

ORDERS INQUIRY INTO COLUMBIA BASIN PROJECT

Secretary of Interior Directs Reclamation Service to Begin Investigation of 2,000,000 Acre Tract

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—Secretary of the interior department announced today that he had directed the reclamation service to conduct the investigation of the proposed Columbia basin and Unatilla Rapids reclamation projects for which congress recently appropriated $150,000.

The secretary also announced he had designated Assistant Secretary Goodwin, whose home is in Spokane, Wash., and Director Davis of the reclamation service to advise him further as to the engineering, water level and other questions arising in connection with the projects.

Major General Goethals, retired, who has made some preliminary studies of the Columbia river basin project for private interests, Mr. Work said, may be advised later to act in a consulting and advisory capacity. Completion of the investigation Secretary Work will submit a report and recommendations to congress.

Investigation of the projects, it was said, will begin about May 1st.

The Columbia basin irrigation project, located in the Big Bend district of the Columbia river in the State of Washington, is the largest single irrigation unit in the United States. It contains 2,000,000 acres of which it is proposed to irrigate 2,000,000 acres. Eighty-five per cent of the land involved is privately owned, the remainder being public lands of the United States and Washington.

PROPOSES MODIFICATION IN GROWERS' CONTRACTS

Washington Association Manager to Suggest Claims Effective when 50 Per Cent of Crop is Signed

SPOKANE, Wash., Mar. 9 (AP)—Recommendation that a meeting of the Washington Wheat Growers' association be called for consideration of a petition to discontinue the contract with the association's trustees at a meeting here next Monday by Walter J. Robinson, general manager of the association, he announced last night.

He held that such a meeting would not be accepted by the stockholders was expressed by Mr. Robinson. A two-thirds vote would be necessary for disincorporation, he said, and he doubted if present members of the association could rally even one-third of the stockholders to their support.

Mr. Robinson also will suggest the desirability of certain modifications in grain contracts, which now call for 100 per cent of the growers' crops for six years, he said. Many members were said to believe the association must control at least 50 per cent of the state's wheat crop to be wholly effective. Mr. Robinson said he would propose to the trustees a contract to be effective only when 50 per cent of the crop was signed, to be followed by an active campaign for a majority.

The association handled about 20 per cent of the state's estimated 32,400,000 bushel wheat crop for 1922, Mr. Robinson said.

VETERANS TAKE TO LAND

Sixty-one Service Men of World War, Trained by Government, Become Farmers in Northwest States

SEATTLE, Wash., Mar. 9 (AP)—Sixty-one veterans of the world war have been thoroughly trained by the government and are established as small farmers in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, W. Homer Marsh of the veterans bureau, here from Washington met fifteen federal agricultural supervisors in the three states, reported today. He said that several hundred veterans in the three states were taking training to make them farmers. Conferences with the supervisors began today and are to end tomorrow.

Tigers Trapped in Birdlime

The small boy using some trapping with birdlime little realizes that the same material is used for catching tigers but that is what they do in some countries where the tiger roams. The sticky stuff, gallons of it, is plentifully spread amongst the leaves and twigs across the trail. Presently along comes Mr. Tiger and steps in it. He doesn't step carefully out of it and run away. He tries to bite the stuff from his feet and then it gets on his face. When he tries to rub it off he plasters it over his eyes. Finally, when he is thoroughly covered with it, he is so helpless that without much danger he can be put into a cage.

TACOMA, Wash., Mar. 9 (AP)—Ninety nice large hand-picked frogs, guaranteed to be long jumpers and burling croakers are at sea tonight in the steamer Maeda Maru destined for a life on the islands of Nippon. The frogs compose a consignment shipped from this port today to Japan for breeding purposes.

They will be held in cold storage until their new home is reached when they will be gradually thawed out and turned loose to graze, swim or whatever frogs for the foreign market are supposed to do. One thing is certain, they will not croak on the voyage. They are valued at about $1 apiece.

SALEM, Ore., Mar. 9 (AP)—For the first time since the world war, the famous 41st division is to be mobilized this summer. Adjutant General George E. White of the Oregon National Guard said today. The mobilization will take place at American Lake, Washington, July 8 and will be supervised by General Henderson at San Francisco as the date of assembly.

The divisional camp will continue for 15 days with more than 10,000 men under instruction from the national guard units of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming. It will be the first general assembly of the National Guard in many years.

PACKERS MERGE TWO COMPANIES

Armour and Morris Interests Consolidation to be Effective Upon Formal Announcement

CHICAGO, March 9 (AP)—Merger of the Armour and company and Morris and company packing plants was virtually completed today and the consolidation of their assets and interests to become effective, it was announced here tonight when it was learned that arbitrators had fixed on the date for the formal announcement to be made next Tuesday or Wednesday, it was said.

The price agreed upon in exchanging the stock will not be made public until formal announcement of the merger is made.

Filing of a complaint against the merger by Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture will not hold up the deal, it was said today, if the deal is made before the hearing on the complaint begins.

