ROWING BANDITS DEAL MISERY TO GREEK FIGHTERS

"Bad Men of East" in League with Kemal Pasha, Terrorize Inhabitants of Anatolia and Murder Hellenic Soldiers

WITH THE GREEK ARMY IN THE FIELD, SIVRI-HISSAR, Anatolia, (AP)—Rowing gangs of mounted bandits, known as Chetas, are terrorizing the inhabitants of the Turkish villages, and murdering soldiers of the Greek army.

One band of these desperadoes attacked a Greek motor ambulance returning from the front and killed the wounded, numbering four. Similar attacks on Greek supply trucks have been taking place for weeks. The Greek army has lost a score of telegraph lines and many chauffeurs within two weeks.

Give Authorities Concern

These frequent assaults are giving the army authorities much concern, as they may not sufficient troops to have in the rear to cope with these highways.

These "bad men of the East," as they are called, are continually cutting the Greek army's telephone lines and hindering the transport of munitions. While it is clear that these Chetas are not actively connected with Kemal's army, the Greek authorities assert that they have the sanction and cooperation of the Turkish leader. Many of the members of the tribe who have been caught by the Greeks have acknowledged that they were once in the Turkish Nationalist army. Indeed, it has been said that Mustafa Kemal's army had its origin largely in the Cheta bands.

The depredations of the Chetas are not confined to one area, but extend all over Asia Minor. At Irmid recently, they pillaged 11 villages and then burned them. An official of the Bagdad railroad told The Associated-Press correspondent that he had lost 10 relatives at the hands of these brigands.

Travel in any part of the interior of Asia Minor is at the peril of one's life. Chetas are encountered at every point where members of the land think it likely they will find plunder. The Chetas usually ride on small ponies which they steal from the countryside. They are daring riders, clever marksmen, and know no fear. When recently the correspondent wanted to travel from Sivri-Hissar to Greek army headquarters beyond the Sakaria (Sinjarin) river, in the heart of Anatolia, he was allowed to take no other mode of transport.

soldiers. The army authorities would take no chances with the Chetas. The correspondent got through in safety, but the same afternoon three Greek chauffeurs were murdered by the Chetas and their motor trucks burned.

AMERICANS ADVISED TO WITHHOLD INVESTMENTS

Commercial Interests Recommend Waiting for Settled Status in Philippines

MANILA, P. I., (AP)—The American Chamber of Commerce today officially approved a cablegram sent by its officers to John B. Ford, the chamber's representative at Washington, advising against further investment of American capital in the Philippines until the permanent political status of the islands is definitely settled. The cablegram sent to Ford follows:

"Give publicity to the fact that further American investment in the Philippines is unadvisable until the political status of the islands is fixed as a territory of the United States."

This message brought a cable (quoted from the Swift, Pinesco company, of New York, owners of the Manila street railway, deprecating "authorization of investments in the United States" against American investment of capital in the Philippines."

The reply of the American Chamber of Commerce to this telegram was another, dispatched today to its Washington representative as follows:

"Political conditions in the Philippines and individual and governmental opposition to American investments after being made justify propaganda of non-investment of American capital until the permanent political status of a territorial government is obtained. Business protection is possible only in the large business centers, Manila, Cebu, Iloilo, Zamboanga. The provinces no longer are suitable for American investment or business operation owing to lack of protection from political antagonism to American interests generated during the Hazzion administration which cause territorial government would create. The American community is now fighting for fixed territorial status and needs support of a non-investment policy until the change can be effected."

HEYDLER DIFFERS WITH LANDIS ON LENGTH OF SERIES

High Commissioner Wants Seven Games, National League Head Says Nine

NEW YORK, (AP)—President John Heydler, of the National league, differs with Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, on the advisability of returning to a seven game world series which was the rule prior to 1919. Judge Landis said at the end of the recent series that he would recommend the change at the joint session of the major leagues next winter.

"As a member of the advisory committee, I don't care to take issue with Commissioner Landis," Mr. Heydler said. "Yet I cannot help recalling clearly the unsatisfactory nature of a seven game series and that it was chiefly almost entirely in response to public sentiment in the matter, that we were constrained, nearly three years ago, to extend the series to nine. It was for the sake of the game itself that the action was taken, it having become evident that the all around strength and class of a team sometimes failed to be brought out and to tell its story in a seven game series.

