

MELLON WOULD STOP LEAKS IN REVENUE LAWS

Secretary of Treasury Hopes to Meet Government's Needs Without Resorting to Additional Taxation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Reduction of the maximum income surtax rate from the present 50 per cent to not more than 25 per cent and the closing up so far as possible of existing avenues of escape from federal taxes are urged by Secretary Mellon in his annual report submitted today to congress. No general revision of the revenue laws is proposed or are additional taxes suggested. Mr. Mellon is expressing the hope of meeting any indicated government deficit through collection of back taxes and income from other sources.

The treasury secretary informs congress that to attempt alone to stop the gaps through which there is an avoidance of tax payments to the government will not be enough because the existing rates of surtax "put such heavy pressure on the larger taxpayers to reduce their taxable incomes" that they will not be forced to do so. He added that the high rates "sound productive," but that the fact remains that they are becoming increasingly ineffective and are yielding less and less revenue each year.

Time to Face Facts

Then bluntly he tells congress the time has come to "face the facts squarely" and to correct the artificial conditions which now prevail and which he asserts are not violative from the point of view of business or industrial development, and, at the same time, are impairing the revenues of the government.

The more important of the methods used by the taxpayers to reduce the amount of income subject to taxation are listed by Mr. Mellon as follows: Deduction of losses on sales of capital assets; with the failure to realize on capital gains.

Exchanges of property and securities so as to avoid taxable gains. Investment in tax-exempt securities; and Division of property, creation of trusts and the like.

"Not all of these things can be controlled by law or regulation," he continued, "and most of them lead to unnatural and frequently harmful economic results. To reach the evil the government has necessary to reduce the surtax rate themselves; in order to reduce the pressure for avoidance and maintain the revenues derived from the tax."

To support his argument that the high surtaxes gradually are "defeating their own purpose," he calls attention to the decline of all net incomes during the period from 1916 to 1920 increased from $6,298,577,620 in 1916 to $23,735,021,183 in 1920, and the number of returns of income over $100,000 decreased during the same period from 1296 in 1919, to 306 in 1920, and the amount of incomes over $100,000 from $99,125,926 in 1919 to $330,821,255 in 1920.

Endanger Economic Structure

In "earnestly urging" prompt adoption of the proposed constitutional amendment against the further issuance of tax proposals and securities, the treasury secretary says these securities, now reaching the market at the rate of about $1,000,000 annually, form the outstanding avenue of escape from the surtaxes.

"This is a situation which cannot be permitted to continue," Mr. Mellon continues, "with without grave damage to our economic structure, as well as our system of taxation."

Sounds Optimistic Note

Aside from his recommendation for tax revision, Mr. Mellon deals in his report with conditions generally over the country and with the operations of the various divisions of the treasury. He sounds an optimistic note as to the business outlook and reports substantial progress both in the reduction of the public debt and in economy in public expenditures.

The past twelve months, he says, have been marked by further liquidation and recovery from depression, and more recently, by a substantial revival of business. Prices for commodities have risen materially, the volume of business has been mounting to higher levels and labor throughout the country is generally employed.

"The year is closing with beautiful crops," the report continues, "and the severe depression in agriculture has been relieved. Sanitary conditions generally are sound, money rates are reasonable, and there is sufficient credit available to meet all the demands."

In the treasury the year has seen a reduction in the gross federal amounting to about $1,000,000,000, a balanced budget for the fiscal year 1922, showing a surplus of over $100,000,000 above expenditures, and substantial progress in the refunding of the short-dated debt, which has now been reduced to manageable proportions. The reports are all helpful, and afford the basis for a revival of business and industry on sound lines."

Disatisfied Wife Calls for Divorce by Parcel Post

Denver Magistrate Receives What Is Believed to Be First Mail Order Request

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 6 (AP)—In Denver to be the first mail-order request for a divorce has been received by Police Magistrate William A. Rice here.

"You got me into this mess, now its up to you" to get me out," reads the petition. It was sent the judge supposedly from Mrs. Anna C. Marullo, who gave her address as an army regiment headquarters, at Millers, Mexico.

Mrs. Marullo, in five closely written pages tells the judge in mixed Spanish and English of the trials that befell her after her marriage by Judge Rice to Emilio Marullo on June 11, 1919. She was taken to Mexico by her husband after varying vicissitudes in this country with him. There he tried to "sell her to another man," and otherwise caused her embarrassment, she says.

