TURK FINDS BIG POWERS IN HARMONY

Allied Leaders Stand Together in Opposition to Kemalists Demand for Plebiscite on Western Thrace

Constantinople, Nov. 21 (AP)—The grand general assembly of the Grand National Assembly of Turkey today declared in a unanimous vote that the allied powers were in harmony in their opposition to the demand for a plebiscite on Western Thrace.

The grand assembly was held in the presence of 400 delegates from all parts of the country. It was presided over by Mustafa Kemal, the founder of the republic.

The assembly's decision was a significant victory for the allied powers, who had been demanding a plebiscite on Western Thrace for some time.

Members of Congress Take Steps to Bring About Enactment of Laws for Relief of Farmers Before March

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP)—Encouraged by the recommendation of President Harding in Tuesday's message that the nation's credit systems be reformed to provide relief for the farmers, members of congress today inaugurated a campaign to bring about credit legislation before the end of the present congress next March.

Development at the out set centered largely in the senate and included in the bill proposed by Charles McNary of the agriculture committee, reformation of a government capitalized corporation to buy and sell farm products.

These developments, together with statements by leaders in congress, led to the passage of a credit bill which was passed by the house today.

SCORES OF LIVES LOST IN ALABAMA MINE BLAST

Late Reports Tell of Recovery of 83 Bodies and Fear of Officials that Death Roll May Reach 100; More Than 300 Workers, Uninjured by Explosion, Are Trapped for Hours; Electric Spark and Cars Running Wild Are Blamed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 21 (AP)—As 9 o'clock this morning, 83 bodies had been recovered from the Tulemine mine number 3, of the Woodward iron company, also mine from this city, where 475 coal miners were employed by a first explosion yesterday afternoon, and officials of the company announced they feared the total loss might reach 100.

Officials of the company, some of whom had said that the mine would be closed and injured by 2 a. m., rescue workers had explored every entry as minutely as when an official statement was issued.

More than 200 workers, uninjured by the accident and about that followed, were trapped for several hours. A railway connecting number 3 mine with Woodward No. 1 station is a mile long, and scores of workers were brought to the surface by the mine mounds when it was closed, about 9 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The explosion was usually caused by an electric spark and running down the slope, when electric sparks exploded the dust plucked up by the speeding cars.

Officials of the company directed that all workers be taken to the surface and given first aid. While the loss of life is terrible, and sixty more or less are expected to be recovered, it is not seriously damaged by the explosion.

WAY CLEAR FOR BRIEF FIGHT ON SHIPPING BILL

Three Democrats Support and 16 Republicans Oppose, Giving Measure Right of Way Passed by House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—The road was cleared today for an early end of the house fight over the administration shipping bill, which will begin tomorrow.

Special resolutions giving the bill right of way was put through the house by a vote of 300 to 110. The vote followed a party-line, although three democrats voted against and 16 republicans opposed it. Generally speaking, leaders said, it did not indicate the line-up when the house votes on the bill, November 29.

Immediately after the action of the house, democrats agreed at a party caucus to stand solidly against the measure.

FARMERS TOLD OF ADVANTAGES OF ADVERTISING

Kansas Educator Forecasts the Time When Farm Products Will Be Advertised as Extensively as Automobiles

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—The day when American farm products will be as extensively advertised through the country as the automobile and other manufactured articles will soon arrive, Dr. W. M. Jardine, president of the Kansas State Agricultural College, declared today before the Washington Ad Club.

"The American farmer has been acquainted with only one side of the advertising business," he said. "It is the main, he thinks of advertising as a more or less tricky device employed by middlemen to separate him from a dollar."

FARM LABORERS ON COAST FIND WINTER'S WORK

Federal Employment Service Director Reports Industrial Conditions Good in Oregon, Washington and California

