POLICE NET CLOSING IN ON CONVICT

Kidnaper of Omaha Women is Believed Surrounded by a Posse of Men with Entire Block Under Heavy Guard

LINCOLN, (AP)—After taking two shots at Walter Schroeder, assistant probation officer of the state board of pardons, a man believed to be Fred Brown, who kidnaped two young women in Omaha Saturday, was surrounded by a posse of a hundred men here Wednesday night. The block is closely guarded and it is believed that the capture of the man, who is heavily armed, is but a question of time.

All Traps Set
Following three spectacular escapes here Tuesday, trace of the fugitive was lost late Tuesday night after J. Ryan had reported to police that a man answering Brown's description had spent more than an hour in his room, eating and resting while officers searched for him almost under the windows of Ryan's room.

Lincoln Wednesday night had been divided into four zones, in each of which a squad of police and sheriff's deputies searched systematically. Places where Brown might have sought refuge were entered and searched, but, according to reports to headquarters, without revealing any trace of the hunted man.

SOLDIER BONUS BILL APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

Bank Loan Provision Retained But Many Amendments Added to Measure — Senate Fight Assured

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The house soldiers' bonus bill, amended in several important particulars, but with the much-discussed bank loan provision retained, was approved Wednesday by the senate finance committee by a vote of 9 to 4. Chairman McCumber proposes to report the measure to the senate within a few days and said he hoped to get action on it before the passage of the tariff bill.

The more important alterations made in the house measure were: The changing of the effective date of the legislation from next October 1 to January 1, 1923.

Removal of the time limitation on the filing of applications by world war veterans for adjusted service compensation.

Abandonment of the reclamation plan and the substitution of a provision under which veterans would be given preference in making entry on public or Indian lands when opened to entry.

Forfeiture Eliminated. Elimination of the forfeiture provision under which veterans failing to repay loans made by loans or the government on adjusted service certificates, would have forfeited their certificates.

Under the amended bill each veteran could reclaim his certificate at any time before their maturity, 20 years from the date of issue, upon payment of the sum they were in default plus interest at 4 1/2 per cent compounded annually.

Approval of the amended house measure, commonly called the McCumber plan, was voted by the committee after rejection, 8 to 5, of a measure offered by Senator Snoot of Utah, ranking committee member, proposing paid-up life insurance in all other forms of compensation. In addition to its author, senators supporting the Snoot plan were Alder, New York; Dillingham, Vermont; Frelinghuysen, New Jersey, and McLean, Connecticut, all republicans.

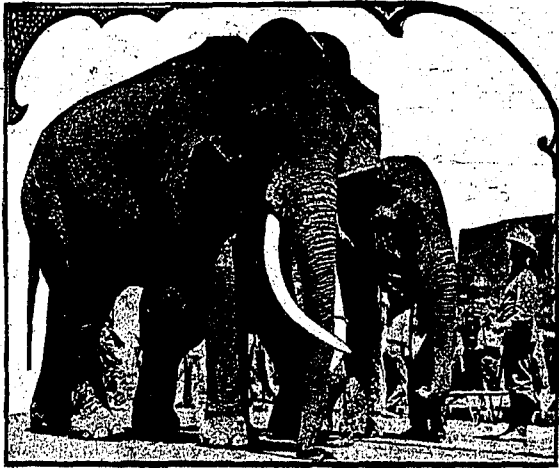

McLean Breaks Tie. On the vote for the McCumber measure, Senator McLean broke the tie that had formed among the 10 members of the committee as between two propositions. Besides Mr. McLean, those supporting the amended house bill were McCumber, North Dakota; LaFollette, Wisconsin; Watson, Indiana; Curtis, Kansas, and Sutherland, West Virginia, all republicans; and Simmons, North Carolina; Walsh, Massachusetts; and Gerry, Rhode Island, democrats.

Senator Simmons, ranking minority member of the committee, said the democrats supported McCumber's plan not because they favored it, but to obtain quick action on bonus legislation.

Neither President Harding's views with respect to the bonus nor methods of financing the legislation entered into the committee discussion, senators said.

Senate Fight Assured. The house bill is certain to lead to a long fight in the senate. The democrats express themselves as not at all pleased with its present form and have indicated that they will have a number of amendments to offer. Senator Snoot plans to offer the insurance measure as a substitute and may introduce the issue of the sales tax into the discussion.