JIM BRIDGER'S PHOTOGRAPH IN MORMON CHURCH MUSEUM

SALT LAKE CITY, Mar. 9 (AP)—What is believed to be one of the few original photographs of Jim Bridger, western trapper of the early part of the last century, is in the Mormon Church museum here. It was taken about 1842 when Fort Bridger, Wyoming was established. Bridger's exploits are chronicled in all western histories and he is said to have taught Kit Carson his first lesson as a frontiersman.

Bridger, so history tells us, trapped in the intermountain country and explored a great part of what is now Utah in about 1825.

Old New England Courting Stick

Because the laws relating to wooing were so strict in old New England, a peculiar device called the courting stick came into use. This was a sort of speaking tube—a stick six feet or so long, about an inch in diameter, hollow, and with an enlargement at each end for speaking into and hearing from. A picture illustrating the method of its use represents the father seated at the dropcase, the mother busy spinning, the daughter seated on a bench by the mother knitting, while the young man caller is sitting across the room with cider mug and pitcher beside him. He is in the act of raising the courting stick to his mouth, the other end of which is lying in the lap of the young woman. The courting stick insured at least a minimum of privacy for the lovers' talk.

Pola Negri Will Marry Chaplin After All

Pola Negri, the famous Polish screen star, who recently allowed her engagement to Charlie Chaplin to be announced, today reported in Los Angeles that the engagement had been broken. She declared she was too poor to marry him. But Charlie is a fast worker. As soon as he heard of the broken engagement he rushed to Miss Negri, a reconciliation was effected, and they will be married after all. This photograph of the stars was taken during their happier moments on the golf links at Del Monte, California.

SALT LAKE TO WAR ON MOSQUITOS AND SMOKE

Utah Authorities Take Steps Toward Elimination in Near Future of Twin Nuisances

SALT LAKE CITY, Mar. 9 (AP)—Local residents battle with smoke in the winter and mosquitoes in the summer and authorities hope that the not far distant future both these nuisances will be eliminated.

Stringent measures for fire building are in force and to a great extent the winter smoke problem is fast becoming overcome. Mosquitoes also are doomed, city officers declare. For the marshy land in the vicinity of the Great Salt Lake is being covered with oil.

Many Salt Lakers say they can put up with the smoke in the winter if the mosquitoes of the summer are done away with. These pests breed fast and are quite a problem to visitors at lake resorts.

PHOTOS SOLD UNDER THEREAT TOKIO, Mar. 9 (AP)—The police

has stopped the promiscuous sale of photographs of Prince Regent and the Princess Kuni in the interest of the coming imperial wedding. Peddlers it is said, have been strenuous in their efforts to "sell" these pictures and in one district the sales were under threats of violence.

Lapis Lazuli.

Lapis Lazuli, or, as it is sometimes called, azure stone, is a mineral of beautiful ultramarine or azure color, consisting chiefly of silica and alumina with a little sulphuric acid, soda and lime. It is found in primitive limestone and granite in Siberia, China, Tibet, Chile, etc. It is generally found massive, and is translucent at the edges, but uneven, finely granular fractures, but sometimes appears crystalline in rhombic dodecahedrons, its primitive form. It was called by the Greeks and Romans sapphirine, and was highly esteemed by them as an ornamental and mosaic work, and the valuable pigment called ultramarine is made from it. The finest specimens of lapis lazuli are brought from Bokhara.

Woodpecker's Usefulness.

The wood-boring insect so destructive to forest trees has one implacable enemy—the woodpecker. Better equipped than a telephone lineman for climbing; supported by a spurred tail; provided with hooked claws for clinging to the bark; hammer-headed, chisel-beaked, and armed with a tremendously long, strong, lance-pointed, barbed, extensible tongue, the woodpecker drills through the wood directly into the spot where the borer lies hidden, pushes in the tip of his barbed tongue, spurs the victim and whips it quickly into his open beak.

CAPPER SEES BENEFITS FOR FARMERS IN LAWS

Chairman of Senate Farm Bloc Says New Legislation Will Be of Material Assistance to Agriculture

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—Reviewing acts of the last congress affecting agriculture and forecasting probable legislation in the next congress, Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, chairman of the senate farm bloc, declared "there is no quick and sure cure for the troubles of the farmer." Legislation cannot increase the price of farm products, he said, but laws which the sixty-seventh congress enacted, in his opinion, will be of material assistance to agricultural interests.

Congress erred, Senator Capper contended, in failing to accept Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals. The country should have benefit of the peace time operation of this huge enterprise, he said.

Declaring that the biggest problem before congress was that relating to transportation, the Kansas senator asserted that "freight rates are too high and must come down."

SEES TO PRODUCE SILK

SAN JOSE, Cal., Mar. 9 (AP)—What is believed to be the first experiment in producing silk in commercial quantities in the Santa Clara valley is being attempted by L. H. Albertson at his ranch north of Santa Clara. A grove of mulberry trees has been planted and silk worms will be imported from the Orient in an effort to produce silk on a profitable basis.

The Home of Patience.

