Every Effort is Put Forward to Guard Against Alleged Mine Battle Leaders Leaving Vicinity of Herrin Field

MARION, Ill., Sept. 1, (AP)—All persons suspected of being leaders of the mob that attacked non-union miners at the Lester strike mine near here, June 22, killing 23 persons, are being watched closely by federal operatives to prevent their leaving the area. General Brundage said, was taken to forestall an attempt to escape similar to that said to have been made by Otis Clark, minor of the John Braxton charge, General Edward J. Brundage announced today at the close of today's session of the grand jury investigating the affair.

During today's session of the grand jury, witnesses charged to testify on the ground that they might incriminate themselves. Later, one of them, Noble Bell, a store manager in Johnston, Ill., considered and went before the grand jury during the afternoon. James Taylor, a miner of Herrin, however, retained in his refusal and fails to testify, but he is held in custody on the ground that he needs no report again until called.

Plenty of Testimony

During the day, important testimony was given by witnesses who were sworn to by the grand jury, by the score or more of witnesses who testified, according to the prosecutors. Among them were the John Braxton charge, General Edward J. Brundage, and a number of others who were taken for treatment after the riot. Two of the wounded men are still in the hospital at Herrin, where the wounded men were taken for treatment after the riot.

As a marked contrast to previous days that the grand jury has been in session, crowds today gathered about the court house to see the grand jury. The grand jury was taken to the hotel at Herrin, where the wounded men were taken for treatment after the riot. Two of the wounded men are still in the hospital at Herrin, where the wounded men were taken for treatment after the riot.

WASHINGTON NOT ASSURED OF OFFICIAL MISCONDUCT

Investigation to be Made Into Circumstances Surrounding Action of British Government

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Washington government is not convinced that there was any misconduct on the part of its two consular officers at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, who were deprived of their authority by British officials, and until a proper investigation has been made no steps are to be taken to reopen the Newcastle consular action.

The action of the Newcastle consuls in cancelling the consular officers of the British consular office, automatically resulted in the closing of the consulate, and if inconclusive to British authorities, it is a disgrace to the United States. For the present, no other consular officers are available for the Newcastle post. It is declared that in any case this government is immediately interested in having the consulate cleared away, on any way of the other.

It was learned today that President Harding has interested himself in the case, and while he recognizes that the loss of consular officers may be produced as the investigations continue, he believes nothing has developed to the present time to meet the situation.

Miners at Uniontown, in Heart of Pennsylvania Coke Belt, Decline to Accept Offer of Operators

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 1 (AP)—Increased activities in the bituminous fields of the Pittsburgh and Ohio railroad country, which are partially was offset today—so far as industrial peace was concerned—by an ominous turn of events in the Uniontown region. While thousands of men were going back to work as a consequence of strike settlement, state, county and federal authorities are taking steps to deal with the vast non-union coal belt. LABOR WILL AID ENFORCEMENT OF COURT ORDER

Executive Council of American Federation Issues Statement on Federal Injunction

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (AP)—Enforcement of the injunction obtained by the attorney general against lawlessness and violence in connection with the shopcraft strike will be aided by every power of the shopcraft organization, a statement issued by the executive committee of the Railway Employees' department of the American Federation of Labor said today.

"The officials of these organizations have done everything possible since the beginning of the strike to maintain a peaceful suspension of work in a struggle for a decent livelihood. It must be admitted that the strike has been a remarkable demonstration of the working abiding character of the workers in general."

"It is unfortunate that in a suit for the enforcement of the injunction against lawlessness, the attorney general's office has prepared and a court, on hasty consideration, has entered an order which, unless carefully interpreted, might be read as a flagrant violation of constitutional rights of American citizens as repeatedly affirmed by the supreme court of the United States."

"Apparently either haste or failure to use the English language with precision has led to the drafting of an order, which, read to literally, would deny the right of free speech or communication of any sort, or just payment of debts or mutual aid in lawful associations, to men engaged in the peaceful struggle for their livelihood."

"It can hardly be assumed that the federal court had intended to restrain, or has restrained, lawful peaceful association of laboring men for the purpose of maintaining their livelihood, and that some of all of whose members are engaged in a legally sanctioned strike to secure their livelihood."

"If a strike of railway employees and its peaceful conduct were an unlawful proceeding, it cannot be assumed that the attorney general of the United States would have conferred two months ago with the lawbreakers whom they represented should return to work under terms which they afterwards accepted and which the railway employees have since accepted."

