

HARDING WAITS ON CONFERENCE IN COAL STRIKE

Government to Make No Further Move in Situation Until Results of Cleveland Parleys are Known

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. (AP)—President Harding probably will withhold appointment of a special commission to seek a settlement of the coal strike until after the conference in Cleveland Monday of miners and operators from the central competitive field. It was indicated tonight in administration circles.

Considerable importance was understood to be attached by the administration to the outcome of the Cleveland conference in relation of the national fuel situation and it was thought no move would be made by the federal government towards putting an end to the controversy until the outcome of the Cleveland conference was made known.

Borah's Bill Waits. Congressional action in the coal dispute also will await the results of the Cleveland meeting, officials believed. Senator Borah, republican Idaho, was with the president and discussed his proposed bill to authorize the chief executive to appoint a federal commission to arbitrate the strike.

Decision was reached not to introduce the measure into the senate until next week. Meanwhile further steps toward insuring coal distribution during the emergency were taken by the government. Supplemental orders were issued by the interstate commerce commission giving permission for household uses and for manufacturers of food and medicines priority status, while the central distribution committee completed the formation of its regional committees which are to begin on Monday to direct the flow of coal from the various producing districts to consumers designated by the Washington headquarters.

Out Loading Improves. Current car loading in the producing fields, according to telegraphic reports gathered by the railroad, showed some improvement during the past few days.

LIGHT VOTE IS POLLED IN MINIDOKA PRIMARIES

Progressives' Choice for Judge is Undecided Whether to Accept

RUBERT.—A rather light vote was cast in all Minidoka county primaries, especially in the democratic and progressive, resulted in the following:

For state senator, republican ticket, Charles Collins defeated John D. Remig, 241 to 98.

In the contest for county attorney nomination, republican ticket, H. V. Creason won over Marion Doty by a 204 to 147 vote, according to the ballots tabulated by individuals.

The closest contest and in which much interest was shown was that between Hugh Thompson and Jim Temple for nomination for sheriff, republican ticket. The vote shows Thompson received 197 votes against 171 for Temple.

The only contest on the democratic ticket, that for county William Covell and S. C. Bixler, for county treasurer, resulted in the Heyburn man being nominated, 90 to 60.

Contests for the legislative ticket by the progressive party brought forth much interest. Edward H. Kirkpatrick, Paul, won the nomination for state senator over W. R. Peterman by a comparative small majority, while Lake Williams was given a large vote over that received by E. N. Phillips in the race for the nomination for representative.

The name of W. F. Mattinson was written in on the name ticket as a candidate for district judge. When seen Thursday Mr. Mattinson was undecided as to whether he would be a candidate. If he decides to become a candidate for the judgeship he will resign as a candidate for county attorney.

Crops of Jugoslavia. The chief crops of Jugoslavia are wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley. There is no place in Europe where plums grow better, and a great deal of plum manumale is made for export. Thirty thousand people are employed in silk culture; some raise tobacco, and a large number engage in stock raising.

REPUBLICANS AT JEROME HOLD LIVELY PRIMARIES

Democrats and Progressives Lack Incentive of Contests for Nominations

JEROME.—The Republican primary was held in Jerome county for the state on Tuesday, and that is about all the event amounted to in this county. The Democrats and the Progressives made a pretense of observing the day by opening polling places in a few of the larger precincts, but very few appeared to vote. There was likely in either of these parties not so much as 100 voters in the county. There were no contests on either of their county tickets. The Democrats had a contest for the nomination for district court judge, but this was not sufficient to arouse any local interest. About 700 votes were cast in the Republican primary and there were contests for five places on the county tickets.

For the contested offices on the Republican ballot, Harvey W. Hurdston won for the state senator over Anders Anderson. Oliver Hill won for auditor over Frank H. Smith. John L. Cox won over E. B. White for sheriff. Oakley M. Weyto won over E. P. Reynolds for prosecuting attorney. Baboo Bolen won over Mrs. Jessie S. Baker for treasurer. Barnet Stillwell won over J. R. Keenan for probate judge.

The candidates on the Democratic ticket were automatically nominated through the filing of their names; none having any opposition in the primary.

After the Showdown The great "buyers strike" of 1920-21, a never-to-be-forgotten event in the economic history of this country, proved a point which must henceforth be recognized as basic and non-reversible. It was discovered by merchants and jobbers everywhere, in practically every line of merchandise, that it was the trademarked and adequately advertised brands of goods that got the lion's share of the business there was to get, while the preponderant loss of sales fell on the unbranded and unadvertised goods. This was the great "showdown" for Advertising. Its position as a factor in economic life was on trial. Had it really done what had always been claimed for it? Had it created consumer preference that would hold against the keen competition of a sacrificed price on unmarked goods? The verdict of the buying public was unqualified. It was not a straw vote to determine popularity. It was the final test of willingness to buy. The ballots were dollars. And, the preponderant majority voted with their dollars that they preferred to keep right on buying-advertised goods. With the whole country on a reduced schedule of production and sales, the factories that were able to keep on producing, in anything like normal quantities, were in-

BARLEY CROP YIELDS WELL

Seventy five bushels an acre was the yield secured by William H. Detweiler from a large field of barley on his quarter-section ranch two miles south of Ellet. This is one of the first reports to come in regarding grain yields on the tract this season, and although not an annual crop yield, it is said to be indicative of good production prospects.

