UNEASINESS SPREADS AT CONFERENCE

Time for Final Reckoning at Lusanne Comes With Lack of Agreement on Issues Between Turks and Allies

LAUSANNE, Dec. 27 (AP)—Great uneasiness is spreading throughout Near East conference circles as the time approaches for final reckoning on all important questions which have been passed by with only partial agreement or no agreement between the Turks and the allied powers.

Lord Curzon's positive announcement today that Great Britain would not side with Turkey in the conference, has caused the question of Turkey was the forerunner of less positive statements from the other delegations. It is believed that the conference was reaching a climax and that preparations were under way for a final showing of strength.

The substitute commissions are making little progress. Bismarck has been rejected on the issue of the commission, but the Christmas rest apparently did not improve the temper of the Turks materially and the rights of minorities that the outcome is uncertain. It is clear that further meetings of the commissions and sub-commissions will be of little avail.

POINCARÉ LAYS PLANS TO TAKE OVER FORESTS

French Premier Expected to Follow Up Reparation Commission's Decision by Exacting Guarantees

PARIS, Dec. 27 (AP)—Premier Poincaré plans to follow up the reparations commission's decision declaring Germany in default of her wood deliveries by presenting to the allied premier's meeting here next week a scheme for taking over the German state forests as a guarantee. If the other premiers will not agree to the scheme, the French government is prepared to act alone.

It now is feared that the British and French attitudes will be as far apart as ever. The London conference was adjourned and the latest reparations development is taken to support the view of the London conference was adjourned to confer with Prime Minister Bonar Law and other members of the government on the effect of the reparations commission's decision on the question of the general British policy toward the premier's meeting.

France's victory in the reparations commission's vote is ascribed to the personal efforts of Premier Poincaré, who is said to have carefully planned the coup. None of the American members observed was present when the action was taken.

Experiment at Fresno to be Attempted Again; Gravity is Expected to do Work

FRESNO, Cal., Dec. 27 (AP)—Forced to land in Tulare lake bottom mud, an airplane piloted by Dick Deane, flying for Louis C. Thorton, of Fresno, was wrecked shortly after noon today, delaying experiments with planting seed wheat from the air over 20,000 acres of King's county farm lands.

Deane and a mechanic were unharmed, the ship resting over and breaking minor gear in the collision with the ground.

A second attempt to complete the experiment, which is being watched with interest by King's county farmers, and district land owners will be made soon at another place from the Thorton field can be equipped for the work.

The incident included in the aerial seeding plan lies both within an unprotected area of the lake and behind a large bank to hold back the water, according to Harry Eastwood, author of the seeding plan, and representative of owners in that territory.

The carcasses of 16 dead wolves stretched in a circle about the trapper's pack of mail.

INDUSTRIES OF PACIFIC COAST IN GOOD SHAPE

Federal Reserve Agent Reports Banks of District Reducing Borrowings; Business More Active Than in 1921

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 22.—More favorable conditions in practically all industries in the Pacific Federal Reserve district during November, as compared with the same month of 1921, is shown by John Perlin, San Francisco, federal reserve agent, in a monthly report made public here today.

An abstract of Mr. Perlin's report follows: "Harvesting of crops of the district was practically completed during November, permitting a preliminary estimate of the results of the year's agricultural operations. Although the average planted and the yields in 1922 were smaller than those of the previous year, crops were raised with a minimum outlay for labor, and outside and inside, except for potatoes, rice, apples, rubies and hops, are now above those of a year ago.

Banks Reduce Borrowings.

"Banks in the country districts have steadily reduced their borrowings from the Federal Reserve Bank from a total of $44,000,000 on August 8 to $18,000,000 December 15.

"Commercial loans of reporting banks in the principal cities of the district, on the other hand, have increased with the acceleration in agriculture and industry. On December 6 commercial loans of 60 reporting banks were $760,000,000, 7 per cent above the low point of June 29, 1922. Investments of the same banks increased $17,000,000.

"Retail and wholesale business was more active during November 1922, than during November 1921. The month's sales increased 14.5 per cent in value over last year and exceeded sales of November 1920 and 1919. The loss of business in retail stores and industry. On December 6 commercial loans of 60 reporting banks were $760,000,000, 7 per cent above the low point of June 29, 1922.

"Individual accounts in the banks of the district were 14.6 per cent larger during November than during November 1921. Business failures, although greater in number, were smaller in liabilities than in October of November 1921.

