

GROWTH MEANS MORE EXPENSES TO CALIFORNIA

State Budget Likely to Exceed Prospective Revenues. Because of Necessary Outlay for Constructive Enterprises

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 9 (AP)—The great increase in population and material resources of California has created an abnormal demand for constructive enterprises, particularly education, with its many ramifications, roads and welfare agencies, says the annual report of State Controller Roy L. Riley, made public here recently.

The report predicted that the budget of the state administration would exceed prospective revenues, hence, prospective of a drastic program, and make necessary the development of other resources of revenue for the state.

Regarding growth of the state's demands for education, roads, and welfare agencies, the report says:

"These emergencies have been met by bond issues from time to time until the total bond indebtedness for public purposes has reached staggering proportions.

"The interest and sinking fund requirements are a substantial item in all government budgets. We have been unable to secure favorable interest rates upon past bond issues and our credit has remained unimpaired.

"It is obvious that what we at present regard as an abnormal increase in population will in fact be for California a condition of normalcy for many years to come and future necessities will inevitably become more difficult to finance unless our constructive programs are kept well within the ability of the taxpayers to meet the increased demands.

"State Controller A. B. Nye's biennial report of 1910 commented extensively upon the growth of county expenditures, pointing out that they had increased more than 118 per cent between 1900 and 1910, and that the total levy for that year was $27,789,109.82.

"The total county tax levy of California for the year 1922-1923 amounts to $132,045,948.78, an increase of $12,355,069 over last year, or practically ten per cent."

APPROVES DEBT FUNDING TERMS

House Votes, 291 to 44, to Amend Law to Authorize the British Settlement

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Approval of the British debt settlement agreement was voted late today by the house, 291 to 44.

One republican, McCormick of Montana, and 43 democrats opposed the settlement, while 227 republicans, 63 democrats and one socialist member, Meyer London of New York, voted for it.

The house vote was on an amendment to the existing funding statute, which not only would specifically approve the agreement reached with the British government, but would authorize the American debt commission to make settlements, "similar, but not more favorable in terms," with other debtor nations. The amendment will be formally transmitted to the senate tomorrow and immediate consideration by the finance committee is planned. The time of senate action, however, still is problematical.

Amendment Efforts Fail

There was no effort in the house to attach a soldiers' bonus rider to the legislation and attempts to amend it otherwise failed.

Amid some jeers and laughter, the house voted down a motion by Representative O'Connor, democrat, Texas, to recommit the legislation with instructions to the ways and means committee to add a provision that the measure could not become effective until the Hay-Fauntleroy treaty dealing with the Panama canal had been abrogated.

Chairman Forney of the committee, who had charge of the bill for the majority, then called for the final vote, asking for a roll call to show the world, as he expressed it, "that the American congress is practically a unit behind the debt commission in this settlement."

TONOPAH'S FIRST BABY RECEIVES BIRTHDAY GIFT

GRASS VALLEY, Cal., Feb. 9 (AP)—It was worth several hundred dollars for Butler Massey, a young man formerly of this city, to be born in Tonopah, Nev., very soon after the late "Jim" Butler made his famous gold discovery that is said to have brought the mining district of Tonopah into existence. He was the first child born in and in honor thereof Butler deposited $100 to the credit of the baby in a San Francisco bank.

Massey came into possession of the money—increased ten fold by interest—when he was 21 years old, a few months prior to the death of his benefactor.

HUGHES BALKS AT INQUISITION

Secretary of State Declines to Divulge Further Details in Reparations Situation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Secretary Hughes declared in a letter today to Chairman Lodge of the senate foreign relations committee that written statements and documents he had recently submitted to the committee constituted all the information the state department possessed and which it was compatible with the public interest to divulge on the reparations question, and therefore any "oral explanations" before the committee by the secretary would be unnecessary.

The appearance of Mr. Hughes before the committee had been requested by Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, in connection with the latter's resolution for the appointment of official American representatives with the reparations commission. Mr. Hughes' letter was interpreted as a virtual refusal to appear before the committee on this subject, although he indicated that he might if an additional request on some specific question should be forth coming.

Secretary Hughes tonight made public correspondence with Senator Lodge and with Senator Robinson.

