Government Offers Testimony of Accountant in Trial of "General" Lee Cases; Shows $195,224.86 Collected

PORT WORTH, June 1 (AP)—The General Lee oil interests received $195,224.86 for sale of stocks in the three companies—General Lee, Mendonhall and General Lee Development interests, according to the testimony of V. Woodhall, special accountant for the United States attorney general's department, who testified today in the "oil fraud" trial of H. H. Schwarz, Charles Scherwin and "General" Robert A. Lee.

Mr. Mendonhall was sworn in by the government to audit the books of the Lee interests. He said there was no set of books to show what was done with the money taken in and that the original he had examined in the Lee offices. It was stated in the contract that as the name of Robert A. Lee had a "trade value" that it could be used exclusively by Scherwin and Schwarz as trustees of their companies and that Scherwin and Schwarz could use it in any way they saw fit. Under the contract, Lee was to receive $12.50 per week and 10 per cent of the profits of the companies, and all other proceeds were to go to Scherwin and Schwarz.

The government closed its case late today and defense counsel announced that the defense witnesses would be on the stand tomorrow.

CREDITORS ORGANIZE TO SAFEGUARD INTERESTS

Persons with Claims Against Brokerage Firm in Involuntary Receivership Form Committee

NEW YORK, June 1 (AP)—Creditors of Jones and Baker, leading brokerage house on the New York curb market which was forced into involuntary receivership, took steps today to protect their interests by organizing a committee with John A. Neyenhouse as chairman. The firm had more than 2,000 customers throughout the country, most of them with small accounts. A large force of accountants started the tedious task of going over the books and it was said that it would at least take two weeks before an accurate estimate could be made of the assets and liabilities. The liabilities have been unofficially estimated to be between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000.

There were persistent reports that the district attorney's office was investigating a number of other curb market houses. But this was denied by District Attorney Banton.

Another report had it that the private fortune of William R. Jones, principal partner of the concern, which was estimated between $7,500,000 and $10,000,000, would be secured by the receiver for creditors but there was no confirmation.

BUNKO RING'S MEMBERS SENTENCED TO PRISON

Denver Judge Imposes Penitentiary Term of from Seven to Ten Years on 11 Alleged Participants in Band

DENVER, June 1 (AP)—Visions of penitentiary walls and long sentences loom before the bars of the county jail tonight for 10 members of Denver's so-called "million dollar bawking ring," who were sentenced today by District Judge George J. Dunklee in the West Side court after he had decided them a new trial.

Each of the alleged "bunko men," including Lou Blonger, said to be the "brains" of the band, were sentenced to serve 7 to 10 years each, on two counts charging conspiracy and 7 to 10 years each on a third conspiracy count, the sentences to run concurrently. The remaining eight were sentenced from 3 to 10 years on the first and second counts and another 3 to 10 on the third count. Their sentences will also run concurrently. Those who were sentenced today are Lou Blonger, A. W. Duff who was known as the "first lieutenant" of the ring, Jack French, who has wealthy relatives in Cleveland; O. A. B. Cooper, George ("Tip") Becher, Thomas Beech, Steve J. Olson, A. H. Potts, Robert C. Davis, Walter Bylan and Louis Musnick.

In overruling the defendants' motion for a new trial, Judge Dunklee defended the prerogative in the court in allowing the jurors their freedom while the case was in progress, which was objected to by the defense after the verdict.

Judge Dunklee allowed the men six to ten days in which to prepare their appeals to the supreme court. They are to be held in the county jail pending final disposition of their case.

Pioneer Apothecaries.
Pharmacy and medicine were first made separate professions by the monks and priests of the Tenth and Eleventh centuries. The fathers of the apothecaries seems to have been Constantine Afer of Carthage. Their preparations and potions were sold to the rich and given to the poor. No apothecaries are mentioned in France prior to 1484.

Goose is Real Patriarch.
Of our common animals the span of life of the rabbit is about seven years; while the hare averages a little longer. The squirrel does not live more than seven years. Dogs and cats seldom survive beyond fifteen, but the pig will reach thirty. The goose is the patriarch of the farmyard, for one has been known to live sixty years.

Valuable Old Coin.
A Sheffield farmer, while digging in his fields recently, found a silver coin of antique origin, but in a splendid state of preservation. He came up to London, had it appraised, and found it to be worth $1,250. The coin is a Charles I crown and was minted at the time when silver was very scarce in England.

The feathers of the "golden pheasant" are a source of profit, being used in the manufacture of artificial flies for salmon fishing. These birds, natives of China, are the hardiest of the pheasant tribe.

BARCELONA SYNDICATES SHOW BITTER ANTIMOSITY

BARCELONA, June 1 (AP)—Terrorism has broken out afresh in Barcelona after a period of comparative calm. Both the unified and free syndicates are participating in frequent assassinations, the victims being generally prominent members of the opposing societies. Hitherto the assassins have succeeded in escaping scot-free.

