MOVIE FINDS ALADDIN'S CAVE OF RARE JEWELS

Treasures of Churches Seized for Famine Relief Include Rare Works in Gold and Priceless Jewels

MOSCOW, (AP) — Four parishioners were killed and ten wounded when red guards fired into a crowd which was obstructing the doorway of a provincial church in an endeavor to prevent the authorities from executing the ransom notes demanded for the confiscation of church treasures, it was learned in Moscow today.

MOSCOW, (AP) — An Aladdin's cave of jewels has been opened by the decision of the soviet authorities to confiscate some of the treasures of the Russian churches and sell them to feed the famine sufferers.

Rare Hammered Gold. Most famous of the church treasures, described by the Moscow newspaper Ivestitsi, is the bejeweled iron, "Our Lady of Kazan," at the Kazan cathedral in Petrograd. It is a representation of the Virgin Mary in beaten gold, weighing ten pounds, and decorated with 1655 larger and 1432 lesser diamonds, 238 rubies, seven sapphires, 1400 pearls and 125 other jewels, and hung about the neck of the Virgin is a diamond necklace of bugs, first water stones.

Famous Gold Pieces. At Peter Paul's cathedral, also in Petrograd, there is another famous icon, known as the "Jerusalem Holy Lady," in solid gold. It is about two feet square, and contains 38 carats of large diamonds, 125 carats of medium-sized diamonds and 14 and one-quarter carats of smaller stones. Altogether, in this church, says the Ivestitsi, there are 24 almost equally valuable icons.

Find 81 Pounds. To St. Isaac's cathedral, Petrograd, dedicated on the day it was opened, a total of 215 articles containing 81 pounds of gold and 4788 pounds of silver and later a shrine was built of solid silver weighing 408 pounds. St. Isaac's has one of the largest icons, a wild by 28 inches high, done in gold overlay and bearing a wreath of large diamonds. There are a dozen other icons of tremendous value at St. Isaac's alone.

Many Rare Jewels. While these big Petrograd cathedrals were long favored by royalty, probably contain the most valuable treasures of the Greek Orthodox church in Russia, nearly every one of the estimated 61,000 other cathedrals, monasteries, convents and churches contains objects in gold and silver and jeweled icons are not at all rare, even in the smaller edifices.

Royal gifts, donations by pious parishioners and church taxes for centuries went largely into ornamenting the church.

Kazan cathedral was the holy of holies to the Cossacks. The Cossacks of the Don once sent to it 1440 pounds of silver, asking that it be made into icons of four of the apostles.

Many Rare Works. Beyond their value in precious metal and jewels, some of the objects might be extremely sought after by collectors. The Byzantine magnificence of the jeweled icons, however, might impress the western world as more ornate than artistic.

With a few scattered exceptions, wreaths some looting of churches may have occurred during the early days of the revolution, church treasures have been left practically intact.

—Belong to Parishioners

Patriarch Tikhon, the head of the Russian church, is understood to contend that, since the church and its state have been separated, the title to the treasures rests in the hands of the parishioners of each church and that, therefore, it is for each parish to decide whether it wishes to surrender for the famine sufferers.

He advised charity in this respect, but it is believed in Moscow that the church, as a whole, will strenuously oppose general confiscation, while willing to surrender those objects which it does not consider particularly holy or of essential use in sacramental observances.

Mr. Bryan began his lecture but in a short time asked his audience to excuse him as he was not feeling well. He then left the lecture, and a few minutes after which Mr. Bryan resumed.

He said: "I ought to put on the brakes, but here, had much to say I beyond my strength."

Suffer from Pinched Feet While They Talk of Demands at Genoa Meeting

RIJA, (AP) — Recognition of the soviet regime as the de jure government of Russia will be sought at the Genoa conference "not because this form of recognition has magic power, but because it will aid in restoring trade relations between Russia and the rest of the world," said Foreign Minister Chicherin, head of the soviet delegation, in an interview yesterday with the foreign correspondents.

M. Chicherin received the correspondents in the Russian legation. He was wearing patent leather shoes, which were new, still was good, his sandy beard had been trimmed carefully and like many others of the delegation he wore new patent leather shoes, which apparently pinched his feet. In his coat lapel was a tiny red flag, the insignia of office.

FRANCE ACCEPTS CLAIMS MADE BY UNITED STATES

Says Question is Whether Demands Should Be Made on Allies or Germany.

