Indiana Stage Fire Dance for British Prince

BREKNER, Ind., (AP)—A religious fire dance was held for the Prince of Wales as part of the program of entertainment honoring his stay here. Bare legged natives danced through the members of a great bonfire built in the quadrangle of the fort. As they danced they sang wildly and matched up portions of the story mass which they placed in their mouths. Subsequently the natives were before the police, inviting inspection of their feet which were apparently moist and cool.

FIRST FEDERAL BUDGET GIVEN TO LAWMAKERS

Schedule of Governmental Expenditures for 1923 Totals $3,505,704,727; Decrease of $426,167,639

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The federal budget for the fiscal year 1923—the first to be compiled—shows estimated expenditures of $3,505,704,727, a decrease of $426,167,639 as compared to the estimated outgo for the fiscal year 1922, ending next June 30, and a reduction of $2,032,233,922 from the actual outlay in the fiscal year 1921.

General Dawes as president of the budget bureau says: "It is to be expected that since the preliminary estimates have been made under pressure by the executive for proper retrenchment, where consistent with efficiency, it will not be necessary, as heretofore, for congress to make radical cuts upon the estimates of the budget with any certainty as to what will be the result as it effects efficiency. The president of the United States, when he sends the budget to congress, is presumed to send it with all the reductions in expenditures which can be effected without due impairment of governmental business purposes. In the preparation of the budget he has had work an authorized agency in the bureau not only in ascertaining the reasonableness of desired appropriations but in continually imposing pressure upon the departments for a reduction in the estimates wherever proper and possible."

General Dawes says he feels that the estimate for expenditures for 1923, upon which the budget is based, will not be increased except through appropriations initiated in congress or by the executive as a result of emergency or unforeseen conditions arising after the preparation of the budget.

Reterring to his recommendation that congress immediately repeal all outstanding continuous appropriations and "revolving funds," General Dawes says the method of appropriating money heretofore followed has resulted in a condition of things under which it is almost impossible for either the executive, congress, or the secretary of the treasury, to have before them a true picture of the fiscal condition of the government at any particular time.

"The whole habit of making continuing appropriations to which the government has been committed in the past," he adds, "is only an encouragement to a lack of scrutiny of public work by the head of the department that year, pointing out that while the under which it is carried on, and an appropriations for this fiscal year were made with courage to shiftlessness and carelessness on the part of the subordinate officers more directly concerned in it. This system of preparing the budget will confine the attention of the executive, of congress and of the public to the one great important question, to-wit: the relation of the money actually to be spent by the government to the money actually to be received by the general public in any given year; all its outstanding obligations and indefinite commitments, projects, and enterprises considered. This will enable congress, with more intelligence, to determine at any time both the necessity for retrenchment and the ability of the government to engage in additional projects to be initiated by congress outside of the budgetary program."

Points Out "Faults" Liking the federal government to a business corporation, General Dawes points to these "faults" which he says existed:

practically no attention to its ordinary routine business. The administrative vice-presidents (members of the cabinet) were allowed to run their several departments as if each separate department was an independent authority in all matters of routine business. Because of a lack of any outlined business plan, no system existed for making purchases or for selling material along business lines under a unified policy. No balance sheet of the corporation as a whole was ever prepared. The treasury kept no accurate account of the contingent obligations of the various federal departments, thus resulting in money being drawn from him continually in excess of the estimated annual running expenses. The corporation, in effect, seldom considered an unwise project entered into by any department. The administrative heads of the departments were selected as a rule with little reference to their business qualifications and were compelled to rely largely upon the advice of subordinates wedded to the theory of the right of independent operation of the department.

Outline Remedy Outlining the work of the various coordinating agencies established by presidential order "to rectify faults in the routine business of the government," General Dawes says: "They involve no transfer of authority the location of which has been fixed otherwise by statute. They involve the delegation of no question of policy save that of economy and efficiency. They are simply agencies by which unified methods of ordinary business can be imposed by the chief executive. They are created simply to give the president of the United States the same agencies of contact and transmission of authority as obtain in any private organization. They involve no material addition to the expense of governmental administration. They are non-partisan, being composed of men already in the government service. They are in effect simply a regrouping under an executive leadership of certain of the present employees of government of such experience, contact and relation in its routine business as combine them to make possible the application of common sense business methods.

Kings on Executive. "It cannot be too often reiterated that this most important reformation in the governmental business system is dependent upon the president of the United States himself, and upon his continued assumption of his responsibility as its business head. The minute he relieves his attitude of attention to this duty there will be felt the natural pull of the departments and establishments toward the old system of complete independence and decentralization." General Dawes concludes his report with this statement: "In making this report the director of the budget will state that his cooperation with the bureau is limited as to time, in accordance with an understanding which he had with the president at the time of his appointment. His purpose in making this announcement at this time is to emphasize the fact that his recommendations are made in an impersonal way, with fundamental business principles and their proper preservation in their application to governmental business administration alone in mind."