"Instances have arisen in which one remarkable pitcher was able, single-handed, to decide the issue when the series called for four victories in seven games."

Gooding College Smothers Buhl's High School Team

West Conference Championship is Prize at Stake

Iowa-Illinois Tilt, Staged Today, Has Important Bearing on Title

CHICAGO, (AP)—Games which were expected to have more than the usual bearing on the western conference football championship, were scheduled today, chief among them being the contest at Iowa City, Ia., between Iowa and Illinois. Other conference contests found Minnesota, playing Ohio State 1920 champion, at Columbus, and Wisconsin facing Northwestern at Evanston, Ill.

Michigan and Purdue went out side the Big Ten to oppose the Michigan Azules and Notre Dame, respectively, while Indiana and Chicago were idle. Iowa went into today's game with Illinois with a somewhat crippled line-up, but the game was expected to show whether the "Iggweevies' 1917 victory over Notre Dame last week was a fluke or whether Coach Howard Jones really has a championship eleven this year.

Lewis Case Reviewed on Stand Following the filing of the court adjudge testimony as to the deaths of three previous husbands and a brother in law, the case took on an added impetus yesterday with every prospect that at least another husband would be examined by the prosecution alone in putting in the state's proof.

Lawyers for the prosecution signalled their victory with a complete history of the first wife of Harlan C. Lewis, who was married to the defendant, at Billings, Mont., March 19, 1910, and who died at Billings on July 6 of the same year.

Dr. James Wernham of Montana city testified the witness stand for several hours late in the afternoon and step by step detailed the final hours of Lewis from the time he was called to take charge of the case to his death less than a week later.

He described symptoms and treatment, and concluded his testimony with a statement that the patient's symptoms were consistent with poisoning, and that a cross examination failed to shake it.

The witness described the symptoms of Lewis as consisting of a fever, a headache, a subnormal temperature, a soreness over the region of liver distention. These same symptoms are present in the Meyer case, according to the testimony of the physician tending the latter.

Suggests Spells as Responsible Detailing some of his more intimate conversations with the defendant, Mr. Meyer stated on cross examination yesterday afternoon that he saw and heard more than he could tell about the case "without knowing it or without ending to her. He suggested to her that she was subjected to spells of a sort which rendered her unable to proceed just what she was doing, said Mrs. Southard passed a long, long time before replying and then said, 'I don't know, no, I didn't do it.'"

Idaho Life Insurance company, didn't you?" "I called on Mr. Chadwick in his office in Boise and I wish to find out from him the address of the New World Insurance company," answered the witness.

"Has the state been paid any money by the Idaho Life Insurance company for the prosecution of this case?" "They never paid me any money," But did they pay the prosecution any money towards the expenses of this case?"

Another Woman in Case A particularly interesting piece of testimony was brought to light through the questioning of Mr. Ormsby by Attorney Guthrie.

"Did you offer to pay the expenses of a woman in Idaho to go to Los Angeles to see if she could get a confession from the defendant?" asked the attorney.

"No, I did not," replied the witness. "She wanted to go and asked me if I would see if it could be arranged that her expenses be paid?"

"You talked this over with her, didn't you?" "I did," she wrote me that she wanted to talk with me about the matter and on the occasion of my next visit to Boise I discussed the matter with her. She said she believed that she could gain some valuable information and would have no trouble in getting Lewis. She also wanted me to pay the expenses of some fellow she was going with so she could take him along."

"What was his name, was his name Hannaford?" "That's the man," answered the witness. "She said she would be afraid to be alone with Lydia but would not mind if she had somebody along."

The witness said he also met Hannaford and the three talked over the matter. The proposition was not accepted.

Text of Letter The letter which Mr. Ormsby received follows: March 20, 1921. Sheriff V. H. Ormsby—Dear Sir: In regards to Mrs. MacFarlane which you would like to have a talk with my concerning same. So if you come to Boise in the near future I want to see you. I think I have a way planned to get some evidence. Yours truly, LULLI STOUT, Golden Rule Store, Boise. A brief passage at arms between attorneys at the admission of the letter as evidence resulted in an exchange of pleasantries between Attorney Guthrie and Walters.

