IDAHO'S TIMBER FOR TEAM GOOD

No Dearth of Backfield and Line Material, and Several Players Rather Outstanding

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Sept. 13 (AP)—With the date for commencing pre-season football work rapidly approaching Coach Matthews and his staff are making ready to start the practice program.

Because of Idaho's change of coaches on the eve of her first season in the coast conference, sports writers are giving Idaho proposals more than passing review and for the most part they see a fast, evenly balanced squad coming from the silver and gold camp.

Still Has Good Timber.

Although Idaho lost some fine material last season she still holds some of the best timber of any coast eleven and around this lot Matthews will build his new team. Abe Goff, who last year played an exceptional game at center, will be back in the lineup.

Babe Brown will captain the team during his third and last year. Brown plays both end and fullback but his ability as a punter places him more in harmony with the backfield work.

Huck and Deary—Breehars are the other two backfield veterans. The line veterans other than Goff are Shanes, Breehars, Pole Darso, Dale Vols, Jim Neal and Jeff Stone.

There is no dearth of backfield and line material this year and several players among the list of available candidates are rather outstanding. Bob Pitack, who was inept to play last year, will come to the front with a drop kick almost certain within the 40-yard line. Morris Kline played a whole of a game at center and captured the Freshman team. He will crowd Goff for his place and this competition should give Idaho two crack centers.

Twin Falls Man on List.

Byb Kliffner, Charley Hanson, Ole Neuman and Noah Hayes are the inmates from the Freshman team. Wait Bremer is a strong contender for the end position left vacant by the graduation of Grover Evans. He did some exceptional playing with the first year team last year and Coach Kelley was expecting great strides of development from him.

David MacMillan, Freshman coach, will start his players to work as soon as they have completed the registration. Indications point to a reasonably strong first year team at Idaho this season.

THIS YEAR'S OPENING MARKET PRICES ON

Alfalfa and Clover Seed

are generally disappointing to seed growers. Seed harvested during the fall months will not be sown until next spring. No one knows what market conditions will be a few months from now when the seed is required for sowing. Most growers, who are not members of the Idaho Seed Growers Association, will be required to sell their seed immediately, especially in view of the low prices of their other crops.

All seed belonging to members of the Idaho and Utah Seed Growers Associations is marketed largely after January first, and throughout the season when there is a planting demand for Alfalfa and Clover Seed. Markets are generally better established after the first of the year.

It is logical to believe that the seed marketed by the Seed Growers Association will usually average a higher net return than seed sold outright in the fall when farmers everywhere are selling through the necessity of raising cash. FORCED SALES NEARLY ALWAYS MEAN LOW MARKETS.

BUFF DEFEATED BY MANILA MAN

Pancho Villa Takes Title of Fly-weight Champion of United States Through Victory

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 14—Pancho Villa of Manila tonight became flyweight champion of the United States by scoring a technical knockout over an opening Buff of Jersey City for seconds after the opening of the eleventh round of a scheduled 12-round contest.

In the semi-final bout, eight rounds, Elmoose Flores of Manila received the judges' decision over Nick Foley of Brooklyn.

The first time Buff did not take a count, but when Villa placed both hands to the head a few seconds later the American lay on the floor until five was counted and the bell rang, saving him. He was picked up and placed in his chair.

It was Villa's fight from the first. He was always active, always punting for an opening instead of waiting for one.

Buff was unable to open an attack. He tried in vain to get into the ring, but Villa met every attack with another of two hands, punishing relentlessly.

Buff showed more action in the next three rounds, but Villa continued to advance his commanding lead. The Filipino met the American's attack with an offensive defense that drove Buff to the ropes in the seventh and trounced him about the ring in the ninth.

Buff's seconds threw a towel into the ring when Johnny Satterer, the ring official, stood helpless before the Filipino's attacks.

In the tenth round, Villa scored two knockdowns in the next two rounds. Buff with both hands, rushing him to the ropes and then chasing him across the ring. Buff was reeling when Villa landed his left to the head and sent the American bumping to the floor.

Opens Terrific Assault
After he laid the American setting under his aggressive attack, Buff's tenth round, Villa reopened his terrific assault in the eleventh. Buff, groggy from bare rights and left to the jaw, fought back bravely and sent the Filipino staggering back with a blow to the chin. They clinched and then Villa drove Buff to the ropes with a series of uppercuts. The American sank slowly to the floor under his opponent's battering attack and his seconds threw a towel into the ring, in acknowledgment of defeat. Twenty-one seconds of the eleventh round had elapsed when the contest was ended.