AL. G. BARNES MAKES GOOD HIS BOYISH BOAST AT JUMBO'S BIER

Tunko, the largest elephant that the world has ever known. Tunko stands twelve feet and seven inches high and weighs ten tons. A foot and a half taller than Jumbo, and weighs three thousand pounds more than Jumbo did.

Opponents of a bonus in any form, who include senators Borah, Idaho; Moses, New Hampshire; Wadsworth, New York, republicans, and Williams, Mississippi, and Meyers, Montana, demonstrated their preparation for a determined fight on the bill. Bonus proponents are confident, however, that bonus legislation will be enacted before this congress ends.

On Length of Service.

Under the bill as the senate will receive it, the amount of compensation credit for veterans will be computed on the length of service, less the $50 bonus paid the men at the time of their discharge from the service, but would not exceed $200 for those who had only domestic service and $225 for those who saw service overseas.

A "ceiling" bonus would be paid only to those veterans whose total credit did not exceed $50.

Thirty-seven years ago a farmer lad stood in the railway yards at St. Thomas, Ontario, and gazed at the huge, huddled bulk of Jumbo controlled by a Grand Trunk railway switch engine.

The lad was Al G. Barnes, known throughout that part of the province as "the boy-horse trainer," a lad whose father had a standing forfeit of $100 posted for anyone that could produce a lanky equine that young Al G. could get drive off in ten minutes. Gazing on the dead baron elephant, young Barnes declared, "Some day I'll have a bigger circus than this one and I'll have a bigger elephant than Jumbo!" By-standers laughed, but there were some who gave a second thought to the lad's boast, for they had a lively respect for his way with animals.

The next year the boy took the road with a pug dog and a greyhound. His one to the ownership and operation of the world's largest wild animal circus is the greatest individual achievement in white top history. And this year, Al G. Barnes has made good—more than made good—his boyish boast by presenting the American public Tunko, the largest elephant in the world, a foot taller than Jumbo and a ton and half heavier—an elephant with tusks six feet long, a veritable mammoth. When the Al G. Barnes Wild Animal circus comes to Twin Falls Monday, June 5, for two performances be sure and see Tunko. He is an education in himself. The world will never see his like again.

The big street parade will be held at 10:30 Monday morning. The circus will arrive here from Boise Sunday afternoon.

STAGE REVOLT ON HIGH DUTY

Senate Republicans Decline to Accept Recommendation of Finance Committee

WASHINGTON, (AP)—There was a revolt tonight in the senate republicans rank against the finance committee recommendations to impose a duty of 70 per cent ad valorem on electric light bulbs and other illuminating glassware. An amendment by Senator Jones, democrat, of New Mexico, to substitute a 40 per cent rate, was defeated, 21 to 30.

Senator Jones first sought to make the rate on bulbs and other illuminating glassware 40 per cent, but that amendment was rejected, 17 to 23. Thirteen republicans and the 14 democrats present supported it.

A letter written to Senator LaFollette, republican, of Wisconsin, by Samuel Esterhuysen, counsel for the Lockwood investigating committee, in New York, which was read in the senate last week by Senator LaFollette and which alleged control of the electric bulb situation by the General Electric company, played a prominent part in the more than two hours' debate on this subject.

INDIANAPOLIS, (AP)—Jimmie Murphy of Los Angeles, is approximately $30,000 richer tonight as a result of winning the tenth annual 200-mile International Sweepstakes automobile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway yesterday. He was presented with checks for his winnings at a drivers' banquet tonight. Murphy set a new world's record for 500 miles, his average being better than 94 miles per hour. Greatly thanked the crowd and winnings was for first place and the remainder lap money and presents from accessory companies.

A second check of the records showed that four others besides Murphy held the lead at various times in yesterday's long run. Leon Duray took the lead of the 75th lap when Murphy drove into the pits. He was ousted, however, by Harry Hartz on the next lap. Hartz held the lead until the 84th lap, when Peter de Paolo took it for several turns around the course. Hartz sprinted to the front again in the 87th lap and held it until the 131st lap. Murphy, driving at a pace of better than 100 miles an hour, forged ahead at this point and was not headed again.

