LOUISIANA'S CRIME NEAR NEXT PHASE

Arrest of Others on Charges of Murder in Connection with Deaths of Alleged Victims of Hooded Band Indicated

RASTROFF, La., Dec. 25 (AP)—The possibility that the next chapter in the Morozone kidnaping investigations would be written soon in Rastroff, Louisiana, was indicated today.

Attorney General Cocco's announcement in Marksville, La., where he is spending Christmas, that the state expects to arrest at least two more persons charged with murder in connection with the deaths of West Daniel and Thomas Richards, is expected to be followed in the Mer Rouge community.

Reinforcements Suspected. It is believed that many of the men the state suspects as ringleaders of the August, white-robed and masked mob will be arrested within a few days. January 6, the date set for the open hearing here. Developments at the hearing may bring about the arrest of others. Federal agents have declared they have the names of 20 members of the mob.

The state believes T. J. Burnett, guilty of the murder charge upon which he was arrested Saturday, is the attorney general declared today in speaking of the long suspect held in the jail at Ruston. "We further believe we have the evidence upon which to convict those we arrest," he added.

The state forces penetrating into the mystery and the populace of Morozone believe that the influence of the Christmas spirit.

The governor dispensed with the traditional Christmas dinner and his aged mother and relatives at New Orleans to remain at his post.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (AP)—The Workers Party of America today adopted a platform for 1923 at the second session of its national convention, which it declared was for the purpose of uniting American labor into a mass movement against capital. The platform says: "The workers party declares its support of itself immediately and actively to be in the unions a revolutionary purpose and to unite them in a mass movement of the workers against capitalist exploitation. The work of transforming the labor unions must be carried on inside the existing unions. The workers party declares its support of the 2nd international and adopts as its program for the struggle within the unions the thesis of the red labor international on the American labor unions."

A resolution calling for open affiliation with the third international which had been submitted to the convention, was withdrawn by C. E. Buseben, secretary, after a discussion on the subject. The sentiment was about equally divided.

MAD MAN SLAYS FOUR IN FAMILY

Seattle Boatman Kills Sisters and Brother of Girl who Rejected His Advances

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 25 (AP)—Rejection of the advances last spring by Helen Engel, 16-year old girl, is believed to have caused Emil Neuriter, 40, a ferryboat proprietor, that he entered her home Saturday and turned Christmas joy into tragedy by killing her two sisters and one of her brothers and then ending his own life. Neuriter, when he came into the house asked for Helen.

Helen said that Neuriter attempted to shoot her when she repelled him last spring. Neuriter took three pistols and five pocket-knives to the scene. Neuriter, according to the coroner, hid himself in the woodshed at the Engel home, waiting until D. C. Engel, father, came out of the house. Neuriter then distributed gifts. Engel said that Neuriter pointed two pistols at him and ordered him to sit down. Neuriter told Engel to lock all doors.

"Get Helen for me," Neuriter is alleged to have shouted, with the pistols in his hand. "I will kill you all."

Neuriter, 17, sister of Helen, sought to wrest the pistol from Neuriter. A bullet tore through her uplifted arm and into her heart.

BANKER HAS PLAN TO AID OLD WORLD

Otto H. Kahn Favors Cancellation of Part of War Debt and Points Out Advantages to Be Gained

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (AP)—Otto H. Kahn, banker, in a letter to Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, member of the debt refunding commission, made public today by the committee of American bankers, has said "the plan whereby he believes American can consistently aid toward relieving the European situation and at the same time meet the chief want of the country, which would be opposed to the cancellation of the allied indebtedness to the United States."

Mr. Kahn expressed himself as being strongly in favor of the plan which would cancel a part of the indebtedness of the allied nations.

"I am convinced that it would be our ultimate advantage to do so," he wrote. "I feel sure that such action would turn out a good investment."

