KING PICKS MCADOO TO WIN

WASHINGTON, May 25 (AP)—Election of Wm. G. McAdoo to the presidency next year was predicted in a statement today by Senator King, democrat Utah. His address, however, that if the election were held now Henry Ford probably would win, and conceded that if "real prosperity" should return President Harding might be re-elected.

Gary Pleads for Principles of Christianity in Business

NEW YORK, May 25 (AP)—Religion and world politics vied with steel in the discussion at the annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel institute today.

Albert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, and president of the institute, devoted most of his annual address to a defense of the Bible and a plea for a turning toward Christian principles in business and politics, as well as in personal affairs.

BRITAIN BALKS AT U. S. BAN ON SHIPS' LIQUOR

Communication to State Department Marks the Opening of International Negotiations Over Court's Decision

WASHINGTON, May 25 (AP)—Great Britain's position on the ships' liquor question connected to the state department today by the British embassy, is understood to be based on a contention that American port authorities have no jurisdiction in international law over liquor brought into American waters as a part of the regular supplies of foreign vessels.

Treasury Finds Way Out. While this principle apparently conflicts with that recently laid down by the supreme court, indications are increasing that the department has found a way to reconcile differences by permitting ships under foreign registry to list the wine rations of their crew on the ship's medicinal stores permissible under the law.

Initiates Negotiations. It was the original intention of the British to await issuance of new regulations before making representations on the subject. The action taken today, however, was for the purpose of making the British position a fundamental objection to application of the prohibition law to foreign ships.

Foreign Powers in Accord. It is believed that the British cabinet, in the report of the committee of similar nations of other countries, is believed here that a general exchange of views has been made between the various European foreign offices and it is believed probable that the attack will be on parallel lines, the underlying purpose being to induce the United States to confer with others before inaugurating what is regarded as the admission of the legality of the claim of jurisdiction.

MEXICAN TOWN IS SWEEPED BY DESTRUCTIVE STORM

High Wind and Heavy Rainfall Cause Reported Death of Three Persons and Injury of Many at Monterey MONTEREY, Mex., May 25, (AP)—It is reported that three persons were instantly killed and several others severely hurt in a storm of wind and rain at 8 p. m. Wednesday. The streets were flooded by the copious rainfall. Street car traffic was stopped and the city was in darkness for several hours. Many trees were uprooted and telephone poles overturned. The storm wrecked the cornice and statue on the front of the Hotel Santa Anita, and a brick falling on the balcony over the sidewalk carrying it down in a confused mass on the heads of a number of people who had taken shelter there.

CONFERENCE ON RAILROAD VALUES IS PUT IN HOLE

Chicago Business Men and Shippers Ask Pointed Questions of LaFollette and Colleagues in Session

CHICAGO, May 25, (AP)—Railroad labor leaders, representatives of the progressive bloc in congress, members of various agricultural organizations and proponents of government ownership of the railroads meeting here today organized "The Conference on Railroad Values" for the announced purpose of promoting and protecting public interests in the valuation of railroad property.

Approximately 300 invited delegates from all parts of the country, meeting in executive session this morning following a two hour public gathering this morning, named Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, permanent chairman of the conference and Representative W. T. Logan, South Carolina, secretary. The meeting today was the outgrowth, LaFollette said at the public session, of a conference of the progressive leaders in congress. The purpose of the conference, he said, was: 1. To promote and protect public interest in the valuation of railroad property now being made by the interstate commerce commission; particularly for the purpose of preventing excessive appraisal of the properties which will result in unreasonable charges for transportation.

BANDITS LOOT RUSSIAN TRAIN

Roberts Spend Two Hours in Stripping Passengers of Valuables; Spare Supplies

MOSCOW, May 25 (AP)—Thirty bandits with rifles and shotguns looted a Russian passenger train on the west of Moscow at midnight Wednesday according to Dr. W. P. Smith, of Tamm, Mass., district supervisor of the American Relief Administration, who was a passenger from Odesa on the train and arrived at Moscow today. The train was looted from leaving the relief pouches, but took from Mr. Smith and the Russian courier of the relief administration who was accompanying him all his belongings of value. At the request of the courier, however, the bandits returned fifty million rubles to the courier so he would be able to pay tips for the handling of the administration pouches at the station here. The train was held up two hours while the bandits were looting it, another being allowed to leave the cars during that time.

