

91ST DIVISION MEN TO FORGET WAR AT REUNION

Veteran of "Wild West" Outfit to be Reminded of Happier Hours Overseas at Meeting at Seattle in August

SEATTLE.—Not to remind of the grim days of war, but rather to make them forget the horrors of battle, and the dreary days when their friendships were formed, the entertainment to be provided for the boys of the Ninety-First division will be of a nature to make them remember the happier hours of war times, when they meet here on Aug. 10 and 20.

With dancing as one of the features of the entertainment, the ex-servicemen will be reminded of the days after the armistice when the hangars in the different areas were flooded and the villagers came with their families and neighbors, that the Semmes might have girls to dance with.

Noted for Good Dancers.
The Ninety-First "Wild West" division, noted for its numbers of good dancers overseas, will again be a force to be feared, though this time the girls of France will be far away and the Yale six of their beloved America will be with them.

A departure from war reminiscences will be in order when the boys go down the streets of a miniature city built to represent the streets of Nome, Alaska in the days when gold-mad men raced to the frozen regions for the yellow metal. Hard-faced miners, made up for the occasion to make a realistic scene, will go about their work in this city and into the gambling halls and dens of vice as the portrayal of the times calls for.

Boxing matches will serve as reminders of the long, long evenings in the training areas when the gloves rested the slippers of the soldiers and afforded amusement for the men from the trenches resting from their labors.

Circus Acts on Bill.
Circus acts and slide shows will afford entertainment for a number of the soldiers who have no thought of the battle days and are content with the light-hearted things life offers.

But, there will be one reminder of the hard training days and the "pass in review" days when a parade of Ninety-First division men passes down the streets of the city. Minus the rifle which became a burden before the long marches ended and without the stern discipline necessary in war, a jovial crowd of men, some in uniform, some in civies, will move laughingly through the streets.

A spot which will bring back memories of their training days will be visited—and a grand home-coming jubilee will be staged when the Seattle crowds go to Camp Lewis, the first mobilization headquarters of the division.

SHORT LINE MAKES TEST OF NEW TYPE PASSENGER ENGINE

POCATELLO.—Engine men over all districts of the Short Line are watching with great interest the test runs of engine No. 7000, the latest in passenger engines, which is being tested over all divisions of the road. The 7000 was run out of Pocatello on No. 18 Friday and in addition to the regular crew several company officials were in the cab to watch the performance of the engine over the stiff grades of the second district. No. 7000 is the largest passenger engine ever used out of Pocatello and should it perform satisfactorily will probably be stationed at this point. All tests proving satisfactory, several engines of this type will likely be purchased for service on the various districts of which Pocatello is the division point.

The locomotive has eight drive wheels in place of the usual six of the passenger engines in use at present and also has six trucks at each end of the tender instead of four. It surpasses in size even the large freight engines now in use here and one of the features is the noticeable absence of fixtures along the side of the locomotive above the running board. No. 7000 was produced by the Schenectady, N. Y., works of the American Locomotive Company and is manned by a special crew from the factory.

Drawing an Audience.
Professor Letortovich—"I'm delighted to see so large a gathering in the hall and also the six trucks at each end of more than 40 before. Your townsmen are interested in science?" The Local Editor—"Not much. But my compositor, in setting up the ml of your lecture on the "Cosmic Forces," left the 's' out of "Cosmic."

AUTO INDUSTRY ENJOYING BOOM AS RESULT OF VARIOUS FACTORS

Price Cuts, Better Roads, and Lower Cost of Up-keep, Tires and Accessories Combine to Bring About Virtual Rehabilitation from Standpoint of Manufacturers

By ROGER W. BABSON
WHELEBLY HILLA, MASS. (Special to the News)—In discussing the general situation for the week Roger Willabson, the statistician, today made the following analysis of the automobile industry.

Many persons have been surprised at the recent rebound in the automobile industry and in the price of automobile securities. Those, however, who have been carefully watching the situation are not surprised. The price cut in automobiles developed now buying; the extension of the good roads movement increased the demand for tires and the reduction in the cost of tires and general supplies encouraged more people to use cars. The man who has never had a car now drives one; and the man who was content with one car now has two or three. No, the saturation point has not yet been reached. Moreover, as our system of good roads is extended this saturation point is pushed further and further away. The saturation point for automobiles in this country will not be reached until our system of highways has been completed and perfected.

The great factor, however, was today's making of autos for the automobile companies is the silent and insistent purchasing of "parts" by the present users of cars. People have no idea of the tremendous business existing today in automobile parts. It is generally estimated that about ten million dollars is invested in automobiles and their accessories. It is further estimated that a man spends about 5 per cent a year on repairs and that a large proportion of this is for new parts. This means that from three hundred to four hundred million dollars of automobile business per year exists in the manufacture and sale of new parts for cars already sold. Not only is this a large amount of money, but there is as much net profit in this business as in double or treble the same amount of automobile business. If you have any doubt of this take the "parts" catalog for any car and add up what it would cost to buy all of the parts of the car separately. Not only are the companies getting high prices for these parts, but there is practically no expense connected with the selling of these parts. When buying a complete car I may buy from any one of a hundred companies, but when buying a part to one of my present cars I must buy of the company which manufactures the car. Half of these parts is being sold to the other companies a tremendous income.