You see it expressed in the exquisite carvings of Persin and in the rugs of Asia Minor, whose myriad knots, deftly placed in marvelous precision, amaze you with their infinite number. With endless perseverance, year after year, often through a lifetime, the artisan of the East will labor patiently at his task, that it may be perfect. Inspiration will not alone produce such artistic creations; only boundless patience, steadily applied, will accomplish them.

FARMERS MAKE WIDE USE OF RADIO REPORTS

Grain Market Prices and Information Broadcasted by the Department of Agriculture Prove Value to Growers

WASHINGTON, Mar. 9 (AP)—Farmers are making use of the radio in obtaining market reports. Nationwide, practical use of these reports was broadcast by the United States Department of Agriculture is indicated in a survey just completed. Nearly 50 per cent of the hundreds of returns to an inquiry sent out by radio waves from farmers who had radio-receiving equipment. The remainder of the returns were from grain dealers, mills, elevators, banks, tele phone companies, cooperative organizations, farm bureaus, and other agencies which disseminate the reports among large groups of farmers. Greatest interest was shown in the grain market reports, which inform farmers of wheat, corn and oats prices at the leading grain markets. Next in importance came the live-stock reports and prices and movements at the principal live-stock markets of the country. The weather reports came next, followed by reports on poultry products, fruits and vegetables, dairy products, hay, cotton, and other farm crops.

Middle West Leads
Radio had developed more rapidly in the Middle West in the corn, wheat and live-stock growing regions than in other farm sections. The survey shows Missouri, Illinois and Iowa lead in number of responses. Many farmers in this territory own radio equipment and praise the practical value of the service. In other sections farmers congregate at central points to get the radio reports, but an increasing disposition toward installation of sets for private use is indicated.

This is the first survey made by the department to determine how its radio market reports are being received and used by farmers and what such various information of developing the service to the maximum of efficiency it has been known in a general way that the service has been of value to producers and other agricultural interests in the marketing of crops and to consumers through the regulating of market supplies, but definite data were not available until developed by the present survey.

The department practically covers the country with its radio market news and farmers everywhere are using the service to aid them in deciding the best time of their industry. In this respect numerous farmers gave instances of specific savings resulting from use of the information, one farmer declared that he regarded it as a "direct gift from God." Numerous general stores and banks in small towns say that establishment of their places of business as a central point for receiving the reports has resulted in tremendously increased business in many directions. The service has had far-reaching results other than removing the isolation which surrounds rural centers by reason of their location from centers of activity, and the bringing of vital market data to farmers with almost immeasurable speed.

Few Without Radio
The survey shows there are now few places in rural districts where people congregate even in small groups that are without the benefits of radio. Agricultural leaders see in this the development of a true community spirit which forms a large part of the base of agricultural prosperity. The Department of Agriculture is much gratified at the popularity and practical value of the radio market news, and is planning to extend the further development and utilization of the service.

ALBANIAN GIRL BECOMES TURK TO ENTER AMERICA

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 9 (AP)—Suddenly becoming a Turk recently enabled Miss Olympia Sakalari of Albania to enter the United States after four months of travel in order to visit Bill Peters, truck driver of San Francisco. Miss Sakalari spent $125 for a railroad ticket in her native country and the railroad went bankrupt before she got far. Finally she got to a port and boarded a steamship in Greece. The steamship was laid up for a month.

After several other hitches the young woman got to Ellis Island. She was a subject of Greece and the Greek quota was full, she was not permitted to enter the United States. Here long Albania became a part of the Turkish domain and as the Turkish quota was not full she was permitted to enter this country.

Arriving in San Francisco she was aided by the Travelers' Aid Society in finding a sister. She is now preparing her trousseau. The Audubon Society. The Audubon society is an organization formed for the protection of birds. It bears the name of the well-known American naturalist and bird lover, John James Audubon (1780-1851). The society has done much to prevent the hunting of birds for their plumage and for sport, and to create a sentiment against the wearing of birds and feathers on millinery. It is largely due to the efforts of Audubon societies that large tracts of ground have been set aside as bird reservations.

Inventor Provides New Thrills With "Mosquito" Plane

Sperry Introduces Ski Planing, Using Airplane, Pair of Skis and Rope

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., March 9 (AP)—Lawrence Sperry, inventor, who yesterday successfully proved to aviation officials that aeroplanes could communicate with and obtain supplies from other planes in mid-air, today demonstrated his "mosquito" plane has uses in sport as well as in warfare. He introduced ski planing as a new outdoor recreation, in which a plane, a pair of skis and a rope were the necessary equipment. Skiing along at 60 miles an hour five feet above ground, Sperry pilot-planes they craft was a number of skiers, plunging to it by ropes and glided over the hard packed snow on the golf course of the Cherry Valley Golf club. They released the ropes when the pilots rose higher to avoid a grove of trees. Aquaplaning is tame to ski-planing, according to those who participated. The aviator gave a lesson to the crowd when he demonstrated the mobility and balance of his machine by "eyeballing" down an almost perpendicular embankment after he had equipped with skis and a rope. He negotiated the performance without accident.