"The lumber industry operated at normal during November. The mills have announced that the usual winter shut down will be brief.

Mines Increase Output.

"Production of the principal metals of the district is growing steadily. Improvement in copper has been notable, worthy, on December 18 electrolytic being quoted at 13 3/8 cents a pound compared with 13 3/4 cents in October.

"Petroleum production in California during November again increased in volume faster than did consumption. "Industrial construction during the first eleven months of 1922 has been greater in value and volume than during the whole year 1921.

"Seasonal decreases in employment have been general throughout the district but employment is still relatively small. "The general price level shown by the index of the United States Department of Labor, rose from 154 to 166 during the month, taking the 1913 level as 100."

Motor Cars Cost Farmers $30,000,000 in Oats Production

Board of Trade President Sees Pendulum Swinging Bank Toward Use of Horses

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—American farmers are losing approximately $30,000,000 a year on their oats crop and probably a like amount on their hay crop through the use of automobiles, according to Robert McDougal, president of the Chicago Board of Trade in an address before the board of directors of the board of trade on Tuesday. He said that the prices on good draft horses are advancing.

"In 1910 there were 3,000,000 horses in the cities, said Mr. McDougal, while in 1920 there was a 40 per cent more than that number. Most city horses are fed upon oats and hay. Oat prices recently averaged 65 cents below wheat prices, whereas before we began using gasoline they averaged 62 cents below wheat. This is a loss of three cents a bushel, which based upon the 1920 crop of 100 million bushels gets the farmer a tidy loss."

"There is no doubt the big power tractors have reached the saturation point. In many farming sections high-powered tractors were bought by small size farmers. It was a disastrous venture for many. In the cities, many buses are running the streets upon the horse-foot short hauls with frequent stops. Today the farmer is feeding a yard of oats and the horse coming into his own for short hauls."

"The horse will never come back to his old place in the city, but he is going to be sure of an important place in many farming sections of commodities."

TAX CUT IS ISSUE FOR MISSOURI LEGISLATURE

Republican Governor is Placed at the Head of Democratic Assembly to Work Out State's Problems

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 27.—A policy of retrenchment, reduction of state expenses and taxes, and reform of the constitution of several bureaus and commissions, are among the issues expected to come before the Missouri legislature, which convenes January 3. Some educational opportunities for rural children and laws affecting the betterment of child welfare, are the two chief subjects in which Missouri's legislature has several bills introduced. Mrs. Edward James of Johnson county, has announced as a candidate for chairman of the house and, if elected, will be the first ever to have held the office. Mrs. James is an ordained minister of the Baptist church.

Governor Hyde has made no announcement of legislation he desires enacted, but he said that he was "anxious to cooperate with both houses in the interest of the state," and that there will be "no veto of any measure that will achieve economy or promote public welfare."

CHILD'S DEATH Baffles Police

Futile Search is Made for Solution of Mystery Surrounding Tragedy in Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—More than 30 hours after they began their investigation, the police tonight confessed themselves baffled in their search for a solution of circumstances surrounding the death of a 10-year-old girl, whose body, with a small caliche bullet through her heart, was found in a toy-littered room of her Brooklyn home yesterday.

The investigation after the police had laboriously disintegrated a half dozen tubs, closets, and drawers, and a small caliche as a Christmas present. The second theory, in which the police said they had little faith, was that the child was shot down by a sailor of whom Thomas and several of her girl friends had complained several weeks ago, declaring that he had annoyed them. An autopsy today by Medical Examiner Norris provided the principal ground for the theory of accidental death.

The soft-nosed bullet passed through the heart, he found, went straight through the body, indicating that the gun was on a level with the child's breast at the time of the explosion. Powder marks on the clothes indicated that the shot had been fired at close range.

More than 100 boys living in the neighborhood of the McCarthy home were questioned by the detectives in a search for one who might have received a pistol or rifle as a Christmas gift. The police also re-examined the girl's father, Edward McCarthy, a plaster and war veteran, who has been separated from the girl's mother, Mrs. Duane McCarthy, for several years. They declared they had accounted for his actions yesterday.

