

GOVERNMENT IS QUITE WILLING TO OFFER HELP

Secretary Hoover Declares That Good Offices of Federal Authorities Are Available Always in Coal Strike

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Efforts of the government to bring operators and miners together with a view to settling the coal strike now in progress were disclosed for the first time Wednesday by Secretary Hoover in a statement sent to the senate in compliance with a resolution of inquiry introduced recently by Senator Walsh, democrat, of Massachusetts.

"Quite informally and repeatedly," Mr. Hoover's statement said, "suggestions as to propositions on which the disputants might confer and hope for a settlement have been made through the department of labor and this department or both, but thus far, these suggestions have been without result."

The secretary prefaced his statements with the declaration that "governmental agencies have no legal authority to terminate or intervene in the strike."

Manufacture success has been obtained, however, Mr. Hoover added, in the government's efforts to prevent large price increases resulting from the industry's attempt to raise prices in conferences with the operators. He made the same point clear in a telegram sent from Youngstown, Ohio, today to the coal section of the commerce department, in connection with press reports that Senators Borah, republican, of Idaho, and Walsh, democrat, of Massachusetts, had held conferences with a delegation of retail coal dealers with a view to "restraining" coal prices.

Field Is Clear
"I am delighted to learn," the telegram said, "that Senators Borah and Walsh have taken on the job of restraining coal prices with the retailers or other parts of the coal trade. The field is clear for any action they may desire to take, as no action has been taken beyond the responsibility I assumed in public interests of seeing each individual operator that he should in the future not exceed the last Garfield war rates with changes up and down as the market conditions would warrant, and I have made the statement that such changes would not exceed a maximum price in the average of 25 cents above the rate of 25 cents in some districts or about 25 cents above in others."

"The result has been to reduce the strike prices as much as two cents in certain districts and should save the public from a further ascent to $10 or $12 in the mine prices as in 1920."

Administration Powerless
"If congress will provide a better emergency method, I will, indeed, be glad if they would do so, as the administration has no power but persuasion and the willingness of the majority of the operators to co-operate. In the meantime, as many retailers have upsurge of supply days supply on hand of pro-traitor coal, much of it from districts of short rail haul, I hope the senators will get the retailers to comply with my request that the retailers do not mark up the price of this coal to the public."

CO-OPERATION OF AMERICA IS SOUGHT BY COLOMBIA

Engineers and Bankers See Big Field for Development in South American

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The minister of Colombia to the United States, Dr. Enrique Olaya, in his address to President Harding on the occasion of his increasing business cooperation between Americans and Colombians, and expressed his hope for even better relations in the report in the near future.

Developing this idea later to representative of the Associated Press, Dr. Olaya referred specifically to negotiations now under way with Americans for important public utilities to be developed, as for instance, the construction of the Antioquia railroad; the loan for the city of Medellin; improvements at Barranquilla; Colombia's most important port on the Atlantic, and for the opening of the deltas at the mouth of the Magdalena river.

Americans Interested in Colombia
American engineers have been studying prospects of development in Colombia since the war, and have reported favorably on more than one attracted possibility. Also American bankers are showing real interest in Colombia.

"The notable increase of recent years in the foreign trade of the republic of Colombia," Dr. Olaya continued, "reached the sum of $171,000,000 for the year 1920. This places Colombia fifth among the South American countries, a position attained only by the hard working and industrious people laboring under alighting handicaps and difficulties of transportation."

"The government of Colombia recognizes the need of better methods of communication and to this end it is studying with careful attention a variety of proposals submitted to it by competent engineers."

AMERICAN OLUF ENTERTAINS SOLDIER PRINCE OF DENMARK
COPENHAGEN, (AP)—Prince Aage of Denmark who according to rumors is to be the next Danish minister of war, has been entertained at luncheon here by the American Club. Minister Prince, who presided, introduced his highness as "a great traveler, a great traveler through the darkest hour he had experienced since the armistice with that same energy and intelligence she showed during the war."

WILL IT COME TO THIS?

So this is Contact; I always knew it. But I don't see the railroad through it. I thought 't would come before this time. But now I wouldn't bet a dime that I will live to see any day. When copper mining here will pay.

Poor old camp! Who ever thought that all their work would come to naught! Look at those tunnels, shafts and drifts! Think how they worked their weary shafts! Many a live-long, tedious day, and three their precious time away.