In the face of this fresh outbreak the authorities are placed in a difficult situation. For many years the system of suppressing the workers' unions was tried, but during all this period the murdering continued. Then Premier Sanchez-Guerra announced the restoration of the constitutional guarantees, thus giving the workers the right of association. For a time there was a lull in the flood of crime, but now it has assumed its old volume and nearly every day or night a terrorist outrage, usually fatal, is recorded.

The two workers' syndicates, since the civil law again has been restored, show just as much hostility to one another, and the third element—that of the employers—which also is accused of using terrorist methods, display equally little evidence of coming to terms.

Fighting Malaria With Tractors.
Malaria has a new enemy in the motor plow, which drives away disease by introducing cultivation. Experiments lately made with four tractors with a special plow blade turned up furrows ten inches deep so successfully that it is pronounced practicable to reclaim swamp lands hitherto unproductive and given over to malaria. The land tested was formed by a stratum of roots and marsh plants upon a marshy bank of decomposed vegetable material, which in turn rested on soft mud that yielded easily to the weight of wheels.

PORK MOST POPULAR OF MEATS IN AMERICA

WASHINGTON, June 1 (AP)—Pork and lard are two of the largest items in the food supply of the American people. The average annual per capita consumption for the last five years was 67.3 pounds of pork and 12.5 pounds of lard, as compared with 60.9 pounds of beef. In several recent years the consumption of pork alone has exceeded that of all other meats combined.

A study of the hog production industry included in the 1922 year book of the department of agriculture shows that among the farm animals hogs are exceeded in numbers only by cattle and sheep. In several recent years the production of pork in the country has exceeded in numbers only by cattle and sheep. The amount of corn marketed in the nation's agricultural production has increased in value only by cattle and horses. They are produced on three-fourths of the farms of the country and represent over ten per cent of the value of the nation's agricultural production.

Nearly two-thirds of the commercial production of pork is in the corn belt. The amount of corn marketed in the nation's agricultural production has increased in value only by cattle and horses. They are produced on three-fourths of the farms of the country and represent over ten per cent of the value of the nation's agricultural production.

HAVE FAITH IN IDAHO

SOUTH IDAHO is one of the nation's most fertile districts. The yield per acre here is well up to the best in the land for standard farm products. For instance—
Wheat produces up to 40 bushels and averages 22.
Hay produces three tons per acre year after year.
Oats produces 50 bushels and averages nearly 40.
Corn runs as high as 100 bushels and averages over 40.
Potatoes often yield as high as 210 bushels and the average is 120.

This is the first of a series of advertisements to be published in the newspapers of Idaho calling attention to the great upturn in the business outlook of this state.

The return of prosperity to this vast commonwealth will result in tremendous increases in the number of telephone subscribers. We suggest that telephones be ordered now. It may entail delay in installation if the order is postponed.

FRENCH POLICY AT HOME GIVEN DEPUTIES' VOTE

Chamber Approves Condemnation of Royalist Attacks with Expression of Confidence in Government

PARIS, June 1, (AP)—Confidence in the government was expressed today by the chamber of deputies which gave the government a majority of 162 in a test vote after imprecations on the recent royalist activities in which socialist deputies were beaten by street gangs.

The vote was on the question of giving priority to resolutions offered by Emmanuel Brousse and Edouard Ferriert. M. Brousse's resolution condemned the actions of the royalists and expressed confidence in the government to repress violence, while M. Ferriert's resolution was to the same effect but without the phrase expressing confidence in the government.

The government made the vote one of confidence, in favor of giving M. Brousse's resolution priority, and was sustained by a vote of 315 to 151.

Denounces Royalist Methods

Deputy Sangnier, one of the victims of the campaign, said he was an ardent Catholic, as were the deputies, but he differed with them in regard to their methods and policies. It was to intimidate him and oblige him to adopt their ways that they set upon him.

"They can cover me with tar and feathers, but they can never win me to their methods," he said.

M. Doulet said the action of the king's cabinet was in the form of a reprisal for the menace of the royalist groups and that it was only an act of warning.

It is recalled that the king's cabinet or peddlers, the name given to the young royalists who volunteered to hawk copies of their organ L'Action Francaise on the boulevards and streets when that newspaper was first established. Later they organized into a body for general royalist propaganda.

TROUT PROVES WORTH TEST

BUTTE, Mont., June 1, (AP)—To file on the back of a trout, perhaps for months, with its front legs set between the gills that all its exertions would not free them, was the unpleasant experience of a three-year-old bull frog, according to Dr. H. A. Mailet, of Butte, who has the frog on exhibition in his office.

The trout and its unwelcome and unwishing passenger were captured by Dr. Mailet at his country home near this city, ever get into the predicament is left to the imagination, but the two are still alive, still attached and swimming about a tank of running water in the doctor's office.

Dr. Mailet declared that apparently the trout understands the wills and ways of a bull frog enough to come to the surface occasionally to let his passenger breathe.

With the fishing season only a few days away Butte fishermen who have seen the strange exhibit say that it is a fish story which will require something to hunt. Dr. Mailet said he would keep the two creatures alive as long as possible.