CALIFORNIANS FOR ARMY TO EASTERN MEET

Bears Prove More Formidable Than Expected, Scoring 17 Men in Field Events; Princeton Strongest Rivals

PHILADELPHIA, May 25 (AP)—Displaying sensational form today in landing a picked field of eastern rivals in the qualifying tests of the forty-seventh annual track and field meet of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. at Franklin field, the University of California sturdy band of athletes strengthened considerably their chances of carrying off the championship in the finals tomorrow for the third successive time.

The Golden Bears, favorite from that state, proved even more formidable than expected, scoring heavily in the field events to qualify 17 men for the deciding contests. Barring an upset of the most sensational character, experts tonight were practically unanimous in predicting a decisive victory for the Pacific coast stars tomorrow.

The Californians today monopolized honors in most of the field events and it was their predominating strength there which was expected to give them victory tonight. The coast team qualified 15 men in the field trials, three each in the shot-put, broad jump, javelin and discus. Princeton, with strong entries in the hurdle events and a squad of husky fieldmen, figured as dangerous rivals for the westerners.

Morality for Its Own Sake

"It is surprising," says a ponderous writer, "how few philosophical gentlemen have ever reached other than a perfectly commonplace conclusion in regard to practical morality." There is no other conclusion to reach. Morality is good conduct for its own sake; no one can come to other than a commonplace conclusion about it.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

NEW PEKING TROLLEYS SPILL RUIN FOR RICKSHAW OOLIES

PEKING, May 24 (AP)—Construction of Peking's first electric street railway is well under way, and, unless unforeseen obstacles are encountered, the promoters expect to have four lines in operation within a year. There has been great opposition to the proposed innovation on the part of one organization or another, the latest objection being the Chinese general chamber of commerce.

That body has petitioned the government to cancel the contract for construction on the grounds, first, that it will ruin thousands of rickshaw coolies, and, second, because there is foreign money in the subscribed capital of the tramways company. Meanwhile, the work goes on. An ancient wall along the eastern edge of the Imperial City has been demolished to make room for the first section of the line.

CROWD ATTACKS ZBYSZKO

Wrestler Draws Down Wrath of Spectators by Alleged Biting of Opponent in Mat Bout

BOSTON, May 25 (AP)—Waldrek Zbyszko, wrestler, drew under a barrage of bottles and other missiles tonight when several thousand persons attending a wrestling match here attempted to mob him. It was believed that he had bitten his opponent, George Calza, Italian champion, in the left wrist.

Zbyszko had scored one fall on his adversary in 28 minutes. After that he claimed that he had been bitten and the referee awarded him the decision. Joe Percell, former wrestler and now Calza's manager, jumped into the ring and engaged in battle with Zbyszko. He was arrested. The crowd swarmed about the ring, but Zbyszko was led away by officers. One missile thrown at him was a razor.

SWISS PEOPLE TO VOTE ON PROHIBITION QUESTION

LAUSANNE, May 25 (AP)—Inspired by American prohibition, the prohibitory of Switzerland are engaged in a campaign to reduce the consumption of strong alcoholic drinks, and on June 3 the people themselves by a referendum will decide the issue.

The private use of alcohol has increased so rapidly in recent years and the drinking of pure drugs of distilled liquor, which is given the popular name of "Schmuck" has become so widespread among the masses that the authorities have become alarmed. The medical profession has launched a movement for federal intervention and control. The consumption of alcoholic drinks in Switzerland has reached the figure of a billion francs annually for a population of four millions. The 1919 federation of Swiss physicians urged the government to interfere. The manufacture, importation and sale of all distilled beverages. This was held to be too radical, but the campaign now has been vigorously reopened in order to obtain at least partial prohibition.

The manufacture of alcohol is a state monopoly in Switzerland, and the government leases the right to distribute to private companies. The proposed law, which parliament has already adopted, aims at a double object, the protection of the monopoly by the curbing of private distilling, and the reduction of opportunities for the consumption of alcohol. The local crusaders are collecting statistics of the good effects of prohibition in America to induce voters to support the bill.

