YOUNG GIRL HALTS TRIAL WITH BULLET

Shoots to Death Man on Trial for Her Ruin—Rehearing is Rudely Interrupted by the Tragedy.

WACO, Texas, (AP)—Miss Marcelline, 17 years old, shot and killed J. R. Crosslin today during proceedings in the district court here. He was charged with criminally attacking the girl two years ago.

CASE BACK FOR RE-TRIAL. Crosslin was tried, convicted and sentenced to nine years in the penitentiary but the case was reversed on an error in the admission of testimony and remanded for trial.

The preliminary had been completed and Miss Marcelline had been called to the witness stand when she fired the shot which killed the prisoner.

"He disgraced me, ruined my health and deprived me of school privileges," she stated after the killing. "That will be my only reason."

Crosslin was 36 years old.

FIRE, THREE SHOTS INTO MAN'S BODY.

Miss Marcelline walked to the witness chair, then turned with a pistol in hand, fired straight at Crosslin, who sat in a chair beside his attorneys in the court room. She took two or three shots forward and fired again. Advancing to within three feet of the man who had collapsed in his chair, she shot a third time, the bullets entering Crosslin's side.

W. H. Forrester, counsel for Crosslin, said the girl just after the third shot, fired and almost at the same time threw her arms up and taking her in his arms carried her out of the courtroom. He took the weapon from her and locked her in a room in the judge's office.

COUSIN DENIES ANY INVOLVEMENT. Crosslin's cousin, in the courtroom Judge Monroe demanded the jury to find definitely. Crosslin was taken from the chair and laid on the floor.

The shots were heard in every part of the courtroom. For several weeks he had been in the real estate business and when he changed was filed against him. He created a scandal, was a wife and several children.

The 17-year-old girl, then only 15 years old, testified to her condition for which she said Crosslin's "request" she had given "with a child which necessitated an operation. She declared her health was destroyed. She is a little girl, weighing not more than 80 pounds and was calm while shooting and reloading.

She is the daughter of W. E. Matthews, who resided here when the alleged attack was committed. Living in the home of Crosslin's mother, she is now residing at Roswell, Texas. The father was in the city but was not in the courtroom when the shooting occurred. Crosslin had been filed charging her with murder.

DELAY LEADS TO UNKNOWN SEAS

British Press Unable to Clarify Situation Growing Out of Acid Fehs Action.

LONDON, (AP)—The embarrassment and uncertainty into which the acid fumes agreement to postpone the free state parliamentary elections has thrown the relations between England and Ireland are emphasized by the newspapers.

The political writers, however, do not profess to clarify the situation, being content to take the attitude adopted yesterday by Secretary for the Colonies Churchill in the house of commons, and Lord Chancellor Birkenhead in the house of lords, that not enough was known concerning the action of the Sinn Fein convention to confirm a judgment upon it.

The writers endorse the government's suspension of the ratification of the Anglo-Irish treaty bill in the imperial parliament until further knowledge is gained, but believe the measure may be taken up next Thursday or Friday if it is found that the bill has been "straightened out" satisfactorily.

PRESIDENT SAYS HANDS ARE TIED

Tells Senator Manufacturers are Denied German Dyes as Consequence

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Declaring that congress had tied the hands of the administration in dealing with the reparations commission, President Harding in a letter to Senator Pringle, republican, New Jersey, has suggested that some legislative action be taken to permit the United States to get its quota of German reparations.

The president's views were set forth in the letter were presented today to the senate committee investigating charges of dye monopolies and lobbies and in connection with an report of the textile industry, once the agency for the government in procuring and distributing German dyes allotted to the United States as an associate power in the world war, for creation of a fund by which the reeling of dyes could be resumed.

The state department, it has been developed, abandoned the arrangement with the textile industry in November, it had no legal authority to continue it.

The president's letter, which was read into the record by Senator Pringle, follows:

"As the moment my best judgment is that we will get no effective arrangement except through a resolution by congress, I quite agree that we ought to get the benefit of such reparations as the textile industry is entitled to under the German export of dyes to this country through the reparations commission and we ought to protect our textile manufacturers against the great and unfair advantage to their competitors in the old world. It would be easy to do if congress had not tied the hands of the administration in dealing with the matter."

"I am writing to suggest that you confer with some of your associates regarding a resolution which will deal with the dye question definitely and directly."