"If you had objected you might have kept it out," remarked the attorney to which Judge Walters replied, "No, we saw you stub your toe and let you go."

Mrs. Ormsby on the stand testified that she had heard many conversations between her husband, V. H. Ormsby, and the defendant.

Didn't Like Brother-in-Law The defendant had no more domestic difficulty than the average family while she was married to Robert C. Dooley the witness said Mrs. Southard told her, Dr. Ed Dooley was hard to get along with.

Mr. Ormsby on re-direct examination said that the defendant told him that she had bought the flypaper found in her home at Billings. Later she told the witness that someone else bought it.

Dr. Wernham Testifies Dr. James Wernham of Billings, Montana, under examination by County Prosecutor Stephan, said he just met the defendant on July 2, 1919. She was then married to Harlan C. Lewis who was attended by the witness in his final illness.

On this, his first visit, Lewis was in bed and suffering a great deal. He outlined the symptoms which were present and said that Lewis was very nervous over the region of the stomach which indicated that the trouble was confined largely to the stomach and intestines. The witness told of the treatment and of the medicine administered at his directions.

Dr. Wernham again visited his patient on the following day. The symptoms had subsided somewhat and he considered to be better. Vomiting continued but the patient was quieter. He again saw the patient on July 4 on two occasions. He was not so well. Vomiting had grown worse and he could not sleep. In the afternoon he was not better. Morphine was administered twice that day. There was much vomiting.

No Change for Better On July 5 the witness made two visits and found the patient's condition unimproved. He afternoon at the time of the second visit he was no better. In the evening he showed signs of delirium. On July 6 the witness visited the patient for the first time. He found her in bed. It was impossible to take his temperature. Up to the day before his temperature was not abnormal. The patient was removed to a hospital that afternoon as a result of a consultation with Dr. S. D. Clark of Billings that morning.

Dr. Wernham said that he called Dr. Clark into consultation because his treatment did not appear to be of benefit to the patient. He treated Lewis for gastritis early in his illness, without effect. He was unable to determine what caused the inflammation of the lining of stomach and intestines. He assigned the cause of death to gas entered.

Affair is Indicated "Were the symptoms of Lewis illness consistent with arsenic poisoning?" asked Mr. Stephan.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness. "In the event that Lewis died of arsenical poisoning would your answer be the same?"

"Yes, sir, it would."

Referring to the examination of the body of Lewis, the witness gave a list of names of those present including Mr. Ormsby, Dr. Boler and Frank L. Stephens.

He described the taking of specimens for analysis from the body of which specimens kept one set and Dr. Boler took two.

Had Prior Attack Cross examination conducted by Attorney Mills of counsel for the defense, developed the fact that Lewis had been taken ill at Hardin, Montana a few days prior to the first visit of the witness, and at that time his wife was not with him.

Today's Markets WHEAT MARKET AVERS IN DOUBT OVER REPORT CHICAGO, (AP)—Although wheat prices at first showed strength, today the market figures on farm reserves, a result later recalled owing to assertions that the report was incomplete. It was said the stocks in country elevators and mills had been omitted. This would make a difference of about 100,000,000 bushels. Opening prices, which varied from the same as yesterday's finish to 1 1/4 higher, with December at $1.21 3/4 to $1.26 1/4 and May $1.20 to $1.25, were followed by moderate setbacks all around.

Week-end trading up of trades rallied the market in the last hour. The close was unsettled at 1-8 net decline to 1-8 to 1-15 7/8 and May $1.19 5/8 to $1.20.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. After opening 1-8 to 5-8 to 3-4 higher, including December at 47 7/8 to 48 1-8, corn receded to slightly under yesterday's close.

New York Stock Market NEW YORK, (AP)—Weakness of rally and strength of sell were the contrasting features of today's short stock market session. Complications in the railway situation growing out of the proposed cut in wages and reduction of freight rates provoked general selling of high-grade and junior transportation stocks at losses of one to three points.

