MANAGER PLAN INVOLVES FINE POINTS OF LAW

Attorney General Says "Very Nice Close Question" is Presented in Existing Political Situation Here

According to Roy L. Black, attorney general of Idaho, and the author of the black law which provides for organization of towns in Idaho under the commission form of government adopted by vote of the people at a special election Tuesday, "a very nice close question" is presented by the situation here with respect to the election for submission of the city manager plan to be held April 18.

Appeal to Courts Likely. Unless the question is determined by the court, the election will be held, according to the statement of Taylor Cummings, city attorney and chairman of the city manager plan committee. Advocates of the commission form have instructed their leaders, H. C. Mills and E. F. Walker, to file an appeal before the court for determination by way of injunction proceedings. Mr. Mills today indicated that the injunction proceedings should not be instituted until after the official canvass by the city council of the vote cast Tuesday on the commission form question.

The attorney-general's ideas on the subject are contained in a letter written February 10 in reply to inquiry from former Mayor M. J. Sweoley, which was made public by Mr. Sweoley today.

In this letter the attorney-general says:

Statute Lack of Definiteness.
"Answering yours of the 31st ultimo, may say that under the commission form of government for cities there seems to be no definite statement of the time when that form of government shall become effective after the election for that purpose. Section 4174 provides that immediately after the election the mayor shall transmit to the governor, secretary of state and county auditor a certificate showing that the proposition was adopted and giving the date of the election. Section 4175 provides for the city immediately proceeding to the election of councilmen. Section 4176 provides that previous charters shall not be effective after the city becomes organized under this charter.

Question as to Time.
"Under the foregoing statutes the question seems to resolve itself into the exact time adopted that the commission has by its election or otherwise actually adopted the commission form and when that law becomes binding after the day of election as to whether or not it is immediately after the election or after the election of officers. Of course, it is not certain as to what the legislature intended by the time of adoption, but the law provides that the mayor shall immediately transmit to the secretary of state and auditor a certificate showing the proposition was adopted and giving the date of the election. It would be at least a reasonable interpretation of all these statutes to hold that the commission form became binding immediately after the election. This would seem to be reinforced by the provisions that the council must immediately proceed under provisions of the commission form in the calling of an election for the election of officers. While the old officers in the actual work of calling the election, they recognize the existence of the new law by being required to immediately proceed under the commission law to call the election.

Priority in Question.
"If this is true, then it would seem that the balance of the question would hinge on whether or not the special provisions in the commission form law that cities once adopting their form could not change the six-year term controlled as against the general law, section 4209, which reads as follows:

"Any city within the state of Idaho organized under the general law of the state or under special charter or under a general incorporation act or under hereafter having, as shown by the last preceding state or national census, a population of 2500 persons or over that number, may adopt the city manager form of government as hereafter provided by proceedings as hereinafter provided.

"The special provision of the commissioner of the general law of the state is found in section 4207, which reads as follows:
"Any city which shall have operated for more than six years under the provisions of this chapter may abandon such organization hereunder and accept the provisions of the general law of the state."

Very Nice Close Question.
"The courts never around a good deal upon the question of the effect of a later statute upon some previously existing law. The general rule, however, as announced by our supreme court in its latest decision, seems to be that the special law controls over the general law. If that rule is maintained in a situation such as is presented by these two laws; that is, if the court should find that the six-year provision is a special act and the provisions in section 4209 is a general law, then it would appear to me the special law would be controlling. It is apparently a very nice close question and I have not had time to go into the matter so far as outside decisions are concerned and have only construed it from the statutes themselves."

LIVERPOOL WHEAT PRICES

Upturn of Early Decline is Maintained Durable Day by Persistent Demand —Corn is Sympathetic

CHICAGO, (AP)—Owing chiefly to an unexpected advance in Liverpool quotations, the wheat market here made a material upturn in price today during the early dealings. Gossip was current that much smaller shipments from Argentina this week might be "bunked for." Scandinavia of America's farm deliveries and nearness of the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes were also talked of as contributing bullish factors. The opening, which varied from 1-2 to higher, with May $1.32 1-2 to 1.33 and July $1.18 1-2 to $1.18 3-4, was followed by a slight setback as then by gains in some cases above initial top figures.

