IDAHO SOLONS PRESENT VIEWS ON WATERWAYS

Borah Attacks Provisions of Rivers and Harbors Appropriation; Gooding Blames Short Hauls for Traffic Ills

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Senate today devoted its entire session today to discussion of the $50,000,000 rivers and harbors item in the annual army bill, but an agreement finally was reached for voting to start on all pending amendments not later than 4 p. m. tomorrow.

The debate covered a wide range of argument, including the constitutional rights of the federal government to assume jurisdiction over lakes and streams within states for purposes other than that of insuring navigation. With few exceptions, every senator present was drawn into the debate.

Borah Fires First Gun

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, whose amendment reducing the item to $27,000,000, as recommended by the budget bureau, inaugurated the day's debate, declared many projects provided for in the lump appropriation would not merit commerce "one penny" and were indefensible from any standpoint. They embodied in some cases, he said, improvement of rivers down which "a duck could not swim."

Senator Underwood of Alabama, the democratic leader, insisted that the government would be lax in its duty if it failed to provide for the "marvelous system of cheap transportation" lying within its borders. He described a visit to the Rhine river in Germany, where, he said, in spite of the operation of a double tracked railroad on each bank, the bulk of freight was moving by the barges.

Gooding Blames "Short Haul"

Senator Gooding, republican, Idaho, declared that the south has been conveyed to the railroads under section 4 of the interstate commerce act to lower rates to crush competition, but that such authority had been assumed, because of a precedent established in a ruling by the interstate commerce commission relating to the so-called "short haul" clause. Mr. Gooding said there had been "twenty or thirty violations of section 4 within recent years," adding that there could be no hope of successful water transportation as long as the commission's precedent was allowed to stand.

"For example," he said, "in our state we are not allowed to ship wheat four hundred miles to Portland, but are compelled to ship 800 miles to Chicago. Those violations are not of the past, as has been suggested. Within the last six months we had a railroad rate on wool to Boston of $1.50, while the rate from points 600 miles nearer was $2.05."

Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, offered an amendment to that of Senator Borah to increase the to-

OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 7 (AP)—Recommendation that a commission from Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana be appointed to confer on division of waters of the Columbia river, so that united action may be obtained on the Columbia basin irrigation project, was made in an address today by Senator-Elect C. Dill before a joint session of the legislature. He pointed out that the southwest states had taken similar action on the Colorado river.

Senator Dill also urged the legislature to memorialize congress as soon as possible for an appropriation to further investigate the Columbia basin project and expressed hope that such legislation might be enacted at this session of congress.

OVERTURNS OLD MINE TAX PLAN

Bingham County Senator Proposes Repeal of Provisions for Levy Against Profits

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 7 (AP)—Upsetting the entire system of mine taxation of the state, an emergency bill was introduced by Senator Thomas, republican, of Bingham county, late this afternoon at the senate session. Repealing all of chapter 147 of the compiled statutes which provides for the taxation of mine profit, the act was introduced by the president pro tem of the senate.

Efforts to reconsider the indefinite postponement of the Albin normal removal bill were unsuccessful this afternoon after the senate had debated the measure during its entire day's session. Reconsideration was lost by a vote of 18 to 25.

Removal of the party circle from election ballots is advocated in a new house bill by Representative Coulter, progressive, of Valley county.

Strikes at Bryan's Job

Aimed to abolish the office of commissioner of education, now held by Dr. E. A. HARDING ASKS APPROVAL FOR FUNDING PLAN

President Gives Congress the Terms for Payment of British War Debt Arrived at by Joint Commission

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—President Harding personally urged upon congress today that it not only approve promptly the British debt settlement agreement, but that it also come to a decision one way or another at this session on the administration shipping bill.

"There is time, abundant time, for decisive action on both those tremendously important questions," he declared. "Either be fit to be recorded a chapter in great achievement and both will mark a signal triumph. I remind you that both are inseparably related to our grand foreign aims and our high place in the world."

Approval of the debt settlement for the formal submission of which the president went to the capitol, was forecast by republican congressional leaders. The first step along the legislative road was taken immediately after Mr. Harding concluded his address before a joint session of the house and senate in the house chamber, identical bills amending the existing debt funding law being introduced in both branches.

Senate Situation Complex

Party managers in the house predicted action in that body within a week at the latest, but the situation in the senate was less clear. Some leaders there favored calling up the debt immediately after the house acted, but others thought there should be first a renewed effort to obtain a vote on the shipping bill. The senate situation was regarded in some quarters as forecasting ultimate failure of the shipping bill, but its supporters insisted that it would pass. The reference of the debt settlement was made by Mr. Harding, who told congress he had ventured to allude to the shipping bill because "it has been threatened" that it "shall not be allowed to come to a vote."

