JAPAN DECIDES ON HEARING FOR SOVIET CLAIMS

Russian Envoy Gains Ear of Cabinet After Month's Work in Tokio; Will Be Given Terms for Negotiations

TOKYO, June 6 (AP)—The cabinet at a session this evening decided to submit to A. Joffe, the envoy of Russia, who is now in Japan, conditions under which the imperial government is willing to resume negotiations with the soviet.

It was agreed that the conditions, as outlined by the government, should be submitted to Joffe through Viscount Ota who has been in constant communication with the soviet envoy since the latter's arrival in Japan some months ago.

While the conditions depend upon the cabinet were made public, it is expected that lengthy negotiations will be necessary before a solution of the various problems now separating both governments can be reached.

A. A. Joffe, the Russian envoy, arrived in Japan last evening ostensibly to visit the Japanese hot springs for his health. He was subsequently announced that he had come at the personal invitation of Viscount Ota, at that time mayor of Tokio.

Former Conference Falls. The Changchun conference between representatives of Japan and the soviet government, called to reestablish commercial relations between the two countries, ended in failure last September. The rock on which the negotiations split was the Nikolaievsk massacre in Japan.

TAX STATISTICS SHOW THINNING RANKS OF RICH

Only 21 Firms or Individuals Pay on More than $1,000,000 in 1921, as Against Record of 206 in 1916

WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—The ranks of America's millionaire taxpayers continue to grow thinner, according to statistics of income for 1921, made public tonight by the internal revenue bureau which show that of the 6,662,176 firms and individuals filing returns for 1921, only 21 had incomes exceeding $1,000,000.

Another Drop Likely

Indications already have been given that final completion of returns for 1922 will show another drop in the total as compared with the high mark of 1921.

New York Pays Most

New York bore the largest total income tax burden of any state, its 1,066,657 taxpayers resulting $210,768,778—28.3 per cent of the government income tax revenue, Pennsylvania with 621,103 returns was second, paying an aggregate of $84,699,229.

Two Idaho Towns Listed on President's Western Route

Itinerary Provides for Addresses to Be Made at Pocatello and Idaho Falls; Trips to Parks Planned

WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—President Harding will make 14 addresses on route to the Pacific coast on his Alaskan trip and will speak in five coast cities after returning from Alaska, according to an official announcement of the executive's itinerary made public late today at the White House.

The addresses en route to the coast will be made in cities on dates as follows: St. Louis, June 21, evening; Kansas City, June 22, evening; Hutchinson, Kan., June 23, afternoon; Denver, June 25, morning; Cheyenne, Wyo., June 25, afternoon; Salt Lake City, June 26, evening; Portland, Ore., June 28, morning; Idaho Falls, Idaho, June 28, afternoon; Butte, Mont., June 29, morning; Helena, Mont., June 29, evening; Spokane, Wash., July 2, evening; Astoria, Ore., July 3, morning; Portland, Ore., July 4, afternoon; Tacoma, Wash., July 5, morning.

Three Parks on Itinerary

Announcement also was made that on the trip to the coast the president would make brief visits to Zion and Yellowstone national parks and on the trip down the Pacific coast would stop at Yosemite national park. The address at Meridian, Ore., will be in connection with the Oregon trail anniversary celebration.

Alaskan Arrangements Completed

The itinerary for the visit of the presidential party to Alaska has been only tentatively worked out as the trip will largely be dependent on the president's desires on reaching the territory and also on transportation facilities. The itinerary announced at the White House, however, shows that the executive will spend about two weeks in Alaska with about five days to be consumed in the voyage from Tacoma to the territory and the same amount of time for the return trip to Vancouver.

STORY ENDS HAPPILY

BOISE, June 5 (AP)—Mrs. Joe G. Johnston, whom two San Francisco traveling men had promised to bring to Boise Monday to visit her three-year-old son, Gussie, arrived with her five-month-old infant at 6 o'clock this morning.

"To sign or not to sign?" That was the question which confronted Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York following the close of a lengthy debate between "wet" and "dry" forces assembled for the public hearing at Albany on the measure, sponsored by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier and passed by the legislature, repealing the state prohibition law enacted through the efforts of Senator J. B. Muller and Assemblyman B. P. Gage. The governor next day decided to sign the repeal, and gave out a statement explaining the reasons for his action, in which he took occasion to criticize the eighteenth amendment. Charles J. Murphy, political chieftain, declared for the repeal.

PEACE PARLEYS DEADLOCKED ON VEXING ISSUES

Ismet Says Turks Have Said Last Word On Concessions and Ottoman Debt and Peace Depends on Allies' Reply

LAUSANNE, June 5, (AP)—The Near East conference is again in troubled waters, with each side waiting for the other to give way on unsettled problems, and no immediate solution of the crisis in sight. The conference is virtually at a standstill, each delegation waiting for instructions from its home governments which might enable the plenipotentiaries to break the deadlock.

Ismet Pasha summoned a Turkish correspondent tonight and informed him that the Turkish delegation had said its last word on concessions and that the Ottoman debt and peace depended on the reply of the allies. He complained that he could get no definite answer from the allies as to when the conditions would be accepted, although he had been given to understand that it would be as soon as Ankara ratified the Lausanne treaty.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED BY OPIUM COMMISSION

Advisory Body Recommends to League of Nations American Proposal For Regulating Traffic

GENEVA, June 5, (AP)—The American delegation and the other members of the opium commission of the league of nations, after lengthy consultations, reached an arrangement tonight, which was accepted by all parties with minor reservations.

The resolution adopted by the commission says that "the advisory commission on traffic in opium accepts and recommends to the league the proposals of the representatives of the United States as embodying general principles which governments should be guided in dealing with the question of the abuse of dangerous drugs, and on which the international convention of 1912 was based, subject to the following reservation by the representatives of France, Germany, Great Britain, Japan, the Netherlands, Portugal and Siam:

"The use of prepared opium and the export and import of raw opium for that purpose is legitimate so long as that use is subjected to and in accordance with the provisions of chapter two of the convention."

