SENATE MAKES GOOD PROGRESS ON TARIFF BILL

Thirty-eight Amendments to Agricultural and the Food Schedule are Put Through in Record Time

WASHINGTON (AP)—Although two-thirds of the session was devoted to cleaning up conference reports so the house might start on the vacation, the senate made more rapid progress Friday on the tariff bill than it had in any single one of the sixty-day days the measure has been before it.

An outstanding feature of the day was the victory of the republican agricultural tariff bloc in its fight for a duty of 20c a bushel on corn, an increase of five cents a bushel over the house rate. The bloc recommended 20 cents to the finance committee majority early in the year but the committee stood pat on the house rate. Before the item was reached, however, the committee reversed itself and recommended the higher rate.

No Record Votes No record votes were demanded and the only extended discussion was on the proposition to raise the house-rate on corn.

Finding out that the United States was the world's largest corn producer and shipped this commodity to all parts of the world, Senator Willis of Massachusetts, a democratic member of the finance committee, declared his teaching a paper duty which illustrates perfectly the attempt made in this bill to deceive and mislead the people of the country.

"I protest against the deceit, fraud and chicanery which is evidenced by an increase over the house rate in any one of the items," said Senator Willis. "This is done simply to catch the attention of the farmers in their states that they are being given protection."

Wants Statement Withdrawn Senator McCumber, chairman of the finance committee, said Senator Willis' withdrawal of a statement that the duty on corn was written into the bill to "deceive the people." He added that if any one did desire to mislead the farmers, this could not be done successfully by the light of the statement he now would make.

"I do not think," he said, "that it is an ordinary condition that the farmer one penny. It will not help him or do him any harm as long as we are raising such big corn crops as we are now. It should conditions have been different in 1913 and 1914 when we had short crops and imports from Argentina, causing a lowering of prices, then it will serve to keep up prices."

MUST GIVE BACK AMOUNT OF PRIZE

Oklahoma Airplane Reinstated in Award Position as Result of Disclosures

NEW YORK (AP)—C. R. Wrightman, wealthy Tulsa, Okla., oil man, Friday was directed to return to the club of Omaha, Neb., $2,000 in prize money which he is alleged to have wrongfully awarded him following an airplane contest at Omaha last November.

The committee's action followed protests filed by John M. Larson, of New York, donor of the prize, who claimed that the contest was awarded Wrightman on a victory which he claims to have been gained through false representation of fuel and weight carried by the airplane in the contest, which was a general offense test. Larson had several places entered in the competition which was held in conjunction with the Omaha-Buffalo air race.

DISABLED VETS ELECT OFFICERS

C. H. Cook of Buffalo is Made President; Minneapolis to Have Next Convention

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—C. Hamilton Cook, Buffalo, N. Y., was unanimously elected national commander of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War at the annual convention of the organization here Friday. Previously Cook had conducted Indian Robert S. Marx of Cincinnati, the outgoing commander, for the post, but Judge Marx refused to run again.

Commander Cook went over seas with the 30th Infantry, was wounded at Veslo river but after a term in the hospital returned to his unit against the advice of army physicians and was gassed in the Argonne. He is now in the picture-printing business in Buffalo. J. W. Hanbury of Omaha was elected national vice commander by a three to one vote. Mrs. Myra Sweeney of New York Territory was wounded at Chateau Thierry. He was given up for dead and official funeral services for him were held in his home city of Omaha.

James A. McFarland of Dalton, Ga., was unanimously elected first junior vice commander.

RUPERT BEETS TO COME TO TWIN FALLS FACTORY

Amalgamated Sugar Company Makes Definite Announcement of Policy

RUPERT—Paul, sugar factory, will not be operated for this season to the extent stated by management of the Amalgamated Sugar Company. Hoping to request that he meet Friday night with Rupert and Paul farmers to talk over the situation. R. Ruppert, assistant general manager for the sugar company, wired Fred J. Fruit, secretary Rupert Chamber of Commerce, as follows: "Your telegram of the 21st received and invitation to meet with Rupert and Paul farmers appreciated and regretted inability to be present. But if it could come would be happy to change final action of our board of directors as hereinafter stated.

Close Two Factories. On account of shortings of beets, the question of which factories would operate this year in Idaho and Utah has been subject of serious consideration for a long time. Yesterday our board of directors definitely decided we will be obliged to close Paul factory in Idaho and another in Utah.

Reason for this action is entirely because of insufficient beets to justify running all factories this year. We have run Paul factory in previous years on small tonnage and financial loss but company's present financial condition makes impossible our standing any further losses.