RESERVATION TO 4-POWER TREATY IS AGREED TO

Senator Brandegee, After Conference with President, Submits New Blanket Clause which Smooths Wrinkles

WASHINGTON, D. C., (AP)—A modified blanket reservation to the four-power Pacific treaty, said to be satisfactory both to President Harding and to a majority of the members of the senate foreign relations committee was debated by the committee today and an agreement reached to vote on the treaty itself on all proposed reservations at tomorrow's session.

BRANDEEGE SUBMITS NEW TEXT.

The new reservation was laid before the committee by Senator Brandegee, republican, Connecticut, after a conference with President Harding. The committee was said not to have represented it as embodying the president's views, but the understanding of committee members was that it would be acceptable to the White House.

The text of the reservation follows: "The United States understands that under the agreement and the preamble and under the terms of this treaty there is no commitment to armed force, no alliance, no obligation to join in any defense."

JOHNSON NOT YET SATISFIED. Although apparently acceptable to most of the republicans and democratic reservationists on the committee, the reservation according to today's discussion will not receive unanimous committee approval.

Senator Johnson, republican, California, was said to have shown opposition to the reservation, but he generally has been said to favor republicans. Idaho, who was absent, would like a similar position.

GOES DIRECT TO THE RESERVATION. The compromise reservation is more direct and shorter than the original Brandegee reservation, which a majority of the committee members previously had indicated their support. Under the original reservation the United States would have set forth in detail its obligations under the preamble of the treaty and its obligations under or by adjustment resulting from it, without the consent of congress.

FUTURE LAWYERS TO BE LIMITED TO COLLEGE MEN

Bar Association's Conference Discusses Plan to Intensify Training of Men Entering Legal Profession in America

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP) — When the delegates to the national conference of bar associations assembled today they took up as the central topic the question of higher legal education which at yesterday's meeting precipitated a divergence of opinion among those representing more than a hundred and fifty bar associations from all sections of the United States.

Others scheduled to speak today included James Byrne of New York; George E. Pitt of West Virginia; Frank Sommers of New York; and Will H. Brewer Lewis of the University of Pennsylvania School of Law.

EARNED HIS LIVING WHEN BUT EIGHTEEN

Lawyer who have won distinction and a high place at the bar through native ability and industry and who have not had a college education, will be expected naturally to offer with a certain degree of hesitancy, their approval of the "exacting standard" which the American Bar association seeks to impose upon future members of the profession.

The former secretary of the treasury said that while he had been unable to go to a law school, he was obliged at the age of 18 to get into the world and make his own living, nevertheless he had the reputation of being one of the American Bar association's future members of the profession he obligated not only to take a three-year course in a law school and in addition have at least two years college training, was worthy of support by all those interested in the improvement of legal standards.

Mr. McAdoo declared that the value of the highest moral and ethical standards could not be over estimated when the responsibility of the lawyer was as grave and the function he performs is so vital to the interest of the client. Such responsibilities, he added, make it necessary that professional education be of the highest standard.

Attention, Farmers!

Now is a good time to make plans for this year's crop. We believe it is better to plan crops a year in advance. We also believe that a farmer should decide on the best rotation possible to suit his particular farm, then make the necessary arrangements to carry out this rotation.

Now is a good time to all harness, get machinery in shape, and be all ready to go, when the land is in addition to work. Let's get the boys! We have plenty of moisture now, don't forget that if our face soil is not worked, a few hot windy days soon uses it up. "The early bird catches the worm."

THE AMALGAMATED SUGAR CO.

Stanfield, U. S. Sheep King

This is the latest portrait of Senator Robert Nelson Stanfield of Oregon, the young man who was born in Oregon in 1877—who rode over from Senator George A. Chamberlain on the crest of the Republican avenger of 1902. This is the only time since then that he has been in the Congressional directory; autobiographies, but they contain these words "America's largest producer of wool and mutton."

His father was one of the California pioneers of '40, except from Illinois, but the western trek, but in the early '50s the elder Stanfield moved to Oregon, and took up one of the first cattle ranches in eastern Oregon. Young Bob learned ranching from the grass roots up and got his schooling in a country school home. The Hitter Roor ranch of the Stanfield was the way of many another, as the cutlender gradually admitted that the Unmilla country was more naturally doer for sheep than for cattle. So in 1904 the youth who had fought sheep breeders went himself into the sheep business and prospered mightily. By 1911 his flocks were grazing their vastness out of Oregon into Idaho, Montana and Colorado. Today Senator Stanfield owns more sheep, probably, than any man in America. Every year he winters 80,000 sheep.