WISCONSIN MILLIONAIRE BIDS FOR BROOKLYN CLUB

Former Owner of Milwaukee Ball Team is Reported Dealing Through Agent for Purchase of Dodgers

NEW YORK, March 9 (AP)—A second proposition for purchase of the Brooklyn National league baseball club was made to President Charles H. Ebbets today, according to the Brooklyn Eagle's correspondent, by Maurice Straus, Brooklyn real estate operator. Ebbets holds a half interest in the club. Straus holds the other half. Straus was acting in behalf of a millionaire resident of Fond du Lac, Wis., but refused to identify him other than as a former president of the Milwaukee club of the American Association. Straus was quoted as saying he had merely asked Ebbets' price and had not advanced a definite offer of his own. An offer of $2,000,000 for the club, made on behalf of Edward P. Shoup, wealthy Kentucky oil operator and turfman, was revealed yesterday. Ebbets, according to the correspondent, was unsatisfactory, while his partners, Edward J. and Stephen W. McKeeever, who hold the other half interest in the club, declared emphatically their holdings were not on the market at any price.

Annual Colorado Endurance Race Will Bring Together 30 Thoroughbreds, Including Seven Arabians

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., March 9 (AP)—The annual Colorado endurance race, fostered by the American Endurance riding association, which will be held here late in August, will bring together 30 thoroughbred horses, according to Major Christopher F. Cusack, one of the organizers of the seven Arabian horses, noted for their fleetness of foot, are among the entrants. "Already owners of the horses are here conditioning them. This requires a 5-mile ride each morning and afternoon now. Later training will include greater distances. The race lasts five days. Sixty miles a day are covered—30 miles back and forth." Among the horses in training are Verne Z. Reed's "Spooks," winner of the polo pony club of the National Western Horse show last January, and "Rabbit," owned by Major Cusack, which won second place last season.

Fred Brown will bring seven Arabian horses and the winner of the 1921 race for participation in the race.

GARDEN OF GODS WILL BE SCENE OF EASTER SERVICE

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., March 9 (AP)—Cathedral Spices in the Garden of the Gods will be the scene of sunrise services on Easter Sunday, held under the auspices of the West Pikes Peak Christian church, it has been announced. There will be special Easter music, and the Rev. Pius A. Bush, pastor of the church, will preside.

Origin of Nursery Rhymes.

Where did the old nursery rhymes come from? That touching little story about "Old Mother Hubbard," in whose cupboard there was at least for her, was written by a Miss Sarah Martin who, born in 1768, lies buried at Loughton, in Essex, England. How many who know the lines "There was a little girl, and she had a little curl," are aware that Macaulay wrote it? Good old Dr. Isaac Watts was responsible for "How do the little birds sing." "Mary had a little lamb" was the chief work of Mrs. Sarah J. Hale, an American, and "Twinkle, twinkle little star" came from the pen of Jane Taylor, who, with her sister Ann, worked hard in the interests of sound nursery morality.

DRIGGS DEFEATS WESTON

When it comes to uncovering a dark horse, Harry Vogel is the dean of them all. Skinner, bowling in third place, topped 547 for the evening, which only goes to prove that when you hit them right they go down.

Howard Dolz was good one time and worse the next. He allowed his average to drop when he fell to 112 in the last game.

Carl Jungst didn't do so worse. When they get to 490 for the three games they have a right to stop work for a half a day and explain it to their friends.

Fred Wahl played a mean trick on his average in the second game. A total of 96 was Fred's best effort in this game.

McMillan, the man who put the sauce in sausage, stopped at 142 for high.

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—(AP)—Regardless of the favorable ruling of K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, as to the eligibility of J. C. But the interesting thing about the Cape Cod turnip is that it will grow on farms having sandy top soil. It has proved useless to recommend that the regular Cape Codder more elsewhere.

If he wished to grow crops that did not produce to do well in the Barnegate challenge of World Champion Jack Dempsey, it was disclosed tonight by George Lawley of the Pioneer Sporting club. The syndicate proposed the bout for Winnipeg in May.

The offer, Lawley said, was conditional on Renault's showing against George Godfrey, protégé of former champion Jack Johnson, tonight. Renault knocked out his next opponent in the eleventh round of their 12-round match.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS TRAIN BOY TO RESPONSIBILITY

Governor of South Australia Tells of Young Hero who Stopped War with Courtesy and Self-Confidence

ADELAIDE, South Australia, March 9 (AP)—A great advantage of a public school education for boys is that it teaches them to assume responsibility. This was proven by the conduct of a young boy in the school of the governor of South Australia. The governor praised the training of good public schools in an address here recently to the boys of St. Peter's college, and notified his remarks with the story of an English public school boy who, standing on his own feet alone in Armenia, stopped a war with a display of courtesy, self-confidence and the Union Jack.

"It was at Tiflis in 1919," the governor said, "when I received a telegram from the central officer at Erzerum saying war had broken out between Georgia and Armenia for possession of a large tract of rich country that belonged to neither of them. I sent members of my staff with the central officer was. They said he was only a schoolboy just come from England, where he had been in the cricket eleven for ten and said that he would give him a chance, and sent him a telegram to stop the war and delimit a neutral zone."