No Explanations Needed

In answer to Senator Lodge's letter of February 6, in which he transmitted without comment the request of Senator Robinson, Secretary Hughes said in part:

"As the letter has been transmitted for my consideration, I may say that no 'oral explanations' are needed. Without derogating from the right of the executive, acting through the secretary of state, to determine the instructions to be given to agents in the exercise of the authority of the executive in conduct of affairs, I have in ways sought in an appropriate manner to supply to your committee the information it desired so far as was compatible with the public interest."

CALIFORNIA STUDENTS TO FORETELL LIFE OF CHRIST

SANTA CLARA, Cal., Feb. 9 (AP)—The life of Christ will be portrayed here and at the Clive Auditorium in San Francisco next April and May by students of the University of Santa Clara, according to Martin V. Merle, in charge of the production. Heretofore, in compliance with the wishes of Clay M. Greene, author of "The Passion Play of Santa Clara," it had been decided that the play should not be held at the campus.

The San Francisco performances will be for the benefit of St. Ignace church and St. Ignace college of that city.

Mr. Krause says there are 100 machines in Ketchikan with only ten miles of improved highway, or about eleven cars to the mile.

Theme of Lincoln's Lost Speech Lives

Bloomington Audience Hears of Incident in which Reporters Forgot to Write.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Feb. 9 (AP)—That the bone and sinew of Lincoln's lost speech was never lost and that the speech itself never has been found and never will be found, were the theories advanced by Dr. William E. Barton in an address delivered here tonight on "Lincoln and Liberty." Dr. Barton spoke at the State Normal College of "The Education of Abraham Lincoln," and later at the Lions' Club.

He spoke of the intimate relations of Lincoln with Bloomington, and especially of the "lost speech," delivered there at the convention at which the republican party of Illinois was organized, May 29, 1858. Dr. Barton said:

"I believe that the Peoria speech must have contained the bone and sinew of the Bloomington speech which is known as Lincoln's lost speech. Such a speech a man does not create out of the blue sky; it takes time to grow in him. Secondly I believe that Whitney secured much of the spirit and some of the phraseology of the lost speech. But in the third place I do not believe that the lost speech ever could have been reproduced.

"Lincoln probably tried to reproduce it a few nights later at a ratification meeting in Springfield, but there came out to that meeting only Lincoln, his partner, William H. Harrison, and an otherwise undistinguished man. No man in a crowd could be chairman, without opposition, and he took the chair amid what the press report, prepared by Harrison, described as 'tearful calls.'" But do you suppose that Lincoln repeated his lost speech to two men and a hall of otherwise empty chairs? He said just enough to get a good report in the papers. No man can deliver a great address to empty chairs.

"The reporters were so interested in Lincoln's great speech they forgot to report it."

Salt Lake Station Broadcasts Message to Frank Lambson, Believed Somewhere in Northwest

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 9 (AP)—"Your mother is dying, come at once." This is the message radio station KDFL of this city broadcast to a son whose whereabouts was unknown in answer to a letter asking for aid in finding Frank Lambson, ex-service man. His mother, Mrs. Myra Foley, was dying in a local hospital. The letter, signed by A. J. Foley, Eureka, Utah, was as follows: "Just a line, asking your help in trying to locate Frank Lambson, who is somewhere in Idaho, Washington or Oregon. His mother, Mrs. Myra Foley, is slowly dying at the Holy Cross Hospital at Salt Lake City."

It was requested that anyone who had information that might lead to Frank Lambson's location, get in communication at once with Mr. Foley.

Girl Fugitive From Pogom Now Aide to City Attorney

San Francisco's First Woman Assistant in Municipal Legal Department Was Refugee

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9 (AP)—Thirty years ago Mary Rantz Schwab, then 4 years old with her parents and two younger brothers, landed in New York from Russia, a sick and poverty-stricken little immigrant, having barely escaped with her life during a wholesale massacre of the Jews. The other day, in the presence of city officials, representatives of the Bar Association and members of civic and fraternal organizations, Mary Rantz Schwab was sworn in by Mayor James Rolph as Assistant City Attorney of San Francisco, the first woman to hold that position here.

The thirty years that lay between her failure and success were years of hardship and tragedy for the immigrant girl. In the old country her father had been wealthy, but upon his arrival she was able to gain employment only as a laborer. There was a large over-increasing family to support, and long before the girl reached her teens, she was working ten hours a day in a factory, doing her share to earn the family's daily bread.