BASEBALL'S HIGHEST PAID

BAT-BOY NOW A SHORTSTOP

ST. LOUIS, May 25 (AP)—The development of Howard Freigan as the St. Louis Nationals' regular shortstop is one of the chief topics of discussion in fandom. Freigan, who served as a bat boy part of last season, is regarded as one of the most promising recruits to come up in the majors here in years.

He is but 20 years old. His hitting has been timely, and his defensive play has been described as spectacular.

He was born at Dayton, O., and signed by the Cardinals while attending college. He was turned over to the Syracuse Internationals, but was recalled into last season. Not being in the lineup, he voluntarily handed the bats and was referred to as the "highest paid bat-boy" in baseball.

This season he has been placed regularly at short because of the incapacitation of John Lavan by illness.

ARCTIC EXPLORERS MAY SOON TRAVEL IN COMFORT

STOCKHOLM, May 25 (AP)—A new type of motor sled designed to provide the comforts of a Pullman car for polar explorers has been experimentally tried in the Arctic regions of Sweden and is now being perfected by the inventor, J. W. Sandstrom, chief of the Swedish weather bureau.

Mr. Sandstrom in an address just delivered before the Swedish Physics society declared that polar exploration ought to be raised from the level of hazardous sport to that of well-equipped scientific research. The explorer needs swift and reliable means of transportation of food, a comfortable bed, a table at which to work, a dark room for developing photographs, etc. and these advantages are all provided by the new motor sled.

This new vehicle is an adaptation of the principle of the tank. Sufficient supporting area is given the saturated sled to carry a three-ton cargo over long snow several feet in depth. A 36-horsepower gasoline motor propels this strange craft at the rate of seven miles an hour. The interior of the car is fitted out completely with folding beds, patent kitchen, and other special equipment which a scientist needs in a sheltered place. It is planned to have several sleds in the explorer's train for the transportation of fuel and supplies.

Preliminary experiments with the new motor sled have been carried on in deep snow near the town of Boden, in northern Sweden.

ONE RIDE ENOUGH FOR HIM

Tramp Tells of Experience on the Cow-Catcher, Which He Doesn't Care to Repeat.

"I rode a cowcatcher just once," said Frisco. "Never again, unless I have to." It was out of Eldorado, Kan., over the Missouri Pacific.

"While the engine was in the station, I pipped the engineer conin' out of his cab with a little broom, and I see him dust the cowcatcher off nice and clean with it. I think to myself, 'Well, ain't that fine! He's dustin' her off for me.' So when his back was turned, I hopped on the cowcatcher and crouched under the overhang of the boiler.

"I got by with it. Nobody saw me, and when the engine snorted out, there was yours truly smilin' like a basket of chips on the cowcatcher. But I didn't smile long. That engine was a passenger engine and kicked up an awful wind. Open yer mouth, and she'd blow yer wrong side out, and so cold she'd fob like an icicle laid against your eyeballs."

"I didn't hit anything, did you?" "Oh, boy! I want a minute! I'm comin' to that. Well, as I sat there stappin' myself, tryin' to keep warm, the headlight sprayed out across the prairie and attracted all the bugs in Kansas. My mouth and eyes and shirt got full of 'em, and them big, shiny, black bugs hurt, too, when they hit you between the eyes. The light was so bright I could see big, bluish hot tons pantlin' along between the rails 25 yards ahead.

"Furty soon, a quarter mile away, at a crossing, I see an old white cow with her calf standin' on the track. 'Oh, boy! I want a minute! I'm comin' to that. Well, as I sat there stappin' myself, tryin' to keep warm, the headlight sprayed out across the prairie and attracted all the bugs in Kansas. My mouth and eyes and shirt got full of 'em, and them big, shiny, black bugs hurt, too, when they hit you between the eyes. The light was so bright I could see big, bluish hot tons pantlin' along between the rails 25 yards ahead.

"Sny, I was so weak for a little while I couldn't sit up. I just laid there on my neck prayin' for strength. Don't never mention cowcatcher to me again. Well, just before we reached her, she ambled calmly off the track, flickin' her tail, and the calf nosin' her in the dusts as she went.

Not Really a Pine Tree.

Although the kauri tree is often called kauri pine, it is a native of New Zealand and is not of the family to which spruce, hemlock and pine belong. The trees sometimes attain a height of 150 feet and are often used for masts for British ships. The timber is close-grained, durable and flexible, and used for nearly all kinds of building, while kauri resin or gum is valued for its use in making varnishes.