"The commission appreciating the great value of the convention of the United States in the efforts the league has been making for the last two years to deal with the question of the abuse of dangerous drugs expresses the belief that all the governments concerned should be desirous of cooperating with that government in giving the fullest possible effect to the convention."

Largest Curb Firm Goes To Wall

William R. Jones Jackson B. Sells

Thirty-five millions in accounts and capital were involved in the failure of the New York Curb Exchange firm of Jones & Sells, which had branches in seven of America's principal cities, and its voluntary bankruptcy petition caused widespread consternation, for it did one of the largest brokerage businesses in the country. Jones is a former protégé of Charles A. Stenholm, president of the New York Giants baseball club, and is a close friend of Judge McQuade and many influential politicians. The failure of the firm followed closely publication in the New York American that its affairs were under investigation.

Work of Father DeSmet Among Indians of Western Frontier To Be Depicted By Students

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, June 5.—One of the strangest scenes in the great pageant of Idaho history, "The Light on the Mountains," which university students will present the night of June 9, depicts Father DeSmet and Father Pajot, pioneer Jesuit missionaries, receiving a delegation of Crow Indians at the Mission of the Sacred Heart on the St. Joe river, near the present site of St. Maries, in the year 1842.

Pierre Jean DeSmet was born in a small Belgian village in 1801. Influenced by the English missionaries who were interested in procuring more recruits, he left for America, where he spent the novitiate at Whitmarsh, Maryland.

In 1830 he started preaching among the Flatheads around St. Louis and continued to do this until 1845. After much traveling through the different missions, he came to the land of the Shoshone or Snake Indians, who treat him with the greatest respect and reverence. The Flatheads and Peas d'Orilles, with whom he spent several months could not do enough for him to show their gratitude and happiness at his coming.

After a short time spent in St. Louis DeSmet again returned to the northwest, where he established a mission near the site of the present city of Helena, calling it St. Mary's mission. In 1842 he continued west and preached to the Couer d'Alene Indians, founding the Sacred Heart, was originally on the St. Joe river, about a mile from the south end of Couer d'Alene lake. It was moved, however, in 1846 to establish on the Couer d'Alene river, and again in 1877 to a site in the beautiful Hung-man valley. There it remains to this day in a small town, the postoffice address of which is DeSmet.

DeSmet had great power among the Indian tribes, who all knew him and loved him. He was a white man in whom they had implicit faith and trust. To them Father DeSmet was not the one white man whose tongue does not lie.

The government was compelled to call on him several times for assistance in quelling troublesome Indian tribes. One of the most important of these occasions was at the time of the Yakima war in 1855, which was caused by the encroachment of the whites upon Indian land. The Indians, even the peaceful Flatheads and Couer d'Alene, joined the league to repel the invaders. Father DeSmet was sent by the United States to pacify the Indians, and after visiting the different tribes, DeSmet succeeded in bringing the chiefs together and renewing peace with the government.

Father DeSmet died in 1873 and was laid to rest in St. Louis. He was mourned by Protestant and Catholic alike and perhaps more of all by his beloved children of the wilds who held "Blackrobes," as they called him, so highly in esteem.

MEXICANS WILL PRESENT PROPOSALS TO AMERICA

Prospects Soon Brighter For Early Agreement By Delegates at Mixed Recognition Conference

MEXICO CITY, June 5, (AP)—The Mexican delegates to the mixed recognition conference have been given authorization by President Obregon to present definite proposals. This became known today after official announcement of satisfactory progress had been given by members of both the American and Mexican delegations, and it was believed tonight that there was a possibility of the conference reporting to their governments upon the basis of a possible agreement before the end of this week.

The previous lack of power by the Mexican delegates caused prolonged discussions, and the American delegates yesterday asked that these be abandoned and that the conference get down to concrete proposals for a solution of the problems standing in the way of recognition of the Obregon regime.

President Harding Has Important Part in Festivities Incident to Opening of Conclave; Parade Principle Event

WASHINGTON, June 5 (AP)—President Harding had a prominent part today in the festivities incident to the opening here of the forty-ninth annual convention of the Ancient and Accepted Order, Nobles of the Right, of the United States.

With Mrs. Harding and General Pershing, the executive who is a noble of Aladdin temple of Columbus, Ohio, remained for three and a half hours in his box at the reviewing stand in front of the White House as the long line of nobles passed through the "Garden of Allah" on their march over the "burning sands" of Pennsylvania avenue from the capital to the Washington circle.

Mr. Harding wore a white suit and a red fez, but General Pershing, also a noble, was in the uniform of his rank as general of the armies.

Both the executive and Mrs. Harding entered fully into the spirit of the occasion, vigorously applauding the marchers and finding amusement in the antics of some of the drum majors and the clowns accompanying several of the delegations.

As each of the 118 temples passed the stand, the president and Mrs. Harding arose to salute the Americans, flag and so were kept on their feet much of the time the parade was under way.

Apparently untired by this exertion, Mrs. Harding joined in the water polo hospital in the afternoon, and a concert given for the wounded war veterans by the band and chorists of Aladdin temple.

Probably no more picturesque parade than that of the shriners' historic glorification, scene of many inaugural, victory and other pageants.

From the conventional black and the cooler white, the colors presented all the hues of the rainbow while the variety of costumes here and there blended with the number of colors. Chariots, mounted patrols and gaily decorated camels added touches to the whole picture.

Color and Harmony. There was more than color to the pageant, however, a hundred-odd bands, drum corps and chanting clubs providing a continuous flow of music—stirring marches, oriental airs and the latest jazz.

Smart drill corps came in formations all along the line of march, especially in the "Garden of Allah," where the spectators included besides the president and Mrs. Harding, members of the cabinet, the imperial potentate and his divan, ranking officers, many navy officers and foreign diplomats.

Clear skies greeted the shriners, but long before the parade had ended, the intense heat and great humidity made for keen discomfort for both the marchers and the thousands who packed the sidewalks and "circles" seats along the two miles of the parade route. Heat prostrations were frequent and ambulances and temporary aid stations were kept busy.