PARIS, (AP) — France replied today to the note from the United States concerning payment of the costs of the American military occupation of the Rhineland. The French note repeats the recent declaration of the minister of finance before the senate that France recognizes the rights of the United States in the matter. The only question is to whom the request for reimbursement should be made—the allies or to Germany, the note says.

The French foreign office characterizes the note as a mere acknowledgment of the American communication. The American embassy, however, considers the note a full acceptance of the claims as set forth in the American note.

These tablets contain no poison but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest the food naturally.

MANCHU RECORD IS KEPT ALIVE

Adherents to Follow President in Preserving Customs of Ching Dynasty

PEKING, (AP) — In spite of the fact that Ching dynasty has been out of power since 1911 and the present emperor of China is a virtual prisoner in the Forbidden City of Peking, all recent ceremonies conducted by the Manchus emperors are still kept up. At the Chinese New Year's celebration the customary honor was paid to the spirit of the emperor and his resting place at the tomb in Peking.

Food Placed at Tombs.

Offerings of food and provisions were placed before the tombs and the old Manchus officials who are still retained in office by the Ching dynasty knelt according to the custom prescribed in Manchus house law for the imperial family.

These officials are experiencing considerable difficulty in following out all the old customs because of the lack of funds available for the upkeep of the emperors' tombs. The funds promised to the imperial family by the republican government are usually not paid by the government and the officials are facing the one-time affairs of Manchus.

Royalty Gathers Wood.

At the eastern tombs many of the Manchus, deprived of the annual stipend formerly paid by the imperial government, have been forced to cut and sell wood in order to support themselves. The old tombs and villages are falling into ruins, the forests of the huge tract of land to the burial of the emperors are fast becoming devastated, and the monumental tombs are beginning to fall into ruin and decay.

Maintain Glory of Dead.

Every effort is being made by the officials of the tombs, however, to maintain the glory of the emperors and the ceremonies at New Year's typified the attitude of those faithful adherents of a departed order who pay by their own lives the price of the Ching dynasty, and the Manchus rule to be obliterated.

Katharine Newlin Burk, the author, has already contributed the story for one of Goldwyn's greatest successes—"The Branding Iron." In "The Man From Lost River" she is at her best. The background of the lumber camp is vividly real. Her men and women all seem actuated by strong, primitive emotions. The story is full of tense climaxes, stirring situations, electrical suspense.

House Peters heads the cast. He gives a dynamic performance in a role that suits his rugged, he-man personality to perfection. Fritzi Brunette is the girl, Allan Forrest is the other man.

And the picture will be called one of the greatest ever shown in this theatre.

TODAY'S MARKETS

WHEAT OPENS DULL AND SLIDES TO LOW LEVELS

Corn Holds In Sympathy, While Oats Edge Firm, Due to Wet Weather Conditions

CHICAGO, (AP)—Plentiful moisture in the domestic winter-crop belt together with weakness in the Liverpool market led lower prices today during the early dealings here in wheat.

The condition of winter wheat was figured at 73.7 per cent by a tending report as against 75.0 in December. It also estimated the probable yield as 550,000,000 bushels, compared with a December estimate of 527,000,000 bushels.

Opening quotations, which were down from 1-4 to 1-2 lower, with May $1.31 1-2 to 1-35 and July $1.18 1-2 to 1-18 3-4, were followed by slight further declines in some cases.

Hallies came out, but with milling and export demand rather slow, the market took a decided downward slide in the last half hour. The close was an uptick, 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 and lower with May $1.32 1-2 to 1-32 3-8 and July $1.17 1-2 to 1-17 5-8.

Corn sagged in value with wheat. After opening unchanged to a shade off, July 02 1-4, the market receded a little all around.

Oats, which were relatively firm owing to wet weather, started 7/8 to 1 higher, July 33 7/8 and gained a trifle more before beginning to react.

Downturn in the price of hogs brought about a decline in the provision market.

CHICAGO, (AP)—Wheat No. 4 hard $1.25. Corn No. 2 mixed 60 1-2c; No. 2 yellow 57 1/2 to 58c. Oats No. 2 white 37 1-2 to 40c; No. 3 white 35 1-4 to 37c. Cloverseed $15 to 22.

New York Stocks. NEW YORK, (AP)—Selected or special issues made further advances in gains in today's very active stock market but high grades lull and industrial shares only moderately. Sales approximated 3,400,000 shares. The short interest in the stock market was again forced to cover at the opening of today's session.