"At last night advised that the constitution of the United States and the decisions of the supreme court are no more to be relied upon as the law of the land, the officials of the organization of railway employees will continue to perform their legitimate duties to the extent of their power, and will not permit of their lawful purposes, and to do all in their power in conjunction with officers of government to enforce the law."

Government Will Control Shop Strike By Means of Federal Court Injunctions

BROTHERHOOD CHIEFS DECLINE TO DISCUSS FEDERAL INJUNCTION

INTEREST KEEN IN FOUR POINTS COVERED BY SPEECHMAN IN HIS ORATORY COMMENT ON ACTION.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 1 (AP)—Nathan Weston Stone the union glenore, W.G. Lee of the tramway or D. B. Robertson of the firemen and Robinson, brotherhoods would be called regarding the injunction against the striking shopmen or their representatives. They indicated, however, that they might issue a statement after further consideration of the court's action.

Four points in the injunction, it was stated by a spokesman, interested the union heads greatly. These were the ones forbidding interviews, or any method of influencing men working under the injunction, unless glenore, W.G. Lee of the tramway or D. B. Robertson of the firemen and Robinson, brotherhoods would be called regarding the injunction against the striking shopmen or their representatives.

It was stated that the injunction would be resisted to the limit by the union members.

NEW MEN TAKE PLACE ON JOB

Ranks of Rescue Parties Augmented by Arrival of Fresh Crews at Jackson

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 1 (AP)—Miners of the Mother Lode country, wearied by one hundred hours of strain, were heartening in their work of rescue for the 47 men entombed in the Argonaut mine here tonight by two things. Fresh men, hurrying over from a mine in Nevada, were at work, taking some of the stress from the shoulders of their California fellows, and fresh air was seeping from the Argonaut mine's lower levels to the neighboring Kennedy workings.

This gave new basis for hope that the men they sought to relieve had not been suffocated by fumes from the fire which trapped them in the lower levels of the famous old gold producer and that they might be saved.

There were, however, the possibilities that lack of food, water, or efforts to escape by climbing up into the zone affected by the fire, might cause some or all of the entombed men to succumb. Tricklings of water found today in one of the two tunnels connecting the Argonaut and Kennedy workings, which the rescuers are trying to clear out, were regarded by the miners as assuring water for the entombed men to drink, but the other possibilities were matter for speculation.

The rescuers, in one narrow man-way tunnel, were declared today to be 70 feet from the point where they must open a "rate" of several hundred feet, which is clogged with earth and rock. It is not expected that either this party or that which is attempting to go through a larger tunnel, partly blocked with debris, and further closed by a cold bulkhead, will be able to get into the Argonaut workings this week.

The Thousand Islands.
The beauties of the St. Lawrence river were first seen by a white man when Jacques Cartier, on a voyage of exploration, happened on the stream in 1605. It was not until 1615, however, that the region of Alexandria bay was discovered. In that year Champlain traveled up this part of the river. About 1760 the French began to settle its borders and christened it Les Milles Isles.

SENATE FAILS TO PASS BILL

Vigorous Opposition Develops to Government Anti-Profiteering Measure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP)—Vigorous opposition to the administration anti-profiteering coal bill was voiced today in the senate when that measure was taken up. Democratic leaders declared that it begged the question: that the real crux of the coal situation was a lack of railroad motive power and that the government should take immediate steps to relieve the condition growing out of the rail strike. No action was taken on the bill today and consideration is expected to be resumed tomorrow.

Chairman Cummins of the interstate commerce committee, in charge of the bill, and other republicans agreed that the condition of some of the carriers was serious, and Mr. Cummins expressed the opinion that government control might prove the only remedy. His judgment was that it would take six months for the roads to repair their equipment so as to move traffic to full capacity.

Senator Underwood of Alabama, the democratic leader, urged enactment at this session of legislation that would meet the rail strike situation. Senator Cummins contended that it would be "worse than futile" to undertake to engage the attention of congress on such legislation at this time, but Senator Underwood argued that this was the time to act, as public sentiment might be stronger for such legislation now than later.

The committee chairman gave notice that at the next session he would propose legislation that would make unlawful strikes in all industries where the government undertook to establish justice in disputes.