Asks Frank Decision

The executive offered no suggestion as to which of the measures should have precedence, nor did he make any recommendation as to the form of legislation approving the debt settlement should take. He stated, however, his opposition to the senate taking a serious bonus rider to the legislation, declared that congress should give "a frank, exclusive and direct decision, uninvolved by any disposition of the monies which the funding program ultimately will bring to the federal treasury."

In urging approval of the agreement, recently reached by the American and British debt commissions, Mr. Harding declared that the agreement was "a recruitment of the English-speaking world to the validity of contract."

"It is, in fact, a plight against war and war expenditures," he said, adding that it was "a covenant of peace no less effective than it would be if joint British and American opposition to it were expressly agreed upon."

Again he declared it was "an example of encouragement and inspiration when the world is staggering in discouragement and bowed with the sorrows of wars that were, and fears of wars which humanity is praying may be avoided."

Failure of the British undertaking, the executive continued, "would spread political and economic discouragement throughout the world." Success of that undertaking was declared to be "a new element of financial and economic stabilization, when the world is groping for a reminder of the ways of peace."

The Day in Washington

(By The Associated Press)

The Central American conference was concluded with the signing of a treaty of peace and amity, eleven conventions and three protocols.

Extension until June 15 of the final date for filing tax returns of domestic corporations for the calendar year 1922 was announced by the internal revenue commissioner.

President Harding, addressing congress, coupled a plea for senate action on the shipping bill with a request for modification of the debt funding law to permit acceptance of the settlement negotiated with Great Britain.

Britain Stands with France in Defiance of Turk's Demand

Allies Inform Angora Government That Their Warships Will Not Comply With Warnings to Leave Smyrna but Will Defend Themselves if Attacked; Place the Responsibility for Possible Outbreak of Hostilities on Kemalist Regime

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—After conversations today between the British and French governments it was agreed, in terms proposed by the French, to reject the Turkish demand that the allied warships leave Smyrna. The British and French have sent a reply to Angora to that effect and warning the Angora government that the Anglo-French warships have been instructed to defend themselves if attacked.

A Reuters' Constantinople dispatch says that a second note has been received from the Turkish commander at Smyrna reducing the time limit for the allied warships to quit Smyrna from midnight tonight to sunset.

Hold Kemalists Responsible

The allied commissioners after a conference are declared to have addressed a strong note to the Kemalist representative at Constantinople warning him that all responsibility for any act of hostility would devolve upon the Kemalist government. Similar warnings have been issued to local authorities at Smyrna.

There are two allied warships at Smyrna—the British cruiser Calypso, and the French cruiser Ernest Renan.

REINFORCEMENTS REPORTED ON WAY TO BRITISH BOATS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 7 (AP)—It is understood that the allies have not only refused to withdraw their ships from Smyrna but that the British have sent heavy ships to Smyrna from Constantinople, the Dardanelles and Malta.

The United States destroyer Edsall is at Smyrna, but it is reported that the Turks define her as outside the prohibited class, both in tonnage and as a neutral and it is expected that she will remain there.

Durant alleges Murphy has agreed to drive one of the six automobiles composing the racing team for one year and states that if the champion racer should be killed or injured in an accident while engaging in "said hazardous sport" of campaigning, Durant would suffer irreparable loss.

PERIL IS SEEN BY LUDENDORFF

IN RUHR EVENTS

German General, in Interview at Vienna, Points Out Danger of Russian Intervention and Invasion by Bolsheviks

VIENNA, Feb. 7, (AP)—The German General Ludendorff, who, on his way to Vienna, was assaulted by workmen at Klagenfurt and not permitted to deliver an address, discusses the situation in the Ruhr in an interview published by the Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung. "It is a mistake," he said, "to think that these events in the Ruhr are a purely German affair; the whole of Europe is bound to suffer from their effects. I have no connection with the Berlin government and consequently am not able to judge if the persistent reports of a Russo-German accord are true. I only know that such a combination would be a great misfortune for Europe."

"The present political and military situation in Europe leads me to fear that an armed conflict would furnish the Russians with an opportunity to intervene, no matter where it broke out, which would amount to an invasion of Europe by bolshevik forces."