In the interval between her first job and her admission to the bar, two years ago, Miss Schwab's occupations were many and varied. She sold newspapers, worked in several factories learned stenography and then worked in offices. She got into the labor movement and was paid secretary of the Auto Bus Operators' Union of San Francisco, which organization she represented as a delegate to the San Francisco Labor Council. Eventually she took up the study of law, was graduated from law school, was admitted to the bar and had built up quite a lucrative practice by the time of her appointment to her present position by City Attorney George Lafl. Her parents both died before her work reached fruition.

"I took up the study of law," she said, "because all my life I have keenly resented the lack of justice in this world, and I wanted to be in a position where I could do a little to obtain justice for the oppressed."

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 9 (AP)—Finding a family that persisted in getting lost, individually, was the recent experience of Sergeant Fred R. Busch of the local marine recruiting office. A mother sought his assistance in finding her son, Heber D. Hogan, Jr., from whom she had not heard for several weeks. Busch traced the boy to Mare Island, Cal., but when he went to report his find, he had to begin all over again. The mother was lost.

Richest Indian in World Harks Back to Camp Fire Days

Jackson Barnett, Wealthy by Discovery of Oil on Land, Divides Estate Before Death

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Feb. 9 (AP)—Jackson Barnett, the world's richest Indian, has returned to his own. Harking back to the camp fire days, the aged Indian last night discarded the modern civilization of beds and silk pajamas in honest slumber on a rude pallet of quilts before the flickering grate fire in the living room of his $30,000 bungalow.

Jackson, for the first time in over two years, is alone and can do just as he pleases.

His wife, to whom he recently bequeathed $500,000 in cash and liberty bonds, left this morning with her daughter, Miss Maxine Lowe, for Los Angeles.

Jackson said tonight that his wife wanted him to go to California to live ever since their trip to the west coast last summer, but he refused because it was "too far from home."

Under the terms which the wealthy Indian disposed of most of his fortune recently Mrs. Barnett was bequeathed $500,000, of which she placed $200,000 in trust for his benefit, the principal to revert to her on his death. She holds the remaining $250,000 outright. Jackson from this and other sources is assured a life income of $50,000 a year.

A reporter called at Barnett's home, a mile from Muskogee, tonight and obtained the first interview ever granted by Barnett when his wife was not present. The old Indian arose from a rude pallet of quilts he had made before the fire in the living room to receive the interviewer.

When questioned regarding the recent disposal of his fortune, which was effected in Washington, he said: "Well, they give me lot' over here near Sapulpa an' they find oil well on it. Lot of money. I got plenty money long as I live an' they say no use to have 'em fight over it after I'm dead. So we fix it so there won't be none left."

GERMANY BUILDS SHIPS

Beats Pre-War Record with Output of 625,000 Tons in 1922 as Compared with 465,000 Tons in 1913

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Germany has beaten her pre-war ship building record, according to figures published here. Her output in 1922 was 625,000 tons, as compared with 509,000 tons in 1921, 440,000 tons in 1914, and 465,000 in 1913.

The German shipbuilding industry does not seem to have suffered from the general depression and, owing to the low cost of production, it apparently has become a formidable competitor to the industry in the United States and Great Britain.

MISSOURI SEEKS ORCHIDS

Expedition in Quest of Rare Species for Botanical Gardens Will Travel to South America

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 9 (AP)—In an effort to make the orchid collection of the Missouri Botanical Gardens one of the largest in the world, an expedition of floriculturists will go to Columbia, South America, in search to obtain additional plants. It was announced.

The varieties, including Trichanema and Centropogon, of the mauve variety, the species especially sought, it was explained, in addition the party will search for rare species.

The quarantine against importation of foreign plants maintained by the Department of Agriculture to prevent importation of injurious insects will be lifted for the expedition, it is said.

Glass Eyes.
The invention of glass eyes is lost in obscurity. Records show that they were used by the Egyptians, Romans and Venetians many centuries ago. The priests as early as 600 B. C. were known to have made them. The earliest known mention of the modern form of artificial eyes occurs in an illustrated work on surgery written by a French surgeon—Ambroise Pare, published in Paris in 1561.

Tailor-Made Advertising

One great fact must be remembered by those who have made the decision to advertise. The advertising plan must fit the business to which it is applied. There are no ready-to-wear advertising plans; each one must be tailor made.

The purpose of advertising is to increase business and not to relieve any one of his arduous duties. The manufacturer's salesman who regards advertising as a substitute for his own efforts has missed the point. His efforts are needed more than ever to support the advertising and put it across. His reward is larger sales.