Stanfield got into politics only eight years ago, going to the state legislature. He won the speakership and acquired a following.

OHIO WOMAN IS TRUE TO FORM

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP) — Miss Georgia E. Hopley of Luverne, the first woman general prohibition agent to be attached to the mobile enforcement forces at national prohibition headquarters, at Washington, is her new work will be carrying on a crusade started a generation back in her family.

Miss Hopley comes of a long line of newspaper folk. One brother was the editor of the first and only prohibition paper in Crawford county. Seven of her brothers and sisters all are in newspaper work, here and elsewhere.

The late John Hopley, her father, as editor of the Boyer Journal, was accorded the title of "Nector of Ohio Journalism."

Miss Hopley has another "first" to credit. She is said to have been the first woman in Ohio to enter active newspaper work.

STARTS OUT AS A REPORTER Her initial newspaper job was as a reporter on the Columbus O. Times in 1900. Governor George H. Nash appointed her to represent women of the state at the Paris exposition, and she remained in France and England from May until December. She made trips to England and the continent in 1908, 1910 and 1911.

In 1913, Miss Hopley had charge of the women's publicity in the Frank B. Willis campaign in Ohio for the republican nomination for governor, and in 1919, was attached in the same capacity to the successful campaign of James J. Thomas for mayor of Columbus.

In 1920, she had charge of the publicity work for women in the republican presidential campaign in Ohio. In her new work, she will undertake the spread of publicity in the national prohibition enforcement case, and will, it is expected, travel extensively over the country. She hopes to have delegated to her, the education of children of the country in the proper observance of prohibition laws.

FIELDS OFFERS FRESH DETAILS TAYLOR MURDER

Detroit Sheriff Declares Latest Story from Mysterious Prisoner to be Plausible—Mabel Normand Improves

DETROIT, Mich., (AP)—Fresh details of the alleged conspiracy which brought about the killing of Wm. Desmond Taylor as given today by Harry M. Fields, a forger prisoner in the county jail, were declared by Sheriff Coffin to be "very plausible."

MABEL NORMAND IS IMPROVED

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Miss Mabel Normand, reported seriously ill with influenza at her temporary retreat in Altadena, was said to be improving today. While Miss Normand is seriously ill it was thought her recovery was almost certain. Miss Normand, who was the last friend of Wm. Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, to see the latter before he was mysteriously shot and killed here, nearly a month ago, has been ill ever since that occurrence. She broke down at the Taylor inquest and again at the funeral, and for the intervening time she has been in seclusion except that she engaged to give a formal statement of her knowledge of the case to the officials charged with the investigation.

Miss Normand's parents arrived from their eastern home a few days ago and joined her. She has been denying herself all comforts in her home. It was explained, that quiet and seclusion would hasten her return to health.

YAKIMA INDIANS WOULD STAY MARCH OF PROGRESS

Big Chief Mennock Urges Bureau to Leave Them Their Wild Free Life

WASHINGTON, D. C., (AP)—Halt of the march of civilization so far as the Yakima Indians of Washington state are concerned was asked of the government today by Chief Mennock, who appeared before a delegation from his tribe before officials of the bureau of Indian affairs.

With considerable eloquence and at very great length through official interpreters, Chief Mennock and his assistants declared they "wanted to be Indians as long as the sun rises and sets."

They did not want, they said, to assume private ownership of their lands, take over responsibility for conduct of their own business or accept American citizenship, and they cited the original treaties made between their forefathers and the government guaranteeing them these rights.

MISS MCGORMICK IS TO BE WED TO OSER IN MAY

Riding Master Agrees to Conditions Imposed by Father of Multi-Millionaire Girl

ZURICH, Switzerland, (P)—The wedding of Miss Mathilda McCormick, the five-year-old daughter of Harold E. McCormick to Max Oser, a riding master of Zurich, will take place in May at the McCormick country seat near Chicago, according to present plans from Zurich, who is still absent from Zurich, has accepted the conditions under which the McCormick family gave their consent to the match, which were that he take up his residence in the United States and become a citizen of that country.

LINER HOMERIC ENDS HER MAIDEN ATLANTIC VOYAGE

Largest Vessel in World is to Prize to British from Fleet of Humbled Hun

NEW YORK, (P)—Completing her maiden voyage across the Atlantic, the White Star liner Homeric, largest twin screw vessel in the world and the sixth largest vessel afloat, steamed to her pier today while strains of harbor craft whistled a welcome.

