SIX KILLED BY TORNADO IN GEORGIA

Four Towns in All Visited by Terrific Disturbance which Sweeps Everything Before It; Rainfall Heavy

Augusta, Ga. (AP) - Six persons were killed and scores injured in a tornado which just before daylight today swept the mill town of Warrenville, S. C., and village of Safflower, S. C. Langley, S. C., 10 miles from Augusta, also was reported to have sustained a heavy damage as a result of the storm.

The tornado struck the three mill villages and a fourth, Graniteville, all in the Horse Creek valley, and houses were swept away, trees uprooted and telegraph poles felled, leaving the section in darkness and without communication to the outside world.

The victims were caught under their falling homes, many of them being awakened by the falling timbers. In some sections the storm swept away everything in its path, scattering parts of buildings and furniture over the fields.

STORMS TRICK PLAYED BY STORM

The brunt of the storm appeared to have hit Warrenville and Safflower. Every house in a row of 12 except one in Warrenville, was razed and this also was the case at Safflower. Four houses were destroyed in Safflower. Storm of the dead were children under 10 years of age.

RIVER IN OVER ITS BANKS

MACON, Ga. (AP) - After the heaviest rain in Macon since the weather bureau was established 23 years ago, the Ocmulgee river was out of its banks early today and the government weather observer was preparing to issue flood warnings for both the Ocmulgee and Oconee rivers.

GUN MEN STILL AT OLD TRICKS

One Man Killed and Another Loses Arm in Continued Rioting in Belfast

BELFAST (AP) - Gunmen were active in the early morning hours today increasing tension in this city in spite of efforts by police and soldiers. A man was shot dead on Perry hill and John Kelly, a well known dealer, had part of his right arm shot off.

ATTEMPTED CRIME FAILS BUT BANK HEAVY LOSER

CARLENGLE, Pa. (AP) - Burglars early this morning tried to rob the vault of the First National bank of Mount Holly Springs, Pa. Police from here but obtained no money so far as known. The bank, however, lost all its records for 16 years, including the current ledgers, through fire started by an accidental torch.

SECURITIES WORTH ENORMOUS SUM ARE GONE WITH OFFICIAL BONDS AND NEGOTIABLE PAPERS VALUED AT OVER $150,000 DISAPPEAR FROM VAULTS

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) - Bonds and other negotiable securities valued at more than $150,000 have been stolen from the strong box of Dr. Thomas W. Evans Dental school and museum fund of the University of Pennsylvania. It became known late last night. Walter A. Unger, assistant treasurer of the fund, is being sought in connection with the case. Unger, who is 27 years old, disappeared from his home here last Tuesday.

Swedish Capitalists Reported Busy on Scheme to Create Business

STOCKHOLM (AP) - Leading Swedish banks are understood to be attempting to form a pool with a capital stock of $28,000,000 to promote Swedish trade with Russia by the purchase of Russian natural products.

Lure of Gold Still Attracts Searchers for Buried Treasure

Coccos Island, Famous as Place of Pirate Vaches, to Be the Scene of Another Hunt

SAN SALVADOR (AP) - A party of American treasure hunters has reached San Jose, Costa Rica, and applied to the government for permission to search for gold that is supposed to have been buried on Coccos Island. This island, 645 miles west southwest of Panama, is the locale of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island."

Adventurers have at one time and another visited this uninhabited spot in search of Spanish gold which Captain W. J. Morgan and his pirate crew are supposed to have stowed in Spanish churches in Peru in 1580. They have invariably returned empty handed.

RAILROAD WAGE OUT OF BALANCE WITH OTHER PAY

United States Labor Board Opens Hearing as to Proposed Reductions in Pay, Interesting Figures Are Offered

CHICAGO (AP) - Men engaged in work comparable to that done on railroads, employed in 1921 in 28 western states, are receiving wages much lower than those paid by railroad employes, according to a statement released today by J. W. Higgins, executive director of the United States Railroad labor board, at its hearing concerning wage disputes between the men and the roads.

STARVING CROWDS LIKE HUNGRY BIRDS AS AMERICAN CORN REACHES SUFFERERS

Towns of Famine-Stricken Area of Russia Present Pathetic Scenes as Provisions Are Unloaded in Effort to Alleviate Want and Misery of Wretched Populations

TRANTSYN, Russia. (AP) - Great crowds like hungry birds picking up falling grains, followed behind every truck that was unloaded from the first train bringing American corn to this stricken country. These red kered coats were unfamiliar but welcome means to starving peasants life-long accustomed to rye, wheat and barley. The news spread rapidly and hungry folk gathered from all directions.

Two hundred and fifty workmen were on the job to help the unloading instead of the 40 that were ordered. With completion of the task, a thousand teams will be started on their way there as every available resource must be concentrated on the problem of distribution to get a two months' supply to starving villages before the quickly approaching thaw makes all roads impassable.

SENATE REPORTS FAVORABLY UPON PRIMARY MEASURE

Bill Appropriating $350,000,000 for Reclamation with Preferential Rights to Soldiers Making Progress

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP) - The House today has approved a bill appropriating $350,000,000 for development of irrigation and reclamation, including swamp lands drainage, was reported favorably today by the senate irrigation committee.

The committee vote for the bill was unanimous. The measure has the endorsement of the administration, having been recommended by President Harding, approved by the secretary of the interior department, and promised a place on the republican legislative program.