Up to the Minute in Rings.

The woman had gone with the engaged girl to look at platinum wedding rings. But as the delicate hoops with sentimental sentimental designs, diamonds or pearls but gorgeous diamond studded ones were placed on the strip of black velvet on the counter the woman's attention wandered from the eager engaged girl to a nonchalant customer of many years.

There was nothing extraordinary about this person's appearance either in features or clothes, but there was a positive manner in the way she picked up the rings displayed for her inspection that aroused interest. After she had examined a dozen wedding rings or so as though they were the most commonplace merchandise in the store, she turned to the woman and said: "I don't want to spend a lot. But it must be platinum. This is my third. I've had the gold and the white gold, so I might as well have the latest there is to have now."—Chicago Journal.

Just a Suggestion.

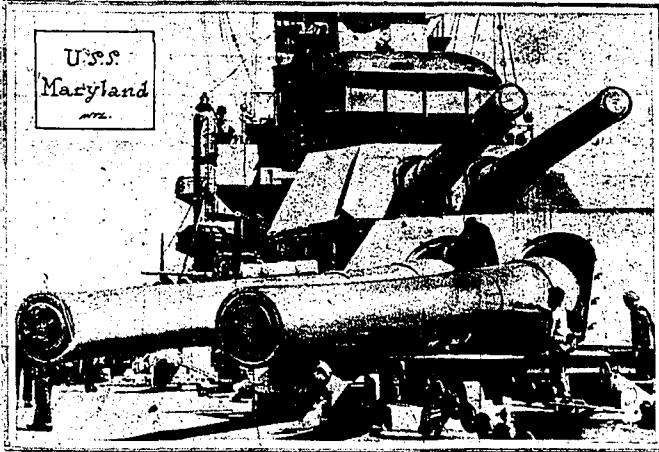

Speaking of books printed in America, it is much better to have that legend shown on the reverse of the title page than at the end of the volume where it so often makes an anticlimax. A novel's last page will sometimes read like this: "She pressed her lips to his. Printed in the United States of America."—William Lyon Phelps, in Scribner's Magazine.

Belgium's Agricultural Laborers.

One of the surprises in the multi-travel through Belgium is the intensive cultivation. Before the war, out of less than 7,500,000 acres of total area, about 5,000,000 acres were tilled. Much of the ground is worked with the hoe and the spade, and no less than one-sixth of the people are classed as agricultural laborers.

Maryland to Fire Big Guns 14 Miles

For the first time in American naval history the U. S. S. Maryland, America's greatest battleship, mounting eight 16-inch rifles in her main battery, is to discharge her missiles at target, 120 feet long and 40 feet high, stationed over the horizon 25,000 yards, or 14 miles away, to test the accuracy and dispersion of heavy naval rifles. As the shells at that range will come down almost vertically and as the target will have no breadth, the possibility of hitting it is minute. The Maryland is the only American ship having a gun elevation of 30 degrees, though the newly constructed West Virginia and the Colorado will have similar elevation. The maximum range of these ships is 30,000 yards, or about 7,500 miles further than any other American ships, though English vessels have equal range. The firing, which will be held on June 7, off Piney Point, Chesapeake Bay, will have for its object an effort to get congress to overrule President Harding and order the elevation of guns on other American vessels.

PROTEST FAILS TO HALT HUNT

GRAVESEND, England, June 1 (AP)—Reverent at the action of Edward Page Gaston, American archaeologist, and his assistants in digging up the remains of scores of bodies in Saint George's churchyard in their search for the bones of Pocahontas, continued unabated by the townspeople today.

Although Mr. Gaston has long attempted to explain an indisputable fact, the inhabitants of Gravesend held indignation meetings and made their sentiments known to the church authorities. Some even threatened to petition for the removal of Canon Gale, blind pastor of the church, who officiated yesterday at the reinterment of the bones.

They were particularly aggrieved, they said, to see the excavators partaking of tea and cake on a tombstone, while the workmen, in their search for their money, hauled up buckets filled with crumbling skulls and bones from the deep vault, and photographers snapped the scene.

Justifies Project. "I am accustomed to such criticism," said Mr. Gaston in an official explanation. "Lord Curzon's condemnation and the outburst from others are based upon misapprehension of my real motives. I am not here to re-entomb the body of one who played such a romantic and human part in the early colonial life of America and reinter it in a fitting manner. It is to reveal an adding memorial to one of the most gallant episodes by a woman in American history."

"The fact that I received written permission from all the descendants of the princess in America and Great Britain and had the approval of the British home office as well as the support of the English-speaking union will absolve me from any charges of private or mercenary designs."

"I am sure that such Americans and Britons will agree that if the body of the Indian heroine could be found and suitably enshrined in the land of her birth, it would form another link between the two countries. The enterprise has cost me many years of effort and much money and I intend to see it through, in spite of misguided and unreasoning protests."