Now a Settled Industry

Investors will therefore see that the automobile business has graduated from the experimental stage and has become a great settled industry, at least as far as the older company is concerned. The bond will asset of every business should increase as the years go on, provided it manufactures honestly a useful product. The older automobile companies, however, possess the additional asset of being able to sell parts for existing cars. Many of these companies could pay their dividends, certainly their preferred dividends, from the profits from the sale of parts. If Ford did not manufacture another car, he could do a tremendous business for years to come in manufacturing parts for the cars already sold. If the saturation point is ever reached in the automobile business, the profits from the replacements of machines and the sale of parts will still be tremendous.

Care in Stock Buying

Of course new automobile companies do not possess this asset. Hence, conservative then purchase only the stocks of the older and more-gainable concerns. Wise investors also look carefully to the capitalization. Before buying an automobile stock divide the capitalization by the annual output both in cars and in dollars. Certain popular makes of cars are over capitalized, and certain companies with small outputs have very conservative capitalization. Therefore, one should consider both the output and the capitalization. Neither factor by itself is sufficient in judging an automobile stock.

Business Holding Its Own

I want to emphasize particularly the fact that the automobile industry is today a permanent industry and that the securities of the standard automobile companies should rank with those of the steel companies. Moreover, in view of the foreign competition which the steel companies will soon have, I should even be inclined to sell certain steel securities and invest the proceeds in selected automobile stocks.

In spite of strikes, actual and threatened, general business is holding its own. The index of the Business Chart shows activities at 15 per cent below normal. The same as last week.

Blessed Opinion.
A Scotch preacher says clergymen make the best husbands and writes the worst. He puts army and navy officers next to the top in his list and poets next to the last. The third business man isn't even mentioned. We suspect the Scotch preacher has not contributing poets or artists in his congregation.

Puzzling Language.
"Yes," said the lady who had once been robbed of $18,000 worth of jewelry. "I have a niece that's married to a vice-count. They say the 's' ain't sounded but I always forget and put it in. Where I was educated they learned us to sound everything except the 'p' in 'logary'."

UNIVERSITIES TO COMPETE IN BATTLE OF OARS

Monday Will See Contest at Poughkeepsie for Honors in Intercollegiate Rowing—Six Crews Will Enter

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP)—Over the waters that for nearly three decades have provided a course for the most eagerly sought and most bitterly fought victories in American intercollegiate rowing the crews of six universities will pull oars Monday in the intercollegiate rowing association's 24th championship struggle.

Of more than ordinary interest to even the close followers of rowing is this year's regatta, the entries of the University of Washington and the United States Naval Academy expanding the eastern aspect of the races to national importance and furnishing a means for determining the supremacy on the water between the two sides of the continent.

The navy crew, regarded as a southern entry, was an anxious to show its mettle that the cadets obtained permission to miss part of the middle annual cruise to accept the association's invitation to compete. Its racing, almost all of which is done several hundred miles north of Annapolis, has made it the most feared to the East.

It is only the third appearance of the navy and Washington in the association's regatta, usually participated in by Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse. The coaches of these crews regard Monday's encounter as of especial significance to experts, considering that the best sweep handlers in the colleges of the country will be on the water.

For more than a quarter of a century the intercollegiate regatta, usually rowed at Poughkeepsie, has divided with the annual Harvard-Yale race the place of the spotlight in American rowing.

Prices of lead-breadth finishes with crews crumpling to the victor's heart thunders amid a driving flash of perfectly synchronized oars rowing like automatons, have found their inspiration at either New London or Poughkeepsie.

Navy, which won this regatta last year with the Pacific coast entry, California, finishing second, and Cornell, with a crew up to the usual standard, are being highly touted tonight. Cornell has established a record in this classic unequalled in any other branch of sport, having won 13 times and finishing second five times out of 25 starts. It has defeated both Yale and Harvard this year.

Result May Lengthen Course.

Upon the form and endurance displayed Monday depends the length of the course next year. Except for a three-mile race in 1898 and a two-mile event in 1920—both shortened because the nation was either at arms or recovering from war—the event was of four miles until last year. Everyone was not satisfied with the 1921 regatta and if there is more disappointment this year the fourth mile may be added again.

Over the four-mile course Columbia went from 1905 until without a victory, winning only the first regatta and finishing second six other times. Three times Pennsylvania has won, in 1898, 1899 and 1900, finishing second on three other occasions. Syracuse won five times in 1904, '08, '12, '16 and in the shortened distance in 1920, with one second place in 1903, to its record.

PROSPECTS FOR GIANT PROJECT BECOME BETTER

Early Reports on Renewed Efforts to Complete Circulation of American Falls Petition Raise Hopes

Prospects for construction of the American Falls dam were improved Saturday when reports came in telling of success attending the circulation in this district of petitions for formation of the Snake River irrigation district to assist in financing the big reservoir project.

Bussman Heads List

Among the petition circulators, who reported Saturday, Ben H. Bussman, secretary of the Bull Chamber of Commerce, led the list with his report of 2000 acts represented by 140 signatures on petitions circulated by him in the vicinity of Bull.

Earlier in the week it was announced that it would be necessary to secure additional signatures representing about 1000 acres of land under the Twin Falls canal system for the petition, circulation of which has been completed by all canal companies included in the proposed irrigation district, except the Twin Falls country.

Takes Optimistic View

A. L. Swain, chairman of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce reclamation bureau, Saturday evening said that results of the last few days' circulation of petitions were very encouraging and that it was possible that that week's report on the work at that time would show that the required acreage had been signed up. It will be impossible to determine actual results for a few days, he said.