Under the bill, irrigation projects would be formed and financed by the government, but with provision for repayment from lands sold. The secretary of the interior would fix prices for the land.

To finance the development work, certificates on the irrigation districts would be issued by the government through the federal farm loan board.

The bill prescribes that in the construction of projects services of war veterans shall be used whenever possible and in the opening of projects, former service men would have exclusive rights of entry for 60 days.

BONUS LEGISLATION IS GRADUALLY SHAPING UP

House Ways and Means Report Means Both Agreement on Compromise Bill

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP) - Final agreement on the compromise soldier bonus bill was reached today by house ways and means committee and authorized Chairman Fordney to present the measure to the house before adjournment today.

Representative Fordney announced that the democrats on the committee would be called in Saturday to pass formally on the bill. He said it was his plan to make a final report to the house immediately after the measure had been approved by the entire committee.

The democrats are not expected to submit a minority report. As finally drawn the measure carries four options which would permit a former service man, entitled to not more than $50 of adjusted service pay. It was stated that no changes in importance had been made in the new bank loan provision of the adjusted service certificate title or in the other options which would include Vocational training, home and farm aid, and land settlement.

DETAILS OF CONFESSION LETTER ARE GIVEN OUT

Revenge Plainly Set Forth as Motive for Killing of William Desmond Taylor

LOS ANGELES, Cal. (AP) - Police detectives and agents of the district attorney planned further investigation today of the letter received from Atlanta City, N. J., purporting to be a confession of the murder last February 1 of William Desmond Taylor, film director.

"We South Americans always take care of our women," read a part of the letter, which the police made public, and the name signed to it was said to be the name of a woman connected with the motion picture industry here, whose wife was believed to be a native girl of South America. The man left Los Angeles about the time of the murder, it was said, and the police had considered him in their investigation.

The woman was said to detail the wife's confession to her husband of an "affair" with the director, who later had her husband and the two of them planned and executed the slaying.

Manufacturing of Various Kinds Coming to the Front, in Sharp Contrast to Conditions in Past Centuries

JERUSALEM, (AP)—Palestine is beginning to rouse from its long industrial slumber. Manufacturing industries are springing up rapidly in this country...

This change is attributed here to Zionist activity. Carpet weaving products rank first in importance among the new industries...

The manufacture of houses and office furniture is making rapid strides. Two large Zionist factories are now busy producing all the wooden requisites of a home for Palestine as well as for Egypt.

DIAGNOSIS OF OWEN IS HANDICAP?

Two existing handicaps, however, seem to arrest his growth. The first is lack of electricity to run the machinery in factories and the second the lack of suitable harbors, piers and sheds to facilitate the handling of the sudden increase in imports and exports.

The Rotenberg scheme for generalizing electricity from the River Jordan which has already been approved by the government in London and to which work is to start soon, is expected to eliminate these handicaps.

ODD INCIDENTS OF FINAL DAYS

Mentality of Late Pope Said to Have Remained Active to Hour of Death

ROME, (AP)—Some incidents of the last two days of the illness of the late Pope Benedict XV have just become known. At intervals he was delirious and was taken by periods of lucidity. He talked to the prelates at his bedside about various subjects so widely different with so little pause between them that they were unable always to discern whether he was in full possession of his faculties.

A few minutes after he had told Professor Britannici "I would give my life for the peace of the world," he turned to Cardinal Gasparri and said: "One of my greatest regrets upon leaving this earth is that I shall not live to see the completion of the statue to Rampolla, my great master."

At another moment, evidently thinking of his nephew, Dolla Cletus, who had insisted upon seeing the pope in spite of his own serious illness, he kept repeating, "Poor boy, poor boy, who knows whether he has enough money to pay the cash to bring him here."

The Dolia Cletus are considered to be fairly well-to-do. The pope had taken the initiative last year of having a statue erected in the Vatican grounds to Cardinal Rampolla, had examined the plans and drawing himself and often called to watch the sculptor at his work.

ENTERS VIGOROUS PROTEST AGAINST PENDING STRIKES

Eight Thousand Granges to Receive Letter From Master Directing Marshalling of Sentiment in Opposition to Action by Coal Miners or Railroad Men in Any Manner Interfering with Production—Position of Public in Controversy is All Important

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Protest against a possible strike of mine workers and railroad employes is voiced in a letter to be read this week to every county and local subordinate branch of the National Grange, in a movement initiated by E. J. Lowell, of Fredonia, N. Y., Master of the National Grange to focus public opinion on the situation.

Eight thousand granges to which Mr. Lowell's letter was sent were asked to ascertain the opinion of their members and to make public their findings as well as any action taken by them.

"I want you to voice your protests," he wrote, "against any owners or management of railroads or owners of coal mines, or those in their employ, creating a strike which will stop the progress of our recovery from the terrible scourge of war. We are doing our part and we demand that both capital and labor do theirs. Whatever differences may exist between them must be adjusted without stopping the wheels of commerce."

Copies of the letter were sent also to members of the United States Senate, Mr. Lowell said, and replies endorsing his efforts have been received from many of them, including Senators Alexander C. Gray, Kerry, New Hampshire; Fernald, of Maine; Page, of West Virginia; Moses of New Hampshire; Williams of Ohio; and Polinder of Washington.

The text of Mr. Lowell's letter to the Grange membership follows: "The time has now arrived when it seems pertinent that the Grange should express itself in no uncertain terms in protest of a possible strike of mine workers and railroad employes."