Great Northern and other prominent groups, as well as transcontinentals, were much depressed. Mexican Petroleum continued to lead the list, rising over two points, and Pan-American, Esso, California Petroleum and Houston Oil also made substantial gains. Electro-Air common and preferred, the latter at a gain of 3 1/2 points, led the motor group. Leaders among steels, equipments and specialties were irregularly lower. The closing was heavy. Sales approximating 300,000 shares. Bonds including government issues, were all but steady.

The entire railway division was under pressure at the opening of today's stock market. Latest developments in the transportation situation, indicating marked differences between executive and operative, effected losses ranging from fractions to one point in all the prominent rails. These included Northern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern, Illinois Central, Reading and Chesapeake and Ohio. Steels and equipments were sympathetically affected. The only exception was Gulf States Steel which rose two points.

Oil, particularly the Mexican group, was firm. A new low record for Mexican exchange was without effect on the remainder of the foreign exchange market.

EVANS' ELEVEN TRIUMPHS OVER FILER FOEMEN

Twin Falls Gridiron Warriors Win Season's Second Game with 26 to 0 Sooro

By FULLBACK
Twin Falls high school football team was yesterday's guest at Filer, playing the 12 men. The final score was 26 to 0. It was a real close affair.

There are several reasons why the Twin Falls boys did not play up to their usual standard, and seemed nervous. Several times during the game they had chances to score and lost them through fumbles. Filer has a team that probably will outweigh the local loss, and when Twin Falls threatened their goal their line was like a brick wall.

The game itself was a pretty one to look at, and there was lots of good foot ball. Evans' team can do better than this if they stick together and the chances are they will. BRINGS ACTION TO HALT ALBION NORMAL REMOVAL

Authority of State Board and Validity of Legislation Called in Question

BURLEY, Idaho — Suit against the state board of education, asking for an injunction to restrain the board from removing the Albion Normal school from Albion to Burley, was filed in the office of the clerk of the district court here Tuesday by O. D. Dunne, of Albion, through his attorneys, Walters, Hoaglin and Batley of Twin Falls.

The case is to be heard during the next term of court here in November. It is the common opinion that whether the injunction is granted or not, the case will be carried to the supreme court during the summer session.

The injunction against the state board is asked on the theory that the law passed by the legislature last winter is unconstitutional. The board does not get the board power to act, and further that the law itself is unconstitutional.

PRESIDENT CALLS HALT

The trainmen and other operating employees go out on October 20, the president and the union leaders will play in group two, which includes all the shop crafts will work with them at the same time. This would result in the cessation of the greatest railroad tie-up in history.

Mr. Johnson added that he had no doubt but that group three, which includes the maintenance of way and electric and other unions, will also go with the transportation and shop crafts.

Mr. Johnson returned from Chicago yesterday where he met with the representatives of the 11 railway unions.

BROTHERHOODS OFFERS ADJOURN WITHOUT CALLING STRIKE

CHICAGO, (AP)—Railroad brotherhood chiefs, after two weeks of conferences with their general chairman and executive committee, wound up their sessions shortly before 1 o'clock today without issuing a strike call and with an announcement of their conclusions.

High officers of the brotherhoods prepared to depart for Cleveland tonight and the strike call, if it issued, will be sent out from their headquarters.

Sixteen railroad unions have taken a secret strike vote and authorized their officers to order a strike if deemed advisable. C. J. Mason, president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, announced today.

Strike Date Reported Set. Although one of the 16 were to act independent of the four big brotherhoods, a joint meeting had been called for 2 p. m. today at which the brotherhood will submit their plan of action to the other organizations.

One high union official announced that the date for the strike had been set, but declined to reveal it. October 20 has been reported as the date.

The brotherhoods have also selected the list of ten roads on which the strike will be effective the first day, the same union-official said. It is understood that strikers will be ordered on additional units of ten roads every 48 hours until the roads either give in or the conflict becomes nationwide.

The union leaders who had been hopeful of averting a strike, some of whom had even opposed it, declared today that the action might be averted by the railroad executives yesterday in deciding further action. The unionists had destroyed the last hope of peace.

"It will be the greatest strike in history," W. G. Lee, president of the trainmen, was quoted as saying when he left the union conference. "It is a life and death struggle for our organization and we are not going into this with our eyes closed. Our house is in order and we are ready."