Work Against Time

Circulation of the petitions has been pushed recently in an effort to complete the work before the federal reclamation service opens its new fiscal year, July 1. Representatives of the reclamation service have pointed out that federal funds for the American Falls project may be diverted there to other projects unless there is a definite and substantial showing of interest on the part of Idaho citizens in the undertaking here.

TWIN FALLS GIRLS BACK FROM OUTING CONFERENCE

Enthusiasm Over Ten Days' Camping at Payette Lakes Is Expressed

Twin Falls' delegation at the annual girls' Y. W. C. A. summer camp-conference for Idaho and eastern Oregon which closed Friday after continuing for 10 days at Payette Lakes, returned Saturday brim full of enthusiasm over the experience. Eleven girls, nine of them delegates from the Blue Triangle club of the high school and two representatives of the Girls' Reserves of the Junior High school, with Miss Marian Barnes, of Rupert, formerly a teacher of the high school here, composed the Twin Falls delegation.

The conference was attended by about 100 girls and their leaders. While study and discussion of club problems were varied with swimming, rowing, jorrobac riding and other out of door sports by the girls in camp. The day began each day for the girls at 8:30 o'clock.

On the last day of the conference members of the Twin Falls delegation gave a demonstration of a model club meeting during the daily council hour. Blue Triangle club members attending the conference were Misses Helen Booth, Una Stafford, Mabel Dolin, Nina Howard, Mary Newman, Valene Rowberry, Orpha Merkle, Beth Duke and Cleo DeWitt. The Girls Reserves were represented by Peggy Wall and Barbara Noble.

POCATELLO TO BE HOST AT GET-TOGETHER MEET

South Idaho to be Represented at Two Days Convention to Get Acquainted

Announcement of a "Southern Idaho Get-together conference" at Pocatello, June 27 and 28, has been received by the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. The proposed convention, a meeting day, is an outgrowth of the assignment of representatives of various southern Idaho towns at Idaho Falls June 26.

Purpose of the Pocatello convention indicated are to "devote the entire time to getting acquainted with each other, and discussion things of interest pertaining to Idaho and its development."

CITY ELECTION DATE AT HAND

Twin Falls Will Complete Selection of First Commission Form Administration

Increasing interest in the political situation in this county and state together with the announced purpose of Dr. W. H. Dwight, one of the two candidates for the vacant place on the incoming Twin Falls city council to make no active campaign, seem to have partly effectually diverted public attention from the forthcoming city election.

Nevertheless, under the provisions of the commission form law recently made applicable to Twin Falls, such an election is to be held next Tuesday to determine whether Dr. Dwight or E. G. McAuley will fill the vacant position. Each of the two candidates failed by a few votes of securing a majority at the first commission form election June 6 at which the incoming mayor and three of the four councilmembers were elected.

The second election will complete Twin Falls' choice of its first commission form administration which will take office July 3.

Polls will be opened as usual for the voting Tuesday at 9 a. m. and will remain open until 5 p. m. Polling places will be provided for the first ward at the municipal building at the corner of Second avenue and Second street north, and for the second ward at the Johnson Auto company's offices, Shoshone street east.

Will Convene Monday as Board of Equalization for Taxpayers' Appeals

Under provisions of Idaho law, members of the board of county commissioners will convene Monday as a board of equalization to consider and take action upon complaints regarding either classification or valuation of property made by the county assessor for purposes of tax assessment. THE MISSION OF MUSICO

There has been a world triumph. The atmosphere is clearing and people are becoming more rational and natural...

Otto H. Kahn, the banker, made a speech recently when "Music Week" was inaugurated in New York City.

Kahn is a banker who knows something besides money; he believes in making good music available to all people.

It is not hard to lift one's arm and to hold it out straight. But no more cruel punishment could be invented than to compel one to stand for hours with an arm held out.

Mr. Kahn thinks that is happening in society, figuratively. The great mass of people do the same thing day after day, year after year.

Many become dull and listless, some become desperate and do wild, absurd and wicked things.

Mr. Kahn, "that some of the causeless of the turmoil, of the lawlessness, even of the crime of the day, arises in a measure from a reaction against the humdrumness and drabness and lack of inspirational opportunity of everyday existence."

The power of music to influence the emotions of the individual has been known. The Greeks recognized the effects of music in the formation of character and at one time tried to prevent youths from hearing music thought to be injurious.

At such a time it is peculiarly important to emphasize the music of great value and of most beneficial effect.

NAVY BOYS GET A T. B. REBBER The official rebuko administered by the acting secretary of the navy...

The results publicly offered one of the members of the class, Leonard Kaplan; were at first supposed to be directed against his race.

out occasion? Your action casts a grave doubt as to your possession of those qualifications essential to any officer in the United States navy."

This was the right way in which to apprise the offenders of the seriousness of their misconduct.

It is not surprising that the command of ships is no post for "blackguards" they need to be told in that illuminating style of speech which is rightly called housecleaning.

TWENTY YEARS WITH ENGLISH PRINCE IN POPULARITY

Return of King's Popular Son Divides Interest in Former President of the United States

LONDON, (AP)—Unquestionably the foremost figure in British history that past week has been the Prince of Wales, although Chief Justice Taft of the United States would have held that position except for such undue competition. As it was, the former president of the United States regarded a substantial second.

It may be truthfully said there is nothing artificial or insincere in the popularity of the Prince and his own people. "Our Princes" were the words on the welcoming banners hung across the streets through which the prince rode home Wednesday, and these words seemed truthfully to denote the feelings of the populace toward this distinct and warm young man. The prince is to have two or three months complete rest from all sorts of official functions. But his return brings to the front another topic, and it is generally suggested that the next duty the prince owes to his country is to get married.