DO AND DARE

There Were No Objectors. Western Paper—Bill Lariat of Dood Gulch was married at the church here on Friday. When the officiating clergyman said, "If any one here present can show just cause why this man and this woman should not be lawfully joined together, etc." Bill casually laid a pair of large revolvers on the railing in front of him. The ceremony proceeded without interruption.

That "V"-Shaped Veil. The "V-shaped opening of a waistcoat is really a piece of vanity, giving the wearer a chance to show what sort of shirt he wears. It originated in the days when linen was first worn, and the man who could sport a linen shirt was considered something of a "swell." He had the opening cut in his waistcoat so that all could see his elegance.

DO AND DARE

On the easy flowing words of an old-time cowboy in the back room of a little drugstore rode the phantom figure of a brave, smiling hero of the past, Kit Carson Hoone.

Then, as the speaker narrated a glorious adventure in which the great Hoone rescued the beautiful woman from the savage Indians, the dormant desire for romance in the breast of one of the group welled up within him. In a moment, Henry Hoone, lineal descendant of the renowned scout, was on a rampage, and dashing madly from his bewildered friends, sought adventure in the desert.

How he fared is shown in "Do and Dare," the production with Tom Mix, riding to the orphan's today. Don't miss it!

FACTIONALISM

Taking note of the state of the Union the other day, in a speech on Alexander Hamilton, President Harding observed:
"Can any student of our times in America, or the world, doubt for a moment that factionalism is developing as never before?"

"We have our factions which seek to promote this or that interest without regard to the relationship of others, and without regard for the common weal; we have the factions of hatred and prejudice and violence.
We have our conditions which would invade the constitutional rights of other or subvert the constitution itself.
We have our factions challenging both civil and religious liberty, and without them both being made everlastingly secure there can be no real human liberty. We have the fatal factionalism which contemplates obstruction to the execution of the laws."

It is a pretty accurate analysis of the situation. "We are governed too the situation." Artemus Ward used to say, "Nowadays everybody is trying to govern us too much, and organizing parties and blocs and cliques and rings and associations and secret societies for that purpose."

A certain amount of conflicting opinion is stimulating, and a certain amount of proselyting zeal is healthful, but surely the business is being overdone in this country. But it is easier to diagnose the disease than to find a remedy for it.

"THE GREATEST MENACE"

William J. Bryan, in his latest statement about evolution, says:
"I believe the doctrine that man is descended from the brute is the greatest menace to civilization, as well as to religion, that the world has known in 1908 years."

There is no questioning the sincerity of this distinguished champion of old-fashioned orthodoxy regarding man's origin, and every man is entitled to his opinion in a field where absolute proof is difficult. Nevertheless there is a great and distinguished company of Americans which takes issue with Mr. Bryan on both of these points.

It is doubtful whether the average church member today considers belief in physical evolution at all inconsistent with religious faith. It is still more doubtful whether the theories of Charles Darwin can be fairly charged with menacing civilization.

There seems to be a growing belief among open-minded people that a belief in man's power to rise from the status of the brute; physically and mentally, to higher and higher levels, offers new stimulus and hope for the human race.

OHIO-GA-LONDON AIR ROUTE

Forty-eight-hour air service between London and Chicago is confidently predicted by a British aviator. Passenger planes capable of carrying two hundred persons will be used. Chicago is chosen as the terminus for this route because it is nearer the heart of the United States than any other large city.

When this development of commercial aviation has arrived, however, many cities will spring into importance which now show little promise.
That is because extensive aviation will make any city less dependent upon railroad and water transportation facilities than at present. An air port will have as much incentive to growth and progress as a lake or ocean port regardless of location.
It is possible to prophesy almost anything in aviation development these days with reasonable expectation of fulfillment. All that has been already achieved seems only to give promise of even greater things to come.

Paris, member of the international Olympic committee, has returned from an extended tour of South America and gives as a enthusiastic account of the "grace made by South American athletes in sports of all kinds and their expectations for the Paris 1924 Olympic games.
"Brillians lead in rowing and swimming," he says, "sports which are favored by the wonderful climate; agile and elegant, the Argentinians are the swiftest of the champions of the powerful mountain men, are supreme in distance running; the Uruguayans are the best organized as far as method of training is concerned, and their football is the best in South America.
Some of the records made in the sprints and middle distances show such improvement over the previous best marks that the South American nations improve to be honorably represented in Paris in 1924."