HARVARD PRESIDENT AS CENSOR SEIZES NOTES

Spikes Reporters' Guns when Vicecount Bryce Requests No Publicity for Address

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., (AP)—President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university, in asking newspaper men not to report a recent address by Vicecount James Bryce at the Harvard Union, used his own censorship.

Just before he introduced the distinguished British publicist, Dr. Lowell leaned over to the press tables and told the reporters it was Lord Bryce's wish that none of his remarks be published, inasmuch as it was to be an informal talk to the underground.

To make doubly sure that the Vicecount's request would be respected, Harvard's president, with a smile, took the note-books from reporters and stuffed them into his brief case. Then, with the reporter's guns spiked, he introduced the speaker.

After Lord Bryce's address, which dealt in an informal way with university life in England, Germany and the United States, and emphasized the need for educated men in public affairs, President Lowell, smiling again, returned the books. The newspaper men did not print the address.

Army Office Supervises Construction Work Involving Expenditure of $100,000,000

BELLELEVILLE, Ill., (AP)—Construction of a large hangar for the army air service at Scott field near here has been started and is expected to be completed next August. Major Frank Kennedy of Washington is supervising the work, which will cost more than one million dollars.

Outside dimensions of the hangar will be 908 feet long, 209 feet wide and 180 feet high. High doors at each end will be operated electrically. It is estimated to cost $100,000,000 of cement will be used in the concrete work and that the electrical equipment will cost approximately $100,000. About 250 soldiers will be attached to the hangar school at the field.

PROSPERITY AND THE DAIRY

With butterfat quoted on the market here this week at forty-three cents a pound, an advance of four cents over last week's quotations and one of a series of uninterrupted advances recorded since the first of the year, and with well substantiated reports coming in of sales of first class milk in the stack at three dollars a ton and less, it would seem that powerful economic factors are operating to bring about the establishment in this district of an industry that agricultural experts without exception declare is highly essential to its permanent prosperity.

Certainly market conditions and all other factors entering into the question, could not be more favorable for the prosperity of the dairy industry in the Twin Falls country; and no other industry promises more toward putting the country on its feet.

The present opportunity in this direction is one that ought not to be neglected by persons in a situation to take advantage of it.

CROPS AND PRIORS

While the decreased production of wheat and corn as indicated by the government crop report is a disappointment, as a matter of percentage it is not a great loss. We grow grain on such a gigantic scale that a difference of a few millions of bushels is of slight importance considering the crops as a whole, though such decline may affect seriously those on whom it falls directly. The growers of spring wheat in the Northwest are hit the worst, though Illinois, Iowa and Missouri corn growers will note the difference between what they harvest and what they expected to gather. The corn crop promises to be but two per cent below that of last year. It is our greatest crop and of leading money value. The moist weather that damaged the corn helped the potato crop, however, and in that an increase of 22,000,000 bushels is forecast.

The crops on the whole will be ample. The farmer has no ground to complain of the work of nature. The prices the crops will command are not so cheering to the cultivator of the soil. Notwithstanding that what he has to sell in down to pre-war prices, the farmer finds himself in a bad fix when he gets quotations on such that he has to buy. He finds that his bushel of wheat will not command the same amount of manufactured goods that it did a year or two ago. His wool will bring hardly enough to pay for hauling it to market. In fact the exchange value of his products has declined discouragingly. While he may feel cheerful over what the soil has produced, he cannot help but harbor other feelings when he considers what he offered in exchange. It is a situation that needs to be remedied before we can have a return of enduring prosperity. It is axiomatic that other industries cannot thrive if the farmer is not able to buy.

PERIL IN SAFETY?

It seems like a paradox, but the investigators of the federal bureau of public roads say their records of accidents show that straightaway stretches that have always been regarded as safe are the scene of most motoring accidents.

The explanation offered lies in the tendency to straggle on the gas when a piece of clear and good road looms up. Around sharp curves, on steep grades, at grade crossings, where danger is naturally feared, the average driver will be careful, but nearly all will fall victim to the lure of a straightaway stretch, which by its inviting sense of security prompts him to take a chance.