He suggested that "if public opinion and congress will not at present consent to the relinquishment on our part of a portion of the allied war debt," he continued, "which relinquishment, he understood, is suggested only in return for, and simultaneously with, measures on the part of the European nations to bring about their change of mental and moral attitude and actual condition which are indispensable if the world again is to be an even keel when we begin to suggest the following:

"Of the two- and three-quarter billion dollars, or thereabouts, which our government loaned to the allied nations for the war effort, that portion at least which was not applied to the settlement of war contracts here, or is offset by valid counter claims, is indefinitely distinguishable from the balance of the allied debt to us. It should be promptly put in the way of repayment with a reasonable rate of interest, say 4 per cent, and an annual sinking fund of one per cent, beginning after two years. The refunding commission ought to be empowered, according to its judgment, to postpone the beginning of interest payment likewise for five years."

World Sees Remotest. "As to the remaining seven and a quarter billion dollars, or thereabouts, which were loaned to the allied nations for the same purpose to every country. The refunding commission should go thoroughly into the economic and financial conditions of the allied countries concerned and make a fair and final settlement, subject to the approval of congress."

"Extension of the moratorium in Germany for several years, conditional upon an adequately secured bankers' loan to stabilize the mark, to balance the current German budget and to permit France to reconstruct this year."

The prompt withdrawal of the barbarous or semi-barbarous Mohammedan troops from the Balkans and progressive withdrawal of other troops as the terms of the moratorium and reparations agreement are fulfilled by Germany."

"More important to the rehabilitation of Europe than any conference, than any agreement between statesmen and financiers can be," he added, "is the exercising of the spirit of hate which animates governments and peoples. Unless the peoples are moved by a Christian will to peace through the Christian church, there can be no real peace in Europe."

OUTLOOK IN INDUSTRIES FOR WINTER IS BRIGHT

Building Operations Throughout Country Holding Almost Unprecedented Pace—Automobile Factories Running 100 Per Cent—Steel Trade Expanding—Department of Labor Sees Continued Demand for All Kinds of Workers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—The employment situation is encouraging and prospects are bright for the remainder of the winter, according to a survey just completed by the employment service of the department of labor. Nearly all states reported a condition much better than at this time last year, and the situation was described as fair to good in most sections.

States affected by seasonal operations of logging, agricultural or farm work, and where transportation is hampered by strikes and coal shortage, were the only ones reporting unfavorably and in all of them improvement was expected soon after the first of the year.

Building operations throughout the country were reported holding a pace almost unprecedented, only a few states in the north showing a slowening of the work.

The manufacturing series, almost without exception, reported shortages of skilled mechanics. Textile mills were doing well, all but one showing a gain in output. The automobile industry was running 100 per cent, but the labor supply about equaled the demand. The steel industry was showing an expansion, with a demand for all kinds of labor and the call for metal workers generally exceeding the supply.

WHY PRICES RISE AND FALL.

Dr. Irving Fisher, professor of political economy in Yale University, has started a new controversy on the subject of money and prices. He is a recognized authority, and has written a ponderous, much-read book on this theme. His assertions to the House Banking and Currency Committee probably will cause a new, vigorous debate, as bankers have, since the beginning of economic reaction, been disputing the scientific opinion of professed economists.

Professor Fisher is quoted as having said that money, and not goods or trade, causes rise or fall of prices. Business men point to the great quantities of gold stored in the United States for several years, and then to low prices and idle plants, and ask why the quantity of money did not increase prices.

"One scientific law, commonly accepted, is that the value of money is fixed by the quantity of money. If there is a large quantity of money, prices are high; as the value of money is small, if there is a small quantity of money, the purchasing power of money is great, or, in other words, price is low.

It is not quite plain, however, that, although the quantity of money determines the value of money, it is business activity which causes prices to rise or fall. As activity and prices increase, the money supply increases through resort to credit. Use of credit accelerates activity and increases prices, resulting in inflation of money, costs and prices. Money value decreases as greater trade increases prices and the money supply.

The cause of price changes and of deviations in money value should be studied thoroughly by every business man. Business men should consider, too, that credit is a form of money.

DISARMAMENT AS AN ECONOMY.

Sir Frederick B. Maurice indicates that 4,453,170 men are under arms in Europe now, or 672,240 more than in 1919. The percentage of revenue spent for military purposes at present is 24.5, comparing with 19.7 in 1919. Sir Frederick signs the 1924 Europe really disarmed, more than a billion dollars would be released for debaying.

