Senate Republican Leaders Fail in Efforts to Limit Debate on Tariff - Bitter Fight is Provoked

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The republican petition for cloture to shut off debate on the administration tariff bill was presented late Wednesday in the senate. It immediately provoked a bitter fight, which promised to consume most of the session Thursday. Under the rules the issue must come to a vote at 12 noon.

There were 92 signatures to the petition, or 12 less than the two-thirds majority necessary to invoke the cloture rule, which would limit debate on the bill to one hour for each senator and prohibits the offering of an amendment or motion, even by the finance committee majority.

Although a number of senators are absent from Washington, which would cut down the number necessary for a two-thirds majority, some of those behind the cloture movement predicted that it would succeed.

Senators of Massachusetts, the republican leader, or told the senate that if it did not, it then would be for the republicans to decide whether they would lay aside the tariff matter.

INSURGENTS ARE FINALLY BEATEN BY FREE STATERS

Siege of Many Strongholds is Nearing End at Staggering Cost in Men and Property - De Valera Reported Missing

DUBLIN, (AP)—The siege of the strongholds of the insurgent Irish forces is virtually ended Wednesday night with the surrender of small groups of the men who had been fighting for the past week behind the barricades, and the capture of one of the principal leaders, Cathal Brugha, former minister of defense. But the success of the national cause has been purchased at the cost of blood and property and the destruction of O'Connell street, with nothing of the loss of life and the many thousands wounded.

There still is no information as to the whereabouts of Eamon de Valera who apparently has escaped from the Free States' net.

In the late afternoon, when ten buildings, including three hotels were aflame the remainder of the insurgents, driven into the Granville hotel, still fighting all sides, still maintained a desperate resistance, with automatics and rifles, but it was seen that they could not long delay the inevitable end.

The final attack by the free state troops began at midday after a hail of firing which raged on for hours. The regulars adopted the desperate plan of bombing the insurgents. A bomb was hurled into Hamman's hotel, and soon fatal wisps of smoke crept through the shattered windows and suddenly a burst of flame in front, followed by the remainder of the flames spread swiftly. In less than two hours three buildings were completely destroyed.

ARMORED CARS USED

Bill the battle began the irregular firing from the windows of both the Gresham and the Granville, while the national rifleman replied vigorously from their positions opposite and from armored cars.

Shortly after 1 o'clock an armored car took up a position opposite the Gresham and poured a hurricane of machine gun fire into the hotel window. Smoke billowed forth, quickly followed by a muffled explosion and tongues of flames from the windows. In a half an hour the front of the building was a flaming furnace. The fireman played water on the premises between the Gresham and the Hamman and saved them in part, but the fate of the Gresham was from the first hopeless.

Even while the lower floors of the hotel were burning the insurgents continued to fire from the upper windows, but at 5 o'clock the remnant of the garrison, five men, weary-eyed and blackened, emerged from the rear of the building under the white flag and surrendered.

Driven Out by Flames

Other irregulars, driven from place to place by the flames, took up a position in the Granville and from points of vantage they fired during a brief fight against the nationalists. In the meantime, the national troops were attacking the building where the white flag was seen protruding from the door of the Edinburgh and the men stepped forth, the flag in one hand and a suitcase in the other. Behind him walked a curious and pitiful procession of between twenty and thirty persons, mostly women, a white haired woman of seventy bringing up the rear, all carrying small quantities of baggage.

They explained that they had been living in the Edinburgh a whole week, chiefly taking refuge in the cellar, but were forced to leave by the flames in the adjacent store. These unfortunate civilians were escorted to a place of safety by members of the Red Cross.

RADICALS HOLD HUGE MEETING

Crowd Estimated at 300,000 Persons in Demonstration Against Government

BERLIN, (AP)—Radical Germany and organized labor joined in public demonstration throughout the capital today in an effort to impress the government with the strength of its workers while the government is shaping its program for the defense of the republic.

The demonstration was a general strike and assembly there was a general cessation of work in all branches of industry during the afternoon.

