PRESIDENT STANDS BY HIS VIEWS

Political Leaders Wait With Keen Interest for Country's Reaction to Commitment to International Tribunal

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—President Harding today committed himself and his administration without equivocation to American membership in the permanent court of international justice.

Speaking at the annual luncheon of members of the Associated Press, Mr. Harding set forth the reasons which impelled him to recommend to the senate shortly before the adjournment of congress the adoption of the United States to the world court protocol as drafted under the present plan.

In doing so, the chief executive asserted his conviction that American membership in the court would be "in harmony with public opinion, pledges, candidatorial promises and American aspirations."

Politicians Await Reaction
The address, made before a thousand of the nation's leading newspaper editors and publishers, was generally considered as the beginning of the presidential campaign.

After the luncheon the president hurried to the new airport stadium, where he saw New York defect Washington 4 to 0, and Babe Ruth get his second home run of the season.

Ruthenberg—the program and constitution of the communist party of America—was read today to the jury trying Ruthenberg on charges of criminal syndicalism after all efforts of the defense to keep it out had failed.

"The communist party," it continues, "will systematically and persistently propagate the idea of the inevitability of and necessity for violent revolution and will prepare the workers for armed insurrection as the only means of overthrowing the capitalist state."

It is on this program that the state depends to prove the nature of the gathering at Briganigan, this county, which Ruthenberg attended last August.

KLAN FACTIONS SIGN ARMISTICE

Squabble for Control of Organization is Halted; Simmons and Evans Remain

ATLANTA, Ga., April 24 (AP)—Hostilities for control of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan ended today with the signing of an armistice between the opposing factions. William J. Simmons, emperor, and H. W. Evans, imperial wizard, are retained in their respective offices.

The controversy was brought to a close through the efforts of a commission of klansmen, aided, it was said, by independent counsel, Amur G. Powell and Hollis N. Randolph, non-members of the order. Judge E. D. Thomas, on motion of counsel for both sides, dismissed his order, and the commission of three which had been directing the affairs of the Klan. This commission was composed of Emperor Simmons, Imperial Wizard Evans and J. M. George, marshal of the national court. The contest originated over the Kamelia, the women's organization formed and founded by Colonel Simmons along the lines of the Klan. Accordingly, Powell and Randolph have been acting as chief of staff for Emperor Simmons, the agreement reached with Dr. Evans calls for the immediate withdrawal of Powell and Randolph from the Kamelia and to give it the support of the Klan.

TURKS GIVE NO INDICATION OF WELDING POINT

Lausanne Conference Reopening Finds Angora Delegates Unwilling to Make Concessions to Establish Peace

LAUSANNE, April 24. (AP)—The resumed Near East conference got under way today with the Turks apparently in no more conciliatory frame of mind than at the previous conference which collapsed over the economic and financial problems of the proposed peace treaty. The Angora delegates, as spokesmen said tonight, gave no impression during the day's proceedings of an intention to make concessions on any of the points which would be discussed.

Hasson Bey, the Turkish financial expert, told the financial committee of the conference at its first meeting that "Turks wanted no change in the Ottoman debt, but wanted a definite understanding that the Allies would not touch her territory as a result of the great war should also bear their just share of the total debt burden."

Referred to Experts.

He contended further, that the succession states, including Syria, Palestine, Mesopotamia and Persia, should stand a portion of the debt, drawn from circulation of the Turkish paper money. The Allies flatly declined to accept the Turkish contention that the paper money constitutes a debt to be borne by the detached provinces, but agreed that division of the Ottoman empire shall be obligatory, and the matter will be submitted to experts who will work out the details.

Numerous other financial questions of an extremely technical nature were attacked, but the majority were referred to the experts.

The American representatives did not participate in today's discussions, as they are determined to limit their official activities strictly to such matters as directly affect American interests.

WON'T START DISCUSSION.

LONDON, April 24. (AP)—Announcement was made in the house of commons tonight that Lord McNeill, secretary of the foreign office, that Great Britain did not intend to raise a discussion of the Lausanne conference.