"He was alone there, with his servant and an interpreter. I learned afterwards that, riding a mule and accompanied by the interpreter and his servant bearing the Union Jack, he visited the opposing armies and, in the name of the British empire, ordered them to cease firing. He then ordered both armies back to their units, summoned their chiefs and delimited a zone about the size of Yorkshire, over which he made himself governor. He enlisted police, appointed officials and ran a first class state for about six months. Only when we found that he was getting much into the life of the people and was revising their marriage laws, did we send an officer of more mature experience."

ARGENTINA STILL HOLDS ALOOF FROM COVENANT

Change in Administration Brings No Alteration in Attitude with Respect to League of Nations

BUENOS AIRES, March 9 (AP)—The administration of President Dr. Alvear will follow that of President Yrigoyen in respect to keeping Argentina aloof from the League of Nations. Argentina's refusal of the assembly to consider amendments to the covenant voluntarily incorporating all nations as members. In a statement published in La Nación, Foreign Minister Gallardo says: "Our attitude toward the league of nations will undergo no modification whatever for the time being. This government meets with the Argentine thesis expounded at Geneva by the ex-foreign minister, Doctor H. Puigredon, and it is moreover, not the league to be formed, should include all countries and have a democratic organization with no distinction between large and small powers. It may well happen yet that the league, if it is to be adopted in practice by the incorporation in the pact of the United States, Germany, Mexico, Austria, etc. Then there would be no reason for our attitude. Argentina, which would be without explanation, justification, nor any real motive."

Legends About Gambrinus. According to one fable, Gambrinus was a poor sinner, who sold his soul to the devil on the promise of unlimited wealth. Satan taught him to make chiming bells and lager beer. The emperor of Rome, on the first trial of the beverage, made its inventor duke of Brabant and count of Flanders. According to contract, Gambrinus was to enjoy his great wealth for 30 years. At the end of that time Satan sent a messenger for him, but he made the messenger drunk, and so escaped, and lived on comfortably for a couple of centuries more. The Gambrinus of German folklore flourished at some remote period, and was the first to brew beer. A tradition of medieval times made him one of the very ancient German kings.

Other bills passed in the waning hours of the session included the attorney license bill, providing for a commission of five to pass on qualifications, and a bill which would tax cattle for tuberculosis eradication; a measure which makes violation of the athlete laws a misdemeanor, amending the public works department appropriation provision for a salary for purchasing agent and an assistant indicating that purchasing of state supplies will be taken from the hands of Secretary of State Jeter.

The senate bill which would allow the loan of sinking funds in highway districts was killed in the last hour by a house vote and the senate amended the deficiency clause bill, cutting out all items except those for fire protection and it also killed the abolition of deputy game wardens bill by having it referred to the printing committee.

Custom of Touching Glasses. Just as athletes shake hands before the beginning of a contest today, the persons who fought duels in the olden days used to touch their glasses long enough to drink a glass of wine furnished by friends. In order to make sure that no attempt was made to forestall the results of the duel by poisoning the wine in either cup, they developed the habit of pouring part of the contents of each glass into the other, so that if either contestant was poisoned the other would be, too. In the present day the ceremony of actually pouring the drink from one glass to another has been omitted, merely the motion, as if to touch the glasses, sufficing as an expression of friendliness and good will.

LEAP FROM WASHINGTON MONUMENT BRINGS DEATH

Grandson of Noted Civil War Commander, Suffering from Nervous Disorder, Ends Life in Fall

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP)—A leap from a small window near the top of the Washington monument, 504 feet from the ground, brought instant death today to A. Hiram Selp, grandson of the late General William H. Seward, who served with distinction during the Civil war as a brigadier general of the Union army.

Selp had been suffering from a nervous disease for several years, relatives said and had let home unknown to his mother. He had suffered a bronchial attack several years ago while attending Cornell university and had just come home from a Philadelphia sanatorium. Monument attendants expressed the belief Selp could not have fallen from the window, which is only about 18 inches high and narrow. Although there are attendants stationed at the top, no one saw Selp leave the window. His shoes were ripped off by the friction from contact with the side of the monument and the force of the wind during the plunge. A coroner's verdict of death by suicide was returned.

Puttin' One Over on 'Em. A country man and his wife, who had just come to the city, went into a restaurant. They sat down at the nearest table and had been waiting for quite a while, when the manager came over and said, "Pardon me, but this is a self-serving cafeteria. You'll have to serve yourself." Her husband, muttering to himself, arose and served the table, and when the meal was almost finished, he whispered to his wife, "Mary, I'll tell you what let's do. Let's slip out without washing the dishes."—Atlanta Constitution.

TOO MUCH LABOR
There will be no coal miners' strike this year. The fact was rendered certain when the operators in the Central Competitive field decided to yield for this year the points which they contested last year.

Public sentiment apparently supports the theory that because there are many more miners than are required to mine the necessary coal, those extra men must be taken care of through a division of the work upon the basis of employment for all two-thirds of the time. The wage must be of course be sufficient to permit of decent living even upon the basis of two-thirds time-employment. Obviously, the bill must be paid out of the pockets of the consumer of coal.