In effect, Senator Borah says the same thing over and over again. The contention is correct in theory and right in principle, and it could be adopted in practice. With a red army in Russia, revolution threatening in Germany, and Balkan countries eyeing one another suspiciously, how could the economy be effected right now?

Taking Desperate Chances.

It is true that many contract severe cold and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chances instead of giving the cold the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and paves the way for the more serious disease. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cure, had held you had for a trifling sum?

New York on Christmas Becomes City of Santas

Governor-Elect in Impersonation of Patron Saint of Yuletide Sets Fashion for Thousands in Empire State

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (AP)—Tradition has it that there is only one Santa Claus, but tradition was given the lie direct today in New York, when "nearly" everyone—from Governor-elect Smith down to the humblest citizen—donned red coat and white beard, in public or private. It was a city of Santas.

The governor was the first to set the fashion. Returning from midnight mass to his apartment in the Hotel Biltmore, he mounted a step-ladder and began strutting in his ornaments on a sturdy Christmas tree. Then—plain "father Al Smith"—he seated himself on a low stool looking at the tree and began distributing the family's gifts.

Other Santas Active.
Meanwhile other Santas were harnessing their theoretical reindeer for a snowless journey around town. There were private Santas galore, but it was the Santas in hospitals and prisons, in the homes of the poor and in missions that drew the most eyes. It seemed as if New York—the great city of nearly six million people—had begun strutting in its darker, war time days, and was giving out until it hurt.

Not even prison bars could shut out the Christmas cheer. Even in the Tombs, that forbidding building with its bridge of sighs, Santa strode the stone-flagged corridors, his pack on his back. A real Christmas dinner, with setting, place and floral, was spread before 350 men and 20 women. On Ellis Island, that famous gateway of the immigrant, 1500 future Americans ate their first Christmas dinner in America under the very shadow of Lady Liberty.

Bring Cheer to Sufferers.
Into the hospitals, where the grownups and youngsters lay on their beds of pain, marched the red clad figure with his toys and sweets. At his entry eyes that moment before had been dull and empty, lighted up. Among the most generous of the Santas were the stage folk from Broadway. Struts, cones, Santa, into the homes of the hopeless, side by side with Salvation Army lassies they labored, spreading joy among those who could not buy their amusement at the box office.

Tongues were not long enough to carry the cry of "Merry Christmas." During the day the radio took up the greeting, and the very heavens were full of good cheer. "But the note of tragedy—invariably as fate—was introduced into at least one of the strutting glitsters. Mrs. Ella Diaz, a young Porto Rican, had joined with her husband in a Christmas eve party. A tree, music, dancing—and the guests had merrily eaten and drunk. A baby, a tiny white sock was hung for baby's present.

Then husband and wife quarreled. In the night the wife arose, passed the stocking Santa had packed, entered the bathroom and drank poison. She died on the way to the hospital. Broadway's cheer Christmas. Prohibition officials who reported that Broadway had experienced the driest Christmas eve in its history, largely because of the defeat which had met at the hands of the dry navy, pointed as proof of the fact that the worst side effect, which usually leads many crimes on Christmas day, had no offenders before it. Police assigned to watch restaurants and cabarets reported they had seen every law violator along the gay white way.

CHRISTMAS IN-SPAIN ALIKE IN PALACE AND OUTRAGE.

MADRID, Dec. 25 (AP)—The king and queen observed the Christmas eve festival in the same manner as the majority of their subjects, exchanging gifts of simple character and passing the evening "at home." Private individuals and concerns are not permitted to make gifts to the youthful monarch and princesses, but among the toys arriving at the palace this year were a miniature airplane and a locomotive, the handwork of army engineers. The king and queen made their customary generous gifts to the poor.