"If a coal strike takes place as seems probable in April, the production of fuel, upon which the prosperity and well-being of millions depend, will cease. Although it is claimed that coal enough to last for a month or more is now above ground, any stoppage of production obviously will result in high prices in the near future. If railroad workers strike, the transportation upon which the food of millions depend will stop."

"A railroad strike, now, means farmers' products remaining unsold and spoiling in their barns. And that means famine, suffering and perhaps death in the cities. It means farm supplies piled up in railroad yards while fields wait for seeds, fertilizer and machinery necessary to make them productive."

"A strike in April at planting time wrecks a year's crop production plans. A coal strike comes less directly home to our people than to the people living in the cities, but an obligation to help makes it clear that the interdependence of all is a fact which is paramount in this republic. It is, in fact, the least pressing because our interest in this is secondary and financial, instead of primary and vital."

"If coal production stops people will suffer, and the spectacle of a comparatively small group of men and later of women, carrying the weapons of human misery and human suffering in order to impose their will, and their refusal to deal fairly with one another, and make others pay the penalty, is preposterous in this nation and in this world."

"The decision of every member of the Grange to do his part in building up an overwhelming public opinion for a fair and just settlement and the enforcement of such settlement to the utmost, will prevent any strike, owners, workers and the government must feel the power of this public opinion."

"No man or set of them in this country can succeed against a united public sentiment."

"I want you to voice your protest against any owners or management of railroads, or owners of coal mines, or workers in either, creating a condition that will stop the progress of our recovery from the terrible scourge of war, which we have just passed through. And express it in terms that will leave no doubt in any mind that we are in no way to be used to further the interest of either to the advantage of one or the other."

"We are doing our part and it is not unfair for us to demand that both capital and labor do theirs. Whatever differences may exist between them must be adjusted without stopping the wheels of commerce."

"I am expecting you, brothers and sisters, to take active interest in helping to promote the public sentiment that will bring this about. Whenever possible make every effort to have the opinion of your grange reported in the newspapers of your county so that this protest against an impending menace may be widely noticed."

EVANSTON, Ill., (AP)—Cowardice is a matter of physiology and not of morality and character, according to a theory advanced by Dr. Charles Louis Mix, professor of clinical medicine, Northwestern university.

"Fear is caused by the suspension of secretion by the adrenal glands, which are just above but connected with the kidneys. It is the stopping of the secretions at the moment of fright that causes the dilated pupil of the eye, the dry mouth, slinking knees and aching heart that are the symptoms of fear," says Dr. Mix.

Shattering of Tradition of the French Dressmakers Cause of Much Talk

PARIS, (AP)—That little world of the own in Paris which do to exclusively with the creation of women's clothing has been thrown into a high state of excitement through the reticent departure of one of its leading members in inviting newspapers to view his spring and summer dresses.

In doing so the dressmaker smashed a tradition as old as the Paris dress-making business. Itself which has always boasted of the fact that it need no newspaper to assist it to greatness.

Representatives of the press have been rigorously barred heretofore and many of the big establishments whose names are well known to American women have gone so far as to demand a special passport with a picture from all those who entered their establishments. PART OF OLD BUILDING LIKELY TO BE RESTORED

Palace of Fine Arts of Columbian Exposition to be Rebuilt, According to Plan

CHICAGO, (AP)—One corner of the old field museum in Jackson park, formerly the Fine Arts palace of the Columbian exposition, is to be restored by the American Society of Architects in an effort to raise funds for the restoration of the entire structure, said to be the finest example of pure classic structure in North America.

Six thousand Chicago club women are raising the money necessary to refinish the pavilion at the northern tip of the building to its original state. The work will cost $7500. A campaign will then be undertaken to finance the remainder of the work, using the restored pavilion as an example of what can be done.

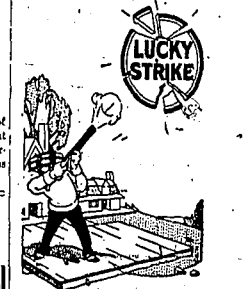

The vast building has stood empty since the field museum moved to its new home in Grant Park a year ago. The "ravages" of thirty winters, with their lake poles, have left indelible marks in crumbling plaster walls. The restoration is to be done in water proof cement.

STOP TRADING IN FUTURES BY TAX ON WHEAT

Proposal to Curtail Board Activities Except as to Actual Grain Sold and Delivered Involves Intricate Points

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The constitutional extent of the taxing power of the government is at issue in the supreme court in an attack brought by eight members of the Chicago board of trade upon the Future Trading act. The case, with three others involving the Child Labor law, presents, from the viewpoint of the government, one of the most vital constitutional questions to reach the court in recent years.

The government won the Future Trading case in the United States district court in Chicago before Judge Landis, but lost in the Child Labor cases in the lower federal courts in North Carolina. The two acts bring before the court, on somewhat different facts, oppositely similar constitutional questions. Opponents challenged the right of the federal government, in the exercise of its taxing power, to accomplish by what they term "subterfuge" regulatory control of matters within the police jurisdiction of the states. The government contended that the Future Trading act imposed an excise tax which congress, under the constitution, is authorized to lay and collect not only "to pay the debts and provide for the common defense," but also for the "general welfare of the United States."

