NEW MYSTERIES BARK PROBE OF MODEL'S DEATH

Occupant of Rooms Below Tells of Hearing Steps and Smel- ling Chloroform After Time Set for Murder

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—New clues and new mysteries were unearthed by the police today in their investigation of the murder of Dorothy Keenan, who was found slumped in her apartment last Thursday. But the new lines of inquiry only served to make the case more baffling.

The latest development came when a woman, whose name was not made public, but who was said to live in the apartment directly below the one formerly occupied by Miss Keenan, told police that about midnight last Wednesday she heard footsteps in the apartment above her and that some one paced the floor rapidly, as if extremely nervous. When she went to her window, which is on an airshaft, she smelled a pungent odor, apparently that of chloroform.

Marshall's Story Varies

This information was interpreted by some officials as establishing a new line for the men. It was pointed out that the mysterious "Mr. Marshall," who has admitted showering gifts of money and jewels upon the pretty Miss Keenan and who was absolved from all blame in connection with the crime by Assistant District Attorney Focora, had said he did not leave Miss Keenan's apartment until after midnight, that when he left "Dot" appeared in good spirits.

The woman's report was taken to disprove a story that Miss Keenan had visited Albert Guimare, "the man in the fur coat," at his hotel at 2 a. m. Thursday.

Between January 23 and February 25, it was learned today, Miss Keenan deposited $9750.56 at her bank. In that period she withdrew $4247.

EXPULSED DUPE TELLS OF GUILT

Tennessean Testifies in Suit Against "House of David" for Recovery of $80,000

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 19, (AP)—John W. Hansell and his family were expelled from the Israelite House of David, scantily clad and with only $100 and tickets to their former home, Nashville, Tenn., following a midnight conference at which he was charged with arrest, according to testimony given by Hansell in federal court here today in his suit against the colony for $80,000. The amount, the plaintiff contends, is the value of property turned over to the Benton Harbor cult when he became a member, and the value of his labor during membership.

Hansell alleged John J. Sterling, at that time prosecuting attorney of Benton Harbor, attended the midnight meeting, and had a part in his expulsion.

Frightened by Charges

Frightened by the charges against him, Hansell declared, he agreed to leave the colony, signing a release for himself and Mrs. Hansell and receiving therefor $100 and the railroad tickets.

Hansell and his wife were the only witnesses called today. Questioning by his attorney disclosed some of the alleged beliefs of the colony. Benjamin Purnell, head of the cult, claimed to be the "younger brother of Jesus" and "number seven of the messenger alone," according to Hansell.

In reply to questions by their attorney both witnesses said they had no knowledge of immoral acts by Purnell.

Over their property, they said, was turned over to the cult, along with their labor "for the kingdom of God." The "kingdom," they explained, was to be attained by men and women living as brothers and sisters and its attainment meant immortality on earth.

HERRIN MURDER TRIAL RESUMED

Doctor Quotes Alleged State- ments of Miners' Leader Shortly Before Massacre

MARION, Ill., March 19 (AP)—After a recess of 11 days caused by the illness of the wife of one of the jurors, the prosecution today resumed the introduction of evidence against Hugh Willis, state executive board member of the United Mine Workers and five others, charged with murder in connection with the Herrin riot.

Willis, according to the testimony of Dr. O. P. Shipman, formerly a resident of Herrin, drove up to the miners' hall in Herrin in an automobile toward midnight on June 21. Earlier the same day the hardware store of Herrin and Marion were looted of arms and ammunition by the men who were in the mine of the Southern Illinois Coal company had been attacked and three union miners killed.

Quotes Willis' Words

Dr. Shipman asserted there was a crowd before the hall when Willis arrived and that he heard him say:

"We've got the mine well guarded and nobody can get away. We can't do anything more before daylight when they can see that we are most interested in is prevailing upon the sheriff not to get the troops there until we get the men out."

"The sheriff is our friend, and he told me; they ought to have known better than to have come down here, but now they are here let them take what is coming to them."

"The sheriff is a good fellow, boys. He is loyal to us and we ought to take care of him at the fall election."

Melvin Thaxton, recently elected county treasurer, was sheriff at the time of the outbreak, but Dr. Shipman testified that he did not know whom Willis was referring.

Shot Down in Flight

The next morning, according to previous witnesses, the 48 defenders of the mine laid down their arms and surrendered after being assured of their safety. They were marched two miles, lined up before a barb-wire fence and shot down as they fled.

Dr. Shipman said that he had seen several of the prisoners who had been captured marched bleeding and pleading through the streets of Herrin by a jeering mob to a cemetery outside the town where they were shot down in the road.

The crowd at one point made them get down and crawl along on their hands and knees," he testified. Then they were all tied together with a piece of rope about their necks.

"I heard a boy shout: 'Nearer, My God, to Thee,' and a man told them that if they had ever prayed in their lives to pray then. After the prisoners had been shot down the crowd continued firing bullets into their bodies until all movement stopped."

GEOLOGISTS IN SOUTHERN IDAHO DISCOVER SALT

New Industry for State is Promised as Result of Un- earthing of Deposit Worth $5 to $11 a Ton

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, March 19.—A rock salt deposit said to have a total thickness of 175 feet and a little more than 500 feet below the surface has been located in southeastern Idaho in the eastern part of Caribou county, according to a report received by Virgil F. D. Kirkham, geologist with the state bureau of mines and geology and a member of the University of Idaho school of mines faculty. The discovery was made by an operator drilling a well to test the oil structures in the area, which are said to be promising.

Mrs. Kirkham recently studied the geology of the area with special attention to its oil producing possibilities.

Samples of the newly discovered deposit have been analyzed and show exceptional purity. Some of the beds are more than 20 feet thick and with the area in which brine springs are found exceeding 40 square miles and the results of analyses, which indicate that the salt will average from $5 to $11 a ton, Idaho may soon have a new industry. The probability of railroad connections in the near future and the possibilities of locating oil, for two wells are now exploring the structures, augur well for the development of an important salt-refining industry.