More than 60 persons, including several shriners, were taken to hospitals while estimates were that equally as many were given first aid at the street stations. Those taken to hospitals were reported to right to be out of danger.

Immediately after the parade ended the imperial council was convened by Mr. McCullough and President Harding delivered the principal address.

Praises High Purpose. Declaring that sometimes "men band together for mischief to exert misguided zeal," the executive said he liked the "highly purposed fraternity, because it is our assurance against menacing organizations and 'conspiracies'."

BROADWAY CAFE GIVEN PADLOCK

Federal Prohibition Agents Take Up Burden of Law Enforcement in New York

NEW YORK, June 5, (AP)—Federal prohibition forces today disclosed part of their future policy of controlling illicit traffic without the aid of the Mulligan-Gage state enforcement act, when they closed, by court order, a popular Broadway cafe, the Knickerbocker grill, for six months under padlock action of the Volstead act. At the same time, police commissioners, sheriffs and state troopers in various sections were notified by Palmer (and field, state prohibition director, that they still were responsible for the enforcement of the federal laws in regard to prohibition. Announcement of surprise raid by federal prohibition agents on the Hotel Pontchartrain last night was coupled today with the statement that the raid was only the forerunner of others. Federal Judge Hough, after hearing the government's evidence against the Knickerbocker Grill declared it to be a public nuisance because of repeated violations of the prohibition law. The grill's proprietor claimed that the liquor seized had been brought by patrons despite warnings. Discussing the effect of the decision, United States Attorney Howard said that the padlock provisions of the Volstead law appeared to be the most effective remedy the government has against public drinking places. He asserted that similar charges now pending against other places in the "white light" district would be proceeded with as promptly as possible.

RAIL LABOR BOARD NOT LIKELY TO SURVIVE

Samuel Rea, mca.

OPEN defiance of the railroad labor board by the Pennsylvania railroad, coupled with the fact that the board apparently has accepted the defiance in meekness and humility, has led official Washington to believe that the board cannot endure much longer. The official execution, according to plans now being perfected by its enemies, will take place soon after the new congress convenes. Labor is bitter because of the manner in which the board has accepted the flat refusal of Samuel Rea, Pennsylvania's president, to abide by that body's decisions, and its spokesmen have pointed out that when rail shippers refused last year to accept an award lowering their wages the board branded the shippers' organization as "outlaws."

Electricians Trough Elks Ball Players

Twilight League Season Opens With Few Fans on Hand to See Tossers Warm Up. Twin Falls Twilight league opened Tuesday evening with the Electricians winning from the Elks team by the score of 13 to 4 in a running game. Only a handful of fans attended, and the Elks failed to put a full team in the field, two Legion players filling in. Roy Hodgins opened for the Elks and received a neat whipping, while Loyal Jarman, on the mound for the Electricians, pitched in big league fashion. Hodgins hasn't been out since school ended, and his look tall refused to look. The game itself proved to be a comedy of errors, most of the misplays being made on thrown balls that an eight-year-old kid could have caught. "Timmy" Hutton, captain of the Electricians, continued his heavy hitting, pulling out three hits in as many times at bat. "Doc" Thomas, the kid who sells gas, and doesn't give a "Continental," was behind the bat for the Elks, and showed the fans that he is a real buster. "Alvin" Smith, captain of the Electricians, continued his heavy hitting, pulling out three hits in as many times at bat. HISTORIC ENGLISH RACE DRAWS ENORMOUS CROWD

Twenty-one Horses to Start for First in Annual Running of Blue Ribbon Event of Turf. BIRMINGHAM, England, June 6 (AP)—Twenty-one horses will sport silk tomorrow for the annual running of the historic derby, the blue ribbon event of the English turf. Although tonight the weather is dull and cold, large crowds already have gathered, and it is customary, to wait the bugle which called the highly trained animals to the post, preparatory to their being sent over hill and down dale for the one mile and a half race. And thousands of others are on the roads here, traveling through the night in every conceivable kind of vehicle. This afternoon many of the enthusiasts lined the course to watch the final work-outs of some of the horses. Among those that were sent over the track were Papyrus, the favorite, which will be ridden by the Duke, winner of the classic event; Dawn Guard, owned by Lord Woolvington, second choice in the betting, ridden by the American jockey, Archibald, and Legally, owned by G. Hutton, which has not been overlooked by the betters, and whose odds have been considerably lessened owing to wagers made that he will show the way home to the field. Enormous sums have been wagered on the race, each one of the 21 entrants having been well backed.

Who Picked the Carpet.

The office of Robert H. Bryson, postmaster, has been glorified by the acquisition of a new carpet. More of the carpet later. As to the acquisition, it was thus: The Treasury department forwarded for inspection and choice of the postmaster, a batch of carpet samples. Beautiful tints of green and blue and gray and of other approved colors were included. Mr. Bryson called around him his officers and the work of choosing a carpet worthy the inner shrine began. The only immediate and unanimous action was the discarding of the sample of a golden brownish carpet that somehow seemed to be meant for other places than a post office. At last a taste one of green was chosen and the order for such a carpet went forth. The carpet came and was laid on the floor of the office. It is of a startling golden brownish color, touches of sunset glow and autumn pumpkins rendering to heighten the contrast between it and the mahogany woodwork. Mr. Bryson and his committee never tire of gazing on this carpet and wondering why they did not choose it and discard the green one.—Indianapolis News.

MICHIGAN TRAIN WRECK COSTS LIVES OF FIVE

Delimit of Special Carrying 200 Delegates to State Convention Is Attributed to Spreading Rail

DURAND, Mich., June 5 (AP)—An investigation by the Michigan public utilities commission into the wreck of the Knights Templar special on the Grand Trunk railway near here today in which five persons were killed and 26 injured, will be aided by county authorities, it was learned tonight. A spreading rail is believed to have been the delimit of the special, bound from Grand Rapids to Flint, and carrying 200 delegates to the state convention. The dead are: Frank Pearson, engineer, 49, Durand, H. J. Weston, 35, Flint, John Erickson, 35, Flint, Joseph Parlor, freeman, 35, Durand, Jay Fanning, 45, news vendor, Grand Rapids. Several of the injured were reported in a serious condition, at local and Flint hospitals tonight, although the only person believed dangerously hurt is V. H. McStevenson, commander of the Ionia commandery, whose skull was fractured.