Likewise, the merchant who chooses the advertised brands because they are "soft and easy" selling, has overlooked the essential idea. Certainly they sell easier; but this is not the big important truth. Rather, he should see that the manufacturer's advertising is an instrument put into his hands for increasing his volume and speeding up his turnover. Looking at the matter in this light, he will bend every effort to co-operate with the advertising and seek to make it pay him additional profits.

Advertising is not a form of perpetual motion that goes on forever without human assistance. The biggest problem any man has to settle after he has determined to advertise, and decided how to advertise, is this: How can I use my advertising so as to get the most out of it? Without close-linked co-operation it dissipates its force into air.

It must be hitched on to a business properly. Then it must be utilized with intelligence. When these conditions are fulfilled it does a type of work for which there is no efficient substitute.

BANK NOTES

Only four First National men showed up and the fifth man's score was bowled by the four members present.

Linville and Company looked good, with Linville looking good.

Peck knocked down 138 in the first game and held up the second affair while having his picture taken.

Patrick tickled the timber for 143 in the opener, and then stopped for the rest of the day.

Stettler had an average of 143 for the afternoon, which isn't bad for a young fellow.

Rydahl talked himself out of several strikes, his high game being 121.

Weaver weaved 110 in the first and 91 in the second, winning the concrete toothbrush.

Fix was decidedly off color, not being able to pass 119.

Ryan did some nice bowling with 133 and 149. The price of Ryan wheat should show a tendency to go up.

Meat Cutters Meet on Bowling Alleys

The first game went to the Independents by the score of 613 to 590 with Connie Magel taking high game with 160.

In the second game, the Independents began to worry about the way they had treated the Central men in the opener, and after they had wiped away the tears, the Centrals had come in under the wire with a score of 585, with soft hearted Independents having had 585. Howard Bolz was high with 151.

The last game was another heart-breaker (for the Independents) the Centrals men winning by the score of 663 to 578. By a supreme effort Harry Vogel took high in this game with 150.

Well, the first of the butchers' series went over without any cutting remarks.

The Independents thought that the Centrals would be easy 'meat' but found that they were 'tough.' Not the meat, the bowlers.

Harry Vogel, captain, manager and chief counsel for the victors, played a heady game, making his brains do most of the work.

Lou Dickson, making his first appearance before the footlights, did exceptionally well. Lou is a dandy butcher.

Burley Overwhelms Buhl Cage Artists

BURLEY, Feb. 9.—(Special to The News.)—Playing so fast that the Buhl basketball team failed to discover what was happening, the Burley cage artists slaughtered the visitors by the score of 74 to 9.

Unable at any time during the contest to keep up with the brilliant floor work and arrow-like passing of the home team, the Buhl team made a sorry showing, shooting but three baskets during the entire game.

The score at the end of the first half was 33 to 2 in favor of Burley. In the last half, Coach Underwood put the lanky Griffith in at center, which meant more trouble for the Westend five. Griffith caught seven baskets, receiving the ball so far over the heads of the Buhl lads that it was impossible to stop him.

The wall at the end of the floor also bothered the enemy.

Worthington was the bright star for the home team, shooting 10 baskets, and displaying clever floor work.

Layno's passing proved to be the feature of the play.

The Buhl team plays at Rupert Saturday evening.

Natural Ability of Players and Practice to Make Hollister-Baranca Game One of Interest

Local fans who tie themselves to the high school gym tonight to see the tussle between Hollister high and the Baranca quintet will get their money's worth, according to advance predictions for an early forecast points to a game which will have all the earmarks of a scrap de luxe.

This evening's game is the nature of a deciding one, each contestant having pulled out a victory in days gone by. The personal of both teams is without doubt a number 1, some of the players on each side being worthy of admittance into the best high school company.

Rocky Kansas Wins Battle with White

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Rocky Kansas of Buffalo, delivered a severe beating to Charley White of Chicago, in a $2,500 bout at Madison Square Garden tonight, to pave the way for the winner meeting Champion Benny Leonard in a title match this year.

Kansas was the aggressor throughout the first three rounds, White not exchanging until the second. In that session Kansas rocked the Chicagoan with a peppering of both hands and a left to the jaw, and in the third round Kansas again staggered him with a stiff left jab.

Rocky's margin in the fourth was not so wide but in the fifth he was all over Charley, pummeling and pounding him with both hands.