Known to Pioneers

"Since the earliest day of the western emigrants the existence of salt in that area has been known," said Professor Kirkham in commenting upon the discovery. "The Lander trail, a cutoff which joined the Old Oregon trail at Blackfoot, was built through that part of what is now Caribou county because of the salt springs existing there. Since those early days of the covered wagon pioneer, these springs have had commercial value but until now no information as to the extent of the deposits has been available. The salt springs had great value in the old days, that in recent years, since they furnished all the salt for the mining camps of Idaho and Montana. There were no railroads then and the salt was hauled by ox teams. The present wagon road from Montpelier in Bear Lake valley to Star Valley, the location of the springs, was built to supply the outside demand for this salt. The production of salt from these springs reached a high point of 200 tons per month in the sixties and sold for $25 per ton on the ground, but the rise of the salt industry at Great Salt Lake proved too great competition for the Idaho Springs deposits.

These deposits may be mined by drilling wells forcing water to the salt beds, and pumping it back to the surface to be evaporated, or sinking a shaft and mining the salt like coal."

BOISE MAN MEETS DEATH WHEN CAR TURNS TURTLE

Robert F. McAfee, Banker, Dies In- stantly; Fruit Company Official In- jured as Result of Auto Crash

BOISE, March 20.—The death of Robert F. McAfee, cashier of the First and National Bank of Boise, and the injury of P. V. Martin, northeast manager of the Earl Fruit company, resulted when the automobile in which they were riding skidded and turned turtle Sunday morning at the mouth of Isaac's canyon, on the Mountain Home road, 10 miles from Boise.

The accident was caused, according to Mr. Martin, who is in a hospital here, when the car exploded while they were driving at about 35 miles an hour. Both were pinned under the car. Mr. McAfee, whose chest was crushed, died instantly. Mr. Martin received bruises about the head and shoulder. No other persons were in the car.

State Department Announces Its Purpose to Withhold Contents of Berlin's Memorandum on Reparations After Being Advised of Author's Willingness to Give Publicity

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP)—Contents of the memorandum delivered to Secretary Hughes Friday by Counselor Dieckhoff of the German embassy, which is said to have given Germany's position on the question of reparations, will remain secret so far as the state department is concerned.

It probably will be placed in the confidential files without having its text divulged even to Jules J. Jusserand, French ambassador here.

Decision not to make the memorandum public or to add to the brief statement of the department on Saturday relative to receipt of the communication, was made known today upon receipt of press advices from Berlin in the German foreign office, which is willing to have the Washington government make the statement public or make its text known through diplomatic channels to Premier Poincare.

Three Babes Die in Fire Caused by Candles at Bier

Death Claims Remaining Chil- dren in Family Mourning Passing of Fourth Little One

NEWPORT POINT, Que., March 19 (AP)—Henri Tremblay, and his wife tearfully led their three children to bed last night, leaving in a coffin surrounded by candles, the body of their fourth child, for whose funeral services had been held during the evening.

During the night one of the candles at the dead child's bier ignited a curtain and the small wood-house at Chandler, blazed up like tinder.

The flames spread so quickly that two of the children were burned to death before they could leave their beds. The third, three weeks old, was killed when the mother, herself perhaps fatally injured, tried to save it by jumping from a window.

OLYMPIA POSTAL BANDITS ESCAPE

Authorities Find No Trace of Robbers Who Took $27,000 Stamps and $374 Cash

OLYMPIA, Wash., March 19 (AP)—No trace had been found tonight of the robbers who broke into the Olympia postoffice early this morning and blew open a stamp vault after drilling their way into two vaults. A check showed $27,000 worth of stamps stolen in addition to $374 in cash and several hundred dollars taken from registered mail, according to Postmaster Frank S. Clem.

Postoffice Inspector W. F. Case of Tacoma, Wash., said he believed the robbery was the work of a gang of stamp thieves operating throughout western Washington for more than a year. Chief of Police J. TARIFF RATES TO BE STUDIED

Sugar Complaint Only One Among 17 where Reduction in Protective Duty is Sought

WASHINGTON, March 19, (AP)—Formal announcement was made tonight by the tariff commission that it soon would start its first investigation under flexible provisions of the new tariff act to determine whether the rates on 17 commodities are equitable.

The investigation will be limited to rates against which complaints have been filed, and the decision to proceed with those inquiries does not, according to Chairman Marvin, constitute a declaration of the commission's policy or program of action under the flexible provisions.

The rates coming within the scope of the investigation affect the following articles:

Sugar, cotton, warp knit fabric, cotton goods made of warp knit fabric, cotton hosiery for infants, pig iron, oxalic acid, diethyl barbituric acid and derivatives thereof, barium dioxide, caesin, logwood extract, potassium chlorate, sodium nitrate, mirror plates, paint brush handles, and artificial or ornamental fruits, vegetables, grains, leaves, flowers and stems or parts thereof.

No official statement was made as to whether the complaints sought increases or decreases in the rates but it was learned that about two-thirds of the requests for revision were for modification upward.

The sugar complaint, however, seeks a reduction in the protective duty.

FEDERAL AGENT BARES SECRETS OF COMMUNISTS

Justice Department Operative, on Stand as Witness Against W. Z. Foster, Describes Conclave in Sand Dunes

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., March 19 (AP)—Secrets of the organization of the communist convention in the sand dunes near here last August were revealed today in circuit court when K-97, department of justice agent, who attended the meeting as a delegate, took the stand as the state's star witness against William Z. Foster, charged with criminal syndicalism.

K-97's number in the files of the government secret service is Francis Morrow, of Camden, N. J. Among the communists he was known as Ashworth and at the convention, where all delegates had assumed names, he was called Day.

Identified Delegate List.
Morrow identified the delegate list of the convention, the regulations of the grounds committee which directed it, the agenda, the program of the convention, the program and constitution and a number of other state's exhibits.

He told how he was chosen a delegate from the communist group in Philadelphia and Camden and how he was introduced to Albert B. Hall and John Greisinger, two other delegates.