SLAYER SUSPECT FREED

Court Releases C. B. Hicks While Police Investigate Alleged Confession of Youth Held in Arizona

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24. (AP)—Clarence B. Hicks, a naval seaman, was released by the police court today from a charge of murder growing out of a shooting in the desert. Rabbi Alfred G. Lafee here, while the police were endeavoring to obtain further information regarding Gladwell G. Richardson, supposed naval deserter, who is being held in Phoenix, Ariz., in connection with the crime.

The court held that the evidence against Hicks was not sufficient to hold him. He was being returned to the naval authorities.

Richardson will be brought back here to stand trial for desertion from the San Francisco marine station on Yerba Buena Island irrespective of what the San Francisco police do, the police were informed. There is some doubt in police circles as to whether he had any connection with the Lafee murder.

Feasting.

He that feasts his body with banquet and delicate fare, and starves his soul for want of exercise, will be like him that feasts his slave and starves his wife.

When I behold a fashionable table set out in all its magnificence, I fancy that I see gout and dropsies, fevers and lethargies, with other innumerable distempers, bring in multitudes among the dishes. Nature delights in the most plain and simple diet. Every animal, but man, keeps to one dish. Herbs are the food of this species, fish of that, and flesh of a third. Man falls upon everything that comes in his way; not he smallest fruit or vegetable of the earth, scarce a berry or a mushroom an escape him.—Addison.

Yes, Trees Must Eat.

Do you know how trees grow by forming new layers of wood directly under the bark? The roots are the support of the tree, says the School Book of Forestry, they also supply the tree with food. Through delicate tubes on the roots they absorb soil moisture and plant food from the earth and pass them along to the tree. The body of the tree acts as a passageway through which the food and drink are conveyed to the top or crown. The crown is the place where the food is digested and the regeneration of trees effected.

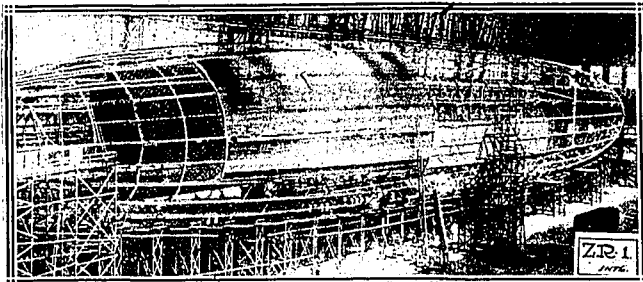

Why Fly Can Walk on Ceiling.

The fly has two sharp claws to each foot, by means of which it gets a firm grip of any rough surface it walks over. Besides these claws, it has on each foot a little velvet pad, always kept moist with a special kind of gum which it makes for the purpose. It is by the help of these sticky pads that it can run up a window-pane or take a walk on a ceiling.

Assurances of Esteem Given Great Britain

United States Ambassador Declares Americans Generally Approve English Policies

LONDON, April 24. (AP)—Memories of American war time hospitality were revived tonight at the fourth annual reunion of the British war mission to the United States, and Anglo-American relations came in for critical analysis.

"All Americans should reverent England; all Englishmen should be proud of America, not jealous of her," summed up Colonel George Harvey, the American ambassador, after covering the field of economic, industrial and historical relationship. He assured his distinguished audience that the bulk of the American people who live in the broad belt of country stretching from New England across the middle west to the Pacific coast are English in their antecedents and present sympathies.

Earlier in the evening, Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, had said that he was only recently admitted to the ranks of the British war mission reunionists, but in view of his debt funding junket he was convinced he had paid the highest entrance fee.

"Your payments to America are the cheapest insurance any country could have," responded Ambassador Harvey. "I would like to see Germany or any other power attack England now."

"We have got the money in the bank over here," concluded the ambassador.

Colonel Harvey deplored what he termed the British tendency to refuse to cooperate economically with America and cited instances where American manufacturing projects were not welcomed in England, merely because they were American. He then paid emphatic tribute to England for her wonderful recovery during the last few years, saying it was a mistake to refer to "old England," and assuring his hearers that "England is only a middle-aged country, but never more solid, never more steady and confident than today; all that is necessary is to give a leg-up to the bulwark of the country in the middle classes."

In a room full of generals and other military men, Stanley Baldwin, whom Ambassador Harvey characterized as a chatterbox having no job to do on his budget on the eve of his announcement, pleaded for Anglo-American efforts to end the war.