White was furious mixing in the 13th, each cut the other's eye, and White, had Kansas receding but spent his efforts and was easy prey in the 14th. Kansas lambasted White in the 15th.

White was 122 ounces over the 135 pounds limit, but whether he will be forced to forfeit his weight guarantee of $2,500 will not be determined until tomorrow. Kansas tipped the beam at 133.

This lad puts forth his best efforts and always demonstrates he is a player of the highest calibre.

Lindsay Holdman and Morrit Erbland will be paraded as guards in the Hollister territory, and these worthies, fast and lucky, should sound the funeral knell of their basket shooting opponents. It's a rosy outlook for the Baranca but then it must be remembered they've both licked each other and it won't be one-sided.

LASCELLES NOW LIVING IN YORKSHIRE ESTATE

Viscount and Bride who is Daughter of England's King and Queen, Establish Residence at Country Home
LONDON, Feb. 9. (AP)—The Lascelles have moved into their country home, Goldborough Hall, in Yorkshire, which has been entirely remodelled to suit the taste of the Viscountess who, before her marriage, was Princess Mary.

During the last six months contractors have reconstructed the interior of the Elizabethan mansion. The lack of corridors, the principal drawback to which the Princess called attention, has been remedied and it is not now necessary to pass through one room to another, a characteristic of mansions built during that period.

In its original state the house had a room at one corner, containing a deep recessed window. By a curious exercise of the taste of a later century, the restorers chose to cut the window off from this room and, blocking up some of the openings for glass, made a side room of it. The Princess had the room restored to its former character of three centuries ago, and today it is her private sitting room.

In the matter of bath rooms, Goldborough Hall was thought to be well supplied when two were installed a few years ago, both attached to guest chambers. There are now ten.

Special agreements have been provided for royal guests and it may be assumed that the Hall, which centuries ago was the favorite gathering place of the gentry of the country, will once more be the scene of varied entertainments and parties.

WORLD LIKELY TO RUN SHORT OF SWEETENING

Commerce Department Report on Sugar Production and Consumption Conditions Indicates Shortage This Year

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—A world sugar shortage this year is indicated in a report on world production and consumption conditions made public today by the commerce department.

The year starts, the report says, with four million tons Cuban crop in prospect, a big crop in Java and a greatly increased production in Europe but decreases elsewhere, particularly in the United States, are expected to bring world production to a point only about 125,000 tons above that of last year.

Figures listed for 1921-22 revealed a raw sugar production in America of 8,851,000 tons; in Asia, 5,245,000 tons; Australasia, 3,641,000 tons; Africa, 2,100,000 tons; Europe, 4,037,000 tons, while 1922-23 estimates placed the output in America at 7,117,000 tons; Asia 5,000,000 tons; Australasia, 3,320,000 tons; Africa, 553,000 tons; Europe 4,615,000 tons.

An outstanding feature of the present sugar situation, the report adds, is the small carry-over in Cuban this year.

SENDS WHISKEY MAKERS TO JAIL

Four La Montagne Brothers, Distillers, are Convicted of Releasing Liquor

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Jail sentences for bootlegging were imposed today on the four La Montagne brothers, distillers, all of them socially prominent and on internationally known as a polo player. Bail of $15,000 each was continued until Thursday, they might wind up their business this afternoon before entering the Essex county, New Jersey, penitentiary.

The quartet recently were indicted by a federal grand jury which investigated a dinner at the fashionable Baccarat and Ritz club on Park avenue at which liquor was alleged to have flowed freely. The charges against the brothers were conspiring to violate the Volstead act and defrauding the government on taxes through removal of liquor from bond on forged permits. At the time the indictments were returned the men were hailed by government officials as proof that none was so high in society as to be beyond reach of the dry laws.

Change Pleas to Guilty. Charged with having released 30,000 gallons of liquor in New York, they entered pleas of not guilty to both charges against them. Today, however they changed their pleas to guilty.

Montague LaMontagne, president of the corporation, was sentenced to two months in jail and fined $2000. Four months in jail and fined $2000 each were imposed on the other three—Reno M., the polo player, Morgan E. and William A.

In presenting the case of Montague to Judge Winslow, United States District Attorney Hayward said he thought he deserved some leniency. Montague was in France on business when the offenses were committed, but admitted general knowledge of them.

