GOVERNMENT TO STAND BACK OF TRADERS FLEET

Declaration that the American Merchant Marine Will Be Maintained as Going Concern Comes From White House

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—Notice was served on all concerned after a two-hour conference at the White House today that the American merchant marine is to be maintained as a going concern, either under private supervision or under a straight out policy of government ownership and government operation.

The statement was made at the White House that President Harding and members of the shipping board who met with him to consider the shipping situation were unanimous in their opinion that "the chief end to be sought is the establishment and maintenance of the American merchant marine."

"The statement," said Chairman Lasker later, "means simply this: American and foreign shipping interests may be assured that so far as the government can see ahead there will be adequate American tonnage to carry any cargo offered to any part of the world."

Forty Routes to Be United.

With the conviction that private operation has not yet been subjected to the list of impossible things, the conference determined upon one more attempt to turn over established routes to private ownership. As an initial step, the 40 existing routes will be consolidated to insure more economical and efficient operation, and they will be offered for sale at public auction, practically at auction, but with the stipulation that only "justifiable" bids will be considered. A condition of all sales will be that the vessels concerned be kept on their present routes.

The consolidation is expected to remove one of the principal handicaps to private ownership, as in an initial step, the 40 existing routes will be consolidated to insure more economical and efficient operation, and they will be offered for sale at public auction, practically at auction, but with the stipulation that only "justifiable" bids will be considered.

Cites Advantages.

An example was cited today in the case of certain routes out of New York. An operator running ships to Amsterdam, it was pointed out, might have an outward cargo and the opportunity to pick up return freight at Rotterdam, but would be unable to avail himself of the existence of the same cargo route from New York to Rotterdam. The consolidation will combine routes to adjacent foreign ports under a single head and the view of having the same amount of business with less ships. It is estimated that the number of routes might be reduced to 18 by consolidation, and the number of operators reduced in proportion, Chairman Lasker said today advertisement of the sale would be ready in three weeks.

Father Charles Dillon who Shot and Killed His Superior, Complains that Reporter Garbled His Statements

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 14 (AP)—While funeral services are being held Monday for the Rev. Father Henry O'Neill, pastor of St. Augustine's Catholic church, Father Charles Dillon, who shot and killed the priest last Thursday night, will be arraigned in circuit court, charged with murder.

Father Dillon spent the part of today in his cell reading newspaper accounts of the shooting. He complained that several of his statements had been garbled by the court stenographer, who carried his statement to the prosecuting attorney, and said he is through talking about the tragedy. He persists in his declaration that he was perfectly sane and that he was justified in killing the priest for what he termed "13 months of ill-treatment."

BABSON SEES EVIDENCE OF INDUSTRIAL REVIVAL

Statistician Finds Figures More Encouraging Than He Had Expected; Gives Warning Against Reaction

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., April 14 (Special to The News)—Roger W. Babson is very optimistic on the immediate outlook. Since returning from his inspection trip he has been going through the mass of reports and figures which accumulated on his desk during his absence. "These statistics are even more encouraging than he had anticipated."

"American business has certainly waked up!" according to the statistician. "The Babson chart showed nearly 4,000,000 men out of employment a year ago. Today it shows practically no unemployment. Where blast furnaces were then being banked, new furnaces are now being started and premiums are paid for prompt steel deliveries. The copper industry is showing activity for the first time for several years and many of the miners have been given a great increase of 50 cents a year. Building is still booming and the 1923 figures will exceed any previous year, notwithstanding the big volume of 1922."

"The most remarkable change in sentiment I find right at home here in New England. A year ago the mills were cutting wages and great numbers of workers were out on strike. Today the mills are working overtime and the largest concern is advancing wages. Of course, this is an unhealthy sign for the long pull because it is due only to the artificial barrier on immigration. On the other hand, increased wages are a great temporary stimulus to trade. The purchasing power of many cities is simply the total of these cities' payrolls. Increasing wages in New England's mills of 12 to 12 per cent increases the purchasing power of the communities to almost a corresponding amount."

This means that these manufacturing centers will—during 1923—be the best places to send salesmen, because most wage workers spend all they get. Moreover, such salesmen should be sent to these cities at once, because the present boom cannot be long lived. It is not based on a firm foundation. Many of these men now getting an increase in their wages will be out of work before 1924 is ended.