RAIN STOPS POLO MATCH

Vancouver Barracks Infantry Holds 3 to 1 Lead Over Port Douglas Team When Gano Is Halted

BOISE, June 5, (AP)—Playing the last few minutes of the polo match under a drizzling rain, which turned to pounding hail in the final 20 seconds, the Seventh infantry of Vancouver barracks, Washington, had a 3 to 1 lead over the 30th infantry from Fort Douglas, Utah, when play was called in the polo tournament match on the Boise barracks field this afternoon. The game with the same teams standing will be finished as a postponed match Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, preceding the Camp Lewis-Monterey presidio battle at 4 o'clock. This late match will practically decide who will lead in the corps area championship race and who will meet Boise next week for the Northwestern championship, unless the local exhibitions are headed. Boise is leading in the percentage column with two games won and none lost. Camp Lewis and Monterey are tied with a game won and one each, and Fort Douglas and Vancouver are tied in the cellar position, each with a game lost.

SIMMONS FORMS NEW ORDER TO REPLACE KLAN

Founder of Hooded Organization Declares It "in-Peril of Being Subverted to Personal, Political and Sordid Ends"

ATLANTA, Ga., June 5 (AP)—Establishment of the order of Knights of Kamelia as the "primary order of hooded order," with a government "separation" distinct from the government now controlling and directing the affairs of the first by the primary order of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, was proclaimed tonight by William Joseph Simmons, "in the exercise of the authority vested in me only as emperor of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc."

Everything that I have striven to build during the past year is in peril of being subverted to personal, political and sordid ends," Emperor Simmons said in a statement.

"To save the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan from spoliation and destruction, I have determined to establish Knights Kamelia and thereby give the klansmen of the invisible empire at least the opportunity to transfer to the primary order of hooded order and establish themselves upon the foundation as laid in the beginning."

Charges Bad Faith

Referring to the action of the imperial klansman in leaving out the "Kamelia" name, the women's organizations authorized to become affiliated with the Klan under the title of Women of the Ku Klux Klan, Emperor Simmons' statement said:

"This action on the part of the imperial klansman is repudiating by explicit designation the kamelia, and by adopting other numerous organizations of women, was not only in violation of contract between H. W. Evans and myself, but also in violation of a decree entered in the superior court of Fulton county, Georgia, and further, it was a violation of the original charter which defines that male members only shall be admitted to the order."

"The establishment of the primary order, Knights Kamelia," means, the statement declared, "that the members now on probation in the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan are under the administration of the imperial klansman and the imperial hooded order, while the order Knights Kamelia will be under my control and direction, with such men as I may designate as members, and who do not. The order Knights Kamelia will therefore be absolutely free to inaugurate its policies, to establish its principles and to release itself from my supervision and direction and free from interference from any source of hostility within or without the invisible empire."

Probationers Kept in Dark

"I am compelled to promulgate the Knights Kamelia because of the necessity that obtains among probationary klansmen throughout the country. There has been no way opened to advancement—no progress has been made in construction of the Klan, but the klansmen identified with the organization from its foundation have been left in a state of probation for years, being kept not only ignorant of the principles or the philosophies of the order. They are unfamiliar with the compass of the great order. They have been given no definite advice to be obtained. Meanwhile, there has been a continuous demand for another and higher order, that the worthy American citizens might pass from being probationers to active service in the invisible empire. These citizens cannot be detained longer upon the threshold of the order but must be admitted and elevated to another realm in which they may find exercise for their talents and abated forces."

To Save From Spoliation

"Another motive for forming the Knights Kamelia at this peculiar time is that my original charter, as well as the charter of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan may be observed and consummated. Everything that I have striven to build during the past year is in peril of being subverted to personal, political and sordid ends. To save the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan from spoliation and destruction, I have determined to establish the Knights Kamelia and thereby give the klansmen of the invisible empire at least the opportunity to transfer to the primary order of hooded order and establish themselves upon the foundation as laid in the beginning."

The hearing on the petition filed several days ago by David M. Rittenhouse and others of Philadelphia, asking for the appointment of a receiver for the Klan, will come up in Fulton county court on Saturday. Both Emperor Simmons and Imperial Wizard Evans are among the defendants in the action.

This Silk Suit Settles a Burning

Question

The question of the suit is one that will open and close any feminine gathering. It may rage or flicker to an ember, but there is always enough interest in the subject to start the fire at a moment's notice. This year its modifications and its foibles are many. Everything from the plain, pleated crepe gowns worn with the small coat of baragladine in a different color, to the twill suit, with a self-colored silk blouse is good. And if you are a haughty patrician beauty you may still have your strictly "tailor-made" to be worn with a crisp tucked blouse. These have jackets closely fitting the hips with low waistlines and narrow skirts.

The silk suit is always a delightful compromise. It is not oppressively warm on summer days, yet does away with the desperately exposed feeling that one has if one starts off for the day in an entirely coatless condition.

A soft crepe Faile Moire makes the skirt and the three-quarter, very loose, box coat of the suit in the drawing. Printed crepe de chine attains a position of great prominence in the collar, the lapels, graceful turned back cuffs and the lining of the coat. The same material makes the plain over-blouse. In the particular model seen, the coat and suit were of a warm-toned taupe, the blouse and lining citron. The suit is designed by Henri Creange, the authority on French fashions.

The chapeau should not be ignored. Mushroom tupe felt with a turned up, sharply retreating brim. Yellow rosette streamers that disappear under the crown.

Apprentice System Seen as Remedy for Labor Shortage

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 5 (AP)—Return to the old "apprentice" system in industry, which virtually passed out of existence in America 50 years ago, but which still exists to a wide extent in Europe, was predicted during a conference here today, called primarily to discuss the bricklayers' shortage and to lay plans for training men. Architects, contractors, and representatives and educators attended the conference.