There is a false economic note in the situation which is set up. The fundamental trouble is plain. There are too many men trying to make a living by mining coal. If a third of these would quit coal mining and do something else the difficulty would be solved, but as long as public opinion supports the view that it is up to the coal operators to supply the work and the wages irrespective of the extent of the demand for coal, the man who uses the coal will put up for the waste and pay the piper.

THE PUBLIC MUST KNOW
The supreme court's decision confirming the power of the railway labor board to publish the fact that its findings have been disregarded is a reassertion of a right the public supposed its board always had, and without which the body would operate with the perfect impotence of a corpse.

The board was created to exert the pressure of public opinion in differences in a public service. The argument that the board should be endowed with enforcement power is not wanting in support or supporters. Since there seems to be little doubt of the constitutionality of an industrial court, for example, in which the public would enforce its findings, there would appear to be less question about the propriety of publishing breaches of its merely advisory decisions.

In its decision denying the Pennsylvania railroad's contention that the board exceeded its authority in making known the road's refusal to heed a board ruling in a row with shopmen, the court says:
"The only limitation on the board's decisions is that they should establish a standard of conditions which in its opinion is just and reasonable. The jurisdiction of the board to direct the parties to do what it deems they should do is not to be limited by their constitutional or legal rights to refuse to do it. Under the act there is no constraint on them..."

...all roads are public business. Smoothing the opinion of a board named by the public to keep track of its own interests in a public service is unthinkable. Indeed, the railroads should consider themselves favored by the public's failure to assert its unique, honorable right of enforcing the board's decisions.

THESE EGYPTIAN STYLES
A manufacturer of handbags for women has applied for trade mark rights in the name Tutankhamen as a handle, so to speak, for a new reticule of Egyptian design. The law provides among other things that the names of "disceased celebrities" may be used as a registered brand for goods.

used as a registered brand for goods. There appears to be no question that the monarch mentioned is thoroughly dead, and if he was never a celebrity before, that objection has been removed in the last two or three months. Patent office employees now expect a heavy influx of applications for rights in such trade marks as Luxor for soap or sandals or scents, Baranes for scarfs and Pharaoh for rings. Parisian designers are reported to be sitting up nights figuring out new conceptions embodying motifs of ancient Egyptian art, and the logical conclusion is a gas-driven chariot on lines suggested by the buggies found in King Tut's tomb.

Spirited objection to removing the King to Cairo has already materialized in Luxor. What happens to him can matter now. Nothing but a slight start is needed by that part of the world's populace that trades on the ephemeral fancy of people. Which may not be without a certain value in this case. The owner of an Isis shawl will want to know who the lady is. The girl who buys a Tutankhamen handbag is going to wonder about the gentleman who has lent his name to the article.

Indeed, it is not too much to hope that if enough of them are sold someone will be found eventually who knows exactly how the old fellow's name is pronounced.

The End of Ionia.
The Greeks may stay in Constantinople, but they are to be expelled from Anatolia. Already they seem to have been cleared out of Syria and the neighboring regions; and thus ends the history of the oldest of European civilizations, the parent of the rest. For the Greek culture of Byzantium and the west coast of Asia Minor is a relic only by accident of geography; its ancestry can be traced back to the earliest of European cultures, that which flourished in the great and brilliant island empire of Crete, with some outposts on the Greek mainland, in the second and third millenniums before Christ. With all allowance for Egyptian and possibly Asiatic influences, that civilization was still European; and it reached a high point at a time when the rest of Europe was a wilderness.

There Was a Reason.
I was attending a masquerade. It was utterly distinguished by any one. My partner was attractive and familiar. I couldn't remember where I had seen this man, whose voice and ways were so familiar. Imagine my excitement when the hostess announced that every mask would be removed. I found that my partner was none other than the boss who had fired me from his employ.—Exchange.

Effect Produced by "Funeral" in the South Seas.

Ghostly Ceremony That to Civilized People Made Travesty of the Sacredness of Death.

One afternoon about four o'clock, while we were working our way down the coast in no particular hurry to get anywhere, we suddenly heard the beating of a tom-tom. It was the bush telegraph working furiously. "What's the message, Maanga?" I asked my boy. "I think it's some feller he die fasin," was his accented reply. We crossed the reef and beached the boat and then hurried up to the village, half hidden among the palms, writes R. W. Cleaton in Asia Magazine. All the natives were there in the clearing between the houses, dressed up in everything they could put on, and there was a desecrated religious atmosphere about the gathering. We understood the reason when we saw a huge funeral pyre built up. It was so high that we could just get a glimpse of a stiff figure sitting there, the back turned toward us, and the hands stretched out in an unnatural way. All the people were gathered around it. One of them seemed to have wrapped himself in a kind of white sheet and it did not take long to discover that he was actually officiating in the capacity of clergyman. The native is always impressed by ceremony of any sort, and missionary ceremonies have left their mark all over the islands. This fellow had a book conspicuously like a hymn book in front of him, though I noted later that it was upside down, and he was reading or rather reciting as much as he could remember of all the Christian services he had ever heard.