The convention, the witness said, was opened by Jay Lovestone of New York, soon after which Ben Gitlow, alias Lowe, of New York, who is now in Sing Sing prison serving a sentence under the syndicalism laws of New York, was elected chairman.

O. L. Smith, assistant attorney general of Michigan, tried twice to introduce in evidence the program and constitution of the communist party, which the witness had identified, but each time Judge Charles White sustained objections by Frank P. Walsh, chief of counsel for Foster, that the document had not yet been properly identified.

Assembly in Ravine.
The witness described the convention in detail. Sessions, he said, were held in a deep ravine between two lofty sand dunes, the delegates sitting around on blankets placed on concrete blocks to form a half circle on the terraced hillside.

When the department of justice agents and sheriff's passes were down on the convention on the morning of August 22 last, they found 117 men still there, and arrested them. Two weeks later when the prisoners were arraigned in court there were only 16, and the whereabouts of the seventeenth became a mystery.

That he was a government agent attending the meeting is disclosed in a document which Morrow appeared at Minneapolis to testify for the prosecution in proceedings brought to extradite Alex Georgean, one of the defendants from Missouri.

Morris Wolff, another department of justice agent, who presided at Morrow's stand, identified more than a hundred documents as among those seized in the raid.

OREGON SAVED FROM JUNK FILE

PORTLAND, Ore., Mar. 19 (AP)—Arrival of the historic battleship Oregon at Portland harbor, which it is to maintain permanently by the state, will be a feature of the Rose Festival next June, according to plans announced here. The vessel, which earned fame by its dash around Cape Horn in the Spanish-American war, to join the American fleet in Cuban waters at a critical time, is to be repaired and made seaworthy for its final voyage from Bremerton Navy Yard, where it is now stationed. Oregon's legislature, for sentimental reasons, appropriated $30,000 for maintaining the ship at Portland the next two years, thereby rescuing it from the junk heap. The vessel is reported badly scuffed and in need of painting and other overhauling before its triumphant trip up the Columbia, "coming home."

Mills of the Gods.

The quotation is: "Though the mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceedingly small; though the wheels of Hence, He stands smiling, with exactness grinds He all." They were written by Frederick von Logau, who was born in 1604 to 1635. He lived at Brockton in Sillesia and was one of the most highly esteemed epigrammatists and satirists of his day. History speaks of him as "the poet of the North" who preserved his national integrity during the Thirty Years war." He was most scathing in his criticism of the German court and court customs, and severely arraigned Germans for their persistent aping of French manners and customs. This satirical epigram was translated from the German by William Challen Bryant.

Sioux Indians Form National Guard Company

Carlisle Graduate to Command Unit with Many World War Veteran Members

HELENA, Mont., Mar. 19 (AP)—A company of Sioux Indians for the Montana National Guard is under process of organization, which will list its membership from the Fort Berck reservation, in the western part of the state, and from Poplar and other towns in the vicinity of the reserve.
Only Montana's weather has prevented the completion of the company already. A date early in February was set for mustering in 55 of the tribal members, but a cold wave that sent the thermometer to 20 below prevented the required minimum for a company gathering at Poplar when Adjutant General Charles L. Sheridan of the Montana National Guard arrived.
Many of the members of the company will be veterans of the American Expeditionary forces in France and one of the officers will be a graduate of Carlisle who was a commissioned officer in the American army overseas.
"Indians make the best kind of soldiers," said Adjutant General Sheridan, who had a company in the battalion he commanded in the 125th regiment in the Marne offensive. "I had been transferred from the contingent that went to Montana in a regiment made up largely from the national guardsmen of Minnesota and Wisconsin. The Indian company was from the Winnebago reservation in Wisconsin."
"It was the latter part of July, 1918, and the Americans were in the front trenches. We know that the Germans had tapped our communication wires, because we had done the same thing with theirs. We used code all we could, of course, but any code that can be readily used can be deciphered. Our communications were cut off and we were in the listening post and another at the end of the wire back of the trenches. Almost immediately our men, listening in on the German communication lines began to hear discussion of the new 'code' the American troops were using.

BOY SCOUTS BURY PIONEER

BUTTE, Mont., Mar. 19 (AP)—Boy scouts of Butte gave burial to John Kern, one of the founders and the last resident of Highland City, once a prosperous pioneer camp in the hills ten miles south of here.
The aged prospector was found dead in his cabin, with his dog watching his body. It took a rescue party twenty hours to get the body through the snow to Butte.
When it was announced that no relatives of the old miner could be found, it had to be left to the fact that he would be buried at county expense. The Boy Scouts took hold of the situation. The summer camp of the Butte troops had been near Kern's cabin and from him they had learned wood lore. Contributions from the boys raised the money for a coffin and a burial tract, and eight of the boy scouts were pall bearers.

Improbable Happening.

"What a terrible thing it must be," said he, "for a woman to discover a love-letter in the pocket of her husband's coat just after she has mended it, and to find the letter in the woman's hand." "That could never happen," she said. "The woman would find the letter first—then she would not mend the coat."

Girls Relegate Hatpin Weapon Against Masher

Jiu Jitsu, Wrestling and Boxing Train El Paso Women to Care for Themselves

EL PASO, Texas, Mar. 19 (AP)—An apparent with the intent to prevent an unwelcome kiss, and a sudden twist of the thumb to cause the removal of a man's arm from around a girl, are suggested to young women in classes of self defense in the El Paso Y. W. C. A., under the direction of Miss Ethel Loring, physical director. The main idea of the advice given to the girls is, "Use your head, feet and hands to defend yourself."
Miss Loring is teaching jiu jitsu, wrestling, boxing, fencing and similar activities, in all of which the girls show much interest.
"If you don't know jiu jitsu, there are plenty of ways for a girl to defend herself from unwelcome attentions," Miss Loring says.
"Now, for instance, if a man some dark night tried to hold me up, of course I'd have to put up my hands. But I could kick. I'd try to kick him in the stomach. That is not correct fighting, but it isn't exactly correct to hold up a person."
A sudden sharp twist of a man's thumb usually will cause him to let go of a girl's hand or remove his arm from around her, it is said. Kicking gets quick and usually the desired result, while a vigorous punch with a fist impresses on a man his attentions are not desired, the girls are taught. Hatpins no more are required by young women as weapons of defense, Miss Loring explains. The classes in jiu jitsu, fencing, boxing, as well as skating, aesthetic dancing and such exercises train the women to care for themselves.