FINAL GAME AT KIMBERLY

Final arrangements were made Wednesday afternoon for the last game of the Hansen-Jerome world's series, and it will be played at Kimberly on Sunday afternoon.

Each team has won a game, and it is to be hoped that the winner of the third game will be able to get a game with the fast Babe Troler for the state title.

"Lefty" Oliver will be in uniform for the last game and may be called upon to do stunts. Jimmie Thompson is also ready for action, while Frank Fuller may be relied upon, although his team has been giving him considerable trouble of late. Patton is billed to do the back-stopping for the Hansenites.

Clyde Medhill feels confident that he can win again from the southsiders and will again occupy the mound for Jerome. Brooks will call the stack.

The Pioneer club of Kimberly met at the home of Mrs. G. L. Noble Thursday afternoon. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, a profusion of roses and asters being used in the living-room. The president, Mrs. J. N. Davis, presided and the meeting opened with a business session. The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. T. Mulder, who is chairman of the art committee. Mrs. M. J. Sweeley was the honored guest for the day. At the March meeting of this club Mrs. Sweeley was made an honorary member. Mrs. Davis, president of the club, and Mrs. Van Houten, one of the first presidents of the club and a pioneer member, driving in from Kimberly to testify Mrs. Sweeley, who was ill at the time, of the honor conferred upon her, which she considers one of the highest compliments ever tendered her. Mrs. Sweeley spoke in her usual happy vein, taking for her subject "Indian Arts." She illustrated the same with many articles of Indian workmanship, among them being rugs, baskets, pottery and beads. She also showed many fine pictures of Indian life made by western artists. Miss Ellen Gladson, of Independence, Kan., who is the house guest of Mrs. J. N. Davis, was also a club guest. Miss Gladson is a pianist of exceptional ability and rendered several piano solos. Mrs. J. S. Dehan, accompanied by Miss Gladson, sang a group of Indian songs to the delight of all. Mrs. J. S. Dehan sang "What's in the Air Today," and responded to an encore with "She Was a Maid of Japan." The public school teachers were guests of the club, and Mrs. James Fitzgerald, secretary of the Intermountain and Pacific Coast Federation, was also a guest. At the close of the afternoon refreshments were served from a table covered with a beautiful Madeira luncheon set, the centerpiece being a bowl of marigolds. Other decorations were yellow candles in crystal chandeliers. Mrs. W. H.

Turner and Mrs. S. H. Proctor presided at the tea table.

Mrs. Harry Mylar entertained at a delightful "500" party at her home in the Box Arms apartments Thursday afternoon, complimenting Mrs. Robert Evans, of the Colonial apartment. The guest prize was a dainty linen handkerchief. Mrs. Alvin Harbour received the favor for high score, and Miss Eula Ripley was awarded the consolation. A profusion of roses and sweet peas adorned the rooms, and a delicious two-course luncheon was served at the close of the game. The guest list included Mrs. Alvin Harbour, Mrs. Hugh Ambery, Mrs. L. G. Hogan, Mrs. Allan Ash-ton, Mrs. Homer Hall, Mrs. A. Alexander, Mrs. D. J. Alvin, Mrs. G. V. Hinkle, Mrs. Ira Taylor, Mrs. Bern Swolo, Mrs. Kyle Walte, Mrs. Helm, Mrs. Lane, Mrs. J. B. Williams and Miss Eula Ripley.

IN MEMORY

D. H. DEAN. A loved one from our family circle is taken. A chair is vacant that never can be filled. A void is in our aching hearts. It is the blessed Savior's will. We wish to thank our many friends for the sympathy and kindness shown in our bereavement and for the beautiful flowers.