"The French advance into Germany was guided by two motives, one political and the other industrial. The political consists of this—France with a population of thirty millions cannot dominate sixty million Germans; it is then to her interest to seize German mines and industries in order to benefit her own industries. When France is in possession of German coal and steel she can fortify the coasts and create a fleet, and thus England's role on the continent."

"This plan also has an important bearing on the life of other states, notably Holland. How can Holland continue to exist completely encircled by France and Belgium?" General Ludendorff left Vienna today for Munich.

With the members of his staff he intends to sail for the United States February 21 on the steamer George Washington, arriving at home about three weeks after the landing on American soil of the last of the American Rhine-land army of which he was commander-in-chief.

We were handicapped by disadvantages and customs, yet each member showed a great spirit of tolerance, kindness and friendly cooperation."

Germany Keeps Tab on Cost of French Occupation of Ruhr

BRILL, Feb. 7 (AP)—French occupation of the Ruhr up to and including February 4 cost approximately 374,000,000 marks in supplies furnished by the Germans, according to figures announced in official quarters. There is some discussion as to whether Franco or Germany ultimately will bear this expense. The German newspaper contends it is a French liability because the occupation was not authorized by international law or the Versailles treaty.

GUNS ROAR OUT WELCOME HOME

Savannah Stages Enthusiastic Reception for the American Troops from Rhineland

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 7 (AP)—America's "last thousand" came home from Europe today, signaling the nation's closing action in its participation in the world war.

From the deck of the United States army transport St. Michel, the soldiers who kept watch on the Rhine entered their first glimpse of their homeland after an absence of five years. With them were French, Belgian and German wives and children, who saw for the first time the land they are to call home.

Savannah turned out to a man to welcome home in behalf of America the returning troops and to greet the women and children from the country's former allies and enemy nations. The reception began shortly after 11 o'clock this morning when the cutter Yamacraw and the tug McCawley met the transport beyond Tybee bar.

At quarantine, a party of congressmen, Governor Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia, Mayor Paul E. Seabrook and other city and local officials, and an army officers boarded the St. Michel from the Yamacraw.

Greeted by Salvo

As the transport neared Savannah she was greeted by a salvo from two historic canons, presented to the Chatham artillery by George Washington, and from a battery of French 75's, trophies of the world war. The soldiers answered each blast with cheers. Bells, whistles and sirens in the city and on river craft took up the cry.

Spectators scattered along a mile and a half of waterfront kept pace with the transport as she traveled up the river.

They stormed the docks, overpowering police guards. Fire hose was used to clear the crowd from about the ship. The stream of water struck the members of the congressional reception committee as they crowded aboard the transport. The congressional committee, including Senators Harris and Robinson, and Congressmen Johnson, Linberger, Scott, Conley and Bulwinkle, were met aboard ship by Colonel Walter T. Bates of the Eighth infantry, in command of the troops.

Legion Boves Barbouco

Debarcation followed the formal welcome in behalf of the nation. The married soldiers, wives and children, their families with, their comrades formed to parade through the city. They were reviewed by Major General Farnsworth and Major General Shanks. After the parade the enlisted men were guests at a barbecue arranged by the local American Legion post. A dance for the enlisted men and a banquet for the officers kept the arrivals occupied tonight.

The St. Michel brought back 908 officers and men, comprising two battalions and service company of the 8th infantry, a detachment of the First Engineers, who wear the French fourragere for valor, the 20th service company, signal corps, and a detachment of medical corps men. The First battalion and service company of the 8th infantry will be stationed here at Fort Screven, while the Third battalion will go to Fort Moultrie, S. C., to join the Second battalion. The engineers, signal and medical corps men will be landed at New York.

DEATH PENALTY TO BE INVOKED IN RUHR REGION

French Occupational Authorities Announce Purpose to Employ Drastic Measures Against Acts of Sabotage

ELBERFELD, Germany, Feb. 7. (AP)—Several additional towns in the Elberfeld textile district were occupied today by French infantry who also established themselves in a number of smaller villages of the Wupper valley. Artillery was brought from various points.

DUESSELDORF, Feb. 7. (AP)—The death penalty will be inflicted on Germans caught tampering with railroad equipment or signal boxes, or for other acts of sabotage endangering the lives of travelers, the French authorities announced today. This is the first time threats of capital punishment have been made by the occupying authorities.

Sentries have been ordered to fire upon any persons approaching railroad crossings, towers, bridges or stations and refusing to halt after the customary challenge.

General Degoutte declared today that if the Germans in obeying the orders of "the committee for defense and reprisals in the Ruhr" persisted in these outrages, no mercy would be shown.