"If these two peoples on either side of the Atlantic, bound together by a common language and ideals," he said, "cannot do it, I know not how it can be done. We determined so far as it is in us, that we will have no war in Europe and we call on all who speak our language to join hands with us to see that there shall be peace among the nations."

The report of the third year's activity of the war mission organization presented by Arthur G. P. Brown, laid stress on the efforts to interpret the United States to the rising generation of Englishmen by an interchange of students and teachers, lectures in public schools by members of the British mission, entertainment of American students in England and of visitors, such as the American Legion delegation last year and participation in movements like the Page memorial.

JONAH AS MOSLEM PROPHET

Followers of Mohammed Regard His Tomb as One of Their Most Holy Places

Close to the mound in Mesopotamia that once was Nineveh, is another, known to the Arabs as Nebi-Yunus, atop of which is the tomb of Jonah. How the followers of Mohammed came to adopt this perfectly good Hebrew name of their own prophet is not clear, but the fact remains that his tomb has been a Moslem shrine for upward of a thousand years, observes E. Alexander Powell in Harper's Magazine.

The sarcophagus itself, covered with priceless Persian shawls, the offerings of pilgrims, stands in the center of a square, vaulted chamber, the floor of which is considerably below the level of the ground, thereby giving the interior, which is lined with porcelain tiles of the "lost" shade of Persian blue, a most refreshing coolness after the sun gets outside.

Depending from the dome by a silver chain, so that they swing directly over the resting place of the intrepid Jewish seafarer, are several "swords" of the swordfish. When I asked the aged mullah who was in charge of the shrine what they were, he explained, in a tone which betrayed pity for my ignorance, that they were the teeth of the whale that swallowed Jonah!

Men of Remarkable Memories

It is impossible not to wonder what overpowering floods of memories surge from return smelt in the minds of men celebrated for their memory. Cyrus, founder of the Persian empire, knew the name of every officer (Dionysius said every soldier) who served under him. Themistocles, the Athenian general and political leader, could call by name each one of the 20,000 citizens of Athens. Hortensius, the Roman orator, who spoke in the Forum at nineteen, could sit all day at an auction sale, and at evening give the account from memory of everything sold, the purchaser and the price.

A young Corsican who was said to have lived at Padua could repeat without hesitation 30,000 names in the order in which he heard them, and then reverse the order and proceed backward to the first.

FRAUD CHARGES ARE REVIEWED BY GOVERNMENT

Jury is Completed and Prosecution's Case Outlined in Trial of Morse and Others on Ship Deals

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—Completion of the jury and the beginning of the oral presentation of the government's case by District Attorney Gordon marked the trial today in the District of Columbia supreme court of Charles W. Morse, his three sons and four others. They are charged in indictments returned more than a year ago with a conspiracy to defraud the federal government in connection with ship construction and operating contracts awarded during and after the war.

With 11 men in the box when court convened, little discussion was had in selecting the twelve. Juror, only one salesman being examined. The jury is composed of seven salesmen, two cashiers, one hotel proprietor, one clerk and one collector.

District Attorney Gordon had not completed an explanation of the indictments at the adjournment of court and will resume that task tomorrow. It may be that the actual taking of testimony will not be started before Thursday, although the government witnesses in court today were directed to report tomorrow.

Forty Millions Involved. Approximately $40,000,000 was involved in the construction of the ship operating contracts awarded by the operating fleet corporation and the shipping board to the Groton Iron Works of Groton, Conn., the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation and the United States Transport Company, Inc.

ONION'S VALUE AS MEDICINE

For Many Ailments There is Nothing That Will Get as Good Results in Short Time.

The sweet Italian or the Bermuda onions are the ones to be eaten unpeeled, their flavor being much more delicate than that of the common varieties. But onions are really sweeteners of the breath after the local effects have passed away, as they correct stomach disorders and carry off the accumulated poisons of the system. They provide a blood purifier that all may freely use, and do perfect work in constipation troubles. As a vermifuge the onion cannot be surpassed, and, eaten raw, will often check a violent cold in the head. One baked onion eaten every night before retiring is a well-known doctor's prescription for numerous affections of the head, and is highly recommended for sleeplessness; it acts on the nerves in a soothing way, without the injurious effects of the drugs so often applied. The heart of an onion, heated and placed in the ear, will often drive the agony of earache while the drip procured from sprinkling a sliced onion with sugar and baking in the oven will work wonders in a "croupy" child.