The belief has crystallized that he will marry an English girl, as, for one reason, the field of selection from the royal families of Europe has been greatly narrowed by the war, which eliminated the Russian, German and Austrian houses. It is impossible to mention any royal alliance which today would be popular in Britain.

The number of eligible English girls is limited, but the choice of any one of at least a half dozen who have been mentioned would be approved. There is also a feeling that the prince should be permitted to make his own free choice instead of having his marriage arranged for him by officialdom and inspired by official interests.

IRISH VOTE BRINGS RELIEF Some relief has been brought to England by the decisive vote of the Irish people for the acceptance of the treaty, yet even now no one ventures to predict what the next chapter in Irish history may produce. Many expect the dyed-in-the-wool republicans to try to save the country from what they consider yielding to the threats of England, possibly by arms and guerrilla craft warfare.

With the election has thrown light upon the mind of Southern Ireland, in the north all does not go so well. There have been symptoms of discontent among Ulsterites against their government.

SOVIALISTS HOLD CONFERENCE In pro-war days "international" was a word calculated to strike fear into the hearts of those who govern, but now, with three International Socialist conferences in existence, there are no degrees of socialistic methods ranging from the flaming red of Moscow to the pale shade of the prosperous London suburb of Golders Green, where this past week the conference of the second international was held.

The gentle game of bowls on a beautiful lawn and fence of English stately houses occupied the spare moments of the privy councilors, cabinet ministers and former ministers of European states, who, headed by Arthur Henderson, leader of English laborites, discussed serious economic questions in their sessions. No discussion was held in evidence among the prosperous, responsible-looking, frock-coated politicians, who gave the meeting a distinctly bourgeois air.

Bitter antagonism of their brother or half brother existed at Moscow, with their committal methods in dealing with the social revolutionary projects on trial in the Russian capital marked the session.

Religion in Men's Lives. Let men know that it (religion) is not a thing, it is not a thing to be dilled with for an instant, it is not a thing for a man to convince himself by an argument, and then keep as it were locked in a shell; it is something that is so deep and serious that it cannot be once rested. If there is no more chance of his going out of it (faith) there is of his going out of the friendship and the love which holds him with his perpetual expression, with the continued, deeper meaning, with the most exact of the way in which the living being belongs to him who has a right to his life.—Phillips Brooks.

Pests. All near-sighted persons don't wear glasses. New York farmers have an all-glass, near-sighted blacksnake. Now they go to the Heptio association of the world, buying snakes at fancy prices, to check field mice and rats that are ruining crops. The snake has his right place and function in nature. So have most of the other "pests" which men destroy without reason, to satisfy his repressed lust for killing. Scientists say that each rod is worth $10.44 to a farmer, but because of the insects and worms that consume it.

HARRIET and the PIPER

By Kathleen Norris Illustrations by Irwin Myers

CHAPTER XLII—(Continued) A day or two later Madame Carter came out to the terrace at eleven o'clock, beautifully groomed and gowned, and with an imperative handkerchief. Harriet, who was tumbled and submersed from the tennis court and was going toward the house.

"No Reason to Disbelieve My Son's His Mother Echoed, Scandalized, slowly in a basket chair. The old lady had a good reason, deliberately straightened a ruffie, laid her sugar-bowl on a table. "There was a little matter of which I wished to speak to you," she said, surveying, bringing her distant glance to rest dispassionately for a moment upon Harriet's face.

Harriet waited, amused, annoyed, impatient. "I understand," Madame Carter said, "that you and my son—for some reason, best known to yourselves—have entered into a secret marriage."

"Your first objection, my dear, is not to antagonize his mother," Harriet reminded herself. Aloud she said mildly: "You have no reason to disbelieve it, have you?"

"No reason to disbelieve my son's his mother echoed, scandalized. "Why should I have? Mr. Carter is the soul of honor—absolutely the soul. Upon my word, I don't understand you."

"I said you have no reason to disbelieve him," Harriet repeated. "You said that you understood that he had been married. It is true?"

And she looked out toward the river with an expression as composed as that of Madame Carter herself. "I suppose you know that old saying: 'A secret bride has a secret to tell.' The old woman pursued, pleasantly. "I never heard it. I did not play much with the children of the neighborhood when I was a child," Harriet answered. "My father was very anxious to protect me from picking up expressions of that sort."

This fortunate lead was enough. Madam Carter launched forth upon a description of the usual Carter weddings, the ceremony, the state. In perhaps twenty minutes she was blandly patronizing Harriet, giving her encouraging little tips with her sparkling warning of mistakes that Isabelle had made with Richard. Harriet knew that before three days were over her terrible mother-in-law would be telling the world just how she, under the trying circumstances of the whole thing was, and just how clearly she had foreseen it. Still, she still listening respectfully, if a trifle confusedly, when Ward bounded from the house, and gave her an effusive embrace.

"Hello, Mamma!" Ward said. Harriet laughed, as she pushed away the filial arm. Hardly knowing what she said or did she made her way to the house, and up to her own room.

But here, in Nina's study, with Nina and Mrs. Taber, and from their eyes, as she came in, she knew that they knew. Nina got up, and came forward with a sort of sulky grimace.

"I hope you'll be very happy, Miss Harriet—I suppose I oughtn't to call you Miss Harriet any more," Nina said, with an effort to smile that Harriet thought quite ghastly. She gave Harriet one of her big hands, and heaved a sigh over her. But they did not kiss each other.