Look at those old fallen shafts; Gone to ruin and to racks; Here they flourished, here they fought! Here they labored, loved and wrought; Here they spent their busy lives Going through those bonus drives. Here they drank the health of copper.

Who'd have thought it wasn't poor! Here they gambled—saw the limit. On the spot ever dim it! Their work bears as strong and great. They built for future—tempted fate. And fate denied them their reward! Let their prospects with the Lord.

"Brave prospectors—pioneers, Yours our sympathy and tears. Poor old camp! It might have been—Step on the spot! Let's get to Twin!"

OR TEXAS

(A Visitor at Contact, 1922.)
"So this is Contact! I always knew it. See the busy railroad through it. And the copper going out. By the way, it's a fine route. See the mountains full of ore. More than ever known before. Every man has steady work. Not a man has cause to shrink. There's a mine on every face. Prosperity has struck the place."

"Here are miles of business streets, And nobody with their glaring eyes. The boom is on! Come get your share! You may be yet a millionaire. Big pile of overcoats and suits. Underwear and rubber boots, Goggles and Jacob Leno, The Subway Hero beneath the 'L.' 'Come on! Let's have our dinner here. They're serving salmon trout with oyster."

Let's stay and take in every sight. We'll not go on to Twin tonight. "BILL BOOTE."

Explanation Accepted.
"How fast were you going?"
"Your honor, I was just crawling along."
"It's rather curious that most of the people who are charged in this court with speeding say they were 'crawling along.'"
"Your honor, I'm a professional aviator. An ordinary observer might have thought my car was traveling at high speed, but to me it was crawling."

"Ahem! I understand your point of view exactly, and out of respect to your hazardous profession, where speed is essential to safety, I'll fine you $25 for crawling."

TENANTS IN MEXICO CITY WANT DECREASE IN RENTS

Threaten General Industrial Strike Unless 75 Per Cent Reduction Is Made

MEXICO CITY, (AP)—Tired of paying high rentals tenants of Mexico City have formed a union and are even threatening a general strike of all industries in the capital unless demands for a 75 per cent decrease of all rents is met by the landlords. The union is recruited from the low or middle class, but is being led by well-known labor organizers who have already staged a number of demonstrations and have announced that they will resist to violence if necessary to achieve their ends. Street parades are held at least three times a week and several have been so riotous that police reserves were called out.

Newspaper Attitude Not Popular
The newspapers, El Universal and Excelesior, which have consistently opposed the union, have been threatened numerous times and several nights ago a rowdy gang of low rent advocates attempted to set fire to the newspaper building. The tenants are not at all modest in their demands. Besides asking that their rents be reduced 75 per cent they also insist that the landlords be forced to make all sorts of repairs and installations on their properties. The landlords assert the demands are impossible to meet if present high taxes are maintained by federal and district governments. The idea of lower rents is catching hold in other cities of the republic, and there is talk of organizing a Tenants' Party to compete in the national and state elections.

Record Maine Salmon

What is supposed to be the largest landlocked salmon ever taken with hook and line from a Maine lake or pond was caught at Greene lake by Luther Moore, an employee of the United States government fish hatchery, and weighed 10 1/2 pounds. Nothing to equal this for a salmon has ever been heard of in eastern Maine, and so far as known now it is the biggest on record. One Bangor man said that he had heard of one weighing 15 pounds being caught with hook and line at Greene lake, but that was in the dim and misty past.

FALSE REPORT IS PUNCTURED

Rumor That Bobby Barrett Had Died After Knockout Shooks Sporting Circles

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — An explanation was discovered Wednesday of the origin of what purported to be verification of the rumors that Bobby Barrett, heavyweight boxer, had died Wednesday as a result of the blow to the stomach with which Lew Tendler knocked him out in their bout Tuesday night. Samuel H. Baltes, attorney for Tendler's manager, Bill Glazman, had heard the rumors, and decided to make legal arrangements in case they should be true. He sent one of his men to get Tendler and Glazman. This man, apparently unaware of the rumors, entered Glazman's office and said: "Mr. Baltes wants to see you." Glazman, jumping at the conclusion that this was a confirmation of the rumor, exclaimed: "Barrett is dead!" Both he and Tendler turned deathly pale and the boxer expressed his deep regret.