Talk of an import duty of 80c on wheat tended later to carry prices further up. Cash market here made a further advance on gains. Persistent buying subscribed to stable interests that were the leading sellers last week gave the May delivery a decided hold in value

MONDELL SAYS DOVE OF PEACE NESTLES CLOSE

Republican House Leader in a Statement Declares Congress is Not at Loggerheads with President Harding

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—Congress and President Harding are not at loggerheads, despite the impression created by "certain writers and certain newspapers," Representative Mondell, Wyoming, Republican leader, declared today in a statement which he said he had prepared for delivery as an address in the house.

Religious Are Pleasant.
"The fact is that instead of the president and congress at loggerheads as these writers and journals would have the country believe," stated Mr. Mondell, "there never has been a line of any quarter of a century of experience in congress when the relations between the president and congress, particularly the house of representatives were more pleasant, cordial, sympathetic and harmonious than at the present time."

"Any one who will take the trouble to read the recommendations of President Harding to this congress from time to time and to examine the record of congress will find that practically all of these recommendations have either been written into law or are in process of enactment and this applies particularly to the record of the house."

Invites Comparison.
The republican leader said he invited comparison with any period of American history and challenged anybody to find a record of "finer relations or more harmonious co-operation" between the president and congress. There has been a general and substantial accord, he added, not only on matters of primary importance, but in the consideration of many questions of detail and policy.

Declaring that there seemed to be a "systematic attempt" on the part of various newspapers and writers to create the impression that there was friction between the executive and republican congressional leaders, Mr. Mondell asserted that the anti-boss campaign of certain metropolitan newspapers has given us the finest examples we have yet had as to the length to which some people are willing to go in a campaign of misrepresentation.

Efforts are also being made, Mr. Mondell declared, to make it appear that there is a wide rift between the president and republican leaders in congress over legislation affecting the army and navy.
"I venture the assertion," he added, "that the president's view with regard to the military establishment is much more nearly in harmony with the action which has been taken by the house than it is with the attitude of the majority of the newspapers and newspaper writers who have assumed to know and to promulgate his views."

SOLDIERS SHOW WAR STRAIN

The report of Burgen General Ireland of the United States army that recent physical examinations of regular officers disclose that many are suffering from a nervous disorder to which the name "psychasthenia" has been given, and which is attributed to the strain of war service, will interest psycho-analysts of the Freudian school.
They probably will see in its confirmation of their fundamental theory concerning the cause of nervous disease.

The only data available as to the prevalence of "psychasthenia" among former soldiers is that found in the report concerning the debilitation in the health of regular army officers, but the opinion is expressed that thousands of others who saw war service are suffering from it, and that in it may be found a partial explanation of the restlessness noted in many veterans.

Dr. Sigmund Freud's theory is that nervous disorders such as this result from the suppression of desires, or to put it in another way, from a conflict between the subconscious and the conscious mind. Man has inherited from millions of generations of savage ancestors certain strong primitive instincts. The conventions of civilized society interfere with the gratification of these instincts. Entrapped in the sub-conscious mind, the theory is, they seek for recognition; but the conscious mind will not permit their expression. Unless the instincts find an outlet, according to Freud, they may cause nervous disorders. (It is explained, however, that it is not necessary that they should be given the outlet they crave; they may be "sublimated"—that is, turned into channels of expression to which the conscious mind will raise no objection.)

The psychoanalysts say that the "psychasthenia," with which the war veterans are afflicted was caused by their repression of the instinct of self-preservation. Throughout the years during which man was a wild animal, and compared with which the period of civilization is as but a span, our ancestors, undisciplined and unorganized ran away, if they could, when confronted with horror and peril like that which the soldiers faced on the battle front in the world war. The instinct of self-preservation, inherited from these forefathers and strongly implanted in the sub-conscious mind, called to the men of 1917 and 1918 to run away, too; but the conscious mind told them to ignore this instinct and do their duty, and they heeded the latter. The conflict Freud's followers will tell you, produced the nervous disorder reported by General Ireland.

It would add to the value of the report if a comparison could be made with the health of soldiers after previous wars. It may be that there is a special cause for the present situation which did not apply in other straggles.

PAY SOMETHING NOW.