Announcement that the International Union of Bricklayers is wholeheartedly behind the movement and will back an apprentice school system which needs the approval of the art committee of the local union and local contractors of any city, was made by Thomas Preese, international vice president of the union. Mr. Preese suggested that this training be aimed toward a permanent basis to take care of the economic needs of the industry over a long time and not simply to fill the present shortage, which, he said, is "abnormal." He predicted that within three years there would be more bricklayers than work.

A resolution was adopted to name a committee of all the elements involved to draw up the conclusions of the meeting and to urge their adoption in cities throughout the country.

THEY 'FESSED UP

Manufacturers No Match for Stern Chief Riggs.

But, for Some Strange Reason Railroad Detective Seemed to Be Displeased Over the Affair.

After six months of hard work Special Agent William Boulton and his assistants rounded up the three leaders of a gang of box-car thieves at Drowsyville, on the M. & M. Airline. The gang had pilfered thousands of dollars' worth of other valuable merchandise and disposed of the plunder to the "fence" that the agents had been unable to locate. The road's agents had caught the three men in the Drowsyville yards, a part of the plunder in their automobile near a stockpile of a clear case of burglary and grand larceny, and other thefts of which the agents had evidence would make such a long term in the pen that when the defendants got out their years of "idle activity" would be over. Boulton took his three prisoners to the Bureau chief of police or marshal of Drowsyville.

"We caught 'em in a box car last night, Doc," explained the special agent for the road. "They're bad eggs. This narrow-eyed guy is 'Squinty Mike,' the boss of the gang. Hold 'em tight, and we'll be back Wednesday and take 'em over to the county seat."

Chief Riggs put an armed guard in the jail corridor, with instructions to "shoot to kill" if one of the prisoners attempted to break out.

The agents left town and were busy all day Tuesday cleaning up some loose ends of the case so as to make conviction certain when the trial came on. Wednesday morning Special Agent Boulton was back in Drowsyville, where he was cordially greeted by Chief Riggs.

"How's our men?" asked Boulton. "Say, we got a confession out of 'em," said the exulting chief.

"You did?"

"Yes; I got in the cell with Squinty, told him we had the goods on him and that it would save him lots of trouble if he came across and made a clean breast of it."

"Well," said the chief, "Squinty laid his hand on my shoulder and says: 'Hard, you've treated me white, and I'll tell, but you're the only man on earth who could get it from me with a jack-screw.' And he up and told me all."

"Told you all what?" retorted Boulton hoarsely.

"All what you said—that he'd been riding in box cars."

"Great snakes!"

"Yes, and I took 'em before the magistrate, and all of 'em pleaded guilty, and paid a dollar and costs—Squinty was mighty nice about it, and he shook hands."

"Are they gone?"

"Sure! Didn't I tell you they pleaded guilty and paid up? What are you going on that-a-way for?"—Edgar White in the Boston Herald.

THE TRADE BALANCE... The United States lately is buying abroad more than it sells. The excess of imports over exports is worrying a good many Americans...

Plenty of authorities, however, refuse to be worried. Among them is Theodore W. Price, editor of Commerce and Finance, who says:

"The indications now favor a recovery (in the stock market) just as soon as the public begins to understand that there is no more reason for alarm in the fact that Europe happens to be selling us more than it is buying of us than there would be if it became known that the people of New York were buying more in Michigan than Michigan bought in New York."

Some of our surplus gold may move abroad, to pay for the imports, but that is not necessarily a bad thing. Secretary Hoover has been complaining that the country has too much gold. Our gold reserve is twice as high as the law requires. And if gold goes abroad, it will improve European finance, stimulate foreign business and increase our foreign trade.

DRUG CONTROL

The American government's plan for the control of the narcotic drug trade has been presented to the advisory committee of the League of Nations. While it is too soon for direct action to be taken, comment on it by delegates in Geneva has been very favorable.

The American plan suggests drastic reduction of producing areas, urging that only such an acreage of narcotic-producing plants shall be cultivated as is absolutely necessary to provide for legitimate medicinal needs. It provides also for sharp control of exports and imports of drugs and new materials.

The American suggestions are not too drastic to meet the needs of the drug situation. Whether they will be adopted in full by the league is hard to say, but they probably will. In any event, the interest manifested by the United States will quicken the interest of all nations in the subject, and good is bound to result.

THE DOOR BELL PEST

The door bell pest is always among us, sometimes more menacing than others. He strows the doorstep with "literature" and he projects himself inside the house with shameless audacity. He asks myriads of questions—most of which are absolutely none of his business. He learns from one housewife certain details concerning a neighbor's household, and with that information as an entering wedge he proceeds to cry his wares.

Perhaps the door bell ringer is really authorized to take some sort of census. In that case he will have respectable credentials which he will not hesitate to produce for the satisfaction of the housekeeper. Too often he is out to collect the savings of the neighborhood for his fake promotion scheme. Sometimes he is selling books or forging to collect taxes. It is surprising how many persons are deceived by such grafters and play into their hands.

One woman told how she was inveigled into ordering a set of books, almost without her own knowledge, by a smooth book agent who came to the door aware of the family's name and the fact that there was a school child in that home, and knowing even the grade and school that child attended.

There are two points to be remembered in dealing with such persons. One is to decline to have anything to do with them oneself. The other is to urge your neighbor as you would have her do unto you—don't tell the stranger at the door either the neighbor's name or family characteristics.

MARATHON KNITTERS

Non-stop contests no longer hold their position on the first pages of the newspapers, but they still have an inch or two of space inside somewhere. A dispatch from Milwaukee claims for that municipality the world's champion marathon knitters. They fought off sleep for 80 hours, knitting, alternately the while, before they agreed to call quits. A prize of $100 had been offered for the champion. The two women divided it and went home.

There are a couple of interesting facts in relation to this contest. The two women were 19 and 33 years old, which seems to show that the knitting habit among young women, which began during the war and has continued through the sweater era, is still going strong. It used to be only the old maid grandmothers who piled their knitting needles. Now the mercat flapper, and all her sisters on up to grandmother's rank, can turn out a rainbow assortment of knit goods as easily as smoke or drive a car.