Besides winning the second speedway prize of $10,000, Hartz tonight was awarded $1075 of the lap money. De Paolo won $150 in prize money and Duray $50. There was no money awarded for some of the laps.

MARY'S DECREE BULLET PROOF

Screen Favorite's Divorce from Owen Moore Finally Sustained by Nevada Court

CARSON Nev., (AP)—Mary Pickford's divorce from Owen Moore was sustained today when the Nevada supreme court affirmed the order of District Judge Frank R. Langen, granting service of summons in the action brought by Attorney General Fowler to set aside the decree granted the movie star.

The divorce of Mary Pickford at Minden, Nev., March 20, 1920, precipitated an action by the state for the dissolution of the decree on the ground that Miss Pickford's residence in the state had not covered the period required by law. The district court, in which the divorce was granted, was asked to review its decision and render itself, but held that the action had been regular in every particular and that the decree should stand.

Attorney General Fowler then appealed to the state supreme court, charging that the divorce was obtained through "fraud and collusion" on the part of Miss Pickford and holding that the Minden court had no jurisdiction. The defense answered that the state was not an aggrieved party and therefore had no authority under the Nevada law to prosecute the action.

SHEEP GO TO PASTURE

University's Pure Bred Herd is Shipped to Summer Range

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow.—The University of Idaho's herd of purebred sheep numbering 175 head, has been shipped to Potlatch for summer pasturing on the lands of the Potlatch Lumber company. This step was taken, according to Dean E. J. Hiddings of the college of agriculture, because of the shortage of grazing land at the institution and the recent conversion of the fair grounds, which has been used as a summer pasture, into an amusement park.

Loss of the fair grounds has proved a serious matter in the problem of securing adequate summer pastures for the university's fine purebred flock. Through co-operation with the Potlatch company experienced shepherds will be placed in charge and assurances have been given that the stock will be well cared for. Use of sheep in grazing is fostered by the lumber companies as a means of reducing the fire hazard.

VETERANS TO BE URGED TO REINSTATE POLICIES

Twin Falls Will Compete With Boise, Pocatello and Lewiston in Contest

SEATTLE.—For the purpose of having every ex-service man and woman in the Pacific Northwest protected by government insurance, an intensive drive for reinstatement and conversion of war risk insurance will be held in Idaho, Washington and Oregon under the direction of the United States Veterans' bureau and the American Legion, June 12 to 17, inclusive. It was announced here today, it is proposed to secure a total of $5,000,000 in veterans' insurance in the Northwest district.

Twin Falls will compete with Boise, Pocatello and Lewiston in a contest to see which city can secure the largest amount of government insurance for its war veterans. The veterans' bureau has set the quota for each of the four cities in Southern Idaho at $100,000 apiece.

The state departments of the American Legion in Idaho, Washington and Oregon have endorsed the proposition of the drive and promise to work actively in securing the quotas assigned to the various cities and states of the Pacific Northwest, it was stated here. Norman W. Engle of Seattle, northwest representative of the national organization of the Legion, has sent out communications to the various points of Idaho, urging them to appoint committees for the purpose of pushing the drive in their respective communities. The quota set for the state of Idaho is $1,000,000.

AND THEY SLEPT 'UPSTAIRS'

Childling Frank Not So Enjoyable as Youngsters Imagined It Was Going to Be.

At Indianapolis women is fond of telling a story about her childhood days. There were several children in the family and they went to school with other children, perhaps a trifle better off as to this world's goods than they were. At any rate, the other children were always talking about their upstairs. And there was no upstairs to the cottage where the Indianapolis woman's family lived—it was only a cottage. But children-like, they had to be able to say with cool disdain when they were teased: "Why, upstairs? where we sleep."

So when mother went downtown one day these small children laboriously took their little bed apart and carried it up the narrow, steep dark stairs that led to the attic. Then they carried up the bedclothes: then their little chairs. They were indeed, going to sleep upstairs.

When mother came home she found out what had happened. She climbed the attic stairs, and there amid the dust and dirt and whatnots and cobwebs were the two beds.
So just to punish the children for their disobedience mother made them sleep up there a few nights in the hot weather, until they were glad they had no "upstairs."

Is the Walton Ticket Controlled by Walton?

