

SKIRT LENGTHS IS COURT ISSUE

School Board Rule Meets Objections ofirate Mothers; Judge to Decide

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—How short a girl's skirt must be to be a disturber of scholastic peace, and when, if ever, it becomes the concern of a school board are questions expected to be laid before the supreme court of Kansas, following the recent action of District Judge Hugh Means in sustaining a decision of the Vinland, Kan., rural school board against his jurisdiction in an action brought on behalf of Alice Hansen and Maude Buchanan, Vinland high school pupils against the board.

Alice and Maude are 15 years old, and both are farmers' daughters. Court action was brought by J. E. Hansen, father of Alice, when the Vinland school board, after adopting a rule requiring pupils to wear skirts three inches below the knees, decided that the skirts of Alice and Maude did not meet specifications, and expelled them until such times as their skirts should be lowered.

On application of Mr. Hansen, Judge Means issued a temporary order directing the school board to permit the girls to return to their studies. They did so, without reservations or amendments as to skirt length. Then the school board filed a demand for Judge Means' jurisdiction, which the judge upheld, and Hansen's attorney announced an appeal to the supreme court.

The action of the school board stirred up a hornet's nest in the usually placid community of Vinland. Supporters of the school board said the board was right, that three inches below the knees was a liberal allowance for the skirts. Others, particularly friends of the girls' mothers, said they believed Mrs. Hansen and Mrs. Buchanan, who made the costumes in question at home knew more about what was right and modest for girls to wear than any three men in the county, school board directors or not.

TINGLEY CASE TO COME FOR HEARING IN COURT

Mrs. Mohr Asks Damages for Alienation of Affection of Her Husband

Recently in Los Angeles the second district court of appeals reversed the judgment and declared that the jury based its verdict upon suspicion and innuendo and exercised nook "inexpensive generosity" in determining upon the damages.

HOME RULE FOR WELSH IS HOPE

Parliament May Be Called On to Act on Measure Drawn by National Party

LONDON, (AP)—The birth of the Irish Free State has led to renewed talk of some quarters of "home rule all around," that is, autonomy for Scotland and Wales as apart from England proper.

Home rule for Wales has already entered the range of the subject. A Welsh article in the Pall Mall Gazette.

Under the Welsh plan, the Welsh administration is to be entrusted to a Welsh secretary of state, to be appointed by the British cabinet.

This has, in turn, fired the Scottish members, who at a party meeting have appointed a committee to confer with the Welsh members with a view to joint action.

Under the Welsh plan the imperial parliament would reserve its powers on questions affecting the crown, peace and war, foreign affairs, regulation of trade and industrial legislation and matters of other common interest.

To a Welsh parliament would be entrusted local government, education, judiciary, agriculture and internal communication.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette. Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show. Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows. Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality. If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarette aftertaste, It's Camels for you.

WHEAT CROP IS UNDER AVERAGE

Winter Grain Forecast by Government Shows But 78.4 of Normal Yield

WASHINGTON, (AP)—A winter wheat crop of about 14,000,000 bushels smaller, and a rye crop almost 12,000,000 bushels larger than was produced last year, were forecast today by the department of agriculture. Winter wheat came through the winter in good shape, and showed an improvement of 2.4 points in condition on April 1, as compared with last December. The smaller crop is due to a reduction of 3.2 per cent in the area now fast fall as compared with that of last year's crop.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Winter wheat production this year was forecast at 572,974,000 bushels, and rye production at 69,697,000 bushels, by the department of agriculture, in its first estimate of the season issued today and based on the April 1 report, which was: Winter wheat 78.4 per cent of normal, and rye 80.0 per cent.

The winter wheat forecast compares with 587,032,000 bushels produced last year, 610,597,000 in 1920 and 578,715,000, the average of the preceding five years.

The rye forecasts compare with 57,018,200 bushels produced last year, 60,490,000 in 1920 and 60,000,000, the average for the preceding five years. Winter wheat conditions on April 1 showed an increase of 2.4 per cent since December 1, last, compared with an average decline of 4.7 points in the last ten years between those dates. Winter wheat condition a year ago was 91.0 per cent of a normal, while the April 1 year average is 84.3.

The area sown to winter wheat last fall was 44,250,000 acres, which was 1.2 per cent less than the revised area sown in the fall of 1920. The condition of December 1, last, was 76.0 per cent which was 11.0 per cent lower than the previous year and 1.3 per cent lower than the ten year average on that date.