Livestock Association President Says Cattlemen Will Handle Own Products from Range to Consumer

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Mar. 19 (AP)—F. H. Bixby, president of the National Livestock association, in an address before the annual convention of the New Mexico Cattle and Horse Growers' association here, predicted that the day was coming when small packing plants will be established in many communities throughout the country and stock raisers will organize and own these plants, handling their product straight from the range or farm to the retail store and the consumer. He advocated general utilization of the cooperative movement.
"In cooperative organization the cattleman can attain prosperity and avoid the ruinous depression which attends the present condition of the industry," he said.
H. A. Jastro, of Bakersfield, Cal., in an address supported Mr. Bixby's assertion regarding the necessity of producers entering the marketing and packing branches of the livestock industry.

IDAHO FORESTS ARE VISITED BY MORE TOURISTS

Growing Appreciation of Preserves as Recreation Grounds and Improved Roads Bring in Flood of Autoists

OGDEN, Mar. 19 (AP)—Over a quarter of a million people visited the national forests of the Intermountain region last year, says District Forester R. H. Rutledge who bases his statement upon reports just received from the forest supervisors of this region. This is an increase one-third greater than reported a year ago, including a growing appreciation of the national forests as recreation grounds among the public, coupled with better chances to enjoy the forests on account of the improvement of roads. This latter feature has brought in a flood of automobile tourists to whom many parts of the forests have been impossible heretofore.

Camper show but little increase over last year, hunters and fishermen have increased about 35 per cent while automobile tourists have increased about 60 per cent over 1921. In spite of this great increase the summer of transient tourists, the average time spent in the forests for all classes of recreationists, shows an increase, over last year, indicating that people are learning to go out and really enjoy their time in hunting, fishing and enjoying the forests.

Near-by Forests Favored

The forests which serve the most people seeking recreation are not the ones most famous for hunting, fishing, and wonderful scenery, such as the Teton in western Wyoming, the Kaho and Sawtooth in Idaho, and the Klamath on the edge of the grand canyon, but are those most accessible to the centers of population. Out of 113,000 campers on the national forests of the Intermountain region, 43,000, over one-third of the total, camped on the Wasatch forest near Salt Lake City, while the celebrated Klamath had but 76. The Fishlake-Fillmore forest was visited by 6,000 hunters and fishermen, and the fishermen visiting Furbush, while the big game and fishing region on the Teton forest saw only one quarter of this number. During the winter months the number of visitors to the Dixie forest which contains Cedar Breaks in southern Utah, increased four times; visitors to the forest trebled and on the Teton, Fishlake and Cache forests they doubled. These increases are directly due to increasing the accessibility of the forests by roads and trails. It is very evident from these figures that the people are wide awake to the fact that it is unnecessary to go hundreds of miles to famous forests to get recreation, and that if they are given a chance they will flock into their nearest mountains and find thorough enjoyment there.

Idaho's Increase

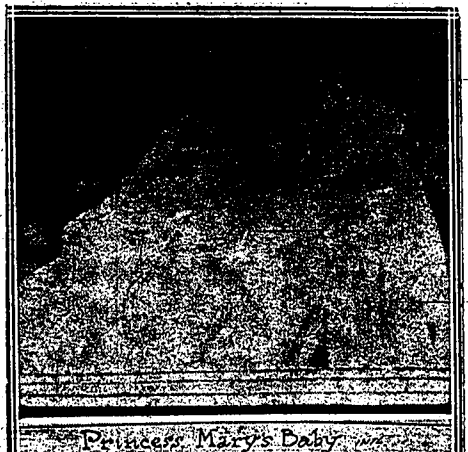

The Intermountain district of the forest service includes southern Idaho, western Wyoming, all of Utah, nearly all of Nevada, and the portion of Arizona north of the Colorado river. Within these states or parts of states, included in this forest service district, visitors to the national forests are reported as follows:

Arizona 3,095, about the same as 1921.
Idaho 83,437, an increase of about 7 per cent.

Found a Cure for Indigestion

"I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different medicines. I am nearly fifty-one years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to now," writes George W. Emory, Rock Mills, Ohio. These tablets contain no poison but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest the food naturally.—adv.

Go Get Him.
Hunters employed by the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture have a motto. "If you are sent after an animal bring him in, regardless of how you have to get him." The story comes from Arizona of an old female wolf that had lost a foot in a trap, so that she had grown "trap wise" and wary and refused to take poisoned bait. The government hunter took his bed and laid it by a water hole where several wolves came to drink nearly every night. During the night he shot the wolf within ten feet of his bed.

LAUNDRY SQUAD MEETS DEFEAT

I. D. Store Bowlers Take Two Out of Three Games in Match With Cleaners

For the second time during the tournament, the Troy Laundry bowlers met their Waterloo, the first time at the hands of the Rendahl-Wright pin busters, and again last night when they lost two out of three to the Idaho Department Store quintet.

The first game of the evening went to the store men by the score of 833 to 698, both teams going at top speed, although the laundry boys got away to a bad start, not a man on the team marking in the first frame. Jack Tritt of the Troy team swatted the timber to the tune of 178 in this game winning the gum drops for high score.

In the second game the I. D. men showed up a bit while the Troy Laundry team took on more stean, ending with 823 to 735 for the 'big store on the corner' men. Roy Cubitt snagged the maples for 216 in this game, which went for high score of the game, and also the evening.

After their rest in the second game the I. D. team went into the last game with the grim determination to shake the Troy Laundry down another notch. This they did by the score of 842 to 818. This was the prettiest game of the evening, and considered by many of the best of the tournament.

CLEANED AND PRESSED

The laundry boys led in total pins by 48, due to the fact that the I. D. gang fell to 735 in the second game.