BRUINS DEFEAT FILER, 4 TO 0

Pitchers' Battle, Staged by Garrity and Schaeffer, Features Fast High School Game

In the fastest game of baseball staged by high school teams in these parts this season, Twin Falls won a 4 to 0 victory Tuesday afternoon over the Filer team at Lincoln field.

Pitching left edge ball, Garrity and Schaeffer engaged in one of the prettiest pitchers' battles ever on Lincoln field, the game yielding but four hits in the nine innings, both Schaeffer being touched for 7. Neither pitcher walked a man, and only twice during the game did Schaeffer throw three balls to a batsman, and in each instance with three and one, he fanned the batter.

Garrity's record will go down in the pages of high school baseball as one of the greatest feats of perfect control while Schaeffer's work stamps him as a formidable contender for a place on the all-state baseball team.

Two Chases In

Twin Falls scored a couple in the second inning, after Jamison had opened the inning by striking out Hammond a sizzler to center field. On the hit and run John Nye sent a long drive to the barn in left field, scoring Hammond, and scoring himself a moment later on a wild pitch.

In the sixth inning the last two were chased in. With two men out Mussell sent a single to left, stole second, and scored on Jamison's error to right.

Filer became dangerous in the eighth when he struck out two men, and scored when Lapp made a poor throw to third.

Time of game—One hour 45 minutes. Umpire—Cal Griswold.

Garrett's 17 strikeouts may not be his record, but it makes good ammunition to talk about when the snow is on the ground.

Johs Schaeffer had the old hook ball working and made such stickers as Setek, Jamison, and Garrity look like beginners.

Mussell's catch of Diehl's high foul in the second was a pretty piece of work. The ball went high in the air, being straight up, Mussell making the catch within six feet of home base.

John Nye chased the first run over with a triple, and on his second trip to the plate singled, and got us far as third, when Evans beached him, sending Lou Scott to the hot corner to run for Nye. Scott was left stranded.

Slim Hammond made his first error of the season in the second inning, when he batted Schaeffer's roller.

Les Annum made a nice stop of Jerry Jarman's hot roller in the sixth, and threw him out at first.

Twin Falls will journey to Jerome Thursday for a return game with the north sides, and a large crowd of fans is figuring on making the trip with the athletes.

BRYAN FOR HARDING PLAN

The Screen

"CHRISTIAN" SCENES REGULAR TOUR

As good as a Cook's tour of England was a view of the fourteen reels of film brought back by the Goldwyn company which went abroad to film exteriors for "The Christian," the Goldwyn picture coming to the Idaho theatre on Thursday for three days, in which Richard Dix, May Burch, Philip Haver, Garth Hughes were being directed by Maurice Tourneur.

The unedited film included as a background for the stirring drama of the story, scenes on the Isle of Man, beautiful views of Epsom Downs race-track on Derby Day, the cloistered gardens of Kensington, Houses of Parliament; Whitehall and the river Thames, Cambridge, historic Trafalgar Square, where big mob scenes were staged by permission of the London Council; Whitechapel and Soho, the slum section used to establish "atmosphere" in contrast to that of Piccadilly and the Strand. Of course all of this film could not be used, in the final result, but enough has been retained to give spectators a good idea of England and the Isle of Man.

Hall Caine, the author of the novel, wrote the scenario on which the present adaptation was based. The novel, also worked with the Tourneur company helping them to find the most suitable locations and generally using his influence in their behalf. The company was ten weeks making the trip and procuring the necessary scenes.

PICTURES KING OF ROMANCE

No character in history or legend ever appealed more to the imagination for his preponderance of dashing romantic verve than Robin Hood, whose exploits in the Twelfth Century serve to mark that era as one in which the spirit of chivalry reached its zenith. No character in the memory of mankind ever was given such a magnificent opportunity to be impressed permanently so brilliantly. Douglas Fairbanks' masterly portrayal of this character in his photoplay, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," a United Artists release coming to the Orpheum Theatre soon, is sure to enhance the popularity of this hero since this film undoubtedly will live just as any great novel with a historical background survives the onslaughts of time.