Breaking the precedent of years by honoring the spacious Lust Garden for their meeting, Berlin's demonstrators, numbering at least 300,000, invaded the thoroughfare of the fashionable West end, meeting at the Kaiser Wilhelm memorial church. By 3 o'clock the space surrounding the church was jammed, the overflow extending far blocks in rich of six radiating streets.

No speeches were made, the demonstration being purely a mute show except for group singing and trumpeting of two bands. The "Internationale" figured prominently in the singing and playing.

The whole demonstration was marked by orderliness and thorough organization.

FAMOUS HISTORICAL RIDE SUBJECT OF INVESTIGATION

Question as to Whether Priscilla Beale White Ball to Church Must Be Settled

CHICAGO, (AP)—Investigation to determine whether Priscilla Beale White Ball to church in Plymouth on July 4th has been ordered at the annual reunion of the Midwest chapter of the Aiken Kindred of America.

Longfellow, in "The Corsair" of Miles Standish, contained that Priscilla did, but the question nevertheless prompted a debate at the meeting which was attended by 75 of the kindred.

Mrs. Jane Alden Hawes of Oak Park asserted that Priscilla could not have ridden a white bull as she could not have been married to him until four years after her marriage.

Mrs. Harry Neely of Chicago, said that Longfellow told her when she visited his Cambridge home as a child that the white bull version was correct. The inquiry was ordered, however, to finally settle the question.

VOLCANO CAUSE OF COOL, DAMP SUMMER OF 1912

Katmai's Explosion, if it Had Occurred in New York, Would Have Wiped Out Manhattan, Expedition Leader Says.

BOSTON, Mass.—When Katmai volcano, in Alaska, blew off its top, the cloudless sky of Sahara was overcast and the United States had, the cold damp summer of 1912 which weather observers could not account for at that time, according to Dr. Robert F. Griggs, who spoke Monday before the conference on geography, National Education association, Boston.

Had the eruption occurred in New York City not a soul would have survived on Manhattan, the thousands of miles would have rolled across the central states and would clear an artillery duel even in St. Louis, and the sulphur fumes would have polluted the air of all the territory east of the Rocky mountains, the speaker said.

So remote is Katmai that not a soul was killed in the terrific upheaval, and the amazing effects are just becoming known, as the findings of the National Geographic society expeditions, of which Dr. Griggs was the leader, are announced.

Bring Back Motion Pictures For the first time a scientific expedition of this kind was accompanied by motion picture camera men and remarkable motion pictures of the Mt. Katmai region and the "bleak" eighth wonder of the world, the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, were exhibited.

While Katmai's explosion was the invitation to scientific study, the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes which the expedition discovered will be a perpetual laboratory for scientists, and one of the most remarkable scenic playgrounds among our national parks, second in size only to Yellowstone, and displaying phenomena to be seen nowhere else in the world.

This valley, which recently was set aside as a national monument, presents a panorama of rolling clouds of vapor that arise in never-ending streams and glow blindingly off down the valley with "milk-long trails" bobbed them.

Upon closer inspection the steam is seen to pour from vents, called fumaroles, and upon its emergence it is sometimes six times as hot as ordinary steam—so hot that a single breath would be fatal. Everywhere these fumaroles produce colorful eruptions, from a mass of bright white sulphur, now a chunk of ash turned red and blue by the action of heated gases, now a lump of pure white, silicious material.

Members of the expedition cooked their meals over them, once they learned to hold down their frying pans against the force of the uprushing steam.

Remote But Accessible Though remote, this newest member of the national park family is not inaccessible. A commodious harbor was added to the maps of the region of the expedition, and named Geographic Harbor in honor of the society which directed the expedition.

A falling mountain that rumbles, as it disintegrates, a lake where one may get a bath hot, cold, or any temperature desired by swimming a few strokes, and, perhaps most amazing of all, streams with froth that will kill and about any bath, and among the other marvels of this Alaskan wonderland described by Dr. Griggs.