City's Average Need of Water.
American hydraulic engineers in planning for a water supply under the present conditions, calculate upon the basis of a daily consumption of 100 gallons per capita, with provisions to meet an increased demand in the near future. For ordinary domestic purposes the requirements average twenty gallons per capita.

SAYS SECRETARY'S SON IS POOR PROVIDER

MRS. MURIEL B. SHAW, whose young husband, Earl B. Shaw, was secretary of the Interior, has filed suit for divorce at Santa Rosa, Cal., declared she loved her husband dearly and would retain his divorce suit. "My husband," she added, "never bought me as much as a pair of shoes with his own money." His father gave him money from time to time, and it was on this money that we lived. They were married in Baltimore in 1913.

Among the weeds in the latter class there are listed green foxtail, common; known as pigeon grass; water grass; and docks in red clover or in alfalfa seed. Green foxtail often pulls down the purity below 80 per cent. Then, too, the sweet clover is inseparable in the above crop seeds. One other point for high-grade red clover seed is not to allow alfalfa plants in seed to remain in the fields. The seeds of some cannot be separated, and cause many lots of good seed to grade as mixture only.

Specifics Poor Spot.
In order to avoid blazes on the market poor grade seed, the grower would find it profitable to make a thorough survey of his fields before cutting. All bad patches should be cut down, removed from the fields carefully for stock, or better, burn the undesirable cutting. This may seem at the time a great sacrifice, but when a sample of the threshed crop is submitted to a buyer the quality will be far superior than otherwise, thus creating a high bid, for in these days scrupulous buyers appreciate quality.

Resisting Comes High.
The average dealer is unable to offer prices on low grade seed because he cannot turn such seed for a high price even if good enough for common hay or a fertilizer. There are only two courses for him to take, sell at the market price or rot it. The latter way is a very expensive process on account of the fact that no one machine will remove all foreign seeds, but it must be run through several different ones. This is necessary on account of the various seeds being differently shaped, dif-

WEEDS IN SEED CROP EXPENSIVE

State Analyst Makes Suggestions of Value to Growers' Pocketbook

BOISE, Sept. 1.—It is a great mistake to harvest seed from a field regardless of whether some parts are infested with noxious weeds whose seeds are inseparable when found in the crop seeds. The grower must look out for other weeds that produce seeds that are inseparable, says Joseph C. Ayres, state seed analyst, in a bulletin made public by the University of Idaho extension division and federal department of agriculture.

Defense of Davis Cup in Good Hands—Tomorrow's Play to Tall Story

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 1 (AP)—America's lawn-tennis players responded nobly to the call to the defense of the Davis cup, emblematic of the national championship, on the courts of the Great Hills club here this afternoon. The racquets of Wm. T. Tilden III, of Philadelphia, national champion; and Wm. A. Johnston of San Francisco, former title holder, turned back the attacks of Gerald L. Patterson and James G. Anderson in straight sets. Tilden defeated Patterson by scores of 7-5, 10-8 and 0-0, and Johnston conquered Anderson 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Tomorrow Tilden and Vincent Richards, the 19-year-old tennis phenomenon, will oppose Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood in the doubles match. If the Americans win the silver bowl will be safe for another year.

Oxford Noon
 Some clock clove with silver the stillness of the morning. Ere came the second striking. And now there were others clinking in. The tin was confuted with the avert, babel of the many spires, some of them booming deep, measured sequences, some tinging impatiently and outwitting others which had begun before them. And with this anthem of festal attributes and uneven rhythms had dwindled quite away and faded in one last solitary note of silver, there started something another sequence; and this, almost at the last stroke, was interrupted by yet another, which went on to tell the hour of noon in its own way, quite slowly and significantly, as though none knew it—Max Beerholm, in "Zuleika Dobson."

 FOR SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD

BURLINGAME—Upon the urgent request of their friends C. H. Taylor and C. E. Whitty have consented to allow their names to appear on the official ballot for school trustees. These men have served for the past year. The entire school board has made a very satisfactory showing on conserving the interests of the district. Last year the school operating expenditures reached the sum of $111,229.75 and this year only $95,463.85 was expended, making a saving over last year of $15,765.90. Other members of the board are Wm. H. Harlow, George Watt, P. F. Alkman and R. H. Burlingame.