RENOMINATE MRS. HOOVER

Girl Scouts National Council in Annual Convention Chooses Wife of Commerce Secretary for President

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover was renominated to be president of the National Council of Girl Scouts at the opening session today of its ninth annual convention.

The speakers at today's sessions emphasized the purpose of the Girl Scouts to develop character, ability to do practical things, service, a spirit of health and cheerfulness.

The rapid growth of the society was brought out in reports which contrasted the first meeting in 1913, which was attended by 32 delegates, and the present meeting, attended by more than 400 women and girls.

Music Tabooed in Kurdistan.

BANDITS TERRORIZE TOWN

Outlaws Cut Light and Communication Lines, but Are Frightened Away by Merchant's Broadside.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 24, (AP)—Oakley, a small community about 25 miles northeast of here, was terrorized for a while late last night by five bandits who cut telephone and telegraph wires leading from the town, shut off the current supplying street lights and attempted to loot the bank of Oakley.

G. Galli, a merchant, opened fire on the bandits while they were forcing open the bank's front door with a crowbar and they fled. Because of communication being shut off, the sheriff at Martinez was not notified until today.

He immediately started a search for the men.

PROGRESS MADE IN TANNING

Process Known to Be at Least Three Thousand Years Old, but Improvements Came Slowly.

At first skins were cured by simply cleaning and drying. Then it was found the texture of the leather improved by the use of smoke, sour milk, various oils and the brains of the animals themselves. Later it was discovered that certain astringent barks and vegetables effected permanent changes in the texture of skins and stopped decay. The ancient Egyptians possessed this knowledge; for engravings on their tombs depict the process of tanning. In China specimens of leather have been discovered in company with other relics that prove them to be over three thousand years old. The Romans used leather which they tanned with oil, alum and bark. Early explorers in America found the Indians wearing skins prepared with buffalo dung, oil and tallow.

No improvement in the general methods of preparing leather took place from the most primitive times until about 1790, when the use of lime to loosen the hair was introduced. By 1825 English tanners were attempting to introduce new methods by which the tanning process could be shortened. One of the pioneers in these experiments was John Burridge, the inventor of the barkometer, an instrument for determining the strength of tanning liquors.

As it Seemed to Dick.

When Dick's uncle was married the second time he came to Dick's home on his honeymoon. Seeing that congratulations were in order, the boy stepped up to his uncle and, extending his hand, said with great earnestness: "Hello, Uncle Frank! You must like to get married awful well, don't you?" —Chicago Tribune.

Historical Item.

"Noah's ark was made of wood, but Joan of Arc was made of Orleans," wrote a youngster in answer to an examination question.

ALABAMA BARBER FLOGGED.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 24 (AP)—It became known at police headquarters here today that Joe De Carlo, 33, a barber, was flogged and later placed in a multiple Sunday night by 10 men.

REWARDED FOR HIS HONESTY

Affluent Patron of Newsboy Richer by the Nickel He Had Offered to Return.

It was just at dusk and the late afternoon rush for the street cars had begun. The little newsboy on the corner was crying his papers energetically and making sales just about as fast as he could handle them. Up to the corner came a large, fur-coated, affluent man, who simply radiated prosperity.

"Here, sonny; give me a paper," he called.

"Yes, sir; here 'ya are!" quickly responded the newsboy.

The man gave him a coin and the lad hastily counted out the change and hurried to make another sale. The man started to walk off, when he happened to notice that he did not have the correct change.

"Here, bud," he called. "You've cheated yourself out of a nickel. You gave me too much change."

"Is that right?" the boy answered. "Well, most people wouldn't want an off with the money! You like keep it; I like to encourage honesty!" —Kansas City Star.

THE ELECTION

Tuesday's election in Twin Falls, as was generally anticipated, amounted to a formal ratification of the choice previously made by the voters of Mr. Leslie and Mr. Keel to serve as municipal commissioners during the coming two years.