Saves Twin Falls' Bacon. "We are obliged to run Twin Falls factory because our beet plant in Idaho has a Stiffness plant whose molasses from Idaho beets can be refined. Under existing contract with best growers in your and other

Idaho districts it becomes obligatory upon company to get greatest results from factory operations so that growers may participate as provided in contract. "This year's closing of Paul factory will not unilaterally affect best growers because their receipts will be the same. We will arrange for such of the growers who wish beet pulp for feeding. We regret as much as possible, more than ever the necessity for closing Paul plants but under existing conditions had no other alternative."

Death Knew to Industry. The decision reached by the sugar company, to close the Paul plant comes after a former report that the Twin Falls factory would shut down, since the Minidoka County News this season, the Rupert-Paul district planted more land to beets than ever before in the history of the project, the crop being assured that if the average yield yielded the Paul factory would run. Twin Falls district, on the other hand, fell down on acreage for its factory, finishing possibly its smallest crop to beets.

The recent wind storm ruined several hundred acres in the Paul district, but more acres than were planted last year remained. After the storm Twin Falls civic organization began a campaign for the opening of their factory, the success of which is shown by the telegram received by the chamber of commerce. That the closing of the Paul factory this year will be the death knell to the sugar beet industry in that section is the opinion of many growers here.

The Stone of the Soul. "When times, it was believed that the soul was the stomach, most likely for the reason that a man never so completely used up as when his stomach is out of order. For the cure of ordinary stomach troubles, there is nothing quite so prompt and satisfactory as Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Give them a trial. They only cost a quarter." Adv.

ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR REPUBLICAN NOMINATION

Dan Banks, State Treasurer, to Run for Office on His Business Record

Well announces his candidacy for the republican nomination to succeed him self as state treasurer. The announcement as it appeared in the Caldwell "Tribune" week reads in part as follows: "Recently in the administration of his office has been the watershed of Idaho state treasurers. With 10 per cent cut in the legislative appropriation to run the office, Mr. Banks has kept within the appropriation...

Has Cash Hoarding

"Incidentally, the treasurer's office is one of the few that actually returns to the state treasury a net income above the amount of appropriation during Mr. Banks' incumbency, the office has saved in actual cash, $5,811, for every dollar expended. The annual cost of the office is approximately $12,000, but the state treasury has received in the first year of Mr. Banks' term were $12,539.95.

The state treasury has lost in the many banks that were closed during the recent financial stringency. In addition to this, interest at 6 per cent was received up to and including the day the money in the failed banks was paid the state by the bonding companies.

It was organized by the office that the numerous volume of business is carried on with two less employees than were necessary last biennium. The state treasurer, a deputy, one bookkeeper and one clerk compose the office force at the present time.

FRAZIER'S MAJORITY IS STEADILY GROWING LESS

Supporters of McCumber, However, Express No Hope of Latter's Reappointment

FARGO, N. D. (AP)—Detailed reports that trickled in Friday from Wednesday's state wide primary in North Dakota seemed to bear out only indications that Louis Frazier's Non-partisan, and captured thereupon senatorial nomination by a plurality of less than 10,000 votes.

While Foster McCumber, the majority's senior senator, dropped behind Frazier in returns tabulated Friday, reports from a number of the scattering precincts favorable to McCumber have cut down to less than 5,000 the margin that separated them.

Friends of McCumber here, conceding his defeat, admit that most of the missing precincts undoubtedly would be favoring Frazier, but insisted the latter's plurality would fall considerably short of the 15,000 to 20,000 mark league headquarters have forecast.

Here's why CAMELS are the quality cigarette

BECAUSE we put the utmost quality into this one brand. Camels are as good as it's possible for skill, money and lifelong knowledge of fine tobaccos to make a cigarette.

Nothing is too good for Camels. And bear this in mind! Everything is done to make Camels the best cigarette it's possible to buy. Nothing is done simply for show.

Take the Camel package for instance. It's the most perfect packing science can devise to protect cigarettes and keep them fresh. Heavy paper—secure foil wrapping—revenue stamp to seal the fold and make the package air-tight. But there's nothing flashy about it. You'll find no extra wrappers. No frills or furbelows.

Such things do not improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons. And remember—you must pay their extra cost or get lowered quality.

If you want the smoothest, mellowest, mildest cigarette you can imagine—and one entirely free from cigarette aftertaste,

It's Camels for you.

MINERS PREPARE FOR CONFERENCE

Operators and Workers Pause in (Strife) Pending President's Joint Session

WASHINGTON, (AP)—All parties to the bituminous coal strike and to the suspension of work, in anticlimactic regions postponed action in the situation today awaiting the conference announced by President Harding has summoned to devise settlement plans.