There are two kinds of "pay in full" men. One is the man who pays in full on the nail; the other is the man who puts off paying anything on account until he can pay in full. Everybody likes the former sort; but the latter could improve his methods by paying on account as he can. It is better to pay 25 per cent at stated intervals than to hold up payment until enough money has accumulated to wipe out an account. Any merchant would prefer to receive payments on account by the month than to wait for five or six or seven months and then receive the same amount that would have been paid in monthly payments.
It is a good thing for any man to learn—that even if he cannot pay an account in full it is his duty not to wait, but to pay what he can; such payments get back into business, help the merchant who has given him credit, make it plain that he is keeping his eye on his account, and causes the opinion that he means to pay as quickly as he can. It ought to be the plan of every man who buys on credit to pay a certain part of his account at stated intervals; it is far better for everybody concerned for him to pay in this way than to wait until he has accumulated enough to pay the whole account.

CHAPTER XVII

Out of the Hands of the Philistines That night the Maroons broke loose upon Jamaica, and began murder and depopulation against which the governor's activities were no check. Estates were invaded, and men, women and children killed, or carried into the mountains and held as hostages. In the middle of each seven-part of the island the pitiless savages went on without being stayed; planters and people generally killed at the governor's aid, and through his neglect these dark things were happening. It was said he had failed to punish offenders by the Maroons, and this had given them confidence. Killing them with contempt and disdain. They had one advantage not possessed by the government troops and militia—they were masters of every square rod of land in the middle and west of the island. Their plan was to raid, to ambush, to kill without mercy, and to excite the slaves to rebel.

The first attack on the governor took place not far from Emankillen, Dyck Cathoon's plantation, and Michael Clones captured a Maroon who was slightly wounded.

Michael explained him thus: "Come now, my littlest friend, tell us what's your complaint—what ails you right? What's your grievance? You don't do this without cause—what's the cause?"

The black man, miked except for a cloth about his loins, and with a small bow in his hand, slung from a cord over his shoulder, showed his teeth in a stark grimace.

"You're a new-comer here, massa, or you'd know we're treated bad," he answered. "We're robbed and trod on and we take no good word kept with us. We asked the governor for more land and he moved us off. So we rose, massa, and we'll make Jamaica sick before we're done. They can't conquer us, for we can hide and ambush here, and show those that come after us. He hide, one behind this rock and one behind that, never more than two or three together, and we're safe.
You'll see; we'll capture captives and generals, and we'll cut their heads off and bury them in their own guts."

He made an ugly grimace, and a boastful gesture, and Michael Clones felt the man ought to die. He had draw his sword, but, thinking better of it, he took the Maroon to the castle and locked him up in a slave's hut, having first bound him and put him in the charge of one he could trust.
But he had the man's name, he said:
"You talk of your people being able to hide and men not being able to find you; but did you never hear of bloodhounds that can smell you out and hunt you down, and chew you up?
Did you ever hear of that?"

The man's face wrinkled like a rag, for there was one thing the native fears more than all else and that is the tooth of the hound. But he gathered courage and said: "The governor has no hounds. There ain't none in Jamaica, and I know that—of us know that—all of us know that, massa."

off thing to a dirty, black business.
Dead, that's sure.
A few moments afterward he met Dyck Cathoon.
"Michael," said Dyck, "things are safe enough here, but we've prepared the overseers, bookkeepers and clerks, and this is different. A hundred Maroons are as good as a thousand white soldiers in the way the Maroons fight.
There are a thousand of them, and they can lay waste this island, if they get going. So I propose to stop them.
The hounds are only just outside the harbor, Michael. The ship Vincent, bringing them, was sighted by a sloop two days ago, making slowly for Kingston. She should be here before we've time to turn round. Michael, the game is to play it as we play it—well. Do you go down to Kingston and—"

He detailed what Michael was to do on landing the hounds, and laid out plans for the immediate future.
Michael said he must help them one way or another. I think the hounds will scorch this whole wretched business, though. The governor can't rescue their landing now. The people would kill him if he did. It was I proposed it all."

"Look, sir—who's that?" asked Michael, as they saw a figure riding under the palms not far away.
It was very early morning, and the light was dim, yet there was sufficient to make out the man. It was Dyck shaded his forehead with his hand.

"It's not one of our people, Michael.
It's a stranger."
As the rider came he was stopped by two of the overseers on the estate.
Dyck and Michael saw him hold up a letter, and a moment later he was on his way to Dyck, galloping hard.
Arrived, he dropped to the ground and saluted Dyck.