The election result assures to Mayor-elect Hudgin a commission that is almost entirely in harmony in its plans for the advancement of Twin Falls.

The election is over; and there is no one who will regret that.

It is time now to go to work in a united effort on the part of each and every citizen to make Twin Falls a bigger and better town.

HATED BREEDS HATED

The pessimist, or even the cynic, might be pardoned for playing Cassandra, and forecasting a new war in Europe. The facts are not encouraging for the idealist and, in fact, his chief and only hope of resolving upward events into an acceptable peace lies in that same body of public opinion which, when informed, directs the destiny of nations.

The French occupation of the Ruhr is now an old story. Questions of right or wrong, however much they continue to agitate the individual mind, no longer affect the facts, which are few but ominous. The first fact is contained in Premier Poincaré's declaration that the French shall not evacuate the Ruhr until Germany has paid the interest on the reparations debt. The second fact is that the German government, no matter what private fortunes there may or may not be in Germany, cannot pay that claim of $33,000,000 while her industrial heart beats only for the profit of an invader.

That imposing conclusion, so filled with possibilities in France, to Germany, to Europe, to the world, is the idea most necessary to be impressed on the minds of the great public which desires not an expedition solution, but a permanent peace and the definite reconstruction of civilization. It is futile to remark that just as French revenge flowered from the seed of 1871, so inevitably German revenge can be expected to flower from the seed of 1923. The solution of expediency in Europe is the prelude to new wars; that is Europe's history for centuries.

France, taking the short expedient view, will retain Essen and presumably the Ruhr. The world, taking the dangerous expediency can be reconciled with the peace which the world seeks. It can be reconciled; the two purposes are in opposition. Then it follows that France in Germany constitutes a menace to that peace. By what means, and by whom, can France be got out of the Ruhr? Statesmanship has not yet answered that question, on which hangs the whole future.

THE SHELDREW MR. KEMAL

All the king's horses and all the king's men did not suffice to drag the United States from its place of isolation in world affairs. The combined influences of European demands and pleas, President Wilson and his party, and a considerable portion of the Republican party, were unsuccessful in changing our role of aloofness.

Now comes a wily Turkish gentleman, and with the single stroke of the concessionaire pen, American destinies are attached to the problems of

HOWARD CARTER UNDER PHAROAH'S CURSE

Howard Carter

FOLLOWING close on the death of the Earl of Carnarvon, who financed the expedition of Howard Carter, an American, who discovered the tomb of Pharaoh Tut-nikh-Amen, in the Valley of the Kings near Luxor, Egypt, Carter's sudden illness in Cairo has added to the superstitious belief that a curse of the Pharaohs is responsible. Declaring the sacrilegious explorers of the tomb of the Pharaohs have often been slain by their own temerity, Ibrahim Gyraan, Egyptian priest, of Cairo, some time ago said: "Each tomb has a seal of exorcism, foretelling a terrible death for the disturbers of the Pharaohs' sleep. The vengeance of the Pharaohs has been wrought on the Earl of Carnarvon. Howard Carter may laugh, but he will soon be stricken down!"

Asia, and definitely aligned in Europe's struggle for light and oil.

Mustapha Kemal, out of the goodness of his heart, has confirmed the Chester concession. This assures to his country the vastly civilizing influence of the American oilbar, and prays on his side the splendidly pacific impulses of the American government.

With the selfish aims of British and French capitalists who were seeking to exploit the Mosul oil, Americans had no sympathy. Now, however, a different aspect has been put on the affair. Rear Admiral Chester, General Goethals and Kermit Roosevelt are prepared to develop the vast resources of the Ottoman territory, and Kemal Pasha is willing that American interests shall be linked to his star. American interests will be hostile to the British and French interests, and the Turkish prime minister will be quite willing to let the accidental nations fight it out among themselves while he goes along with his own little plans.

Once American investment has been made in a territory it becomes the duty of the American government to protect the American interests. That such protection may involve intricate diplomacy, vast expenditures, perhaps even the appeal to arms, is beside the question. The whole point is that Mustapha Kemal is a shrewd individual.

Metaphor Not an Ornament.