SELL MORE WHEAT THAN ACTUALLY EXISTS

Contracts for the "future" delivery of grain amounts in some years, the government in the arguments before the supreme court asserted, to more than 20,000,000,000 bushels or three times the quantity of grain produced in all countries, although the amount of grain actually changing hands in Chicago, where five-sixths of the "future" trading is done, being a small fraction of one per cent of the total. The transactions in Chicago in 1910 amounted, it was stated, to 81 times the amount of wheat produced in the United States.

The Future Trading act imposes among other provisions a tax of 20 cents a bushel upon all transactions known as "puts" and "calls" wherever made, the object being to prohibit such trading, and a similar tax upon all contracts for "future" deliveries except those made upon a "contract" market or by the owner or grower of grain. Certain administrative provisions for the keeping of records and the making of reports, and for governmental supervision, are also embodied in the law. Designated grain contracts, to become "contract" markets, must, among other conditions, admit to membership representatives of agricultural co-operative associations.

DISTRIBUTION IS MAIN FACTOR

The government in defending the act took the position that the only constitutional limitation upon the power of congress to levy excise taxes is their arbitrary distribution geographically, congress being free to select the subject for taxation. Congress may use the taxing power, the government further contended, for social, economic and moral purposes. The purpose of the tax levied in the act in question, as explained by the government, was to correct grain marketing evils such as manipulation by large operators, speculative and unrestricted speculation in foodstuffs, dissemination of false crop information, gambling in "puts" and "calls," and other arbitrary interference with the law of supply and demand. It was not a punitive law, the solicitor-general asserted, imposing a tax to enforce regulatory measures which congress could not legally control by fine and imprisonment, but was intended to terminate what he called "wild orgies" upon grain exchanges.

Eleventh Commandment.
Answering a question as to the religious significance of the so-called Eleventh Commandment, a reader states that the answer is found in the book of John 13:34, in which Jesus said: "A new commandment I give unto you, that you love one another."

The Pneumonia Month.
March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system is much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ laden mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly.—adv.

COUNTY AUDITOR'S REPORT POINTS WAY TO LOWERING COST OF PUBLIC OFFICES

Consolidation of Taxing Units and Centralization of Authority is Remedy Prescribed for High Tax Burden—Advantage of County's Operation on Cash Basis is Shown by Comparative Figures

Multiplicity of taxing units without centralized responsibility is a prime cause of increasing cost of operation and maintenance of public offices, according to an analysis of the annual financial report of Twin Falls county, issued today by C. C. Higgins, as county auditor.

The analysis, which is embodied in the report, is the joint production of Mr. Higgins and Frank C. Lynch, deputy auditor. It marks an innovation in the issuance of annual reports for the county.

An edition of several hundred copies of the report has been issued in pamphlet form and is available for distribution among persons interested in the subject.

CASH BASIS PROVES ITS SUPERIORITY

An analysis of this report will show the actual financial condition of Twin Falls county, as of January 7, 1922; it will show the revenue accrued, the cash receipts, and from what source they were derived; all expenses detailed and distributed; balance sheets showing the indebtedness of each and all of our taxing units and many other items of interest to our citizens and taxpayers.

By comparing this report with reports for preceding years, it will show the decided advantage of conducting our public affairs upon a strictly cash basis. In the year 1919, Twin Falls county proper paid in interest on outstanding contracts approximately, in the year 1920, $3085.07, and in the year 1921, only $383.75. In order to make this saving to the taxpayers possible, it became necessary, as you will note in the various balance sheets, to build up a surplus in each fund to take care of taxes that go delinquent each year, the amount of which is increasing each year.

Each year, our citizens and taxpayers are demanding that the county take care of more and more public services, such as health, care of the poor, pest education of the farmer and numerous other activities that were formerly taken care of by either individuals, families or organizations.

Our laws provide that our county commissioners make a levy of $15 per pupil for the county general school fund and the 1920 school census had so substantially increased, that it became necessary for the county to increase their general school tax by $21,000. Our heavy 1921 criminal calendar, added approximately $18,000 to county taxes. You will note, that the care of the poor alone cost the county over $31,000 for the year, 1921.

Of all taxes extended upon the 1921 assessment roll, 40 per cent goes for the past and present education of our children; 15 per cent for the payment of interest on outstanding bonds (the greater part of which goes out of our county and state); 9 per cent for the cost of state government and interest on state bonds; 9 per cent for the operation and maintenance of our cities and villages; 5 per cent for the current expenses of our county government, which includes salaries, supplies, capital outlay, courts, care of the poor, contributions, appropriations, etc.; 7 per cent for special improvements in our cities and villages; 6 per cent for construction, operation and maintenance of our county highway, six-tenths of 1 per cent for the redemption of our county courthouse and jail bonds, four-tenths of 1 per cent for operation and maintenance of our county fair; and 2 per cent for improvements, operation and maintenance of our county hospital.

During the year 1921, Twin Falls county's valuation increased 9.13 per cent; state taxes increased 3 per cent; county taxes decreased nearly 4.2 per cent, which is attributed to the fact that our county road levy was eliminated in compliance with an act of our last legislature; city and village taxes increased approximately 50 per cent; highway taxes increased approximately 7 per cent; and all school district taxes increased approximately 80 per cent.

TAXPAYER SHOULD STUDY PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Our taxpayers are stockholders in our public business and as such, should interest themselves to some extent, at least, in our public affairs. There may have been some question as to the advisability of a law making suffrage compulsory, but there could be no question as to the advisability of a law (if it could be enforced), making it compulsory upon every taxpayer to interest himself in acquiring a certain amount of knowledge of the activities and financial affairs of the various branches of government to which he pays taxes.