A Great Affair Sir Henry Layard had a short way with omnipotent youth, who gushed over Cimabue, Giotto, Eshiele de Volterra. "Do you seriously think," he would ask with his rasping drawl, "that any of them can compare with Mortadella di Bologna?" Some would fall into the trap and discourse on the chiroscuro of that great artist; others, more honest, would invite scorn by confessing ignorance of his work. It was only when they reached home that they discovered that "mortadella" was a sausage—Living Age.

WINTER GRAINS SEEDING DONE IN HEMISPHERE

Farmers of Northern Half of Globe Sow Crops Under Generally Favorable Conditions. Report Shows.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—The seeding of winter grains is now practically completed throughout the northern hemisphere, according to reports received by the bureau of markets and crop estimates, United States department of agriculture.

The seeding of all winter crops has been hindered by drought throughout western Europe and Great Britain, and irregular sowing in the north, reported, the bureau states.

The moisture supply has been plentiful throughout central Europe, and the present outlook is a satisfactory one.

The drought in North Africa still prevails, according to latest reports, and rain is greatly needed to hasten seeding and germination.

The seeding of winter wheat is progressing under favorable conditions in British India, and the crop is germinating well. A good average is expected.

Weather and soil conditions have generally been favorable for the seeding and germination of wheat in the present outlook.

The condition of the soil, the condition of all wheat is favorable in the United States, except in the lower California region, where the crop is injured by drought and somewhat seedlings have failed to germinate.

Conditions in the far western states have been improved by rain in October and November.

In October, 1921, the international tuberculosis association met in Berlin and before that body Dr. O. Beron of Paris proposed that a double-barred cross be adopted as the emblem of the fight against tuberculosis.

The double-barred cross was approved and from that day the double-barred cross has been the symbol of hope to millions of tuberculous people.

Dr. Beron took a simple method, and yet an effective one, in choosing the emblem. It was a combination of the Croix de Lorraine and the cross of the Greek church.

The emblem of the fight against tuberculosis which has reduced the mortality from the disease 40 per cent in the past 16 years.

Symbols the fight against tuberculosis which has reduced the mortality from the disease 40 per cent in the past 16 years.

The double-barred cross was introduced in the United States in 1904 from over 200 per 100,000 population to approximately 120 per 100,000—a saving of 75,000 lives each year.

There are today about 3,000 local and state anti-tuberculous organizations in the country, all fighting a stern battle under the emblem of the double-barred cross.

The Christmas seal, the messiah of the financial support of state and national tuberculosis preventive and educational work, bears also this emblem.

The double-barred cross was persistent in the fight against tuberculosis in the United States.

THE FATE OF KINGS

The head that wears a crown still lies uncared, just as it did in Shakespeare's day and for ages before that. For a little time former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary sat was dreamed that he might still be king; but what with the clamor and turmoil with which Europe is still resounding it has become an evil day for kings.

For God's sake, let us sit upon the ground And tell and stories of the death of kings; How some have been deposed; some slain in war; Some haunted by the ghosts they have deposed; Some poisoned by their wives; some sleeping killed.

Paper is cheaper than it was a year ago, but that is no reason why European countries should waste it by turning it into money.

One of the writers on the Washington conference has decided to postpone the American-Japanese war and, possibly, he will not have it at all. He is truly magnificent.

A notable concession, fraught with possibilities of great benefit to peace, is a Japanese delegate's opinion that China includes Mongolia and Manchuria.

The flying automobile has been perfected. Going into high will mean something different again.

Now all together: "Do your Christmas shopping early!"

FROM A TOWER WINDOW

I AM nothing but a worker, with no time for rest or play; I am caring bread for others who must eat three times a day; But beside me there's a window from which 'fair hills may be seen.

I MUST earn the wage I'm getting, and my miles will never end; I will have to keep on working till the final string is done; Others, when their nerves are weary, close their desks and flee from care;

GAZING from my lofty window, I can see a steep gleam, And the rows of trees below it mark the winding of a stream; I must not neglect the duties or postpone them for a day;

I AM but a worker, never to be sealed with the proud; And it's little I'm indebted for the favors I'm allowed; But to worried ones who travel take their shaking nerves along;

"The people of the world," says Colonel House, "are entitled to know the motives and arguments that govern decisions in matters vital to their welfare."

Those who read many books are like the centers of hashish. They live in a dream. The subtle poison that penetrates their brain renders them insensible to the real world and makes them the prey of terrible or delightful phantoms.