RAILROADS AND TRACKMEN REST ON ARGUMENTS

Preliminary Submission of Case Before Labor Board on the Shopmen's Request for Wage Increase is Complete

CHICAGO, Sept. 1. (AP)—Representatives of more than 100 railroads and of 400,000 maintenance-of-way men today completed preliminary submission of arguments on the request of the employees for an increase in the minimum wage scale before the national labor board. Seven days are requested in which both sides to the argument might prepare rebuttal statements.

No final decision of the board will be made until a ruling will be made was given but it is expected that a statement will be issued immediately following the return to Chicago of Walter J. McKeel and Albert H. Phillips, labor members of the board, who have been absent during the hearing.

BLIND VETERAN ON HIKE TO GOVERNMENT HOSPITAL

Disabled Fighter, Turned Back by Hardships in Desert, Tries North Route

Howard H. Johns of Chicago, a world war veteran rated 60 per cent disabled from injuries received in the Argonne, is in Twin Falls on his way to the government hospital near Prescott, Arizona, where he expects to receive medical attention.

Johns served in the United States army for six years, and served in the world war as first sergeant of Company G, 25th Infantry, First Division, receiving his wounds in a battle just two days before he was wounded.

Undaunted by physical disabilities which included an artificial jaw, one hand affected by gas and almost blindness, Johns determined to hike from Chicago to Prescott. The veteran-bureau, he says, was unable to grant transportation on an authorized transfer.

SECOND CAVE-IN FEARED

Disturbance in Lower Levels of Argonaut Mine Believed to Mean New Obstacle in Way

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 1. (AP)—A great rock which came from the lower levels of the Argonaut mine where 47 workers have been entombed since Monday morning last today started crows at work at the main shaft of the mine. These of the men who are familiar with the sounds which emanate from the shaft reported tonight that another cave-in had occurred in the vicinity of the 4,000 foot level, below which the workers are thought to be held.

During the first century of the Christian era and therefore at the time of the missionary labors of St. Paul, Antioch was the chief city in Asia, that is in western Asia, for only part of the continent was then called Asia. It stood on the left bank of the river Orontes, which, 15 miles to the west flows into the northeastern portion of the Mediterranean sea. In ancient times the river was navigable, and on the coast was the fish harbor of Seleucia. For several centuries it enjoyed great commercial importance. During the first century of the Christian era Antioch contained a population of fully half a million, in which many of the nation's "kings" of Europe and Asia were reared. It is now a place of 17,000 inhabitants, known as Antakya.

FURTHER STEPS

(Continued from Page One.) administration as well as of the senate and house were taken by surprise by the filing of the suit and the haste of the court's temporary order, which followed quickly. Chairman Cummins of the senate Interstate Commerce committee, who has maintained close relations with the industrial situation since its inception, however, said he had been consulted in regard to the matter. He expressed his approval, adding that his attitude would be the same toward any move that will help keep the railroads in operation.

Only Way Out

Discussion of the proposed suit occupied a recent meeting of the cabinet. It was said, and developed a decided response in opinion as to its advisability between certain of President Harding's advisors. In some circles President Harding was understood to have, for a time at least, aligned himself among those opposed to seeking court action in the emergency.

Later, however, when the apparent collapse of efforts to settle the strike had been followed by instances of violence on many railroads, Mr. Harding was said to have approved the attorney general's recommendation that such legal action should be added to other efforts of the government to prevent such outbreaks.

The injunctive petition was held by the department of justice to be well precedented in the government's action in the famous Dohs case in 1895, which subsequently was sustained by a decision of the United States supreme court.

When labor-saving machinery was first introduced, most people opposed it, on the ground that it would throw many out of jobs. Many an old-time sewing machine salesman still carries buckshot in his bag, dreading that "optical" guinea who objected to the devilish device that took work from seamstresses. Today we realize that labor-saving devices merely shift workers into new industries—and raise the standard of living. You see this illustrated in the American telephone system that does the work of 6,000,000 messenger boys.

DECLARES TIME NOT YET

Participation by America in Foreign Economic Conferences Will Come Later On WASHINGTON, Sept. 1. (AP)—Participation in discussions of world rehabilitation problems is "impossible" at this time, it was declared at the White House. It is represented, however, that President Harding feels that the time has not come for the United States to participate in economic discussions now being held abroad.

Officials would not enlarge upon these statements, but they said that the president's attitude forbade any new turn in the world-discussions of economic rehabilitation. It was pointed out that the world situation, President Harding felt, was so serious that the failure of this government to participate in the discussions would be a loss for the world.