The complexity of our local government is not generally known. The various special laws enacted from time to time by our legislators, together with our general laws, have assisted in making our public business the most unscientific of any known business organization. Counties are divided into separate units, known as cities, villages, highway districts, drainage districts, road districts, independent school districts, rural high school districts and common school districts, and each of these districts have their own functional organizations and taxing levying powers, made possible under our general and special laws.

There were in Twin Falls county during the year, 1921, 59 separate taxing districts, with their authority to levy taxes under general and special laws and twenty custodians of cash, derived through taxation, exclusive of our county treasurer, who, however, does act as agent in the collection of all taxes.

Under the privilege granted our representatives in the legislature to introduce and have enacted special laws, making it possible to divide our county into independent units and other laws giving our people the further privilege of subdividing our independent units into other concrete units, the authority and responsibility is so divided and dissipated, that efficiency and responsibility is apparently destroyed and the cost of operation and maintenance steadily increases.

An analysis of a great many laws that have been enacted, governing the powers of our taxing levying bodies and the actions and duties of our public officials, will show, that they are to a very large extent, ambiguous, impractical and conflicting, to such a degree, that our most brilliant attorneys are, at a loss, when called upon to diagnose them.

There is no form of accounting that occupies a higher plane or position of general importance than governmental accounting. It is a fundamental principle in any business, that the efficiency and economy of administration cannot be any higher than the accuracy and intelligence of the information produced by an adequate system of accounts, and our public business is the largest single business in our community or our country. Cash receipts and net revenues and disbursements are not expenses, yet our present laws affecting the accounting procedure of our taxing units do not contemplate a system of accounts beyond the account of cash received and cash disbursed. Governmental management, economy and accounting procedure has not developed, as other business, by reason of the fact, that it is covered by no body of organized information; it is not included in the curriculum of our high schools and courses on these subjects are, just recently being offered in our colleges and universities.

FEWER TAXING UNITS SHOULD BE GOAL

Instead of the continuous creation of additional taxing units, we should strive for consolidation of the ones we now have, insofar as is possible and practical, for only in this manner, can we have centralized authority and less overhead expense.

Our laws should provide for a budget system, for a uniform system of accounting in all taxing districts, for the maintenance of general books of account in all taxing districts, for the maintenance of general books of accounting control, that will, in fact, control the liabilities, the revenues, the expenses, the disbursements and the acquisition, disposition and custody of all values, all of which are absolutely necessary to exhibit correct information of the operations and financial condition of our taxing units.

FILED, Idaho.—Mrs. A. E. Anderson and children and Mrs. W. H. Detweiler and little daughter left the first of that week for the coast where they expect to spend several weeks with relatives. Mrs. Anderson will visit her mother at Bloomington, Ill., and Mr. Anderson's parents at La Grange, Ill., while Mrs. Detweiler will go to her former home at Philadelphia.

Mrs. John Elias who has been ill at her home on Main east for several weeks, was removed to the county hospital Wednesday where a successful operation was performed Thursday. The last reports indicated the patient was doing nicely, yet in no critical condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mungler have returned from California where they spent the winter.

A local fire department was organized at a fire meeting Friday evening. All members met to the Bull Sunday where they watched the Bull fire department practice its run, which it has every Sunday morning.

Little Jean and Joseph Malloy, while Mrs. and Mrs. J. P. Malloy, have been very ill for several days with the "flu," but are convalescing. Nearly every home in town has some member of the family afflicted with this epidemic.

Mrs. L. P. Larson and children of Kimberly, who spent several days the past week at the Malloy home, returned with their home Saturday evening. Misses Estella Macaw and Clara Hofficker were shopping in Twin Falls Friday.

Miss Estella Macaw entertained the sewing circle at her home on North street Thursday evening.

A Diplomat

Jud Tunkins says he knows a man who never did a day's work who uses the word "unemployment" as a substitute for plain loafing.

PRIDE of craftsmanship was the thing which gave to the glass blowers of Venice their position as the foremost skilled artisans of the world; and today, in every line of human endeavor, good work follows directly upon the wish to excel in the heart of the craftsman.

This has been true since the days of the building of the Pyramids and it is true today, and in no craft in-existence is the element of desire to excel more firmly implanted than in the printing business.

When better printing becomes possible, the printers of Twin Falls will produce it!

THE best printing obtainable anywhere may be had here.

Possibly this has not always been true, but it's true today.

There is no better paper, no better ink, no better or more modern type faces and no newer machinery in the printing business anywhere than that in daily use in Twin Falls.

And, as a result---
Twin Falls Printing is uniformly good printing!

The American Falls Project

To Be or Not to Be?--- That Is the Question

If You Are Interested in the Present and Future of Snake River Valley and South Idaho, Read This Statement

This statement is designed to give a clear outline of the situation relative to the American Falls reservoir project, to impress the manner in which the momentous enterprise is imperiled, and to relate as briefly as possible the details of plan for saving the project to the state, which has been approved by groups of men who are not only directly interested in the success of the project from a purely local standpoint, but from the angle of all south Idaho.

Why Project Is Threatened with Abandonment

In telegrams and letters from high reclamation officials in Washington, D. C. and from statements made by Secretary Fall to representative men who have visited Washington, there is no room for doubt that the government will abandon the American Falls project unless the companies and districts contracting for storage water in the reservoir make their payments.