HOLSTEIN COW ASSOCIATION

CLEVELAND, May 24 (AP)—The thirty-eighth annual convention of the Holstein association of America will be held here from June 10-15.
The first herd books of the association showed 270 registered Holsteins.
Today there are more than a million Holsteins bred in these books in the last year 113,772 registrations were made.

High records of production have been made by 65,000 dams, and the supervision of agricultural colleges, admitting them to the advanced registry.
Sixty-seven Holsteins have produced more than 1000 pounds of butterfat in one year.

"Out into the joshin," rang out Monty's strident voice.
It had as decided an effect as any preceding words or action. Perhaps it was the last thing needed to transform these men, doing unaccompanied duty as escorts of beautiful women, to their natural state as men of the wild.
"Tell us what's what," said Stewart, cool and grim.
Don Carlos and his guerrillas are camped on the trails that lead up here. They've got them trails blocked.
By tomorrow they'd be in our camp.
Mebbe they meant to surprise us. He's got a lot of Greasers' an' outlawes.
They're well armed. Now, what do they want? You'll see Bigger it due to call ourselves. Mebbe they want to steal a few horses, or anything, they can lay hands on. Mebbe they mean too. Now, my idea is this, an' mebbe it's wrong. I long since separated from love with Greasers. The black-faced Don Carlos has got a deep game.
The two-bit of a rascal is havin' his hand time. The rebels want American intervention. They've struck any point to make trouble. We're only miles from the border. Suppose them guerrillas got our crowd across that border? The United States cavalry would follow. You'll know what they'd mean. Mebbe Don Carlos' mind works that way. Mebbe it don't. I reckon we'll know soon. An' you, Stewart, whatever the 'Don's game is, shure you're the man to outigger him. Mebbe it's just as well you're good 'n' mad about somethin'. An' I'm going to resign my job becuse I want to feel unbehelived in it. Shure I struck me long since that they'd had come for to 'lly spell, an' there I was trailin' a pronso not to hurt any Greaser."

CHAPTER XVII

Don Carlos.
Stewart took, Neil, Monty and Nick Steele aside out of carbob, and they evidently entered upon an earnest colloquy. Presently the other cowboys were called. They all talked more or less, but the deep voice of Stewart predominated over the others. Then the ground water broke up, and the cowboys scattered.

"Rustle, you Indians!" ordered Stewart.

The ensuing scene of action was not reassuring to Madeline and her friends.
They were quiet, awaiting some one to tell them what to do. At the offset the cowboys appeared to have forgotten Madeline. Some of them ran off into the woods, others into the open, grassy places, where they roused up the horses and burros. Several cowboys spread tarpaulins upon the ground and began to select and roll small packs, evidently for, hurried travel. Nels mounted his horse to ride down the trail. Monty and Nick Steele went off into the grove, leading their horses. Stewart climbed up a steep jumble of stone between two sections of low rock that cut back the canyon.

Madeline's friends all important Here was there real danger? Were the guerrillas coming? Would a start be made at once for the ranch? Why had the cowboys suddenly become so different? Madeline answered as best she could; but she was not certain.

They were quiet, waiting for the fear of her guests. Helen was in a white glow of excitement.

Soon the cowboys appeared riding barebacked horses, driving in others and the burros. Some of these horses were taken away and evidently hidden by the men who were so busy. The string of horses were picked and sent off down the trail in charge of a cowboy. Nick Steele and Monty returned. Then Stewart appeared, clambering down the break between the cliffs.

His next move was to order all the baggage belonging to Madeline and her guests taken up the cliff. This was strenuous toil, requiring the need of lasses to haul up the effects.

"Get ready to climb," said Stewart.

Turning to Madeline's party.
"Here's the case," he said. "The guerrillas are coming. If they get here they'll take you. If they get here they'll take you. If they get here they'll take you."

"This was the question Madeline had upon her lips to Stewart. But she could not speak it.

"No, there's no danger," replied Stewart, "but we're taking precautions we all agreed on as best."

Dorothy whispered that she believed Stewart lied. Castleton asked another question, but he was not to be satisfied. Mrs. Beck made a timid question.