At the White House it was explained that Liberia had arranged her finances under the assumption that $5,000,000 would be advanced, and now is seriously embarrassed by failure to obtain the funds. The president was declared to believe that the world situation, the American loan and the failure of congress to pass the necessary legislation be laid before the American public in order that they might determine whether the honor of the United States did not demand action.

The First Automobile

What is said to be the first automobile in the world was discovered by the officers of the A. E. F., near Le Mans, France, in the magnificent stables of the estate of the Marquis de Broce. The authentic record of this self-propelled road car is that it was built at Worcester, England, in 1825. It was used on long road trips and had a speed of about 25 miles an hour; but the marquis stopped using it, as it frightened the neighborhood peasants. The car was discovered by officers who were invited to the estate by the marquis. It somewhat resembles a stagecoach in design—having a powerful engine in the front and a chimney in the rear. It was propelled by steam, much as our steam rollers are today. The small wire-rimmed at the top was intended to hold large, white traveling; and it is evident that the car was fitted up with every convenience that could be contrived at the time. The car is now stored in the marquis's garage—hereafter Carrington, in Le Mans.

Displays Showing Wellworth Glasses Attract Attention!

There may be numberless "reasons why" a woman does this, but—her mother. She may wear fox-fur and wool boots in summer or low neck and silk socks in winter—it's her privilege; her willing sacrifice to the great god Style.

On the thirtieth of May a man may put on a comfortable fall hat and put on a stiff straw with a brim as unyielding as the hoop on a barrel—that's his privilege also, his unyielding bow to the consistent Custom.

But—with rare exceptions, there is one reason only why a person puts on glasses—he has to. Paint our picture as we will, we can't get around the fact that we must use every effort to popularize our merchandise—appearance must ever be borne in mind.

We put as much beauty of design and efficiency of work into our glasses as scientific research permits.

We recommend Wellworth Colonial Glasses as a prejudice remover, and we admit pride in fitting these glasses, inconspicuous, with their thin frames. It is they that flatter the contour of the face. In some sections of the country they are already being bought as a matter of convenience, instead of a grudging concession to necessity.

Much Credit Due Byron

Byron is the most romantic of literary cripples. The information of his feet was congenital and was a source of lifelong injury, yet he was beloved of many women, had a countenance of singular nobility and, even beauty and was the most popular poet in his lifetime in the whole history of English literature. Doubtless his mother's reference to her "lamb" made in his hearing when a child, had much to do with the emboldening anger with which Byron regarded his lameness and to his defect must be attributed that of his work. Yet Byron is admirable for the way he fought his infirmity. He became a fine boxer, a splendid dancer, and, as everybody knows, he swam the Hellespont in imitation of Leander.

First Reformatory

For a long time the underlying purpose of penal institutions was visible punishment. The idea of reforming criminals was of late origin and of slow growth, beginning with the treatment of juvenile offenders and extending later to the treatment of hardened criminals. The first of kind was founded in the state juvenile reformatory was established in New York in 1825, and this was followed by others a year or two later in Boston and Philadelphia. Many of the states now have reform schools for juvenile criminals and use reformatory methods in the treatment of old offenders.

Clyde's Defense of Foreign Words

It is true when I find an English word significant and sounding I neither borrow from the Latin nor any other language; but when I want to know I must seek abroad. It sounds like words are not of our growth and manufacture, who shall hinder us to import them from a foreign country? I carry not out the treasure of the nation which is never to return; but what I bring from Italy, I spend in England; here it remains and here it circulates; if the coin be good, it will pass from one hand to another, I trade for the enrichment of our native language. We have enough in England to supply our necessity; but if we will have things of magnificence and splendor, we must get them by commerce. Therefore, if I find a word in classic author, I propose it to be naturalized by using it myself, and if the public approve of it the bill passes.—Dryden, in "Discourse of Epick Poetry."

MISSIONARIES OF TRADE

—Jaw. Robert Skinner, American consul in the days of President Roosevelt, hung the American flag around the shoulders of a proud Abyssinian chieftain and secured a treaty of amity and commerce with wily old King Menelik, is a bit of history very properly resurrected by a writer in "The Nation's Business."