Pictures no longer are a teaching luxury but an absolute necessity in many branches of study, according to Miss Erna Gramsack, director of books in the home, Miss Gramsack said, "That which attracts the child of two years and all holds the attention of the octogenarian is worthy of care."

All analysis in the teaching process," Miss Gramsack continued.

Pictures make a decided contribution in helping us understand and thus appreciate the problems confronting the various people of the world, be they Tibetans, Bolivians, Kafirs, or Argentinians. Not less do they make us feel one with the people of Massachusetts, Louisiana, California, even though we live in North Dakota. They show us economic and social life as it exists and produce those attitudes of mind which could never be developed through words alone.

In this connection we cannot speak too highly of the splendid aid which the National Geographic society gives us in the six sets of pictorial geography, having at their command thousands of pictures, portraying not only the human but also the plant and animal life all over the world, illustrating ethnic and social aspects as well as the scenic phases of life. They have been made accessible upon this rich store and thus have given to us a mine of ideas and also afforded the teacher that comfort and satisfaction in presenting her work which otherwise would have been impossible.

FAMILIAR COUNTRYSIDE TRANSFORMED INTO WONDERLAND BY NATURE STUDY

CHICAGO.—Elliot R. Downing of the University of Chicago has written a new type of natural-guide in "A Naturalist in the Great Lakes Region."

He has abandoned the old method of treating plants and animals as isolated individuals and deals with them in groups and associations affected by environment. He sketches the geological history of the north central states and that part of Canada within the basin of the Great Lakes and sets forth the evolution and interrelation of the plant and animal life adapted to the climate and soil of this region.

Prof. Downing has designed his little book to be the companion of lovers of out-of-doors in the Great Lakes region. It tells the reader what to look for there and in places with similar climate and topography and how to identify what he sees on hikes through the countryside. It is particularly full of information regarding the sand dunes of the southern shore of Lake Michigan, the only desert east of the Mississippi.

This weird region of shifting sands, seemingly dead and desolate, teems with life and a midsummer census, according to Prof. Downing, showed a population of 16,000,000 living creatures to the acre, beetles, wasps and ants predominating.

Prof. Downing is associate professor of natural science in the College of Education in the University of Chicago and is editor of the University of Chicago Nature Study series of which his volume is a limp cover for pocket use and 450 illustrations add to its value to the amateur naturalist. It is published by the University of Chicago Press.

Chicago Against Canal Company Officials Is Dismissed In Court

Directors and the general manager of the Twin Falls Canal company, before Judge P. & District in federal district court at Boise, Monday, were not required to show cause why they should not be punished for alleged violation of an order previously entered by that court in two cases instituted by the canal company against Edwin Damman, and other, relative to delivery of water to lands north of Buhl, held by Damman and his associates.

Through agreement by the litigants the citation against the canal company officials was dismissed, and an order entered providing for use by the Dammans on their lands of such waters as were not required for use by canal company stockholders.

MARITAL MIX-UP AIRED IN COURT

City Rescue Mission Superintendent Under Cross Examination in Divorce Case

GRAND RAPIDS, (AP)—Cross-examination of Melvin E. Trotter, superintendent of the Grand Rapids city rescue mission, who is defendant in a suit for separate maintenance instituted by his wife, Lottie M. Trotter, was concluded in superior court here Wednesday afternoon, after the introduction of dozens of letters exchanged between the principals.

Through his lawyer, Mrs. Trotter has made references to Mrs. Trotter's charges of infidelity and her principal accusation concerning the parentage of a child born to Miss Florence Mobby, the evangelist's secretary, as well as denials of innocence on Trotter's part.

Trotter was on the stand to identify the correspondence which counsel for the plaintiff stated was introduced to disprove this mission worker's contention that his wife's charges resulted from mental disorder. The superintendent testified that the actress, who he frequently rebuked him for his supposed attentions to other women.

In one of Mrs. Trotter's letters, she accused her husband of "doing all in your power to ruin me, and destroy our home."