"Please send me by next parcel post a divorce in the shortest possible time," is the plea of the writer.

selling too low at the farm and too high at the distributing centers. The secretary also declares that the increase of $1,000,000,000 in the gold holdings in this country since 1910 1920 is a treasure to expand credit and create an unnatural ease of money for purposes of expansion and credit. Then, too, he calls attention that the mercantile trade in Europe has impaired the corrective forces which used to operate in normal times and has so reduced the buying power of foreign countries as to destroy or endanger the foreign markets for many American products.

Cautious Caution

"Enough forces are operating," he continues, "to make us cautious in estimating the prospects for the future and take care lest we build on a false basis. Business in this country cannot progress indefinitely without its foreign markets and undue expansion now with rising costs and artificial values, would inevitably sow the seeds of reaction and make more difficult the re-establishment of normal relationships abroad."

The treasury aims above all to keep its house in order in the belief that a sound financial structure here will in the long run afford the best basis for extending greater assistance to Europe and for a healthier revival of domestic business on a constructive line."

NATION'S SHIPS BIGGER FACTOR IN WORLD TRADE

Fifty-Two Per Cent of Cargo Carried To or From United States During Year Handled in American Vessels

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Growth of United States shipping in foreign trade, establishment of extensive passenger services in the north Atlantic, the Pacific, and to South America, and stabilization of the government's shipping venture on a strictly business basis, are pointed to as the year's outstanding achievements in the sixth annual report of the government's shipping board, which was issued today.

Reviewing at length the functions of the board since its inception to carry forward the nation's tremendous efforts to transport food, troops and supplies overseas during the war, and the various changes in policy incident to the armistice, the report shows that the existing board's functions relate not only to the physical running of ships but range over the entire field of a nation's merchant marine. Labor, port facilities and commerce are discussed in detail.

Fifty Thousand Men Engaged.

Altogether the shipping board has had during its career 2444 ships totaling about 10,000,000 dead weight tons. These were obtained from various sources. Some have been sold, and many are now tied up idle. The report shows that notwithstanding depression in shipping, there were at the close of the fiscal year on June 30, 1922, approximately 50,000 men engaged on vessels of the American merchant marine and a larger number of longshoremen employed in loading and unloading. More than 10,000,000 annually has been saved in the reduction of marine and longshore wages of shipping board vessels alone. Reductions were effected after strikes and negotiations ranging from 18 to 25 per cent.

The policy of the board regarding making wage readjustments is declared in the report to be based wherever possible "upon collective bargaining which has resulted in bringing as far as possible the discontent and resentment which usually follow wage reductions."

During the last fiscal year, the report says, there were 37,321 arrivals and departures of vessels engaged in foreign trade aggregating 80,231,000 long tons of cargo. Of this total 63 per cent moved in American bottoms in relative efficiency indicated by the relation of load to dead weight tonnage the American percentage was 37.9 per cent compared with 35.4 per cent for other nations. While American ships used 2.82 dead weight tons to move each ton of cargo, foreign vessels used 2.74.

Occasionally, the board said, which had been encountered in the board's effort to dispose of its idle tonnage, the report says it found that no one was willing to buy at a fair price, under present conditions. At the close of the fiscal year, the effort to find buyers was continuing, but the board still had for sale 1050 vessels, totaling 10,800,372 dead weight tons. Of these 2550 were steel cargo ships and 255 were wooden cargo ships, while the remainder were of various steel, wooden, composite and concrete types.

Sales Prospects Unfavorable.

"The immediate prospect is not favorable to the early disposal of the fleet," the report declares. "First and foremost comes the necessity for legislation. Even with this legislation the transfer of the fleet to private hands, the building up of the American merchant marine, must be a slow process. Perhaps one of the most favorable factors that will help in the gradual working out of the problem is the fact that a large percentage of the world's tonnage is now over 35 years of age, and it is to be accomplished as part of the cost of maintaining the highest classification becomes so serious a factor in operation as to influence operators of merchant ships to rather than to pay the heavy cost of keeping up older vessels. While a much greater percentage of foreign tonnage is approaching the age when it will be desirable to replace it with new tonnage, this is true in the case of American vessels, the difficulties of the present situation are largely caused by an excess of world tonnage and any absorption, whether in this market or in foreign markets, tends to remove this excess and establish higher values for all vessels."