CHAPTER II—(Continued.)
 Drace returned the fervent handclasp. "My Horatio!" he agreed, and then, solemn again, he added: "It's a worthy cause, Liberty. It's not only my private vengeance, but the wrongs of a whole community that the ordinary machinery of justice can never right. Why, Liberty, dozens of men were murdered by those drunken fellows that treasure and give it under the hoofs of their horses, and women—near our house, Liberty, an old couple live in poverty. At the time of Stephen's raid their son and his young wife lived next door to them; they were well-to-do and persons. The day of the raid the son had received ten thousand dollars from the sale of some lands. When rumor of the raiders came, he hurriedly hid the money somewhere in the neighborhood, scribbled on a piece of paper the location of that treasure and gave it to his wife before he went out with the other men to fight. Next morning he had been shot; and the young wife had been carried off by those devils—her child with her, after the Indian custom, to keep her from suicide. No one knows what ever befell her. Now that that money ever been found, Liberty, if I could find Stephen, get him in my power, I believe I could at least learn what became of that poor young woman—possibly find that paper and learn where to find the money those poor people so sorely need; for once, some years ago, a mysterious fellow was caught digging about their yard."
 "But I've talked enough, Liberty.
 Action! Do you know any more about La Vittor?"

"Not much," replied Liberty. "I believe he is still after the Rites, and sometimes down on the coast. He has his friends, and nearly everybody else is afraid of him. So you—we—must keep dark till we get our chance.
 And you mustn't show your feelings to your face. Remember, master, you're just a young man out to see the world. Um—here comes Colonel Josh. Suppose we talk to him. He was a mule-buyer in the war and may know something about Stephen."
 "The door was darkened. In came Joshua Shortt, the man whom Miss Lucy had sited with questions concerning Drace. He had dined in for a smoke, he said, when Shortt had introduced him to his master, and it was evident that it was his aim to impress Drace with his military bearing.
 He had not been actually in the army, but had acquired the title of colonel from his adventurous work of buying mules for the Confederate government.
 The Colonel "took it" that Drace was from the North.

"Yes, but some of my people were from the South."
 "Ah! I congratulate you, sir. I have a match, thank you." Drace had offered him a light. He filled his pipe with tobacco crumbs dug out of his breeches pocket, and, long legs crossed, sat back to enjoy himself.
 "Well, sir, Mr. Drace, the war has been ended some years, and if we forget an evil as easily as a virtue, sir, it will soon be only a dim memory. I had enough of it."
 "But you were not really in the army, Colonel Josh," the slave spoke up.
 The Colonel pulled at his pipe, stretched his neck and appeared to fish for something down in his collar.
 "Liberty, my duty was scouting and the incidental picking up of mules, as the records of the War Department will be pleased to exhibit, sir."

After a few minutes more conversation the Colonel rose. "I will now go back to the bathroom," he declared himself. "Liberty, I came aboard tonight with your third cousin, Miss Lucy Sanders."
 "That so? Come down, Miss Drace, and I'll introduce you to her."
 The Colonel was quick to interpose, realizing that he had thoughtlessly suggested an invasion of his own territory.
 "Not while there is a fiddle going," said Shortt. "Come on."
 Into Virginia's room flew the hope that the slave's cousin might be the berberic girl with the roses; there could be no mistaking her, after meeting her, for in that brief gaze he had carried away a master's painting of her, etched in his mind. So he was quick to protest that never before had his kin-woman been so glad to see him. On his arm she hung as she cooed, but her eyes were on Drace, and he listened, not to her words, but to the music of her accent, soft as the notes of a dove. Like a foot-soldier flung hat, the Colonel sat first on one foot and then on the other. Drace politely asked Miss Lucy to dance with him, and the Colonel dropped onto a chair.
 Shortt sat beside him.
 "She takes to him like a duck to water," said the slave, looking after his master and his little cousin.
 The Colonel sighed. "Liberty, I hope," he said, "am going to tell you something."
 "Out with it."
 "It is not a matter to be spoken of so lightly, sir."
 "All right; go ahead."
 "Liberty Shortt, it is this: I am about to get your young man, and before the dawn of another day I shall pop the question to her."
 "Pop the deuce! Lend me ten dollars."
 "You shock me, sir."
 "Tell you what I'll do," persisted Shortt. "If you have ten, and I'll make her a speech in your favor that will wink her hair."
 "Shortt!"
 "And I can do it. They've got my speech on the Periwinkle Age hung up right now at the mastery. The governor of North Carolina said to the right of North Carolina, just after making his historic remark about its being a long time between drinks, that was the most powerful speech he ever heard!"