In this particular contest the competing knitters agreed to stop at the end of their 80 hours. Each maintains that she could have gone on for another 24 hours "had there been any reason for doing so." Three cheers for the marathoners who know when enough is enough!

But what was the reason for those first 80 hours?

The Light of Western Stars A Romance By Zane Grey Illustrations by Irwin Myers

"Am Stewart's wife," she answered him, and she looked at him, not conscious of any motive to persuade or allure, but just to let him know the greatness of her dependence upon him. He started violently—the old action of Monty's. This man was of the same wild breed.

Then Madeline's words fowed in a torrent. "I am Stewart's wife. I love him; I have been unjust to him; I must save him. Link, I have faith in you. I beseech you to do your best for Stewart's wife for my sake. I'll not care the role gladly—bravely. I'll not care where or how you drive. I'd far rather plunge into a canyon—not to my death on the rocks—but try to save Stewart."

"How beautiful the response of this lovely girl," mused his absolute unconsciousness of self, to see the haggard shade burn out of his face, the old, cool, devil-may-care spirit return to his eyes, and to feel something wonderful about him then! It was more than will or daring or sacrifice. A blood-magic was exhaled between him and Madeline.

"Miss Majesty, she ride figgers impossible, but I'll do it," he replied. His cool, bright glance thrilled her. "I'll need maybe half an hour to go over the car and to park on what I'll want." She could not think him, and her reply was merely to remark that he told Nels and other cowboys off duty to come up to the house. When Link had made Madeline gave a moment's thought to preparation for the ride.

A number of cowboys were waiting. She explained the situation and left them in charge of her home. With that she asked Nels to accompany her down into the desert.

"Why, Miss Majesty, I'm powerful proud to go. If you're goin' down among the Greasers you want me." Link heard the buzz of the car. Madeline appeared, driving up the slope, and she stepped into the car. Link had tied two long, heavy planks upon the car, one on each side, and in every available space he had strapped extra tires. A huge sack occupied one back seat, and another seat was full of tools and ropes. There was just room in the rear part of the car for Nels to squeeze in. Link put Madeline in front, beside him, then bent over the wheel. Madeline waved her hand at the silent cowboys on the porch. Not an audible good-by was spoken.

Livingstone Worked in Factory. Livingstone, the great missionary and explorer, worked as a factory hand until he was twenty-five.

The car glided out of the yard, leaped from level to slope, and started swiftly down the road, out into the open valley. Each stronger rush of dry wind in Madeline's face marked the increase of speed. The buzz, the roar of wheels, of heavy body in flight, increased to a continuous droning hum, and she became insensible, able body moving toward her, crushing her breast, making the task of breathing most difficult. To Madeline the time seemed to fly with the speed of miles.

Cactus barriers the way, rocks barred the road, but she was not deterred. Her eyes were fixed on the road ahead, and she was not aware of the grim humor with which he was wont to view tragic things. Again and again Link used the planks to cross washes in hand. Presently he came to a ditch where water had worn deep into the road. He halted and he placed the measuring distance carefully, and then started across. The danger was in ditching the machine. One of the planks split, waggled a little, but Link made the crossing without slip.

At length a mile of clean, brown, ridged and grooved like a washboard road led to a narrow, shallow floor of the valley, where the scant grama-grass struggled to give a tinge of gray. The road appeared to become more clearly defined, and could be seen striking straight across the valley.

Madeline's dismay, that road led down to a deep, narrow wash. The crossing would have been laborious for a horse; for an automobile it was impassable. Link drove back to the road, crossed it, and kept on down the line of the wash. It was a deep cut in the earth, worn straight down by swift water in the winter. The wash narrowed. When Link reached the narrowest points he got out of the car and walked from place to place. Once with a little jump he cleared the wash. Then Madeline noted that the farther the film was somewhat lower. In a flash she grasped his intention. He was hunting a place to jump the car over the crack in the ground.

Soon he found one that seemed to suit him, for he tied his red scarf upon a green-wood bush. Then, returning to the car, he clambered in, backed up to the gentle slope and linked just short of the level valley floor. The engine whirled, he started slowly at first, then faster, and then faster. The great car gave a spring like a hunched tiger. The impact of suddenly formed wind almost tore Madeline out of her seat. She felt Nels' powerful hands on her shoulders. She closed her eyes. The jolting headway of the car gave place to a gliding rush. This was broken by a slight jar, and then above the hum and roar rose a cowboy yell. Madeline waited with strained nerves for the expected crash. It did not come. Opening her eyes, she saw the level valley floor just ahead. She had not even noticed the instant when the car had shot over the wash.

A strange breathlessness attacked her, and she attributed it to the celebrity with which she was being carried along. Pulling the hood down over her face, she sank low in the seat. The least relief she could get was to be a world-filling sound. There was a long blank period from which she awakened to feel an arm supporting her. Then she rallied. The velocity of the car had been cut to the speed to which she was accustomed. Throwing back the hood, she breathed freely again, recovered fully.

The car was bowling along a wide road upon the outskirts of a city. Madeline asked what place it could be. "Douglas," replied Link. "An' Jest around is Agua Prieta!" That last name seemed to stun Madeline. She heard no more, and said a little while the car stopped. Nels spoke to some one. The sight of khaki-clad soldiers quickened Madeline's faculties. She was on the boundary-line between the United States and Mexico, and Agua Prieta, with its white and blue-walled houses, its brown-tiled roofs, lay before her. A cavalry officer approached the car, stared and removed his sombrero.

"Can you tell me anything about Stewart, the American cowboy who was captured by rebels a few days ago?" asked Madeline. "Yes," replied the officer. "Stewart is reported to have done reckless fighting and was captured. He got a Mexican name. He is known here along the border, and he knows his own territory and is very expert. We did all we could to get his release. The guerrillas feared to execute him here, and believed he might be able to escape. So a detachment departed with him for Mequital."

"He was sentenced to be shot Thursday at sunset—tonight?" "Yes, I regret that I can't give you definite information. If you are friends of Stewart's—relatives—I might find."