"While coming north last week from my winter home at Mountain Lake on the beautiful Ridge Lake section of Florida I saw cotton being planted in Georgia. It is evident that the South is very happy with the present price of cotton and that a large acreage will be planted in 1923. Corn planting has started in the Southwest and the seeding of oats is seen throughout the South and Southwest. Winter wheat, doubtless, was killed to some extent last month in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Kentucky; but these fields will soon be replanted, for even the farmer is feeling better than he has felt for some years in spite of the fact that he is not yet out of the doldrums. His great difficulty was that the price of wheat had to sell went down so much more than the price of what he had to buy.

What the farmer wants is higher produce prices or lower merchandise prices. Now to have merchandise prices go up still higher in 1923, as everything indicates will be the case, the farmers must get higher prices for their 1923 crops or else there surely will be another collapse in 1924. We cannot get good business by disregarding either the multiplication table or the ten commandments.

"The Ruhr invasion is also helping spring business over here in America. For the first time in history—except during the great World War—we are shipping iron in this luxury she to Japan, which had ordered great amounts of steel from Ruhr mills, is now turning to the United States. Europe, which has been indulging in this luxury she must not live. Hence, France and Germany are again buying goods in America, as the export figures to be issued shortly by the department of commerce will clearly show. How long this situation will last no one can tell, but it is helping us here in the United States.

Politicians Drag on Prosperity

"Spring business is also being increased by the belief that congress will not be in session again until December and then for only a short session. Whatever the motives of our politicians may be, the fact remains that they are a great drag on the prosperity of America. Under our present system of government the only reason we have any prosperity is because of our tremendous natural resources. Our forests, mines, fertile fields, and other great gifts of God enable us to afford to indulge in factional legislation and political logrolling in Washington. How long this cause this selfish game for nine months business almost always piles up. Certainly this is one of the chief causes for optimism here."

"I am very hopeful for immediate business," concluded Mr. Babson, "as the robins come back and the trees leaf out business will be good, and all of us prosperous. I only add let us be sure not to abuse this prosperity, or the Babson chart, which now stands at 4 per cent above normal, will quickly drop back."

RECEIVER IS ASKED FOR IDAHO WHEAT GROWERS

Northwest Association Alleges Purchase of Warehouses and Elevators Makes Settlement Impossible

POCATELLO, April 14—A complaint filed in district court here Friday by the Northwest Wheat Growers Association of Portland and Minneapolis, asks that a receiver be appointed for the south Idaho branch of the Idaho Wheat Growers' association. The complaint alleges that funds received from the sale of wheat have been used for the purchase of warehouses and for warehouse operations to such an extent that the organization will be unable to make settlement with its members. Erroneous reports were circulated some days ago that a petition for receivership had been filed here last Wednesday, whereas no action was taken until this morning.

The south Idaho division has been in operation for two years, with headquarters at American Falls. It has been operated independently of the parent organization under a local board of five directors who have exercised complete control of the pool operations in the south Idaho territory, all of whom are cited in the complaint filed by the Northwest Wheat Growers Association. They are: J. T. Pather, Rockland; W. F. Alworth, Twin Falls; W. J. Williams, Malad, and J. D. Rigney, Jerome. The Northwest Wheat Growers Association is the sales agency for cooperative wheat marketing associations in Washington, Oregon, north Idaho, Montana and North Dakota. A statement made public at the time of filing the complaint against the south Idaho association declares there has been no connection between that branch and members of the northwest cooperative group.

M'CARL MIXES WITH DENBY IN FISCAL AFFAIR

Comptroller General Warns Navy Secretary He Will Require Strict Enforcement of Law in Expenditures

WASHINGTON, April 14 (AP)—J. R. McCarl of Nebraska, who two years ago unostentatiously took up the duties of the newly-created office of comptroller general of the United States, today laid down the law to Secretary Denby in support of his claim that over-cabinet officers must bow before the authority of his office in fiscal affairs. At the same time, Secretary Denby prepared to take to the attorney general for an opinion the question of how far the authority of the comptroller general legally extends into the administrative workings of the navy department. Many navy officers and enlisted men have complained, many department officers said, that Mr. McCarl had, in effect, overruled formal navy orders.

Mr. McCarl's action, constituting a warning to all government departments that he intends to force strict compliance with the law in the expenditure of public money, became known through a letter he addressed to the navy secretary, in which he asserted that so long as he ruled on matters within his jurisdiction, his authority under the law, could be questioned by no official of the executive branch of the government.