In Sullen Mood

Agents of the committee are circulating freely in the Ruhr, especially from Elberfeld, which is less than two miles from the extreme advance posts of the French occupation at Dorpan. Troops completely encircle Elberfeld, the line running from Dorpan to Volvinkel, then southeast to Lennep, then to Donberg to the north, and again west to Walfraht.

The newly occupied areas in a sullen mood, the populace being sulky and refusing to halt the street cars, serve food in the restaurants to the French or salute the French officers and making every attempt to render the life of the troops unbearable. The women folk have been threatened by the male element with shorn heads if seen conversing with French officers or soldiers.

Commandant Beriaux at Volvinkel

does not appear to be worried, however, saying: "They will come around all right soon." He added he was doing his utmost to avoid friction by billeting the troops in public buildings and not in dwelling houses.

Oordon Hells Fast

French control of the railroad yards around Elberfeld prevents the export of any coal to Southern Germany. The Germans have not attempted to pass coal through the cordon, but last night tried to slip by with a 30 car train of benzol, which was confiscated. The service lines running to Cologne from Elberfeld are normal, but the Bavarian palatinate is at a complete standstill, as are Mayence, Coblenz and the entire occupied area in the Rhineland and the Ruhr.

Germany Disowns Radical Arrested With I. W. W. Chief

Immigration Officials Strike a Snag in Deportation Action and Jacobs Poses as Man Without Country

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 7. (AP)—Declared an undesirable alien by immigration officials here who have been unable to prove his foreign citizenship, Charles Raymond Jacobs, convicted I. W. W. who served one year at Leavenworth penitentiary, now is playing the role here of "The Man Without a Country."

According to police, Jacobs was arrested with the Bill Haywood band several years ago as a dangerous radical. With others he was found in the back and after serving his term, he came back to Denver. Jacobs was re-arrested and taken before the Denver investigation authorities for harboring. He was recommended for deportation. A snag was encountered, however, when it came to establishing the man's nativity. "Where were you born?" he was asked.

"In Posen, Germany," was the reply. Posen, Germany was communicated with but the authorities there reported there was no record of a man named Charles Raymond Jacobs. "That's where I was born, just the same," Jacobs insisted.

In the meantime he was released on bond of $1500 pending the outcome of deportation proceedings. The bond still stands; the government seems unable to prove the man's citizenship and friends of Jacobs who deplored his bond are asking that the money be returned.

"The United States government does not seem to want him," said James H. Forney, attorney, who is counsel for Jacobs, "and judging from reports abroad neither does Germany." Then lately the national immigration commissioner at Washington accepted Jacobs an unusual invitation.

SALEM INDIAN SCHOOL GIVEN NEW DORMITORY

Construction of $50,000 Brick Building to Accommodate 200 Boys to be Completed by Next Fall

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 7. (AP)—Work has begun on a new brick boys' dormitory building at the Salem Indian school. The building will cost approximately $50,000, and it is expected it will be completed in time for occupancy next fall. It will have accommodations for more than 200 boys.

The building is being constructed by the Indian department. When bids for construction of the building were received after a federal appropriation for such a structure had been made, it was discovered that all were in excess of the amount available. Consequently the department decided to call for material bids, with the idea of the department itself undertaking the construction.

The building will be 224 feet by 40 feet, two stories high. It will be plain brick construction with two story lavatory wing on the back and a similar wing at the front for executive offices and other administrative purposes. Its cost is to fall within the limits of the $50,000 appropriation.

Congress recently appropriated $25,000 for the construction of a similar, though smaller building, for the use of girl students at the school. Superintendent Harward Hall of the Indian school is endeavoring to make some arrangement whereby a contract for construction of a girls' dormitory can be let before the appropriation for its construction is actually available, and let the contractor arrange to finance the construction until July, when the federal money is available. He believes that in this way the girls' building could also be ready for occupancy by fall.

Food, clothing, and medical supplies amounting to $1,214,636.91 have also been purchased by the American Red Cross for the relief of the refugee situation in Greece and the adjacent islands, and other expenditures in the handling of supplies and transportation have brought the amount to over $2,140,687.09, up to the middle of January.

FARM LOANS IN NORTHWEST TOP EIGHTY MILLION

Federal Land Bank of Spokane Reports Record Business for First Month of New Year with 576 Applications

SPOKANE, Wash., Feb. 7 (AP)—Five hundred and seventy-six farm loans for a total of $2,016,400 were closed by the Federal Land Bank of Spokane during January, according to figures announced here. Months passing the $2,000,000 mark are record months, in the estimation of officials of the bank.

