"Our primary reason for calling on the president was to convey upon him the necessity of calling a conference between Mr. Jewell and the railroad executives in order to stop the present strike...

"The chief executive did not indicate whether such a conference as that suggested would be called. Mr. Grable said the labor chief said the president pointed to the repeated policy of the administration, that as a government body, it would not support the law if it were not supported by the government to the limit and that any change in the law as laid down by the board was up to congress."

ACCUSED WOMAN WILL RETURN TO SCENE OF CRIME

Mrs. Clara Phillips Indicted for Murder, Admits Identity and is Taken to Los Angeles for Trial

TUCSON, Ariz., July 15. (AP)—The woman who gave her name to police officials here last Thursday night as Clara Meadows after she had been taken into custody while aboard an outboard Speeder Limited, admitted today that her real name was Mrs. Clara Phillips. The woman was placed under arrest on advice from Los Angeles, which stated that she was wanted in connection with the killing of Mr. Albert Meadows.

The admission of the prisoner as to her identity was made after she had been detained in her cell for three hours with John L. Bukkik, local attorney who has been engaged to act as her counsel.

Sheriff W. E. Traeger of Los Angeles, who arrived in Tucson last night, took Mrs. Phillips to Los Angeles, where she was taken to the police station. Mrs. Phillips agreed to accompany the officer voluntarily.

Letter Secures Admission

A letter brought here by Sheriff Traeger addressed to Mrs. A. L. Phillips and claimed by the sheriff to have been written by Mrs. Phillips, her husband, was the medium through which the admission as to her identity was obtained.

"When Sheriff Traeger first appeared at the police station this morning and confronted the woman in her cell with the letter, she refused to accept it. She insisted that she was Clara Meadows. Immediately after rejecting the epistle, she requested permission from authorities to consult with her attorney. After being escorted for three hours with her lawyer, the latter came out of the cell and said 'We've now ready to see the sheriff.' She has now conceded everything to me."

The Los Angeles sheriff was summoned and Attorney Van Bukkik accompanied by Traeger and police officials and Los Angeles and local newspaper men, led the way to the basement cell where the prisoner was held.

Sheriff is Relieved

"Sheriff Traeger, meet Mrs. Phillips and the attorney in way of introduction."

"Well, that's over," remarked the sheriff. "We will leave tonight at 11 o'clock for Los Angeles, for the trial."

"I'm tickled to death," Mrs. Phillips replied.

Traeger then tore open the envelope addressed to Mrs. A. L. Phillips and handed the prisoner a sheet of faded yellow paper, apparently written on only one side.

Mrs. Phillips moved over to a corner of the cell, while those present turned their backs. In just a few seconds, not long enough for more than a cursory glance by the newspaper men and officials.

is Willing to Talk

"You may talk to me all you want now," was her next remark. But all questions in regard to the slaying were barred by her attorney.

"Oh, that I will tell you that," she replied in answer to a query as to how long she had been married. "I was married nine years ago," she declared.

"I have no children," she mentioned.

"Yes," was married to A. L. Phillips, of Los Angeles, Texas," she said.

"One of the newspaper men asked if she would consent to tell her maiden name. On advice of her attorney, she refused. She declared the reason for refusing this request was that there was a good many relatives living in El Paso and other cities near here.

Woman Smiles Constantly

The basement cell, where this interview took place, was hot in spite of being underground. Mrs. Phillips used her handkerchief freely, wiping her forehead and sometimes twitching it nervously between her two hands. Her smiling smile, however, was never lacking.

Rings found upon the person of Mrs. Phillips, which she was arrested as Mrs. Meadows, have been the subject of considerable speculation among the officials. Three diamonds and one pearl ring, and two earrings, are included in the collection.

"Are those your rings?" she was asked.

"You bet they are mine," she replied.

One Thing He Knew
The migrant had to fill up the usual form. The first question was "born?" Unmistakably he wrote down: "Yes."

BELIEVED WIFE TO BE INSANE

Husband of Accused Woman Gives Peculiar Reason for Statement to Police

LOS ANGELES, July 15. (AP)—Because he thought that his wife, Mrs. Clara Phillips, was insane and dangerous to the community, was the reason her husband, A. L. Phillips, told officers that she had confessed to him that she killed Mrs. Albert Meadows with a hammer here Wednesday, thus bringing about her arrest at Tucson, Ariz., and an indictment against her for murder, according to a statement made today to the attorneys and which they made public tonight.