At luncheon everything was exactly as usual; Richard had gone to the city, not to return for a night or two, and several social engagements distracted the young couple from the contemplation of their father's affairs. Harriet had not dared to hope that they would accept the situation so quietly, or that the world would. There were callers on the terrace every afternoon, there were pleasant conversations, good weather, there were a few paragraphs in the social weeklies. Richard had for years been too busy for mere entertaining, and the dinner parties and luncheons to the new Mrs. Carter, it was generally felt, must wait until next season.

To glance at the gold ring on her finger made Harriet feel as if a happiness almost shameful was buried to sleep. Her new position, modestly as she filled it, was set in a high position. She saw Richard's growing affection and trust, if he did not. She could afford to wait.

"But when are you and Dick Carter going to dine with me?" Mrs. Putnam said, one afternoon, at tea. Madame Carter, whose Victorian hold of romance was not at all dissatisfied with the idea of the employer marrying his daughter's beautiful governess, smiled significantly.

"The're very old lovers, my dear," she said to Mary with an eloquent glance. Mary laughed, and looked at Harriet, whose face was suddenly crimson. The old lady's eyes, she passed, covered the floor.

"Whenever they're together, they're going to dine with me," she said, patting Harriet's hand with real affection and understanding. But Mary was free to reflect. She had the eyes of a contented woman, freed from her own problem for those of others. "And Harriet is certainly mad about Richard," Mary mused.

But with the rest of the world she had to decide that there was something in the affair that she did not understand. When everyone else had gone from the terrace, and the late afternoon light was fading, Mrs. Taber showed across the yards red bricks, Nina and Ida Taber remained, talking. "And now we positively must go in; Nina!" Ida said. "We've wasted this whole afternoon! I have to get packed if I'm going to the play!"

"But you're not going to the play!" Nina said in soft, sweet, confident reminder. "But I must, darling!" "No, you don't!" "But, dearheart, I truly have to—" "That's perfectly true," Harriet laughed happily. "I sent them a message this afternoon that you were staying with me! So now," she finished triumphantly, "that's settled! And we'll go to bed early, with books, and talk, and maybe cry down for something to eat about eleven, as we did that other night—"

"Nina," Mrs. Taber said, in a now voice, interrupting her, "you didn't telephone Mrs. Jay, did you?"

girl was growing up now, there were other men in her world, and for the list of her eighteenth birthday party she had merely mentioned his name among others.

Three days before the garden party that was to mark the girl's eighteenth birthday Royal drifted in with the assurance that was quite characteristic of him. He rarely accepted an invitation, or waited for one. Perhaps he was clever enough to know that half his acquaintances detested him theoretically, but were glad to have him about. Nina and Harriet came in from an afternoon at the club to find him playing with languid hands at the piano, and he lazily rose to greet them. While Nina was there, his attitude toward both was pleasantly impersonal, but his suggestion, which was more like a demand, that she run upstairs and dress early, so that they might have a talk before dinner, sent the girl flying, and he and Harriet could speak more freely.

"Well, Harriet, I congratulate you! How does it feel to be a married woman?"

"I saw your name in an evening paper; of course I was delighted for you." "Money and position don't really mean much to me," Harriet said, unhesitatingly. "My first sensation," Blondin went on, "was one of satisfaction. I thought to myself that any man, with Nina, was safe now. That you trusted me, and I had every reason to trust you."

Harriet looked away for a brief moment, brought her eyes to his face. "You're suddenly sick." "No, you're not still serious about Nina?" "I have never been anything else," he said, deliberately. "But—why?" Harriet asked. "Like the girl," he reminded her pleasantly. "I hope she is not entirely indifferent to me."

"Indifferent?" She's at the age that marries anybody," Harriet said, indignantly. "You give me hope," Royal said with a bow. "Her father's very violently opposed to it," Harriet said, after a troubled silence. "I am well aware of that, my dear, her father forbids me the house last December. I submitted; the girl submitted. But we made our plans. I fancy we will not have any difficulty now."

"You mean that you are engaged?" "An understanding. We have corresponded, each on their own and then through Ida Taber. It's, he smiled, dreadfully, "extremely romantic, of course," he said.

"I can't honestly tell him so, Roy," the girl interrupted.

"Can't you?" Blondin said. He looked across the open hallway to Nina, descending in fresh ruffles and ribbons, and raised his voice. "Here she is—looking like the very rose of the garden. Come on now, Nina, you aren't going to belong to anybody else but to me for a while!" he said. "As he turned to leave Harriet, he added again: "Can't you think it over?"

CHAPTER XLIII.

Royal Blondin presently came to pay his respects to Harriet in her changed position. Nina had told her that he had been forbidden the house in December; they had seen him only two or three times since their return from Bermuda, and then accidentally. Harriet was thankful to believe the affair between him and Nina well over. The

LIFE MAY EXIST ON VENUS, SAYS DOCTOR ABBOT

Scientist of Smithsonian Institution Declares Planets Conditions Approximate Those of Earth

WASHINGTON, (AP)—While there may be many worlds—millions of them—populated by beings and cultured by civilizations the planet Venus, according to Dr. C. U. Abbot, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, is the only one known to scientists whose conditions most nearly approximate those under which life thrives.

Writing in the annual report of the institution, just made public, Dr. Abbot, while he does not declare Venus to be inhabited, rejects the possibility of other nearby planets holding intelligent life.

Dr. Abbot does cite, however, the chance that there may be any number of celestial bodies, yet invisible through the most powerful telescopes, on which there may thrive some sort of life.