"Please keep quiet and do as you're told," said Stewart, bluntly.

At this juncture, when the last of the baggage was being huddled up the cliff, Monty approached Madeline and said: "Here's the case, the back pack seemed the same, yet this was a vastly changed Monty."

"Miss Hammond, I'm givin' notice I resign my job," he said.

"Monty! What do you mean? What does Nels mean, now, when I dapper threaten?"

"We just quit. That's all," replied Monty, tersely. He was stern and somber; he could not stand still; his eyes roved everywhere.

Castleton jumped up from the log where he had been sitting, and his face was very red.

"Mr. Price, raise all this blooming fuss men we are to be robbed or attacked or abducted by a lot of rascal-muffin guerrillas!"

"You've called the 'bet'." Dorothy turned a very pale face toward Monty.

"Desert you?" asked Monty, blankly.

"Yes, desert us. Leave us when we may need you so much, with something dreadful coming."

Monty uttered a short, loud laugh and bent a strange look upon the girl.

"Me an' Nels is purty much scared, an' we're goin' to slope. Miss Dorothy, be's as we've rustled—mind—so much, it sorta hurts us to see nice young girls dragged off by the hair."

Dorothy uttered a little cry and then became hysterical. Castleton for once was fully aroused.

"By Gad! You and your partner are a couple of blooming cowards.
Where now is that courage you boasted of?"

Monty's dark face expressed extreme amusement.

"Dook, in my time I've seen some bright fellers, but you take the cake.
It's most marvelous how bright you are. Figger'n me an' Nels so correct."

Say, Dook. If you don't get rustled off to Mexico an' toped to a cactus bush you'll live a swell story for your English chums. How d'you like that?"

Monty, shut up!" yelled Stewart, as he came hurriedly up. Then Monty sloshed away, cursing to himself.

Madeline and Helen, assisted by Castleton, worked over Dorothy, and with some difficulty outstared her.
Stewart passed several times without noticing them, and Monty, who had been so ridiculously eager to pay every little attention to Dorothy, did not see her at all. It was indeed, in Monty's eyes more than that, that Madeline hardly knew what to make of it.

Stewart directed cowboys to go to the head of the open place in the cliff

"By Gad! You and Your Partner Are a Couple of Blooming Cowards." and let down lasses. Then, with little waste of words, he urged the women toward this rough ladder of stones.

"We want to hide you," he said, when they demurred. "If the guerrillas come we'll toll 'em you've all got to hide up there."

Helen stepped boldly forward and led Stewart just the loop of a lasso round her and tighten it. He waved his hand to the cowboys above.

"Just walk up, now," he directed Helen.

It proved to the watchers to be an easy, safe and rapid means of scaling the steep passage. The men climbed up without assistance. Edith Wynn and Madeline climbed last, and, once up, Madeline saw a narrow bough, thick with shrubs and overshadowed by huge, leaning crags. There were plugs in the rock, and fast fixtured leading back. It was a rough, wild place. Tarpaulins and bedding were then hauled up, and food and water.

The cowboys spread comfortable beds in several of the caves, and told Madeline and her friends to be as quiet as possible in not to make a light, and to sleep dressed, ready for travel at a moment's notice.

Madeline deplored the discomfort and distress, but felt no real alarm.
She was more inclined to evasive kindness here than to sincerity, for she had a decided uneasiness. The swift changing in the manner and looks of her cowboys had been a shock to her.
The last glance she had of Stewart's face, then stern, almost sad, and hugged with worry, remained to suggest her foreboding.

Darkness appeared to drop swiftly down; the coyotes began their haunting, merry howl; the stars showed and grew brighter; the wind whistled through the tips of the pines. The cowboys below had built a fire, and the light from it rose in a huge, fan-shaped glow. Madeline peered down from the cliff. The distance was short, and occasionally she could distinguish the hats of the cowboys; they were unconcernedly cooking and eating.

Presently Nick Steele silenced the campfire circle by raising a warning hand. The cowboys bent their heads, listening. Madeline listened with all her might. She heard one of the hounds within, then the faint beat of hooves. The heat of the glow grew louder, entered the grove, then the circle of light. The rider was Nels.
He dismounted, and the sound of his low voice just reached Madeline.

"Nels, it's Nels. Something don't," Madeline heard one of the cowboys call, softly.