The priest and I walked around the pile, examining it with interest and watching the natives eye longingly the copper jewelry that custom decreed should be burned with the corpse. When we got to the front and were standing there, looking up at it, Taylor suddenly gripped my arm. "It's that damned girl we had the one you took care of at your house," he said. We were in Nguaviva and the figure on the pyre was Lavava! Her face was painted vermilion and looked ghastly, of course. Her head was set strangely on her shoulders. She had her best clothes on and her hair gloriously beaded. I had the one you took care of at your house," he said. Her eyes were staring out into vacancy, and there was the most peculiar twisted smile on her dead face, as if she had rounded the circle of her life and was contemptuous of everything. It was horrible. By this time the flames were leaping toward the top and the smoke curled up in thick black clouds. The wood burned quickly. There was no time, it seemed, before a sudden spout of fire sent up a shower of sparks and she shot down in the collapsing pile, still with that little smile of disdain on her face. "Let's get out of this," said Taylor. "It gives me the creeps. You warned that damned girl that if she walked down the coast, she would die. What's the use of curing them when they act like idiots? What's the use of anything!"

The Sod in the Window.

The illicit "poten" now flows in larger more freely than ever before, according to a correspondent, who has recently traveled through the towns and villages of the south and west. Supplies of ordinary whiskey have been blended with "poten," of which there seems to be large quantities available, while in some places "poten" in its pure native form is retained. The frank explanation is given that owing to transport difficulties it is impossible to obtain genuine and legally distilled whiskey. The correspondent adds: "There are certain areas that would help to solve the potent-bottle problem in Ireland, if the old practice of the sod in the window were revived. This has reference, it would seem, to the unostentatious method adopted by the unlicensed 'shebeens' in Ireland in the old days to advertise the fact that 'poten' could be obtained inside by placing a sod of turf or peat in an unobtrusive way in the window."

FIRST FLATIRON ROUND ROCK

Modern Implements Evolution of Stone Old-Timers Used to Smooth Linen With.

"Yes," said the laundryman, "you never would think it, but the electric and gas irons you see us using today are the legitimate offspring of a round, water-worn stone. You've seen priests—one of the Atlantic Monthly the river stones and in the Orkney Islands they still employ them, but as far back as the Tenth century the Scotch began to use a mushroom-shaped object of black glass as a linen smoother. "The appliance was operated in an inverted position, of course, the steam being sent over and over again," he declared. "You needn't tell me anything about it; if you could be a pilot on this river you needn't ever think of reading, for it just spiles all. You can't remember how high the tides were in Can't get three trips before the last one, I'll wager."

"Why, no," replied Mark, "that was six months ago." "I don't care if 'twas," said the man. "If you hadn't been spilling yer mind by readin', ye'd have remembered." So the boy was never permitted to read after that. "And," he once observed, "but being able to have it when I was hungry for it, I can only read the encyclopaedia nowadays." But, adds Mrs. Fields, that is not true; he reads everything—Youth's Companion.

ENGAGEMENT "RING" OF SILK

Pretty Custom Which Obtains in Japan When Young People Have Made a Definite Choice.

In Japan there are many simple and sweet customs. The Japanese are a nation of lovers of romance and symbolism. Simplicity of thought and delicacy of feeling add to the charm and beauty of their many truly artistic customs. Even in love affairs and in courtships this same sweet simplicity is observed. The thought is not lost in complicating realities and expense. The young man does not have to save up as he can perhaps spend more money than he should to give his fiancée an engagement ring, because in Japan they do not wear engagement rings.

Instead, after a girl has promised to marry the man of her choice he proudly goes to the best shop where the finest silks are sold. Here, with great care, he selects a beautiful piece of silk and carries it lovingly to the girl of his heart. With this silk the newly engaged girl makes a sash and wears it triumphantly. This is her engagement "ring."

A Country on the Move!

Some parts of the world are changing their positions! Perhaps the most interesting case is that of Greenland. Two Danish scientists have been investigating, and their results show that the country is moving to the west at the rate of about twenty feet a year. These observations, one taken in 1870 and the other in 1907, showed a difference of roughly 1,510 yards.

Another portion of the globe which is altering its position is the North pole. Owing to the small area of the pole—its about the size of a tennis court—observers are few. Two other observations have reported that it is moving slowly to the north. It is also stated that the coast of Labrador is rising from the sea.

Many authorities declare that both the poles are moving, and that this alteration to the world's axis will mean in time that regions which are now frozen will become warm and habitable.

$40 for a Special Train.
For so little as $40 one can hire a special train on any of the English railways, with engine and crew complete, and travel by it in solitary state for about 12 miles. Forty dollars is the lowest figure, and 12 miles the least distance for which the company will make the necessary arrangements.

CAREER MARRED BY READING

Mark Twain's Humorous Story of Solomon Warning Against the Perils of Literature.