"Victims in the office spread the misinformation in great faith. Meanwhile Barrett was only enough to leave his home in Clinton Heights twice, though the defeated boxer had a slight limp and a swollen nose."

STRANGLER LEWIS WINNER

Barri Caldook, Former Champion Mat Man, Downed Two Falls Out of Three

BOSTON, (AP) — Ed "Strangler" Lewis, heavyweight wrestling champion, defeated Barri Caldook, former champion, here Wednesday night, two falls out of three. The third and deciding fall came in 10 minutes, 33 seconds, on a headlock.

John Patek of Nebraska defeated Dick Davisport of Texas in the semifinal bout, throwing his man in 23 minutes, 57 seconds.

Caldook displayed his old-time speed and cleverness, but the champion's weight and strength proved too much for him. After 22 minutes, two seconds of wrestling, Lewis secured a head lock for the first fall. Caldook won the second in seven minutes, eight seconds, with a head clinch and wrist lock. The champion brought the match to a close with a second headlock.

Patek subdued Davisport in their one-all match with a double arm scissors.

PACKING CHINA

When packing glass or china use straw or excelsior that has been slightly dampened. The water causes both of these materials to swell, and this swelling fills up the crevices, thus wedging the packing in between the bottles in a manner much tighter than it can be done by hand. This is the method used by professional packers.

GOOD LUCK, GENTLEMEN!

Now that it's all over let us overlook the fact that the man composing the ticket held by Mayor-elect Tucker had just a good right to run for office in Twin Falls as has any other set of men—and let us also endeavor to be in mind that the welfare of Twin Falls is a bigger thing than the question of the election of any individual or group of individuals on either one ticket or the other.

Twin Falls, within a few days will start out under the Commission Plan of municipal management. Whether the Commission Plan has any particular advantage over the old order of things remains to be seen, but in the meantime, the fight is over and to handicap the incoming administration at the start by carrying forward the spirit of recrimination which prevailed during the campaign would be not only a wrongful, an improper and an unportant-like thing, but it would also be bad policy from the standpoint of the city in which we live.

Win or lose, the line of duty of Twin Falls is clear, has been clear for a long time past; Twin Falls must come first, and there is no better way of helping Twin Falls than by according to the new officials that measure of public confidence and support which is rightfully theirs and to wish for them and their administration the same degree of success which those of us who supported the opposition ticket would have wished for it in the event of its election.

Let's not forget that, always, we are for Twin Falls and for Twin Falls institutions insofar as those institutions merit public confidence and good will. And until such time as the facts indicate otherwise, we are going to assume that public confidence is well placed in the matter of the new city officials—this in justice and fairness to the men elected and to the City in which we all live.

STATE OFFICIAL OPINION ASKED AS TO ELECTION

Attorney General Called Upon to Settle Point With Respect to Required Number of Ballots Needed

Whether another election will be necessary to determine the result of Tuesday's election as to Dr. W. H. Dwight and S. G. McAnley, candidates for county clerk, will be determined by Roy L. Black, Idaho's attorney general, whose opinion in the case has been requested by City Clerk Paul E. Tink.

The attorney general Wednesday afternoon told the city attorney that he would give the question his attention and asked that all of the votes be set out in a letter. This letter was dispatched last evening and it is expected that the opinion will be made known here late today.

That another election will be required is the avowed opinion of H. C. Mills, chairman of the "commission form of government committee" whose candidate McAnley was. Elimination of Dr. Dwight would make it a clean sweep for the winners.

Leaders of the supporters of the group of candidates of which Dr. Dwight was one deny that requirements of the commission form law render Dr. Dwight ineligible for the position of councilman for which he defeated McAnley by a margin of 10 votes.

What the Law Says
The provision of the commission form law in question is that which requires that "no candidate shall be declared elected unless he has received a majority of all of the ballots cast for the office for which he is a candidate."

The total number of ballots cast in this election was 2,628 and 50 per cent of this number would be 1,314. Dr. Dwight's actual vote was announced as 1,243, and McAnley's as 1,224. Dr. Dwight last night denied rumors to the effect that he would withdraw from the contest.