Senate Wrangles Four Hours Over Gooding's Resolution to Ferret Out Interests in Fate of Tariff Bill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. (AP)—For four hours today the senate wrangled over the Gooding resolution proposing a broad investigation of the interest in tariff bills.

The resolution was reported by the committee on contingent expenses. Democrats urged investigation of the tariff interests, while Republicans, led by Senator Gooding, opposed it.

Gooding Defends Vote. The Idaho senator, defending his vote on the resolution, said he had hoped the resolution would be adopted and that he would not have to defend the interests of his state.

After the debate on the resolution, the senate passed a bill for the tariff bill on August 17, reported by Senator McCumber.

The McCumber and Simmons proposals were very similar, and were designed to meet at once in part the objections raised by Mr. Leontov.

Opposing the 65 per cent duty, Senator Simmons said it was a burden on the Wool-Fur company of New York.

The Scream of the Pipes. It is claimed for the harp, by some admirers that it is among the oldest of musical instruments. Whether or not the oldest, it is certainly the loudest of all instruments. The first harp substituted was a bagpipe which figured at Pretopostans, and must, therefore, be nearly 200 years old, yet it can still be heard at a distance of eight miles.

DENIES NECESSITY FOR GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

North Dakota Senator Presents Minority Report Endorsing Ford's Offer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4. (AP)—A minority report from the agriculture committee, urging acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for the war-built government nitrate plant and its waterpower projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., was submitted to the senate today by Senator Ladd, republican, North Dakota, in behalf of himself and republican and democratic colleagues on the committee who favor that course. The report was presented without comment in the senate and with the two other reports from the committee awaits Senate action.

The Ladd report, in addition to recommending acceptance of the Ford project despite "certain objections," which it said, "seem apparent," took direct issue with the proposal in the separate report of Chairman Norris, republican, Nebraska, of the committee, for government ownership and operation of the Alabama plant.

"For congress to adopt such a policy when Henry Ford's offer makes it unnecessary for the government to do so," the Ladd report said, "would subject congress to the just condemnation and reproach of all sober-minded citizens."
Senator Ladd and his colleagues said it had been claimed the Ford offer constituted a subsidy to Mr. Ford and added that if it was "not to be supported on grounds of expediency, how can the American people support such a subsidy to ship operators as is here proposed."

Beggars Bush Headquarters Announces Victories Attending Advance

CHARGE BRITISH INTERFERENCE

LONDON, Aug. 4. (AP)—A bulletin issued by the Irish republican headquarters here today asserts that Father Douglas, chaplain of the republican guard, who is coming to London on his way to the continent, was deported by order of the British government.
Upon the recommendation of a competent military authority, says the bulletin, Father Dominic, on July 19, was given 24 hours to quit the country on pain of arrest and was not permitted to go anywhere except "the area under the jurisdiction of the Irish provisional government."

Stone Implements All-Alike. Perhaps the most characteristic of the Stone age are the stone axes and hammers discovered in many places in America. They are almost identical with the tools of the neolithic man found in Europe. The stone weapons include daggers and war clubs. There are many examples of stone dishes, hewn from small boulders. With what appear to be hand rolling pins of somewhat angular design, the prehistoric women of this age were able to have been well supplied. Primitive man, in British Columbia apparently did a little smoking now and then. Old shell mounds on the Thompson and Fraser rivers have yielded what appears to have been some stone pipes. The early explorers found the native races using a true tobacco, nicotine attenuated, which grows wild in the Thompson river country and was smoked alone or mixed with grease and blunkin-ter.

Safety. "Yes," said Mrs. Plungin, "I always keep my dog tied up. There are some who think some tramp might come along and bite him or steal his bone."

GERMANY DENIES INTENT TO DEFAULT IN PAYMENT

Note to Paris Says Only Reduction in Amount to be Paid is Asked

BERLIN, Aug. 4. (AP)—In an supplementary note sent to Paris tonight the German government reaffirms the position it assumed in its original communication with regard to the payments of private debts contracted with Frenchmen before the war. The note declares that the German government does not propose to default in carrying out the payments, but merely requests a reduction of the amount to be paid.

OPTIMISM BOOSTS MARK

BERLIN, Aug. 4. (AP)—The bronze today in the main was optimistic on the foreign situation. In consequence the mark showed visible improvement, closing 80 points above Thursday's post-bourse quotation of 730 to the dollar.