Distinguished lawyers appeared in court to plead for the brothers. The court was filled with men and women, many of them socially prominent. They showed almost no concern as the "society bootleggers," as they previously had been described,

COL. LITTAUER FIGHTS TO STOP WEDDING

Col. William A. Littauer

COLONEL WILLIAM LITTAUER, multi-millionaire, of New York and Washington, whose effort to secure an injunction in Paris to prevent the wedding of his daughter, Catherine Louise, to William E. Doeller, New York automobile man, was a failure, is to make a second legal effort to keep the wedding bells from ringing. The French civil courts dismissed his application for an injunction on the grounds that Miss Littauer was an American and free from the French law, which requires women to have their parents' consent to marry before the age of 21. Her father's appeal from this decision prevented her from immediately marrying the man of her own choice.

86 MEN STILL ENTOMBED

Cause Remains Unexplained

The cause of the explosion still remains unexplained. J. H. Morrow, outside superintendent of the mine, declared it would be impossible to fix the exact cause of the blast at this time, owing to the dismantled condition of the property. One theory is that a column of dust, raised by a passing motor in the main shaft of the mine may have been ignited by a short circuit. Another is that a spark, caused by a pick striking against a rock in the mine may have set fire to the accumulated dust.

Afford Grim Evidence

From the condition of four bodies taken from a point near the center of the mine late in afternoon, indications are that the blast centered near the heart of the workings. The four bodies were terribly burned, every vestige of clothing had been burned away, and their forms were scarcely almost beyond recognition.

Other bodies taken out of the mine earlier today did not show such burns. Officials are inclined to the belief that the four were caught by the full force of the detonation.

Tunnel number 11 south has been almost completely wrecked by the blast. This cut is a considerable distance in the interior.

The two men who miraculously escaped the death-dealing concussion of the explosion were working in cross cut four north. This is believed by mine officials to indicate that the section of the workings was not so badly damaged as other parts of the shaft.

Cross Cut Openings Crumble

Rescue workers and repairing crews, penetrating slowly into the main entry, declare the openings into the cross cuts have been crumbled by the blast, making it necessary to rebuild such portions of the tunnels and cross cuts before proceeding further. From these reports, it is a virtual certainty, according to experienced miners here, that the whole interior of the mine was affected by the explosion and the entire workings damaged to an extent that will require several months to repair.

Only a handful of spectators remained about the mine tonight. Among them were wives, sisters and sweethearts of the tollers whose fate is still unknown. In the homes of the workers, fringing the spider-like tips of the tunnel entrance, there are those whose loved ones perished, and who have seen a husband, father or brother carried in the underground tomb onto a stretcher that is always carried back.

Seven Homes Fatherless

Thus far, only seven families have been left fatherless by the explosion. Three-fourths of the identified dead were unmarried. Eight of the identified were American citizens.

Scott Dupont, general inside superintendent, led rescuers in their work today, after suffering injuries in the explosion yesterday. He was about to enter the mouth of the mine when he saw the mine car coming out of the tunnel. As he stepped back, the tongue of flame and smoke burst from the opening with a roar. He was knocked down and burned by the flaming dust. Today, despite his crippled condition, he entered the workings and all day directed the actions of those who are rebuilding the tunnel and searching for the bodies of their comrades. The mine car, which was bearing the entrance, was knocked over the track by the explosion and the crew was killed instantly. The overturned car, lying near the entrance to the tunnel covered with a great mass of debris, is hampering the work of rescue.

Stricken Ones Wait

All day today the narrow, precipitous road leading from the city of Dawson to the mine was crowded with automobiles carrying workers and mine officials to the scene of the disaster. Along the road and the railroad tracks which skirt it hundreds of women and children made their way to the scene of the explosion. Some of these were the widows and orphans. There were the mothers, who, with their own weary hands, washed the faces of their children, and their own.

Many wore an air of resignation, others of hope, as they plodded back to their tiny homes as twilight dropped over the Cimarron plateau and night began to spread its concealing shadow over the group of over-crowded mine who intermittently passed back and forth into the death chamber.

Funeral Aid Prevails

Huddled in little groups about some of the homes, the work-worn women of the mine in consolation to those whose homes had felt the hand of death. On the streets of Dawson tonight, toll-legged men trod the streets in small groups. There were no cheery hand-claps, no hoarse laughter—only the stolid demeanor of men who lost a comrade or a brother.