IDAHO GROWERS URGED TO DISPLAY PRODUCTS

Gom State Fruits Are Wanted Among Entries in Northwest Exposition UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, (Special)—Idaho fruit growers will be urged strongly to send exhibits to the Pacific Northwest Fruit exposition at Seattle next year, according to C. G. Vincent, head of the horticultural department at the university, who is one of the judges at the exposition.

"Without the least doubt, Idaho fruit will compare favorably with that of other sections and Idaho growers should show their products at the Seattle exposition for the advertising it will bring Idaho as a fruit raising state."

INQUIRE IN SCHOOLS

Commission of Am. Council on Education to Investigate

WASHINGTON, D. C. Appointment of a commission to investigate the condition of education in the United States was announced today by the American Council on Education.

Appropriations totaling $10,000 have been made for the investigation by the commonwealth fund (charitable corporation), the General Education Board and the Milbank Fund.

Has Sweeping Scope. Dr. Strayer has been selected chairman of the commission. The primary aim of the national finance inquiry, an announcement by the American Council on Education said, "will be to study in real states and conditions the entire program of public education, the extent to which this program is carried and the present and prospective involvement of it is proposed to investigate the relation of educational expenditures to other necessary government expenditures, the methods of raising revenue for the support of education and the possibility of effecting economies."

Theatres

If opinions of critics in other cities mean anything to local fans, Lorraine's latest screen production, "When Do Men Wait?" will offer something unusual in entertainment when the great drama of the hunt for happiness opens today at the Idaho. "What Do Men Wait?" is Miss Weber's most recent contribution to the silver screen and is a vivid portrayal of small town life and small town people; yet in this powerful drama, as in all her pictures, she not only supplies the full measure of entertainment but also puts over a moral jolt that is applicable to people of all classes. A clever comedy is also in this bill.

Monday and Tuesday at the Lavering, the movie fans will get treated to a picture that claims to have a thrill a minute. "The Face of the World" can see love, romance and thrills. The first scene, and the big week, are but two of the many exciting features shown in this six-part film. A two-part comedy closes the bill.

For its feature attraction for the coming three days, the New Orpheum has on the boards, "Stranger Than Fiction," starring Katherine Macfie, a beautiful woman in a story that abounds in strong human interest situations cleverly seasoned, humor and a few thrills. "Stranger Than Fiction" is a most different kind of picture shown by this popular star. It is decidedly different. It calls for an abundance of lively acting and is made up of strongly dramatic and realistic mystery situations. Wesley Barry, the freckled faced star, was named to Miss Macfie's picture. A two-part musical comedy, and the usual high class, music completes the bill.

The Radio for Monday and Tuesday has Edith Roberts in a six-part feature "White Youth," said to be one of this post-war's best. A two-part musical comedy, "Custard's Last Stand," will keep the fans in an uproar. This comedy, put out by Century, is a scream, and well worth the seeing.

Many amusing incidents are told of and related by members of the Viola Haynes company, who present "Seeing Things" at the Lavering theater next Wednesday evening. Miss Haynes, who played on the road in the original cast of "Seeing Things," relates an experience which happened one evening in Pennsylvania while playing the ghost scene of "Seeing Things." As she was floating down stairs in her flowing white robes, without making a sound, she suddenly the stairway came apart and Miss Haynes was precipitated into the midst of the scene amid much noise and anything but an ethereal manner. She has funny memories of how she collected her thoughts and her personality carried on the scene at the Lavering theater next Wednesday evening. Dr. Elyea had no trouble in appearing frightened.

AMERICAN DRINKERS READY TO BUY COAL IN ENGLAND WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—Large American coal companies, doing business in Cuba and having offices in Havana were declaring in reports received here that they are preparing to replace their stocks of American coal in the island with British coal. Cardiff coal, the reports assert; can be delivered at Havana at 42 a ton cheaper than American coal. The reports also say that four cargoes of British coal now are en route to San Francisco for Pacific coast consumption.

Stress Learning and Patriotism with American Educational Week

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—The recent trend in education in the United States today is a separate deal for the country child. John J. Tigert, commissioner of education, declared today in a statement issued in connection with the opening of American education week.

NEW YORK (AP)—The duty of all the friends of education to think seriously and work hard on "the problem of keeping the idea of public education before all the people" is being stressed throughout the country this week.

It has been designated "American Education Week" by the American Education Association. Many ministers started the movement Sunday by preaching on educational and patriotic topics. Among the means the American Legion posts adopted to put over its message are: Speakers before civic, social and benevolent organizations meeting during the week. Recitations, essays and talks on American history and patriotic traditions at the schools. Community gatherings and singing of patriotic airs.

Among the topics to be emphasized in the schools are: school buildings, libraries, equipment and playgrounds; better attendance, better paid teachers, longer school term, better vocational training, better understanding of the form and fundamental principles