During the month 563 applications for loans were received from farmers in Washington, Idaho, Montana and Oregon, aggregating $1,986,081. Five hundred and ninety-seven loans for a total of $1,609,909 were approved. There were 348 cancellations totaling $1,195,800.

Total loans closed since the bank opened for business in May, 1917, numbered 27,141, for a grand total of $80,088,635, which now represents long-term mortgages on as many farms in the four northwestern states.

Total applications since the bank was started number 53,711 for $180,237,163. In all, 37,541 loans have been approved for $110,183,505, but part of these have not yet been closed. A total of 13,855 loans for $41,755,405 have either been rejected by the bank or withdrawn by the applicants.

Five new national farm loan associations, of which two were in Washington, were chartered during January. This makes 403 such associations of growers borrowing through the land bank in the Twelfth Land Bank District.

Viscount Ishii, on Vacation from Paris, Takes Japan to Task for Lack of Interest in Doings of Council

TOKIO, Feb. 7 (AP)—Viscount Ishii, Ambassador to France, who is home on furlough, has been taking his own government, the press and the people to task for their lack of interest in the doings of the Council of the League of Nations. He complains that the foreign office ignored his request when attending the sessions of the council, for information as to press and public opinion of the League, giving the Council "an unpleasant impression of lack of interest in the council in this country."

He added that European nations which at first attached little interest to the council because of its weakness, has awakened to its usefulness after the settlement of the Upper Silesian question. "I do not hesitate to say," he concluded, "that the present condition of the council is much more hopeful than is generally believed in Japan."

LIQUOR THIEVES SIPHON STORES FROM WAREHOUSE

Baltimore Police Uncover Elaborate Underground Workings Through Which 100 Barrels Were Drained

BALTIMORE, Mr., Feb. 7 (AP)—Digging a tunnel 150 feet long and 3 feet wide from a cellar of a house to the warehouse of the Stewart Distilling company's plant in Highlandtown, a suburb, a band of liquor thieves, with the aid of a rubber hose as a "pipe line" and a suction pump, siphoned more than 100 barrels of whiskey. The robbery was discovered early today when police, acting on a tip from an unknown source, forced an entrance into the dwelling. The liquor was valued at upwards of $245,000.

The house, according to the police, is owned by Christian Yanson, but as yet no information has been obtained as to where he can be found.

The siphoning of the tunnel, according to police, must have occupied at least a month. The robbers had cut a hole about ten inches in diameter through a thick stone foundation to gain entrance to the warehouse and only a small man could have gained admittance to tap the barrels, police said.

It is not known how long the robbery has been carried on, but police officials have learned that for the past two weeks nearby residents have seen two automobile trucks call at the house nightly and depart soon afterwards.

Information has been obtained by the police that a quantity of the brand of whiskey stolen from the warehouse was offered for sale last Saturday.

PAN-AMERICANS BAN REVOLUTION

Central American Nations Sign Agreement Designed to Bring Closer Relations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Central American conference, which began December 4 at the invitation of President Harding, was concluded today in the Hall of the Americas of the Pan-American Union with Secretary Hughes presiding and the plenipotentiaries of Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica expressing gratification over its success.

A treaty of peace and amity, 11 conventions and three protocols designed to bring about closer relations and to insure the maintenance of internal and international peace among the Central American republics, were signed at the final plenary session, which was attended by members of the diplomatic corps and high officials of the United States.

Rejects Free Trade

Costa Rica refrained from signing a convention establishing free trade among the other four republics, and the United States agreed to join the other five in the establishment of commissions of inquiry and an international arbitration tribunal.

Secretary Hughes, who acted as chairman of the conference and of its committee of three, who had decided which the actual negotiations were conducted, replying to the expressions of gratification and thanks of the Central American plenipotentiaries, voiced "our earnest desire to promote our general interests of peace in this hemisphere and to aid you in finding a solution of your own problems to your own proper advantage."

Submit to Arbitration

The secretary also announced after the signing of the agreements that Guatemala and Honduras had decided to submit their boundary disputes of long standing to the President of the United States for arbitration.

The treaty recognizes the maintenance of peace as the first duty of the governments, declares the violent or illegal alteration of the constitutional organization in any of the republics a menace to all, and pledges each not to recognize any government resulting from a revolution.

IMMIGRATION

For three centuries, the immigration policy of both Americas was that of the open door. Two years ago, the United States, performing an almost complete about face, established the policy of limited immigration.