Behind the still canvas-wrapped forms of 14 of Dawson's mine victims Justice Kinney tonight began the coroner's inquest, which will continue until all the men who were killed at the time of the explosion have been accounted for. Following removal of all the men or bodies in the mine, the coroner's jury will make a trip of inspection through the workings in an effort to determine the cause of the blast.

And workers devoted themselves to cleaning up the carcasses in which the majority of the miners were working when the blast occurred.

See "Slim Hope"

A mine official pointed out that there was a possibility that some of the men with long years of experience in working underground finding themselves in distant parts of the carcasses after the blast sealed themselves in—to exclude the poisonous gases and may still be alive. If expressed the belief, however, that it was a "slim hope."

Death Stills Voices

That four other miners, entombed within carload of Felini Martini and Charles Candale, the two survivors, lived through Thursday night but succumbed to the poisonous gases which filtered into every crevice of the mine after the explosion was tip story vouched for by the two.

"All night long we heard voices in another cross-cut near us," Martini said tonight, "but we were afraid. We did not talk. Bye and bye we started out through the mine. We found the bodies of four men. All were dead. Probably they were those we heard during the night."

Throughout Thursday night, guards at the entrance of the mine keeping back relatives of the miners were forced to restrain Mrs. Martini, wife of the miner, from rushing into the black pit into which her husband had vanished hours before. Tonight she is one of the two women in Dawson who can smile.

The bodies removed from the mine tonight showed the effects of the explosion. The concussion in many instances crushed the skulls of the workmen and falling debris broke the arms and legs of some of the miners and crushed the bodies of others.

Rescuer Overcome

W. D. Brennan, manager of the mine, who was the first man to enter the workings after the explosion, was at his home under a doctor's care tonight. Poisonous gases which he inhaled while leading the rescue work drew heavily on his vitality and to prevent a collapse he was ordered to his home to recuperate.

Identification of most of the victims is being established as they are brought to the surface by means of the metal discs issued to them when they go on shift. The discs contain numbers which are placed adjacent their names on the shift roll.

Rescue workers and repairmen had penetrated the mine to a depth of 4000 feet along the main tunnel up to midnight. All the haulage passageways have been cleared of debris resulting from the explosion, it was announced.

of county commissioners in Idaho from two to six years, failed in the house today, when a two-thirds vote on a house joint resolution could muster a vote of but 38 to 23.

Constitutional amendment is required to change the length of commissioner's terms.

Introduced by W. D. Huffaker and Charles E. Anderson, republicans, of Bonneville county, and Representatives Johnson of Cassia and Swift of Lemhi counties, the joint resolution has been in the house since early in the session. No move to reconsider the resolution has been made, but its defeat was a surprise. Another county commissioner bill passed the house today, which provides for the districting of counties in the month of April instead of July.

In a lengthy afternoon session the lower house passed two bills affecting school districts, allowing trustees to fix the length of term at seven months and naming the first Monday in September as the opening of the school year in Idaho.

Votes Insurance Fund

Appropriating $21,840 for the use of the insurance fund, the senate today passed the second house appropriation bill of the session.

Other measures passed provide that only freeholders and heads of families may act as school trustees, and a bill providing for a two-year term for water masters, with a recall provision. When a county is organized into a highway district it would get 40 per cent of the auto license money, should a house bill presented today change a law.

Cane-Brake Explosions

Cane stalks being hollow, having no pith, and being divided inside every few inches into sections, are very combustible when dried in the sun, and the air confined within the hollow sections warmed by the external heat explodes with very considerable force, so that a cane-brake on fire gives the idea of a continued roar of distant musketry.

One of the things which the Idaho Legislature might profitably undertake would be to amend the seal bounty law on public office holders as to make the bounty payable to the State instead of to the informer.

KEEP RIGHT ON AT IT

Unless somebody or other is sufficiently interested to take steps to prevent it, Twin Falls County hereafter is going to pay her commissioners salaries of fifteen hundred dollars a year instead of nine hundred, as at present.

This is the kind of economy in which the "can" is writ large but anybody has to do to bring it about to wit tight girdle do nothing.

Legally, there is no difference whatever among the various classifications of counties in the matter of the issuance of warrants.

If Twin Falls were made a first class county it is extremely doubtful if the present or any other county board would deliberately violate its members' oath of office to change the quarterly payment plan as at present in effect—

COMMON JUSTICE

They were to share a tent, while she had one nearby. She gave them comforting advice and thought all was well when they were recalled by them the first night out by being asked in fearful tones if there were wild animals in this part of the mountain.