Delay at this time means that the American Falls project will be lost to Idaho for many, many years, if, in deed, it shall ever be revived.

Plan to Save the Project to Idaho

In the face of this grave emergency, conferences of men representing the various contracting companies and districts, attended also by leading men of South Idaho, including Governor Davis, after careful thought, evolved a plan to save the project to Idaho.

In a word, this plan is to form a gigantic irrigation district embracing in general way the Snake River basin from Rigby to Twin Falls.

Advantages of the new big district plan over the formation of a number of small districts are many. Some of the points are, that considerable property could be included that might not be embraced in the small districts, thereby strengthening the district and furnishing financial participation with the farmers. As an illustration, we cite railroad and similar property.

Another advantage is found in the floating of securities of the large district at a lower interest rate as contrasted with those of smaller districts. Still another good reason is that in the attempted formation of smaller districts each would probably fail on the other, thus greatly delaying action, in the face of the fact that this matter must be disposed of very soon.

No Interference

The proposed district is to be purely a financing organization, and will not in any manner interfere with the operation or maintenance of any canal system within its boundaries. These systems will be managed by their respective officers as though the big district did not exist.

Existing irrigation districts within the American Falls storage influence will not be included in the big district, each, if coming into the American Falls enterprise, being already so organized as to be in position to handle their own obligations to the government. Some of these have already authorized bonds and are only awaiting the outcome of this campaign to market them and pay the government as per its contract.

If the district shall be formed, then the question of issuing its bonds to meet the payments to the government will be presented to the people.

It is realized of course, that no one desires at this time to take on any additional obligations that might be avoided. It is felt, however, that any study of the subject will convince the land owner that this proposed bond issue does not constitute a burden, but is the means of positive and genuine relief.

These bonds, when authorized, may be considered as a productive investment, exactly as the purchase of necessary farm machinery, seed, or dairy stock on 20 years' credit, at 6 per cent interest. Moreover, it is planned to include the interest with the principal on these bonds during the period of construction of the reservoir, and then, one year beyond that, so there will be no interest to pay until after benefits have been secured from the reservoir, after which natural increase will take care of the bonds.

IT IS ESTIMATED THAT ONE EXTRA BUSHEL OF WHEAT A YEAR PER ACRE, GROWN BY VIRTUE OF AN AMPLE, INSURED WATER SUPPLY, WILL PAY ALL INTEREST AND PRINCIPAL.

What It Means to the Present Land Owner

Putting aside the great question of general benefits to south Idaho, and analyzing the subject from the standpoint of the present land owner, it cannot be denied that the benefit of this storage water is beyond calculation. That has been the case under every storage system.

In Idaho there is an enduring illustration in the Arrowrock reservoir. When it was known that reservoir was to be built there was an immediate demand for any land to be benefited thereby. This resulted in immediate increased values and an active market, with the result that many took advantage of the opportunity and reduced their holdings, taking their profits, and, in many cases, using the same to improve to higher and more varied production the land retained. Values have ever since been stabilized.

When there has been severe water shortage and heavy losses in other parts of the state, lands under the Arrowrock reservoir have produced plentifully during the entire season, and there has never been a time when a good third crop of hay, for instance, has not been taken off.

There has been an increase in the farming population; which is important in itself, for dense farming population is responsible for the great agricultural development in the middle west and elsewhere. Additional local markets have been built up, for towns and cities grow in step with the progress of the country, so that better prices have been secured for farmers under the Arrowrock reservoir than in any other part of the state.

Bank and farm loan credits, when necessary, are more readily obtained because, standing back of every acre, is this wonderful water insurance.

Before Arrowrock reservoir was provided, there were heavy losses due to water shortage. At intervals of about five years this occurred, and more than wiped out the profits of the intervening periods.

What has happened there in that connection has occurred in the Snake River valley. Indeed, it is agreed that the loss in 1919 due to water shortage would have paid for the entire American Falls project, and it is certain that millions were lost in that year through water shortage.

The added protection, the increased demand for property, the standardization of value, creation of new markets, and the general stimulation of farming and all classes of business, as well as the avoidance of disastrous fluctuations due to water uncertainties, will be the reward of all those in Snake River valley, as the result of completion of this project.

While it is true that prices of farm produce have been low during the last year, no farmer would accept 1921 conditions as a criterion. Business was bad during that year in all lines, but no one contemplated voluntarily going out of business because of these conditions. It was inevitable that there should be a relapse after a period of intense prosperity and inflation. Having struck the bottom, we are now on the upgrade and will reach safe level commencing with the present year.

The great question is, shall we place ourselves in position to take the fullest advantage of surely approaching normal conditions? The American Falls project furnishes the big opportunity. The people of the Snake River Basin are to decide this.

The Power Contract

The rights on the river held by the Idaho Power company must be acquired by the government in order for it to proceed with the American Falls project. After three years of negotiation with the Trust company that holds the trust for the several thousand owners of the Idaho Power company, a contract was agreed to. The power company accepted the government's offer of one million dollars for its holdings, in the face of the fact that it had paid the Brady interests a larger sum for the same, and had since spent much in betterments.

The company's acceptance of the government's offer was no doubt influenced far more by the possible great development in the Snake River Basin than by any consideration of present value of its plant.

Without approval of this contract nothing can be done, and Secretary Fall has refused to approve the contract until the companies and districts provide means to meet their payments.