MEXICO CALLED KEY TO ALL OF LATIN-AMERICA

Churchman Regards Relations of United States and Neighbor Nation as Tragedy of Diplomatic History

CHICAGO, June 1 (AP)—"One of the tragedies of modern diplomatic history" was the manner in which the Rev. Wilbur Thirkield, bishop of Mexico for the Methodist Episcopal church, described the relations of the United States with Mexico in a statement here on returning from that country.

"Mexico is the key to the entire Latin-American situation," he said. "The people viewing our relations with Mexico as indicative of our attitude toward entire Latin-America. In this light our failure to come into relations with Mexico is an outstanding feature in their minds."

"It would be well for us to put the cost of a single foot along our border into schools of good will and methods of cooperation in the line of hygiene and general social betterment for the depressed and unhappy masses along our border."

GREW TAKES STEPS FOR AGREEMENT WITH TURKS

American Minister, Authorized to Re-Write Treaties, Makes Preliminary Statements to Hosts

LAUSANNE, June 1 (AP)—Having received full powers to negotiate and sign new treaties with the Turkish delegates here, the American minister, Joseph C. Grew, today sent letters to President Hoover of Switzerland and to the head of the Canton of Vaud, of which Lausanne is the capital, explaining the reasons for the new negotiations. He also called upon the heads of the various European delegations who are negotiating a general treaty with the Turks and informed them of his government's intentions.

The minister's action was in pursuance of the policy of the United States in Europe, which is to be informed of all activities while the other allies are negotiating the peace treaty with the Turks, which the United States will not sign because it was not formally at war with Turkey.

It is expected the present informal negotiations between Mr. Grew and the Turks will give way to formal negotiations next week if the American government had decided, as a matter of courtesy, to sign no separate treaty in Lausanne until after the allies have completely started work and signed their convention with the Angora government.

Both the Turkish and American representatives here decided to continue their exchanges until an accord has been reached on the main points, so that when the official negotiations start, the delegates will be able to walk in with draft texts of the various conventions already in hand.

DETROIT IS CALLED WET BY ONE-MAN GRAND JURY

Great Quantities of Liquor Come Across Border from Canada, Circuit Judge Webster Declares

DETROIT, Mich., June 1 (AP)—Detroit is "wet" and "very wet" and there is no question that large amounts of liquor are brought in from Canada, according to Circuit Judge Charles E. Webster, who as one-man grand jury had completed an investigation into allegations of police graft.

"The facilities of the police department of this city and of the sheriff's office in the county are entirely inadequate to cope with the liquor situation," Judge Webster declared. "Large quantities of liquor and beer have been imported into this city day after day. One would almost have the opinion that everyone there actually was the incoming time after time, and in the process of it."

"I recommend that greater attention be paid to at least these wholesale violations, that more vigorous efforts be used and that more men, both in uniform and in plain clothes, be assigned for this particular line of work."

LAW SUIT TO SETTLE TITLE OF ROMANTIC LITTLE ISLE

BELGRADE, June 1 (AP)—Laurmond, whose Richard Cour de Lion was shipwrecked when he was sailing up the Dalmatian coast from the Holy Land, here in Belgrade, recently heard in the Judge-Sheer court.

The little island, which lies about half a mile from the shore of Ragusa, has been bought by Richard Cour de Lion, a member of the Hapsburg family, in gratitude for being saved from the sea. More recently it has had two unhappy recent owners. Empress Maximilian of Mexico, the wife of the late Emperor Maximilian of Austria, Princess Rudolph's daughter, Elizabeth, received the island as a part of her dowry when she married Otto von Dischgratz, who is concerned in the recent legal proceedings. The town of Ragusa attempted to have the island transferred to the state according to the treaty of St. Germain. But Princess Elizabeth, the owner, who is living divorced from her husband at Baden, asserts that she is no longer a member of the Hapsburg family, as she renounced all her rights on the occasion of her marriage.

Jerome-Twin Falls Baseball Game Scheduled for Sunday Will Open New Park

Twin Falls fans will initiate the new fall park Sunday afternoon, when the first Jerome team will make its first appearance on the scene here against the Twin Falls regulars in a regular scheduled game of the Southern Idaho Baseball League.

The new park will be known as "Athletic Park" and will be the home of the Twilight League.

Manager Bills isn't in the best of humor these days, owing to his two defeats at the hands of the Shoshone and Hansen teams, and will be over with revengeful lust that hodes ill for the home boys, but Bob Whitel, skipper of the Twin Falls team, will be waiting for just such an attack and is giving his best men real workouts.

The question of pitcher is still undecided, but it may be stated that Whitel will put in the best chucker available on the team.

The Twin Falls boys have won two straight this far this season, and have hopes of going through the entire season with a clean slate, although there are several teams in the league who feel differently concerning Twin Falls' chances to finish with 1,000.

The two games scheduled this week in the Twilight league that had to be postponed owing to wet grounds, will be played at a later date, while the Elks and Electricians will play their regular scheduled game on Tuesday.

