

BORAH FAVORS CONFERENCE ON WORLD'SILLS

Idaho Senator Covers Wide Scope of International Affairs in Proposal Offered as Amendment to Naval Bill

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Extensive discussion of international affairs is expected to develop in the senate as soon as a proposal offered by Senator Frank Borah, Idaho, for an international conference to settle economic, financial and business problems, including German reparations, as well as reduction of land, sea and aerial armaments.

Senator Borah offered his plan as an amendment to the $350,000,000 naval appropriation bill, which was reported to the senate today for preliminary consideration tomorrow. He proposed that the president be asked to call an international conference to settle permanent armaments instead of a conference merely to deal with limitations of naval vessels under 10,000 tons and military and naval aircraft, as provided in the bill as passed by the house.

Calls for Immediate Action.

In offering his amendment as a substitute for the house provision, Senator Borah declared world economic conditions require immediate action and that the house's action in this matter be authorized and requested "to such governments to send representatives to the conference as it should deem necessary and expedient with the object of arriving at understandings or agreements among them to reduce the effect of trade and establish principles of trade and establishment of financial and business conditions."

With reference to armaments, the Borah amendment includes the house bill's provisions as to naval vessels under 10,000 tons and aircraft, and its provision for consideration of land and sea armaments.

Senate leaders do not expect the Borah proposal nor the house provision to be reached during tomorrow's consideration of the bill. These, and an amendment by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, calling for a last-minute armament conference, which is pending, were expected to go over until after the Christmas holidays.

Causes General Surprise.

Senator Borah's amendment caused general surprise, especially in view of his strong position in the past in reference to American participation in the League of Nations. He was one of the strongest opponents of the league of nations and treaty of Versailles, but in his statement today he made it clear that he believed action was needed to solve present economic problems affecting the United States. German reparations, he said, were "the key to the European situation," and he thought his proposed conference might "break the deadlock on that subject."

"We are training in a vicious circle," Senator Borah declared. "We enacted an emergency and also a permanent tariff bill. Nevertheless, the army of distress from the producers of the country is even more pitiful than at any time since the war. The farmers can't sell their surplus products and without a market for his surplus products, it is impossible for him to realize the value of that which he produces."

"We now propose to enact a ship subsidy bill, then there is no cargo market for us to export to Europe. If we should give out millions in the way of subsidies, it would not open a single market nor supply a single cargo. These things are not produced by subsidies. There are millions of shipping tonnage which do not appear. Markets are opened and cargoes are produced by men going back to work and settling down to business, not by imposing more taxes in the way of subsidies."

"We had a disarmament conference a year ago. We are now advised by a committee report of the other house that unless field experiments heretofore made are extended, competition in naval armaments will go on again in the future. The January 1st, 1923, conference agreements do not extend. The committee further says that if it be allowed to go on unchecked, this government must be constrained to launch a new program to keep abreast of other powers. There could not be another war, but the development of a re-opening of a competitive race in armaments."

VAST HERDS GRAZED ON NATIONAL FOREST RANGE

MEET Two Million Cattle and Seven Million Sheep Find Range on Reserve During Year Past

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—About 54 per cent. of all sheep and 22 per cent. of all cattle in the eleven forest states are grazed at least a part of the year on national forests.

Nearly two million cattle and seven million sheep, the statement continues, found forage during 1921 on the national forest range, which totals 75,000 acres, 2,000 acres and 44,000 acres, all over 37,000 grazing permits were issued during the past year.

The demand for national forest range now fully equals and in many places overtaxes the capacity of the range, the statement adds. Increased demand, improved and more extensive ranges, and secure utilization of new areas, a large amount of improvement work must be undertaken by the government. It is estimated that $9,000,000 will be necessary, fully to insure the continued use of the range.

Projects have already been surveyed on which construction can begin immediately, involving an expenditure of over $170,000. These projects consist of boundary fences to prevent the spread of range animals, dividing the range more adequately, the distribution and movement of stock, water developments and poisonous plant eradication. Such improvements as these are essential to the most effective range management and to providing for stable occupancy.

Maple Sugar Long Known.

In the days of Napoleon's wars maple sugar had been made for some time in Bohemia; the government encouraging its manufacture. However, it soon died out there, for the sugar beet came into prominence. The earliest explorers in America found the Indians making sugar from the sap of the huge maple trees that stood in companies and brigades in the ancient forests and nobody can tell when they began it.

Making Desperate Changes.