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22—(AP)—Although seasonal employment in agriculture in Pacific coast states is now practically at an end, the surplus workers here will be taken care of in other lines, particularly construction, according to a report for the week ending October 29, by A. J. Kelly, district director of the employment service. Kelly's report, which is the first of the department of labor made public since the beginning of the year, says Oregon anticipates no large surplus of workers for 60 days. Mr. Kelly's report also says that in Washington and California, despite comparative scarcity in shipbuilding and electrical lines, conditions are generally good. Kelly's report follows: Two seasonal construction projects in California—seasonal employment now drawing to a close. Demand for agricultural and orchard help slackening. Two seasonal construction projects operated by the state have been closed and the third will suspend operations within a few days. Seasonal construction work in California is continuing to decline. Fruit districts in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys are demanding construction workers for building of roads to be expended this winter. Lumber continues brisk with a demand for experienced workers. Paper industry continues to employ large number of labor, especially in the south. Southern railroads are ordering to capacity. While the fields in the Pacific coast are now practically empty, as at only about one-third. Railroad repairs show a slight improvement as does iron and steel. Shipbuilding work is steadily increasing, repeating sales of repair work.

Oregon—Lumber and all other industries normal. Seasonal employment slackening. Workers are continuing to be employed in other lines. Building in lumber centers active. No large surplus of workers anticipated. Less than 50 days of work. Conditions are far better than 1921.

Washington—Lumber to business is shown in car shipment. However, in general conditions are good. Construction of bridge. Apple harvest will practically terminate November 1, but warehousing will continue for a longer period. Lumbering work on a good substantial basis. More building tradesmen could find employment. Public improvements are of considerable importance. Many industries active in iron and steel. Surplus of professional and clerical workers both male and female, each lack of domestic help shows no change.

FASCISTI PREMIER WINS PRAISE AS A DIPLOMAT

Italy Regards Part Played by Mussolini as a Success Conference with King Keen Interest

ROME, Nov. 22—Italy has watched with intense interest the developments at Lausanne, particularly the part played by Mussolini. The meeting of the Fascist leader with old and trusted diplomat in the discussion of one of the most important problems confronting Europe has been generally regarded as the youthful premier's program of foreign policy and the relations of Italy to the continent.

The Giornale d'Italia says that Mussolini went to the first council with as much confidence as he would ever enjoy through a long diplomatic experience. The premier's slight himself wonderfully to the circumstances, the paper adds, and created as great an impression by the content of his method in the first meeting with Polignac and Curzon as he did when he first faced the Italian chamber.

PUNTS AND PASSES PAVES WAY FOR AMERICAN TEAM IN OLYMPIC GAMES

Association at Quadrennial Meeting, Takes Steps Toward Meet in Paris

With everything settled that Thursday night, the day is the day, and the team when the Deutscher will enter the stadium in honor of the local High school football team, all on his feet, do now patiently await the coming day of the day when the turkey comes into his own.

Considerable comment has been heard as to whether the team made a good move when they postponed the game, and the facts will give the fans a chance to figure out who really got the best of the postponement.

Boise had a game scheduled with Walla Walla for the coming Saturday night, which was under a contract made in the fall. The game was postponed, a wedge for Coach Keane of the local team, although it is thought the postponement was a great many times the real fact.

Coach Keane admitted that his team was not in shape at the present time to take on Twin Falls for a good game.

All in all, it has gone it looks as though Keane made a great move in allowing the game to be postponed. While Walla Walla was the only thing that kept him to ask for a postponement, and that by the postponing day will be in the top position.

But will Boise? Boise will stand with Walla Walla on Saturday and should be in a string of second team men, the probabilities are that the invaders will give the capital city warriors a real game. While the game is later in Twin Falls, so far would not be in accord with the figuring of Keane, so he looks very much as though he will have a very good opportunity of his regular lineup off.

The Twin Falls team which of course is the local team, will take the day during the time for the Turkey day classic in other words Coach Evans has a fight in which to get and his team's fighting condition for Boise, while the best that Keane will be able to do is to give his boys a rest after the Saturday game, give of his team's condition and Tuesday morning.

Now figure it out, the local team will have a very good game, without the worry and grief of having three games, and will have three days rest. Boise had this week in which to rest and ready for Walla Walla (the Twin Falls) and will have Monday and Tuesday in which to prepare for the championship clash, with the boys and white, and travel over rough roads for six hours Wednesday, the day preceding the game. Who's head worked the fastest, and who got the best of it?

To Preserve Sanitation To preserve sanitation against decay, two methods have been suggested that have proved effective. If a piece of rotten material is treated with certain chemical compounds of which one is known as Linoxane, it is not only protected from decay, but forms a protective cement coating. Linoxane has also been found very effective for the same purpose. Popular Science Magazine.