Viewed in that light the reasoning seems sound, but unless the records of the federal bureau differ greatly from the records reported in the press, the facts seem against it. Most of the accidents reported have occurred on just such danger spots as mentioned, perhaps because the motoring population is yet far from perfect in the psychology of caution. The fact of the matter, of course, is that there is no safe place to throw caution to the winds. The driver who does not wish to risk disaster will take no chances, sternly resisting the impulse to speed up on inviting stretches, as well as being careful where danger lurks.

ADVENTURES OF MR. POTATO

Senator Polinder tells of a number of striking facts that came out in hearings before committees of congress, showing that the consumers' dollar is very unevenly divided between the farmer and the middle man. Even with the high railroad rates many farm products get to the borders of the cities with freight charges that could be borne by the consumer.

The official of the port of New York exhibited at the City club a few nights ago a film which graphically showed the excessive transportation costs in New York harbor. It was termed "The Adventures of Mr. Potato," and showed in an animated cartoon, that Mr. Potato, with a lot of his brothers traveled from Michigan to the Jersey meadows, in the outskirts of New York, a distance of 1,200 miles, at the rate of 25 cents a hundredweight, but 41 cents more were required to deliver Mr. Potato and the remainder of that hundredweight to a retailer in New York—all because present conditions at the port made necessary several reshippings from freight car to truck or lighter on the Jersey side, and from lighter to truck to train to train to truck, on the New York side.

It is safe to say that, taking one year with another, the growers of potatoes do not make a profit of 41 cents a hundred, the exact sum that it costs to move a hundred weight of potatoes from the outer rim of New York to the distributing center. And that 41 cents was for hauling alone. It did not cover any part of the profits that are taken by the commission men, wholesalers and retailers, or any nothing of the additional profits that were piled upon Mr. Potato's back before he got to the consumer, who ate him in a hotel or restaurant.—The Idaho Farmer.

WHY MISSIONS?
Matthew 28:19 "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations. . . ."

To a great many people the word "missions" means foreign missions, and it is against foreign missions as such that most anti-missionary sentiment is directed. But there is no essential difference between the two. We may be sure that no one who is won over to the cause of missions abroad will oppose missions at home.

The first is sometimes expressed in this wise: Why should we impose our religion on a people who already have their own and are happy in it. Our answer must be under several heads. In the first place, as Christians, we must believe with St. Peter that there is none other name whereby we must be saved" except the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, and it is our bounden duty to take the message of salvation to all men.

In the second place, we do not impose our religion on any one. We offer it. We can only take every opportunity afforded us to "preach Christ and Him crucified" that we may win men to Him, not to drive them. The aim in every mission field is to raise up native clergy who will lead their own people and be the nucleus of a native self-supporting church.

Thirdly, it is not true to say that the heathen are happy in their own religion. Any student of the history of religions knows the power of superstition and "taboo" over the lives of non-Christian people. The heathen is to his own mind surrounded every step of his life by a network of superstitions, must propitiate, and the sacrifice of himself and his children which he makes in that end are either horrible or abominable.

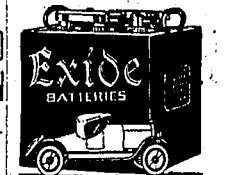

Fourthly if we make any judgment of the two great religions which compete with Christianity, we may say of Mohammedanism that it debases womanhood and is a sensual and intolerant religion; and of Buddhism, as evidenced in India and China, that it is degenerate and has failed to create any spiritual altruism that has had the power to avert from the unhappy millions of those countries the plagues and famines that have scourged them through hundreds of years.

But there is still another objection frequently voiced in objection form. "Charity begins at home." We can best argue that by asking what is meant by charity? Does it mean something which is given out of condescension? If it does, we do not want to foster that as a Christian virtue anywhere, least of all in the home. What would we think of the man who supported his family or made gifts to his family in that spirit? Or does it mean what the derivation implies, namely, love? If it does, then let us admit that love does indeed begin at home. If it stops there, it ceases to be love and is merely group selfishness. The love is for the world. It is the love of the world that gave his only-begotten Son, and our love is like His when it embraces more than those with whom we are connected by birth or marriage or friendship.