It is true that many contract seafarers cold and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment; and a knowledge of this fact lends others to take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold is not the same. The human vitality makes the system fast able to withstand each succeeding attack and leaves the way for the more serious disease. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's "Cough Remedy," famous for its cures of colds may be had for a trifling sum?

A year ago—We are now advised by a committee report of the other house that unless field experiments heretofore made are extended, competition in naval armaments will go on again in the future. The January 1st, 1923, conference agreements do not extend. The committee further says that if it be allowed to go on unchecked, this government must be constrained to launch a new program to keep abreast of other powers. There could not be another war, but the development of a re-opening of a competitive race in armaments."

Eighteen Graduates or Former Students to Take Up Duties of Elective Offices in State UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Dec. 21.—Eighteen graduates or former students of the University of Idaho will take up duties of elective offices in state or county when the newly-elected officials are sworn in.

Idaho has 18 members of congress, who remain in a hospital to be made happy. Christmas day, has been issued to every post of the National American Veterans Association. It was signed by G. Hammond, Cool national commander.

Commander Cook urged that every post make arrangements to visit their bedridden buddies and give them "a chance to talk over old times." Chap- ter men were urged to spend a part of their funds for the benefit of the veterans.

Chapter auxiliaries were requested to co-operate.

In centers where many disabled soldiers are quartered, arrangements are being made to provide special entertain- ment programs.

FRENCHMEN FOREGO DUEL

TROUBLE Between Minister of Colonies and Former President is Arranged Without Resort to Arms

BURTON L. French, who has served in the fifty-eighth, fifty-ninth, sixtieth, sixty-first, sixty-second, "sixty-third, fifty-fifth, sixty-sixth and sixty-seventh congresses, was granted a leave of absence in 1901. He received his master's degree in philosophy from the University of Chicago in 1903, and the honorary degree of doctor of laws from his alma mater in 1921.

William E. Lee, newly elected to the state senate from the 11th district, graduated from the university in 1902. He served as a clerk in the house and senate at Washington, D. C., and as secretary to Congressman French, and was graduated from the National University of Ireland in 1904.

James Cawelti, re-elected state senator, graduated from the school of mines in 1907, and has been engaged in mining engineering practices in Blaine county. Both he and Congressman French have served as members of the state legislature.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hansen, who became state superintendent of public instruction, has had long experience as a teacher in the schools of Idaho, and other states. She completed her college work in the summer school at the university in 1907, and taught in the public schools of Idaho for ten years.

Frederick H. Bohberg, re-elected state senator from Lewis county, received his degree from the law school of the university in 1912.

Lloyd A. Fens, re-elected state representative from Idaho county, was graduated from the University of Idaho in 1911.

Donald S. Whishard, representative from Ada county, received the degree of bachelor of science from the university in 1907.

John C. Johnson, state representative from Latah county, was a preparatory student at the university in the early days, a member of the class of 1900, for which he had accompanied the military.

The cross examinations by the defense have been brief and apparently designed to bear out the contention that the miners had been induced to fight in the mine by their employer and induce the miners for the purpose of having state troops called out to protect the pits, that the guards in the mines were armed and that they disregarded warning that the operation of the mine would be discontinued. In addition, the defense maintained, attorneys for the defense repeatedly referred to the non-union workers in the mine and the guards as "scabs," "gun men," "private detectives" and "spies."

Probate Judge Adrian P. Nelson of Latah county, a graduate of the university in 1897, County Surveyor Victor Pearson of Latah county, in 1919; and County Surveyor Clinton F. Bosses of Benewah county, in 1912.

Frank E. Gaffey, county assessor of Charbon county, and John A. Taylor, representing attorney of Madison county, and J. G. Martin, prosecuting attorney for Butte county, also were University of Idaho students.

Probate Judge Adrian P. Nelson of Latah county, a graduate of the university in 1897, County Surveyor Victor Pearson of Latah county, in 1919; and County Surveyor Clinton F. Bosses of Benewah county, in 1912.

Alfred C. Jones, state auditor of Clearwater county, was a former student of the university.

KELLER CHARGE INVESTIGATION IS COMPLETED

Attorney General Daugherty, whose impeachment is sought, sends subordinates to testify at final session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Wind up its public hearings on the Keller charges against Attorney General Daugherty, the house judiciary committee voted today to meet on January 4 to reach its formal decision and begin preparation of its report to the house. It was regarded as practically certain that the committee would hold that there had been no evidence upon which impeachment proceedings could be based.