CAVALRYMEN WIN FROM INFANTRY'S POLO TEAM

Monterey Presidio Quartet Defoats the Vancouver Barracks Opponents, 21 to 1, in Boise Match

BOISE, June 1 (AP)—Outriding, outbitting and displaying a superior brand of polo and teamwork, the 11th Cavalry quartet of Monterey Presidio, Calif., this afternoon swamped the Infantry team from Vancouver barracks, Wash., 21 to 1, in the second game of the third annual polo series for the championship of the northwest and the north camp army area at the Clark barracks field.

Major Clark B. Chandler, team captain and number one for Monterey, offered the only casualty of the day when he was thrown from his horse with an injured leg early in the second chukker. X-rays were taken later to determine at a late hour tonight. He remained in the game.

Chandler's heavy scoring accounted for 11 rallies and his superior field play showed him to be the foremost today at the star of the entire constellation of players, Captain C. A. Wilkinson, a hard hitting number two for the cavalrymen, runs his club for a close second as a stellar performer.

For Vancouver, Captain John L. McKee, with the lone score in seventh period, added to a continuous battling throughout the match, and Lieutenant F. H. Strickland, team captain and "back," were the principal players. They scored as follows: Monterey 243 033 42-21 Vancouver 600 000 10-1

CHICAGO BROKER TAKEN IN BUCKET SHOPS RAID

Technical Arrest Results from Officials' Failure to Find Chicago Firm's Books

CHICAGO, June 1 (AP)—Morris Reinhold, said to be manager of the brokerage firm of Harry Donald & Co., today was placed in technical custody when men from the state attorney's office, raiding the firm's offices as part of their drive on bucket shops, failed to find the company's books.

Reinhold, who is a brother of Donald Reinhold, head of the firm, told Assistant State Attorney Milton Smith, who conducted the raid, that the books had been taken to an auditor six weeks ago and he had forgotten the auditor's name. The cashier previously had said that she worked on the books last night.

This was the third raid of the day on brokerage shops, Attorney Smith issuing subpoenas for the head of the firm, M. L. Ayer & Co., and H. G. Miller & Co. Officials were absent but the books were seized and carried to the state attorney's office for investigation.

EXPERT PREDICTS CHEAPER FUEL FROM LIGHTNING CHAR

MONTREAL, June 1 (AP)—Science's quest for a method that will add light to the available fuel supplies of the United States was described at a session of the Fuel Research Council of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers here today by O. P. Hood, chief mechanical engineer of the U. S. bureau of mines.

"The bureau of mines is investigating the possibilities of a program," said Mr. Hood, "which has for its main features an extremely expediting device and the use of the lightic char direct, without briquetting.

"Lightic char can best be described in a few words as a fuel rather than an analysis to anthracite coal but softer, with a little more volatile matter, and thus kindling easier. In size it grades from pea coal to smaller sizes, and is a stable product. Whether a market can be developed for such a fuel at prices around $5 a ton at the mine, remains to be shown, but it is at least encouraging to know that Germany used last year 400,000 tons of similar material for domestic heating and cooking.

"This fuel burns well with natural draft where a thin fuel bed can be maintained. Base furnaces, cook stoves, and other heaters can be adapted to use the fuel satisfactorily. The Germans have developed a special stove, burning the fuel on a bed of ash in an enclosed drawer. There is no loss of fuel in the ash and lightic char used in such a stove burns as evenly as anthracite for baking operations and will boil water. It makes a very clear fire, is smokeless, and the clean is clean to handle."

VETERINARIANS PROSPER

LONDON, June 1 (AP)—Despite the much threatened extinction of the horse by increasing use of motor vehicles, there is no falling off in the number of veterinary surgeons in London. This is attributed to the greater attention now paid to cats and dogs, and to the fact that while the number of horses decreased, the number of individual owners has increased.

HISTORIC SITE TO BE MARKED BY MONUMENT

Glistening Marble Cross is Selected for Memorial on the Ground where Revolutionary Forefathers Prayed

BENNINGTON, Vt., June 1. (AP)—Ground has been broken here for the erection of a memorial monument to mark the site of the first meeting house in the Hampshire Grants, now the state of Vermont, which was intimately associated with the battles of Tiendroga and Bennington in the Revolutionary War and with the early history of the state. The monument, which is the gift of Mrs. Elmer Spizer of New York to the Bennington Battle Monument and Historical Society, will be dedicated on July 8.

In the center of a Maltese cross 42 feet in diameter formed by embedding 1,250 marble slabs in the turf will rise a shrine of Vermont grey marble 42 feet high and six feet wide. On this will be placed two tablets, one bearing an inscription telling the history of the site and a low relief of the meeting house and the other having a reproduction of the great seal of the state.

The inscription prepared for the monument recites the erection of the meeting house, "a plain building of unpeeled wood," in 1763-65 and deals with the stirring events of colonial days as follows:

"Here the forefathers met in prayer for assistance against the oppressive measures of New York and the overwhelming power of King George. Hither the settlers returned from the capture of Tiendroga and the battle of Bennington and the surrender of Burgoyne to offer their thanksgiving, and here were brought the 700 prisoners captured on August 17, 1777.