In other words, the American Falls project goes down with a crash unless definite, certain arrangements are made to meet those obligations.

The plan herein outlined to meet and conquer the situation has been approved by representatives of the various companies and districts and many others. It is entirely feasible, and does not create a burden. It is the only means through which the situation can be saved, as it has been demonstrated that payment from present available cash is impossible.

Salient Points to Be Considered

We would emphasize, among other statements, the following: The water to be impounded in the American Falls reservoir is to be used to a very large extent in supplementing the present insufficient supply of a number of canal companies and districts covering a large area, sections on which have, especially during years of low stream flow, suffered enormous crop loss by reason of drought.

Construction of the reservoir will forever banish the short water year and provide insurance against future loss, thus placing these farmers on a continuing profit basis, and, in addition, supply water for an excess of a half million acres of arid land which is now largely uninhabited.

This storage water will also serve, in addition, a considerable area of dry farm land being operated with intermittent success. Loss of crops thereon in years of drought, and consequent reduction of crops, renders it extremely difficult to operate them at a profit. Unless water is provided it is feared abandonment of much of this property may be forced.

The American Falls reservoir site occupies a strategic position in the watershed, and when the reservoir is completed will afford complete control for the entire Snake River flow, making it possible to utilize to the best advantage the entire stream.

If the American Falls project should be abandoned now, placement reservoir construction might be undertaken, tending to make the American Falls infeasible even if attempted in the future. The distribution of water in other directions would also add to the improbability of construction ever being proceeded with.

Should the work at American Falls be suspended now, it would produce a disastrous effect upon all lines of business, and set back agriculture in the Snake River valley for many years. Such hopes have been built by the people who have been suffering from financial depression, believing that this great undertaking would certainly be carried out by the government, that the suspension or abandonment we are proposing to prevent would act most disastrously.

Others Want Water

There is more land in southern Idaho than there is water to irrigate it. There is also a demand for water for power purposes. It goes without saying that Snake River water is not going to remain available for very long. The present plan is designed to make sure a full water supply to land now under cultivation, and then provide for new lands. If the present scheme is to be abandoned, new projects will be able to get priority for their water rights.

Director A. P. Davis of the U. S. R. S. has well said that when all projects have all the water they need, fighting over water rights and priorities becomes unnecessary, and each water right is on an equal footing.

Misapprehension

Some misapprehension has been created by the fact of an appropriation bill carrying $1,200,000 for 1922 for the American Falls project.

This, in reality, means nothing unless we are to go ahead with the project. If our obligations are paid, the government will have funds available to match the payments of the companies and districts. If work on the reservoir is not to be continued, there will be no application of this money. For example, last year there was appropriated $1,750,000 for the Midlocka project, of which the American Falls is a part so far as appropriations are concerned, but up to date only $304,000 of that sum has actually been made available, and only about $100,000 for American Falls.

Putting it in another way: Such appropriations merely provide an appropriation of money from the reclamation fund, and do not mean necessarily that the amount specified will ever be expended, and it certainly will not be expended at American Falls unless the obligations referred to shall be met.

There is also some misapprehension in regard to the McNary-Smith bill. If that bill should be passed it would not affect the American Falls project because of the existing and fixed financial set-up. However, it would provide a market for the bonds of the district.

That measure need not be dependent on, however, as a bond market provision, for there is an active demand for irrigation district bonds certified by the state, as would be the case with these bonds.

That is occasioned by the fact that these bonds are exempt from taxation of all kinds, a condition that will not long exist. There is no doubt that congress will shortly make all such securities subject to taxation. Investors know this, and that is the reason they are anxious to acquire these bonds, and it is also another strong reason for prompt action on our part.

Questions Answered

The following may answer some questions that have been asked:

The maximum size of the reservoir is 3,000,000 acre feet. At prevailing prices it is estimated that the cost for that size reservoir would be about $420 per acre foot. A reservoir of 1,500,000 acre feet would cost between $6 and $7 an acre foot. It is confidently expected that enough companies will come in to insure the one and a half million reservoir, if anything, and there is little doubt it will be built to its full capacity because of activities relative to the Bruneau project which have been pronounced in view of the revival of interest in the American Falls enterprise.

The estimate of $10 per acre foot was made in 1919 when prices of labor and material were very high and contemplated only a minimum reservoir, or less than the million and a half acre foot capacity.

No new land is to be included in the district, but it is all to be land that is ready for cultivation and needs water insurance, and has distributing systems.

To assume that any part of the obligation of the district might have to be paid by some other portions of the district is to assume that cultivated land in the Snake River valley is not worth more than $3 to $5 per acre, for these bonds, if authorized, will be a prior lien. Moreover, there is not a company in the district that is not in good financial condition and able to meet much more than its share of the obligation contemplated by this bond issue.

The ownership of the water rights in American Falls is absolute and the entire 100 per cent thereof will be delivered every year. There will be no pro rating, except, possibly, in any district coming in after these contracts are carried out. Any new district would have to stand on its own financial bottom and would not be in the big district, and the big district would be in no way responsible for it. It might have to take top rights, as against the 100 per cent rights of those contracting earlier. This right as to companies in the big district is in effect a deed from the U. S. government, and is perpetual after the contract has been paid.