Various specialties such as Famous Vipers, American Ice, Corn Products and American Sugar made one point gains with Chandler Motors and New York Central. Studebaker, yesterday's strongest and most active issue, had a "wide" opening, but gradually reacted to a fraction under the final of the previous day. American Oil, Sumatra Tobacco, United Fruit, and Homeless Mining today made gains. Motors and equipment, especially Studebaker, Chandler, United Fruit, and New York Air Brake, extended previous gains, but otherwise prices closed on profit taking and the 5-1-2 per cent money rate. The closing was irregular.

Liberty Bonds. NEW YORK, (AP)—Liberty bonds closed: 3 1/2's $95.30; first 4's $96.34; second 4's $95.74; first 1-4's $95.00; second 1-4's $95.70; third 1-4's $92.50; fourth 1-4's $93.00; Victory 3-4's $100.02; Victory 3-4's $94.00.

FARMERS!

March 28, 1922.

TO OUR FRIENDS: We are informed by the Sugar Company Officials that the farmers on this tract are not signing up beet contracts to any great extent, and that unless an acreage sufficient to operate to capacity is secured, the factory will not run this fall.

We do not know whether or not you are aware of the enormous advantage which the factory is to the community. The Sugar Company distributed locally last year approximately $700,000.00 in payment for beets and factory payrolls. The factory gives employment to a great many farmers and this employment comes at a time when they otherwise would be idle, in fact, it is the only payroll of any considerable size which we have locally.

The feeding of by-products (pulp and molasses) creates a market for our hay, and enables every beet grower to feed more cheaply dairy stock, cattle and sheep.

The Sugar Company pays locally about $60,000.00 in taxes yearly which is a considerable advantage to this district. The fact of having a Sugar Factory in our community increases the value of our land, consequently increasing your credit value.

From the above you can readily see that to lose the Sugar Factory would be a calamity.

The tendency this year is to plant an abnormal acreage of potatoes over the entire country. Our freight rate puts us at a disadvantage, and given a normal potato crop we believe that the Idaho potato grower will have difficulty in finding a market and the probable inability of the railroads to provide sufficient cars will necessitate the storing of a large part of our crop.

We believe it would be very much safer farming if part of the acreage intended for potatoes would be planted to beets as diversified farming is invariably more successful.

The Sugar Company informs us that they will arrange to finance the hand labor on the crop.

We do not assume to dictate the business of our customers, but hope you will realize the vast importance of retaining the Sugar Company in this community.

QUITTING THE RHINE

The necessity for keeping American troops on the Rhine has passed, the war department has ordered that the remaining troops to come home no later than July 1, Secretary Weeks, publishing the order, intimates that neither the plans for army reduction nor the controversy over payment for our troops' maintenance about Coblenz influenced the department's decision.

The simple fact is that this country participated in the occupation of the Rhineland after there was excuse for being there. Occupation was provided for in the treaty of Versailles as a means of compelling Germany to carry out the stipulations of that agreement. But as the United States is not a party to the treaty it has no legitimate business enforcing its provisions.

It is economic pressure that will prove the most effective with the Germans; that and the degree of co-operation that may be found essential to enable them to earn the money and produce the goods they must deliver to the allies.

It is reported that foreign transportation officers are planning some sort of counter-action to the proposal contained in the Jones-Crooks ship subsidy bill which would insure the carriage by American vessels of 50 percent of the immigration to this country.

Intense interest is being shown by these foreign lines in the president's message on the merchant marine and the ship bill which was introduced soon after the message was delivered, and on which hearings have already commenced.

Extensive extracts of the message have been cabled abroad and there is a great demand on the other side for copies of the bill. It would not be surprising if an effort were being made for compelling lines to fill the measure, and already it is said, certain influences are being brought to bear in that direction.

Mr. Campers who is British born, recently went on record as condemning the measure. His report on the bill declares that the naval reserve position 'provides for a body of men who are to be used in case of strikes or lock-outs.' However, there is not a line in the bill which by the most strained construction, could fairly be interpreted in that manner.

THE OLD OREGON TRAIL

A Narrative of the Wilson Price Hunt Expedition in 1811-12 and the "Great Migration" Into the Oregon Country, in 1842-3

BY WALTER B. MERRIAM, President of the Old Oregon Trail Association

(Continued from Wednesday's Issue) Continuing on down the river, Mr. Hunt and his party reached what is now called Cascade Lake, where a thriving band of Indians were encountered and the utmost vigilance was needed to protect the property of the party.

Among the first to greet them, McLean and McKean, from whom they had been separated at the mouth of the Snake, were now in Twin Falls. There and about that time in a trackless wilderness and among savage tribes.