"I am his wife," interrupted Madeline. "Will you please read these." She handed him the telegram. "Advice me—help me, if you can." With a wondering glance at her the officer received the telegram. He read several, and whistled low in amazement. His manner became quick, alert, serious.

"I can't read these written in Spanish, but I know the names signed. Swiftly he ran through the others. "Why, these men," Stewart's release has been authorized. They explain mysterious rumors we have heard here. Greaser treachery! For some strange reason messages from the rebel Junta have failed to reach their destination. I'll go with you to General Salazar, the rebel chief in command, and I know him. Perhaps we can find out something."

Nels made room for the officer. Link sent the car whirling across the line into Mexican territory. The road ended in an immense plaza, the center of which was a circular structure that in some measure resembled a corral. It was a bull-ring, where the national sport of bull-fighting was carried on.

Madeline caught a glimpse of tents inside, then her view was obstructed by a curious, pressing throng. The cavalry officer leaped from the car and pushed his way into the entrance. How stifling was this crowded, ill-smelling plaza! The sun, red and lowering, had slipped far down in the west, but still hung with furcous glare. A shower of flies whirled over the car. The shadows of low-sailing buzzards crossed Madeline's sight. Then she saw a row of the huge, uncanny black birds sitting upon the tiled roof of a difficult, extremely hazardous, yet Link Stevens drove fast. Then, in taking an abrupt curve, a grasping spur ruined another tire. This time the car rasped across the road into the cactus, bursting the second front-wheel tire. Like demons indeed Link and Nels fled the declining heat of the sun, saw with gloomy eyes the shading of the red light over the desert. She did not look back to see how near the sun was to the horizon. She wanted to ask Nels. Strange as anything on this terrible ride was the absence of speech, as yet no word had been spoken. Madeline wanted to shriek to Link to hurry. But he was more than humanly swift in all his actions. So with mute lips, with the fire in her beginning to chill, with a lifelessness muzzling her spirit, she watched, hoped against hope, pressed for a long, straight, smooth road.

She Handed Him the Telegram. "Advice Me—Help Me, if You Can"

house. They had neither an air of sleeping nor resting. They were waiting. She fought off a horrible ghastly thought, being discomfited by it. Suddenly the crowd parted, let the cavalry officer and a rebel of striking presence get to the car.

"Madam, it is as I suspected," said the officer, quickly. "The messages directing Stewart's release were intercepted. But even without them we might have secured Stewart's exchange if it had not been for the fact that one of his captors wanted him shot. This guerrilla intercepted the orders, and then was instrumental in taking Stewart to Mequital. It is exceedingly rare that he should be aught in his hands."

"Who did this—this thing?" cried Madeline, cold and sick. "Who is the guerrilla?" "Senior Don Carlos Martnez. He has been a bandit, a man of influence in Sonora. He is more of a secret agent in the affairs of the revolution than an active participant. But he has seen guerrilla service."

"Oh, God! Madeline sank down, almost overcome. Then two great hands, powerful, thrilling, clasped her shoulders. "Nels," she said over her. "Miss Majesty, shows we're wastin' time here," he vent his voice. Like his hands, was uplifting. She wheeled to him in trembling impotency. How cold, bright, blue the flash of his eyes! They told Madeline she must not weaken. But she could not speak her thanks to Nels—could only look at Link.

"It fingers impossible, but I'll do it!" said Link Stevens, in answer to her voiceless query. "Can I get a permit to go into the interior to Mequital?" asked Madeline of the officer.

"You are going out? Madam, it's a foredoom here. Mequital is a hundred miles away. But there's a chance—the best chance if your man can drive this car. The Mexicans are either murderous or ceremonious in their executions. The arrangements for Stewart's will be elaborate. But, being unusual circumstances, it will take no less precisely the hour designated. You need no permit. Your messages are official papers. But to save time, perhaps delay, I suggest you take this Mexican, Senior Montes, with you. He guarantees Don Carlos and knows the captain of the Mequital detachment."

"I thank you, sir. I shall not forget your kindness," concluded Madeline. The white, narrow road flashed out of the foreground, slipped with inconceivable rapidity under the car. When she marked a clump of cactus far ahead it seemed to shoot at her, to bend behind her eyes the instant she noticed it. Nevertheless, Madeline knew Link was not putting the car to its limit. Swiftly as he was flying, he held something in reserve. And every loop and blade and branch of cactus bore wicked thorns, any one of which would be fatal to a tire.

It came at length, the bursting report. The car lurched, went on like a crippled tank, and halted, obedient to the master hand at the wheel. Swift as Link was in replacing the tire, he lost time. The red sun, more sultry, dusky as it neared the black, bold horizon, appeared to mock Madeline, to eye her in derision.

Link leaped in, and the car sprang ahead. The road began to wind up; it tilted and tilted in tantalizing, lazy curves; it was in no hurry to surmount a hill that began to assume proportions of a mountain; it was exclusively, as were all things in Mexico, except strife. That was quick, fierce, bloody—it was Spanish. The descent from that elevation was

"He Was in a Hurry. On the first day of school I was busy getting the children's names. I had noticed one little boy sitting very close to me. Presently he raised his hand and asked: 'Teacher, when are you going to give us our education and let us go home?'—Exchange.

Be Five Thirty Miles an Hour. An experiment was once made to see how fast a bee can fly. The bee was attached to the roof of a train, which attained a speed of thirty miles an hour before the bee was let behind.

SEEK FACTS ON ZONING SCHEME IN TWIN FALLS

Control of Locations of Industries May Require Attention of Council; Plan Survey Before Taking Action

The fact that the city zoning idea has been advanced as being applicable to Twin Falls is the latest evidence that this city has outgrown its "small town" status and indications are that the plan will be given further attention by the city commission in the near future.

The idea was first mentioned by Commissioner J. S. Keel at a meeting of the commission two weeks ago and by subsequent action the Twentieth Century Club and the civic bureau of the chamber of commerce were to be requested to study the question of the advisability of its application in Twin Falls.