IRISH RIVALRY
LAY CLAIM TO
CONSUL'S POST

Accredited Representative of Free State Holds Off Siege Conducted by Agents of Eamonn De Valera

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP)—After Edward Crawford had presented himself today at the consulate of the Irish free state as the accredited representative of that government to take over the duties of Daniel J. McGrath, retiring consul general, seven other men, headed by Lawrence Giffney, entered the suite and proclaimed themselves as representatives of Eamonn de Valera and the Irish republic.

Mr. Giffney's party soon afterwards was confronted by several volunteers, including Mrs. George Alford, widow of the late mayor of Cork. Crawford was alone except for one assistant. Mr. McGrath departed after a struggle over his keys to the free state representative.

The consulate, which occupies three rooms, was held for a brief part by the republic's delegation while the free-state representatives kept a small fight with the door-keepers so the doors of the consulate could be observed. There were no hot words exchanged and no disturbance, but at midnight both sides were still holding their respective positions.

SCIENTIST SEES HOPE FOR RACE IN ITS ENERGY

Prescribes Development of New Ideas as Remedy for Prevailing Inertia and Possible Degeneration

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 27 (AP)—The maintenance of the energy of the race is the real test of our civilization.

"The degeneration inevitable," he asked, "it would be a bold prophet who would say no to the question. But to answer it in the affirmative means the acceptance of a form of fatalism that will ultimately bring with it a decline in human confidence and effort."

"The world now shows signs of alarm as it contemplates its many disorders. We are forced to notice an increase in a spirit of morbid introspection which if continued may lead to the despondency which is a characteristic of the people whose culture is falling."

"The idea of progress has been almost an axiom in the popular thinking for nearly a century, but now in its stead, the conception of inevitable degeneration makes itself heard from time to time. Our feelings revolt at this deplorable view of the future. Optimism is an essential in the conservation of our present stock of human energy. Inertia will overtake the race if we lose confidence in the future."

New Ideas Essential. "The energy of the race can only be conserved through new ideas, new discoveries and the application of new theories. Man will degenerate unless there is a continuous flow of new ideas from the brains of great thinkers to the masses and the actions and the lives of the untalented masses."

"We often mistake restlessness for energy. We may be making great discoveries and the application of new theories. Man will degenerate unless there is a continuous flow of new ideas from the brains of great thinkers to the masses and the actions and the lives of the untalented masses."

"Popular education can increase the total amount of human energy by bringing to the surface powers that otherwise would have remained latent. It can liberate the mind of superior endowments."

Job Rule Means Retrogression. "At the present time we observe the increasing power of the masses. We can imagine that the power of the masses of unthinking people might be increased—that they might dictate more completely the path which their race must follow in order to secure a hearing. Should such a thing occur, there would result a blocking of progress not dissimilar to the check that was put upon the original minds of the middle ages."

"I cannot refrain from mentioning the fight of Bryan to enlist the unthinking people in the cause of truth and freedom of thought in the field of science, and the efforts of the Ku Klux Klan to reduce the country to a state of mob rule."

"We have no assurance that our civilization will be permanent. But so long as we believe that our culture and our scientific progress will be conserved, our chief means of testing our success in maintaining them will be the amount of energy and especially intellectual energy that is being expended. At a business session the entomological society elected as its president Professor T. D. A. Coe, registrar of the University of California, who is a union of all biological societies in the country."

Efficiency Motion Explained. Addressing the American psychological association, Dr. H. H. Woodworth, professor of psychology at Indiana university, said that a popular theory that tall men and heavy men made the best soldiers was based upon scientific analysis of the earnings of 600 soldiers. He was convinced that the idea that by mere animal bulk, large soldiers could be more efficient than a client, was exploded.

of $25,000 was reported to have been offered to a certain firm of lawyers to lead in his defense.

Stands High in Profession. Dr. McKelvin has stood high in the medical profession of northeast Louisiana, serving as president of the fifth congressional district medical society last year. He was a local church worker. During his term as mayor he waged war on those who held the law lightly and is said to have incurred the enmity of many of them.

Some years ago he engaged in a difficulty at Gallion, La., and killed a man. His plea was self-defense, claiming that the would have been killed if he had not fired first. The events of each succeeding day are more sharply dividing the people of this state, for the return of Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana, as an outgrowth of the Morehouse parish murder and kidnaping cases. The writ was obtained in an effort to obtain bail for the doctor prior to his flight against extradition.