At a time when the progressive thought of our business interests is turned to the development of world trade, it is well to bring to attention the importance of the consular services. The consuls are the missionaries of commerce. They take the flag of our country into regions where it is little known; they establish relations with foreign people, learn their ways, their needs and their desires and, in reports to our government, translate their findings into terms of opportunity for our people who would be business abroad.

This is a service of high order, demanding fine intelligence, great tact, broad training, and general ability of kind to command splendid remuneration. The story of Robert Skinner's achievement in Abyssinia illustrates the possibilities of such service. In all the vast area of that country, inhabited by 20,000,000 people, the American flag had never been seen. Consul Skinner, accompanied only by a little squad of American marine officers, and sailors, made the long journey bearing simple gifts to the king and the draft of a treaty. And with such tact and courtesy did he accomplish his mission as completely to win the favor of the African monarch and gain for the United States advantages of great value.

This is a sort of service that demands governmental recognition in a very worthy way. But unfortunately the government has not, in general, put the proper estimate upon it. Few consular positions carry pay which will attract the highest type of applicants. If the United States is to become a world power commercially, the government cannot afford to neglect the fullest development of the consular service.

LAFAYETTE DAY

There is beautiful sentiment in the custom born of the war, and which seems likely to be continued, of celebrating American and French national holidays jointly in both countries. It is a token of friendship for America to observe Bastille Day, no less than for France to celebrate the day of our Independence.

But there is one day in the celebration of which both nations can join unreservedly and wholeheartedly, with no deference to the war. September 6, anniversary of the birth of Lafayette and of the first battle of the Marne, is a natal day in the life of America as well as in that of France. Americans will always think of the immortal Lafayette more as their own than as a Frenchman who performed noble service for this country. And we now know, though on that fateful day in 1914 our interest was merely that of a curious spectator, that in the Valley of the Marne we as well as France were victorious when the Hun was stopped in his first drive on Paris.

In churches, schools and public places tributes might well be paid to the man who with Washington paved the way to liberty for our country when the American colonists were caught in the turmoil and revolution. Lafayette's devotion to our cause, his unceasing effort and personal sacrifice, are typical of the spirit of France today. Let us voice our appreciation of one of her most glorious sons.

Mother Finds Son After 58 Years

Mrs. Mary Lopez and her son, who was separated from her for 58 years.

Fifty-eight years ago Mrs. Mary Roper, of Little Blue, Mo., and her husband separated, and he took away their children—Joseph, four, and his brother, Charles, one. After the desertion Mrs. Roper went to London to work, for seven years. Then she returned to America, all the time searching for her sons. Finally she made her home at Little Blue. Lately Joseph Roper heard there was a Mrs. Roper searching for her sons, and he learned she was his mother. After the reunion Mrs. Roper learned the younger son is somewhere in Ohio. Her husband was a veteran of the civil war, and she believes there is $10,000 back pension coming to her.

Swordfish of Mackeral Family

The swordfish is allied by family ties to the neckered. It attains a length of from 12 to 15 feet and sometimes specimens 20 feet long have been caught. It has a much elongated upper jaw, which is the sword, and this is commonly three-fourths of the length of the fish. The body is covered with minute scales, its color is bluish-black above and silver-white below, and the ventral fins are lacking. Neapolitan and Sicilian fishermen make great countenance of this fish and its flesh is held to be very palatable.

Rubber Tires in the Making
 In the manufacture of rubber tires, just sufficient rubber should be employed to fill the mold and any excess would result in waste. By weighing the tires on their metal cores before they go to the molds, the exact amount of rubber required can be determined. To do this accurately a scale has been developed in all the mold and any excess is weighed from one side, on which the tire is hung and weighed just before going to the mold. The scale is designed to maintain its accuracy under all conditions and the exact deficiencies are regulated by metallic spring plates.

Each string is a violin in a different thickness, according to the tone and tension required. The fourth string is covered with blue wire, either a white metal or real silver, hence it is often called the "silver string." Violas, violoncellos and double-basses have each two covered strings, the object being to insure a sufficient gravity of tone without having too clumsy a material. The covered strings on the guitar are of the same basis of silk. Violas, violoncellos and double-basses from Italy, which has been famous for centuries for this product. Strings are carefully selected and graded as to size so that they shall be uniform. The larger strings for the larger instruments are stretched on frames for three or four days. The covered strings are finished on a special lathe which covers them with fine silk or fine silver-plated-copper wire, or even silver.