It was inevitable that experience would point out faults in such a radical departure, however strongly the main purpose of the new policy might be approved.

The three per cent quota law has been roundly criticized by its original friends and foes alike. Its enactment followed the onslaught of a horde of post war immigrants, desirable and undesirable. Members of congress decided to admit only assimilable immigrants.

The first year's working of the law showed the fallacy of this hope. Immigrants from North Europe fell far below their quotas while southeastern Europe exhausted their allowances at the earliest possible moment.

With the rise of prosperity in this country, however, economic causes entered into the immigration problem. For several months manufacturers have been demanding the admission of common laborers.

The house committee is now working on amendments to the three per cent law. A two per cent quota with elastic exemptions effecting skilled labor, professional and scientific men, is proposed.

JUST A LITTLE BILL

There will be a meeting in Paris on March 1, in which every American citizen has a direct interest. The business is the matter of a bill. The amount of the bill is two hundred and fifty-six million dollars.

That figures out at two dollars and thirty-two cents for every man, woman and child of America's population.

The circumstances are worth recalling. The cost of the occupation was to be a preferred charge against Germany. It was so far as France, Belgium and Britain are concerned, for those three have been paid in full.

At one time it was agreed the United States should receive one-fifth of the allotment representing in all twenty-five per cent of the German output.

officials pointed out, it was not there by any desire of the American people, but at the express request of the allied powers.

MARRIAGE REVERSED

Marriage in a cemetery is the latest from Los Angeles. The bridegroom, it is stated, chose a burial ground for his nuptial rites because he wished to emphasize the solemnity of the occasion.

The same sentiment that prompted the choice of a cemetery for a wedding would substitute Chopin's funeral march for the wedding march from 'Lohengrin,' mourning for a bride veil and telling for a merrily ringing bell.

A man may go to his own funeral in marriage, but not often does one realize it at the time, and even less often is the supposedly happy bridegroom disposed to admit the funeral solemnity of his venture.

LAST OF GANG OF "BAD MEN"

How Citizens Wiped Out the "Dalton Crowd" When They Raided Coffeyville, Kansas.

Among the many desperadoes who menaced the public in the then territory of Oklahoma in the late eighties and early nineties was the notorious "Dalton gang," consisting of Bob, Grat, Emmett and Bill Dalton, aided by various confederates, prominent among them were Dick Broadwell and Bill Powers.

Meaning the bandits had entered an ally in the rear of one of the banks. Here they tied their horses and prepared for action. Grat Dalton, Powers and Broadwell entered the C. M. Condon bank, while Bob and Emmett hastened into the First National bank.

A terrific fight took place in and near the alley, three or four citizens being killed and several wounded. John Kiocher, a livernium, killed Bob and Grat Dalton, and Bill Powers was also shot dead.

Lehman Cave in Nevada, "Surprising Natural Wonder."

Has Recently Been Converted Into a National Monument Through Presidential Proclamation.

The little town of Baker, Nev., nestled at the feet of the famous Snake range of mountains and in the very shadow of Mount Wheeler—or Jeff Davis peak, as it is more affectionately known locally—has suddenly become famous, through the dedication of Lehman cave as a national monument.

The discovery of the great cave is credited to Hayes Cook, a pioneer prospector who followed the golden rule of the desert—the easy does it.

The event was a gala day with a reading of the presidential proclamation, a musical program and the customary firing of a salute as Old Glory was raised to a peak adjoining the mouth of the cavern.

This town, located on the Grand Central highway, entertains a constant stream of visitors, and it is anticipated that more than ever will take advantage of the slight detour to Lehman cave.

Lehman cave is reputed to be one of the finest and, also one of the largest in the country. It is a veritable natural wonderland. The mammoth ice beneath an old volcanic crater, the chamber is a maze of the former tery pit. In fact, the reverse is found in Lehman cave. Here ice and snow hold sway.

A unique feature is an ordinary substitute of ice—always filled with clear cold water. There are an endless number of wonders contained in this beautiful palace of ice.

Almost midway through the maze of "ingrowing ledges" in Lake County, a placid pool of crystal waters filtered through 300 feet of lime formation, so pure as to be tasteless.

World's "Movie" Houses. In number of moving picture theaters, the United States heads the list with 17,000, in round figures.

Radium and Plants. It has been found by experiments with the action of radium on growing seeds that the rays act as a stimulus, varying in intensity with their strength, as well as with the thickness of the seed coats.

CHAPTER XIII

"Very Good, My Lady."