Will Educate the Indians.
An objective committee on education among the Indians of Mexico, which promises to do away with their illiteracy, has been named out by the department of public education of the Mexican government. Preliminary to the establishment of schools in Indian communities an inspection of the different tribes will be made by Prof. Lauro Cateca. It is stated that the work will be started with the appointment of 100 instructors, and that in making these selections preference will be given to those teachers who speak the Indian language. An appropriation of 500,000 pesos, equivalent to $250,000 money, will be used to get this new educational work started.

Reforming the Deal.
Some one who has evidently been suffering from a succession of poor hands when playing whist or bridge has devised a pack of cards the backs of which are marked with numbers and indicators, and the cards are dealt according to the indicators, instead of in the usual way, by rotation. The result is that four absolutely equal combinations of cards are obtained by the four players. There are 12 sets of indicators on each pack of cards, making possible 12 entirely different hands or sets of combinations. After the cards have been dealt, the game is played in any of the ordinary ways.

It Happened Long Ago.
An old man told us a story the other day that he says was true. It happened in the old wild days, when 205 days were considerably damper than they are now. It seems that he and his buddy were holding down a solitary outpost in the Philippines and it was their duty to raise and lower the national colors morning and night. One day, during evening, through an oversight, they neglected to lower the flag at sundown. All went well until the next morning when they searched frantically for the flag, only to discover that it was hanging limply at the top of the flag pole. The Leatherneck.

Polite Youth.
The Teacher—Robert, I saw you put a package of cigarettes in your pocket. Give them to me, at once.
Robert, alias Tim—Here y' are, Miss Gieson. I'd have offered 'em to you before only I didn't know you smoked.

Repulsive Bird.
The greatest bird gourmand is the vulture of southeast Europe. Seven vultures can strip the carcass of a sheep in half an hour. After a meal they can fly only a few yards. They stand with puffed-out bodies, drooping wings, and blood-shot eyes, uttering hideous cries.

Things Worth While at Booth's

If we didn't think they were worth your while reading about them we wouldn't waste time and money advertising them.

LET THE "SUN SHINE" Editorial

Scientists have concluded that the age of the world is anywhere from sixty million to six hundred million years—but what's the difference of a few million years between friends. Our boasted civilization is but four or five thousand years old—and who can tell how many civilizations may have perished and faded in the past ages or to what heights they may have grown, all to be obliterated in an unwritten past. In so vast a stretch of time how small are we and in the affairs of the world our local politics are but petty. The city election is over and like other city elections held in Twin Falls that were more bitter than this it will soon be forgotten as it should be.

Forecasters see in the sky all signs of a better day of prosperity ahead. Let us in Twin Falls be through with contention and strife. Its confidence and construction we must have. Its up to you and me to see that we get it. Our reputation away from home has been blemished by vile publicity. Its high time we apply the brakes and start back. This is the best town in the best county on earth, and its filled with the best people on earth. The Mayor and Council-elect are men of character and worth. The electorate has declared for them. They should have our confidence, respect and support. They are good men and I believe will do their best. Best wishes, gentlemen. Here's to Twin Falls.
—C. E. BOOTH.

HARRIET and the PIPER

By Kathleen Norris
Illustrated by Irwin Myers

CHAPTER IV.

"Again Harriet fled through the quiet house as if pursued by furies, and again reached her room with white cheeks and a fast-beating heart. Nina was not there. She crossed to the window, and stood there with her hand upon the pane. Oh, this hot summer afternoon, the front door was open, and Harriet stepped into the odorous gloom of the hall, and let the screen door bang lightly behind her.

Immediately, in the open archway into the parlor, a girl of fifteen appeared, a pretty girl with blue eyes and brown hair, a shabby but fresh little white dress, and a napkin dangling from her hand.

"Oh, Harriet—It's Aunt Harriet! Oh, you darling!"

Harriet, laughing, went from the child's wild entrance into the arms of Linda herself, a tall, broadly built, pleasant-faced woman with none of Harriet's own unusual beauty, but with a family resemblance to her younger sister nevertheless.

"Well, you sweet good child!" she said warmly. "Fred—here's Harriet! Well, my dear, isn't it fortunate that we were late! We had hardly come!"

The remaining members of the family now streamed forth: Fred Davenport, a thin, rather gray man of fifty, with an intelligent face, a worried forehead, and kindly eyes; Julia, a blonde beauty of twelve; Mammy, a fat, sweet boy of five, with a bib on; and Pip, a serious ten-year-old, with black hair and faded blue overalls.