The public sessions today were taken up with the examination of officials and employees of the department of justice and with a number of the charges made against the attorney general by Representative Keller, republican Minnesotan. In announcing the conclusion of the case for the attorney general, Paul Hawley, his personal counsel, said: "Mr. Daugherty has preferred to remain here and have nothing to do with these matters and produced all of the documents that have been asked for."

Mr. Hawley announced he would like to make a brief statement before the committee adjourned, but was not given time, but the committee showed no disposition to hear him and the proceedings were ended.

Aides from its report on the impeachment charges, the committee has yet to decide what action it may be under oath as to the information upon which he based his allegations against Mr. Daugherty. The question has been referred to a sub-committee which has been formed, but no call has been issued for a meeting of the sub-committee.

Million Starving Children Find Uncle Ara Best Friend

1,000,000 children in the A. R. A. kitchens—the Joint Distribution Committee is supplying food to practically all the children's homes in America, and a number of hospitals in the Ukraine and White Russia. The feeding work is carried on along purely non-sectarian lines. The Committee has fed about 2,000,000 persons daily.

Even casual observers in South Russia are convinced that the Russians say that it was not for the work of the Committee thousands would have died of starvation. When one of its representatives entered a town, the children all stopped to eat the food and then cry "Uncle Ara! Uncle Ara!" for his presence generally means food. And that is the proof that millions of the Russian people need more than anything else this winter.

Herbert Hoover, Pres., Kitchen No. 1.

In the Ukraine and White Russia, especially, there is always a line of children waiting "Supper with Uncle Ara." The Joint Distribution Committee's "White" organization has already contributed close to $4,000,000 to the work in Russia of the A. R. A. of which it is an integral part.

Manufacturers Are Told Today Must Reduce Production Costs or Sacrifice Foreign Markets

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Japanese manufacturers have been warned that unless they alter their methods and reduce cost of production they will lose their foreign trade. Mr. Akihama of the commercial and industrial bureau of Tokyo, in his report, pointed out that wages are very low and that for this reason Japanese goods are being forced out by Chinese manufacturers which are, he says, just as good as Japanese.

He also declared that in the next few months China would greatly increase Japanese merchandise and that unless Japan is to lose these markets entirely production costs must be reduced in this country.

NORTH DAKOTA COUNTING COST

Economy is First Consideration of Legislature Wrested from Nonpartisan League Control

BISMARCK, N. D. Dec. 21 (AP)—Financial and public welfare problems, and others having to do with political considerations, will face the North Dakota legislature when it convenes here January 3.

For the first time in three regular sessions and two special sessions, it will not be controlled by the Nonpartisan League, a small majority in both houses and state-wide members of the Independent Voters' association, a coalition of progressive groups.

Questions of economy will be the first to come before the legislative session. State taxes have increased $16,000,000 since 1916, largely through increases in road and school taxation.

Approximately 22 percent of the state's acreage will be considered.

North Dakota has an average of a bank and a half per thousand population. The present law discourages consolidation of banks and as yet that will permit no bank over without calling a legislative session to be established.

Legislation also is expected looking toward the closing of the Industrial Experiments of the League that have proved unprofitable. The league closed the experiment station at Werner and stopped its building experiments. Most of these industrial experiments were adopted as inflated measures. Increase in the power of the farm loan department and provision for the operation of the state-owned mill at Grand Forks, were other items of legislation.

One mile of the state is racing the complete operation of which the independent administration pledged "an honest effort to determine if it is a successful experiment."

Other legislation includes bills regarding children and the re-enacting of health laws of the state to meet present needs are the chief legislative measures to be acted upon. A children's code commission has been at work for two years and the bill will be introduced.

A bill to establish a state board of health has been introduced.

NATIONAL FORESTS BRING LARGE INCOME TO PUBLIC

Use of Timber and Forests and Land Banking Waterpower, Etc., Returns More Than $50,000,000 in Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—Revenue amounting to $5,000,357.42 was paid into the United States treasury from the national forests, says the forest products division of the bureau of public lands today. Receipts for the last quarter were far in excess of those for any preceding quarter in the administration of the national forests, excepting in 1920.

Income-producing business on the national forests is now considerable, in view of the denuded and cleared areas, the timber and live stock industries of the west, which afford the principal market for national forest products. The abnormally low output of western forests is due to the fact that the last quarter of the fiscal year 1920, but for that quarter they exceeded $60,000,000 and for the entire year they totaled $1,760,247.24, and were almost identical with those of 1921.