WOODMEN HOLD PLEASANT MEET

Enthusiasm Prevails at First Annual Conclave of Organization Members Here

The first annual meeting of the Twin Falls county association of lodge members of the Woodmen of the World at the Hotel ball Wednesday night proved to be an enthusiastic gathering and was featured by initiation of about 60 new candidates to membership in the Twin Falls, Idaho, and Boulder camps. Much of the leading delegation was so located as the meetings place next year.

J. J. Hoyer, of Denver, deputy headmaster of the house of the occasion, addressed the executive session in the interests of bettering the work of the lodge and general advancement. He stressed the issue of the occasion, addressed the president and president dinner was served. The entertainment program in charge of E. Davis, chairman of the entertainment committee, consisted of the Home Town Quartet, a reading by Mrs. B. Schurer, a solo by Mrs. Doris Johnson.

The address of welcome was delivered by Mayor J. D. Tucker, and response was by Dr. W. F. Pika. Mayor Tucker outlined the reasons for the organization for its accomplishment. He mentioned the many-headed the list of candidates initiated.

Those who officiated at the initiation were: Mr. Hoyer, D. A. Salmer, advisor lieutenant Dr. H. Davis, chairman of the entertainment committee, J. J. Hoyer, secretary, E. F. Cross, secretary, and Bonnie Wood, waitress. During the initiation the ladies attended to the refreshments.

Mr. Hoyer was highly optimistic in regard to Idaho. He said the best example of the organization's work is that in the northwest and western states, that the lodge has invested in $1,800,000 worth of school bonds in Idaho, while the total school bonds in the entire United States are $1,000,000. Mr. Hoyer stated the local lodge in this district will continue their efforts for new members and that possibly 100,000 more will be added in the next 40 days. "The meeting closed with the grand ball for members and ladies."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Methodist Sunday Alliance society will meet Thursday afternoon in the church parlors at 2:30 with Mrs. Frank Etrot as hostess.

The Parent Teachers' association of the Curry school, which is entering upon the "good health" for the children and their mothers, will be celebrating its third year of serving hot lunches. Supplies, work and food for the hot dish provided are all donated by the association, but equipment is needed for the lunch room and to prepare a fund for this cooked food sale is planned for Saturday at Alvord & Holt's.

The Pythian Sisterhood Social club will meet with Mrs. E. B. Fritcher, 411 Main avenue, west, on Friday afternoon, November 30.

The Baptist Ladies' Aid will hold an all-day meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. O. Ostry on Adams avenue east. The ladies are asked to bring an article of food for the noon luncheon. Also needles and thread, as at the time will be spent in sewing for the "last-minute gift shop."

LIQUOR CASE FAILS FOR LACK OF PROPER PROOF

Find "Booze" Taken to Bail on Kelly Ranch at Hansen Tested Under Legal Possession of Alcohol

The state's case against W. W. Kelly, who with his brother, was arrested at their farm near Hildon recently, for possession of liquor, struck a snag Wednesday when it was shown that the tests of the alleged "booze" failed to show there was less than the legal percentage of alcohol in the fluid.

As a result the warrant was not called by Probate Judge O. P. Duvall, before whom the case was to have been tried, and the matter will probably be dropped as far as the county is concerned. The charge alleged the possession of intoxicating liquor.

The two defendants will probably have greater difficulty in the federal court at Boise, where prohibition agents have filed a case against them charging them with possession of stills and liquor manufacturing materials.

MARY MARIE

By Eleanor H. Porter

Illustrations by G. H. Livingston

"Well, it is to go on. Father got home at four o'clock. I saw him come up the walk, and I walked him in as sure he'd got settled in the library, then I went down."

"He wasn't there. A minute later, I saw him crossing the lawn to the observatory. Well, what to do I didn't know. Mary said to go after him; but Marie said 'no, no,' and in spite of being Mary, she went. I let Marie have her way."

"I had to look at him, then, I just couldn't look anywhere else. So I was looking straight at him when he gave that funny little startled glance into my eyes, and into his eyes then they crept the faintest, dearest little understanding twinkle, and I suddenly realized that Father, Father, was laughing with me at a little secret between us. But I was only for a second. The next moment his eyes were stern and gray, and looking at Aunt Jane."