"Do these interest you, madame?" said Billy simply. Lady Erythea stared as though the green gems hypnotized her.

"She had done that, the necklace and looked at Billy as one might regard a materialized angel. Before she could speak, however, Mr. Alexander Lambe entered the room.

"How glaced from the emeralds to Lady Erythea's face, and then, somewhat sternly, at Billy. "How did you come by these?" said Lady Erythea, her eyes lightened grimly at the description of the emerald-trumpet at Billy. "Explain!"

"It was passing by your park gates early this morning, on my way to Syderford. It was past one, and the house was dark. When I got to the place where the lane turns into the road I heard a motorcycle coming up behind. I— I— for— coming might quickly," said Billy, turning pink. "It was slight by me, pretty near out of control. It had no lights, there was a head just ahead, and I heard it crash."

"I just ran in on them," pursued Billy. "For I didn't have to stop and figure it out that an outfit traveling like that was bound to crash. In the morning was up to my neck. They were just picking themselves up when I arrived, and they went for me—" "Was it a man and a woman?" exclaimed Mr. Lambe.

"You've hit it, sir." "My dear aunt!" cried Alexander, "the man who was with me, as you referred, that he suspected a man and a woman, on a motorcycle, of being the thieves! They can be no other than those people who ran into us yesterday on the Syderford road."

"Hold your tongue, Alexander," interrupted Lady Erythea impatiently. "The man who was with me yesterday was a head just ahead, and I heard it crash."

"There was some scrap," said Billy diffidently. "Maybe if there'd been two men I'd have done better, but the lady humpered me, and somehow I took the count. They knocked me out, and got away. But they left this behind them." He held up the emerald-trumpet. "It looks like they never knew they'd lost it. I don't know, madam, if there was anything else of yours they got. If so, I'm very sorry I didn't attach it, and rope the two thieves for you as well. But, with the pair of them, it was rather a roughhouse by me, wasn't it?"

"There was a flash of admiration on Lady Erythea's high cheekbones. "Yes, there were other jewels stolen," she said, "but their value is the merest trifle compared to what you have restored to me. These emeralds are my most precious family possession. They are historic—nothing could have reassured me for the loss of them. Your conduct has been not only intelligent, but extraordinarily gallant. May I ask your name?" "Spencer. William Spencer."

"Mr. Spencer, it is impossible for me to express my gratitude in words. I think you must be greatly pleased to have done it. It is fortunate for me the emeralds fell into such good hands. Let me say that I was about to offer a reward for information leading to the recovery of the jewels; a reward of—" Lady Erythea hesitated, and turned an inward struggle. "But— but— you must really say no to accept a hundred and fifty."

"Mind," he said quietly, "the service I did you cost me nothing. I think you must be greatly pleased to have done it. It is fortunate for me the emeralds fell into such good hands. Let me say that I was about to offer a reward for information leading to the recovery of the jewels; a reward of—" Lady Erythea hesitated, and turned an inward struggle. "But— but— you must really say no to accept a hundred and fifty."

"It was the least I could do. You will accept no recompense?" "No, madam. Anyway not in money." "You are not English, are you?" "American. And a Westerner, at that."

"Ah! You have done me a great service. Is there nothing I can do for you?" Before Billy could reply, Mr. Tarbeaux opened the door. "My lady, Inspector Panke—" Mr. Tarbeaux's gaze fell on the emeralds. He was very human for a butler, and it took him a fraction of a second to recover himself.

"Inspector Panke ardently desires to see your ladyship at once." "Show him in here," said Lady Erythea grimly. Billy did not move an eyelid. It seemed to him that Mr. Lambe's solemn eyes were watching him rather than the inspector. "You may go in," said Lady Erythea. "It was a great day in the Lambe emeralds' history. The inspector was the fifth person in whom they caused intense emotion."

"Well, have you caught the thieves?" inquired Lady Erythea, acutely. "No, my lady," answered Inspector Panke, with a shrug of the neck. "Perhaps you had better enlist the services of Mr. Spencer," said her ladyship, with a wave of her hand toward Billy. "This young man has already found the emeralds and restored them to me."

"Mr. Lambe sat chairs for them both. All four seated themselves; Lady Erythea, with an air of determination to keep abreast of affairs, her ear-trumpet close to Billy and the policeman. Billy repeated his tale with fuller detail this time, and described, not without a twinge of embarrassment, his downfall at the hands of Calamity Kate. Lady Erythea's eyes lightened grimly at the description of the emerald-trumpet at Billy. "Explain!"