"A letter from Salem, sir," he said, and handed it over to Dyck.
Dyck opened, broke the seal of the letter and read it out loud. He nodded again and laid the man out a hearty breakfast and return with him on one of the Emankillen horses, as his own would be exhausted.

"We're going down to help protect Salem," said Dyck.
The man grinned. "That's good," he answered. "They knew naught of the rising when I left, but the governor was there yesterday, and he'd protect us."

"Nonsense, fellow, the governor would go straight to Spanish Town where he belongs, when there is trouble. Tint such he knows of his duty, I'll say."

When the man had gone, Dyck turned to his servant, "Michael," he said, "the news in the letter came from Dorlus Island. He says the governor told him he had orders from England to confine me here at Enbankillen, and he meant to do it.
Well, we'll see how he does it. If he sends his men back to me, we'll make Gardner see to it."

There was a smile at his lips, but it was contemptuous, and the lines of his forehead told of resolve. "Michael," he added, "we'll hunt Lord Mallow with the hounds of our good fortune for this war is our war. We can't win it without me, and they shan't. Without the hounds it may be a two years' war—with the hounds it can't go beyond a week or so."

AUTOMOBILISTS STRIKE FATHER AND DAUGHTER

Continue Without Stopping After Running Down and Injuring V. W. Sloan and His Daughter

V. W. Sloan and his daughter, Miss Minerva Sloan, aged 10 years, walking homeward on the road north from the intersection of Main street and Madison avenue at about 9 o'clock Wednesday evening, were struck down from behind by a heavy car driven by unidentified persons who did not stop after the accident but turned around and came back to town.

Both father and daughter were rendered unconscious for a few moments by the impact; and both received extensive injuries. Mr. Sloan suffered several severe cuts on his head, and one leg was painfully bruised. The daughter's back was most severely hurt. She was hysterical when a physician arrived on the scene. She was taken to their home three quarters of a mile north on Washington street and one quarter of a mile west.

Police check car owners. Police officers were making a check of Cadillac owners. It was noted at the police station that a state law requires motorists to report to the authorities accidents in which they are involved. If the motorist does not file this case to report and they are apprehended, Chief of Police Ben J. Brown today indicated the maximum penalty under this law would be imprisonment.

HINTS AT BLACKMAIL IN HER SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Gager Says Husband Asks Her to Enter Collusion Against Citizen

Milton J. Gager, who recently instituted action in court here against H. B. Lutz for $10000 in damages for Lutz's alleged invasion of Gager's home during Gager's absence, is the defendant in a suit for divorce instituted Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Pearl Irene Gager, through her attorneys, W. P. Guthrie and E. J. Hornbrook, who, also, are attorneys for Lutz in the action for damages.

In her petition in the divorce action, Mrs. Gager says that her husband last December asked her to "enter into collusion with him for the purpose of blackmailing a citizen of Twin Falls," who alleges that her husband has failed to provide common necessities of life because of his idleness, profligacy and dissipation.

In her petition she asks for the custody of their two children, a boy, 15, and a girl, 13, for restitution to her husband's custody. She also asks for a decree of divorce.

FUGITIVE PAYS SPEEDING FINE

Possession of Whiskey Making Apparatus Believed Motive for the Flight

Levitt Floyd, 236 Fourth avenue east, in police court this morning paid a fine of $5 for breaking the speed limit while being pursued at about 9:30 o'clock by Chief of Police Ben J. Brown on Second avenue north.

Possession of two "manah" barrels found in his car when he was intercepted by the police chief at the end of the chase. Officers are uncertain whether the "manah" barrels Floyd carried in his car had just come into his possession or whether he had taken them out to empty their contents.

Floyd's car was observed first by the police chief as it came from the east on Addition avenue and turned north onto a muddy road that is Washington street instead of continuing on the pavement along Main avenue. As the car turned its lights were switched off. The chief swung over onto Second avenue, anticipating the course of the car under observation along a thoroughfare parallel with Main avenue.

The official summons proved correct and the chase that continued over several blocks in which a rate of speed estimated at about 40 miles an hour resulted.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores

Pimples, acne and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body. It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples. The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of iodine pills and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coating them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples. Iodine pills is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effective drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.