The letter was in reply to one from the evangelist in which he told Mrs. Trotter, "you have played the fool long enough," and advised her to "stop talking."

Trotter has filed a cross bill for absolute divorce.

SPORT CHATTER

(By Hixstamps)

Twin Falls turned out on July Fourth in full force to witness the baseball game between Hanner and a picked Twin Falls team, and gave the impression that Twin Falls does like baseball. The largest crowd that ever attended a ball game in Twin Falls was the verdict. Some say that the crowd was large because it didn't cost anything, but that isn't the case, as everything was free.

Why someone doesn't get the boys together and give the fans baseball is beyond all reasoning, and yet it looks as though Twin Falls is going to sneak through the summer without a team to represent her.

It is an awful state of affairs when a town the size of Twin Falls can't get enough fans together to have at least a twilight ball. The team that played Hanner Tuesday was as good as last year's team. If not better, and if the fans want baseball it's high time that they get together and do something.

Think this over, let us have your views, and with everybody getting to work, we may see a few games at least before the snow begins to fly.

LETTER LIKELY TO DELAY JURY

Anonymous Communication with Respect to Herrin Outrage is Received

CHICAGO, (AP)—An anonymous letter containing names of several persons in connection with the slaying of a group of non-union miners near Herrin, Ill., recently, has been received at the office of Edward Brundage, attorney general of Illinois, and his contents are being investigated, it was made known Wednesday.

A special grand jury was to be convened at Marion in a week to start an investigation of the killings. At the request of assistants of the attorney general who have had the matter in charge, it is expected that the jury will meet on that day and take a recess, subject to the call of the state's attorney to give time for an investigation of the contents of the letter, which was said to have been written by a woman.

GOAL STRIKE SETTLEMENT STILL UNDER DISCUSSION

Final Adjudication, However, Will Not Be Reached Until After Conference

WASHINGTON, (AP)—While settlement of the bituminous coal strike appeared Wednesday night to hinge on the meeting of operators and miners representatives in Los Angeles with President Harding next Monday, another conference of the parties to the anthracite situation will be held Thursday. It was expected that Secretary Fall would meet again with the miners' union officials and mine owners' representatives, but the impression was that the session might be inconclusive with the result that any action would be held up pending the outcome of the bituminous sessions.

President Harding on his return Saturday will be given full reports from Secretaries Hoover and Davis on what has transpired in the executive gatherings. Further government action, it was assumed, will be determined after the information thus assembled has been digested.

In what consists the great ability of a man (that is of a child to peruse the beauty of a picture, unless it is in his more extended knowledge of those truths in nature and life which the picture conveys? How happens the cultivated gentleman to enjoy a fine poem so much more than a boor does, if it is not because his wider acquaintance with objects and actions enables him to live in the poem much more than the boor can? And if it is here so obvious, there must be some familiarity with the things represented, before the representation can be appreciated, then the representation can be completely appreciated only when the things represented are completely understood.—Herbert Spencer.

PROBERT'S CHARGE: Six thousand United States' marines repeated the famous charge of Pickett's men at Gettysburg on the fifty-ninth anniversary of the battle, July 1.

But it lacked the thrill and sentiment that marked the celebration of a few years ago when, on the fiftieth anniversary of the conflict, the survivors of the conflict marched out from the woods and across the famous field to meet the little band of Union soldiers.

behind the stone walls, which a half century before they had defended so gallantly. Nobody who saw that picture ever will forget it—the little band of Confederate veterans with their battle flags flying, marching forth as sturdily as their youths would permit.

(Continued from Wednesday's Issue) CHAPTER XV—(Continued) He planned to see Harriet again that evening, and left the club at eleven o'clock, after an incredibly quiet game, with the definite hope that the youngsters would dance, or in some other way prolong the summer evening at least until midnight.

Richard debated sending Harriet a message to the effect that he would like to see her for a moment. The flaw in this plan was that he could think of nothing about which there was the slightest necessity of seeing her.

Richard was only conscious of a desire to prolong this intimate little moment of parental consolation.