Distant Stars May Hold Life.

As is well known, the scientist states stars are many like our own, and just as Old Sol has his retinue of satellites, of which one, at least, is inhabited, so may the billions of stars, and the millions of billions of other stars, have their own retinue of planets. However, most of these are so far from us, he says, that it is hardly conceivable that telescopes will ever be so perfected as to detect their systems, if they have them, or decide whether or not they hold life.

The probability is that they do exist, Dr. Abbot states, and in such immense numbers that among them there may well be many suitable for abodes of intelligent life. This subject, of course, opens the door wide for speculation, but the first step is to find out the realm of certainty that is not my purpose to enter upon it here.

The moon, he continues, is known to be a waterless, airless, mountainous desert. There is no probability what over that intelligent life can be there. No living organism could survive the hardest chemical compound, even left upon the surface because of the intense heat. Water, if it could reach the sun or planets, would be instantly separated into its component gases, oxygen and hydrogen.

Of the other planets, Neptune, Uranus, Saturn and Jupiter are considered to be composed of gases of slight density. The theory of life on these would be rejected for that reason alone. Their temperatures, however, also would render them unfit for life. Mercury is being estimated at about 400 degrees Fahrenheit, Uranus, minus 350 degrees, Saturn, minus 330, and Jupiter minus 270. Moreover, their density is another factor; the density of Jupiter, which is the greatest of the four, is only 1.3 that of water.

Mercury Cannot Sustain Life

As shown by its low reflecting power, Mercury, Dr. Abbot declares, like the moon, is an airless, waterless waste, and being besides baked by a torrid heat, twelve-fold that of our own planet, there can be no thought of life there.

The main requisites of life are light, certain inorganic salts, carbon, compounds, water and warmth. Plant and animal life requirements of light are very elastic. Plants, grow and animals thrive on certain light, as is shown by the fact that the sun's rays, and the full sun is far from being too strong for most of them.

As of Mars, the scientist declares, thorough researches have shown the atmosphere to contain less than one-fifth the oxygen found on the surface of Earth. Hamilton in the coldest, clearest winter nights. The solar radiation received on Mars is only six-tenths of that on the earth, and, with the protective blanket in the atmosphere to conserve the heat, Mars' temperature is estimated to approximate 60 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. Telescope studies reveal no clouds on Mars, Dr. Abbot declares, in stating that he cannot accept the views of those who "claim great things for Mars."

"Biglow Papers"

The "Biglow Papers" were a series of humorous and satirical poems which at two critical times in the nation's history made James Russell Lowell not only a popular poet but an important figure in the life of the country. The first, relating to the Mexican war, appeared in 1848; the second, dealing with the Civil war and reconstruction, in 1861. Both were signed with the fictitious name of Boston Blower.

How Soldiers Met Death

During the World war it was frequently observed that the British soldier, when he died, died with stoic calm, that the emotional Frenchman often expressed little, not unmanfully, in tears, and that the Americans in many cases were known to die with a laugh or a joke on their lips.

Famous Comedy "Cappy Ricks" Coming

Dramatization of Peter B. Kyno's Delightful Saturday Evening Post Stories, to Be Presented at Chautauqua on the Fifth Night by the Percival Vivian Players

"Cappy Ricks" will prove a feature attraction the fifth night at the Chautauqua this year. This delightful American comedy, dramatized from Peter B. Kyno's famous Saturday Evening Post stories, is to be presented with full scenic equipment by the Percival Vivian Players of New York City. A carefully chosen metropolitan cast, selected and personally coached by Mr. Vivian, will give the production. "Cappy Ricks" is a play of the Frisco waterfront; the story of a weather-beaten, old sea-dog, whose rough exterior concealed a heart of gold; it is a play of quiet character types, and a wholesome atmosphere, with a delightful love story and a vein of pathos running throughout. Mr. Vivian is perhaps the best-known of the New York actor-producers. His productions are solid and significant, and through his professional standing in New York he is enabled to secure the best and cleanest of American plays for Chautauqua presentation. He was for many years playing leading roles with the Ben Greet Players and for some time was manager for them. Two years ago he staged "The Warfaring" at Madison Square Garden, the largest religious pageant ever presented, in which over 5,000 people took part.

DRIVERS OF AUTOMOBILES BECOME MORE NEGLIGENT

Observations by Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Show Increasing Number of Careless Motorists

BALTIMORE, (AP)—Auto drivers of motor vehicles, becoming more negligent, less respectful of their own safety.

It would seem from actual observation made by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. For more than two years, this railroad has been placing over its crossings where there are usually a large number of automobiles passing. These observers note the number of machines crossing and take down the license numbers of those whose drivers fail to take any precaution to insure themselves that it is safe to pass over the tracks. This safety precaution consists of the driver's slowing down or stopping, and then backing and stopping. When a driver drives over without taking any of these precautions, his license number is noted and a card telling him of his negligence is sent him, with request in regard to his life and property the next time he goes over a railroad track.

Six Per Cent Were Careless

In the year 1920 the Baltimore and Ohio observers took note of 285,000 vehicles in the states through which it operates. If that year, according to the records of these observers, there were 24,500 drivers who failed to take any precautions at highway crossings. This was 6 per cent of the total observations made.

In April of this year there were 16,477 automobiles checked by the railroad's observers. There were 997 of the drivers of these reported as failing to stop, look or listen before passing over the tracks. This was a safety "failure" of 18 per cent.