"It was passing by your park gates early this morning, on my way to Syderford. It was past one, and the house was dark. "But— but— you must really say no to accept a hundred and fifty."

"The inspector made a note. "What is your occupation?" "Motor engineer." "Engineer?" queried the inspector, glancing at his hands."

"Well, say motor mechanic," said Billy grinning. "And proud of it." "Are you employed with any firm?" "No, my own at present." "Inspector Panke closed his notebook with a snap. "I must return to my duties, your ladyship. I congratulate you on recovering the emeralds. He bowed gracefully to Mr. Lambe and darted at Billy a penetrating glance. "You are a pattern little, you desire to see me again, I shall find you when I want you. I am Inspector Panke."

"The door closed behind him. "It is a pleasure," said Lady Erythea, then grimly, "to reduce the self-esteem of that very fatuous person. She turned to Billy with increased interest. "You are a motor mechanic. And out of employment. Would you care for a situation as chauffeur? I can offer you," said Lady Erythea, "four pounds a week, and all found."

Billy was submerged by two waves of emotion. The first was a strangled desire for laughter. The second, an instant determination to clutch at the offer, with its amazing possibilities and advantages that opened before him. Thought was a very fluid thing with Billy. "Done!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, my lady!" announced Billy, into the ear-trumpet. "I should like you with me today. There are quarters for you over the garage, and the uniforms of the man I discharged. You will only be required to go out once this evening. At five-thirty—" Lady Erythea checked herself. "But I forgot. You will require a day or two's vacation. Your car is a strenuous night. Your head is injured."

"That doesn't amount to a sketchee, my lady," said Billy quickly. "My head's all right. I can be ready by this afternoon."

"Very well, if you are sure. It will be convenient. My coachman is away for a few days. I leave the two motors as in order. Take the smaller one, the Panhard luggage-car, and meet the 6:30 train at Stanhope. There will be a young woman on the train. She is coming here as parlor maid. Bring her and her boxes. You understand?" "Bring her and her boxes, my lady," said Billy. "What's her name?"

"The name is immaterial. She is for Jervais. It is curious," added Lady Erythea impatiently, "how my memory fails me. I forget the woman's name. Alexander, you remember I spoke to you of this matter? The young man that I engaged on the recommendation of your uncle—she was in his service. The daughter of one of his keepers—Lord Scroope gave her an exemplary character, she is coming on a fortnight's trial."

"Snooks was the name you told me," said Billy. "The young person's name is Snooks," said Lady Erythea to Billy. "That will preclude all possibility of mistake. I regret, Spencer, that you would not allow me to recompense you, but I have no doubt that I have acquired an excellent chauffeur. And now you will be glad of a bath and a meal."

"She rang for the butler, and gave him an order. Mr. Tarbeaux and Billy departed in each other's company. Alexander Lambe breathed heavily. "My dear aunt," he said, "you are a law to me, and I have known you do some remarkable things. But it is wise to engage a servant a man of whom you know nothing, without character or references?" "Alexander," said his aunt, "you almost betray implicitly. What better references could I have than the restoration of my emeralds and the refusal of a reward, when the man could have made a fortune for himself without any risk of detection?" Mr. Lambe was dumb.

"That admirable creature Bonall," said Lady Erythea, "had unexceptionable character and was a chauffeur eighteen months to the bishop's chestier. You know what his record was here." She turned upon Alexander. "Do you, a shepherd of men, pretend to say that you think that young man anything but absolutely honest?" "I observed him, and I am certain he is honest," said Alexander after a pause. "But— his manner is very peculiar."

"We must make allowances," proclaimed Lady Erythea, "for the independence of the American. In theory I have always believed it detestable. Actually I find it not unattractive." (Continued in Next Issue)

Excellent idea. It is a good thing for all of us not only to have our eyes on our work, but also to have in the back of our heads a picture of what the relation of our work is to the general scheme of world progress.—H. B. Thayer.

URGE CHANGING COUNTY STATUS TO SAVE MONEY

Claim Sum of About $10,000 a Year Would Be Gained by Re-Classification Plan

Among the advantages of changing the classification of Twin Falls county from second class, as at present, to first class, as proposed in petitions now circulated, would be a saving estimated at $10,000 a year through the elimination of assessments on warrants over three months periods, according to O. E. Carlson, county commissioner.

"Under the present classification the commissioners are required to meet once every three months for payment of bills. As a consequence county warrants extend over the three months period and are discounted during that time."

The salaries of the county commissioners under the present classification is $600 a year, whereas the salary in the first class counties is $1200 a year.