Provisions of the budget act in which the office of comptroller general was created, say specifically that he, as head of the general accounting office, may exercise his powers "without direction from any other officer."

Invokes Sailors' Pay.
The controversy over Mr. McCarl's authority came to a head through a protest by Secretary Denby against the comptroller's ruling in a minor case involving the over-payment of an enlisted man. Mr. McCarl instructed the navy department disbursing officer to get the money back. Secretary Denby opposed the action as "interference" within his department, and Mr. McCarl sent a letter along which informed the navy secretary in part as follows:

"There was no authority in such administrative powers given the head of the navy department to issue an order annulling a receipt of this office to protect the fiscal affairs of the United States and which might jeopardize such recovery of government money as the action appears to have been in this case."

Mr. Denby's objection to activities of the comptroller general was not his first one. The first that had reached the general accounting office from other departments of the government, but backed by the best counsel in his department, he appeared today to be ready to force a fight. In a formal report of the reported intention of the navy chief, Mr. McCarl declared he had no thought of abandoning his position.

Fifteen Years Ago in Twin Falls

From News Files, April 10, 1908.

W. B. Hoag has gone to Michigan to visit for a couple of weeks.

P. D. Kingsbury of Chicago is one of the recent recruits who have come to stay.

O. E. Carlson, who has opened the Western Music store on East Main street, is figuring on larger quarters which will enable him to put in a stock of pianos. He is going to bring in a clever piano tuner from Nebraska.

John Graf has presented to the Twin Falls Old Fellows a section of headboard from a grave near the head of Clark's grade. It bears the inscription: "H. S. Webb, August, 1852," above which appears the three links. The wood is in a fine state of preservation and the inscription is quite clear. Mr. Graf found the head-board near where three graves are located along the old gravel stage road which crossed the river at Clark's grade. Noticing the three links he decided to present the board to the Old Fellows in the hope that they might be able to identify the man who sleeps beneath the grave brush.

A. Guibert of Waterville, Wash., purchased this week the lot on Main street next to Lavering's furniture store. He also bought a residence lot and will return to Twin Falls within a month and enter contracts for his residence and other business blocks. Mr. Guibert is an experienced jeweler and will probably take up that line of work.

On Friday last week Mrs. Everett Sweeley entertained the Larchmont club most delightfully. The table was exquisitely arranged with delicacies and water color place cards all under cover. The hostess was assisted in serving the six courses by Mrs. T. J. Woods. In the games of bridge Mrs. Aiken and Mrs. Nixon won the hands cheerfully.

Robert Rogerson is excavating for a three-story building on the north corner of Main and Ninth streets. It will have a frontage of 75 feet on Main street.

Since the first of the year 121 carloads of emigrant effects have been received on the Twin Falls tract. Of this number 60 were unloaded in Twin Falls.

COX SEES WORLD COURT MEMBERSHIP APPROVED

Democratic Candidate for President in 1920 Describes "Beginning of End of American Isolation"

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 14 (AP)—Members of the United States in the International court of justice "is the beginning of the end of American isolation," declared James M. Cox, democratic candidate for president in 1920, in an address tonight at a Jefferson day banquet here.

Mr. Cox expressed confidence that the senate would approve membership in the court and asserted that "the work of conversion is over." "There should be no disposition at this Jeffersonian observance to exult over the centennial in the ranks of the old guard in the republican party," said Mr. Cox. "The mere circumstance of hundreds of thousands of republicans coming to the democratic view on international questions is sufficient unto our joy at this hour."

"Let us hope that the submergence of the Lodges and others of this type by an overwhelming public opinion will mean the certainty of taking this great moral issue out of politics."

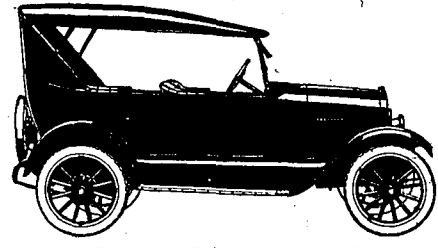

"In the presence of pressing world wide necessities, let us have sight of any political advantage that might be attained, and support any enterprise, having for its purpose the repair of civilization, regardless of the auspices under which it is presented. The irreconcilables are now fighting among themselves."

"The senate will approve our membership in the international court. There was no necessity of a campaign being conducted in behalf of this proposition. The work of conversion is over."