Approximately 22 percent of the state's acreage is covered by forests, and 53 percent of the sheep in the 11 western states are grazed upon national forest ranges during part or all of the year. The grazing business of the forests consequently reflects directly the condition of the stock industry of the west, which has been passing through one of the most severe financial depressions of its history.

Twenty-five per cent of the national forest receipts are given to counties in which they lie, to be used for schools and roads.

Length of Meter Differ.

How many people know that the legal length of the meter in the United States is different from its legal length in England? Such, however, is the case. In America it is 30.07 inches; in England, 30.0700112. Of course, the difference is not large in itself, but still when computing great distances it might become considerable. In this day of accurate research, a thousandth, ten-thousandth, or millionth of an inch is ordinarily considered by no means negligible.

PARIS STUDIES AMERICAN PLAN OF REPARATION

Fate of Proposal for Solution of German, Indemnity Problem Proposed by United States Hinges on France

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (AP)—A plan under which an American commission would determine how much Germany should be required to pay the allies in reparations has emerged from the effort to find a way for extending America's aid toward solution of the economic trouble of Europe.

Although discussions of the proposal thus far have been kept outside the formal channels of diplomacy, the exchange of views has developed a thorough understanding in the diplomatic circles that the United States and Britain and Germany are willing to assist to the creation of such a commission.

The plan now is before Premier Poincaré of France, and he is expected to make a decision after conference with industrial leaders of his own country and of Germany. It is anticipated that it will be communicated later to all the nations interested in reparations payments.

Officials of the Washington government today refused to discuss the plan for an American commission. Secretary Hughes, however, issued a statement saying that "the government" had "nothing but a proposal" on the subject.

Working Behind Scenes

The procedure by which all of those directly interested are soundly out before any definite "proposal" is submitted with government authority, behind it is the usual method employed in international diplomacy.

Secretary Hughes' statement follows an action made a few days ago by a White House spokesman, who said, in discussing the American attitude toward Europe, that it would not be proper to display on stage all that was taken up in secret conference.

The plan for an American commission first was disclosed early today in an Associated Press dispatch from London, where the proposal has been actively under discussion. The dispatch concluded with the statement that "the United States, with some fine laid, laid the suggestion before Secretary Hughes and it was learned here today that much of the actual discussion which has taken place since that time has been conducted on behalf of American industry by officials of the chamber.

Yumkin Vimby.
Ole Olson wanted to be a railroad man. So he signed up and took a roundabout course. His former had been trained in the "Jim" Hill school; he allowed no waste. He obstinately kept dinghing at "Ole" like this: "Don't waste a drop of oil; Ole oil costs money." And don't waste the waste; either: it's getting mighty expensive." Ole finally got these economy facts pounded into his head. One day Ole was promoted to fireman. The day before he went on his first run he was posted to his duties through a series of questions. This was the last question: "Now, Ole, suppose you are on your engine; you go around a curve and see rushin' toward you-on a single track the fast passenger train. What would you do?" Ole replied: "I grab the dam oil can; I grab the dam waste-and I jump!"—Buffalo Courier.

Recognition of Chrysanthemum.
It was early in the Nineteenth century that the chrysanthemum began to attract attention in England, although it had been introduced some years before. Of a sudden it gained immense favor. One writer of the day said: "Like the roses of China, the chrysanthemum has escaped from the conservatories of the curious and is rapidly spreading themselves over every part of the island, filling the windows of the cottages and the parterres of the opulent with their unusually beauties, that now vie with the China aster in variety of color and glory."

CHRISTMAS GREETING

Check these figures forward and back and see what you make of them by way of food for Christmas reflection:

There are eleven banks in Twin Falls County.

Information obtained from ten of them and compiled by Guy Bradley, cashier of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Company, goes to show that the aggregate deposits of these ten banks on December first amounted to $906,083 in excess of the deposits for the corresponding date of a year ago.

During the same period loans to customers have been paid off to the extent of $716,480 and the amount of money borrowed by the banks from the Federal Reserve Banks and in other sources has been reduced to an amount of $757,457 below the total of such borrowed money as of December first a year ago.

This is not purely a bank gain.

It is a gain or evidence of improvement in which the entire countryside shares and the benefits of such improvement permeate every strata of our whole social and business fabric.

There is just one reason to be drawn from these figures, namely, that in a financial sense the Twin Falls country is rapidly approaching the normal.

The figures show a reduction of liabilities on the part of bank customers, primarily, added to which they show an increase in deposits which should be added to the former item in order to constitute a true reflection of the actual progress during the year.