A metaphor is the result of the search for a better epithet. It is no mere ornamentation that a man's Christian name. For most of the things whose quality a writer wishes to convey there are no precise epithets, simply because he is always engaged in discovering their qualities, and, like the chemist, has to invent names for the elements he discovers. Moreover, I suppose, three-quarters of the epithets we have are old metaphors. Try to be precise, and you are bound to be metaphorical; you simply cannot help establishing affinities between all the elements of the universe and inanimate world; for the volatile essence you are trying to fix is quality, and in that effort you will inevitably find yourself ransacking heaven and earth for a similitude. That is the simple truth which underlies the Aristotelian dictum on the importance of metaphors so long, moreover, as we remember that metaphor is essential to precision with which a thought is expressed, then it is unnecessary and to be sacrificed without compunction. —J. Middleton Murry, in "The Problem of Style."

Unusual Feat of Arms.

The name of the Maritza, the river which appears likely to form the boundary of Thrace, is associated with one of the most unusual feats of arms in modern history. In 1895 Bulgaria, under Prince Alexander, found herself nearly short of ammunition. Most of the fighting in the three days' battle of Silivritza had to be effected by bayonet charges, and to stimulate the troops, the Bulgarian bands came into action, playing the national air, "Djuni-Maritza." The charges were irresistible.

Oregon Town Led All.

The first town to elect a woman administration was Umatilla, Ore., in 1918.

THE LIGHT OF THE WESTERN STARS A Romance

Zane Grey Illustrations by IRWIN MYERS

If there were no movies with their capable actors to picture the stirring side of those days which are a present-day romance and thrill to the imagination and present, he alone could furnish the full history—a life-story, not a life-story, even if stripped of character, and devoid of appeal because of its technicalities, to give it the form of fiction.

Without the breeding and the pioneer spirit which he inherited, and which would not have been the great writer of the western stories, he would not have been one of the great writers of the West. And he has improved an opportunity to visit and spend some time in the West. He has lived in the out-of-way places, into the deserts, into the more remote mountainous to the difficult spots which the average traveler does not reach. He has lived his life and found it charming and has presented it with an intimacy and accuracy feared by few fiction writers.

CHAPTER I

A Gentleman of the Range. When Madeline Hammond stepped from the train at El Cajon, New Mexico, it was merely midnight, and her first impression was of a huge dark space of cool, windy emptiness, strange and silent, stretching away under great blinking white stars. "Miss, there's no one to meet you," said the conductor anxiously. "I'm here presently. But, if he should not come—surely I can find a hotel?"

She became Conscious of a Slight Quickening of Her Pulse. conscious of a slight quickening of her pulse. Madeline had only a limited knowledge of the West. Like all of her class, she had traveled Europe and had neglected America. She had been assumed at the intermediate distance she had traveled, and if there had been anything attractive to look at in all that journey she had passed it in the night.

"Will you please direct me to a hotel?" asked Madeline, frowning. "The cowboy removed his sombrero, and the sweep he made with it and that accompanying bow, despite that exaggeration, had a kind of ride grace. He took two long strides toward her. "Lady, are you married?"

"In the past Miss Hammond's sense of humor had often helped her to overlook all that gloomy and morose in her breeding. She kept glancing at him and she was just as well that her veil hid her face at the moment. She had been prepared to find cowboys rather striking, and she had been warned not to laugh at them. This gentleman's face and look delicately softened down, despite that exaggeration, had a kind of ride grace. He took two long strides toward her. "Lady, are you married?"

realized he was half drunk. As she instinctively recoiled she not only gave him a keener glance, but stepped into a position where a better light shone on his face. It was like red bronze, bold, raw, sharp. Like that of all women whose beauty and charm had brought them much before the world, Miss Hammond's intuition had been developed until she had a delicate and exquisitely sensitive perception of the nature of men and of her effect upon them. This crude cowboy, under the influence of drink, had affronted her; nevertheless, whatever charm had brought them much before the world, Miss Hammond's intuition had been developed until she had a delicate and exquisitely sensitive perception of the nature of men and of her effect upon them. This crude cowboy, under the influence of drink, had affronted her; nevertheless, whatever charm had brought them much before the world, Miss Hammond's intuition had been developed until she had a delicate and exquisitely sensitive perception of the nature of men and of her effect upon them.