"The public opinion of America converted the president and the secretary of state. It will be nothing less than an amusing spectacle to see those recently converted, attempting an appeal to the public opinion which accomplished the apostasy."

Wherever motor cars are discussed, and that's nearly everywhere, somebody is sure to remark—"That Studebaker Special-Six is a regular automobile."

The Studebaker Special-Six has been on the market for four years. Each year has seen added to it such refinements and improvements as time has made possible. Today there are more than one hundred and twenty-five thousand in every-day service and we don't believe there's a dissatisfied owner.

The name was selected because comparative tests against all kinds of cars made this car stand out as something special and apart from the ordinary run of automobiles. It requires special merit to warrant calling any car a special—and if the value isn't special the car quickly fades away.

Count the "Special-Sixes" that have appeared since the arrival of the Studebaker Special-Six. That's the proof of the value of the original Special-Six.

SUGAR PROBE

preliminary statement covering the effect of present prices on sugar prices, as requested by President Harding, failed today and it was said that, although the members appeared nearer an agreement, the final form of the preliminary reply was some distance from completion.

The president has made preparations to confer Tuesday or Wednesday with the commission on the sugar price investigation and the deadlock over procedure by the commission on the flexible tariff provisions, but at the slow rate of progress today the sugar report will hardly be finished by that time, according to some members.

Chairman Marvin, however, was hopeful that Monday would see the task of framing the sugar report finished.

INTOLERANCE

The great crime in America is to think. The herd does not think and its intolerance of those who do has no bounds.

If a man disapprove of the government and tell his fellowmen about it, there is a clamor instant and while for his incarceration.

George Bernard Shaw has written a great defense of free speech in a simple sentence that should have its place on every editorial room desk.

WORK HAS THE RIGHT IDEA

It is notoriously difficult for government officials to obtain efficient service from employees.

Secretary of the Interior Work seems to be fully aware of this characteristic trait of the government appointee.

A man who is not willing to devote his time to a job for which he regularly draws a pay check from Uncle Sam should resign.

Her heart stood still as she thought of the money which she had failed to deposit that afternoon.

She went into the bedroom. The suitcase was on the floor.

The envelope of bills was gone. So was Gusie Bosley's package.

Mrs. Penfield sank back on the floor by the suitcase, faint and sick.

"Yes, he's Timmy were playing in the Catterbox back yard, and Thad

"Where's Thad, Penzie? Ain't he here?"

"Thad!" repeated Mrs. Penfield, still in a daze.

of the driveway and ringing doorbells in rotation. Some one was to come to every flat—except the Bosley's, where the windows were dark and the evening paper was still on the steps.

Lettie bounded in. She had known that Crink had rung Mrs. Sanders' bell, looking for Thad, but it had taken a few minutes for this information to turn into anxiety in her mind.

"Have they found him?" she demanded.

The silence answered her. They had all loved Thad, but no one had realized how large a place he held.

Mrs. Penfield stood in the middle of the room, unable to see the next move to make.

Her brown eyes looked black; they burned with a fierce fire. She had totally forgotten the loss of the money.

She had not even mentioned it to the children. What was money compared with Thad, the baby that she had loved as if it had been hers by blood?

Lettie had never seen her idolized Penzie look like that, had never seen her withdrawn from the ways of speech.

A mighty impulse surged up in the chest, and it was as if the rising tide of that impulse lifted a recollection, fallen in one corner of her brain, and bore it to the surface.

"I'll get him, Penzie; I'll get him," she screamed, waving her arm wildly and dashing toward the door.

Mrs. Penfield swung forward and caught the child by the shoulder. "You stay right here, Lettie. Ain't no use starting off at random. I'm going to Mrs. Catterbox's to telephone the police, and—"

"Leggo!" cried Lettie, working her lean shoulder manly in the effort to free herself. "Leggo! I'll get him."

"Lettie—" "Leggo! I gotta get him."

The frail cotton tore under Mrs. Penfield's grasp. Lettie had wrenched herself loose.

"Don't you worry, Penzie, darling," she shrieked, as she darted toward the door. "I know where he is. I'll get him; I'll get him."

CHAPTER XX Little on the Firing Line.

Lettie's plan was definite, but only a child would have formed it. Her suspicions were reborn, but only a child of ten would have suspected there would have acted upon them.

From Mrs. Sanders' living-room window she had caught the merest glimpse of a man with a child in his arms, hurrying out of The Custard Cup.