"Fred was a newspaper man, one of the submerged many, underpaid, overworked, unloved, yet vaguely satisfied through all the long years by the feeling that his groove was not quite the groove of the office, the teller's desk, or the traveling salesman's 'beat'."

Here in the little suburban town his opinion weighed some little weight from the fact that he had been ten years with a New York evening paper, Mrs. Davenport was interested in everything her sister had to say; knew the Carters, and even some of their closest friends by name, and asked all sorts of questions about them.

frequently happened, Linda took the older sister's privilege of scolding.

When Harriet had chaperoned Nina and Amy to the Friday afternoon matinee, and had only deposited Amy afterwards in the Hawkes mansion, and had escorted Nina to her grandmother's apartment, she was free to direct Hansen to drive her to the Jersey tube, and to spend a hot, uncomfortable hour in a street car, and to commiserate on the way to Linda's house.

She mounted the three cement steps from the sidewalk level, and the four shabby and peeling wooden ones that rose to the porch. On this hot summer afternoon, the front door was open, and Harriet stepped into the odorous gloom of the hall, and let the screen door bang lightly behind her.

Immediately, in the open archway into the parlor, a girl of fifteen appeared, a pretty girl with blue eyes and brown hair, a shabby but fresh little white dress, and a napkin dangling from her hand.

Here in the little suburban town his opinion weighed some little weight from the fact that he had been ten years with a New York evening paper, Mrs. Davenport was interested in everything her sister had to say; knew the Carters, and even some of their closest friends by name, and asked all sorts of questions about them.

Later in the evening Fred was still at the piano. It was a poor piano, and he was a poor player who smoked his old pipe while he painstakingly fingered Mendelssohn's "Song Without Words" or the score of "The Gethse." But Linda loved him.

"He will putter away there, perfectly content, for an hour," she told Harriet. "And at ten you'll see him around to get Josephine. He's got great clumps, she thinks there's none in the world like Daddy!"

Harriet's thoughts had wandered.

"How's David?"

"Lovely. He always comes to see Sunday dinner," Linda said. "And he always asks for you" she added, with some significance. David Davenport, Fred's somewhat heavy and brooding brother, a successful Brooklyn dentist, had never made any secret of his feeling for the beautiful Harriet.

"I like David," Harriet said, in answer to some faint indication of reproach in her sister's tone. But immediately afterward she added, in a lower voice: "Ward Carter has had Royal Blondin at the house this week."

Linda's rocker stopped as if by shock. There was an electric silence. When she spoke again it was with awe and incredulity and something like terror in her tone.

"Royal Blondin! He's in England!"

"He was," Harriet said, dryly. "He's been in New York for two years now."

Linda shuddered.

"I know—I remember!" she said in a whisper. And she added fervently, "I hoped he was dead!"

"So did I!" Harriet said, simply. "Our meeting was entirely accidental. He had no idea of finding me; was as surprised as I was. She stopped abruptly, musing on some unspoken thought. "You wouldn't know him, Linda. He is a perfect freak. Now thought, and poetry, and the occult, and Tagore and the Russian novelists, and the Russian music; was extremely successful. He wears ponce coats and red ties, and has his hair long, and—well, you never saw women act so about anything or anybody! He's having dinner with the Carters every night. To this Linda could only ejaculate an amass!"

"Royal Blondin!" And at Harriet merely nodded, in the gloom, she added, vigorously, "Why, he isn't a penny! He was always an idiot—he didn't have enough to eat ten years ago!"

"Well, he has enough to eat now! Ward told me that he gets three hundred dollars for his drawing-room talks—his 'interpretive musings,' he called them."

"Well, that—Mrs. Davenport was still dazed with astonishment and indignation. "That really—" she began, and stopped, shaking her head.

"Tell me everything you said!" she commanded.

"I will!" Harriet's voice fell faintly. "I came home to talk it over with you." But it was fully five minutes later that she began the inevitable confidences. "We talked—Ray and I—"

"He said, briefly, 'If you don't belong in my life, now, any more than I do in his! We simply agreed to a sort of mutual minding of our own business.'"