Requisition papers issued by Governor Parker on Governor Albert Ritchie of this state, for the return of the doctor to Louisiana. Dr. McKelvin are not expected to reach here today or three days. Governor Ritchie told when asked he would await receipt of the papers before issuing a statement. At that time, he said, he would hear both sides of the case and make an impartial decision.

also court this morning, Dr. McKelvin stated he was unable to throw any light on the details of Thomas Ritchie and Wate Daniels, whose mutilated bodies were found several days ago in lake La Fourche, near Mer Rouge. "I was willing to go back and tell them all that I could about conditions at Mer Rouge but now I will fight extradition to the last ditch."

While angered at his arrest, McKelvin is inclined to treat the matter lightly. He said he could account for every hour prior to the kidnaping of the doctor and that every minute since their mysterious disappearance.

Denies Klan Membership. Dr. McKelvin reiterated he was not a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Neither had he been asked to join the organization, he said.

Former United States District Attorney Robert E. Garner of counsel for the accused, stated he would fight any effort at extradition by the Louisiana government. Captain George G. Henry, chief inspector of the Baltimore police, received a telegram tonight from Governor Parker of Louisiana, asking that he bring in the writ of habeas corpus obtained by counsel for McKelvin to hold up, until officers arrived with extradition papers.

GOOD BUSINESS

Secured a week passes without bringing to this office one of more advertisements offering to sell oil stock or oil leases at prices ranging from a few cents per acre per unit upward and right or wrongly, all and all go into the common repository, the waste basket.

The good must go with the bad, the tail with the hide. Oil and similar stock speculation has resulted in a waste of millions of dollars—possibly billions, during the past three or four years, and the great bulk of this money was not only absolutely wasted, but was gathered up in the first place from the very element of people who could least afford the loss.

APPLES WORTH MILLIONS

One quarter of the apples grown in Washington are to be dumped in the Columbia river, according to word from Seattle. The total crop for the year is valued at $6,000,000, and the value of the waste crop is estimated at $1,500,000, one-fourth of the gross.

DISPOSING OF AN UNPROFITABLE ROAD

The Interstate Commerce Commission has an exceptionally baffling problem to decide. It must determine whether a railroad, 237 miles long, may be abandoned. This is a big, worrisome question. The railroad, the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis, does not pay. How can the commission force the receivers to continue operating it, at a loss? Who would pay the losses? Would it, on the other hand, be fair to take transportation facilities away from towns and counties which must rely on this line?

LAWYERS IN THE DESCENDANT

Word comes from London that there are more trade union officials than lawyers in the House of Commons. For the first time in fifty years the legal profession is not the occupation of the majority of members. There are eighty-three trade unions officials in the House and eighty lawyers. In a remarkable body a reasonable number of lawyers is desirable. A legislature must have expert guidance. Yet, lawyers are apt to be capricious about laws. They have a technical point of view.

The most efficient assembly is one truly representative of all the circumstances of the population, yet not to the extent as to result in formation of selfish hands to promote special interests of one kind and another. With a well-balanced representation, it is assumed that the common welfare is advanced most effectively.

CAUGHT IN HIS OWN TRAP

It has just leaked out, says an article in the home town paper of C. A. McFarther, publisher at Hopkins, Mo., that a Maryville grocer was recently caught in his own trap. It seems an old cule reside at the edge of Maryville who are in straitened circumstances and determined to get out of their predicament by any means possible.

Old-Time Wedding Custom. In Tudor times wedding went bareheaded to be married, with bachelors and brides in the street. They entered the church by the great door only. In some places they carried wheat sheaves on their heads and corn was cast in their faces, with shouts of "plenty! plenty!"

"And an engineer, I suppose," he said, easily, "would think it only an element as to be taken into the formulas—an x, or an a, or a b, or a c, but in some cases and square-rooted or squared so that the root-train was figuring about not break under the weight."

could be so sure of finding a satisfactory employee in that way. Every day that show that life life, the everyday business of earning a living and bearing one's share in the workaday world, demands greater equality than war."

"Her face had flushed equally as she spoke; a darker, livid flush answered her words on his.

"But the opportunities for evil are greater," he asserted almost fiercely. "How many of those men speak of on the streets have been deliberately, mercifully, even savagely sacrificed to some business expediency, their future destroyed, their hope killed."

"I think you should meet my father, Mr. Eaton," she said. "Would you like to?"

"I would like to meet him, yes," he said, "but," he hesitated, tried to avoid answer without offending her, "but not now, my dear."