Within the past few days workers for the Walton Ticket have repeatedly denied that the candidates on that list are controlled by Walton. They assert that Mr. Walton is a community patriot, and that his work for the ticket which he created and is sponsoring is for love of his fellow man, and that his hope for reward lays in the distant future.

It was not even offered to any daily newspaper in Twin Falls for publication, though both the daily newspapers would have been glad to carry it as a matter of NEWS.

If this be true, why do not the candidates, from Mr. Tucker down, REPUDIATE WALTON?

The platform was thus withheld from publication in the daily newspapers and first made its appearance in Walton's own newspaper days after it had been built by Walton.

Why do they not tell us that they and their platform are not instruments of the aspiring boss of Twin Falls.

Thus the Walton-made ticket running on a Walton-built platform stands in the position of seeking now to create the impression among voters that WALTON WOULD HAVE NO CONTROL OVER THE ADMINISTRATION IF HIS, TICKET SHOULD WIN.

Dare they make such a statement? Would it be believed, if made thus public?

Such an assumption of indifference to Walton is clearly for purposes of deception, and the voters of Twin Falls will not be deceived.

Let us see:

The issue in this campaign is WALTON and WALTON RULE.

Every candidate on the Walton ticket was approved by Walton before even the petitions were circulated for nomination.

Is Twin Falls ready for a political Boss?

The men who helped in securing these signatures are Walton henchmen.

Shall he be WALTON?

The platform upon which the Walton candidates are running was built in every plank by WALTON.

If you are not registered, better go to the office of the City Clerk and prepare yourself so that you can vote against boss rule—RULE BY WALTON... Saturday is the last day of registration.

FAULTS OF THE JURY SYSTEM

Trial by jury now and then brings up the question of the trials of juries. For instance, the jury of his peers which is functioning in the case of Governor Small of Illinois, who is charged with misuse of state funds when he was the state treasurer, threatened to strike if younger men were not installed in place of the aged officials, who get sleepy and make the jurors go to bed at 9 o'clock.

The matter suggests humorous comment, but it has a serious side. It is the old question of archaic administration of a system of determining justice that has come down from the days of magna charta—a system that is replete with anomalies which persist in spite of the developments along other lines to meet modern conditions.

As in the case here referred to, the person on trial may be at liberty except when his presence is required in the court room, while the jurors are under constant surveillance, watched over like convicts working on a highway when they are not on active duty and, if they have the sensitiveness of many intelligent human beings, dragged into a state of mind which is certainly not conducive to the exercise of unbiased judgment.

PRODUCERS OF CREAM TO STUDY MARKETING PLAN

Cow Owners in Meeting Here, Name Committee to inquire Into Desirability of Forming Co-operative Organization

Inquiry on the part of cream producers of Twin Falls county into the desirability of forming a marketing organization, with the purpose of building up established creameries, factories and encouraging the establishment of new industries for manufacture of dairy products, was launched at a meeting Wednesday evening of cream producers convened by H. E. Brasseur, county agricultural agent, held in the Parish hall.

Committee Named. Initial steps in this direction were taken with the designation of W. A. Claudin, J. H. Seaver and L. Ayotte as a committee to inquire into the amount of cream produced and consumed in this district, the quantity shipped out to other states, together with an inquiry into the desirability of organization for cream producers.

Scintillating discussion followed Wednesday evening's meeting, resulting in the feeling that it is desirable and necessary to build up dairy industries established here and to supply them with a volume of milk and cream sufficient to assure their success.

Commack Tells of Benefits. Benefits of co-operative marketing of milk and cream through formation of pools by producers and diversion of this surplus to establish local industries rather than shipping it out of the state were discussed by F. R. Commack, first chairman of the University of Idaho extension division. Mr. Commack, who is the cream producer that J. L. Kraft, Chicago cheese manufacturer, now visiting dairy men in this county, would endeavor to induce bankers of the state in a project for financing development of the dairy industry of the state.

Plans Are Satisfactory. In relation of reports to the effect that dairy cattle brought to market recently were unsatisfactory, Mr. Commack said that within the past two weeks he had inspected the calves brought in for farmers of the North Side project, and that fully 80 per cent of the animals were of first class quality. He stated that where the owner of six of these cows for which he paid $80 each, was selling each month 250 pounds of butterfat as their surplus, the men who make the milk the bringing in of these cattle, Mr. Commack said, will not break even on their investment, except through skillful management.