"Oh, certainly," she said. "They're all about." "But will they get into our tent?" they asked.

"Oh, I don't believe so—possibly just a little gopher or a chipmunk. Of course, if you hear a bear you may call me, though I hardly think you will see one or more of them."

CHAPTER XV. Exposed. Lady Erythen, as she knitted, and picking up a torsetta, inspected the new parlor maid with icy deliberation.

"I need not examine you as to your capacity for your duties, or your character. These have been vouchsafed by Lord Scroope. My housekeeper will instruct you in the rules of the establishment, which all my domestics are required to keep strictly. There is, however, one warning that I must give you."

"There is no answer," she said to the butler. "Lord Scroope is prevented from coming. Cancel the orders I gave you regarding his arrival."

"Very good, my lady." Almee's heart leaped with joy. But her face remained unmoved. She continued to look demurely at the carpet.

apprehension, conducted her to the women-servants' hall. The housekeeper was absent. At Jeruval the male and female servants were segregated in separate apartments for meals.

"Ladies," he said gravely, "Miss Amy Snooks, late of Scroope Towers." And took his leave.

"What's that feedin' like at Scroope?" asked an elderly housemaid opposite her, in a hollow voice.

"The morning sun, full of the promise of a fair day, shone through the windows of the long drawing room. Almee, in a snow-white cap and apron, was wielding a feather brush among priceless knick-knacks.

"I wonder how long I can stick it!" she murmured to herself, despondent tones. "Wattson shepherdless escaped destruction by a miracle."

"In all my life I never saw such a lot of trumps. And the taste it leaves in one's mouth—it's awful. It's all very well sitting tight and saying nothing, 'til you have to get down."

"Are you the new parlor maid?" she said frankly. "Hullo, George!" he exclaimed. "George, during the last three days, had suffered more than any placed soul should be called upon to endure.

"I will be quiet. I will," she said faintly. "What else does it mean, Almee? Why?"

"I'm better than having you wondering about the country, getting into all sorts of horrible scrapes. It will have to do with you, and then Lady Erythen." "Yes, yes. Never mind Aunt. I want you to do, George, is this—oh, bother!"

Almee seized her brush and, darting to the sideboard, began dusting busily. A step was heard on the gravel, and Mr. Almee's Lambie entered by the window.

"Cousin Almee, you are looking pale," he said in tones of concern. "It is delightful out of doors, the air is so balmy. Shall we—take a little walk in the rose—"

"Who is that?" he said sharply, stepping towards her, where was menace in his voice. "Who are you?"

"Almee," he said sharply, "go out—go out quickly! I will deal with her." "What are you going to do?" gasped Georgina. Instead of obeying him she came forward, trembling.

Almee Flourished the Feather Brush in His Face.

"She—she is your kirk-kirk-Cousin Almee!" Georgina dropped into a chair and began to cry. Alexander, taking his hand from the bell, wondered if she had suddenly become insane.

"I do not understand what this means," he said coldly, "but it does not seem an occasion for the intrusion of servants. We are alone. Will you explain?"

"I'll make it clear if I can," she said, and, looking Alexander in the face with an angelically simple expression, she told him the tale from the beginning, briefly, yet comprehensively.

Mr. Lambie passed a somewhat unsteady hand across his forehead. He looked at Almee, and then turned hastily to Georgina. "Miss Berners," he said.

"My dear child," he said gently, "I have only one wish and that is to help you."

Georgina nodded brokenly, and moved to the window. "Georgie," whispered Almee quickly, as she passed, "meet me by the little arbor down the garden in half an hour—it won't be safe here—after this."

"Almee and Alexander were left together, facing each other. There was an embarrassed pause.

Almee's lips tightened. "Come with me to Aunt Erythen," said Mr. Lambie soothingly. "I will accompany you. I'll do everything. I can for you. There is no other way. For I see, he said, "that you have courage."

"What other thing?" Almee looked at him with growing embarrassment. "Oh!" she said at last, desperately, "have I got to put it in so many words? Is he sitting at my elbow? Didn't you understand what I told you? I was there—two nights."

"I have only this to say. That man—that Spencer—who dared to expose you to such a situation, is the culprit I wish to see. He deserves—" Almee's heel smote the floor.

"Alexander suddenly flushed crimson, and he avoided Almee's eye. But his face grew peculiarly grim.