Whenever a team gets over the 800 mark in all three games, it is tough to lose the odd game.

The I. D. boys were due after their miserable showing last week against the Rogerson cafe team.

George Sandholm was missing which may have something to do with the soft soap articles losing.

Roy Cubitt knocked 'em silly in the second game with 216 after being satisfied with 144 in the opener. Although a couple of Eoy's strikes in the second game were of the four leaf clover variety, he bumped into some hard luck in the last game. Cubitt isn't near the lucky bowler he was at the start of the season.

"Henry" Ford, through a compromise with the high school roster, didn't want through the three game elimination, and showed vast improvement over his work of last week. His picking up of two splits in the first and second games was a feature of the evening's play.

Ralph Boyd led all the bowlers last night with a total of 550 for an average of 183, pulling his average for the season up to 171. Ralph made

CAGE TITLE IS WON BY MOSCOW

MOSCOW, Idaho, March 19 (AP)—Moscow high school's basketball team won the 1923 Idaho state interschool basketball title here tonight by defeating the Oakley high school five, 21 to 13, in the third and deciding game between the two teams.

The score at half time was 7 to 4 for Oakley. Netros of Moscow was high point man with three field baskets and 9 of 16 free throws. Larson of Oakley was high for the visitors with one basket and five conversions from nine fouls.

Oakley had won the first game between the teams and Moscow the second. The total scores for the games were: Moscow 72, Oakley 65.

"Daniel" Boone came back to his last night with a total of 498. His last game was his poorest, netting him but 145. Boone made several nice spares during the evening.

"Bill" Bailly had a hard time making the pins behave, dropping his average from 173 to 171. Bill hit into some bad splits, and threw several strike balls that hitted but nine pins.

Squires, the new I. D. lead off man, rolled in great form, topping his opponent Bailly by 23 pins for the three games. Squires got away to a bad start in the second game with two errors in the first two frames, but ended up with 151. This is the only game that the old reliable Bailly led him.

Jack Tritt kidded the pins into falling 178 times in the first game, and in the second they proved fickle and left him down with 127. Tritt was an athletic wire and it was his low score in the second game that put the store men out of the running.

"Dinky" Moore had an off night, being the low man for the evening with 417. "Dinky" missed several spares in the second and third games, showing lack of practice.

Phil Kling failed to rule the pins, as they rebelled against his magic touch. Phil dropped to 124 in the second game. They just wouldn't go down for him.

"Don Carlos" Linville went to the two extremes in the second and third games, getting 132 in the second and 201 in the third. It was Linville's big score in the final game of the evening that pulled the contest jumpers over the old American Trophoeing association.

Harry Benoit of the Wright's team put his name in the hall of fame yesterday afternoon when he topped over 245. In this game his first effort was a spare and a strike.

It is too bad that Harry was overlooked in the shuffle at the start of the season, for he no doubt would have been right up with the leaders.

Tonight the Rogerson Cafe and Shoe Market teams will hold the boards, and a hot three game series is looked forward to.

PROSPECTS FOR CATTLEMAN AND FARMER BRIGHT

General Improvement is Seen in Agricultural and Range Conditions Throughout the Rocky Mountain States

CHEYENNE, Wyoming, March 19. (AP)—General improvement in crop conditions in Rocky Mountain states is reported in the semi-monthly report issued here today by the United States bureau of agricultural economics, covering a period from March 1 to 15. The report declares that crops are making satisfactory progress in Arizona and New Mexico and recent moisture has improved the prospects for range and for winter grains in Utah, Nevada, Wyoming and most parts of Colorado. Prospects for irrigation water are favorable throughout the region, the report asserts.

"In general," it continues, "the outlook for the coming season for both the farmers and stockmen is more encouraging than for some time. Small grains are beginning to head in the southern irrigated valley of Arizona and recent rains and snows have been beneficial in New Mexico. The prospect for winter wheat and rye shows a slight improvement, since the recent moisture in Wyoming, but more moisture is needed in some parts of Colorado in order to stimulate growth. The fall and winter combined with heavy winds in some sections have been unfavorable to the wheat crop in Colorado. Much of it failed to sprout, or where some growth was made it has subsequently been damaged by soil blowing.

Nevada Range Good
Prospects for spring range are excellent in Utah and Nevada. Sheep are on the upgrade again in both states, but cattle show reasonable decline in condition though no real complaint as to losses or feed shortage are heard. Marked improvement is noted in the condition of range in both New Mexico and Arizona due to recent moisture and warm weather. Livestock are in good condition in Arizona and are improving in New Mexico. Some alfalfa is in bloom in southern Arizona. Recent snows supplied needed moisture to start spring grass in Wyoming and although stock suffered some during the snow, losses were light. Cattle and sheep are in excellent condition in Colorado although some thin stock are reported in a few districts where feed was scarce.

Both deciduous and citrus fruits are in bloom in the Salt River valley in Arizona. It is feared the present low temperature will injure fruit that has blossomed in New Mexico. Potatoes are still held in large quantities in Wyoming, with little prospect of sale. A reduction of the potato acreage is indicated in both Wyoming and Colorado. Several new sections will be planted to sugar beets in Wyoming. An increased acreage of beans is being discussed in Colorado.

MYSTERIES BALK PROBE

Mrs. Taylor was arraigned upon complaint of Romeo Forini, who described a "night of terror" in the apartment of Mrs. Taylor. He said he had given her jewels and other things worth $10,000 since he met her last September.

On March 13, Forini testified he visited Mrs. Taylor's apartment and was forcibly held there after he had announced he was going home. He said Mrs. Taylor threw acid on him, cut his clothing into shreds with a carving knife and held him through the night.

Addressing the magistrate, Mrs. Taylor said: "I am like Dorothy Keenan. If this man doesn't kill me, some friend of his will." She swooned and fell to the floor, was carried to bench and revived. The case was postponed until tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jonfro entertained 45 of their friends Saturday evening at Justmere Inn. The early part of the evening was devoted to "500." Prize for high score was won by John Van Laderston, and the consolation by Edwin Stephen. Following the card games dancing was enjoyed, the music being furnished by Paul Dunkley. At 10 o'clock a dainty luncheon, carrying out the St. Patrick colors in green and white, was served.