Met Near Twin Falls. Among the first to greet them, McLean and McKean, from whom they had been separated at the mouth of the Snake, were now in Twin Falls.

Following day was given over to reloading over the safe arrival of the party. The colors were hoisted, guns were fired and there was a feast of roach, fish and venison, which was a welcome diversion from horse and dog food which the party had subsisted on for several days.

On March 22, 1842, John Reed, Ben Jones, McLennan, and two Canadians started back to St. Louis with the outfit consisting of the party and the horses at Astoria and the arrival of Mr. Hunt and most of his party. Mr. Reed had the dispatches in a box which he strapped securely on his back.

At Washburn they had to jorning their supplies around the rapids and were set upon by the Indians and Mr. Reed was wounded and his tin box of supplies stolen, the Indians thinking that it contained "Big Medicine." One Indian was killed and one wounded. The Indians demanded that Mr. Reed give up as a sacrifice to the dead warrior, but the demand was refused and the matter settled by the white men giving the Indians to cover the dead warrior and tobacco for the living.

Entire Trip Defeated. The object of Reed's journey, now being defeated by the loss of the tin box, the whole party repaired with Robert Stuart to the establishment on the Snake. After a few days there they started back for Astoria, and in the course of their journey came upon Mr. Crooks and John Day, both mired and almost famished.

They reported that they had been stripped of their clothing by the Indians and were on their way to the Wallah-Wallahs. The whole party now continued down the river and reached Astoria on May 11th. A second land expedition to enrich the pockets of Mr. Astor was sent out June 20th under command of Robert Stuart.

At the village of the Wallah-Wallahs, Mr. Stuart secured the first reliable news which was to hear the dispatches to St. Louis. With him were Ben Jones, Andre Vallar, Francis Clerc, McLennan and Crooks.

On August 12th the Snake river was reached, ran on August 20th the party of six journeymen together as far as the Wallah-Wallah village for mutual protection from the thieving band at Washburn.

On August 12th the Snake river was reached, ran on August 20th the party of six journeymen together as far as the Wallah-Wallah village for mutual protection from the thieving band at Washburn.

will be reported late in April, or very early in May, and it would seem that the measure has a very good chance of success. If passed, it will be the realization of one of President Harding's greatest ambitions, that of putting the American flag back on the seas to stay.

headwaters of the Snake, where their horses were stolen by a rascally band of Crow Indians and they proceeded on their way on foot. The winter was spent in camp on the banks of the Platte river and in the spring the party set out for St. Louis was renewed.

Under the guidance of Dr. Whitman the party passed by the present site of Huntington and on up the Burnt river canyon and on September 23rd reached the Powder river valley in Baker county, Oregon.

Famous Valley. The Grand Route valley was reached October 1st and crossing the Blue mountains his party reached the Walla Walla valley the latter part of the month.

At this time it is proper to digress for a moment and take note of the Clatsop convention held at Clatsop, Oregon, May 3, 1843. At this meeting the men gathered there proposed forming a provisional government and to secede and it appeared to be a full unflinching Frenchman, Francois Xavier Matthieu, walking over to the American side and the great Oregon country, which at that time included all of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and part of Wyoming, was saved to the United States.

After the migration of 1843 only centurions parties wended their way to the Oregon country until the year 1852, when the greatest mass of homeseekers the world has ever seen took place.

Whole families left their comfortable homes and friends, family ties were broken and business connections severed for the purpose of joining in that mad rush for the mysterious land across the mountains whose homes might be secured for the taking.

Perils were considered as naught, but with fever set resolutely toward the northwest, the pioneers of the great Northwest set out to subdue the wilderness and establish homes where the "O'regon." The Old Oregon Trail proper began at Independence, Missouri, as did the Santa Fe Trail. For 41 miles the two trails pursued the same course, then they forked, the Santa Fe heading southeast and the Oregon Trail to the northwest.

"Road to Oregon." At the forks of the road was a simple sign reading "Road to Oregon." That sign would be worth its weight in gold today in any historical society. The Old Oregon Trail ran to the northwest along the Little Blue river until it struck the valley of the Platte about 300 miles from Independence.