The 50 men who will attend the conference here, half are miners' union officials and three speak for the general committee of anthracite operators. The delegates of the bituminous employers were still undecided Friday night. However, the National Coal Association, to whom the responsibility for making up bituminous representation was delegated, has already announced that an adequate and open minded group would be present.

A high government official reiterated that the conference is not made, some other course may be adopted by President Harding and his advisers, but it was declared that the government's efforts would be based on persuasion and not on compulsion.

President Describes Issues

President Harding will make a brief address. It was said at the opening of the conference, welcoming his guests and describing issues which he has called them to consider.

He has no union forthcoming from either the miners' union officers or the coal operators, who are already here, upon the controversial issues which have tied up union negotiations since any working on either side.

PRICE OF WATER RAISED 50 PER CENT AT BURLEY

Council Increases Rates in Order to Tap Gains of Sinking Fund

BURLEY, AI.—A special meeting Monday evening the city council raised the minimum charge for city water from $1 to $1.50 for the first 6,000 gallons and increased rates from 10 cents to 15 cents for each 1,000 gallons above the first 6,000. This is equal to a fifty per cent advance all round.

Must Raise Bonds

The raise in rates was made necessary by the provisions of the ordinance under which the two $200 bond issues were sold to build the first section of the city waterworks, requiring that at the end of ten years a sinking fund be established which will pay off the bonds at the end of the twenty-year period for which they were to run. In order to retire those bonds in the time specified it will be incumbent upon the city to pay the sinking fund for the next ten years, and it was to create and build up this sinking fund that the fifty per cent raise in water rates was made.

System Not Paying

The water system has not been paying expenses of operation up to the present time. The raise made by the council, cover the deficit in the current operating and maintenance; care of the sinking fund. It is absolutely essential that this sinking fund be established as it is likely that the present system will be in a bad way, and may require rebuilding within the next ten years, and it should be paid for before it is discarded.

LAKE LOUISE IS ACCLAIMED THE GEM OF THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

It is generally conceded that for beauty and grandeur the Canadian Rockies have no equal elsewhere in their vastness, equaling as they do, the Swiss Alps, and embracing every variety of mountain charm. But to say positively which of their many attractions is the most alluring is a difficult matter. One traveler would believe the palm on Lake O'Hara, another on that other green gem, Emerald Lake. However, it is safe to say that the consensus of opinion leans toward the Lakes-in-the-Clouds with their threshold beauty based on Lake Louise.

Not to have visited Lake Louise in this age of trans-continental travel is the exception rather than the rule. Annually many thousands of travelers from all parts of the world detract at the picturesque station from which a tram, drawn by Hollis Royce motor, takes visitors up the two and one-half miles of switchbacks to Lake Louise and the mammoth hotel upon its shore.

Lake Louise rests at an altitude of 6,570 feet above sea level and is surrounded by peaks some of which are over 10,000 feet in height. Two mountains—Lefroy and Victoria—with the great Victoria Glacier form a background for the lake. The forefront of the glacier at one time dipped into the colorful waters, but with the shrinkage of ages has receded some distance and left a wide moraine. Viewing the glacier from the steps of the Chateau, the intervening distance appears not more than half a mile, in reality it is five miles as one finds out walking or riding the trail along the lake shore.

COUNTY DIVISION MOVE IS LAUNCHED IN CASSIA

Residents East of Mountain Endorse Proposed Out at Meeting at Malta

DURLEY.—A proposal to divide Cassia county, creating a new county to the eastern end of the mountains including the Albion valley, took definite form at a meeting in Malta last week when the gathering went on record in favor of division. Many prominent residents of the Albion valley sections with whom the matter was discussed this week, strongly favor the movement, and it appears says the Durley Bulletin, that a strong effort will be made to carry it through.

Olden Move for Economy

The principal reason given for the desire to cut loose from Cassia county is in the claim that they can administer the affairs of a county created out of the territory cheaper and more effectively than is being done at the present time.

The new county, it is estimated, would have an assessed valuation of between $2,250,000 and $2,300,000.

Will Be Opposed.

The question of division at this time has not been before the people of the eastern end of the county long enough to enable all of them to form opinions regarding its advisability, but there is no questioning the fact that county division will meet with strong opposition by many people in the territory within the proposed new county as well as on the Malheur project in Durley, Dece and the Oakley section.

ingness to cancel all existing contracts for the performance of railroad work by outside firms. Practically all maintained that it was their legal right to contract such work, but expressed a desire to comply with the board's wishes whereby the strike crisis might be relieved.

Three other union heads, in addition to President Grable of the maintenance of way brotherhood, gave assurance to the board that, although their organizations were taking strike votes, no call to quit work would be issued immediately.