In forecasting the production of winter wheat the department of agriculture takes into consideration the action of average abandonment of acreage and average influences on the crop from now until time of harvest.

The condition of winter wheat on April 1 in the principal producing states:

Pennsylvania 90; Ohio 87; Indiana 90; Illinois 83; Nebraska 85; Kansas 65; Texas 37; Oklahoma 64; Colorado 77; Washington 85.

JURY ACQUITS WOMAN WHO MURDERED KINKEAD

Miss Stone Declares She Will Seek to Forget Her Experiences in Hard Work

NEW YORK, (AP)—Olliva M. P. Stone, nurse, who was acquitted last night by a jury in Brooklyn supreme court of the murder of Ellis Guy Kinkead, former corporation counsel of Cincinnati, said today that she would go back to her work and attempt to forget her "terrible experiences."

After she had received the congratulations of many friends and sympathizers on her acquittal Miss Stone, at her request, was escorted back to the Haymont street jail where she had spent many sleepless nights during her trial.

"This nothing she said she had had a restful sleep and felt refreshed. "I intend," she added, "to join my friends and go back to my profession as soon as possible. To work. I may forget."

The jury that acquitted Miss Stone had deliberated ten hours. The announcement of the verdict brought cheers from several hundred persons crowded into the little courtroom. These spectators had waited for hours for the jury.

"When the foreman spoke in clear tones the verdict 'Not guilty,' Miss Stone's face brightened into a smile and almost inaudibly she added: "Thank God its over."

Aro Hunted Down in Their Mountain Retreat and Ordered to Return

CONSTANTINOPLE, (AP)—Hundreds of Greeks in Pontus, on the Black Sea littoral of Asia Minor, who fled to the mountains in order to escape the horrors of deportation by the Turkish Nationalists, have been credited with the intention of setting up a "Pontus Republic" for their own and thus have drawn upon themselves the wrath of the Angora government.

The Kenallid minister of the interior and the chief of the Nationalist guardsmen have just made a tour of the disturbed area, where they issued a proclamation giving the fugitives one week to return to the country where, said the order, "they have lived so happily for so long," and ordering them to report at the military depots. According to reports, the refugees have committed suicide rather than surrender and the Kenallids have sent a punitive expedition to the affected region, having detached two regiments from the Greek fighting front for that purpose.

TREATY MUST GO, SAYS DE VALERA IN ADDRESS

Declares "Mexican Politics" Will Continue Until Free State Movement Ends

DUBLIN, (AP)—"The Mexican politics" which the newspapers have been talking about always will be rampant in Ireland under the treaty agreement because the Irish people are against the treaty, Eamon de Valera declared in an address yesterday at Dunloughin (Kingstown).

"If the people do not want Mexican politics," he said, "they must remove the treaty by the vote and if they want a stable government pending its removal they must allow the Dal Eireann to take its rightful place as the government of the nation.

"But if (the Dal) attempts to do what cannot legally be done and establish the provisional government as the government of the country, then I tell you such a government will not be obeyed, and will not function."

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. Pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical men have to contend with, often follows a cold or attack of the grip. The cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the pneumonia germ. The longer the cold hangs on, the greater the danger. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the first indication of a cold appears so as to get rid of it with the least possible delay. It is only by such a course that pneumonia when thus remedied may be obtained for a trifle.—adv.

The Coming of Noreen

The next day came a new element in the situation. A ship arrived from England. On it was one who had come to Jamaica to act as governess to two children of the officer commanding the regular troops in the island...

"What is her name?" asked the rest of doctor. "Noreen, Balfe," was the reply of the ship's doctor. "A good old Irish name, though you can see she comes of the lower rank of life. I leave her in your hands. For a ship's medicine, and she was ashore."

As they left the room together they met Sheila and one of the daughters of the house. "We come to see the sick woman for the first time," said Sheila. "I've just heard about her and I'd like to be of use."

The resident doctor looked at her with admiration. She was the most conspicuous figure in the island, and her beauty was a fine support to her wealth and reputation. "I leave her in your hands. For a ship's medicine, and she was ashore."

"You can be of great use if you will," he said. "The fever is not infectious. My gland is say, 'So you need have no fear of being with her—on account of others.'"

"I have no fear," responded Sheila with a friendly smile, and I will go to her now—no, if you don't mind, I'd prefer to go alone. She added as she saw the doctor was coming with her.