Similarly, we should examine the Christian meaning of the expression "at home." If we study the parable of the Good Samaritan, we find that our neighbor is our neighbor not because of his nearness, but because of his need. Dare we as Christians take a narrower definition than our Lord's, who "looked about on them which sat about Him, and said, Blessed my mother and my brethren." The entire world duration? When that has been done the women of the world will furnish you with further suggestions as to what is reasonable and practicable."

WOMAN URGES HARDING TO ASK DEFINITE REDUCTION

Mrs. Ella L. Fried Suggests Cutting Present Armaments by One-Half

NEW YORK, (P)—Mrs. Ella L. Fried, a speaker for the citizens disarmament committee Friday sent a letter to President Harding urging that by advocate reduction by one-half of present armaments at the Washington conference next month. It was her second letter to the executive who had written her in public last Wednesday but she called attention that her name had been misread as "Miss Fried."

"I asked you what you meant by 'reasonable limitation.' You say you mean 'something practicable.'" her second letter said. "That is exactly the issue which you said before in other words. Synonyms are not definitions. Permit me to ask you whether you consider a reduction of the world's military armaments by one-half reasonable or practicable? If any one of the nations at the conference agrees to reduce its armament one-half, its relative strength would remain as great as before. That is clear I hope. "They will not suggest one-half re-

REGARDS THREATENED STRIKE ON RAILWAYS AS OPPORTUNITY

Famous Economist Gives Reasons for Opinion that "Show Down" as Between Operators and Employees May Be Thing Needed to Give Carriers Boost on Road to Prosperity

ROGER W. BABSON
By Special Arrangement with Babson's Statistical Organization, Wellesley Hills, Mass.

(All rights strictly reserved.)
WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass.—"It is hard to believe that there will be a general railway strike in the other hand, it was hard to believe that the railroad union leaders would put the question to vote or that the employees would vote to strike when the question was put on the ballot. Both of these improbable things have come to pass. The union leaders called for a vote and the employees have voted overwhelmingly to strike. The question of this vote is very significant because it probably would have been a different vote if another "high sign" had been passed about it. It is always possible to tell in advance, or from talking with the men, what the result of a strike vote will be. Before voting, men may ask "What result is it worth?" The desired result usually is obtained. Various explanations are given for this peculiar action. Very few think that the men are not wanting to see the end of the railway. The desired result usually is obtained. Various explanations are given for this peculiar action. Some think that this is being used as a means of changing the control of some of the unions and some think other reasons exist for this peculiar action. The most plausible reason is that the unions don't like the way and labor board are going to threaten to strike in order to force congress to legislate the railroad labor board out of existence. It is even rumored that some of the railroad officials are quietly acquiescing in this program.

Labor Board in Bad.
"The railroad labor board has unfortunately made enemies with both the carriers and the employees of the railroads. This is always the case when one tries to serve two masters; he succeeds in pleasing neither. The board has also lost standing by not will be only temporary and it should afford a great opportunity to make attractive purchases of certain railroad securities. Railroad employees themselves would show good judgment in buying at such a time. The railroads have turned a corner and an attempt to pull off a general strike may be just the thing needed to give the railroads a good boost on the road to prosperity.

"Meanwhile, general business shows gradual but steady improvement. It now stands at 65 points below normal compared with 72.5 points below normal at the beginning of 1921. Improvement of 7.5 points in as many days."

LONDON TIMES COMMENDS HARDING ARMAMENT VIEW

Calls President's Statement "Wise Words of Practical Statesman"

LONDON, (P)—The London Times in an editorial Friday designates as "the wise words of a practical statesman" President Harding's statement that what he wants through the Washington conference is a definite and practicable that there is a chance to accomplish" repeating also his assertion that the desirability of universal disarmament at this time might well be questioned.

"We commend them," adds the Times to the "meditation of all who fancy that this imperfect world cannot be effectively policed unless the policeman continues to carry the big stick." The newspaper declares that it is encouraging that America "does not aim at Utopian ideals such as appear to be suggested in the cautious, inconsequential manifestoes from the British League," which it publishes in another column. The memorandum, discussing the Washington conference says: "The principal problem, the limitation of naval armaments treated purely as a material one, does not appear possible of satisfactory solution on these lines, for we are forced to the conclusion that there is a material problem at all, but a moral one."