The luxurious 777-foot liner crossed the ocean with her 200 passengers in seven days, 23 hours and 23 minutes, two days slower than her expected schedule, her speed having been slackened by strong winds and rough seas. The average time was 15.75 knots. She was built at Danzig to fly the Imperial flag of the fatherland, but when her hull had been completely Europe went to the trenches, and she spent her career on the gurgling canal-woodwork of the steamer, then called the Columbia. Under the reparations terms, she was turned over to Great Britain and rechristened the Homeric.

THE WATCHERS

By S. HELEN ANDERSON
© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The Brown had been married for ten years and nothing had marred their happiness. They had been content with each other's society for 12 months of each of the ten years; that is, until within the past three or four days.

Something, an indescribable something, had crept into the atmosphere herebefore so calm. It was that infinitesimal something on which no finger can be laid. Mr. Brown first noticed it by the second, wistful glances of his wife. She seemed to watch him furtively, and when she saw him glance at her, would look away quickly. She seemed to be watching something on her mind. Perhaps she was tired of him. The more he thought of that, the stronger he was convinced. Well, he'd watch her closely and pronto.

On the other hand, Mrs. Brown first noticed the change in Mr. Brown when she started to watch her with that searching, questioning look. She thought entered her mind that he was watching her with some one. Why was it? Perhaps a young girl, something. Every time she looked at him she caught him just looking away. She decided she would watch him carefully in an attempt to follow this mystery.

The days went by even as days will. Mr. Brown kept a close, secretive survey of his wife. He noticed with alarm the increasing signs of her nervousness and caught her many times looking at him with the same half-awake, wistful glances. He felt he must speak about it, ask her what she meant, or even suggest a separation—anything was better than this uncertainty of mystery.

On this particular morning he noticed that she was even more nervous and he decided to learn the truth. "Carrie, er—er," he stammered.

"Yes, John," she answered, rather nervously.

"The paper comes this morning," he finished lamely.

She got the paper for him and he opened it, giving a semblance of reading it, but all the time he kept a close survey of his wife, who in turn, thinking him deep in the paper, watched him more anxiously than before. Nothing of this escaped Mr. Brown. It seemed that things had about reached the climax. He had come definitely to the conclusion that Mrs. Brown was dissatisfied, had found other interests, but was too timid to say anything to him about it. Well, he wasn't.

"Carrie, er—er," he started again.

"Yes, John," she answered, rather nervously.

"Er—have you read about this murder case?" he inquired.

For the next five minutes, he related the details of the murder and trial, but his words were a mere cloak for thoughts far nearer to him. Well, he'd speak about it tomorrow or perhaps—yes, he'd write a "note" and leave it on her dresser just before he left for work.

Meanwhile Mrs. Brown had become fully convinced that John wanted to tell her something, but was afraid to, as it might hurt her. She was now quite sure that he was tired of her and dissatisfied with married life. Perhaps he even wanted a divorce. A divorce! A divy sob came to her throat. And she still loved him. Well, she could prove her love by making things easier for him. She knew that her emotions would overcome her if she ventured to tell him that she would not stand in his way any longer. Yes, she would send a note to his office by special messenger so that he would receive it the first thing this morning.

So it came about that, when Mr. Brown opened his mail, he found the following note:

"My Dear John: Something strange in your manner recently has made me think that you are unhappy. Even though my feelings toward you have remained unchanged, I will no longer stand in your way, and there a large blot, evidently a tear, smudged the paper. I will let you have a divorce. I want you to be happy. CARRIE."

Mr. Brown opened and read the note again, and still a third time. Then he called the office boy, told him he'd be out for the rest of the day, and boarded the first homeward-bound car. He found Mrs. Brown just finishing reading the note he had left.

"Carrie!"

"John!"

And he clasped her in his arms.

"What made you look at me so funny?" Mr. Brown asked after they had fully recovered their senses.

"Why, I thought you were watching me," she said.

"You looked at him in surprise," "Oh, John, how near this came to wrecking our happiness."

"Folled."

My house was for sale and the real estate man called me in the morning and said he would bring a buyer in the afternoon. As our color was full of water, I hired a neighbor boy to dip the water out before the buyer arrived.

"When the man arrived I showed him to the house. At the last the buyer said, 'Oh, yes, is your color dry?'"

"And I said, 'Oh, yes, it is as dry as my color is.'"

We started down the stairs to the cellar and the neighbor boy yelled up, 'Oh, man, I've been dipping water for an hour and a half and the floor's covered yet.'