PROSECUTOR TO DEMAND ACTION

John Bergman to be Brought Into Court for Second Time for Assault

DURLEY—(Special to The News)—John Bergman will today be haled into court for a second time to answer to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon made Monday afternoon upon Bergman's brother-in-law, Nipoleka Olson of Twin Falls, at the former's farm home near here, according to the statement, Wednesday night of Prosecuting Attorney J. M. Morris.

Bergman was arrested at his home Wednesday at about noon and arraigned in probate court. According to the prosecuting attorney, the arresting officer persuaded the probate judge that Olson was to blame for the trouble that led to the attack by Bergman, and Bergman was released without bail. This took place in the absence of the prosecuting attorney who will today cause Bergman to be brought again before a magistrate, and will demand that bail be required.

Olson, who is suffering from three compound fractures of the skull, fractured with a shovel, was last night reported to be reacting fairly easily in a hospital here. Attending physicians said that they could determine this morning whether Olson would recover.

Compensation. While on his way the Highlands a gentleman went to hire a car for the purpose of taking his family for a drive. He looked at a vehicle, and inquired how many it would hold.

The proprietor scratched his head thoughtfully and said, "I could handle four generally, but if they were well acquainted."

CHAPTER XXI

In Central Park

Johnnie burst into the kitchen beaming. "We've gonna plant for the hill, Kitzy, you bet he's had a letter callin' him to come."

"When are you going?" "Thursday. Ain't that great?" She nodded, absently. Her mind was on another task already.

"You're going to ask Miss Whitford how she'd like to come, ain't you?" "Say, you certainly get the best notions, honeybun," he boasted.

"Do you think she'll come?" "Sure she'll come." "I'll fix up the bestest dinner ever was made."

Her conclusion wandered off into the realm of unvoiced hopes, but her husband knew what it was as well as if she had phrased it.

When Clay came home that evening he stopped abruptly at the door. The lady of his dreams was setting the table in the dining-room and chatting gaily with an invisible Kitty in the kitchen.

The delicate fragrance of the girl's perfume wafted to Clay's head like wine as he stepped forward and shook hands. To see her engaged in this intimate household task at his own table quickened his pulse and sent a glow through him.

"You didn't know you had invited me to dinner, did you?" she said, little fangs a-flutter in her cheeks.

"They had a gay dinner, and afterward a pleasant hour before Clay took me home."

Neither of them was in a hurry. They walked through Central park in the kindly darkness, each acutely sensitive to the other's presence.

Her mystery and piquancy had given place to a genuine sympathy. Clay let her lead the conversation full upon her. He knew that he had come to his hour of hours and his soul was wrung in gravity.

She too sensed what was coming, and the sex instinct in her was on the alert. She was not troubling with excitement. Her whole being longed to hear what he had to tell her.

She ate bodged for a way of escape. Silence was too significant, too full of possibilities. She made herself talk: "It does not matter about what."

"Why didn't you let us that it was Mr. Bromfield who struck down that man Collins? Why did you let us think you did it?" she queried.

"Well, folks in New York don't know me. What was the use of putting him in bed?"

"You know that wasn't the reason. You did it because—" She stopped in the midst of the sentence. It had occurred to her that this subject was more dangerous even than silence.

first easily in a hinders, and all of them had enjoyed themselves. But so far as he could see, it had not achieved the results for which they had been hoping.

Clay came home late and next morning was full of it. "Two more days and you'll hit the trail for good old Tucson," he said cheerfully.

"Yetcha, by Jolies," agreed his hand-legged shadow. "You mean you're depressed. He believed that his friend was concealing an aching heart, beneath all this attention to impending details. As a Benedict he considered it his duty to help the rest of the world get married too. A bachelor was a boob. He didn't know what was best for him. Same way with a girl. Clay was fond of Miss Beatrice, and she thought a heap of him. You couldn't fool Johnnie. No, street!"

Mooning on the roof and night of two friends who were too cozy, too perverse to know what was best for them, Johnnie suddenly slapped himself a smack on the thigh. A brilliant idea had flashed into his brain.