"You mean—" The sentence, obviously, was one she felt it better not to finish. As though he recognized that now she must have the conversation to end, he got up. "She rose stiffly."

Neither spoke, as he went with her into the next car; and at the section where her father sat Eaton bowed silently, nodded to Avery, who coldly returned his nod, and left her. Eaton went on into his own car and sat down, his thoughts in mad confusion.

How near he had come to talking to that girl about himself even though he had felt from the first that that was what she was trying to make him do! Was he losing his common sense?

He felt that he must not see Harriet Dorne again alone. In Avery he had recognized, by that instant which so strangely divines the personalities one meets an enemy from the start; and Dorra's attitude toward him of course, was not yet defined; as for Harriet Dorne—he could not tell whether she was prepared to be his enemy or friend.

Eaton went into the men's compartment of his car, where he was sitting till after the train was under way again.

The cold end of his cigar and going out into the car, he found the berth empty. A half hour later the passage of a passenger train was arrested and the sudden dimming of the crack of light which showed above the cupola told him that the lights in the car had been turned down. Eaton closed his eyes, but sleep was far from him.

Presently he began to feel the train beginning to labor with the increasing grade and the deepening snow. It was nearing the mountains, and the weather was getting colder and the storm more severe. Eaton lifted his curtain from the window beside him and tensed on one elbow to look out. The train was running through a bleak, white desolation; no light and no sign of habitation showed anywhere. The streets of the city shone through the mind again with sinister suggestion. He had taken that train for a certain definite, dangerous purpose which required his remaining as obscure and as inconspicuous as possible; yet already he had been singled out for attention. So far, he was not being received no more than that attention, curiosity concerning him. He had not suffered recognition; but that might come at any moment. Could he venture nothing to act?

his head, his eyes staring up at the ceiling. In the card-room of the observation car, playing and conversation still went on for a time; then it diminished as one by one the passengers went away to bed. Conroy, looking into the car, found it empty and the porter cleaning up; he allowed himself to go forward through the train, stepping momentarily in the rear Pullman opposite the berth of the passenger whom President Jarvis had commended.

Conroy had been becoming more certain hour by hour all through the evening that they were going to have a difficulty in getting the train through. Though he knew by President Jarvis' note that the officials of the road must be watching the progress of this special train with particular interest, he had received no word from them.

"I think you should meet my father, Mr. Eaton," she said. "Would you like to?"

"I would like to meet him, yes," he said, "but," he hesitated, tried to avoid answer without offending her, "but not now, my dear."

"You mean—" The sentence, obviously, was one she felt it better not to finish. As though he recognized that now she must have the conversation to end, he got up. "She rose stiffly."

Neither spoke, as he went with her into the next car; and at the section where her father sat Eaton bowed silently, nodded to Avery, who coldly returned his nod, and left her. Eaton went on into his own car and sat down, his thoughts in mad confusion.

How near he had come to talking to that girl about himself even though he had felt from the first that that was what she was trying to make him do! Was he losing his common sense?

He felt that he must not see Harriet Dorne again alone. In Avery he had recognized, by that instant which so strangely divines the personalities one meets an enemy from the start; and Dorra's attitude toward him of course, was not yet defined; as for Harriet Dorne—he could not tell whether she was prepared to be his enemy or friend.

Eaton went into the men's compartment of his car, where he was sitting till after the train was under way again.

The cold end of his cigar and going out into the car, he found the berth empty. A half hour later the passage of a passenger train was arrested and the sudden dimming of the crack of light which showed above the cupola told him that the lights in the car had been turned down. Eaton closed his eyes, but sleep was far from him.

Presently he began to feel the train beginning to labor with the increasing grade and the deepening snow. It was nearing the mountains, and the weather was getting colder and the storm more severe. Eaton lifted his curtain from the window beside him and tensed on one elbow to look out. The train was running through a bleak, white desolation; no light and no sign of habitation showed anywhere. The streets of the city shone through the mind again with sinister suggestion. He had taken that train for a certain definite, dangerous purpose which required his remaining as obscure and as inconspicuous as possible; yet already he had been singled out for attention. So far, he was not being received no more than that attention, curiosity concerning him. He had not suffered recognition; but that might come at any moment. Could he venture nothing to act?

He dropped on his face on the bed and lay with his hands clasped under