The man did not take the house—Exchange.

Vaccinating Sugar Cane.

The vaccination or inoculation of plants in the bitter waged fight against their diseases will appear as a novel idea to many who have always thought of the method in connection with the prevention of human and animal maladies only. A measure of success has attended its use by the office of foreign seed and plant introduction, Washington, D. C., reports Popular Mechanics, in the evolution of a variety of sugar cane which will be immune to the commoner forms of disease peculiar to the plant, and especially the so-called mosaic disease, which has recently made its appearance on the sugar plantations. Seedlings from the inoculated specimens will be tested for immunity, and if the experiment is the success it is hoped it will be it is thought that a practically disease-proof variety of plant will be evolved.

Witely Diplomacy.

"My husband persistently refuses to do errands for me downtown."

"Mine used to, but I cured him of it mightily quick. 'Oh, well, I said, 'I suppose I can do it myself. And while am downtown I might as well do a little shopping, so you can't get away from me.' He never refused after that."—Boston Transcript.

Maybe "Grace" Widow.

Divorced women, or those who are separated from their husbands, are called "grass widows." It is said that this originated from an English rural term, "grass mare," meaning a horse that has been turned out to pasture.

Decision as to Participation in Plans for Construction of the American Falls Reservoir to Come after More Study

The question of participation by the Twin Falls Canal company in the plan to create a storage reservoir at American Falls of sufficient capacity to act as a reservoir for the purpose of storing water until such time as it is needed at length this morning at the office of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. The advisory committee of the Idaho Reclamation Association, the board of directors of the Twin Falls Canal company and the reclamation board of the chamber of commerce were represented by J. C. Wheeler, C. P. Thomas, E. W. W. Bennett, John M. Maxwell, J. S. Keel, Gustaf Kountze, E. V. Berg, E. C. Hillinger, and Ivan G. Lincoln, Carl Muller, and others.

No definite action was taken by the meeting although every phase of the proposition was discussed in detail. Acquaintance was taken with the understanding that a similar meeting will be called a little later when it is hoped to have H. P. Stouteney, of Boise, attorney for the reclamation service on hand. The meeting was held in the interest of the movement. It was apparently the sense of the meeting that the opportunity was valuable to be taken and the discussion developed the fact that a wide variety of opinion existed as to the exact basis of participation which should be adopted.

ELKS CLAIM EXEMPTION FROM TAX ASSESSMENTS

Lodge Seeks to Recover Money Raid Under Protest to Tax Collector

Twin Falls lodge, No. 1283, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, through J. W. Howell, its district representative, filed a petition in district court here against Emma J. Warren, as county treasurer and ex-officio tax collector, to recover $109.28 which the lodge claims is the first tax assessed to it for 1921 assessed against three lots at the corner of Shoshone street and Second avenue north, on which the new home of the lodge is in course of construction, and to secure cancellation of the remaining tax installment. The lodge in this case contends that the assessment of taxes is in violation of provisions of the state law exempting "charitable and benevolent organizations" from taxation.

ASKS FOR DAMAGES FOR LABOR CONTRACT BREACH

Harvey Hammond in Suit Against C. Dunn for $500, Says He Was Dismissed Without Cause

Damages in the sum of $500 are sought by Harvey Hammond in a suit filed in district court here through his attorneys, Wolfe and Martin, against Charles Dunn, operator of a meat market and slaughter house here. Hammond alleges that he was employed by agreement with Dunn last November as a butcher at the slaughter plant, and that on December 24 he was dismissed without cause. This action of the employer, he alleges, constitutes a breach of contract, for which he asks damages. He also asks for $200 for ten days' work since being discharged by the butcher, he says. He was to have received $20 a week, a house for himself and family, and $100 for his horse and care under the agreement with Dunn, he alleges.

Evans for recovery of $1,324.40 claimed as the difference between the amount owed by the contractor under a promissory note and the value of property seized and sold at the instance of Evans in satisfaction of the balance due on the note. The amount of the debt included an automobile and concrete mixing machinery. Borch says that prior to the sale of the property he had received payment of the balance due on the note.

City Police Raid Dwelling and Seize Still with Suspected Operator

A. Alvarez was arrested and a copper wash boiler converted into a still, with two 20-gallon barrels of "mash," a pint of low-mash whisky and several glass containers were seized by city police officers in a raid last night upon a dwelling at 725 second avenue north, occupied by Alvarez and his wife and baby.