The optimism was based largely on the assumption that the forthcoming conference between the allied leaders in London would result in some definite settlement of the reparations problem. Some circles, however, were inclined to be skeptical, attaching pessimistic significance to foreign developments. These circles gave warning against what was termed premature and unwarranted excitement over Premier Lloyd George's statements in the house of commons. They declared that in Germany's gravest moments during the past year, Great Britain's regard toward France, was not so unshaken as that the attitude of the United States had not changed and that it promised to remain in it unless the European situation changes considerably, which was thought improbable at present.

Official quarters in Berlin are in the dark concerning the nature of the reprisals M. Poincare threatens to institute tomorrow against Germany. In these quarters such procedure was deemed to be illegal. Also it was asserted the reprisals could not be applied unless Germany defaults on her next payment, due August 15.

Shakespeare's Imagery

There are some great writers who are naturally disposed to simplicity of expression. Shakespeare was not one of these. Images swarmed in his mind so that he had no need to cast about for these images. It seems to have thought in images in modern times thought is more abstract; the scientific way of thinking has affected pure literature, and even the poets are shy of metaphor, lest it should lead them into artifice and triteness. Yet, though the profusion of Elizabethan imagery may sometimes distract us from the main theme, it is less artificial than we are apt to suppose. Indeed, reasoning seems to have grown out of the use of metaphor, just as much has grown out of poetry; and much of the Elizabethan imagery is a symptom of the effort to reason verse.—A. Glutton-Brock in "Essays on Books."

There are not sufficient returns in these precincts to change the results excepting in the race between Bowen and Ellson for the nomination for state representative, and in the case of Butler and Harper for commissioner of the third district.

The only contests in the primary election on the democratic ticket were between A. H. Hicks and Asher B. Wilson for running mate with W. A. Babcock for district judge, and between Nelson Bowen and Ellson for commissioner of the first district, and Cowles and Woodhouse for commissioner of the second district. Four precincts give Babcock 87, Hicks 73, Wilson 41, Nelson 67, Floor 57, Cowles 43, Woodhouse 51.

Erskine Dale, Pioneer

CHAPTER XIX

On the summit of Cumberland again Erskine Dale faced Fredrick to the east and looked his last on the forests that swept unbroken back to the river James. It was all over for him back there and he turned to the wider delights, those endless leagues of spangly woodlands, that he would never leave again.

At Boonesborough he learned from the old ferryman that while the war might be coming to an end in Virginia, it was raving worse than ever in Kentucky...

At Boonesborough he learned from the old ferryman that while the war might be coming to an end in Virginia, it was raving worse than ever in Kentucky...

Erskine, sure of a welcome, joined him and upon their way with Clark through the northern wilderness, and thus a thousand mounted riflemen followed them. Clark had been stricken at last from his lethargy by the tragedy of the Blue Licks and had been expelled from the army...

Erskine had told the big chief of his name and every man knew the story and was on guard that he should come to no harm...

them," he cried, and dashed forward. Erskine in advance saw Black Wolf and a few bucks covering the retreat of some fleeing women. They made a feeble resistance of a valley and then too turned to flee...

Clark's amazement Erskine rushed forward and took her in his arms. A moment later Erskine cried: "My sister, where is she?"

The white women's trembling lips opened, but before she could answer, a harsh angry voice broke in on Clark and Erskine turned to see Black Wolf stalking in, a prisoner between two stalwart woodmen.

"Early Moan!" said Black Wolf's squaw. "She is gone!" He waved one hand toward the forest.

"The insolence of the savage angered Clark, and not understanding what he said, he asked angrily: 'Who is she, fellow?'"

"He is the husband of my half-sister," answered Erskine gravely. "I looked dared and uncompromisingly, 'And that woman?'"

"My mother," said Erskine gently. "'Good God!'" breathed Clark. "It turned quickly and waved the open air."

mouthed woodmen away, and Erskine and his mother were left alone. A feeble voice cried from a hut near by:

"Old Kaitoo!" said Erskine's mother. "He is dying and he talks of nothing but you-go to him!"

Erskine went. The old man lay trembling with pain on a buffalo-skin bed, but the incredible spirit in his wasted body was still burning in his eyes.

"My son," said he, "I know your name, I said I should not die until I had seen you again. It is well... He is well," he repeated, and weakly his eyes closed and thus Erskine knew it would be so.

CHAPTER XX

"That winter Erskine made his clearing on the land that Day Yandoo had picked out for him, and in the center of it threw up a rude log hut in which to house his mother, for his remembrance of her made him believe that she would prefer to live alone and he told his plans to her.

In the early spring, when he brought his mother home, she said that Black Wolf had escaped and gone farther into the wilderness... "What does he say?" asked Clark...

Clark's voice was announcing the fate to his mother. "Hush! he selected twenty. See that no harm comes to the World's Antisepic..."