"You are the train conductor?" he asked. "Yes, sir," Conroy replied. "Dorne fumbled in his inner pocket and brought out a card-case, which he opened and produced a card. Conroy glanced at the card, while the other still held it, saw that it was President Jarry's visiting card, with the president's name in engraved block letters; across its top was written briefly in Jarry's familiar hand, 'This is the passenger'; and below it was signed with the same scrawl of initials which had been on the note Conroy had received that morning."

Conroy's hand shook as, while trying to recover himself, he took the card and looked at it more closely, and he felt within him the sinking sensation which follows an escape from danger. He saw that his too close and too assured assumption that Eaton was the man to whom Jarry's note had referred, had almost led him into the sort of mistake which is unpardonable in a "trusted" man; he had come within an ace, he realized, of speaking to Eaton and so betraying the presence on the train of a traveler whose journey his superior was trying to keep secret.

"You, sir," he received word from Mr. Eaton as you, Mr. Dorne, I shall follow his instructions fully." As he went forward again after the train was under way, Conroy tried to recollect how it was that he had been led into such a mistake, and depicting himself, he laid it all to Dorne's presence on the train. It was not often mistaken in his identification. If Eaton was not the person for whom the train was held, might he be some one else of importance? Now, as he studied Eaton, he could not imagine what had made him accept this man as a person of great position. It was only when he passed Eaton a third time, half an hour later, when the train had long left Seattle, that the half-gazed hazards and guesses about the passenger suddenly sprang into form. Allowing for a change of clothes and a different way of brushing his hair, Eaton was exactly the man whom Warden had expected at his house and who had come there and walked with Warden, away in his car, was killed.

Conroy was walking back through the train, absent-minded in trying to decide whether he could be at all sure of this; and trying to decide what he should do if he felt sure, when Mr. Dorne stopped him. "Conductor, do you happen to know," he questioned, "who the young man is who took Section Three in the car forward?"

Conroy stopped; but the question put to him the impossibility of his being sure of any recognition from the description. "He gave his name on his ticket as Phillip D. Eaton," said Conroy. "Yes, that you know about him?" "Yes, sir."

"If you find out anything about him, let me know," Dorne said. "Yes, sir," Conroy determined to get nothing interesting with respect to Eaton. Dorne's respect only gave him added responsibility.

Dorne, however, was not depending upon Conroy alone for further information. As soon as the conductor had gone he turned back to his daughter and Avery upon the next opposite. "Avery," he said in a tone of direction, "I wish you to get in conversation with this Phillip Eaton. It will probably be best if you let Hattie talk with him too. She would get impressions helpful to me which you can't."

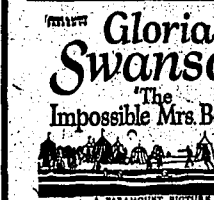

The girl started with surprise but recovered at once. "Yes, Father," she said. "What, sir? Avery ventured to protest." (Continued in next issue)

CLAIM MEXICAN RAN AMUCK ON BAD MOONSHINE

Fires Shot at Hotel Proprietor When Refused a Drink and Empties Gun at Random on Streets, Police Say

Created from over-indulgence in bad moonshine, Juan Adams, a Mexican, Sunday night fired a shot at Frank Brz, proprietor of the Euroka rooms, from the building and emptied his pistol at random while standing a distance of four blocks before being captured, the police reported. Adams and a friend, Frank Quillen, were played in the county jail, the man being held only on a drunkenness charge.

Adams began his activities, it is said, when he failed to obtain a drink of beer at the Euroka rooms. According to the story of the proprietor of the hotel, Adams entered and began flashing a pistol.

While Brz was in a small coal room in the rear of the building Adams was brandishing a heavy pistol and demanding a drink, it is said. On being told none was being sold at the place the man leveled his pistol in the direction of the hotel proprietor and friend. The bullet struck through the frame walls and Brz claims to have been struck by a piece of coal glancing from the bullet. He was not seriously injured.

The alleged drunken man then staggered from the place and fired one or two more shots and continued on his way. The police were attracted by the noise and on reaching the scene found Brz with pistol in hand looking for the invader.

Startled by shots attracted by another shot within a few seconds fired, at a point a short distance to the west, the officers made haste in that direction. They separated a block west of Euroka and on seeing one of them coming Adams apparently tried to escape but fell directly into the hands of Officer Carlson just southwest of the postoffice.