For the first four months of this year there were 52,814 machines observed and the "failures" reached 17 per cent. The increase in the number of drivers failing to take safety precautions seems clearly to indicate, in the opinion of the road's safety department, that the automobile driver is becoming more negligent.

100 BARREL FLOUR MILL PLAN FOR CASPER, WYO.

Hard Wheat Raised in Vicinity Will Keep New Milling and Elevator Company Busy

CASPER, Wyo., (AP)—Casper, famed as the center of one of the greatest old producing sections of the country, is to have a flour mill. Plans have been virtually completed for the establishment of a milling and elevator company here with a daily output of 100 barrels. The factory will be in operation by August 1, according to factors of the project. The company which is located here is to be capitalized for $100,000. Working capital for erection of the plant already has been provided.

Hard wheat raised in dry farms in the vicinity of Casper is expected to keep the mill well supplied. The company plan to establish elevators along the lines of two railroads entering here which traverse rich farming country.

An alfalfa mill, for making feed for livestock and other by-products is expected to be one of the developments of the company in the near future.

"War Paint" Comes Soon

One of the very earliest flowers to appear above the carpet of leaves of a bygone year, says the American Forestry Magazine, is the bloodroot, a named because of the red juice which exudes from the stems and root-stocks when they are injured and which was at one time used by the aboriginal tribes as war-paint.

Construction Work Begins on Third Story to Lindley Hall

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, MOSCOW.—Construction work on the addition of a third story to Lindley hall, men's dormitory, was started this week. Work will be rushed to completion before the beginning of the fall term.

The construction contract has been let to the M. C. Conley Construction company of Spokane. The cost to complete the structure and furnish the rooms is estimated at $10,000.

Lindley hall was built two years ago, and each year has housed 300 men. The addition of a third story will increase the capacity to 150.

Large dining hall capable of seating 200 is a part of the dormitory.

Large recreation rooms and parlors are to constitute part of the improvements made this summer.

Dreams can be made use of. If you have a problem to solve, then set your subjective to work on it overnight. 61 LIGHT CARS BOUGHT BY CITY

A fleet of sixty-one Chevrolet automobiles has been purchased and delivered to the Public Service department of the city administration.

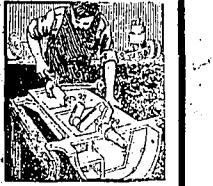

This is believed to be one of the largest purchases and deliveries of low priced cars ever made to Los Angeles, announced the transaction was made by the Los Angeles Chevrolet Dealers' association.

Los Angeles has practically standardized on Chevrolet equipment and the low-priced car will be seen on all duties of the city in the future.

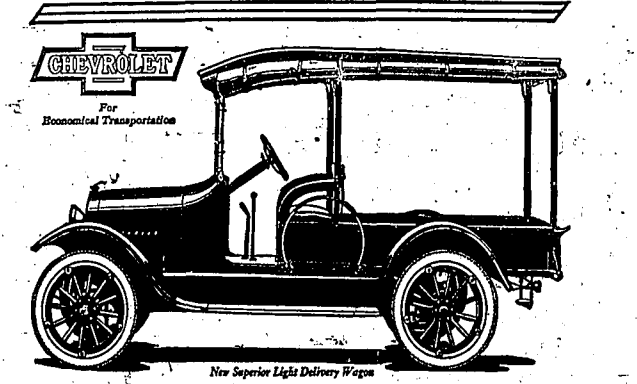

The Chevrolet recently set a high mark in the Los Angeles-Yosemite run when it maintained an average of 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline through the heavy, muddy roads which the cars encountered on the trip.—adv.

Flight of Pigeons

Experiments have shown that pigeons are able to outstrip the fastest express trains, although on the average they fly at the rate of only 24 miles an hour. A French expert expressed the opinion that they could maintain a velocity of more than 70 miles an hour. They are said to be unable to fly long distances in a perfectly straight line; apparently they are easily driven aside by shifting air currents.

THE MARKETS

Chicago Grain Markets

CHICAGO, (P)—Reports of rain in parts of Nebraska and Iowa caused grains to suffer a setback at the start of the hour of trade's short session Saturday. There was general local commission houses selling on the bet weather conditions, although it was believed that winter wheat would be little benefited except in the case of very late grain. At the finish, wheat values were unchanged to 3-4 lower with July 31 3 1/4 to 1 1/2 3/4 and September 3 1/2 1/4 to 1 1/4 3/4; corn was up 1-2 to 3-4. Oats advanced 1/2 to 1-2 and provisions were unchanged to 1-2 down.

A big storm was reported in the Canadian Northwest with heavy losses of property and crops in some sections. This failed to affect the market to any great extent. There was a widening in the July-September range today to around 1-1/4 discount for the former.

Rain reports led to general selling of corn on the bet, with corn sold by Friday's shorts at the extreme low, made shortly after the opening. Support was lacking for a time and while there was a fair rally, pressure increased on all the upturns and corn generally showed an easy undertone. Rains are not expected to have much effect on oats.

Provisions were weak under scattered selling which found demand light.

Portland Cattle

PORTLAND, (P)—Cattle, market slow; receipts 24. Hogs and sheep, nominally steady. No receipts.

TWIN FALLS MARKETS

NEW YORK, (P)—Sturdy's short session of the stock market was given over largely to two classes of securities—oil and rails, other recent favorites showing neglect.

Meridian Petroleum made an extreme recovery of 6 1/2 points from Friday's set back on covering which resulted from official statements that the company's earnings were unusually large.