No Defense By Gilbert Parker. Author of "The Scots of the Blighly" "The Rights of War"

CHAPTER XVII (Continued) Somehow, in spite of the criminal record with which Dyrk Calhoun's life was studded, they had a respect for him they did not have for Lord Malloy. Dyrk's life in Jamaica was clean and his progress as a planter had been free from black spots. It even kept no mistreat, and none had ever known him to have to do with women, black, brown or white. He had never gone away, as the saying was, and his only weakness or fault—if it was a fault—was a fondness for the bottle of good wine, which was ever open on his table, and for tobacco in the smoking-let. Today he smoked incessantly and carefully. He threw no loose ends of burning tobacco from his pipe into the loose dry leaves and stiff-cut ground. Yet they knew the small clouds that floated away from his head did not check his observation. That was gravel beyond peradventure, when they were within sight of the wooded island of Salien on an upland well housed. It was in apparently happy circumstances, for they could see no commotion about the homestead; they saw men with muskets, evidently keeping guard over the open keepers, guard, as they all thought, and so some said to each other.

Presently Dyrk related in his horse, and stretched out a hand to detain them. Each man listened attentively and watched the mood ahead of them for it was clear Dyrk suspected danger there. For a moment there seemed doubt in Dyrk's mind what to do, but when it was up he had decided.

"Hid slow for Salien," he said. "It's Maroon there in the bush. They're waiting for night. They won't attack us now. They're in ambush of what I'm sure. If they want to capture Salien, they'll not give alarm by firing on us so if we ride in they'll think we haven't noticed them. If they do attack us, well know they are in good numbers, for they'll be facing us as well as the garrison of Salien. But keep your muskets ready. Have a drink," he added, and handed round the horn of rum. "If they see us drink, and they will, they'll think we're only stopped to refresh, and we'll be safe. In any case, if they attack, fire your muskets at them and ride like the devil. Don't dismount and don't try to find them in the rocks. It's a poor game lighting hidden men. You see, I want to get them into the open before, and that's where they'll be before we're many hours older."

With this he rode on slightly ahead, and presently put his horse at a gentle canter which he did not increase as they neared the place where the black men ambushed. Every man of the group behaved well. None showed nervousness, even when one of the horses, conscious of hidden Maroons in the wood, gave a start and made a sharp movement out of the track in an attempt to get greater speed.

That was only for an instant, however. Yet every man's heart beat faster as they came to the place where evidently the ambush was. Indeed, Dyrk saw a bush move and had a swift glimpse of a black, hideous face, which quickly disappeared, however. After they had passed the spot of danger there was a cry almost from the lips of all save Dyrk; but his imperishable coolness kept them steady. They were conscious of idle things loud enough for the hidden Maroons to hear. Though every heart beat hammer, no face showed suspicion or alarm, as if many men to the underbrush. Dyrk talked to them presently without turning round, for to do that might have roused suspicion, and while they were out of danger now, there was no telling Dyrk's plan, which he now unfolded.

"They" could do'nt into the open before it's dark," he said quietly, "and when they do that, well have 'em. They've no chance to ambush in the cane-fields now. We'll get them in the open and who then out. Don't look round. Keep steady, and well ride a little more quickly soon."

"A little later they cantered gently to the front door of the Salem homestead. The first face they saw there was that of Darius Boland. It had a look of trouble. Dyrk explained: "We thought you might not have heard of the rise of the Maroons. We have no ladies at Salem. We prepared for the revolt, and we were safe enough there, as things are. Your ladies must get on to one to Spanish Town, unless—"

"Unless they stay here! Well, they would not be unwise, for though the slaves and the old management might have joined the Maroons, they will not do so now. We have got them that far. But, Mr. Calhoun, the ladies aren't here. They rode away into the hills this morning, and they're not come back. I was just about sending a search party for them."

"In what direction did they go?" asked Dyrk with anxiety, though his tone was even. Darius Boland pointed. "They went slightly northwest, and if they go, I think they meant to do, they would come back the way you came in."

"They were armed?" Dyrk asked sharply, for thought of the ladies arriving by the route he came by made him fearful. "Yes, they were armed," was the reply. "Miss Lyle had a small pistol. She learned to carry one in Virginia and she has done so ever since we came here."

Two Ounces OF MIRACLE OIL

poured in the fuel tank to each five gallons of gasoline or kerosene, by living through heat of the combustion chamber, will lubricate the upper cylinder walls, valves and valve stems, reducing friction where friction is greatest; prevent carbon formation, maintain compression, and save at least 15 to 25 percent in fuel which is three to five times the cost of MIRACLE OIL.

Considering the facts, can you continue to operate your car, truck or other combustion engine without this upper lubrication when every stroke of the piston against dry upper cylinder walls is grinding away the most vital parts of your motor? Think this over now even if your motor is in good condition.