The eyes of the sick woman opened, and looked at Sheila. There shot into her a look of horror and relief. "You are a kind girl like that," she said. "You can be of great use if you will," he said. "The fever is not infectious. My gland is say, 'So you need have no fear of being with her—on account of others.'"

"You are Sheila Boyne, aren't you?" she asked in a low, half-guttural voice. "I'm Sheila Lynn," was the astonished reply. "It's the same thing," came the response. "You are the daughter of Mrs. Boyne."

She turned pale. Who was this woman that knew her and her history? "What is your name?" she asked—"your real name—what is it?" "My name is Noreen Balfe; it was Noreen Boyne."

They're The Latest "Love Duellists"

any man, may retrace her former husband in order to "thwart the designs of Miss Lygo." The accusation of the former Mrs. Thorne that Miss Lygo "threatened to throw vitriol in my face" is branded as "rot" by the pretty avenger. "I'll harbor no ill-feeling against Mrs. Thorne," asserts Miss Lygo.

excited, she urged with kindly feeling. "He is dead and gone." "Yes, he is dead and gone." "For a moment Noreen seemed to give for mystery of her stark emotion, and Sheila said, 'He still. It is all over. He cannot hurt us now.'"

"I found more than his daughter; you find his first wife and you find the one that killed him!" said the woman greatly provoked. "How did you know that?" "I know it," he was in prison four years and since then he has been a millionaire, a treasurer, banker, a planter and a savior of these islands."

"The sick woman fell back in exhaustion. At that moment the servant entered with a pitcher of time juice. Sheila held a glass of the liquid to the stark lips. "Drink," she said—in a low, hoarse voice, and she poured slowly into the patient's mouth the cooling draught. A moment later Noreen raised herself up again.

"All are here that matter," she said. "And I came to forget!" "What do you remember?" asked Sheila. "I remember all how he died!" Suddenly Sheila had a desire to shriek aloud. This woman—old this woman—then see Eriss Boyne died. "Was she present when the deed was done?"

"How did he die?" she asked in a whisper. "One stroke did it—only one, and he fell like a log. She made a motion as of striking, and she brushed covered her eyes with trembling hands. "You tell me you saw Dyck Calhoun do this to an undefeated man—you tell me this!"

Sheila's anger was justified in her eyes. That Dyck Calhoun should—"I did not see Dyck Calhoun strike him," gasped the woman. "I did not say that. Dyck Calhoun did not kill Eriss Boyne!"

"My husband—my God!" said Sheila with a sudden lip. "I had a great light breaking in her eyes. 'Dyck Calhoun did not kill Eriss Boyne.' Then, who killed him?"

There was a moment's pause, then, "I was the woman to see you," she said. "I killed him." "A terrible revelation seized Sheila. After a moment she said in agitation: 'You killed him—you struck him down! You let a innocent man go to prison, and he kept there for years, and his father got to be gray with shame, with estates ruined and home lost—and you were the guilty one—you! all the time!'"

"It was part of my madness. I was a coward and I thought then there were reasons why I should not go only for Dyck Calhoun. His father injured mine—oh, badly! But I was a coward, and I've paid the price."

A kinder feeling now took hold of Sheila. After all, what the woman had done gave happiness into her—sheila's hands. It relieved Dyck Calhoun of shame and disgrace. Her bird was still, but an innocent fall. He had not killed Eriss Boyne. Besides, it wiped out forever the barrier between them. All her blind detestation to the man was now justified. His name and fame were clear. Her repugnance of the woman was as nothing beside her splendid feeling of relief. It was as though the gates of hell had been closed and the curtains of heaven drawn for the eyes to see the man and the woman as they were. A new world was before her eyes.

This woman who had killed Eriss Boyne must now suffer. She must bear the ignominy which had been cast upon Dyck Calhoun's head. For all at once there came to her mind a softening feeling. Eriss Boyne had been rightly killed by a woman he had wronged, for he was a traitor as well as an adulterer—one who could not be a woman's friend. He had faith with all civilized tradition, and reverted to the savage. Surely the woman's crime was not a dark one; it was

Egyptian King the "Patron Saint" of Suspenders

Modern Man Must Concede That He Owes Much to Monarch of Many Centuries Ago

Perhaps if suspenders could be said to rise to the dignity of a "patron saint" the oldest of them, the earliest dynasty of ancient Egypt, would be the logical candidate for the job. He bossed the first of the series of what we know as the dynastic kingdoms of Egypt more than 5000 years ago. Next, he undoubtedly (the first royal patron of suspenders, as testified plainly by his delinquent wearing the article, found on a slate palette dug up in the ruins of Hieroglyphopolis late in the last century. "I want you to read what a woman wrote who has just arrived in the island," he said. "It is all at the house of the general commanding."