The Twin Falls Country as a whole has improved its financial condition during the year ending December first to an extent which would not have been possible last summer—and there is Christmas cheer for all of us in the fact.

"BEARD"

A book, probably so called by reason of the amount required in the cosine of the writer to bring him to the point where he was willing to write it, at least that is the initial impression of the editor of The News.

Brad is a story of married life, of divorced life, of single life and of prostitution. A sort of cross section of the commonplace, with neither humor nor pathos; an intimate study of matters which in real life might be subjects of gossip but never of conversation. Without an uplifting thought in all its waste of pages and not even a pretense of a plot.

Books there are which are largely without plot and which depend for their success upon the fitness of their character delineations, the excellence of their studies of human nature and human motives and human complexities generally. There are still others which appeal by reason of the informative and edifying quality of the subject matter and yet another class in which plot situation is dependent upon the fall effect.

And all of these base their claim to attention upon their appeal, in some form or other to "normal men and women."

"Brad's" is well calculated to set up in the mind of the reader a reasonable excuse for immorality. It takes the world of life, dissects it in infinite detail and strives in vain to make it interesting. It excuses none of the evils of life but it pretends to build literature about the mass, the potty and the contemptible in human nature and throws the whole stinking bundle with a leer at the feet of a banal and a few people."

To many persons "Brad's" will have a very real appeal. To those who have formed the habit of permitting their thoughts to grovel in the mire, or who find justification in the sorry record for half formed theories or real convictions tucked away in the backs of their own minds. Those, with that large percentage of persons who read books out of curiosity or on the theory that it's better to read than to do nothing, will constitute about the only element to which "Brad's" will be other than a thing of which to be ashamed.

Is it the war? We are inclined to believe—Lecturers deliver addresses in which they strip bare and lay around them the intimacies and privacies of existence. Nothing is left to instinct or common sense. No delusion from the cradle to the grave is spared.

Artists with words fashion strange structures and invite the world to dwell therein. The things which made literature great in past ages are relegated to the literary scrap heap. The unmentionable, the bizarre and the utterly vile vie with each other in the pulling power of the "Brad's" type of novel.

Has "Brad's" a place in literature? It has. It should be relegated to the very center of the literary manna pile.

It is to be regretted that Will Hayes has seen fit to revoke his order barring the exhibition of films containing pictures of Movieland's king of beasts.

If every single actor or actress in the picture business should be suddenly killed off or otherwise obliterated from the picture making industry, still there should be no place in any decent theatre for such a man. Up to the time of Hayes' action no reputable newspaper has so much as printed his name since the conclusion of the last of his trials. It's a pity to disturb the arrangement.

THE DOCTOR'S LAMENT
Last night when others were at rest I rode about and did my best To save some patients called by fate From travel'ing through the Golden Gate.

The man who got the news, I spied, I thought they must be bad, I said, "Two Friends Injured in a Wreck," "Men Fall, Santa Fe Broken Neck," "Two Drown while Rocking a Cannon," Grade Crossing Murders Twenty two,"

"Two Killed by Falling Aeroplane," "Two Shot in Mouth, New Mexico," "Gas Blast Takes Lives of Twenty three."

"Two Die 'Neath Falling Apple Tree."

"Two Lyrical in Riot in the South," "A Man Dies in Death Draft," All night I toiled to earn one life, And millions die in useless strife.

What can it help to make one well, While thousands hearken to death's knell?

What boot my little recompense? Why can't the world have common sense?"

—Journal of American Medical Assn.

THINGS WORTH WHILE
Don't ask "Has the world been a friend to me?"

But "Have I to the world been true?"

Tis not what you get, but what you give.

That makes life worth while to you;

The kind of word spoken to the little chid.

As you wiped its tears away,

And the smile you brought to some care-worn face,

That really lights your day.

Tis the hand you clasp with an honest grasp,

That gives you a hearty thrill;

Tis the good you pour into other lives.

That comes back your own to fill.

Tis the drops you drain from another's cup,

That makes your own seem sweet;

And the hours you give to your breath or man,

That makes your life complete.

Tis the burdens you help another bear,

That makes your own seem light;

Tis the danger seen for another's feet.

That shows you the path to right;

Tis the good you do to each passing day;

With a heart sincere and true;

Then throw the world your very best;

Its best will return to you.

Explaining the "Matchmaker."

It is the natural instinct that makes every woman a matchmaker. She works blindly toward the baby. If she doesn't have one directly, she will have it indirectly. The sorrest of old maid's is thus doomed to have a hand in the perpetuation of the race.