Mrs. J. B. Williams, Mrs. Frank Howson, Mrs. H. R. Groome and Mrs. Glen Jenkins entertained the Star Social club in the amusement room at the Royal apartment Monday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Glen Jenkins, the business session was presided over by Mrs. E. B. Dooley, vice president. Several clever guessing contests provided amusement for the afternoon, after which refreshments were served. About 40 were in attendance.

The members of the congregation of the Presbyterian church gave Mr. D. E. Davies a delightful surprise party Monday evening at his home on Seventh avenue north. It was in the nature of a farewell, as Mr. Davies is leaving this week for Denver to make his home. Mrs. Davies and children will remain in Twin Falls until the close of school.

The box social held Saturday evening by the Catholic Women's League proved to be a very delightful affair. The following musical program was enjoyed: Two vocal numbers by the Emmanon trio, which is composed of Mrs. I. H. Masters, Mrs. W. H. Dwight and Miss Emma Smith, accompanied by Mrs. D. L. Alexander; these were "Shoogy Sho" and "Killarney." Miss Theresa Hiford rendered two vocal solos, "Hello Me If All These Endearing Young Charms" and "Come Back to Erin." She was accompanied by Mrs. D. E. Regan.

Doings Crow of Twin Falls and Miss Lyla Orchard, who were married at Pocatello March 4. Mr. and Mrs. Crow expect to remain here for a short time and they will make a trip east in the spring.

Witnesses for Geraldine Farrar Bring Actor for Divorce Bring Women Correspondents into Case

NEW YORK, March 19. (AP)—Lou Tellegen, actor, who is being sued for divorce by Geraldine Farrar, former Metropolitan Opera star, was described today as a "Don Juan" of stage, sea and ghetto, by witnesses testifying for the diva before Before Thomas B. Mahony.

A third woman, said to be known in San Francisco as Bessie Clifford, was named in the complaint, but no mention was made of her today.

Two of the witnesses, W. F. Beers and Louis Malthaner, owners of bungalows in a colony on Long Beach, described a "month of bliss" spent in July, 1921, by Tellegen and Miss Ambler in a cottage facing the sea.

ONE MORE LESSON

News of the death of one of Boise's best known bankers reaches Twin Falls upon the eve of a similar tragedy which united a few miles of this city last week.

There is no means of knowing and few will pause to enquire as to where the responsibility lay. Both men died in auto accidents. Possibly each was an unusually careful driver; the result is the same.

As remarked frequently, it amounts almost to a miracle that there are so few auto accidents in this section. Delivery cars dash madly out of alleys with never a note of warning.

It's all right — as before stated, yet there are very few accidents, yet nevertheless the responsibility is not lightly accepted.

SPRING

Spring will come in, to be precise, at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. This vernal equinox is a very regular matter; nature, with all her vagaries, can be rigidly scientific when she chooses.

March passes as a spring month, though it is two-thirds gone before the zodiacal date. Thus, many hail the first of March as the beginning of spring, and point to the robin and the bluebird in confirmation.

There was a logic in the old Julian calendar which began the year with March, as the names of the months, September, October and the rest, reveal.

"The spring comes slowly, up this way," said Lowell, thinking of his own New England. It does more than come slowly; it comes irregularly.

"I can't set down, Mrs. Penfield. I just came in to borrow an egg. I didn't know I was out, but I'll get some more tomorrow."

"GOOD QUEEN LIL"

Recalling Occasion of Royalty's Visit to Washington.

Last of Hawaiian Dynasty Came to the Capital to Seek Restitution of Her Prerogatives.

Official Washington had put on her very best clothes and made ready to give royal welcome to a royal guest. True, this visitor no longer occupied a throne, nor was she ever likely to.

This visitor was the last of the Hawaiian dynasty, Queen Liliuokalani, popularly known in this country as queen Lil, writes Margaret Bell in the Boston Globe.

At the age of four she was sent to boarding school, where she learned to speak English and think Christian. She spent all of her childhood and some of her young womanhood in school.

Queen Lil managed to keep her throne for two years. During that time her husband died and she found herself deprived of a very vital moral power.

Saturday, and I shan't have any more till—till later."

"My landy Goshen!" cried the amazed Mrs. Wopple. "I never heard of anybody keeping house 'bout havin' eggs 'count'ed."

"You got an awful light way of takin' serious matters," disapproved Mrs. Penfield. "Me, I shouldn't—heavens to Betsy! What's that? Her eyes rolled wildly toward the ceiling."

"It's my Uncle Jerry," smiled Mrs. Penfield. "You got Uncle Jerry! What's he doin' there?"

"Livin'—or gettin' ready to. He's just moved in."

"My land!" Mrs. Wopple, who had been standing in the doorway, leaned against the jamb, as if in preparation for a sudden change of direction.

"Well, if he's goin' to try to live up there, he must be a awful poor!" "I don't know," replied Mrs. Penfield calmly. "I haven't asked him."

"Guess there ain't no need," sniffed Mrs. Wopple. "Actions is good 'nough evidence. At his time of life, he must be a failure if he's willin' to hang out in 'a place that nobody ever thought of livin' in. Me, I'm glad I'm well connected. Ain't nobody in my family but what rises better'n I do—and I'm pretty comfortable."

"That's nice," commented Mrs. Penfield cordially. "Ain't nothing so satisfactory as being satisfied."

"There you go laughin' again," said Mrs. Wopple, with a touch of exasperation. "You ain't no other minute you'll be tellin' me you like failure better'n success."

"Mrs. Penfield was amused, rather than offended. "No, I shan't, although sometimes there ain't much difference in 'em. Depends on what kind you mean. There's some kinds of success that I'd expect you meant money, 'cause that's what Uncle Jerry ain't giving many symptoms of havin'."