"For 40 years the center of the religious life of the community, the meeting house was also connected with the political life of the state. Vermont was an independent republic from January 17, 1777, to its admission into the Union March 4, 1791. The first legislature met at Windsor in 1778 and adjourned to Bennington for its June session, held on this site. The laws for carrying on the government of this sovereign state were enacted at the session of the legislature which assembled in the meeting house February 13, 1778.

"Here met the convention, consisting of one delegate from each town, which on January 10, 1791, ratified the constitution of the United States by the signatures of 102 delegates, thereby preparing the way for the admission of Vermont into the Union as the first state after the original thirteen."

The first meeting house stood until 1806 when it was replaced by a church which is still standing. The monument will stand on the village green a few feet from the present church.

Star in Diplomatic Circles

Annual activity characterized the efforts in which the representatives of the powers which have submitted statements to the state department regarding the effect of drastic application of the court's decision. Several conferences were held among officials of embassies and legations, but their nature was not revealed. There were indications, however, that they had been apprised of the treasury's intention to proceed with strict application of the decision.

Officials at the treasury said they were aware that the regulations, as drafted, and which await the final approval of Secretary Mellon, would prove unsatisfactory to the foreign governments. The final determination was definite in the court decision, according to treasury attorneys, and they have been convinced finally, it was said, that the ocean will be made the through limit and dry dock.

Some officials at the treasury predicted that a further statement of views of foreign governments soon would be made by the state department which might be joined by others who are understood to be actively interested in the situation.

Are Called America's Greatest Living Women

A noted Chilian woman's writer asked the National League of Women Voters to call the greatest living American women... Martha Van Benschoten, Cecelia Deason, Edith Wharton, Julia Lathrop, Jane Adams, Mary McPherson, Minnie Madelon Fisk, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Louise Howe, and Mary Kay Stewart.

There has been little criticism and much praise for the award of the Pulitzer prize for the best editorial of the year to William Allen White of Kansas, editor of the Emporia Gazette.

The theme was freedom of speech for the defense of which the editor had been arrested in a case which gained national fame. He proved his legal right to print frank criticism of public men and their acts, and then wrote his remarkable editorial letter "To an Anxious Friend."

"Only when free utterance is suppressed is it needed, and when it is needed it is most vital justice. Peace is good. But if you are interested in peace through force and without free discussion, your interest in justice is slight. And peace without justice is tyranny, no matter how much you may sugarcoat it with expediency."

"So, dear friend, put fear out of your heart. This nation will survive, this state will prosper, the orderly business of life will go forward, if only men can speak in whatever way is given them to utter what their hearts hold. Reason never has failed men. Only force and suppression have made wrecks of the world."

It is a lesson greatly needed today in this country.

INTERNATIONAL DRY ROW

Foreign nations are united in protest against the Volstead law, as the Supreme Court decision applies it to foreign shipping. Five European nations so far, Great Britain, France, Italy, Spain and Holland, have made a "friendly but firm" protest. They admit the right of the United States to make and enforce prohibition laws within its own territory, but insist that this country has no right to forbid foreign ships to enter American ports if they close their bars at the three-mile limit and bring in their liquor stores under seal. They believe they are absolutely sure of their ground.

That may be true. It is quite likely that if the case were submitted to an international court, the court would decide against the United States.

There is no evidence that Congress ever intended the Volstead law to have any such effect. The Supreme Court has merely interpreted the law as Congress made it, holding that the foreign ships bringing in liquor even under seal are "transporting" it, and so engaged unlawfully.

If the Executive Department cannot arrange a friendly compromise, it will be left for Congress, when it meets again, to make a specific exception to cover the case. It is not worth while getting into an international row on such a trivial issue.

THE SHEENING PAPER SUPPLY

Canadian paper mills are setting new records in exports of news print. In March, for the first time, exports from the Dominion passed the one hundred thousand ton mark. Last month they reached one hundred thirteen thousand four hundred fifty tons.

Nearly all of this came to the states for the use of the American newspapers. As a source of news print, Canada is gaining on our country right along.

Since nineteen hundred seventeen American production has risen from one billion three hundred fifty-nine million tons a year to one billion four hundred and forty thousand tons, while Canada's output has jumped from six hundred ninety thousand to one billion eighty-two million tons. American stocks of pulp wood, especially in the east, are vanishing at a disturbing rate, while Canada sets the pace in the erection of new mills and the installation of machinery.

Meanwhile the newspapers—and the people, too—watch with growing interest the increasing number of tabloid publications, and the various attempts to reduce white paper consumption through material modification of display advertising policy.

Paper costs are compelling the most serious consideration of essential changes in the very nature of American journalism. Unless new sources of supply can be developed, those changes will come within a decade, and they will be worth watching.

PEANUTS, FIVE A BAG, MAY RESULT FROM HUGH CROPS

CHICAGO, June 1 (P)—The bleacher and circus fun will get a bigger bag of peanuts for its money when this year's record crop is harvested. Guy H. Hall, director of the National Institute of Progressive Farming, said in a statement in which he predicted also a return to the five cent bag in a short time.