"Taking from her breast the slip of paper, she handed it to him. He read it with eyes and senses that at first could hardly understand. "God in heaven, merciful God!" he said. "This woman, yet with a strange physical cast."

"This woman was his wife," Sheila said. "He handed the paper back. He connoiced his wife. The years of age, and she said, 'I'll put her in jail,' he said with a strange regret. He had a great heart."

"No, I think not," was the reply. Yet she was touched by his compassion and thoughtfulness. "Because she is going to die—and there is no time to lose. Come, we will go to Lord Malloy."

"I'll follow," a look of bitter triumph came into Dyck's face. "Malloy—yes," he said. (Continued in Saturday's Issue.)

Did the Birds Know? Many beautiful birds are now becoming scarce in Australia that the Queensland Government has been ordered to return Bird Island into a bird sanctuary. Hardly a bird was to be seen on Bird Island before, but now it is crowded with parrots, parrakeets, doves, blue cranes, quails, peewees and all kinds of birds. It is said that the transformation of the island took place in the course of a few weeks and Queenslanders are wondering how so many different kinds of birds came from so short a refuge in so short a time.

BRAVE PIGEONS

"It is not boasting," said Mr. Homing Pigeon, "when I speak of the great work my father and grandfather and others of my family did. If I were boasting about myself it would be another matter, but to boast about my father and my grandfather and others of my family is really only just pride."

"Oh, so many of our family have been so brave. They have carried messages for soldiers and they have never failed when they have had any great messages to carry."

"They have been so smart and quick to learn. They have so quickly learned the sense of direction. They could be way off from home and they could be sent flying off and they would find their way home again."

"For example, they are taken along with soldiers and when the soldiers want to send messages back to their comrades the pigeons will take them back and will never lose their way in the messages."

"My father and my grandfather and others of my family saved thousands and thousands of lives by their good work. And now they are being looked after, for they are deserving of care and appreciation."

"But to think that one's relatives have saved thousands of lives."

"The old danger birds of the creature he can kill. He boasts of his strength."

"But the Homing Pigeon boasts of his wisdom which he thinks is better than strength."

"And he boasts of his power and willingness and eagerness to save lives."

"To be sure, my family wouldn't like it if they heard me say that they boasted of such things, for such is not the end."

"But I should say that we must always live up to the wonderful ideal of saving lives whenever we can."

"Now an ideal is a very lofty of noble or splendid purpose. Our ideal is to save lives. We think lives are important and valuable and wonderful, and that when we save lives we make happiness where otherwise there would be unhappiness."

"So every little homing pigeon is brought up with the idea of doing as much as is possible to help people."

"We are happy among ourselves. One of us may be the leader, but that doesn't mean that one will be cross and conceited and proud."

"It merely means that that one wants to be careful to lead the others in doing the work they should do."

"Of course we are also called carrier pigeons because we carry messages. That is a sensible and suitable name for us."

"We go off in pairs very often to do our work."

"Some of the family now live in parks, some belong to certain people, and others are being looked after for the rest of their lives."

"We're all well looked after, but when I say that some of us are being looked after for the rest of our lives, I am speaking of those of my relations who did a lot of work in saving the lives of brave soldiers and who never minded how much work they did, and who never minded how tired they got."

"Some of them worked so very hard that they really shouldn't do any more work. They should take a long rest, and so they are doing this."

"And they are being helped in taking this rest by people who are looking after them and seeing that they get the care and seeing that they get being done by themselves."

"It is right that they should rest, for they have worked so hard. But it was right that they should work for the homing pigeons believe in doing good work in their lifetimes."

"But oh, forgive me, if I say too much about the way my father and grandfather and others of my family did in saving lives."

"I am so proud of that. Oh, so proud of it! I can almost hear the shouts of joy in the homes made happy because the pigeons saved lives. And as I seem to hear those shouts of joy I say to myself, The carrier pigeons will never fail in doing their duty. They will always live up to their ideals!"