"Sure I meant money. Way 'tis with me, I hain't got no respect for a man that can't make money."

"Is that so?" Mrs. Penfield's question was purely rhetorical; also carefully inquired, although she knew she glanced for a moment at the weakened man who was Mrs. Wopple's husband, with the selfish, inquisitive eyes and the selfish, grasping hands.

"Money success is something I've speculated 'bout considerable; it's one of the queerest things I know of. I'd like to head straight for it. It's just something that you can use any way you like."

"Exactly," put in Mrs. Wopple, nodding vigorously. "That's why—" "Say, Caroline, where in thunder's your hammer? And you got an old tin? The mouse-holes is as thick—"

The voice, growing nearer, stopped abruptly as Uncle Jerry entered the kitchen and perceived an unknown neighbor. Mrs. Penfield introduced him.

"Pleased to meet you, I'm sure," acknowledged Mrs. Wopple treacherously.

"I hope you're goin' to enjoy yourself in Mrs. Penfield's lot," Her voice was acutely sweet.

"Thanks. I'm going to 'prise you by doin' that very thing."

To Mrs. Penfield's amazement, they looked steadily at each other through a moment of tact appraisement, more significant than speech. And it was as if each felt the decision of the other and acted upon it, for Mrs. Wopple flushed and departed with stammering leave-taking, and when she had gone, Jerry Winston laughed.

"Sweet little dame!" he murmured. "Pepper up an icicle, and you got her duplicate, eh?" "Sh-h, Uncle Jerry," begged Mrs. Penfield in a whisper. "Here's Personal Prue coming, and I wouldn't have her hear you."

No longer young, she had yet retained many of the elements of youth, like a flower that has been dipped in wax.

"If I'm intruding—" "Nonsense, my dear," interposed Mrs. Penfield. "You're always welcome. Besides, I want you to get acquainted with my Uncle Jerry."

"Prudence Haggood acknowledged the introduction with a grace that was unusual in the Custard Cup. But Jerry Winston betrayed embarrassment, most surprising, most unlike his accustomed assurance. A flush rose under his heavy tan; he mumbled fiercely about it."

"I've heard about you," said Prudence. "And sometime I want to hear about the lumber and the camp and the woods and—everything. I need some ideas for landscapin'—something primitive, wilder—Oh—Oh—"

She smiled at him gently. "I should do the designing, Mr. Winston, but I need some ideas for landscapin'—something primitive, wilder—Oh—Oh—"

"Never mind," grinned Jerry Winston, his composure restored now that he could laugh at his own expense. "But think of making a pillow top on my experience! I guess it's going to be a wild one, all right."

"Oh, dear me, you understand I didn't mean—" She wrung her hands in distress.

Mrs. Penfield, perceiving that her guests had expectedly run around Prudence in the matter of their remarks with brusque but effective measures. "Uncle Jerry, if you're goin' to get them mouse-holes stopped 'fore dark, you got to hurry, and I dare say Miss Haggood's got impressions 'nough to make a pillow top right now."

"You'll find a hatchet over by the door in the kitchen. Lettie brought in some pieces of tin yesterday. You see if they ain't in the yard some where."

"Oh, I hope I didn't offend him," sighed Prudence, when they were alone—"I wasn't meaning it personally."

"Don't you worry," Mrs. Penfield said to her mistress. "Uncle Jerry's good nature is so snap that you can drop a lot of mistakes in it without ever hitting his feelings 't all."

"Yes, he seems rather—rather—"

Mrs. Penfield gave her a quick glance, but made no comment. They drifted into innocuous chatter of many things—items of news in the Custard Cup, the kitchen, the price of butter, the best way to make Indian pudding.

Between them there was a close bond of affection, so far beneath the surface that it ran clear of their radical dissimilarities in experience and tastes. Mrs. Penfield's activities were rigidly practical; but Prudence maintained a studious economy in the two rooms which she reserved in her fat for her own use. She rented the other rooms, and occupied herself with hand stitching, fine embroidery, and the making of pillow tops, to help out her income.

She was that strange geographical anomaly, a New Englander set down in a little west untrammeled state of all the free. And yet the transplanting had occurred so late that she showed the least possible effect of the change, as if her roots had been amply protected by the accompanying soil of her native section.

Three thousand miles from the land of her birth, she lived in an atmosphere which she had brought with her, as her grandmother's clock ticked off the days under the glass dome that shut out the rude breezes of a wider world.

She had had a Romance! She had had a lover; she had been engaged. But the lover had gone to sea, had written Edwin P. Miller, a student in the law; but when he did not return, he was enveloped with that glamor that descends most easily upon the lover who ships for those languorous lazes, to bring for his bride fragrant chests of treasure—rich silks and flimsy tissues wrapped in the warm odors of the Far East.

He had never come back, and Prudence had never forgotten. With unfailing loyalty, which had given her the sobriquet of Perennial Prue, she had kept his memory, had kept her little candle of devotion ever burning before his shrine in her faithful heart. If he had returned, her mist of love would have been displaced by the mingled colors of everyday living—perhaps transcended, but inevitably changed. As it was, the mist still lingered back there on the hills of her youth, and the focus of her vision kept it always in view.

Prudence, sitting quietly in the stiff back chair, watched Mrs. Penfield's busy fingers, shutting yards of thread into worn stockings, setting patches into a small faded dress.

"Lettie makes you a lot of work, doesn't she?" "Yes, she does, but I don't mind it, 'cause I love the child. Fate kind of pitched her into a clump of nettles, and she's got her eye stuck in a sticking to her, but they'll come out after a while. And so long as the Lord'll let me work for folks that I love, I consider that He's giving me a vacation all the time."

dence gently. "Why, I declare, I most forgot the gossip."

"The gossip? What's happened?" "Why, Mr. Bosley's riding 'round in a new car."

"Yes—five-passenger. Mr. Bosley says he represents a big eastern concern; has a very responsible position, with a lot of salary."

"H'm," rejoined Mrs. Penfield. "Maybe his work is sending air messages. Hours he keeps would kind of indicate it." She looked up as the sound of footsteps turned into the hall.