The Colonel scowled, and swore his refusal to enter into any financial transaction involving his heart; and Shortt, realizing that his efforts were vain, sank down into melancholy silence. Miss Lucy, meanwhile, was introducing Drace to some of her friends, not to young women, but to men and to ladies well advanced along the path.
 Drace soon realized that this society was far from the caricature that Shortt and Colonel Josh might reflect; for the most part it was composed of hordes of exquisite refinement; and men strong in the dignity of medicine of the law.

 "You have not chosen an opportunity to visit New Orleans," an old judge remarked to Drace. "We are forced to live under the infamy of a corrupt government, an infelicitous scoundrel, who in the North could never attain to even the meanest office, come down here; where we are disfranchised and elect themselves legislators, governors—representatives of a plain that they have never seen.
 Heavy taxes are levied, and they pocket the money. The governor was not elected, but named by a gang of freebooters. The real citizens of the state have no vote. Their former slaves and the crooks who now manage them control the ballot-box. This is the true state of affairs. Wait till you see New Orleans, sir."
 "This talk was too serious for Miss Lucy. She plucked Drace away to walk with her, and she hung laughing on his arm as everywhere his eyes searched for the girl with the roses in vain! And presently he excused himself and went disconsolately to bed.

"Zeke Hawkins" says—

"One of the worst things we men has got to contend with is the consciousness of 'wimmen.' We go to the fair every, ten of us (countin' Mother Billingsby). We has a nice comfortable ride over in 'The Touting Car.' Then I takes the responsibility of the three oldest boys, leavin' Sarah (she's seven, and a right smart o' help at times) to help her Maw with the three younger children. Ted's the youngest, he's two, and a cuter little cuss you never saw. We all has a nice restful day down' the stock and takin' in the races. I enjoyed myself right smart.
 But Maw comes home sayin' she's all fagged out. I just can't under-stan' wimmen!"

THE SHOPMEN'S STRIKE.

As was to have been expected when the call for the meeting of the Policy Committee of the Shopmen's Union was issued, the rail strike is to be settled on the basis of agreements entered into between the various roads, and their employes and not on a national scale as proposed by the strikers.

The arrangement and the line of procedure follows—clearly upon the plan of settlement adopted in the coal strike. The great majority of the principal railroad of the country will take back the striking shopmen. Some few will not. But the strike as a whole will come to an end.

If there is any particular lesson to be gleaned from the controversy it is that wage reductions do not constitute popular ground for a strike and that the moral support of the great bulk of the American people in this particular fight has not been upon the side of the strikers. The new man taken on during the past few months to fill the places of the strikers have been hired upon the basis of the Federal Labor Board's wage scale—a wage scale which the strikers refused to accept. The strikers, according to the terms of settlement agreed upon, will return on the scale now in effect, that is, upon the terms of pay fixed by the board.

Wages must come down, not only machines' wages, but all wages. Not primarily because anybody is getting too much money, but simply because the country cannot afford the expense. But reduced wages do not mean any less comfortable living or any particular curtailment of the use of the things which money buys. Living costs will move down automatically as a direct result of this lower wage expense, just as, indeed, they have been moving downward steadily, if gradually for the past two years.

A return to an economic basis of supply and demand—sense in America depends directly upon a reduction not only in labor costs, but in every other kind of cost clear down through the warp and woof of the industrial fabric of the country.

As a corollary of the settlement, and one which is chiefly interesting in this section, undoubtedly there will be an improved market for grain and all the other things the farmer has to sell, and if the settlement should have no other effect than to give to the farmer either a higher price for his product or a lower price for the things he is compelled to buy, then the strike will have served one mighty good purpose anyhow.

JUST WAIT.

The Boston councilman who wishes to remove Webster's dictionary from the library shelves has tackled a heavy subject. Quite apart from that, however, there are, by general consent, a number of very good words in Webster and it seems unjust to demand that all because one interloper offends this simple man.

One suspects some ulterior, and possibly political, motive. The councilman, it may chance, has only just discovered the word and believes Mr. Webster is a candidate for office, guilty of a stupendous and treasonable piece of campaign literature, indignantly placed on the respectable shelves of the public library under the guise of a dictionary.

Even so, separating Boston from Webster is no one man's job. Just wait until Boston looks into the suspected volume and identifies the exact term in which it desires to phrase its comment. It should be good.