"The old familiar call, 'Hot peanuts, two bags' will return within a short time," he said.

More than 985,000 acres were planted in peanuts last year, according to a statement of agriculture figures, while this year's acreage is forecast by the institute's survey to exceed the million mark. The total yield last year was 253,507,000 pounds, valued at about $29,200,000.

Increased peanut production recently has resulted from the greater use of machinery. Mr. Hall said, pointing out the modern methods of digging and putting the crop to market more quickly. The "goobers," as they are known, are grown extensively in sections where the soil is either sandy or of sandy loam, or where the climate or soil is not seriously handicapped the cotton production. For high quality nuts the soil should be fine and loose to allow for free penetration of the bloom pegs, the nuts forming underground in the manner of the potato, the institute points out.

In waking and sleeping hours, Madeline Hammond could not release herself from the thrilling memory of that tragedy. She was haunted by Monty Price's terrible smile. Only in action of some kind could she escape; and to that end she worked, she waited and she rode. She even overcame a strong feeling, which she feared was unresolvable disgust, for the Mexican girl, Bonita, who lay ill at the ranch, bruised and feverish, in need of skillful nursing.

One afternoon she rode down to the alfalfa fields, round them and back to the spillway of the lower lake, where a group of mesquite-trees, owing to the water that seeped through the sand to their roots, had taken on bloom and beauty of renewed life. Under these trees there was shade enough to make a pleasant place to linger. Madeline dismounted, desiring to rest a little.

Her horse, Majesty, tossed his head and flung his mane and switched his tail at the flies. He would rather have been cutting the wind down the valley slope. Madeline sat with her back against a tree, and took off her sombrero. Suddenly Majesty picked up his long ears and snorted. Then Madeline heard a slow pad of hoofs. A horse was approaching from the direction of the lake. Madeline had learned to be wary, and mounting Majesty, she turned him toward the open. A moment later she felt kind of her caution, for, looking back between the trees, she saw Stewart leading a horse into the grove. She would as lief have met a guerrilla as this cowboy.

Majesty had broken into a trot when a shrill whistle rent the air. The horse leaped and, wheeling so swiftly that he nearly unseated Madeline, he charged back straight for the mesquites. Madeline pulled to him, cried angrily at him, poked with all her strength upon the bridle, but was helplessly unable to stop him. He whistled a piercing blast. Madeline realized then that Stewart, his old master, had called him and that nothing could turn him. She gave up trying, and the horse thumped into an aisle between the trees and, stopping before Stewart, whinnied eagerly.

"I want to talk to you," said Stewart.

Madeline started, turned to him, and now she saw the entire Stewart, the man who reminded her of their first meeting at El Cajon, of that memorable meeting at Chichaua.

"I want to ask you something," he went on. "I've been wanting to know something. That's why I've hung on here. But now I'm going over—the border. And I want to know why did you refuse to listen to me?"

At his last words that hot shame, tenfold more stifling than when it had before humiliated Madeline, rushed over her, sending the scowled in waves to her temples. Biting her lips to hold back speech, she jerked on Majesty's bridle, struck him with her whip, spurred him. Stewart's iron arm held the horse. Then Madeline, in a flash of passion, struck at Stewart's face, missed it, struck again, and hit. With one pull, almost drawing her from the saddle, he tore the whip from her hands. It was not that action on his part, or the sudden strong masterfulness of his look, so much as the livid mark on his face where the whip had lashed that quieted, if it did not check, her fury.

"That's all right," he said, with something of his old audacity. "That's nothing to how you hurt me." Madeline battled with herself for control. This man would not be denied. About him now there was only the ghost of that finer, gentler man she had helped to bring into being. The piercing dark eyes he bent upon her burned her, went through her, as if he were looking into her soul. Then Madeline's quick sight caught a fleeting doubt, a wistfulness, a surprised and softened certainty in his eyes, saw it shade and pass away. Her woman's intuition, as keen as her sight, told her Stewart in that moment had sustained a shock of bitter, final truth.

For the third time he repeated his question to her. Madeline did not answer; she could not speak.

"You don't know I love you, do you?" he continued, passionately. "That ever since you stood before me in that hole at Chichaua I've loved you. You can't see I've been another man, loving you, working for you, living for you? You won't believe I've turned my back on the old wild life, that I've been decent and honorable and happy and useful—your kind of a cowboy? You couldn't tell, though I loved you, that I never wanted you to know it, that I never dared to think of you except as my angel, my holy virgin? What do you know of a man's heart and soul? How could you tell of the love, the salvation of a man who's lived his life in the silence and loneliness? Who could reach you the actual truth—that a wild cowboy, faithless to mother and sister, except in memory, riding a hard, drunk trail straight to hell, had looked into the face, the eyes of a beautiful woman infinitely beyond him, above him—that he loved her, that he was loved—that he became faithful—that he saw her face in every flower and her eyes in the blue heaven?"