The only exchange of water storage in the Jackson Lake contemplated by the government is the Jackson Lake storage now applicable to Midlocka project. If the American Falls project goes through, the Midlocka project will be supplied from American Falls, and its present Jackson Lake supply of the Midlocka project will be used for land above American Falls. Any companies below American Falls having Jackson Lake storage at the present time can dispose of it if desired, and at a much larger price than was paid, but there is no compulsion. This is up to each company.

No part of the money already spent at American Falls, and no part of the amount that may be paid for the power rights there will come out of the funds arising from the proposed bond sale. This money comes from the reclamation fund direct. The bond money will be used for construction.

The suggestion to include cities in the district is simply a reflection of the desire of cities to assist in any way possible. As this is not an operating district and will have nothing to do with the operation or maintenance of canal systems in any way, shape, or form, no participation by the cities would ever affect the canal systems. If the contract obligation is met it will require certain payments, if the farmers are in position to meet these payments alone and prefer to do it that way. If not, and if the people in cities are willing to help do it, desired, and it is the legal way for them to do so. If not wanted, they will not be put in.

Any present contribution by them will hardly be satisfactory because it might not be dependable from year to year, but if they were in the district they would pay in direct, but of course every year, and this cities proper only when the surrounding country prospers.

The whole situation might be summed up in this manner:

Do we desire to make good our contracts with the government?

Do we pay for the reservoir every five years any way by our losses due to periodical water shortage, so why not have it?

The future development of irrigation in Idaho depends absolutely on storage reservoirs. Without the American Falls there is no chance whatever for developing such projects as the Bruneau and the Murrtaugh districts.

The Last Chance

This statement, prepared and sent you by the Idaho Reclamation Association, which is supported and maintained by Idaho taxpayers, and which is devoted to the further development of irrigable Idaho, gives you the plain, unvarnished facts.

The loss of the American Falls project can hardly be computed in dollars and cents. Its retention and completion would mean such a large and continuing profit, no thought of permitting abandonment when no real expense is required to save and complete it, should be considered in the mind of anyone in this territory who is interested in his own welfare and in the welfare of his state.

You will hear from us again. Discuss this subject with your neighbors, your lawyer, your banker, and enlist in the movement to insure your own greater prosperity and a greater Idaho.

Answer this question: Can we permit this big, last chance to slip from our grasp?

This statement is the beginning of a campaign in the Snake River Basin to summon the people to aid in saving the American Falls project and to be done at the people's expense and at actual cost.

Inquiries are earnestly solicited.

CHAPTER VI

"I don't believe she's guilty, mother..." The girl's fine eyes shone with feeling—with protest, indignation, anguish

"Let us go to Dublin, mother," she said with a determined air, after reading the clipping... "Why, my dear?"

"The woman's eyes, with their long lashes, looked intently into her daughter's face... She felt as if the years went on, that Sheila had gifts granted to few

It was as hazy a lass as ever the old world produced... It was a country gentleman, and he was a country gentleman

"Yes, we ought to go to Dublin, mother... The mother shook her head mournfully

"My child, we could do him no good at all—none whatever... It's an expensive journey, and the repairs we've been doing on a new car are

"Oh, my dear, I speak of what I know! I have been away from Ireland for a long time, and am ever glad to go back

"Now with my love to you and Sheila... As Sheila read, the tears started from her eyes; and at last she could Sheila took the letter. It ran as follows: "Dearest Sister: It is eleven years since I wrote to you, and yet, though it may seem strange, there have not been eleven days in all the thirty-six I have not written you and Sheila were born

"The girl's head dropped, and her eyes filled with tears... CHAPTER VII Dyck's Father—Visits Him In vain Dyck's lawyer, Will McCortick, urged him to give absolute to the government, telling of the projected invasion of Ireland by the French fleet, and saying that it had come to him from a sure source

"Regarding the death of Boyle, the only thing in the world which I have not shared with you is the fact that his own sword-point was free from stain... "What there had been no duel was clear from the fact that Ernie Byrne's sword was withdrawn

"On one of the days of the trial, Dyck's father, bowed, morose, and obstinate, came to see him... "I love Calhoun looked at his son with dejection. His eyes wandered over his father's lined face

"Who would profit?" asked Dyck... "The man who would profit first, for I might break the dark chain of circumstantial evidence... "Think of others!" said Dyck, and a queer snarl lighted his haggard face

"The old man fumbled with a waistcoat button... "You don't see," he continued, "the one thing that's plain to my eyes, and it's this—that your only chance of escape is to tell the truth about the quarrel... "I believe it would be to your credit—I say that for you... "And you won't speak to save my poor father's cause? You don't love what your own soul is that I've asked Miles Calhoun

"I'm different—it's different... "Never mind what it is. I will not tell, for the things were shameful

"You're loving brother... "BRYAN"

If only I could, I would not thank the one which I have taken. And so I will not do it—never—never!

"I Have Never Shamed You, Miles Calhoun"

will not tell the cause of the quarrel, for the reason that you might hurt somebody. If you don't tell the cause, and you are condemned, won't that hurt somebody even more?"

For a moment Dyck stood silent, absorbed. His face looked pained, his whole appearance shriveled. Then, with dejection, he said: "This is not a matter of expediency, but of fidelity. My heart tells me what to do, and my heart has always been right."

There was silence for a long time. At last the old man drew the cloak about his shoulders and turned toward the door. "Don't go like that, your mother would be so mad as to say I've done her wrong. It's for some time that on the edge of his bed, buried in dejection. Presently, however, the door opened.

"The letter for you, sir," said the little girl.