The announced delay of the maintenance of way strike call, which had been expected Friday night from the headquarters in Detroit, came after a lengthy discussion between Mr. Grable and Chairman Hooper. Mr. Grable told the board that more than half of the 225,000 votes already had been canvassed, the results thus showing "a big majority" in favor of a strike.

Bargaining Wanted

The employees' grievances, he explained, included the $60,000,000 pay cut which goes into effect under a board decision Saturday, the curtailing of work load and removal of the eight-hour day through several rules changes recently issued by the labor board.

The power to sanction a walkout in the executive committee of five men. A meeting of that committee will be held in Chicago July 5, after which in Detroit, came after a thorough reconsideration of the situation will be made.

Then followed interjections of E. H. Fitzgerald, head of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks; B. W. Heil, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen, and finally of Timothy Healy, who appeared in answer to the subpoena issued by the board.

All three explained the strike votes being taken by their memberships, each assuring the board that no immediate action would be called, although Mr. Fitzgerald predicted that freight handlers, members of his organization, might leave their work on some roads simultaneously with the stoppage Saturday.

Mr. Heil said that only a few ballots had been received on the signification of vote and that would be insufficient to cause any strike at present. The stationary firemen's vote is not returnable until July 10, Mr. Heil said, the board, removing the likelihood of a walkout of his men at least until that date.

The following table prepared from information supplied by the federal office in Detroit, shows the number of men in each craft scheduled to go on strike at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

International Association of Machinists	60,000
International Brotherhood of Holtermakers	10,000
International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers	12,000

Open Shop Possible

A biller that the railways would be able to operate their shops on an open shop basis in the event of a strike was expressed Friday by W. G. Bland, president of the Chicago and Alton railway.

If the United States government or the state government will give us the necessary protection while we build up our shop organization, management will never be interrupted," he said.

Henry: "Why, dear, that is easy. I will jump in the stove and run down to the Public Market and get a couple of boxes of those big strawberries Vance raises. He keeps open till 9:30. You get the table set and we will have strawberries—and bread—and butter. That will be lot better than going to a lot of trouble."

Lizette: "Oh yes, that reminds me. Mary was telling me John got some of the best ice cream they ever ate at the Public Market. They are selling ice cream specially designed for family trade, and expect to work up a large trade on its merits. Why not bring home some of it and try it? It should go fine with the berries!"

HARRIET and the PIPER

CHAPTER XIV (Continued) "Go by her way to what? She did not know. But she neither feared what the future might hold nor doubted it. She could make her own way from a new beginning."

She turned, and buried her face in the thick, soft sleeve of her coat. But

"Where Have You Been?" said Richard, sharply, then, "You Look Ill!"

She did not cry long, and when Jonathan, the hound, came out on the day at seven, the only he knew to be his new mistress was sitting conspicuously enough on her bench, sparkling the now glittering and sparkling river with quiet eyes.

Harriet nodded to him, and rose somewhat stiffly, to go up to the house. She mounted the brick steps with a thoughtfully dropped head—

He looked fresh, bright, even young, in his white flannels. They stood looking at each other for a moment without speaking.

"Where have you been?" said Richard, sharply, then, "You look ill!"

"Years, despite her desperate resolution, suddenly stung Harriet's eyes. And yet her heart leaped with hope."

"I wanted to see you, Mr. Carter," she faltered, "I couldn't sleep very well. I've been down at the shore. But later—any time will do!"

"You couldn't sleep?" he exclaimed with quiet sympathy. He looked from her about him, as if for a shelter for his emotion.

"Here," he said, "come down the steps a bit. I was going down to the court for a little tennis; Ward may follow me, but he won't be dressed for half an hour yet. Sit down here; we can talk."

They had come to the marble bench at the tennis, where they sat on the Anthony Pope, sheltered by their own tall, towering trees and low brick walls, had had their talk a year ago. Harriet, to her own consternation, felt that she was in danger of tears.

"I've hardly known how to say it," she began. "But—but you know how ashamed I am!"

"I know—I know how you feel!" Richard said with a sort of brief sympathy. "I'm sorry! But you know you mustn't take this all too hard. I didn't—I was thinking of this last night; I didn't ask you for—well, any more than you gave me, in this marriage of ours. Your divorce was your own affair."

"The girls' tired eyes flashed, and there was no divorce!" she said, quickly.

"No divorce?" he echoed with a puzzled frown.

"I want to tell you about it!" she said, and the tears would come again. "I've tried! I've tried and I've been trying to smile. I've been up—walking. I couldn't sleep!"