At an early age Mark Twain was solemnly warned against the dangers of reading. As a boy—so we learn from the diary of Mrs. James T. Fields, which the Atlantic Monthly has acquired after he had begun his apprenticeship on a Mississippi river steambot was the Fortunes of Nigel. He hid himself with it behind a barrel, where the master of the boat found him and read him a lecture on the "776" rulous effect of his act. "I've read it over and over again," he declared. "You needn't tell me anything about it; if you could be a pilot on this river you needn't ever think of reading, for it just spiles all. You can't remember how high the tides were in Can't get three trips before the last one, I'll wager."

The Child's Word.
While sitting in the park one afternoon, enjoying the public concert, the Woman Who Saw was greeted by a friend who, with her eight-year-old niece, was looking for seats. As it happened, there was enough room on the bench occupied by the Woman for the two of them, but after a while eight-year-old Shirley, who had lately acquired a propensity for using big words, and sometimes only parts of them, began to get fidgety and restless. "Auntie," she was during the recitation of a rather heavy Wagnerian number that Shirley leaned over her aunt's lap and said in a very audible whisper: "Aunt Florry, dear, when the next interdisturbance comes, may I go and get a drink of water?"

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, March 9 (AP)—Lively purchasing in which a hoarse with eastern connections took the lead, brought about an advance in the price of wheat, notwithstanding declines earlier. The market closed firm, 3-8 to 7-8c net, with May 1923 at 1.19 3/4 and July 1923 at 1.15 1/8. Corn gained 1-2 to 7-8c, oats finished unchanged to 1-4c up, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

The first bullish aspects of the government report on farm reserves of wheat tended to make wheat values fall and so too did gossip implying some curtailment of the crop outlook for domestic winter wheat. The fact that stocks in this country were continuing to accumulate and that at least for the time being export demand was almost nil at the lowest premium since the season, had a further bullish influence.

After values had fallen something more than one cent for the May 1923 delivery, a break upward began. With scarcity of offerings a feature during the last half of the day, the wheat market climbed as much as 2-1/2c from the day's lowest figures. Pit conditions, more than news developments, were said to be responsible for the sudden tightening of the market. On the other hand, profit-taking caused the market to react to some extent as trading came to an end.

For the most part corn and oats advanced with wheat, but at times showed a little independent strength as a result of the bullish character of the government report touching both the feed grains.

Provisions weakened under increased selling which followed an advance in line with hog values.

LETTUCE GROWERS WILL PLAN SEASON'S OUTPUT

Series of Meetings to be Held Next Week to Discuss Acreage; State Manager to Attend

A series of four meetings of the Twin Falls Lettuce Growers' association has been called to consider plans for the coming season.

The meetings will be held at Ellers on Tuesday; Buhl on Wednesday; Thursday at Kimberly; and Friday at Twin Falls.

W. T. McCall, manager of the Idaho producers' union, of which the local organization is a subsidiary, will attend the meetings.

MINOR CASES ARE HEARD

Two Divorces and Judgment in Foreclosure Cases Granted; Arguments on Damages are Heard

Two divorces were granted in District court Friday by default, judgment was rendered in eight suits and foreclosure actions by default, and arguments were heard in the divorce of E. F. Walter to the cross-complaint of I. H. Masters.

Arthur B. Parrish was granted a divorce from Mrs. Edith M. Parrish on grounds of cruelty and desertion, and Mamie F. Christie was given a decree from Edwin F. Christie on grounds of non-support.

Five days were granted for filing briefs after the hearing of the divorce to the cross-complaint of Mr. Masters from Mrs. Edith M. Parrish.

John H. Hodgin appeared for Mr. Masters and Homer C. Mills appeared for Mr. Walter.

THREE WITHDRAWN FROM CITY RACE

Mayor J. D. Tucker Abandons Plans for Re-election; Two Others Quit

Notice of his withdrawal as a candidate for re-election was filed with the city clerk Friday afternoon by Mayor J. D. Tucker, following similar action by Mayor J. C. Aron and C. B. Ross.

The withdrawal of Mayor Tucker is a statement announced by his supporting organization, Mr. Tucker is not a candidate for re-election.

After further consideration I have concluded to withdraw as a candidate for the position of mayor of the city of Twin Falls.

Having served the people of Twin Falls as its first mayor under the constitution of 1901, and having assisted in the laying of a lasting foundation for better government in the city, I feel some one else should take up the burden.

There can be no question but what the new administration will be able to take up the work which we left behind and carry out our unfinished work to the best interests of all concerned.

There having been two other candidates for mayor, and one appearing in the race if it were a bitter contest, would be more or less a bitter contest, with personalities and petty bickerings indulged in, and wishing to avoid such a thing, where we are all of us, and carry out our unfinished work to the best interests of all concerned.

The withdrawal of the three named candidates will leave only one candidate, and causes the question of the placing of the support accredited to Tucker, Aron and Ballantyne. Remaining candidates are Chad L. Hodgin and William Landrum for mayor, J. E. Roberts, S. G. McAlley, W. T. Leslie, J. S. Keel and C. H. Stinson for commissioners, Mr. Roberts and Mr. McAlley being candidates for re-election.