Lorena Percy came into sight. "Come right in, honey."

"My, you look happy!" said Mrs. Penfield, studying the girl's glowing cheeks and shining violet eyes. "What nice thing has happened?"

Lorena paused a moment in evident uncertainty before a caller; then threw herself on Mrs. Penfield's neck. "Oh, Mrs. Penzie, I came to you first, because I want somebody to be happy with me and you're the only one—"

Her breath caught; she stopped. "Lorena, dear, ain't anything I like better'n to be happy with you?" She drew the girl around gently, till she could look into the flushed face. "I know what it is, dear. You're engaged to that nice Mr. Chase."

Lorena's clear eyes turned upon her for assurance. "You do think he's nice, don't you? I want somebody to feel that way. My stepmother says—"

Mrs. Penfield drew her closer. "Poor dear child!" she said softly. "Yes, if I know anything 'bout human beings, you two lucky young people to get each other."

"Oh, I—I love you," choked the girl. Her high tide of joy broke on the rock of cold opposition which she would presently encounter at home. Unable to control herself, she turned quickly and went out without another word.

"My gracious!" breathed Mrs. Penfield. "Do you s'pose the time'll ever come when Lettie'll cry like this 'cause I've made her so wretched that she can't stand the shock of being happy? Lorena's a sweet girl, and I like that young Chase, too."

"Yes," said Prudence softly. "It's very beautiful."

PREDICT BETTER PRICE ON CROPS

Mixed Marketing of Vegetables Means More Cash, Sales Executive Claims

Vegetable growers of the Twin Falls country by practicing diversification of growing and marketing can realize far greater profits than by relying on any one crop.

Mr. Kupfer and R. G. Risser of Sacramento, Cal., manager of the crop production department of the marketing organization, addressed a meeting of Twin Falls farmers in the chamber of commerce rooms Monday night on growing and marketing methods. They will leave Tuesday to complete a series of similar meetings throughout the southern Idaho district.

Explains Plans

"One of the secrets of the success of vegetable growing in California," said Mr. Kupfer, "is the fact that the growers market several different kinds of vegetables in each car. Up to this year the Twin Falls growers have marketed their lettuce crops with very few other products in the same car."

"By using the method of loading mixed cars the smaller markets are opened to the producers and the risk of low prices on account of flooded markets at any one point is cut down a great deal. I am sure that if the local growers will grow diversified crops and market in the same way that from 20 to 50 new markets west of Chicago will be opened up to them. Most of these markets are small ones and unable to use entire cars of any one product as soon as it is received."

Talks Growing Methods

Mr. Risser addressed the meeting of growers principally on growing and cultivating methods. He took up the advantages of different means of planting and cultivation and compared the spring and fall crops of vegetables in this district as to their market value. General discussion of all points mentioned were engaged in by those at the meeting.

Both executives are urging the growing of more cauliflower and celery in addition to lettuce and as a result several growers have signed contracts with the California organization for marketing these crops as well as lettuce.

CONVICTION OF WOMAN BEINGS MARCH DOCKET

Mrs. Naomi Ellison is Found Guilty; Six Cases Remains to be Tried on March Term Criminal Docket

The trial of the criminal docket of the March term in district court began Monday with the conviction of Mrs. Naomi Ellison on a statutory charge.

The remainder of the criminal docket includes four liquor cases, one grand larceny and one charge of receiving stolen property.

The trial of Mrs. Ellison occupied the entire day Monday. Testimony was given by Officer W. H. Green and Mrs. Virginia Fowler for the state and by Floyd W. Fowler, Mrs. Ellison and H. Anderson for the defense.

The case was given to the jury at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon and the verdict of guilty was returned about 8:30 o'clock in the evening. Some of the excitement was created during the trial when Fowler, who was arrested with Mrs. Ellison in a downtown rooming house, became involved with Green in an altercation outside the court room that resulted in Fowler being taken to a cell in the county jail for a short time. Testimony given by the officer was said to have caused the trouble.

Charles A. North of Hodgkin, Stephan and North, was counsel for the defense, and J. W. Taylor, prosecuting attorney, appeared for the state. Fowler will be tried Tuesday.

SWEeley WILL RESIGN FROM UTILITIES BOARD

Twin Falls Attorney Confirms Reports That He Will Leave Commission; Will Return to Practice

BOISE, March 19 (AP)—E. M. Sweeley, president of the public utilities commission, will resign soon, he said today.

George E. Erb, retiring member of the commission, who has been president for the last two years, will serve until April 15, at which time he will be succeeded by Will H. Gibson of Mountain Home, whose appointment has been announced by Governor C. C. Moore. The time when Mr. Sweeley will sever his connection has not been decided.

Mr. Sweeley made no public statement of his intention to resign until word of it was received in Boise from Salt Lake. A publication of the Interstate Rate association expressed regret that Idaho and the Intermountain country would lose his services and those of Mr. Erb.

"It is true that I intend to resign," said Mr. Sweeley. "The time will depend upon the work now pending before the commission and upon the wishes of the governor. That is all I can say now."

Commissioner Sweeley, who was an attorney at Twin Falls when appointed to the commission by Governor D. W. Davis in 1919, will return to the practice of law.

LAWMAKERS WILL SPEAK

Members of Twin Falls county's delegation to the seventeenth session of the Idaho legislature will be speakers at a regular meeting and dinner of the Presbyterian Men's club, to be held Tuesday evening in the church parlors. The Pneumonia Month

Mare is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleanses but the germ laden mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Why Not Have Your Clothes Made at Home?

Not ready-made suits—not the kind where your measure is taken by a merchant and forwarded to some other city to be made up by workmen who spend their money in that same other town and don't care two cents if Twin Falls remains on the map or not.

Good clothes are possible only through first-class tailoring, careful fittings and frequent consultation. The kind of service I give my customers.

Why not let me figure with you on your next suit? I guarantee that you will be more than satisfied with the results.

We make clothes for particular people. If you care to inquire of some of these we will cheerfully supply the names.