RUSSIAN LABOR LOAN TO BE FOR $100,000,000
RIGA, (P)—The proposed international labor loan in Russia, says the Riga agency, is to be for $100,000,000. The plans have been worked out in Moscow by Russian trade unionists, and a representative of the Italian communists.

COUNTIES AND COUNTIES OUTSIDE WANT TO GIVE AID TOWARD BUILDING RAIL LINE FOR CHURCHES

Holding Company Headquarters Hears of Interest Displayed in Southern Railroad Outlet Scheme and Desire to Give Financial Help in Adjacent Southern Idaho Areas

By HARRY M'KINLAY, Chairman Bonus Publicity Committee.

In the columns of this paper Saturday evening was reported a speech made by Robert H. Swales, former mayor Twin Falls, now of state public utilities commission, in which he stated that the building of the Wellhegerson railroad was not, on night not be strictly a Twin Falls county affair. It should extend to all counties in southern Idaho. How true his words were is being daily reported by the managers of the holding company, "Banner and business men from Joseph, Burley, Rupert, Paul, and from nearly every county in the state who take an interest in this project.

The only answer we could give was, modestly. There were, and are but few people of this country who had the remedy of all their ills in the hands of a few counties would care to help shoulder our burden, even though the benefits will reach far beyond our county line.

In order that every person may be adequately connected with this drive, the Idaho Nevada Holding company will publish a bulletin every day, giving the exact amount of sales received, who subscribed, and who obtained the same. It is hoped that the subscribers who work starts on the railroad everyone will feel that his subscription was honored, handled in an honest way and full publicity given to everything.

Railroad Goop. When a man in Iowa, Kansas or Missouri thinks he has a big sale, he usually and holds firm, then passes it on to his children. So there are real estate transfers in the Mississippi valley that are more real estate transfers in Twin Falls county in one year than anywhere else its population on the Pacific coast.

What's the matter with us? Are we a set of land grabbers, subinchoasers or speculators? Ever since the boys have moved away only to come back "home" and glad to get here. Why all this restlessness, this discontent and moving about? Surely, we have as fine a climate and soil as God's sun ever shows out. We repeat: What's the matter with us? Why don't we too buy and build firm and put it on to the children?

COMMERCIAL MEN CALLED M'COLLUM A CRAZY PERSON

Promoter Was Feared When He Proposed to Sell Townsite Lots in Sagebrush

Two traveling men were driving through the country a short distance from Twin Falls. They were on their way from Portland to Boise in the interest of their commercial interests.

The promoter was short, the traveling men were tall. They were in the town lots where they hunted up the sherry.

Investigation proved that the story was far from an attempt to sell Twin Falls town lots was correct; but that was crazy as implied contradicted by the monument since raised on the foundation built by the Twin Falls townsite company of which R. M. McColm was, at the time of the incident, secretary.

It was Mr. McColm who stopped the travelers and attracted to them town lots in the Twin Falls townsite, and it happened some 15 or 16 years ago.

The incident is recognized by rail line bonus drive officials to show the tremendous progress this community has made since the days when McColm was among the traveling men of the sagebrush in pioneer days.

YOUNG PEOPLE ARE DOING BIT FOR CHURCHES

New York Women at Synod Not in Sympathy with Pessimistic People

"I am not sympathetic with those who regard the young people of the day pessimistically," said Mrs. Charles Williams of New York speaking before the assembled guests in the banquet room at the Presbyterian church last evening. "Young people are thinking in terms of service. Those agencies which are putting the appeal for service clearly and appealingly are receiving a wonderful and earnest response. Colleges and social agencies all testify to the fact that the young people are not making this challenge for service and the church is not receiving the response."

Outing Plans Spoiled

Owing to unfavorable weather conditions the automobile ride planned for delegates to the Presbyterian synod last evening was abandoned. This morning was given to the continued consideration of reports in the synodal meetings with an address by the Rev. Weston T. Johnson on "The Way and How of Foreign Missions." Murphy, corresponding secretary.

Keizer of the Church of the Methodist church, Moderator W. J. Boone of the College of Idaho, in the morning and the Rev. Walter M.