"It proceeded to grow until he felt like to burst with it. When Lindsay rose from breakfast he was mysteriously beckoned to another room. Johnnie outlined sketchily and with a good deal of hesitation what he had in mind. Clay's eyes danced with that spark of mischief his friends had learned to recognize as a danger signal.

"You're some sure-enough warden, Johnnie," he admitted. "I expect your right about girls not knowin' their own minds. You've had more experience with women than I have. If you say the proper thing to do is to abduct Miss Whitford and take her with us, why—"

"O'net in a while you got to play like you're gonna treat 'em rough," said Mr. Green sagely, blushing a tinge nevertheless.

"All right. I'll let you engineer this if I can make up my mind to it after I've milled it over. I can see you know what you're doin'."

The conspirators arranged details. Johnnie was the brains of the kidnaping. Clay bought the tickets and was to take charge of the prisoner after the train was reached. They decided it would be best to get a steamroom for the girl.

"I'll wanta make it as easy as we can for her," said Johnnie. "O' course it's all for her-own good, but we don't figure to treat her noways but like the princess she is."

"O' course," agreed Clay humbly. "According to program, carefully arranged by Johnnie, Beatrice rode down to the train with him and Kitty in their taxi-car. She went on board for the final good-bye and chatted with them in the car.

"I can see you a minute in the next car, Miss Beatrice," he asked, his voice quavering.

Miss Whitford lifted her eyebrows, but otherwise expressed no surprise.

"Certainly, Johnnie."

He led the way down the aisle into the next steamer and stopped at one of the staterooms. Shakily he opened the door and stood aside for her to pass first.

"You want me to go in here?" she asked.

"Ye'es."

Beatrice stepped in. Johnnie followed.

Clay rose from the lounge and said, "Glad to see you, Miss Whitford."

"Did you bring me here as you good by, Johnnie?" asked Beatrice.

The fun's tongue stuck to the roof of his mouth. His eyes appeared-dumbly to Clay.

"Better explain to Miss Whitford," said Clay, passing the buck.

"It's for your good, Miss Beatrice," stammered the villain who had brought her. "We—we—I—I—doe brought you here to travel home with us."

"O'—o'—o'—"

Before her slender, outraged dignity, Johnnie willed. "Kitzy, she—she can chaperone you. It's all right, ma'am. I—we—I didn't go for to do nothing that wasn't proper. We thought 'You mean that you brought me here expecting me to go along with you—without my consent—without a trunk—without—"

Clay took charge of the kidnaping. "Johnnie, if I were you I'd light a stick back of the other car. I see I'll have to treat this lady rough as you advised."

Johnnie wanted to expostulate, to deny that he had ever given such counsel, to advise an abandonment of the whole project. But his nerve was expectedly failed him. He glanced at Clay and fled.

He was called upon by court. Immediately on joining Kitzy.

"What are you up to, Johnnie? I'm not going to have you make a goose of yourself if I can help it. I see I'll have to treat this lady rough as you advised."

"Clay, he's in the next car."

"You took Miss Beatrice in there to say good-by to him?"

"O'—o'—o'—she's goin' along with us."

thing, between you. She'll hate Mr. Lindsay for the rest of her life. How could he be so stupid?"

Her husband followed her, crestfallen. He wanted to weep with shame. Beatrice opened the door of the stateroom. She had taken her hat but Clay was hanging it on a hook.

"Come in," she said cordially, but faintly.

Kitty did not quite understand. The atmosphere was less electric than she had expected. She stopped, taken aback at certain impressions that began to register themselves on her brain.

"Johnnie was tellin' me—" "About how he abducted me. Yes. Wasn't it dear of him?"

"But—" "I've decided to make the best of it and to please—" "You dawg-wag of sealions; I never will help you get married!" she shouted gesticulating.

"Oh, Johnnie—Johnnie—you'll be the death of me!" cried Clay. "I'll never be a dull old world so long as you stay in trouble."

"Did you really advise him to beat me, Johnnie?" asked Beatrice sweetly. "I never would have guessed you were such a fine man."

Johnnie flung to the room of his hat. "Now, my dear, if you gonna believe that—"

Beatrice repeated and offered him her hand.

"I'll not believe anything of you that you don't want, even if you did want to kidnap me."
