally not from seasonable in all sections. The days were quite warm, but the nights were delightfully cool, in fact light frost occurred in some of the higher valleys. A few light and widely scattered showers occurred in the southern counties but over by far the larger portion of the state the drouth continued unbroken.

The foregoing statement appears in a weekly bulletin issued from the department of agriculture at Boise, reporting weather and crop conditions for the past week. The statement contains:

Satisfactory Weather

In the great irrigated districts the weather conditions were all that could be desired for the substantial progress of all crops and also for the protection of harvesting and threshing. The order of the day on Idaho ranches. Ample water for irrigation is still available on all the large projects so that it is possible to supply the moisture necessary to rapid plant growth. Reports on crop progress are for the most part favorable, but in a few sections wheat has been damaged by frost, cutting in a diminished yield of grain in the dry farm sections the long continued heat and drouth are affecting vegetation adversely, and the crop not yet matured are at standstill. In these sections the yields of grain and hay have been more or less reduced by these unfavorable conditions. Drying of alfalfa and hay is being hastened. The range is drying rapidly in most localities, but feed continues ample and stock are in good thrifty condition.

Harvesting of grain and alfalfa is being pushed and the work is going forward under most favorable weather conditions. The hay crop is exceptionally heavy and the quality is all that could be desired. Corn, potatoes, apples, beets and prunes are all doing well and coming to maturity in fine shape.

Field Reports

Twin Falls, Twin Falls County: A few light showers but clear most of the time; a good yield in the foothills; wheat harvest nearly completed; lots of new corn, field beans, apples and potatoes doing fine; threshing fall wheat and barley.

CLUB LEADER MAKING PLANS FOR FAIR SHOW

A. I. O'Reilly Supervises Operations in Preparation for the Canning Exhibits

County Club Leader O'Reilly went to Marion this afternoon to supervise the making of the Marion canning club at that place, in preparation for the coming contest at the county fair.

Both canning and cooking clubs will compete at the annual county event and Mr. O'Reilly expresses the utmost confidence in the result. Twin Falls county girls have won the state championships in their line of endeavor, and their leader speaks confidently of their ability to bring home the northwest championship trophy, if the funds can be provided to pay the expenses of the trip to Spokane where the contest is to take place on September 8. The state championship team, known as Mrs. Bryant's Team, is barred from participation this year, but others equally proficient are ready to keep the trophy in this county this year, according to their leaders.

There are 20 cooking and canning clubs in the county, and every one has given a good account of itself during the entire season. Demonstrations will be going on during the entire week of the fair, and those interested will witness a series of very workmanlike proceedings.

Mercury Stays Around the Top in These Parts

UNSETTLED weather and muggy conditions are scheduled to prevail in the mountain regions tonight and tomorrow, but the suppers of climatic things in this district gives no hope for relief in this particular section from the continued high heat and drouth. The temperature all this week have been 91 and 92 degrees, with the lowest mark at night 40. Top of yesterday's fluctuating mercury was 91, with little breeze stirring to temper the sustained torridity of the day. Last night the drop was to 50.

CHICKEN ROOSTS ARE RAIDED NOCTURNALLY

South Side Residents Tell of Depletion of the Feathered Flocks by Thieves

Chicken stealing is becoming prevalent especially in the south section of town, according to reports lodged with the city authorities. Several nocturnal forays against coops have been carried out in the past few nights roosts robbed of their feathered denizens. The first report came from Mrs. J. H. White, of 336 Main avenue south, several days ago and told of the lifting of two fine fat hens from the roosts. Later she sent in another report telling of a similar raid and reduction of her flock. Since that time other people in the south section have made similar reports and have invoked the aid of the police in checking the evil.