Alvarez and his wife deny proprietary interest in the still or the product, and say that the still was the property of another person who the officers made the raid. The still was discovered on the second floor of the three and one-half building. A state jury divided the rooms occupied by the Alvarez family from the room in which the "mash" was found but which was burning in that room.

The raid and arrest was made by Chief of Police Ben J. Brown and Patrolmen A. E. Austin and J. P. Paton.

FARM BUREAU OUTLINES POISON DETECTION PLAN

Glves Methods for Determining Presence of Poison in Meats and Vegetables

In line with suggestions of federal and state officials that methods of detecting presence of botulinus poisoning in canned meats and vegetables be given publicity with a view to preventing repetition of recent tragic cases in Idaho, the Twin Falls county farm bureau today made public the following instructions:

Two accounts of botulinus poisoning have occurred recently near Boise, one in which an entire family were killed, and the other in which a little girl lost her life. This poisoning was caused from the eating of canned greens and corn. The farm bureau wishes to call the attention of the people to a few rules that never should be overlooked in the canning of foods and the eating of them. If these rules are carefully followed (and it pays there is very little danger, if any at all, from eating food canned in the house).

(1) Do not use any canning material that are not in first class condition—do not use any can food which is slightly moldy, or spoiled, or spotted, or about ready to spoil or badly rotted. Cutting out the soft spots and using the rest for canning should not be done. There is no objection to using that will return any food article that has started to spoil to a healthy condition.

(2) Wash carefully and rigidly washed foods at the time they are opened, and destroy it if the food has any unusual appearance or odor. Do not taste it to see if it is good. It is a safe precaution to notice the odor of vegetables, while they are boiling as an odor as slight as to be unclean while the vegetable mass is cold may have been perceived when intensified by heating.

(3) Boil vegetables and meats when they are removed from the can before eating them, as this is a precaution that never should be overlooked even if the food appears to be good. In this type of poisoning (botulinus poisoning) most bacteriologists believe that it is unnecessary to destroy all the bacterial spores which are the cause of the disease, which is formed by the growth of bacteria, which is a much easier matter, but it must be clearly understood that this does not warrant any one in boiling spoiled food and then eating it.

(4) Destroy spoiled goods which have spoiled or are suspected of spoiling. This is a matter of real importance. Chickens and other animals may have been fatally poisoned by eating such spoiled meats. Even worse than this danger is the possibility of spreading the bacillus botulinus through the soil. With these considerations in mind it seems that spoiled canned goods should be treated in the same manner as any sort of infectious material, such as discharges from the sputum of tubercular patient or the excreta of animals, which have died from cholera—that is, they should be burned or, if this is impracticable they should be buried for at least an hour with some effective disinfectant in order to be sure that all dangerous spores are destroyed. Burying them deeply in the soil with a genus covering of quick lime will prevent the poisoning of domestic animals and may have some influence in preventing infection of the soil with a highly dangerous organism.

This article is not written for the purpose of causing any undue alarm or anxiety in regard to eating of canned goods but cases of poisoning like that of the Tuttle family at Cambridge, should impress upon every one's mind, the necessity of taking precautions which are very often overlooked.

East Wind Offsets Effects of Rise in Mercury's Position

Thermometer readings in the Twin Falls district showed moderation as compared with the day before, although the high point for the day at 80 degrees above zero was still below the zero mark, but being touched at 12 above, while an east wind intensified the cold.

Further moderation was recorded this forenoon.

FRUIT GROWERS ENTER MARKETS

Orchardists Name Committee to Arrange for Purchase of Supplies

Members of a committee composed of George P. Sprague, Joe Day and C. Flurney, appointed at a meeting here yesterday of orchardists and fruit growers to arrange for purchase through the Twin Falls County Horticultural society of spraying material for its members this season, today sent out letters to fruit growers of the county, pointing out advantages of purchase of supplies in quantity through the county organization, by visiting membership and inquiring as to individual requirements for supplies this season.

As soon as replies are received to these letters, the committee expects to be in position to deal with dealers in spray material and other orchard supplies. It has requested all dealers who were representative yesterday's meeting of the fruit growers to organize a list for supplying the organization's membership with supplies. These lists are not to be opened until the committee is in position to place orders for the society's membership. Delegates to appoint the committee to continue negotiations with dealers with a view to quantity purchase of spray material and orchard supplies was reached at the fruit growers' meeting yesterday after several hours had been given over to hearing dealers' representative present claims for supplies handled by them.