"The consciousness that he had been and sleep soundly, gave Richard's voice a little more of its old-time quality."

"You don't have to tell me now. We'll find a way out of it that is easy for every one."

"No, but let me talk!" Harriet, in her eagerness, hid her fingers on his hand, and he was shocked at this time they were icy cold. "I want to tell you the whole thing—I want you to understand!" she said, eagerly. Richard looked at her in some anxiety; there was no acting here. The rich hair was pulled, curiously from the roughed forehead. She was fuddled in the enveloping coat, a different figure indeed from his memory of the superb and angry girl of last night in the library lamp-light.

"Oh! I am going to Linda at once!" Harriet said, feverishly, hurt to the soul. "I had planned that! But—but won't you let me tell you?" she pleaded.

"She had framed the sentences a hundred times in the long night; they faded her utterly now, and she strove for words. "I was only three years from the American sisters and of the outrage in the Congo, and of the poor in New York's lower East side—she never cared that we were poor, and that we had no children!"

"I know—I know!" Richard's eyes were smiling, as if he knew the picture, and lifted it.

"Well, Linda married when I was ten, and Josephine came, and then Julia came. I still lived for books and books. But, unlike Linda, I cared."

Harriet's whole face glowed; she looked off into space, and her voice had a longing note. "I cared for clothes and good times," she said. "I adored the children, but I dreamed of carriages—made—glory—achievements! I knew that other women did it."

"I remember feeling that way!" Richard commented, mildly, as she paused.

"Well," Harriet said, "I met Royal Blondin one night. He lived in our house—Waterloo. He had a dreadful, artificial sort of mother. My sister didn't approve of her at all. A friend of his named Street was an artist, and he had a nice little wife, and a baby, and they lived in a big, handsome sort of studio. It seemed wonderful to me. They loved each other, and their baby, but they were so free! They would have the whole crowd to dinner, twenty of us, bread and red wine and macaroni and music and talk; it was wonderful—or I thought so. It was so different from Linda's ideas, of course."

"Remember, Feeling That Way!" Richard commented, mildly, as she paused.

"Lovers." It had a part for the woman to say, and a part for the man, and Royal and I said those, and then I had a part for the woman's friend, and the man's friend, and for all their friends. And then there was a promise that when love failed on either side, the two were free, to keep the memory of the perfect love unstained by the ugly years."

She paused; Richard did not speak. She had told him this much in a simple, childish voice, a voice that was as and Royal looked at her, and they—they they loved me, and they—they loved me especially. He used to talk about 'Yod' philosophy and Oriental religions and poetry, and little swells it was understood among them all that he loved me, and I him. And we were engaged. Of course Linda suspected, and there was opposition at home, but in the studio, helping the Street's get their supper, it seemed so right—so simple! Royal said he did not believe in the orthodox ceremony of marriage. He argued that no one could live up to its promises, and I believed him. Miriam Street, the artist's wife, was a poet, and she wrote the ceremony by which we were married. We had a big supper, and they were all there, and they gave this marriage poem—was beautiful, it was published in a magazine, afterward, and called 'A Marriage for True

"The next morning I slipped away from the house with my suitcase, and I met Royal Blondin downtown. We motored to Syracuse and took a train there for New York. I had felt sick when I awakened—it was partly excitement, and partly the supper the night before, when we had all eaten and drunk too much. But I was very sick in the train, I thought I was going to die. Royal persuaded me to eat my lunch in the dining car, and that only made me worse. There was a nice woman in the train, with two little girls, and she took care of me. And when she got to New York—I had told her that I was on my wedding journey, and perhaps that made her kind—she took us to her apartment house in West Fourth-street. The landlady was a dear, good woman, a Mrs. Harrington, and I was very sick by this time—she put me into her own room, because the house was full, and sent for her own doctor."

"It was a time of horror," Harriet said, smiling a little, after a moment of thought. "The strange woman and the strange room, and Royal coming in with flowers, and sitting beside me. The doctor said it was a touch of gonorrhea, and I was ill only a few days. But the housewreck, and the strange noise! Somehow, I didn't feel married. I felt like a lost little girl. I wanted to be back in Linda's kitchen again, wife and mother, because nothing interesting ever happened."

"Well, I was sick for three or four days. It was the fourth day when I was well enough to go out. Royal thought then, and paid Mrs. Harrington and the doctor, and we went to lunch downtown—it was at Martin's. I remember, and Royal was so excited and interested in everything. But I still felt limp and dull. We shopped and went about seeing things after lunch, and then, we went to the hotel where he was staying. We were registered there as Mr. and Mrs. Blondin; it was not quite taken for granted."