"Nels is in over," replied Stewart.

Nels stalked away from the fire.

"See here, Nels, the boys are not everything, but I don't want them to know anything about this mix-up," said Stewart, as Nels came up. "Did you find the girl?"

Nels hesitated, it seemed that Stewart referred to the Mexican girl Stewart had spotted.

"No. But I met—Madeline did not catch the name—an' he was wild. He was with a forest-ranger. An' they said Pat Hove had trailed her an' was takin' her down under arrest."

Stewart muttered deep under his breath as evidently as could be heard.

"Wonder why he didn't come on up here?" he queried, presently. "He can see a trail."

"Wal, Gene, Pat knowed you was here all right, fer that ranger said Pat had hid wind of the guerrillas, an' Pat said he'd keep 'em hid 'n' he'd be time enough to put you in jail when you come down."

"He's dead set to arrest me, Nels."

"An' he'll do it, like the old lady who kept tavern out West. Gena, the reason that he-reds coyote didn't find you—she's back because she's scared. He'll say she's scared of you.

But I reckon he's more scared to death of me an' Monty."

"Well, well, take Pat in his turn.
The thing now is, when will that Greasers stalk us, and what'll we do when he comes?"

"My boy, there's only one way to handle a Greaser. I shure told you that. He means rough to us. He'll come smilin' up, all scotch like, jus-tanothin' an' sweeter 'n' a woman. But he's treacherous; he's worse than an Indian. An' Gene, we know for sure positively that he's been operatin' between those hills an' Agua Prieta. We know just about what that rebel war down there amounts to. It's guerrilla war, an' shure some harvest time for a lot of cheap thieves an' outcasts."

"Oh, you're right, Nels. I'm not disputed about that," replied Stewart. "If it wasn't for Miss Hammond and the other women, I'd rather enjoy seeing you and Monty open up on that bunch.
I'm thinkin' I'd be glad to meet Don Carlos. But Miss Hammond! Why, such a woman as she is would positively make any man's soul feel in play, let alone any stunts with a rifle. These eastern women are different. I'm not blubb'ing our western women. It's in the blood, Miss Hammond is—"

"Shore she is," interrupted Nels;
"but she's a shrewd, shrewd woman.
You think she's Gene, Stewart. I'm no thick-skulled cove. I'd hate somethin' powerful to hev Miss Hammond any more work, let alone me an' Monty starvin' somethin'. An' me an' Monty stuck to you, Gene, as long as you was somethin' like a feller, beezin' your purty, you're stuck to Miss Hammond, an' overtopper not to hurt her feel'n's or make her sick by lettin' some blood. Where's he had, an' mebbe we'll hev to fight. Sabe, sonner? 'Wal, if we do you can't gambler that Miss Hammond'll be kinder to let us see your gun."

Let Don Carlos come along. He'll kill. If he an' his gang are hungry, feel' 'em. Take even a little overboard' Greasers talk. Be blind if he wants his gang to steal somethin'. Let him think the women hev moved down to the ranch, and he'll come 'n' look 'if he an' his gang as looks round to see the women—just jump him same as you jumped Pat Hove. Me an' Monty'll hang back fer that. An' if your strong bluff don't go through, if the Don's gang even thinks of bustin' guns, then I'll stand up, mebbe, but you'll see if them Greasers stand for real gunplay they'll be sure tall I ever seen."

"Nels, there are white men in that gang," said Stewart.

"Shore. But me an' Monty'll be thinkin' of that. If they start any-thin' I'll hev to shore quick."

"All right, Nels, my friend, and thanks," replied Stewart.

Nels returned to the campfire, and Stewart resumed his silent guard.

Madeline's guests sat talking in low voices until a late hour. The incident now began to take on the nature of Helen's long-yearned-for adventure.

Some of the party even grew merry in a subdued way. When, suddenly, one by one they tired and went to bed.