A summary of the amount of commerce done in American bottoms during the year showed that shipping board vessels handled 4,315,513 cargo tons of imports and 5,654,531 cargo tons of exports operating through 43 United States ports. The total tonnage of the American merchant marine was fixed at 27,784,989 dead weight tons, compared to 27,147,450 of year ago. Of this total 10,275,371 tons was employed at the end of the 1922 fiscal year in foreign trade, compared with 10,819,948 at the end of the previous 12-month period.

TRESH OUT MANY VIEWS ON PROJECT

(Continued from Page One) that the government would go ahead and build the project on its own finances and sell water. C. E. McGinn, Twin Falls, objected because of the circumstances surrounding the vote, to permitting the reason to be made public as the sentiment of the entire meeting. "We don't want any more reclamation in Idaho until the reclamation that we have has made good," Mrs. White declared in the course of her argument against the district plan. "More water will not reduce our freight rates, lower our interest charges or solve our marketing problems." On the grounds that Twin Falls landowners cannot afford to participate in the undertaking; that the Twin Falls canal system would lose its identity and become Idaho water rights, and become liable for payment of bonds of other participating units in the event of their failure to pay their share of the obligation, Mrs. White summarized her objections to the proposition. Mrs. White returned also to possibility of agricultural drainage profits by making more water available. Take Long View In rebuttal, Mr. Banks, who in his principal statement had outlined the history of the project, pointed out that estimates of the cost of the project limited the expense to Twin Falls district approximately $10,000,000 for 20 years with an additional provision for extension of the time for another 20 years period. "I had conditions in this country are not so bad that such an obligation could not be paid off in 40 years' time."

Oregon, which have paid in much more and received much less, view federal reclamation operations in Idaho with jealous eyes. The Idaho delegation in congress he said, has but as its strongest and only argument for obtaining repeated appropriations for the American Falls project, the fact that the Idaho club are going to contribute the money necessary to pay for their share in the benefit.

Diminishing Appropriations It was pointed out that the appropriation for the American Falls Falls project in 1921 was $1,000,000; in 1922 $500,000; and for 1923 the budget recommends $500,000, but that appropriations were not available until "allotted to the job."

Participants in the general discussion included C. E. McGinn, A. L. Swin, Herschel Bonner, Walter Hanlon, G. W. Rice and D. J. Koenig of Hansen.

Mr. Koenig, announcing that he had a conference to make, said that he believed additional water was desirable and necessary, but that he entertained grave doubts as to the advisability of entering into the district organization.

Lord Curzon, who lengthily explained the details of the plan in address before the conference, said that the international commission of control would have a Turkish permanent president. The United States would be a member, and suggested that whereby the commission will be constituted and whether it will work under the league of nations, has not yet been decided.

Elimination of the amendment was immediately opposed by a group of republican committee members composed of Senator McNary of Oregon, Governor of Wisconsin and Willis of Ohio, who announced their intention of fighting in the committee and in the senate for some provision giving constructive measure of control over a fund from which sailing companies may be extended loans amounting annually to as much as thirty million dollars.

"We are not trying to force anything on you that you don't want," Mr. Dibble said, "but we have been led to believe through the demand of your representatives at Idaho Falls in 1919 and other representatives that you would want additional water supply."

Elaborating on his statement in connection with the attitude of Mr. Dibble stated that reclamation service funds are derived largely from money derived from sale of public lands, and that there has been expended in Idaho approximately $10,000,000 of these and one-half times the amount derived from the sale of public lands in this state. BOUND OPTIMISM

In his decision to recommend no general revision of revenue laws or additional tax levies, and purpose to provide funds for the requirements of the federal government by closing leaks in existing laws and collecting delinquent taxes, Secretary Mellon has struck a popular chord. Its effect on the stock market was immediate, and values that have been wavering for weeks, strengthened and started upward with a bound.

It is gratifying to everyone to know that taxes are not to be increased, and the Treasury secretary has not only given that assurance, but in his summary of financial and economic conditions, he points out a recovery from depression and "substantial revival of business" that is highly encouraging.

There is general agreement on the proposition that ability to pay any taxes at all is more important than that tax levies merely should be held to the absolute minimum, and the secretary's assurance as to the country's growing ability to pay along with his purpose to add no new tax levies, affords double grounds for satisfaction.