"I had no 'cause to complain—of my daughter's lessons today," he said very quietly. Then he glanced over at me again. But I had to look away again, or I would have laughed right out.

Oh, I'm so tired of being Mary! And I've got more than four whole months of it left. I didn't get Mother's letter today. Maybe that's why I'm specially loomsome tonight.

School "is done" both the regular schedule and my school. Yet that my school has amounted to much. Really it hasn't. Oh, for three or four days he asked questions like this just a teacher. Then he got to talking sometimes. It would be about—well, it would be the lessons sometimes. It would be about a star, or the moon, and he'd get so interested that he'd think for a minute that maybe the understanding twinkle would come into his eyes again. But he never did.

Sometimes it wasn't stars and moons, though, that he talked about. It was Boston, and Mother. Yes, he did. He talked a lot about Mother. As I look back at it now, I can see that he did. And that was the part, and the folks that came to see her. He asked again about Mr. Harlow, and about the concert, and the young man who played the violin, and what was his name, and how old was he, and did it like him; and then, right in the middle of some question, or rather, right in the middle of some answer I was giving him, he would suddenly remember he was hearing my lesson; and then he would say, 'Come, come, Mary, what has this to do with your lesson?'

Naturally the lesson haven't amounted to much as you can imagine. But the firm was nearly finished, anyway; and my real school is in Boston, of course. It's vacation now. I do hope that will amount to something!

AUGUST FIRST. It hasn't, so far—I mean vacation. Really, what a world of disappointments it's been! How on earth I'm going to stand being Mary for three months more I don't know. But I've got to I suppose. I've been here May, June, and July; and that leaves August, September, and October left to me. And when I think of Mother and Boston and Marie, and the darlings good times down there where you're really wanted, I am simply crazy. If Father wanted me, really wanted me, I wouldn't care a bit. I'd be willing to go for a whole month. I've just been by order of the court, and what can you do when you're a girl—but a daughter by order of the court? Since the lessons have stopped Father's game back to his "Good-morning, Mary," and "Good-night," and nothing else, day in and day out, lately he's got to be hanged around the house an awful lot, too, so I can't cross the thing I did the best of the month. I mean that I'd be playing some of the piano. Some of the first thing about what Aunt Jane was out in the garden a lot, and Father: out to the observatory, or I just raved in, plain playing will be had almost every time—did it that he would look back and see that I'd been with the "observatory" or don't dare to play now. And there isn't a blessed thing to do. Oh, I have to sew an hour; and then Aunt Jane likes to have the library with the "observatory" (that's what she calls it) on the (flicked) daily returned; to have me "reading around" so Aunt Jane had to give that up. Sister's the son person Aunt Jane's afraid of, too—see—she says she'd like to have it, but she doesn't have to be careful. I heard her tell Mrs. Small just today that good bird girls were actually scarce in Idahowhere!

That's all before it. Only there's somebody here, that's what! Ben there! Of course Father doesn't that goes without saying. And Aunt Jane doesn't. That goes too, without saying. Carrie Higwood has gone away for all summer so I can't even see her, and I do without associate with any of the other girls, even if they would associate with me—which they won't. That leaves only Mother's letters. They're deep and I love them, but I don't know what to do without them. And yet sometimes I think maybe they're worse than if I didn't have them. They make me so homesick, and I always cry so after I get them. But, I know, I just couldn't live without them. I wasn't for Mother's life, of course. Besides being so 'long some there's another thing that worries me, too, and that is—the what I'm writing, I mean. The novel? It's getting awful. I'm afraid Mother will not like it. Of course, it was just a story I could make up. I'm not doing anything interesting, things, like having Mother sleep with the violin, and Father about him, and all the love with Mother all over and all, and with somebody else, and about that's over. Or maybe somebody'd try to shoot Father, and I'd get there just in time to save him. Oh, I'd love that!

But this is a real story, of course. I can't put in anything only just what happens; and nothing happens. And that's another thing. About the love story I'm afraid there isn't going to be one. Anyway, there isn't a bit of a start of one, yet, unless it's Mother. And of course, I haven't seen her for three months so I can't say anything about that. Father doesn't like idlers. I don't be doing it. He always runs away from me. But they don't run away from him! Listen. (Continued in Next Issue.)