Pan-American Petroleum continued to display marked strength as oil in the General Agents, Producers and Refiners and several other prominent foreign and domestic oils.

The more general advance of rails was again led by New York Central at an extreme gain of more than 2 points. High grade Pacific prangers and cotton carriers also made moderate advances on purchases of a substantial character.

Some motors and their rubber accessories were appreciably higher. But steels, equipments, coppers and other metals of the market were mostly unchanged, many showing fractional declines at the close. Sales amounted to 355,000 shares.

Another increase of slightly more than $20,000,000 in actual loans and debentures carried the total of available loans to the year's highest level and an actual decrease in cash holdings of $67,566,200, wiped out the previous week's large cash reserves, leaving a deficit of $3,625,200.

More acute depression in the foreign exchange market, led to a falling rate of exchange on the pound sterling, with German marks at their low record of .825 and declines of 10 to 25 points throughout the continental list.

Seed Growers Attention!

It is NOT NECESSARILY to pool your Clover and Alfalfa seed with any Association to obtain the very highest market prices. The fact was demonstrated last season by the FARMER who sold handled through Associations in comparison with net receipts to the farmer obtained from the independent buyers.

Present conditions indicate that in the field with check books and plenty of ink. You will not be compelled to wait six months to a year for settlement for the seed you sell IF NOT TIED UP in some Association.

TWIN FALLS ON PROPOSED PATH OF MAIL PLANES

Walla Walla Chamber of Commerce Suggests United Effort to Establish Aerial Postal Route to Northwest

Twin Falls will be on the route of an aerial mail service if an undertaking launched by the Walla Walla, Wash. chamber of commerce is carried to a successful conclusion.

First word of the undertaking came here in a letter to the chamber of commerce suggesting that united public effort should be put forth on the part of the citizens of the northwest and strenuous effort made "to secure an aerial mail route from the east by way of Salt Lake to our own section of the United States."

Referred to Bureau.

The suggestion has been referred by the chamber of commerce to its public utilities bureau of which W. F. Dumko is chairman, and persons interested in the proposal are invited to present their views to this bureau.

The Walla Walla chamber of commerce, in its letter points out that an aerial mail route to San Francisco has been established for three years, and offers the opinion that effort to secure a similar route for the Northwest is at this time logical and feasible.

It suggests establishment for the Northwest of a route by way of Pocatello, Twin Falls, Boise, Baker, Walla Walla, The Dalles, Portland, Yankton, Ellensburg, Olympia, Tacoma, Seattle, Lewiston and Spokane.

LAST MINUTE TAXPAYERS SWELL PUBLIC TREASURY

Most Persons Wait for Last Day but Day Before Brings the Most Money

More Twin Falls county taxpayers Saturday settled their 1921 tax bills, but a greater amount of money was received for at the county treasurer's office Friday than preceding day for the payment of the second installment.

The Oregon Short Line and other public utilities corporations paid their taxes Friday, swelling the receipts for the day to about $40,000. The Short Line bill alone was $40,000.

Receipts Saturday, the last day for the payment of the second installment, to avoid application of the six per cent penalty, amounted to approximately $40,000.

The treasurer's office estimates that the money receipts for an account of current taxes up to the closing hour Saturday is about 60 per cent of the total of about $700,000 charged as taxes against real property in the county for the second installment.

Taxpayers who mailed their remittance Saturday will receive a check for the money they have paid and it is expected that the mail will bring tax money into the treasurer's office in considerable volume for several days.

Week Closes With Republican Monopoly on Formal Declarations of Aspiration for County Office

Saturday, as a day for filing nominations subject to the primary elections (of August 1), was monopolized by republicans aspirants for county offices, although there were reports in circulation of more or less definite intention of one or two democratic candidates to file their papers forthwith. Records of the county recorder's office at the closing hour Saturday showed a total of five nominations filed during the day.

Two Seek Re-election. O. P. Duvall, 120 Tenth avenue east, who has served as probate judge for several years, filed his papers as a candidate for re-election, and E. Claude Stewart, 421 Sixth street, who is rounding out his initial term as county assessor, formally announced his candidacy for a second term.

Forcasts for contests in the primary election as between republican candidates for nominations materialized Saturday with the filing of Z. H. North, Twin Falls, as candidate for the republican nomination for county treasurer, and of J. W. Taylor, Bluff, as candidate for the nomination for prosecuting attorney on the same ticket.

Dr. Edwin Longley, Warren, the present county treasurer, had previously made formal announcement of his candidacy for re-election, and A. J. Myers, Twin Falls, had previously entered the race for the republican nomination for county assessor.

Out For Commissioner. Wilson H. Wolfe, one of the first settlers of the Twin Falls county and an successful farmer, filed papers for the republican nomination for county commissioner from the Second district.

The name of T. D. Cooper of Elmer, former deputy sheriff, was Saturday mentioned as one who had decided to make formal announcement of his candidacy for the democratic nomination for county commissioner from the First district.

It was reported, too, that Kennedy Packard, well known Twin Falls city resident, had decided to enter the race for the democratic nomination for probate judge.

Both Judges in Race. With the announcement Saturday that District Judge William A. Babcock of Twin Falls, had filed in the office of the recorder his name as a candidate for re-election, the situation as to the Eleventh judicial district's candidates for the bench developed to the extent foreseen by political observers.

Both of the present judges are now in the race for re-election. Babcock, republican, having filed his nomination one day earlier in the week. The time for filing of nominations subject to the primary elections, including that of candidates for delegate to county conventions and precinct officers, will expire next Saturday.