Officers assigned to the case spent most of the day investigating various angles of the story told before a county grand jury yesterday by Mrs. Peggy Caffee who said she had seen Mrs. Phillips beat Mrs. Meadows to death with a hammer. The officers asserted there were several discrepancies in Mrs. Caffee's story. They refused to make known the result of their investigation today but declared that there would be important changes in the situation before the inquest Monday morning.

INCREASED PRODUCTION WITHOUT INCREASED EXPENSE MAIN NEED

Payment of Debts of World-Necessary-Before Full Measure of Prosperity Can Ensnue, But Greater Output Alone Adds Little or Nothing to Financial Position of America

By ROGER W. DABSON

WILLESLEY HILLS, Mass., July 15. (Special to The News)—There is a way really to help business during this period of readjustment. The reason that the various campaigns to clean up business have failed is because, in the early part of a period of depression, business needs something more than cleaning up. These periods of hard times are not merely a state of misadventure. They are the result of excesses, the same as an spell of sickness. They can be cured only by first removing the causes. So-called "sunshine" and "boosting" campaigns are as futile as trying to cure a patient with stimulants when what he needs is a dose of physiotherapy.

The present depression in business was not an accident. It was the result of watching fundamental conditions during 1919 or 1920, you know full well that a depression would result. Moreover, you know something more than that the depression would have to be. If some one starts borrowing money at the bank, neither we nor any one else can tell how much he will borrow. When, however, he has gone the limit, it is a simple matter of arithmetic to figure how much he will have to pay back. Just so with a country's bank loans. In the period of expansion we were borrowing and the inflation of business activities shows approximately how much we borrowed. Now we are paying back and the extent of the depression shows that so far we have not quite paid back half of the total. The whole sum must be paid back before we can hope for a period of full prosperity.

Waste Can Be Reduced

We can, however, reduce the waste of this readjustment period. We can have very much better times than we have now. We can do this if we increase the production of every product. I do not refer to mass production. It would do nothing to double your output by doubling your labor force. This simply uses up expenses, passes up price and creates more goods than you can sell. You must be paid back for your own individual output and the output of your employes, the readjustment period.

Realization Growing

The most hopeful sign lately is that an increasing number of business men are beginning to realize the above fact. This is fundamental improvement. Already it is being reflected in increased confidence and a more stable tone in general business conditions. The outlook for business in nearly every line is better. We are now laying the foundation upon which a great period of prosperity later will be built.

CHAMPIONSHIP IN GOLF IS CARRIED OFF BY MERE LAD

Gene Sarazen of Pittsburg Takes First Place Among World's Greatest Players at Skokie Open Tournament

SKOKIE COUNTRY CLUB, GLEN COE, Ill., July 15, (AP)—Gene Sarazen of Pittsburg, a little 51-year-old native born American of Italian descent, today pushed his way out in front of the world's greatest golfers, many of them old enough to be his father, and won the skokie open golf championship, with a score of 238 for 72 holes of play, beating two others...

Only one of the three Britons finished among the first 12, George Duncan tying for sixth with Lee Deigan of New Orleans. Jones was the only amateur in this list.

Sarazen's victory came in typical American fashion, for he was hardly considered even a possibility at the start of today's play and had to fight his way through from place to place. He did it with an exhibition of golf that has seldom even been approached in a titular contest, for his final 18 holes were made with a miscellany of great care...

When Sarazen turned in his card, it was remembered that he had been the winner, but the championship crown did not settle finally to his head until many hours later, for out on the links playing desperately were three golfers, two of them listed among the world's best shooters, striving to cut a stroke off the 238 mark and snatch the victory.

Good Chance for Tie. First Bobby Jones threatened the Pittsburgh player for Bobby had a par 70 in the morning, a 80 on the first afternoon round and needed only a par 30 on the last nine to tie. He had a fine chance to do this until he reached his 71st hole. This hole, which later also proved Black's nemesis was too much for the young southerner, who was five against par four put him out. A short approach followed by a short run-up was Jimmy's trouble.

Figure in wood has various sources. These may be grouped in those due to structure, those caused by color variations or pigmentation, and to combination of the two, says the American Forestry Magazine. These again may be classified as normal and abnormal or pathologic. By normal is meant the natural condition of the wood of a sound tree. In the abnormal or pathologic case, we find the peculiar distortions and colorations resulting from disease, the attacks of insects and the activities of various agencies not a part of the regular life processes of the tree.

In the May 24 order, Commissioner Landis had placed Klepper on the ineligible list until July 1, 1925, and Brewster on the ineligible list until Jan. 1, 1924, in addition to placing W. K. Fenwick, former manager of the Portland club, on the ineligible list until August 1, 1925, and disqualifying him as a player or manager in the Pacific coast league until the beginning of the 1924 season.