The Twentieth Century club is willing to cooperate and, although the business bureau will not be held until October, a committee will be appointed at once to work with the chamber of commerce bureau if such a request is made, according to Mrs. W. Orr Chapman, president of the club.

The advisability of a zoning plan was first mentioned during the debates of the city commissioners several weeks ago on granting permits to oil companies to erect storage tanks. It was pointed out at that time by Commissioner H. S. All that had the effect of a zoning ordinance oil storage tanks could not have been erected in the near vicinity of warehouses or other buildings owned by business concerns.

The fact that oil tanks were previously permitted to be constructed close to the center of the city was regarded as unfair by the officials of the chamber who recently applied for building permits which were being required to establish their tanks farther out.

The belief that a zoning ordinance may be found necessary is further strengthened by the probability that permits will be applied for in the future to erect buildings for various purposes, some of which may be undesirable to the residents in the neighborhoods of the proposed locations and where they have probably owned property and paid taxes for many years.

SEEKS ENLISTMENTS IN MARINE CORPS SERVICE

Recruiting Office From Pocatello Is Here For Two Day Campaign; Big Variety of Courses Is Offered

C. L. Roberts, marine corps recruiting officer at the sub-district headquarters at Pocatello, arrived here Tuesday for a two-day campaign for enlistments. Mr. Roberts, who has headquarters at the Regency hotel, will leave Thursday, but will return later and will be here June 10, 11 and 12, when he will spend the greater part of the district knights of Pythias convention at Buhl.

The enlistment period of the marine corps is four years, except for ex-service men who sign up within a year after the discharge, the period then being three years. Recruits are examined here and at district headquarters at Salt Lake, after which they enter training at Mare Island, Cal. They are then given their choice of locations in the service.

Fifty-four professional, trade and business courses of all kinds are offered and although the beginner's pay is $21 a month through special enlistment agreements and recruits may leave for service when they become proficient in any line, according to Mr. Roberts.

CELEBRATE FOURTH IN OLD FASHIONED STYLE

Ovics Bureau Chairman Appoints Committee Propagatory to Arranging Program of Features

Twin Falls is to have a regular old fashioned Fourth of July celebration this year, according to a plan made at the meeting of the civic bureau of the chamber of commerce at the Regency hotel Tuesday noon.

Committees to have charge of arrangements were appointed by J. D. Alvord, chairman of the civic bureau, with a view of getting plans definitely outlined as soon as possible.

The tentative program is a program that will include amusement and contests of all kinds, everything being free and the intention of these in charge being to make the program one that will appeal to all ages and tastes. There will be no parade, however, according to present plans.

SAYS REAL WORK WOULD HELP SOCIETY GIRLS

Surgeon Gen. H. S. Cummings

SURGEON-GENERAL HUGH S. CUMMINGS, of the United States Public Health Service, has issued a statement advising that all persons should plan their vacations to be radically different from their daily occupations. A society girl, who really works as hard as anybody in the service of the Goddess Pleasure and is probably (temporarily at least) sick of tons and men and other things, would do well to attend a summer normal school, where she could get a new outlook on life, unless she has courage enough to get a job in a factory," the surgeon-general said. "If she is not too haughty there some factory girl might take pity on her and teach her the ropes."

SECTS ATTACK GARY'S 12-HOUR DAY ARGUMENT

Representatives of 50,000,000 Protestants, Catholics and Hebrews Declare War on Long Work Day

NEW YORK, June 6 (AP)—Representatives of 50,000,000 Protestants, Roman Catholics and Hebrews joined forces today in a statement condemning as unworthy and untenable the arguments of the committee of the American Iron and Steel Institute, which recently reported unfavorably on the proposed elimination of the 12-hour day in the steel industry.

The report, made by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, at a meeting of the institute in New York, and there adopted, was characterized in the statement as "insulting to the public confidence."

"The forces of organized religion in this country are now warranted," the statement asserted. "In declaring that this morally indefensible regime of the 12-hour day must come to an end. A further report is due from the iron and steel institute—a report of a different tenor."

National Chief of Legion Coming Here

Alvin Owsley Promises to Visit Twin Falls in Few Months; Plan Public Address

Alvin Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, has promised officials of the local post that he will be in Twin Falls some time during the next few months and an effort is being made to bring him here next month.

Mr. Owsley, who is making a nationwide tour in the interests of the legion, will be accompanied by a trip through California, Oregon and Washington. C. H. Kregel, commander of the Twin Falls post of the legion, met the national commander at Boise and at that time the former assured Mr. Kregel that he will try to arrange to come to Twin Falls in July. In any event, Mr. Kregel and Mr. Owsley intend to make the trip here, possibly in the fall if he cannot arrange to be here sooner.

From Boise the national commander went to Idaho Falls and from there to Montana. Later he will tour through the national headquarters at Boise and will give a luncheon in his honor and a public address. The principal object of Mr. Owsley in coming here is to obtain information on which he will be able to offer suggestions for a membership drive.

Mr. Owsley's grandfather established Owsley's ferry across Snake river north of Buhl many years ago and several other relatives still reside in this district.

Experience Valuable

It is an much waste to make it end out of the oven too soon as it is to allow it to remain there too long. Prevention of waste requires the exercise of judgment which is gained only through experience. This is why experience is a valuable asset.

When You Moved the Last Time—

Scratched and marred floors were possibly much in evidence. Heavy furniture, pianos, rough shoes, all contributed their bit to the damaging of floors that had been good looking.

The beauty and splendor of varnished floors will be retained if you use

Cement for China

Mix a cupful of milk with a cupful of vinegar, separate the curd from the whey and mix the whey with the whites of five eggs, beating the whole together thoroughly. When well mixed, stir in a little salt and stir until it is of the consistency of thick paste. With this, broken china, glass and cracks of all kinds may be mended. It dries quickly and resists the action of water and heat.

Canada Self-Governing

Canada is a self-governing dominion of the British empire. It makes its own laws, has its own law-making bodies and provides for its own defense. The only symbol of British authority is the appointment of the king's representative, the governor general of Canada; his power is limited and almost nominal.