On searching the Mexican the officers found a small bottle of moonshine and a gun. Adams was taken to jail and on returning to the scene of his first shot the officers found the pistol within less than 50 feet from where it was taken, the man evidently having slipped it to the ground on seeing the officers.

Quillen was not connected with Adams on the escape of the latter, and when he was taken the man evidently having slipped it to the ground on seeing the officers.

She is a chorus girl and smokes cigarettes. She is about five feet four inches in height and weighs something over 120 pounds.

She speaks with a "slow, quiet and slightly southern accent."

She was taken from the Twin Falls police, are expected to do their bit toward capturing one Clara Phillips, better known as the "hammer woman," a notorious murderess, who escaped from the Los Angeles county jail December 5, and on whose capture reports have been received from points between Idaho Falls and the Mexican border but which have invariably been disproved.

The request was received Christmas day by Chief of Police Cross from Sheriff William C. Ferguson at Los Angeles, who offers a reward of $250 as an inducement toward immediate return. Chief Cross reported Monday that he has had no trace as yet of Phillips, having been in this city

Cheer Fills Homes of All on Christmas Day

Needy Are Well Taken Care of and Thoughts Are Turned to Others on Return of Holiday Event

The atmosphere of peace and quiet that filled the city and the almost deserted appearance of the streets Monday proved Christmas was being enjoyed by Twin Falls people in the most of substantial way, at home with friends or relatives.

Harbingers of the day took various forms Sunday night. Churches at the Christmas program, at several of which the needy children of the city were guests. Christmas trees glittering with tinsel were here and the distribution of gifts filled the little folks with joy while Christmas sermons bade on the story of Bethlehem born.

Undoubtedly by the lack of real Christmas trees numerous parties of young men and women traveled about the city and out on the highways in wagons, singing and making merry according to habit.

The spirit of giving was everywhere evident and the field of relief work was reported Christmas night to have been throughout the city. The names of all needy families turned in to the Salvation Army or the joint relief committee were all attended to and many homes were gladdened solely by these channels.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sherriff on Fourth avenue east, was the scene of a charming wedding Christmas morning at ten thirty o'clock when their daughter, Miss Zara, became the bride of Mr. Leo Greenwood of Piler. Rev. A. G. Pearson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated, using the beautiful double ring ceremony, the bride being given in marriage by her father. The bridal couple stood under a large white bell placed in the living room which also had decorations of white streamers. Miss Thekla Greenwood, sister of the groom, played Mendelssohn's wedding march, the bride's gown was of particularly blue taffeta, piped in apricot. Only the immediate families were in attendance and a delicious dinner was served at noon in the dining room. The decorations in the Christmas colors. Mrs. Greenwood was well and favorably known in Twin Falls having lived here since she was a child. Her parents being among the pioneer residents. Mr. Greenwood is a graduate of the Piler high school of the class of 1910 and is present bookkeeper for the W. J. Zukerman Company of Piler. The bodies, lying under water at the base of the lake four weeks before being shot to the surface by midnight dynamite, were said to have been well preserved. The heads and limbs were removed. The pathologists are not in a position to state whether these parts were hacked off by the executioners.

Efforts to locate him there have failed and his whereabouts are unknown to officials. It was the attempt on his life that is believed to have culminated in the event of August.

Testimony of a substantial nature implicating many substantial citizens of Mississippi and Arkansas as well as Louisiana is expected to be developed by the state at the open hearing.

The hearing, as the term indicates, will be open to the public and for the purpose of developing the facts in the murder of these two men.

Affidavits will be made against all persons pointed to by the evidence as probably implicated.

Bars Down At Hearing. All persons will be free to enter this court of justice and submit their testimony which will be taken down in short hand. The witnesses will be under oath. At the conclusion of the hearing, a grand jury will be impaneled and judgments returned when justified.

A Morohoko grand jury shortly after the midnight announced it could not find any evidence upon which to return indictments. At that time it was not definitely established that the missing men were dead.