"And then compelled to wait still longer until the hog had maneuvered his vehicle in and out several times in order to squeeze his car into the vacant spot?" "Yes." "Well, the chances are it was the fellow you just asked about."

GOD OF WEALTH

Japanese Deity Whose Favor Naturally is Sought.

Worshippers at His Shrine, However, Are Compulsively Considering His "Reputable" Powers.

Japan's "Seven Gods of Good Luck" are a clan of deities from which philosophy, religion and superstition have borrowed much of their origin.

They are a queer set of deities, except together from many incongruous sources—Japanese Shintoism, Chinese Taoism, Indian Buddhism and Brahminism. Oriental all, but cosmopolitan Oriental.

They come, to give them their full names, Ebisu, Daikoku, Benzou, Faburouga, Bashamon, Jurlin and Hotei. A full discussion of their origin and attributes would doubtless reveal how slender a basis the modern popularity of these deities has been reared on. Their union in one group is the result of nothing more—recounted than popular ignorance and confusion of ideas. They themselves never chose to be thus united. They reign in an ideal state for they have no king or even spokesman among them. Collectively they command perennial, perpetual and everlasting interest. Individually they celebrate their own festivals and each can boast of an entirely different group in his train of devotees.

On Daikoku's birthday a few of his disciples will worship at his shrine at Azabu and in Osaka. It seems so strange to say "a few" for of all the gods in the cycle of Japanese mythology, in this material age, Daikoku, the god of wealth, should find greatest favor! But perhaps he has not provided himself to be generous to supplicants. Perhaps efficacious indulgence has not been felt in result of worship at his shrines—or is it that even he, the god of wealth, has failed to live up to the extravagant standard our present-day civilization has set as a basis to contentment?

Daikoku is a Hindu deity a Buddhist. The word "Daikoku" means "great blackness," and when he first came to Japan he was a god of physique and frightful aspect with a face as black as midnight. Since his naturalization Daikoku has thrown off some of this savage characteristics and has adopted a new mode of living. The chief of his motifs being Okukikishimotoku, a famous god in the mythology of Japan.

In the old records this god was represented carrying a large bag on his shoulders. As there is a similarity, in the material age, Daikoku, the Japanese people somehow mixed up the two characters and molded them into one perfect deity who combines the good points of both. Hinkaku (Shameless) was the original name by which he was known in India, where he was venerated as god of destruction. The introduction to Japan has changed his incarnation to that of wealth and prosperity.

He stands or sits on three hales of rice, having in one hand the wooden knob of the lucky hammer from which he can produce anything in the world he chooses to, from a palace down to gold or silver, man or beast. The carries on his back a bag full of treasures of all sorts, while rats are his earthly messengers and attendants who are represented with one on either side of him, waiting to do his bidding.

Daikoku is generally coupled with Ebisu, the god of good fortune. Though they are of totally different birth, race, religion, etc., they have been linked together, and one seldom sees the one without the other in close proximity. Although Daikoku is not a god to whose shrine worshippers flock, his popularity is told by the number of metallic images of his deity which are bought and carried as amulets by people seeking wealth.

Should we test this jovial little man's power? To his shrine and beseech him to come to our pocket and see if we find it gold-lined by night? We are souls—all of us—of one kind or another. "We don't care for money," say some haughtily, having none. "I don't know how to spend my money," complains a millionaire. It's Daikoku's turn to speak and if he but could "would strip" the world of his ambition and do doubt reveal a race of human beings all alike in their allegiance to him, the god of wealth!

Empty Pockets. "A great many folks are hued on Scotch drifit," I guess the Scotch can stand it," said Mr. Grampson. "The fellow who laughs loudest over somebody else's desire to look after the points is usually in no position to rate anything but his head."—Hiringham Age-Herald.

A War Against Tight Shoes

It is gratifying to read in a magazine of national circulation an article in line with a policy adopted by us some time ago. In our Shoe Department our policy is and has been "Better to lose the sale than to misfit the Customer." Our salespeople have made special study of the proper fitting of shoes and the result of their study and experience is yours for the asking.

Read What the Literary Digest of July 15th Says:

A WAR AGAINST TIGHT SHOES

A CAMPAIGN AGAINST ill-fitting shoes is announced by The Nation's Health (Chicago). Right correct, it says, have no comfort, tight shoes will do the same. "I have worn two pairs of this kind of shoes for some time," says Dr. Solomon Strouse of Chicago, writing in this paper, are objectionable. Neither buyer nor salesman has much idea of the qualities for comfortable footwear. The results are by no means limited to the lower extremities. "Kidney pains" have often nothing to do with the kidneys at all, but arise from improperly clad feet. Neurasthenia, fatigue—a varied assortment of ailments are to be credited often to the same source. The trouble spreads beyond the individual his whole family is often made to suffer, simply because his shoes do not fit him.