Madeline was mute. She heard her heart thundering in her ears. Stewart leaped at her. His powerful hand closed on her arm. She trembled. His action presaged the old instinctive violence, powerless to serve her, that he became faithful—that he saw her face in every flower and her eyes in the blue heaven?"

said the greatest thing in the world was faith in human nature. You said you had faith in me! You made me have faith in myself!" His reproach, without bitterness or scorn, was a lash to her old egotistic belief in her "fairness." She had preached a beautiful principle that she had failed to live up to.

"You think I'm vile," he said. "You think that about Bonita! And all the time I've been—I could make you ashamed—I could tell you—"

His passionate utterance ceased with a snap of his teeth. His lips set in a thin, bitter line. The agitation of his face passed into a conclusive wrestling of his shoulders.

"No, no!" he panted. "Was it his answer to some mighty temptation? Then, like a bent sapling released, he sprang erect. "But I'll be the man—the dog—you think me!"

He laid hold of her arm with rude, powerful clutch. One palm drew her sliding half out of the saddle into his arms. She fell with her breast against his, not wholly free of stirrups or horse, and there she hung, utterly powerless. Maddened, writhing, she tried to release herself. All she could accomplish was to twist herself, raise herself high enough to see his face. That almost paralyzed her. Did he mean to kill her? Then he wrapped his arms around her and crushed her tighter, close to him. She felt the pound of his heart; her own seemed to have frozen. Then he pressed his burning lips to hers. It was a long, terrible kiss. She felt him shake.

"Oh, Stewart! I—Implore—you—let-me-go!" she whispered.

His wild face loomed over her. She closed her eyes. He raised kisses upon her face, but no more upon her mouth. On her closed eyes, her hair, her cheeks, her neck he pressed swift kisses that lost their life and grew cold. Then he released her, and, lifting and righting her in the saddle, he still held her arm to keep her from falling.

For a moment Madeline sat on her horse with shut eyes. She drew the veil of the night.

"Now you can't say you've never been kissed," Stewart said. His voice seemed a long way off. "But that was coming to you, so be gone, here!"

She felt something hard and cold and metallic thrust into her hand. He made her fingers close over it, hold it. The feel of the thing revived her. She opened her eyes. Stewart had given her his gun. He stood with his broad breast against her knee, and she looked up to see that old mocking smile on his face.

"Go ahead! Throw my gun on me! Be a thoroughbred!"

Madeline did not yet grasp his meaning. "You can put me down in that quiet place on the hill—beside Mosby Price."

Madeline dropped the gun with a shuddering cry of horror. The sense of his words, the memory of Monty, the certainty that she would kill Stewart if she held the gun an instant longer, tortured the self-accusing cry from her.

Stewart stooped to pick up the weapon. "You might have saved me a hell of a lot of trouble," he said, with another flash of the mocking smile. "You're beautiful and sweet and proud, but you're no thoroughbred! Majesty Hammond, add to the saddle of his horse, and with the flying mount crashed through the mesquites to disappear.

Through review of all evidence pertaining to the death of Mrs. Melvin Blackburn Thursday morning, together with a minute inspection of the statutes by the prosecuting attorney's office, and the filing of the death certificate showing that her death followed the swallowing of bicarbonate of mercury, were outstanding features Friday which strengthened the probability that Melvin Blackburn had been tried at the Eastern town of Tipton on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Congratulations are extended in a personal letter from President Harding to D. D. Alvord, president of the Boy Scout council here last year, in connection with the annual meeting of the organization which was held at the local hotel on Thursday evening.

The strikers have been received from the national Boy Scout headquarters at New York city, the letter from President Harding being enclosed.

"Dear Mr. Alvord: I am pleased to learn that your council has met the specified conditions and is entitled to the award of the Anniversary Round-Up Strimmer, which I take great pleasure in presenting, with additional commendations for the work done and for extending to each member of the local council and to others associated with you the hearty congratulations and good appreciation to the scoutmasters and to the boys of those troops which have earned the troop award."

"It is most gratifying to realize that through the Boy Scouts of America over 130,000 men are now enrolled for definite volunteer service, and that at present there are over 400,000 boys members of this splendid organization. Certainly it can be truly said that the men who are in any way supporting this movement are doing so in a most practical fashion to produce for the nation its greatest need—men of character, trained for citizenship, and to convey appreciation to the scoutmasters and to the boys of those troops which have earned the troop award."

"I am keenly anxious to do all in my power to extend the influence of the Scout program, because America needs more citizens who are serving as active leaders, are helping in a most practical fashion to produce for the nation its greatest need—men of character, trained for citizenship, and to convey appreciation to the scoutmasters and to the boys of those troops which have earned the troop award."

"I do most sincerely hope that you will continue your efforts to recruit more boys and to increase the number of sources in order that more boys of Scout age may have the advantage of Scout movement, which has earned for itself an honored position as one of the greatest assets our nation has today."

"Sincerely yours," "WARREN G. HARDING."