MARY MARIE

By Eleanor H. Porter

Illustrations by R. H. Livingston

I talked very fast and hurriedly, I was afraid he'd interrupt, and I wanted to get it all out before he did. But he didn't interrupt at all. He did not even stir, until I said how at the first she bought me the homely shoes and the plain dark suit so I could go as Mary, and be Mary when Aunt Jane first saw me get off the train.

When I said that, he dropped his hand and turned around and stared at me. And there was such a funny look in his eyes. Then he got up and began to walk up and down the piazza, muttering: "So you came as Mary, you came as Mary." Then after a minute he gave a funny little laugh and sat down.

Mrs. Small came up the front walk then to see Cousin Grace, and the father told her to go right into the library where Cousin Grace was. So we were left alone again, as at a picnic. It was "most dark on the piazza, but I could see Father's face in the light from the window; and it looked—well, I'd never seen it look like that before. It was as if something that had been done for years had dropped off and left it clear where before it had been blurred and indistinct. No, that doesn't exactly describe it either. I can't describe it. But I'll go on and say what he said.

After Mrs. Small had gone into the house, and he saw that she was sitting down with Cousin Grace in the library, he turned to me and said: "And so you came as Mary?"

I said yes, I did.

"Well, —I got ready for Marie."
But then I didn't quite understand; not even when I looked at him and saw the old understanding twinkle in his eyes.

"You mean—you thought I was coming as Marie, of course," I said then.
"Yes, the matter."
"But I came as Mary."
"I see now that you did. Well, Mary, you've told me your story, so I suppose I may as well tell you mine—now. You see, I not only got ready for Marie, but I had Cousin Grace to help Marie, and not her to help me—Mary—"

And then he told me. He told me how he'd never forgotten that day in the parlor when I cried and he saw then how hard I wanted to get to him, with him so absorbed in his work and Aunt Jane so stern in her black dress. And he said I put it very vividly when I talked about being Marie in Boston, and Marie here, and that the white Marie was trying to be Marie, and not her to help me—Marie, and not her to help me—Mary—"

And then he told me. He told me how he'd never forgotten that day in the parlor when I cried and he saw then how hard I wanted to get to him, with him so absorbed in his work and Aunt Jane so stern in her black dress. And he said I put it very vividly when I talked about being Marie in Boston, and Marie here, and that the white Marie was trying to be Marie, and not her to help me—Marie, and not her to help me—Mary—"

"And to think after all my preparation for Marie, you should be Mary already, when you came," he finished. Father had covered his eyes with his hand, as if thinking and thinking, just as hard as he could. And I suppose it did seem queer to him, that he should be trying to make me Marie, and that the white Marie was trying to make me Mary. And it seemed so to me, as I began to think it over.

"And so your mother—did that," Father muttered; and there was the queer little catch in his breath again. He didn't say any more; not a single word. And after a minute he got up and went into the house. But he didn't go into the library where Mrs. Small and Cousin Grace were talking. He went straight upstairs to his own room and shut the door. I heard it. And he was still there when I went up to bed afterward.

How do you suppose Mother's going to feel when I tell her that after all her pains Father didn't like it at all. He wanted me to be Marie. It's a shame he had covered his eyes with his hand. I won't write it to her, anyway. Maybe I won't have to tell her, unless she asks me.

But I know it. And, pray, 'at an end of course, I can do, like Marie here all right, that is what folk want. But I can't wear Marie, for I haven't a single Marie thing here. Oh, dear, me! Why couldn't Father and Mother have been the common live-happy-ever-after kind, or else found out before they married that they were unlike!"

Why the Moon is Arid.
The moon is a smaller globe than the earth. Its gravity is only one-sixth of that of ours. As a consequence the atmospheric pressure near the moon is far too low to condense water. Steam issuing from a vent remains steam. The internal forces of the steam's molecules are greater than the attractive force of the moon's steam away as it escapes, leaving the moon arid and waterless.

The Woman lived in an apartment hotel not 25 long ago. She shared a table in the dining-room with a young South American student who found our northern ways very foreign and strange. On Easter Sunday, the Woman, wishing to relieve the student's loneliness, invited him to church, where she knew he would enjoy the good sermon and special music.
After the service she asked, "Did you enjoy the music?" He replied, "Madame, it was beautiful. I was completely captivated." —Chicago

As long as they remain small or moderately successful their responsibilities are small. To succeed in a really large way they must assume new and bigger responsibilities.