Dr. Strouse begins with a tale which he says was told him recently by a business man. It runs as follows:

"I had at least twenty pairs of shoes at home, and could not wear a single pair longer than a week. No one seemed able to give me the proper shoe. Whether they were custom-made or bought from stock, I could get no real foot comfort. And not having real foot comfort made me feel out of sorts all over. Finally, a doctor friend advised me to go to a shoe store where they are more interested in properly fitting shoes than in shoe sales, and where all the salesmen have made a special study of foot and shoes. Although naturally skeptical, I did finally try them out, did finally get shoes which fit my feet and gave me solid comfort."

The doctor's comments are as follows:

"This is not an exaggerated statement. Most individuals would be unable to maintain a stock of twenty pairs of shoes, but there are only too many people whose complete stock of one pair represents a stock of misfits. Foot comfort is a rare thing to find. Usually people do not know a properly fitting shoe when they feel it on the foot. As a result many shoe salesmen find it possible to sell shoes which are uncomfortable, and which ultimately do harm.

"Poorly fitted shoes and their relation to the health of a nation have never received the attention the subject deserves—except in war, when it becomes imperative that every effort be made to keep the feet of the soldiers in condition for service. During years times shoes are bought like ties, without any relation to the individual anatomical peculiarities.

of the 'patient.' We use the word patient advisedly, for no prospective buyer of a pair of shoes should be regarded merely as a customer. No two pairs of feet are alike. One man with a six and one-half length has a heel A, an instep B, and a ball C; the next has six and one-half B all around. One man's arch needs a given kind of support, an aid which the next man does not require.

"The buyer, of course, knows little about his own feet. The seller must, and it is up to the salesman to provide proper fits. Speaking in a general sense, the buyer gets not what he needs, but what there is in stock. This use to hold good even in first-class shoe shops, although we believe there is a notably increasing attention to feet and the fundamental principles of shoe fitting on the part of the better shoe merchants.

"But why all this fuss? Suppose a shoe does pinch, it is on my foot. There is a logical answer to this question, too. The extent of the damage of poorly fitting shoes is not limited to the feet of the wearer. An undignified flat foot or a weak arch improperly corrected may render an individual tired and uncomfortable, but it does much more than that. He may have pains in his back (he calls 'em kidney pains); he probably is too tired to take the amount of physical exercise his health requires; he becomes neurasthenic; he resorts to medical care; his whole family suffers. We know of one man who suffered for years before his physician found the foot trouble which alone was responsible for his varied misfortune." Another victim came to our office a few years ago scarce beyond description because he had 'fainted' in a theater, aside while escorting a charming lady. He had not fainted; his feet had merely given way. Proper attention to his shoes made him so comfortable and happy that he married the lady.

"Instances could be cited to show the relation between fatigue phenomena and the feet, between 'neurasthenia' and weak arches. It is only necessary to call attention to them. Our main proposition is quite simple. Many individuals suffer from foot ailments which are either caused or aggravated by the improper fitting of shoes. The arousing of public opinion against the evils of the old-time tight shoe, certainly carried as a result an improvement in the general health of the women of the nation. We wish to arouse public opinion to a realization of the need of better fitting shoes, to make them demand the application of a little science to the art of selling shoes. We hope to prove that better shoes mean better health."

THE MARKETS

Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, July 15 (AP)—Short covering today the finish ended a 14 1/2 cent advance today. In fact the market displayed a firm undertone for the greater part of the short session. At the finish wheat was unchanged to 1/2 cent lower, with September $14 1/2 to 1/4, 1 1/4 and December $13 1/8 to 1/4, corn unchanged to 1/8 lower; oats 1/8 to 1/32 up, and provisions 1/2 to 2/32 up.

Apprehension of development of black rust in the spring wheat territory, as the result of higher temperatures and drier winds by comparison, has been largely responsible for a higher average for wheat. Strength of the market at Liverpool also was reflected here, but the government report that each bush in Missouri now contains more damage to wheat at this time than at any time within 25 years was another strengthening factor.

Heading pressure increased and with the receipt of threshing in the south-west the trade is anticipating a movement of the latter part of the month.

Corn and oats held within narrow limits, with corn showing a firm undertone. Oats were held and the market was chiefly of a local character.

Provisions were dull and somewhat easier under scattered selling, which more than offset the strength in hog and the firmness in exchange.