Looking from a lighted room into the deepening twilight, she had seen neither clearly and had not thought of recognizing the man or the child.

But when she had found that Thad was missing, she had jumped to the congenial conclusion that she had seen Frank Bosley carrying Thad away.

Why Frank Bosley? Chiefly because Lettie disliked him, distrusted him, and because in half a hour was not unlike the man she had seen. The fact that Frank Bosley could have no possible interest in kidnaping a Custard Cup child, did not occur to disturb her conviction.

True to the impulsiveness which was the keynote of her nature, she had jumped to a conclusion. It was several blocks to the Frehigh street house, but Lettie covered them rapidly. There was no light in any window, but she raised the bell. "I'll begin decent," she thought to herself. She was sure that queer people camp here, and somehow she didn't expect them to do anything so mild as to respond to a bell.

There was no answer. Lettie set her teeth and proceeded to business. "Thad's in there," she thought steadily, "and I'm going to have him."

Quietly she circled the two-story house. It had a high basement. There was a basement window toward the vacant lot, but it was fastened. Immediately she reflected that if she got into the basement, she would probably want to get upstairs and right and herself locked away from the main floor.

She knew that the key was not likely to be on the basement side. The windows on the first floor were all closed—except one on the other side from the vacant lot, probably the bathroom window.

That was raised a few inches. It was very narrow, but so was Lettie. Mentally she pounced on that window.

She called upon her wide experience in prowling to help her. In the back yard she found an old box; in other back yards she found other boxes. She borrowed four of different sizes, and with every intention of returning them.

No one knew better than Lettie how important a piece of personal property an old wooden box may be; and in spite of her acquisitive tendencies, she had a rigid respect for prior claims.

She placed the boxes on end, by way of making them reach. Then through acquired agility and with the help of nails that had once fastened a vine to the wall, she climbed within range of the ledge, pushed up the window softly, squeezed her thin body through, swung downward with her wiry hands gripping the sill, and touched her feet to the floor.

She was inside. With the exuberance of ignorance, she felt that her quest was nearly accomplished. She stretched out her hands till she discovered the door; then went through—into inky blackness. She groped along the wall, tried a door, found it locked; tried another, found it also locked; tried a third. The knob yielded. She turned it carefully and looked into a room in which a gas jet burned. A woman was sitting by a table—a rich woman. She was counting her money and putting the green bills into different piles. There was wrapping paper on the table, a ball of cord, a stick of red wax.

There was no child in the room. Having glanced around to make sure, Lettie tried to withdraw quietly, but the doorknob slipped in her hand. It clicked sharply. The woman turned with a violent start.

Churchmen See Creed in Light of Newer Facts

Educational Executives Recognize No Barrier to Liberty of Thought Within Bounds

OMAHA, April 14 (AP)—The educational executives of the Episcopal church at their fourth annual conference in session here today adopted what was described by one of the delegates as a "reassertion of the basic doctrine of the church, in terms of reason and sanity," which ascribed the "widespread feeling that restricts the mind and prevents real freedom to construction of thought."

Canon C. S. Lewis of Newark, N. J., presented the committee report, which contained the adopted resolutions.

"The church's doctrines and official teachings do not hamper the spirit of honest search for truth," the resolutions unanimously declare, "nor the desire to get a larger vision of it," and the "survivor position which ignores the fruit of modern knowledge and the results of scientific research is not the position of this church."

"It should be remembered," the resolutions continue, "that this freedom does not permit the denial of the articles of Christian faith as contained in the apostles' creed. It should further be remembered that it is the duty and privilege of every Christian to understand and interpret these articles in the light of modern knowledge."

Adopted with special reference to the statement in the annual address of the Rev. Dr. William Gardner, executive secretary of the department of religious education of the Episcopal church, that the youth of the church are demanding an "unshaking of thought" the resolutions are addressed to the youth of the communion. They set forth further:

"The appeal for men and women who can and will teach our youth the meaning of this kind of freedom both by the spoken and written word, is one to which immediate heed should be given. The freedom for which this church stands is freedom in the truth. The truth as this church has received the same from its Master, can always be vindicated to the sober sense and the conscience of sincere searchers for truth.

"We particularly commend the appeal of the address that teachers and preachers should make every effort to reveal to youth the church as she really is, as a place where men and women are encouraged to think freely and are never shackled in their thinking, so long as they are sincerely seeking after God, and no other their lives as those who must be about their Master's business."