"Thank God!" Mrs. Davenport said, fervently. "He—hadn't want to go, hadn't still feel—he won't worry you, then! He asked somewhat differently. Harriet's stub had an unpleasant edge.

"He is after bigger game than I am, now!" she said.

"The 'bigger'?" her sister commented in a whisper. "It—it is all right, then?" she asked, a little timidly.

"All right!" Harriet echoed, bitterly. "I haven't drawn a happy breath since I saw him! All that time came up again, as fresh as if it were yesterday—except that I have climbed a little way, Linda; I was happy—I was busy and useful—and I had—I had my self-respect!"

And suddenly the bright head was in Linda's lap, and she was sobbing bitterly, with a great ache in her heart, circled her arm mother-fashion, as she had circled them a hundred times, about her little sister.

"I know—I remember!" she said in a whisper. And she added fervently, "I hoped he was dead!"

"So did I!" Harriet said, simply. "Our meeting was entirely accidental. He had no idea of finding me; was as surprised as I was. She stopped abruptly, musing on some unspoken thought. seroon of the Lavinger this evening, is unique in that the hero of the film also is the villain, Edith von Stroheim, the author and director of the picture, in addition plays the principal role, that of a renegade Russian count, who victimizes the wife of an American envoy to the Principality of Monaco. Although dapper and debonair in his flashy dress uniform, the count purges a villainous way across the screen, and he casts his dearts in the final reel.

THE ORPHEUM.
—Waves of laughter; gales of mirth; oceans of joy!
For the life of "A Sailor-Made Man!"
Never has Harold Lloyd had such a successful craft as this. Never did he start out on such an auspicious voyage. It's a super-draght comedy, with no limitation on laughter.
"A Sailor-Made Man," for lavish sets, for sumptuous scenes, for atmosphere, for mob action, for comedy, for human touches, for consistent laughs, has them all lashed to the mast and yelling for help!
And the setting are the last word in perfection. First Abington Arms, a fashionable summer resort. Then the interior of a U. S. navy recruiting office. Then the deck of an actual fighting craft (the U. S. S. Frederic), the crew's quarters below decks, the bridge, the gun deck. (Ask any boy who was in the navy. He'll tell you how real it is!) Then the detailed perfection of a street scene in a picture.

esque Oriental town. Not a two-or three-hous, but a real street, with houses and swarming crowds of natives and street fakirs. And then the sumptuous and magnificent palace and harem of the Maharajah, with its towers and minarets, its molten pools, its art treasures. And don't forget the beautiful dancing girls.

This latest Lloyd feature will be shown at the Orpheum Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

THE BIALTO.
"Pack up your troubles in your old kit bag, and smile, smile, smile!"
That might have been the motto of the hero in "The Scrapper," but there isn't any record of the fact. "The Scrapper" is the Universal special attraction starring Herbert Rawlinson, which opens at the Bialto theater today.
It's the story of a dashing young Irishman right out of college and endowed with a banking for two Chicago-work and romance. And he has the sunniest sort of a nature. If he's winning, his only boast is, "I had you there—yes I did!"
When he's being beaten, he doesn't pull a long face, and set his chin like that of a bull dog trying to surround the neck of a colic, with a two-inch jaw. He prides and waits till the clouds roll by with philosophical good nature. But he isn't slow. Oh, boy, no! He tries to kiss a girl the first time he meets her, and because she won't do it he retaliates by marrying her before the film.

IDAHO THEATRE.
That pre-eminent mother and father of pictures—Vera Gordon and Dora Davidson—again appear in a picture of humble life, a picture that is undoubtedly the crown of their highly successful career. The new play is "The Good Provider," a Paramount picture created by Cosmopolitan Productions, written by Fausto Hurst and directed by Frank Borzage. These four—Miss Gordon, Mr. Davidson, Miss Hurst and Mr. Borzage—helped to make "Humoresque" the evening picture that it was, and Kristian Ballin, who also did her share in it, has an important part in "The Good Provider."

Vivienne Osborne, William (Buster) Collier, Jr., and John Roche also lend their excellent talents to the production. This wonderful film has its final showing at the Idaho today.

If you are looking for good entertainment—if you want to laugh and then to cry a little—if you feel a bit sentimental and you think of what FATHER and MOTHER really mean to you—and if you want your children to learn an object lesson of reverence—Then come to the