To keep from thinking of Stewart and the burning anger he had caused her to feel for herself, Madeline tried to keep her mind on other things. But thought of Jim returned, and each time there was a hot commotion in her breast, as when she thought of the singing seemed out of her power. In the daylight it had been possible for her to be oblivious to Stewart's deceit after the moment of its realization. At night, however, in the strange silence and hovering shadows of gloom, with the stars shining, she seemed to be with the moon of the wind in the pines, and the melancholy mourn of coyotes in the distance, she was not able to govern her thought and emotion. She had inadvertently heard Nels' conversation with Stewart; she had listened, hoping to hear some good word, some stars seeming to glow, she learned both, and, moreover, enlightenment on one point of Stewart's complex motives. He wished to spare her any sight that might offend, frighten, or disgust her. Yet this Stewart, who showed a fitness of feeling that might have been envied even in Boyd Harvey, maintained a secret rendezvous with that petty, abandoned Donita.
Here always the hot shame, like a live, stinging internal fire, abruptly ended Madeline's thought. The hours were on, and at length, as the stars waned, she fell asleep, and she was not aware of what followed.

She was called out of her slumber.
Day had broken bright and cool. The sun was still, below the eastern crags.
Amidst several other cowboys, had brought up buckets of spring water, and hot coffee and cakes. Made-line's party appeared to be none the worse for the night's experience. Indeed, the meager breakfast might have been as merrily partaken of as it was hungrily had not Ambrose enjoined silence.

"They're expecting company down below," he said.

THE MARKETS

WHEAT PRICE MAKES GAIN

Slowness of Export Demand Has Brought Back in Closing Hour of Session Marked by Advance

CHICAGO, May 25 (AP)—Owing chiefly to the lack of selling pressure, wheat advanced somewhat higher in price today, but slowness of export business had a bearish influence during the last part of the exchange session.

(Quotations were unsettled at a range varying from 38 cents to 40 cents to 1.8 cent advance, with July $1.17 to 1.17 1/2, and September $1.15 to 1.15 1/2.)

Corn finished a shade to 5/8 cent off, oats 3/8 cent lower to 1/8 cent gain and provisions to 10 cents down.

Influenced by the fact that offerings here were light and that Liverpool prices showed an advance, the wheat market tended upward until the last half hour of trading.

Unfavorable reports concerning the outlook for the domestic winter crop, especially in Ohio and Indiana, had an additional bullish effect and there were advices that stocks of wheat in Great Britain are more and a further rise in prices was looked for.

Improvements in export demand, however, waned in the absence of any word of new sales.

Reports that transatlantic crops are in better condition than last year counted as a bearish factor as the day drew to a close. Besides crop advices from the American spring wheat belt were generally favorable.

Under such circumstances, active buying power dwindled, and the early gains were not all wiped out, but even slight declines below yesterday's finish was a signal for some export buying and consequent little rally.

Increased offerings in corn in Iowa led to weakness in the corn market here. Enlarged receipts at St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha were also noted.

On the other hand, export demand for corn was better. Oats followed corn. Provisions were higher in line with hog values.

of in Texas. In this market there has been little business in the staple, although prices are firm. The Commercial Bulletin will publish the following quotations: Domestic: Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces; Delaine unwashed 57 to 58c; fine unwashed 51 to 52c; half blood combed 57 to 58c; 3/8 blood combed 56 to 57c.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW. NEW YORK, May 25 (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: "The market is generally steady, but irregular, in fact open to conditions which on the whole, a shade more nervous, but with less driving force, is visible in several lines of industry. A gain in iron and steel, particularly in the south and southwest, and rather better weather noted at some northwest and western points, are probably the chief factors in this advance. Trade, although the backwardness of the season as a whole had tended to keep firm distribution held expectations. Wholesale prices are generally steady, but with small changes on the week, while industry as a whole has shown a fairly rapid progress. The building trades, chiefly heading off articles, have slowed down the largest centers, while the disposition to go ahead freely on the present basis of material and labor costs is responsible for fewer new constructions being planned or entered upon.

SUGAR. NEW YORK, May 25 (AP)—There was more activity in the local raw sugar market today and prices were firm and unchanged at 6 1/2 cents for Central and freight, equal to 8 1/2 for centrifugal. The sales were placed at about 105,000 bags of sugars for May and June. Wholesale prices for raw sugars and there were further offerings of both Cuban and Porto Ricos at the same level. The raw sugar futures were firmer, reflecting the increasing activity in the spot market and reports of a better consuming demand. First prices were 4 to 5 points higher and they continued to advance on covering and renewed buying for both trade and outside account until December was $6.53 and September $6.41, or 12 to 15 points above to November and December deliveries at $9.26.
